FILMS RADIO VIDEO MUSIC STAGE

VARIETY

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc., Annual subscription $10. Single copies, 25 cents.
Entered as second class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1953, BY VARIETY, INC., ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
VOL. 190 No. 4 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1953 PRICE 25 CENTS

3-D KEYS NEW ROADSHOW PIX BIZ

Death of Private Eye Snarls Secret Probe of N.Y. Legit Tix

Death last week of Harold L. Groves, a private investigator who was conducting a secret ticket probe for the League of N. Y. Theatres, has presented a dilemma for the managerial organization. No decision has been reached on what to do with the evidence complied, reportedly implicating 25 brokers and numerous boxoffice men on charges of ticket code violations.

Groves, who had been a film theatre checker for some years, was engaged by attorney Arthur Garfield Hays, representing the code authority of the League, to investigate reports of widespread ticket abuses on the part of Broadway brokers and b.o. men. In an effort to keep the probe secret, the League board of governors was not informed of the scheme.

Word of the investigation gradually began to get around among brokers and theatre treasurers, however, and there was considerable resentment expressed at "entrapment" methods used. Members of the League board who heard of the situation apparently took varying views of the situation, in some cases being critical, on the ground that as usual only the small fry were being caught on infractions and that no evidence was being obtained involving higher-ups.

Decision on whether to drop the whole probe, at least for the present, or whether to proceed on the basis of progress so far, or even to hire a new top investigator and start anew, is up to the code authority, in which the League and Actors Equity are represented.

Same Prices Since '17!

Chicago, March 31.

Despite lifting of controls and rising prices, there is one indie house that refuses to take advantage of the situation.

New Strand Theatre, owned by Clarence Leider and John Nainick, which has just been redecorated, has had the same admission price since 1917; 20c for adults and 9c for children.

500G TV Package With Name Talent In 17-City Swing

A widescale show biz operation, designed to sell live name-star TV programs to local and regional advertisers in 17 cities, is being teed off this week by four N. Y. radio-TV ad agency execs.

Development, which looms as something approximating a TV-era Keith-Albee circuit, is backed by an estimated $500,000 and a closed corporation, TV Roadshows, Inc. Novel concept involves packaging name star shows in N. Y., and sending them on two-week tours to TV stations. At a talent cost of $6,300 to $12,900 per stanza, depending on the number of TV sets in the area, local advertisers win the merchandising and ballyhoo prestige of bankrolling their own live glamor program once every four weeks.

While no contracts have yet been

(Continued on page 69)

Dusk-to-Dawn Ozoners ('Passion Pits With Pix') K.O.d by San Antone Clergy

San Antonio, March 31.

Following a blast by local clergymen, "moviethons" at a number of ozoners here, in which film showings continue into the early hours of Sunday morning, have been discontinued. Churchmen complained that young people attending the shows stayed out so late they could not attend Sunday school or other Sunday morning church services.

According to one minister, some of the outdoor theatres were showing their main feature twice after midnight "and teenagers are not interested in seeing the same picture twice just for the sake of seeing a movie."

Five drive-ins out of a total of 12 in this area had been operating on a dusk-to-dawn policy. Ops of the ozoners not following the all-

(Continued on page 95)

N.Y.-TO-D.C. TOUR-JETE FOR DARVAS & JULIA

Darvas & Julia will be doing a long-distance bicycling act starting next Tuesday (7). Duo will double between the Palace Theatre, N. Y., and the Shoreham Hotel, Washington.

Dancers had been booked for the Shoreham date last November before their current date with the Danny Kaye show had been set. With steady extensions of the Palace date, terpers claim they couldn't get out of the Shoreham commitment. Thus they'll catch a plane at the conclusion of their Palace show at 9:30 p. m. and hope to get in Washington in time to do the 11:45 show at the hotel.

'ELITE' HOUSES' 1ST RUN THREAT

While still in the blueprint stages, emergence of a "hierarchy" of super-deluxe roadshow houses specializing in widescreen offerings is intriguing observers.

Development, which takes on the character of an industry within an industry, could seriously affect the current exhibition pattern whereby many of the majors now draw some 80% of their revenue from 1,000 to 1,500 first-runs.

"Elite" circuit is shaping with (1) the gradual expansion of Cinerama, which plans to limit strictly number of theatres where it will play, and (2) deliberate confining of Magna Theatre Corp.'s new 65m Todd-AO widescreen process to no more than 500 showcases controlled in the main by the Joseph M. Schenck-George Skouras interests in Magna.

Distrib execs agree that, for a while at least, this may make for an unhealthy situation, with widescreen showcases drawing the cream of the available biz and other houses suffering. Growth in the total of these special houses also may affect distrib revenues, as

(Continued on page 29)

Hurok May Run Monte Carlo Deal

Negotiations are pending between Sol Hurok, N. Y. concert-legit impresario, and Aristotle S. Onassis, Greek shipping magnate who controls the Casino and Opera House setup at Monte Carlo, for Hurok to take over the directorship of the Riviera resort's show biz activities.

Onassis, who recently bought control of the Societe des Bains de Mer, which owns most of the resort activities, is anxious to revive the cultural prestige and draw of Monte Carlo, which has suffered from competition of other resorts and festival areas in recent sea-

(Continued on page 90)

Christine on TV

Christine Jorgensen will make her first TV guest appearance Sunday (5) on the "Arthur Murray Show" over DuMont.

She'll make a two-minute pitch on behalf of the Damon Runyon Fund and the American Cancer Society. On Walter Winchell's TVer recently she was shown in the audience.

ABC-TV Quest for Major Stars Sparks Battle of Webs for Talent

Zukor Biopic?

Paramount apparently is considering an Adolph Zukor biopic. Outfit has registered the title "Mr. Motion Pictures," listed as an original feature, with the Motion Picture Assn. of America.

That's the title conferred upon Zukor, who was recently feted on his 80th birthday and 50th year in the film business.

With a rejuvenated ABC-TV network (offshoot of the United Paramount Theatre merger) serving notice that "the sky and the stars are the limit" in its bid for preeminence in show business, a new inter-network battle for talent control is taking shape.

Until now ABC has been running a poor third in the coast-to-coast web rivalry, but with its acquisition of valuable properties in recent weeks, topped by the Danny Thomas-Ray Bolger-George Jessel pacts, the "full speed ahead" signs are posted.

That NBC-TV is already alerted to the ABC "Grand Opening" scheduled for the fall is evident from the fact that Frank White & Co., despite previous indications of curbing excessive talent demands, are moving in to strengthen the NBC talent roster.

That NBC is agitated over the ABC eagerness to grab off top talent availabilities is gleaned from its acquisition this week of Tom Ewell, with a deal imminent for the pacting of Betty Hutton.

Ewell, star of the Broadway hit, "Seven Year Itch," has a long-term radio-TV exclusive which will permit him to do plays and films. First deal will be a half-hour situation comedy filmed in New York.

Miss Hutton, arriving in New

(Continued on page 29)

Berle's Play 2, Lay Off 1' Sked For Gen. Motors

General Motors has placed a tentative order with NBC-TV, via the Kudner agency, for an alternate-week sponsorship of the Milton Berle Tuesday night TV show, which Texaco is relinquishing. GM has been sponsoring the "Buick Circus Hour" on an every-fourth-week basis during the past season, but this will be dropped.

Meanwhile, efforts are still being made to wrap up a second client for the Berle stanza, which will have an approximate $70,000 talent-production nut next season (plus the $60,000 charge for a full hour of time).

It's reported that Berle may increase his layoffs next season from once every four weeks to every third week, which would pose the problem again of finding the alternate 8 to 9 attraction, as in the case of "Circus Hour."

IKE DINING GOLDWYN; LATTER'S 'GUYS' TALKS

Samuel Goldwyn has a dinner date tonight (Wed.) with President Eisenhower at the White House. It's an informal session which has its origin in the filmmaker's support of Eisenhower during the presidential sweepstakes last November.

Goldwyn will return to N. Y. following the D. C. conclave and still has plans to embark on a European trip April 21. Monday (30) in Gotham the producer had an informal luncheon-session with newspaper critics. He revealed he's negotiating for the rights to "Guys and Dolls" with co-author Frank Loesser.

Shubert the Younger Orders Lopoff of All Hired Hands Over 65

Expressing a long-standing managerial gripe that many veteran stagehands are too old to do satisfactory work in legit, theatre owner-producer J. J. Shubert last week ordered the dismissal of all employees over the age of 65, including not only grips in the Shubert houses, but those working in the firm's costume, scenic and service departments.

Edict is figured likely to have little or no effect, as stagehands are not hired individually but are assigned by the union, while employees in the costume and scenic shops and storehouses are covered by seniority contracts with their respective unions.

Informed of the Shubert order, a representative of the stagehands' New York local suggested that any 65-year limit also apply to members of the League of N. Y. Theatres. According to Who's Who in the Theatre, J. J. Shubert is 73 and his brother Lee is 78, but both are generally believed to be several years older than that.

JOE E. LEWIS' 30th ANNIVERSARY
(Pages 32 to 55)

Paris '53 Baedeker to the Bistros; New Fun, Same Slogan: Bring Money

By GENE MOSKOWITZ

Paris, March 31.

Biz not so hot is the verdict of the Syndicat Des Cabarets here. This strictly voluntarily joined and obeyed union has most of the boites here under its emblem, which adorns the walls of most of its members. Plaque, giving the name of the org in bold face, is supposed to insure customers and tourists that clippo practices are not followed here and that the average cabaret charge is adhered to without sleight-of-hand tactics in re half-filled champagne bottles, etc.

Average price for a bottle of champagne for two should not come to more than 4,600 francs ($11.50) according to the Syndicat prexy. He adds that prices are about the same as last year though costs have risen. He says this is due to shaky nitery biz, and the desire of owners not to antagonize the clientele. Object of the Syndicat is "to do away with overcharging and be able to convince foreign patrons," he continued, that Gallic cabarets are out to entertain rather than fleece customers.

Syndicat's topper finishes with fact that not all boites fall into the desired category and the biggies, of course, charge more due to the size of floorshow and overhead. However, he feels that most of the members stick to the unbinding code.

Nachat Martini, Pigalle nitery entrepreneur, is back here after dropping a wad in his try at purveying Gallic nitery fare to the New Yorkers. He dropped a chunk at the French Casino (old Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe, off Times Square) and is now here sticking to his two nudey boites in Montmartre — Le Pigalles and

(Continued on page 20)

Big Show Biz Flavor To N.Y.'s 'April in Paris' Ball

Jose Ferrer, Zsa Zsa Gabor and French imports Suzy Delair and Renee Jeanmaire are among the entertainers slated to appear at the second "April in Paris" Ball set for April 20 at the Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y. A total of seven tableaux will be presented at the ball with socialites and professional performers handling the thesping chores. Legit producer Gilbert Miller and Barbara Warner, daughter of Jack L. Warner, are also scheduled to take part in individual tableau productions.

Ferrer and Miss Gabor, along with a group of Can-Can girls, will present scenes from the film "Moulin Rouge," in which they both appear. Miss Gabor will also do her songs from the pic. Miss Delair, chanteuse and actress, due in from Paris April 8, will offer a program of songs. French dramatist Marcel Achard is writing a sketch for Miss Jeanmaire, in which she'll sing and dance. Henri Sauguet, French composer, will also appear in a tableau written by him and choreographed by Mme. Yvonne Frank, of the Paris Opera. Costumes will be provided by leading Parisian couturiers.

Claude C. Philippe, veepee of the Waldorf-Astoria Corp., is secretary and sparkplug of the Ball committee. Elsa Maxwell is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Festive Birthday Party For 'Okla.'s' 10th Anni

Washington, March 31.

National Theatre is setting tonight (Tues.) for a festive birthday party for "Oklahoma," which opened exactly 10 years ago at the St. James in New York. Scheduled to be here for celebration are one of the play's authors, Oscar Hammerstein, 2d. Co-author Richard Rodgers has a bad leg and can't come. This marks the 10th year of their collaboration.

Others scheduled to be here are Theresa Helburn and fellow Theatre Guild producer Lawrence Langner, and associate producer Armina Marshall; Agnes De Mille, who composed "Oklahoma's" ballets; Alfred Drake, Bambi Linn and Rod Alexander of the original cast; Richard Aldrich, Richard Myers and Louis Lotito, operators of the National, and other Broadway notables.

Party is to be held in the National's new lounge, which opens tonight.

Nitery Tax Receipts Up 610G for 8 Months; Amus. Biz Skids by $19,500,000

Washington, March 31.

General admissions tax collections for the first eight months of the U. S. fiscal year, commencing July 1, 1952, were approximately $19,500,000 back of figures for the comparable period of a year earlier, according to Bureau of Internal Revenue figures just announced. It's estimated that 75 to 80% of the tax take comes from motion picture theatres.

Thus the drop largely reflects a decline in film theatre attendance. At the same time, there has been a booming market in the sale of radios, TV sets, and phonographs. For the eight-month period, the U. S. excise tax take in this category zoomed by $22,235,000. Large bulk of this undoubtedly came from tele receivers. Phonographs helped the category very little, because there was a drop in the tax receipts on records.

February admissions tax receipts (for the last of the eight months) were down no less than $3,250,000 from the same month in 1952. February figures generally reflect January at the b.o. Month's take came to only $20,636,600. However, unlike the tax bite on general admissions, the 20% levy on nitery checks has held its own. For the eight-month period, this tax yielded $31,634,000, which was $610,000 over the preceding year. In the month of February, the receipts of $4,248,000, ran about $300,000 ahead of the same month in 1952.

In New York's 3rd Internal Revenue District—all of Manhattan above 23rd St.—the general admissions tax brought $3,728,000, which was $150,000 back of figures for the previous month. However, the sock $861,000 nitery tax receipts ran double the figures for the previous month.

4/1

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $

Please send VARIETY for One Year / Two Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City ..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$10.00 Two Years—$18.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

HORACE HEIDT
FOR LUCKY STRIKE
Under Personal Management
JOHN LEER
111 Fifth Ave., New York

Urge Film Biz To B.R. Oscars on TV

While pleased with the impact of the televised Oscar awards show March 19, exhibs are nevertheless divided on whether or not it would be wiser for the industry to go ahead and sponsor the presentations itself on TV next year.

It's generally conceded that, despite minor production flaws, the show was the public relations job of the decade, spotlighting in the public's eye the glamor and the excitement that goes with Hollywood and its personalities.

At the same time, there are some who feel that an added advantage could be gained from keeping the entire event "in the family." It's felt that this would create an opportunity to plug the pic biz more forcefully and directly rather than by indirection through the awards themselves.

There were a number of comments pointing to the advisability of building the televised Oscars strictly around the glamor and production side of the industry and of finding time to dramatize happenings beyond the element of suspense about who would get an award. It's pointed out that, from

(Continued on page 27)

BBC Chief Show Biz Loser On Queen Mary's Death; No Change in Coronation

London, March 31.

There was no general shutdown of entertainment as result of the death of Queen Mary, but all legit and picture theatres will stay dark until 6 p.m. today (Tues.), day of the funeral, as a mark of respect.

At the passing of King George VI last year, all branches of show biz turned out the lights day of his death, with partial closing also during the period of the funeral.

There has, however, been some modification of arrangements. The London preem of "Stalag 17," which had been set for last Thursday (26), has been postponed until next Saturday (4). This was a joint decision by Jack Hylton and Sam Byrd, who are co-presenting the play at the Princes.

Prince Phillip had to cancel arrangements to be chief guest at the world preem of "The Cruel Sea," proceeds of which were handed over to a naval charity. Cabarets are carrying on as usual in hotels and restaurants, although many of

(Continued on page 95)

Shufflin' Shirley

Shirley Booth took the spotlight twice at the American Theatre Wing's Antoinette Perry award dinner at the Waldorf Astoria, N. Y., Sunday (29) — once for her thesping ability and again for her terp agility. Actress copped a Tony for her starring performance in "The Time of the Cuckoo" and later on in the evening took over the dancefloor in a jitterbug session.

Actually, she's an old hand at the Lindy-hop, having rubberlegged it with the visiting servicemen when she was a hostess at the Wing's N. Y. canteen during World War II.

Floorshows Not 'Frenchy Enough,' Paris' Lido Acts Now Only 50% Yank

Pierre Louis-Guerin, g.m. of Paris' Club Lido and also the Empire Theatre, flew back to France last week after a three-month scouting tour of Havana, Miami Beach, Hollywood, Las Vegas and New York. Rene Fraday, who produces his shows, departs on Friday (3), to be followed by the U. S. talent, sailing April 24 on the Mauretania for the new Lido "Voila," which opens May 28.

It will again be a mixed ice- and regular floorshow, but Fraday, this year, intends to put more accent on the French components. About 50% of the personnel will be Yank talent, where heretofore it was 80% which, while liked by the natives, has been criticized by American and British tourists visiting the Continent as not being "Frenchy enough."

For the first time, for instance, a native can-can troupe of dancers will be part of the Lido, which is on the Champs-Elysees, now that the Bal Tabarin, dark for some time, will veer more to a vaudery, a la the Moulin Rouge, also in the Montmartre sector. The Bal may revert to its traditional pattern, when its new show next December goes in rehearsal, that being more for the French provincial audiences it usually attracts.

The terping Cabots, two men and a girl, recently at the Versailles, N. Y., the acro-dancing Lane Bros. (2), and Romayne & Brent, adagio iceskaters recently at the Roxy, head the Yank acts. The boy skating-dancing line will also be from New York, but the eight dancing girls will again be from England, as will the showgirls and nudes from Paris, numbering 24 in all, it's the biggest femme line to date at Le Lido. Donn Arden, assisted by David Nilo will again stage the dances; last year Arden had Ron Fletcher with him, but the latter has since stepped out on his own with TV chorus lines and specialists.

Sinatra in June

Per usual, an occasional name will further punctuate the Lido proceedings, as with Yma Sumac, Carmen Miranda and Lena Horne in seasons past. Frank Sinatra will probably officiate this season in like manner, at least for a week in June, during the peak post-Coronation influx.

Marionettes Lafeyn, from the Quatre Saisons nitery in intimate Left Bank boite, will be the featured French act along with a native magico named Danny Raye (sic!). Lafeyn's act comprises five people, and utilizes life-size puppets. He has been mentioned for the London Palladium, but Fraday states that Lafeyn is tied to the Lido for a solid year.

Lido Show's U. S. Tour

Paris, March 31.

The William Morris agency is trying to set a U. S. tour of an "official" Lido Club show starting next December, but there's nothing specific yet.

Plan calls for one month's booking in Havana, three months in Miami Beach, and two months between Reno and Las Vegas. Accent would be even more on the Gallic talent, a reverse on the Lido's inclination towards U. S. acts.

D.C. Helps Mary Pickford Launch Her Bond Drive

Washington, March 31.

Mary Pickford came to town yesterday (Mon.) to repeat a patriotic role she played 35 years ago when she embarked on a tour for Uncle Sam to sell Liberty Bonds. This time, she is taking to the road for six weeks to push a Bond-A-Month plan among professional and other self-employed people. She will speak to some 10,000 women's club leaders in 13 states.

In launching her campaign, Miss Pickford, now nearing 60, spoke from the Capitol steps, attended a luncheon given in her honor by House Speaker Joseph Martin and was guest at a tea given by Mamie Eisenhower. At the White House affair, attended by wives of Supreme Court justices and Cabinet members, guests were shown a "Mary Pickford Cavalcade" containing scenes from the star's silent films.

Tour, arranged by Jacob Mobelever of the Treasury Dept.'s Bond Division, winds up May 13 in San Francisco.

Cry Guy's Drummer Barred At Palladium Bow; Union Objects to 'Wandering'

London, March 31.

Three hours before Johnnie Ray made his British debut on the stage of the London Palladium last Monday (23), the Musicians Union informed the management that they could not grant permission for his American drummer, Sammy Fede, to appear with him.

The Cry Guy, who is partly deaf, relies upon his accompanying drummer to give out with a strong beat, and the MU's pronunciamento was regarded so seriously that, at one time, there was even talk of the theatre closing rather than give way.

Palladium boss Val Parnell went so far as to suggest, in a press interview, that MU probably expected Ray would be unable to appear without his own drummer. Union called this suggestion "scandalous," and said: "The management told us that the theatre might have to close."

Fede has a working permit granted by the British Ministry of Labour, in view of the special circumstances regarding his usefulness to Ray, but MU has its own ideas. During afternoon rehearsal for the first show, it squawked about Fede playing on the drumkit belonging to the resident drummer of the Skyrockets' Orchestra (Palladium house band). Another kit was sent for.

A few hours later, the decree forbidding Fede from playing at all was issued.

During the first house, the Skyrockets' drummer accompanied Ray while Fede (garbed in a cerise jacket like all the other band-members) sat by his side, whispering instructions to him as Ray changed the tempos or switched his program. Union allowed this for one performance only.

The MU statment on the subject says, "We will not have it assumed that foreign musicians can wander into a British orchestra freely. A British drummer would not be allowed, under similar circumstances, to play in the United States."

It was pointed out to the MU that, among others, Danny Kaye brought pianist Sam Prager to the Palladium with him; Frankie Laine brought Carl Fischer; Billy Daniels brought Benny Payne, and that an American drummer was actually allowed to accompany Jimmy Durante at the Palladium. Other accompanists have been allowed in from time to time.

MU replied: "Where the union has been satisfied that the foreign musician is an integral part of an act, his appearance has been approved. Where such permission is given, we cannot accept an obligation to justify our action to anybody but our own members."

'Grassroots' Editors Now In USSR for 'Town Hall'

Nine U. S. "grassroots" editors now visiting Russia were tapped over the weekend by ABC and Town Hall, producer of "America's Town Meeting," to participate in an exclusive radio-TV discussion program on their return from Moscow.

Deal was arranged by Town Hall radio-TV topper William R. Traum in a trans-Atlantic phone call to James Wick, publisher of several U. S. dailies, who is now heading a junket of 25 editors through Europe and the Middle East.

Nine members, selected by lot, got an okay from the Russian Embassy in London to penetrate the Iron Curtain—first such group the Soviet Union has admitted in many years. Among them are John Biddle of WCPA, Clearfield, Pa.; Rebecca Gross, Look Haven, Pa.; Martha Hoiles, WFAH, Alliance, O.; Bennett Knudson, KATE; and other news reporters.

EXHIBS' $110,000,000 GAMBLE

Magna to Bow With Super-Roadshow Musical; One-Year B'way Run Seen

Magna Theatre Corp. will launch its new Todd-AO widescreen system with a musical extravaganza in color and budgeted at from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. Cameras should roll in July or by Aug. 1 at the latest, and the super-roadshow attraction is skedded to preem at New York's Rivoli Theatre during January, 1954. "It is hoped it will be a Rodgers & Hammerstein property, is the cautious statement.

For the present, Magna plans call for only one picture to be produced. It's expected to be good for a one-year run on Broadway. During 1954 it'll also be roadshown in 24 to 28 leased houses, most if not all of them a part of United Artists Theatres, which has a 40% interest in Magna.

Joseph M. Schenck, Magna board chairman, and showman Mike Todd, who along with the American Optical Co. gave the new system its name, last week (26) clarified some of the questions about the process which has been developed in great secrecy. Trade and press demonstration showings are skedded for May or June at a theatre which Todd said would definitely be outside New York and near one of the American Optical plants.

The Todd-AO method breaks down into two parts. One involves application of 65m film, a special lens and use of a wide screen made of radically new material. The other, still under wraps since patents on it have just been filed,

(Continued on page 29)

R&H's Optional Out

Unless there is an effective demonstration of Magna Theatre Corp.'s Todd-AO widescreen system by Aug. 1 at the latest, Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 2d have the right to withdraw from the setup. Both are on the Magna board and are investors in the company.

Under their agreement with Magna's board chairman Joseph M. Schenck, the Rodgers & Hammerstein team will produce musical pix exclusively for Magna distribution. Rodgers said Monday (30) that there had been no decision re the first Magna production and that there could be no R & H participation in one until their new musical, "Me and Juliet," was launched.

Exhibs Gotta Join in 3-D Trial-&-Error

Hesitancy on the part of theatre owners to equip themselves for 3-D or one of the large-screen processes is being rapped by distrib execs, despite the obvious dilemma which exhibs are facing over which system to choose. Film officials are plugging the systems endorsed by their own companies, respectively, of course, but the point they emphasize is that the exhibs, regardless of the hazards involved, must make the 3-D plunge in some form in order to give the public the opportunity to decide which is best.

A distrib v.p. was riled last week at comment by a prominent circuit operator after seeing 20th-Fox's CinemaScope; Warners' 3-D'er, "House of Wax," and Paramount's method of giving 2-D pix the "feel" of third dimension via wide-screen projection. Chain owner said: "These Hollywood boys ought to get together so we'll know which way to turn."

Observation riles distribs for the reason that, they feel, it reflects that many exhibs "are asking to be taken by the hand through the 3-D confusion instead of acting on their own and coming up with some of the answers as a result of their own experiences."

It's clear that thousands of theatremen are keeping up with the times either with plans to equip for 20th's CinemaScope or adjust for the 3-D pix such as "Wax." It's also apparent that numerous others are holding back on any decision with the hope that the "right" system will present itself eventually and, in the meantime, they'll not be risking an investment in a 3-D approach which may prove non-productive.

PAR PROFITS STEADY; $5,500,000 FOR '52

Paramount's profits are holding steady, figured at about $5,500,000 for 1952, or about the same as in 1951, on the basis of comments made by president Barney Balaban in a report to stockholders. Chief exec's letter accompanied checks for 50c per common share, representing the first quarter's (1953) dividend.

Par's annual report for 1952 will be published within the next few weeks, said Balaban.

Topper also disclosed that the Palm Springs, Cal., demonstration of Telemeter, home subscription TV system in which Par has a 50% interest, is now skedded "within the next few months." It had been planned for this spring but more time is required to wire a sufficient number of homes in the Palm Springs area for the special hookup.

Century's Schwartz Eyes RKO Theatres Stock

Fred J. Schwartz, head of Century Theatres, N. Y., admits he's interested in possibly taking over control of RKO Theatres via stock deal with Howard Hughes, but adds there's nothing "solid" in the way of negotiations at this time. Several groups are pitching for the RKO chain, in the belief that Hughes is willing to unload his 24% ownership, but so far Hughes hasn't talked specific terms with any bidders.

On another front, Schwartz relates he has a survey underway of the physical dimensions of all Century locations and plans to install 20th-Fox's CinemaScope facilities where adaptable.

R. Lehman's Stock Moves

Robert Lehman, member of the 20th-Fox directorate and partner in Lehman Bros., N. Y., investment bankers, and some Wall St. associates, have been active purchasers of the 20th common stock issue over a recent period, according to financial sources.

In February, Lehman himself bought 2,500 shares, according to the latest N. Y. Stock Exchange report.

Got Goldstein-Fox Job, Sez Ferry in 75G Suit

Hollywood, March 31.

Felix Ferry agency filed suit in Superior Court against 20th-Fox producer Leonard Goldstein Monday (30), seeking $75,000 "reasonable compensation" for allegedly wangling a 20th pact for the producer.

Ferry contends Goldstein, while at Universal-International, told him he wanted to ankle UI for 20th. He promised compensation if Ferry got him the job. Ferry claims he told Goldstein he had contacts at 20th, and "might be able to do Goldstein some good, providing (Darryl F.) Zanuck was approached at proper time."

Ferry alleges he worked on the deal three months and "paved the way" for negotiations resulting in Goldstein's getting a seven-year, $2,000-a-week pact last September.

3-D CONVERSION COSTS HEAVY

By FRED HIFT

Race to bring 3-D and widescreen advancements to the public during the next couple of years stands to cost American exhibs in the neighborhood of $110,000,000 in new equipment.

Figure, based on the conservative assumption that only about 12,000 houses will convert to new projection systems, could mushroom into a much larger windfall for the equipment manufacturers should the public whim force a parallel development of three dimension and large screens.

Provided the 3-D bubble doesn't burst—and observers point out that the majors' accelerating pace of tri-dimensional production should act as a brace against any sudden b.o. reversal — the larger part of the country's theatres will have to outfit themselves for the new age. In that case the overall exhibition bill may well top the $200,000,000 spent by theatres in the late '20s and early '30s in converting to sound.

Exhibition's $110,000,000 outlay for 3-D and panoramic screen systems during the next three to five years breaks down something like this: 5,000 houses with 3-D, $6,000,000; 3,000 houses with 3-D and stereophonic sound, $36,000,000; 3,000 with CinemaScope, $57,000,000, and 1,000 with miscellaneous systems, $5,000,000.

In addition, there are other factors, such as the possible overlap

(Continued on page 27)

SCHARY SHORT TO PACE ANTI-20% TAX DRIVE

Hollywood, March 31.

Film industry's pitch to combat the 20% Federal admission tax will be spearheaded by a 22-minute short produced by Dore Schary at the request of COMPO. It will be shown at Congressional hearings on the tax problem.

Picture, scripted by Herman Hoffman, shows actual figures demonstrating the plight of motion picture theatres throughout the country. After the showing in Washington, the pictures will be made available to theatre circuits.

Backstage Moves on Several Fronts To Unseat Pix Mgts.; Stock Deals Big

Power to control several film biz corporations is at stake via new backstage maneuvers taking place on a variety of fronts The intrigue on the part of new interests, seeking to unseat present managements, clearly is at least partially responsible for recent heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Principally involved are RKO Pictures, RKO Theatres and 20th-Fox. The outcome of the stock buyups and an assortment of proposed deals conceivably could affect the future course of each corporation via liquidations and pic sales to TV, in addition to exec personnel makeup.

To what extent any group has a chance of upsetting the corporate status quo is a matter of conjecture at this time. But so far as the RKO circuit is concerned an overhaul appears definitely threatened by David J. Greene, according to one of his Wall St. associates. As a result of his proxy battle with management last year, Greene now holds two seats on the six-man board.

Financial source linked with Greene said that Greene and investors aligned with him now own 750,000 shares of the RKO Theatres common issue. This is still short of Hughes' controlling block of 929,020 shares, which are trusteed, but it's pointed out that any further full-scale proxy solicitation

(Continued on page 24)

Loew's Leads Divvies

New yearbook published by the N. Y. Stock Exchange, listing corporations which have paid dividends consecutively for 20 years or more, shows that Loew's has the top spot among film companies.

Outfit has been sending out checks to stockholders uninterruptedly since 1923. In the related field, Eastman Kodak has the lead, with divvies dating back to 1902.

Oldies' 'New Look' Via Par Process Cues Re-Run Kick

Race for technological improvements in projection techniques may lead to a spate of reissued films via adaptation of Paramount's new widescreen system, which is designed to give added values to standard 2-D films.

Process, available to all studios, at first was touted as "protecting" the backlogs of new product. It was to give the recently-made 2-Ds the "feel" of depth dimension with the widescreen approach. The 2-Ds would thus be on a competitive footing with 3-D-ers.

Par plan, additionally, is now being appraised for its application for bolstering old pix, mainly those of large production scope which lend themselves to the expanded-screen treatment. First commercial test of the system may be with Par's "Greatest Show on Earth," skedded for full-scale reissue within the next couple of months. If this goes through in click fashion, it's regarded as a certainty that numerous oldies will be dusted off for rehandling.

Process, as demonstrated at the Par studio March 21, involves changes in the aspect ratio of theatre screens. The conventional

(Continued on page 27)

FINNISH OLYMPIC PIC READY FOR U.S. DISTRIB

Official feature-length version of the 1952 Olympic Games in Helsinki, Finland, has finally reached New York. The seven-reel pic, all in black-and-white, was put together for the Finnish government by Suomi Filmi Oi.

Herman Lippsett, who on past occasions has flacked for the Finnish government, is rep on the pic. He's seeking theatrical distribution but is also considering sale to TV.

National Boxoffice Survey

Exhibs Mark Time Awaiting Easter; 'Peter Pan' Back in 1st Place; 'Sheba,' 'Hans' Next

With many exhibitors just marking time before bringing in fresh, strong product for Easter, current session is offish. Reports from key cities covered by VARIETY show that the films doing strong or sock trade are the exception with even the moderately stout pix lagging. Moderate weather and heavy rains in numerous keys are proving a big handicap to the pre-Easter week.

"Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) moved back into first place after being edged out of No. 1 spot last week by "Come Back, Little Sheba" (Par). "Sheba" is winding up second. "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO-Goldwyn) is third, same as a week ago.

"Moulin Rouge" (UA) is climbing to fourth position, being big to smash in most locations. "I Confess" (WB), which was fourth a week ago, finished fifth. "Naked Spur" (M-G) again is sixth, same as last week. "Blue Gardenia" (WB), a newcomer, is capturing seventh spot, mainly by dint of some 10 playdates.

"Kettles on Vacation" (U) is pushing up to eighth place, pic just being launched to any extent this week. "I Love Melvin" (M-G) is managing to land ninth position while "Jeopardy" (M-G) rounds out the Big 10.

"City Beneath Sea" (U) and "Destination Gobi" (20th) are runner-up pix in that sequence.

Of the new strong fare, some of it just starting out this stanza, "Call Me Madam" (20th) and "Salome" (Col) seem to show the greatest potential. "Madam" is great on opening week at the N.Y. Roxy, smash in Philly, where it's the ace new pic, and smart in L.A. "Salome" is socko in its preem week at N.Y. Rivoli.

"Hitch-Hiker" (RKO), okay in Toronto, shapes as stout in L. A. where it's outstanding. "Off Limits" (Par) also looms nice, being neat in Washington and fine in N.Y. on initial dates. "By Light of Silvery Moon" (WB) looks very good on first session at the N.Y. Music Hall.

"Down Among Sheltering Palms" (20th) is disappointing on three dates this stanza. "Sombrero" (M-G), also new, light in K.C. and Buffalo, is okay in Frisco and trim in Philly. "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep) looms oke in Denver.

"Androcles and Lion" (RKO) is rated fair in Boston. "The Star" (20th) okay in Frisco, is slow in Indianapolis and Cincy. "Clown" (M-G) shapes strong in Balto.

"High Noon" (UA), back to cash in on its Oscar, is fine in Portland, fancy in Minneapolis and Washington but mild in Detroit. "Stars Are Singing" (Par) looms okay in Omaha and St. Louis.

"Seminole" (U), nice in Toronto, is rated fairish in L.A. "Battle Circus" (M-G) is mild in Pitt.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 13-15)

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered
FOUNDED BY SIME SILVERMAN
Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Harold Erichs, President
154 West 46th St. New York 36, N.Y.
Hollywood 28
6311 Yucca Street
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building
Chicago 11
612 No. Michigan Ave.
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq.

SUBSCRIPTION
Annual . . . $10 Foreign $11
Single Copies . . . . . 25 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Vol. 190 (120) No. 4

INDEX

Bills	87
Chatter	94
Film Reviews	6
House Reviews	22
Inside Legit	88
Inside Pictures	8
Inside Radio	69
Inside Television	68
International	17
Legitimate	88
Literati	93
Music	71
New Acts	87
Night Club Reviews	30
Obituaries	95
Pictures	3
Plays Abroad	92
Radio-Television	57
Radio Reviews	60
Record Reviews	72
Frank Scully	93
Television Reviews	64
TV-Films	56
Vaudeville	81

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a Year. $20 Foreign

'Peter Pan' March B.O. Champ; 'Hans' 2d, 'Rouge' 3d, 'Sheba' 4th

Generally a sluggish month at film theatres because of Lent and Federal income tax headaches, March this year proved as desultory as ever at the nation's boxoffice. Trade at first-run theatres obtained a nice boost from the Academy Awards near the end of the month. But otherwise, only the hardiest grossers made much headway during the month.

"Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) copped first place at the boxoffice, soaring from third place in February to a dominating position in the last 31 days. It wound up with nearly $200,000 better than the nearest b.o. rival in four weeks. "Pan" was the only pic to come near the $1,000,000 mark in that period.

"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO-Goldwyn), fourth in the preceding month, finished second in March. Danny Kaye starrer held in second slot nearly every week in the month.

"Moulin Rouge" (UA), with a lift from the Oscar awards, nabbed third position by a narrow margin. "Little Sheba" (Par) was a close fourth, with Shirley Booth, star of the film, winning the Academy best actress award. Academy hypo was sufficient to boost the pic to its highest level at end of the month. Prior to that upsurge, it never rose above fourth position.

"I Confess" (WB), new Hitchcock meller with Canadian background, won fifth money, although a bit spotty some weeks. "The Stooge" (Par), February boxoffice winner, wound up sixth. The fact that it had completed most of its first-run

(Continued on page 20)

March's Top 12

1. "Peter Pan" (RKO)
2. "Hans Andersen" (RKO)
3. "Moulin Rouge" (UA)
4. "Little Sheba" (Par)
5. "I Confess" (WB)
6. "The Stooge" (Par)
7. "Bwana Devil" (UA)
8. "Naked Spur" (M-G)
9. "The Star" (20th)
10. "Jeopardy" (M-G)
11. "City 'Neath Sea" (U)
12. "Niagara" (20th).

20th-Fox Pix Rentals Up 17.6% in '53; $93,166,603 Take Registered in '52

World-wide film rentals of 20th-Fox for the first 10 weeks of 1953 are 17.6% ahead of the same period in 1952, according to 20th prexy, Spyros P. Skouras' report to the stockholders last week. Film rentals in 1952 came to $93,166,603, compared with $92,489,357 in 1951.

Company and its subsidiaries showed a consolidated net of $4,747,587 for the year ended Dec. 27, 1952, representing an improvement of $439,156 over 1951. Two factors, however, preclude accurate comparison between the two years.

1. The 1952 net includes $1,077,755 as a special credit, representing an adjustment of accounting procedures to bring foreign earnings to the same date as domestic operations. Previously they had lagged behind by five weeks.

2. 1962 results include only 39 weeks of earnings of domestic theatre subsidiaries, totaling $1,491,715. Theatres in 1951 netted Fox $2,180,192 for a full 52-weeks' op-

(Continued on page 24)

Stereo Sound Seen 3-D Bonus by U's Rackmil

Stereophonic sound is emerging as one of the bonuses from the current 3-D and widescreen excitement, Milton R. Rackmil, Universal prexy, said in N. Y. yesterday (Tues.), following his return from the Coast.

Stressing that U is gearing itself to compete in all the various dimensions while not neglecting its 2-D output, Rackmil disclosed that his studio too is at work on a widescreen process. Rackmil returned from the studio over the weekend with U exec v.p. Alfred E. Daff and Charles Feldman, U general sales manager. They had been to the Coast to discuss production, in the light of 3-D developments, and to set releases through the rest of the year. U has one stereo pic, "It Came From Out of Space," completed and another in the works.

Arriving in N. Y. Monday (30) were William Goetz, U production chief, and Al Horwits, studio adpub topper. Goetz, who had seen 20th-Fox's CinemaScope on the Coast and is enthusiastic over it, commented that it was a mistake to try and compare Cinerama and CinemaScope. He expects to leave next week with his wife Edith for a two-week cruise aboard a yacht in the Caribbean.

RKO Ad Dept. Cuts Cue More Lopoffs

Virtually clean sweep of the advertising department at the RKO homeoffice is regarded by persons close to the operation as the forerunner to other personnel changes in the interest of economy. James R. Grainger, RKO prez, is bent on cutting administrative costs in the face of continued red-ink entries on the books, it's said.

Decision was made some time ago to switch the ad department to the studio. However, it was also said that a limited staff would be kept on in N. Y. Let-out of eight persons last Friday (27) consequently came as a surprise and had reps of indie producers releasing through RKO doing a burn. Their concern centers on problems which they'll now encounter in preparing a quick ad for, perhaps, trade papers in the absence of artists at the film company.

Only persons remaining at the h.o. are Ben Grim, ad manager, and Lou Gaudreau, who has handled the business end of the department. Released were Carl Moss, Stanley Sherwin, Jack McCarter, Hal Sloan, Frank Samfelippo, Lucy Robinson, Muriel James and Vivian Moses.

In another switch, Milton Mohr has been named RKO's assistant publicity manager in N. Y., effective April 6, moving from the Paramount h.o. flackery staff. He'll work under eastern publicity head Mervin Hauser.

Spot was left open when Fred Goldberg exited two weeks ago to become publicity director of Italian Films Export. New IFE setup, incidentally, now has Bernard Lewis as coordinator of promotion for Italian pic production and distribution.

Rep. Heller Joins 'Repeal 20% Admish Bite' Solons

Washington, March 31.

Still another bill to repeal the 20% admissions bite was dropped in the hopper of the House of Representatives last week by Rep. Louis B. Heller (D., N. Y.).

In an accompanying statement, Heller said the tax was "a wartime measure which still remains on our law books, although it was to have been automatically repealed six months after the conclusion of World War II."

Heller said the Federal yield from the admish tax has "declined from $505,000,000 to only $312,000,000 in 1952—a decrease of nearly 40% within six years." He said the tax was responsible for the shutting down of many theatres.

Coyne's N.Y.-D.C. Bicycle Routine on COMPO Biz

Robert W. Coyne, special counsel for the Council of Motion Picture Organizations, is spending more time in Washington than at his New York headquarters lately. He returned to home base over the weekend after another in his series of stays in the nation's capital, and expects to be off to D. C. again shortly.

In addition to work on the industry campaign for repeal of the Federal 20% admissions tax, Coyne is on the lookout for opportunities for the film trade to lend its cooperation to the Eisenhower Administration, such as the defense effort, U. S. bond campaigns, etc.

Col's 247G 6-Mo. Net

Columbia yesterday (Tues.) disclosed estimated consolidated net earnings of $247,000 for the 26 weeks ended last Dec. 27 in a sharp drop from the corresponding period a year previous. Profit was equal to 17c. per common share.

Final 26 weeks of 1951 brought a net of $437,000, equal to 45c. per share.

N.Y. Court Ruling Eases Proxy Stockholder Dip Into Pix Corp. Treasury

A recent N. Y. court ruling, pertaining to a stockholder-corporate relations, is seen by industry attorneys as having a far-reaching effect on film companies. The decision follows, in essence, a 1950 Delaware ruling, which stipulates that successful insurgents in a proxy fight for the election of directors could pay their expenses out of the corporate treasury. Major film companies are incorporated either in New York or Delaware.

With film stockholders increasingly needling management (especially at 20th-Fox where a serious challenge to the present regime will be made at a May meeting) the N. Y. and Delaware corporate laws could make serious inroads on corporate funds. In addition, it's believed that chance of recovering expenses may induce a larger number of shareholders to challenge management policies.

N. Y. decision stems from a case involving Fairchild Engine & Airplane Co. A principal stockholder felt that an employment contract between the corporation and one of the directors was unfair to the corporation. When an attempt to get the corporation to modify the pact failed, he formed an insurgent stockholder committee which proposed its own slate of directors.

Both management and insurgents undertook an expensive campaign to present their arguments to the stockholders, with management shelling out $33,968 and the insurgents $127,556. The insurgents won; the disputed contract was cancelled, and the expenses of both groups were paid out of the corporate treasury.

WHO WILL 'SADIE' GET: YUL, CHARLTON OR JOSE?

It's a tossup among Yul Brynner, star of the Broadway hit, "The King and I," Charlton Heston and Jose Ferrer for the role of Rev. Davidson in Columbia's "Miss Sadie Thompson," 3-D musical version of Somerset Maugham's "Rain."

Brynner takes leave of the Broadway musical shortly and reportedly can have the role if he wants it. Col execs were highly pleased with his tests.

Starring Rita Hayworth, the Jerry Wald production will be filmed on location on the island of Kauai in the South Seas. Shipping of equipment will start almost immediately, with the majority of the cast and crew being flown to the location site. Curtis Bernhardt is set to direct.

Ontario Drops Age on Kids Attending Films to 14

Toronto, March 31.

Amendment to the Theatres Act has reduced from 16 to 14 years the minimum age whereby children in Ontario may attend film showings without an adult after 6 p.m.

Plan whereby the 14-year-olds and under may attend Saturday or legal holiday matinees is unchanged.

N.Y. Film Trade to Assist On Catholic Charities

Total of 55 film tradesters in N. Y. have been named to serve as part of the Cardinal's Committee of the Laity in the 1953 Catholic Charities drive, John J. O'Connor, Universal v.p. and chairman of the motion picture committee, announced.

George J. Schaefer, indie producer's rep, is treasurer of the drive and L. Douglas Netter, Jr., of Altec Service, is v.p.

Two Sides to Upped-Scale Hassle

Furore over the increasing number of films sold at rental terms which lead to advancing admission prices—exhibs say they must up ticket prices when distribs insist upon top percentage—serves to spotlight the arguments advanced on both sides. It's a hassle that began years ago and seemingly is unending, for the producers adamantly reject theatremen's reasoning re tilted scales and the exhibs, in turn, with equal vigor brand as invalid the position taken by the producer-distribs.

Exhibs say that a policy of steady admission prices is the only sound one; a fluctuating admission range confuses the public. Further, it conveys that the pic for which advanced prices are charged is a worthwhile entertainment and that the pic bringing the standard tariff rate is so-so. Also, it's asked, why should the companies collect a percentage greater than standard with above-standard pix when they don't accept a cut lower than standard with sub-standard product?

The distrib side is—in any other field the "quality" commodity brings top money; why not films? Any hard and fast rule against upped scales would discourage the production of important, expensive pix. The returns are in on numerous films—"Quo Vadis," "Greatest Show on Earth,"—establishing that the public will not balk at increased prices.

This, of course, is all apart from the legalistics involved. Distribs are enjoined from forcing advanced scales.

'Forgotten' Theatre TV Still Stirring; Eyeing B'way Musicals, Ballgames

Flock of Screens

Flock of new screens, especially designed to meet 2-D, 3-D and widescreen projection requirements, is being offered by manufacturers. RCA Victor announced one using a silvered surface last week, and so did the Trans-Lux Corp., which indicated the cost of its screen is "substantially higher" than ordinary screens.

Sol Lesser Productions has acquired U. S. distribution rights for the British-developed Stableford screen, which will be manufactured by Donford Corp. of Kansas City and is concave in shape.

Almost forgotten during the advent of the 3-D and widescreen era, theatre television still has a hard core of advocates. However, even among this group, serious concern is developing since not a single closed-circuit event has been offered to exhibs since last December's telecast of the Met-opera's "Carmen," excepting a cuffo educational event in three New York theatres.

With none of the so-called theatre TV promoters, such as Theatre Network Television, Tele-Conference and Closed-Circuit Theatre Television, putting forth an attraction, exhib forces, sparked by S. H. (Si) Fabian, are attempting to line up presentations on their own. Leo Rosen, of the Fabian org, is spending full-time on closed circuit activities.

Rosen has a file full of proposed events, both of the entertainment variety and ones geared for presentation during off-hours. The difficulty in finalizing pacts, based mainly on cost factors and salaries for union help, has seriously delayed advancement of the medium. Both Rosen and the theatre TV entrepreneurs have discovered that producers of events being considered for telecast have an exaggerated opinion on the value of their attractions. Complaint is that they are demanding astronomical figures, forgetting that they are pricing the show out of the reach of the ordinary theatre-goer.

Rosen has been bullish on a proposed telecast of a Broadway musi-

(Continued on page 20)

Spec Lack Balks British 'Bwana'

London, March 31.

There is a feeling of frustration at London h.q. of United Artists, as prospects of a record gross for "Bwana Devil" are being thwarted by inability to provide polaroid viewers for audiences. There are enough spectacles in the country to service the four theatres where the 3-D film is now playing, but no prospects of adding to the stock for some time to come.

If the picture could be given normal distribution, UA reckons, its British gross could amount to over $1,300,000, but that figure could only be attained so long as it is able to exploit a novelty. Once that aspect is lost, the film's potential gross will doubtless be affected.

Since its opening a week ago in four key Rank theatres in London, Birmingham, Leeds and Glasgow, "Bwana" has been playing to record biz. In London the Odeon Marble Arch is likely to gross as much as $17,000 in the first stanza; with four performances a day, it has been playing to 3½ capacity houses daily, while both Sunday shows were at SRO level. This business has been repeated in other situations with the exception of Glas-

(Continued on page 29)

N. Y. to L. A.

James R. Grainger
Otto Preminger
Joseph M. Schenck
Sam Taylor
Mike Todd

Europe to N. Y.

Ned Clark
Katherine Dunham
Louis Hayward
Samuel Matlowsky

N. Y. to Europe

Art Buchwald
Virginia Bolen
Arthur Freed
Zsa Zsa Gabor
Jascha Heifetz
Edward G. Robinson
Sam Spiegel
Lana Turner
Robert Whitehead

L. A. to N. Y.

Anne Baxter
Milton Berle
Earl Blackwell
Bernard Charman
Charles Coburn
Al Daff
Arlene Dahl
Brad Dexter
Howard Dietz
Dan Duryea
Tennessee Ernie
Charles Feldman
Roger Ferri
Gracie Fields
William Goetz
Paul Gregory
Milton Grossman
Al Horwits
David Jacobson
Lamont Johnson
Robert Kintner
Lisa Kirk
Fernando Lamas
Karl Malden
Joseph L. Mankiewicz
Gene Markey
Robert O'Brien
Norman Panama
Buddy Pepper
Jerry Pickman
Vincent Price
Milton R. Rackmil
Edward G. Robinson
George Rosenberg
James L. Saphier
Joseph Schildkraut
A. W. Schwalberg
Spyros P. Skouras
Alexis Smith
Jan Sterling
Robert Wagner
Jack L. Warner
Edward Walter
Cara Williams
Joseph Vogel

CENSORS ON THE MARCH AGAIN

Set % Deals With Exhibs On Marciano-Walcott 3-D Bookings

Advance bookings by United Artists on 3-D pix of the Rocky Marciano-Jersey Joe Walcott heavyweight championship fight are being set on a percentage basis. Exhibs signing up for the film have indicated they intend to play it in conjunction with a feature picture which they'll get at a flat rental.

Meanwhile, preparation for shooting the film, being produced by Nate Halpern for UA release, got under way yesterday (Tues.) with the first units from Hollywood arriving at Marciano's Holland, Mich., training camp to film prebout activities. The unit moves to Chicago today (Wed.) to obtain Walcott footage. Former champ also pulls into Chi today for windup training prior to the April 10 bout in the Windy City.

Pic, to be filmed in the Stereo-Cine process, will be shot by Hollywood cameramen. It's believed to be the first time that a Coast crew has ever covered a bout, the shooting usually being done by the newsreel photogs. John Boyle will serve as director of photography and Leslie Winik as production supervisor. Both recently worked on Sol Lesser's "3-D Follies," also filmed in the Stero-Cine process. Camera crew will employ nine cameras to record the bout, with two cameras operating from ringside positions. Permission from the promoters, the International Boxing Club, has been received to work from the ringside stations.

UA expects to have the film in theatres two or three days following the tussle. Key city houses can expect the footage on April 13, company indicated. Unique aspect of the film is that it is causing newsreel theatres to install 3-D equipment.

B'way's 3-D Race

Columbia yesterday (Tues.) closed the deal by which it will beat Warner Bros. with the first Broadway opening of a 3-D pic from a major studio.

Col's "Man in the Dark," Edmond O'Brien-Audrey Totter costarrer, was pacted to preem at Harry Brandt's Globe Theatre next Wednesday (8). WB's "House of Wax," with Phyllis Kirk and Vincent Price in the leads, is skedded to bow at the Paramount the following Friday (10).

Quickie Stripix In Fast Returns

With a minimum of coin outlay, hefty returns are being realized by producers of quickie exploitation-type pix, with films dealing with burlesque proving among the most successful. Most concrete example is the experience of the appropriately-named Sensational Films which, in five days, turned out a 74-minute bump-and-grind feature film.

Brought in at $16,000, it's figured the film can gross between $80,000 and $100,000. This estimate is based on the experience of producers who have made similar pictures in the past. Sensational's "Strip-Tease Holdup" is currently in its sixth week at the Times Sq. Theatre, one of the three theatres in N. Y. handling this type of product. House gave the distributor, Union Films, a $2,000 guarantee against a 20 to 25% arrangement.

Similar deals, involving guarantees and percentages, can also be made with other theatres, it's claimed. It's estimated that there are approximately 1,000 houses in

(Continued on page 29)

Hassle Looms Again On SWG's Dues Bite

Hollywood, March 31.

Retention by the Screen Writers Guild of 1% dues, being voted on at a special membership meeting April 22, appears likely to precipitate much controversy, in an echo of last year's attempt by Leonard Spigelgass to cut the bite to one-half of 1%. Spigelgass attempted to have a ceiling put on dues, first of $200, then $300, but was beaten. Understanding is that a pitch may be made again for a ceiling.

At the same meeting, an agreement between the exec board and producers will be voted on, and a proposed operational plan of SWG's TV writers.

RKO Has Its Own Sweepstakes: 2 Pix Pushing $8,000,000

In a unique situation for any distributor, and particularly RKO in view of its unsettled condition of recent past, the Howard Hughes outfit has two films on its own releasing sked competing for the tallest coin among all current pix in circulation. On the basis of returns so far, Samuel Goldwyn's "Hans Christian Andersen" and Walt Disney's "Peter Pan" will bring in domestic distribution revenue of about $8,000,000 each.

Goldwyn figures "Hans" at $7,000,000 to $8,000,000, the latter amount being the more likely if the production holds to its current sock b.o. pace. On the Disney side, it's said that $8,000,000 for "Pan" is a "conservative estimate," that the cartoon entry could go well beyond that level.

The two films are selling at advanced admission price scales generally via 60-40 deals with exhibs, that is, 60% of the gross going to the distrib.

Incidentally, it's claimed that a study so far of the audience division with "Pan" shows a 65-35 adult-children ratio. Greater percentage of adult admissions is important for the obvious reason that the youngsters pay 50c at the b.o. whereas the tab for grown-ups runs to about $1.20 or higher.

General Precision In 100% Net Profit Hike; $54,326,849 in Sales

With its sales volume up 82% to $54,326,849 in 1952, General Precision Equipment Corp. and subsidiaries yesterday (Tues.) disclosed a more than 100% increase in net profit, from $596,546 in 1951 to $1,255,278 in 1952.

Company's annual report further showed that the number of directors on the board last month had been increased from 17 to 21, with the resulting vacancies to be filled at the annual stockholders meet April 28.

General Precision prexy and board chairman Herman G. Place said overall sales had been boosted despite the fact that sales of motion picture equipment and supplies had dropped from $14,721,000 in 1951 to $13,728,000 last year.

Major portion of the sales gain stemmed from increased activities of several subsidiaries operating in the fields of mechanics, optics, hydraulics, electricity and electronics, essentially for the Armed Services and heavy industry. The backlog of orders at the close of 1952 was $106,900,000 compared with $32,000,000 in 1951.

The $1,255,278 net in 1952 equalled $1.88 per common share, compared with 99c. per common share earnings in 1951. Profit before taxes was $3,130,578 as against $1,055,969 in 1951.

PIXERS ALERTED TO NEW MOVES

With the industry preoccupied with technical changes, the censors are on the march again, according to informed filmites. Although the sound of snipping shears hasn't reached nationwide proportions, there have been indications of renewed blue-pencil activity in various communities. The censors, consisting of either officially-backed boards or local pressure groups, are not only aiming their scissors at films but are also attacking books, with the pocketbook edition receiving the main barrage.

With the scissors wielders again flexing their muscles, serious concern is being expressed in film and publishing circles. Chairmanned by playwright Elmer Rice, the National Council on Freedom from Censorship, an affiliate of the American Civil Liberties, Union meets tonight (Wed.) to map a program in an effort to halt the march of the censors. According to a reliable source, the confab will make specific mention of censorship problems confronting films.

Indication of the renewed activity is a bill before the New Jersey legislature empowering communities to set up local censoring boards. This is the first new measure involving film censorship to be introduced in a state in the past 22 years. Exhib forces in New Jersey, sparked by the Allied Theatre Owners of N. J., are marshalling their forces to defeat the bill, with appeals being made to both the lawmakers and to Gov. Driscoll.

Maryland Revise

In Maryland, where films have often run into censor difficulty, a revised measure pointing to a tightening of censorship in the state has been introduced in the assembly. Bill has the approval of Sydney Traub, chairman of the State Board of Censors. Adding the word "profane" as a reason for re-

(Continued on page 29)

Arnall Asks Data On Italo-U.S. Pic Pact; Seeks Indies' Own Bank Acc'ts

Charge of "discrimination" was leveled against the Italian government Monday (30) by Gov. Ellis Arnall, Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers prexy. His criticism was based on the Italians' refusal to make establishment of separate bank accounts for the indies part of any new Italo-U. S. film deal.

Arnall is in Washington this week sounding out the State Dept. on "what would happen if we didn't go along with the proposed agreement." He said SIMPP was "bitterly disappointed," since the org had been given to understand by the Italians that there would be separate bank accounts.

He said he was "puzzled" by several aspects of the pact negotiated in Rome last week by Motion Picture Assn. of America prexy Eric Johnston and the Italian industry. One point Arnall would like clarified is whether the new "loan," amounting to 10% of American earnings in Italy, should be considered a subsidy, and if not, why not. SIMPP has taken a resolute stand against any subsidies, and has stated that it will not go along with any agreement that provides for them.

In announcing reduction of financial aid to the Italians from 12½% to 10%, Johnston said, in Rome, that the arrangement was being continued "although a majority of the American companies oppose the program."

SIMPP's plans for establishing a foreign department, with a rep headquartering in N. Y., are taking shape and were discussed in N. Y. last week, according to Arnall. He expects to go to the Coast next week to further explore the project with SIMPP members and also to look around for someone with a suitable background to fill the post.

Italo-U.S. Pact May Pour $6,000,000 In U.S. Pix Purse, Hamstring IFE

Re-Discovered

It apparently takes acclaim in a Broadway show for a film star to receive special recognition. Rosalind Russell's marquee value has been upped because of her performance in the musical hit, "Wonderful Town."

Terrace Theatre, on New York's West 23d St., bills star as "Broadway's Newest Sensation." House is showing a revival of "My Sister Eileen," film version of yarn on which the legituner is based.

TOA Gets Senate Bid to Discuss Distrib 'Abuses'

Theatre Owners of America has received an invitation from the Senate Small Business Committee for officials of the exhib org to make an appearance before the group when hearings open in Washington later this month on alleged distrib trade practice abuses. Whether TOA will accept the invite, based on voluntary acceptance, is a matter for the board of directors of the exhib outfit to determine. Board action, it's indicated, will not be set until the return from a European trip of TOA prexy Alfred Starr. Latter is due back about April 15, almost coinciding with the time set for the opening of the Senate probe.

TOA's policy, as expressed in the past by Starr and other TOA toppers, has been to avoid seeking Government intervention in intra-trade disputes. Starr has frequently declared publicly that "we have no plans to call in the cops." However, an indication that TOA might be changing its tune was a recent blast issued by Starr and executive veepee Walter Reade, Jr., condemning the recent trend in film rentals and the increase in the issuance of pre-release pictures. While not stating so specifically, there was an intimation in their charges that individual members of TOA might seek relief from the Dept. of Justice. The invitation to TOA was

(Continued on page 27)

WB Out to Overcome Beefs Re Early 3D-ers, Bills 'Wax' as 'First'

In view of some public resentment brought about by early films in the 3-D medium, WB is labeling its introduction of "House of Wax" as a "first." Aimed to overcome any resistance, the company is spotlighting new techniques in its first 3-D effort, including the Warnerphonic sound system.

With the knowledge that the Warner film may have far-reaching effects on the future course of the company as well as the industry, WB's technical staff is keeping a careful eye on installations, espepially as regards the sound equipment. In some quarters, the introduction of stereophonic sound, although overshadowed by the new sight effects, is regarded almost of equal importance. It's felt that despite the outcome of the 3-D versus widescreen race, stereo sound will become standard equipment for all theatres.

Meanwhile, theatres set to play "Wax" are proceeding with the sound installations. In New York, technicians are working round-the-clock to ready the Paramount for April 10 preem of the picture. Technical staff moves into the theatre immediately following the last show and works until the house opens its doors for the early trade.

Indie distribs in N.Y. this week expressed satisfaction over the new 14-month Italy-U.S. film deal which specifically bars use of American funds in Italy for subsidized distribution of Italian pix in this country.

Proposed pact ups dollar remittances from the former 37½% to 40% of American distrib earnings. It is seen as a possible blow to Italian Films Export, which distributes as well as promotes Italo product here. Under the former deal, 12½%—now reduced to 10%—of U.S. earnings went to maintain IFE. The current pact expires June 30.

New deal agreed on in Rome last Friday (27) between Motion Picture Assn. of America prexy Eric Johnston and the Italian producers group, gives U.S. distribs more money; imports are retained at the 225-pix-a-year level, with additional permits for the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers. Also, 50% of American earnings remain frozen, as in the past, but can be channeled into "wider uses" which, Johnston commented, "we think will be beneficial to the Italian industry, people and government."

Agreement, which runs to Aug. 31, 1954, is still subject to Italian government approval which, according to an MPAA spokesman in N.Y., is expected to be forthcom-

(Continued on page 20)

British Exhibs Go Slowly on 3-D

London, March 31.

An appeal for all-industry talks, including policy discussions with Hollywood, to probe the possibilities of 3-D standardization before exhibitors become involved in a permanent installation, is made in a confidential memorandum being circulated among British exhibs. Feature of the memo is an analysis of the known 3-D systems by the Cinematograph Exhibitors Assn. technical expert, L. Knopp, plus some practical observations on questions of policy and application.

The current stampede in America, it is suggested, may be characteristic of that country. With the conflict of systems, the report urges an immediate approach on standardization. As a tentative suggestion it is proposed that this standardization should determine the practical maximum width of screen in conjunction with stereoscopic projection and a suitable projection.

It is pointed out that very few British theatres could accept a screen of the proportions being adopted by Cinerama and CinemaScope without most unsatisfactory reduction in screen height. Another aspect of the excessive screen width is the loss of seating accommodation which would involve the removal of some seats.

In his summing up, the CEA's Kopp argues that since both stereoscopic and larger screen presentation represent a considerable advance in picture technique, future progress and standardization should aim at welding these two into a single system.

Landy Victor in % Suit Vs. Small Agency

Hollywood, March 31.

Paul Small Artists was ordered to pay literary agent George Landy a percentage of commissions collected from writer Laslo Vadnay as long as Vadnay is with the agency. Order favoring Landy, who sued Small, was made by Bevhills Judge Henry Draeger.

Landy had contended his pact with the agency called for continued payment for pacting Vadnay, even though he had exited the office.

Man on a Tightrope

Taut "chase," about a troupe escaping from the Iron Curtain, with topical politics and circus overtones.

20th-Fox release of Robert L. Jacks (Gerd Oswald, associate) production. Stars Fredric March, Terry Moore, Gloria Grahame, Cameron Mitchell. Directed by Elia Kazan. Screenplay, Robert E. Sherwood from story by Neil Paterson; music, Franz Waxman; camera, Georg Krause; editor, Dorothy Spencer; orchestrations, Earle Hagen; asst. director, Hans Tost. Tradeshown N. Y., March 27, '53. Running time, 105 MINS.

Karel Cernik	Fredric March
Tereza Cernik	Terry Moore
Zama Cernik	Gloria Grahame
Joe Vosdek	Cameron Mitchell
Pesker	Adolphe Menjou
Barovic	Robert Beatty
Rudolph	Alex D'Arcy
Krofta	Richard Boone
Konradin	Pat Henning
Jaremir	Paul Hartman
The Chief	John Dehner
Cirkus Cernik	The Brumbach Circus
Duchess	Dorothea Wieck
The Sergeant	Philip Kenneally
Vina Konradin	Edelweiss Malchin
Captain	William Castello
Mrs. Jaromir	Margaret Slezak

"Man On a Tightrope" is a taut "chase" for OK b.o. in all situations. The chase, in this instance, is an entire circus, a shabby enough troupe but, nonetheless, a burdensome commodity to "sneak" across any Iron Curtain frontier. But Fredric March does achieve this as he maneuvers his one-ring circus from Czechslovakia into the Western Zone and freedom.

The political overtones are underplayed but the manner in which police state obligation is thrust upon even an itinerant group of mountebanks has been graphically scripted by Robert E. Sherwood. It depicts the last remnants of a once great circus until "the people and the state" took over its technical ownership, and permitted March to manage and operate it under governmental sufferance.

Director Elia Kazan has limned his characters with proper mood and shade, as the red-tape of the Reds becomes mountingly obstructive. He has projected beaucoup romance against the general background, including a willful daughter (Terry Moore) and a flirtatious second wife (Gloria Grahame), until the return to the spirited man that March once was renews her affection for the reinvigorated husband whom she thought too solemn for happier domestic relations.

Terry Moore is equally volatile in her affections for Cameron Mitchell, an itinerant deckhand whom March suspects as the spy for the Czech secret police until it is revealed that he is, in actuality, an American GI, caught behind the Iron Curtain by freak of circumstance.

There is effective suspense in Adolphe Menjou's interrogation, as an officious propaganda ministry attache whom John Oehner and Phillip Kenneally resent for overstepping his authority in their domain of secret police probings.

Robert Beatty, as a rival circus owner who seemingly enjoys greater elan with the Commie authorities, emerges as the showman first, in a capitally staged fight scene with March as a cover-up for the spy or spies within March's own circus. The renegade turns out to be Richard Boone, the seemingly loyal bossman of the equipment.

The bold daylight manner in which the circus, in full calliope style, parades right by the auxiliary frontier guards and plans its diversion tactics for escape into the American zone, has been plausibly staged by Kazan. Much of this footage was shot in Austria and Germany and bespeaks authentic flavor

Every detail of the freedom-hungry troupers in their coup is plausibly performed and presented. Even the side byplay of the Czech sentries and the Yank counterparts come across in the right key, never overdone yet maintaining the proper pitch and excitement. All the components, from March, who is capital as the proud owner of a once proud circus, through the rest of the cast, along with the Robert L. Jacks-Gerd Oswald production auspices, are big league.

Abel.

Coast Paramount to 3-D; 'Wax,' 'Fort Ti' Lead Off

Hollywood, March 31.

Fanchon & Marco's Hollywood Paramount, a 1,430-seater on Hollywood Blvd., is the first major first-run theatre in this sector to adopt an exclusive 3-D policy. House has Warners' "House of Wax" and Columbia's "Fort Ti" booked through June 17.

Hollywood Blvd., now has two major theatres exclusively devoted to new process pictures. The Warner Hollywood, currently remodeling for Cinerama, will open late in April with "This Is Cinerama."

Down Among the Sheltering Palms
(SONGS-COLOR)

Mild little service comedy with music, Technicolor, best suited for upper or lowercase program bookings generally.

Hollywood, March 27.

20th-Fox release of Fred Kohlmar production. Stars William Lundigan, Jane Greer, Mitzi Gaynor, David Wayne, Gloria De Haven; features Gene Lockhart, Jack Paar, Alvin Greeman, Billy Gilbert, Henry Kulky. Directed by Edmund Goulding. Screenplay, Claude Binyon, Albert Lewin, Burt Styler; based on a story by Edward Hope; camera (Technicolor), Leon Shamroy; editor, Louis Loeffler; musical direction, Lionel Newman; songs, Harold Arlen, Ralph Blane. Previewed March 25, '53. Running time, 86 MINS.

Capt. Bill Willoby	William Lundigan
Diana Forrester	Jane Greer
Rozoulla	Mitzi Gaynor
Lt. Carl O. Schmidt	David Wayne
Angela Toland	Gloria De Haven
Rev. Edgett	Gene Lockhart
Lt. Mike Sloan	Jack Paar
Corp. Kolta	Alvin Greenman
King Mkouli	Billy Gilbert
Sgt. Sergeant	Henry Kulky
Major Curwin	Lyle Talbot
Lt. Everly	Ray Montgomery
Lt. Homer Briggs	George Nader
Radio Operator	Charles Tannen
Woolawai	Claude Allister
Mrs. Edgett	Edith Evanson
Col. Parker	Fay Roope
Witch Doctor	David Ahdar
Tozmi	Sialofi Jerry Talo
Aide to Colonel	Clinton Bagwell

The smaller, more general runs offer the best chances for "Down Among the Sheltering Palms," a mild little service comedy with music that features so-so tunes and hit-and-miss humor. As a program booking it can go either top or bottom of the bill.

The cast, while willing and competent enough, is more or less wasted in the weak, dated material dished out in the script. Edmund Goulding's direction doesn't help the unfoldment much. Fred Kohlmar's production uses Technicolor tints to dress up the presentation of a story about a tropical island paradise, where occupation troops, eager to woo willing native girls, are hamstrung by non-fraternization rules. The script, by Claude Binyon, Albert Lewin and Burt Styler, from a story by Edward Hope, is very lightweight, but does manage to get a few titters here and there in contrived situations.

William Lundigan commands a troop of GIs sent to occupy the island of Midi in the South Pacific at the close of World War II. Because of the non-fraternization regulations, he tries to set an example for his men by restraining his feelings for Jane Greer, niece of Gene Lockhart, a missionary on the island. Emphasis is on frustration all around and the situation isn't helped any when Gloria De Haven, sexy newspaperwoman, visits the island and has her advances spurned by Lundigan. She reveals in her column that the island king had gifted the commanding officer with a princess played by Mitzi Gaynor, thus stirring up an official investigation and further unrest among the GIs. When the linen has been washed, however, Lundigan is cleared and the non-fraternization rules are abolished so everyone is happy at the fadeout.

Co-starring with Lundigan and the Misses Greer, Gaynor and De Haven, is David Wayne, as a lieutenant. The foursome tries hard but needed a better script and firmer guidance. Lockhart, Jack Paar, Alvin Greenman, an amusing corporal; Billy Gilbert, the native king, and Henry Kulky, a top sarg, are among the featured players.

Harold Arlen and Ralph Blane contributed "I'm a Ruler of a South Sea Island," sung by Lundigan and Wayne; "Who Will It Be When the Time Comes," nicely done by Miss Greer, and "What Make De Difference?," sung by Miss Gaynor. The title tune is reprised several times and Miss De Haven sings the oldie, "All of Me." An unimpressive native dance is terped by Miss Gaynor. Technical credits are okay. Brog.

The Lone Hand
(COLOR)

Well-made program western feature in color with Joel McCrea.

Hollywood, March 27.

Universal release of Howard Christie production. Stars Joel McCrea, Barbara Hale, Alex Nicol; features Charles Drake, Jimmy Hunt, Jim Arness, Roy Roberts, Frank Ferguson, Wesley Morgan. Directed by George Sherman. Screenplay, Joseph Hoffman; story, Irving Ravetch; camera, (Technicolor), Maury Gertsman; editor Paul Weatherwax. Previewed March 24, '53. Running time, 79 MINS.

Zachary Hallock	Joel McCrea
Sarah Jane Skaggs	Barbara Hale
Jonah Varden	Alex Nicol
George Hadley	Charles Drake
Joshua	Jimmy Hunt
Gus Varden	Jim Arness
Mr. Skaggs	Roy Roberts
Mr. Dunn	Frank Ferguson
Daniel Skaggs	Wesley Morgan

Joel McCrea heads the cast of this well-made western program feature in Technicolor that makes a direct pitch to the family trade and will be liked by most general audiences outside the top key situations.

The Howard Christie production features fine scenic values, lensed on location near Durango, Colo., and these aid the film's acceptability. Picture is unfolded with interest under George Sherman's direction and, as with most McCrea outdoor starrers, the emphasis is on western authenticity and flavor, rather than helter-skelter oater action. Joseph Hoffman scripted plausibly from a story by Irving Ravetch.

Plot concerns McCrea and his young son, Jimmy Hunt, who come to Timberlane and buy a small farm, obstensibly to make an honest, but meager, living from the soil. They find the community plagued with holdups and killings, but, even after the son has witnessed the killing of a Pinkerton man by outlaws, dad refuses to join a vigilante group that is trying to bring law and order to the town. McCrea teams with the outlaws to rob a stage and with his share of the loot buys things for the farm and marries neighbor Barbara Hale. Soon, however, McCrea's mysterious comings and goings, timed with new robberies, alienate him from his family and it is not until the finale action that his son and wife discover he is an undercover Pinkerton man trying to smoke out the leader of the outlaws. The latter is disclosed as Charles Drake, affable and respected horse rancher who heads the vigilantes.

McCrea takes his starring role in stride and gives a good account of himself. Miss Hale is properly sweet as the bride and young Hunt excellent as the son. Alex Nicol and Jim Arness contribute able skullduggery as Drake's chief henchmen and the latter is a disarming villain. Roy Roberts, Frank Ferguson and young Wesley Morgan are among others doing their share in the plausible plotting.

Maury Gertsman is responsible for the fine scenic values in the lensing. The editing is not quite as smooth as it could be. Brog.

Fort Vengeance
(COLOR)

Fair outdoor programmer for smaller situations; formula plotting and presentation.

Hollywood, March 30.

Allied Artists release of Walter Wanger production. Stars James Craig, Rita Moreno, Keith Larsen; features Reginald Denny, Charles Irwin, Morris Ankrum, Guy Kingsford, Michael Granger, Patrick Whyte, Paul Marion, Emory Parnell. Directed by Lesley Selander. Written by Dan Ullman; camera (Cinecolor), Harry Neumann; editor, Walter Hannemann; music, Paul Dunlap. Previewed March 26, '53. Running time, 75 MINS.

Dick	James Craig
Bridget	Rita Moreno
Carey	Keith Larsen
Major Trevett	Reginald Denny
Saxon	Charles Irwin
Crowfoot	Morris Ankrum
MacRea	Guy Kingsford
Sitting Bull	Michael Granger
Harrington	Patrick Whyte
Eagle Heart	Paul Marion
Fitzgibbon	Emory Parnell

This is a rather placidly-paced outdoor programmer for the smaller situations, where its formula plotting and presentation will draw a fair reception.

Lesley Selander directed the Walter Wanger production from a screen story by Dan Ullman. Picture isn't equipped with as much excitement as desirable in this type of yarn and, as a consequence, the footage is inclined to walk more often than it runs. Basically, the story is okay, plot dealing with two brothers, one good and one wild, who flee into Canada from the states after a card-game scrape. James Craig, the good one, talks his brother, Keith Larsen, into joining the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Brothers are useful to the Mounties, headed by Reginald Denny, because of their knowledge of Sitting Bull's Sioux Indians, who also are in Canada trying to stir up the peaceful Blackfeet, led by Morris Amkrum. Larsen's wildness continues and, with the aid of a crooked trapper, he steals furs from Ankrum's son, Paul Marion. To prevent exposure, he kills the trapper and Marion is accused. To save Marion and uphold the traditional fairness of the Mounties, Craig goes after his brother. The latter is killed by an arrow from an Indian and Craig brings in the body in the nick of time to save the falsely accused redskin and prevent an Indian uprising.

Performances follow the formula handling. In addition to those named, other principals include Rita Moreno, the Latin-looking daughter of Emory Parnell, Irish trader, Charles Irwin and Guy Kingsford, Mounties, and Michael Granger as Sitting Bull.

Harry Neumann did the lensing, processed in Cinecolor, and the hues are not particularly good. Editing by Walter Hannemann and the music score by Paul Dunlap are okay. Brog.

Woman They Almost Lynched
(SONGS)

Lightweight, talky feature for bookings in the lesser situations or as a programmer.

Hollywood, March 30.

Republic release. Stars John Lund, Brian Donlevy, Audrey Totter, Joan Leslie; features Ben Cooper, Nina Varela, Jim Davis, Reed Hadley, Ann Savage, Virginia Christine, Marilyn Lindsey, Nacho Galindo. Directed by Allan Dwan. Screenplay, Steve Fisher; based on Satevepost story by Michael Fessier; camera, Reggie Lanning; editor, Fred Allen; music, Stanley Wilson; songs, Victor Young, Peggy Lee, Sidney Mitchell, Sam Stept. Previewed March 27, '53. Running time, 90 MINS.

Lance Horton	John Lund
Quantrill	Brian Donlevy
Kate Quantrill	Audrey Totter
Sally Maris	Joan Leslie
Jesse James	Ben Cooper
Frank James	James Brown
Delilah Courtney	Nina Varela
1st Woman	Ellen Corby
2nd Woman	Fern Hall
Mrs. Stuart	Minerva Urecal
Cole Younger	Jim Davis
Bitterroot Bill	Reed Hadley
Glenda	Ann Savage
Jenny	Virginia Christine
Rose	Marilyn Lindsey
John Pablo	Nacho Galindo
Captain	Richard Simmons
Sergeant	Gordon Jones
Bartender	Frank Ferguson
Driver	Post Park
Quantrill's Henchman	Tom Monoogh
Soldier	Ted Ryan
Lieutenant	Richard Crane
Hangman	Carl Pitti
Guard	Joe Yrigoyen
Boy	Jimmie Hawkins
Old Man	James Kirkwood
Bill Anderson	Paul Livermore

Lightweight entertainment values are offered in this awkwardly titled costume feature, which is headed for bookings in the lesser situations, or as a lowercase programmer elsewhere, although its 90 minutes of footage is long for that classification. Names are familiar, but will mean little as far as ticket sales are concerned.

Promise of strong action is held out as film opens, but the pace soon peters out into a round of talk that gets nowhere. Allan Dwan's direction is best when dealing with the few brawling action scenes, but can't master the illogical script and excessive dialog that makes up most of the running time. Neither can the four stars, John Lund, Brian Donlevy, Audrey Totter and Joan Leslie, nor the other cast members.

Presentation, without a producer credit, is pretentious to the extreme and a straight plot line is hard to sort out of the welter of story tangents and characters to be found in the Steve Fisher script, which was based on a Satevepost yarn by Michael Fessier. Setting is an Arkansas-Missouri border town which is kept neutral in the War Between States by a lady mayor and lead mine owner, Nina Varela. To Border City comes Miss Leslie on a surprise visit to her brother Reed Hadley, bawdy-house keeper and drunk, the latter because of his lost love for Audrey Totter, now the wife of Donlevy, who is seen as Quantrill, leader of the outlaw gang. Lund's part in all this is that of mine foreman for Miss Varela, but really a Confederate officer smuggling lead to his forces.

Script keeps the characters milling around in an unorganized fashion that makes little sense and the title is drawn from the fact that Miss Leslie to find happiness after Lund, switches suspicion from him to herself and is almost hung for being a Confederate spy. She's saved, however, by Miss Totter, who by now has felt the softening influence of the good girl and is sorry for her past crimes. Donlevy has already fled by the time all this is happening and Miss Totter gets safely away, leaving Lund and Miss Leslie to find happines after the war is over.

Dawn's direction, even though he is dealing with poor material, is very uneven. The staging of the two songs sung by Miss Totter is ludicrous. Numbers are "How Strange" and "All My Life" and the only purpose they serve is to slow down the already slow pace. Reggie Lanning's lensing and the other technical credits are standard. Brog.

Fear and Desire

Arty war drama; a natural for art houses, possible companion feature for general bookings.

Joseph Burstyn release of Stanley Kubrick production. Features Frank Silvera, Kenneth Harp, Paul Mazursky, Steve Coit, Virginia Leith, David Allen. Directed, photographed and edited by Kubrick. Screenplay, Howard O. Sackler; music, Gerald Fried; associate producer, Martin Perveler; assistant director, Steve Hahn. Previewed in N.Y., March 26, '53. Running time, 68 MINS.

Mac	Frank Silvera
Corby	Kenneth Harp
Sidney	Paul Mazursky
Fletcher	Steve Coit
Girl	Virginia Leith
Narrator	David Allen

"Fear and Desire" is a literate, unhackneyed war drama, outstanding for its fresh camera treatment and poetic dialog. It's a natural for the art house circuit, and a possible off-beat companion feature for general release.

Pic is work of Stanley Kubrick, 22-year-old ex-Look magazine photographer, who produced, directed, photographed and edited the film on a $100,000 shoestring budget. Film is written by 23-year-old poet Howard O. Sackler, like Kubrick a fairly recent graduate of Taft High School, Bronx, N.Y. He has confected a blend of violence and philosophy; some of it half-baked, and some of it powerfully moving. Individual scenes stand out in impact, but the overall effect is not fully realized.

Story deals with four GIs stranded six miles behind enemy lines and what happens to their moral fibre as they try to escape. Kenneth Harp, presumably representing a glib intellectual, grows weary with his own sophistication. Paul Mazursky, over-sensitive to violence, is a weakling who tries to befriend a captured enemy girl, Miss Leith (a toothsome dish); shoots her, and then goes insane. Steve Coit is a level-headed Southerner who also winds up confused about his values. Frank Silvera plays the one character who fulfills himself—a tough, brave primitive, who purposely draws the fire of the enemy on himself on a river raft, so that Harp and Coit can shoot an enemy general and escape in a captured plane.

Silvera, only vet actor in the cast, offers the most genuinely convincing characterization. But most deserved honors go to Kubrick for his versatile directing and lensing. Kubrick shot the entire 68 minutes of film in the San Gabriel Mts. and at a river at Bakersfield on the Coast, and he uses mists and tree leaves with telling effect.

Music has been interpolated dramatically by Gerald Fried, 24-year-old Juilliard composer. While "Fear and Desire" may contain some pretentiousness and unnecessary interpolations by narrator David Allen, it is definitely out of the potboiler class one would expect from a shoestring budget.

The Cruel Sea
(BRITISH)

London, March 24.

GFD release of Ealing Studios-Michael Balcon production. Stars Jack Hawkins; features Donald Sinden, Denholm Elliott, Virginia McKenna. Directed by Charles Frend. Screenplay, Eric Ambler, from book by Nicholas Monsarrat; camera, Gordon Dines; editor, Peter Tanner; music, Alan Rawsthorne. At Odeon, Leicester Square, London, March 24, '53. Running time, 120 MINS.

Ericson	Jack Hawkins
Lockhart	Donald Sinden
Ferraby	John Stratton
Morell	Denholm Elliott
Bennett	Stanley Baker
Baker	John Warner
Tallow	Bruce Seton
Watts	Liam Redmond
Julie Hallam	Virginia McKenna
Elaine Morell	Moira Lister
Doris Ferraby	June Thorburn
Tallow's Sister	Megs Jenkins
Yeoman Wells	Meredith Edwards
Phillips	Llyn Houston
Tonbridge	Alec McCowan
Wainwright	Leo Phillips
Signalman Rose	Dafydd Havard
Gracey	Fred Griffiths
Sellars	Laurence Hardy
Carslake	Sam Kydd
Gray	John Singer
Broughton	Barry Steele

Chalk up a major credit for a British studio. Ealing has broken from its traditional light comedies to offer a serious, authentic reconstruction of the battle of the Atlantic, based on Nicholas Monsarrat's bestseller. Production, despite its overlong running time and other faults, emerges as a picture of dramatic intensity and authenticity, which should be reflected in hefty b.o. grosses wherever it is shown.

Much of the original novel's ac-

(Continued on page 24)

CHAINS WHITTLE WEAK LINKS

Pact Scribes Lopped to New Low Amid Studio Economy, Uncertainty

Hollywood, March 31.

With the accent on economy, general shearing of contract writers by the majors, an alltime low of 53 pact scribblers now exists, a studio-by-studio survey disclosed yesterday (Mon.). An estimated 156 writers, the majority working on a week-by-week basis, are toiling at the majors, this figure repping another alltime low.

Pact writers got the heaviest axe in the past month at 20th-Fox, where 16 contractees working a month ago slimmed down to eight. There are 35 scribblers at 20th, highest number in town but the new policy there emphasizes writers for weekly or assignment basis, not pacts.

Metro sliced its scribblers from 32 to 26 in the past month, but still leads with pacters, with 19. Warners also is pinkslipping writers, cut from 18 a month ago to 11. Of these, three have producer-writer pacts. Columbia, with a heavy production sked, is going along at an even keel with 26 scribblers employed, only four under pact, and these are producer-writer or writer-director deals. UI has 25 writers, compared to 28 last month, six under contract.

Paramount is holding to 17, five under pact. Republic has none under contract. RKO's three of last month have been cut to two, neither under contract. The figures emphasize the fact that part of the general tightening-belt policy in Hollywood, caused not only by the falling b.o. but by the uncertainty due to 3D and widescreen pictures, the studios are reversing the former policy of stressing termpacts, preferring hiring writers for specific assignments.

Don't Wait, Pard

This week's candidate for the film title most likely to be changed: "If I Don't Come Back, Read This."

Charles K. Feldman listed it as an original feature with the title registration bureau of the Motion Picture Assn. of America.

Whitecollarites Ask Strike Vote

Stalemated in negotiations for a new pact for New York exchange employees, the Motion Picture Homeoffice Employees Union, Local H-63, repping white collarites, has requested permission from the parent organization, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, to take strike action. Pending a reply from IA prexy Richard F. Walsh, the union has agreed to hold another confab with the film companies, with Commissioner Louis Stone of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service sitting in. Meeting is slated to take place this week.

According to the union, filmeries have completely rejected all demands, including a 37½-hour week, wage hike and three-week vacation after 10 years' employment. Union claims that the only counter-offer made by the film companies is for extension of the recently-expired pact for another two years. Russell Moss, Local H-63 topper, declared that the filmeries did not cite inability to pay but pointed to upcoming difficulties facing the industry. Union contends it is seeking the same con-

(Continued on page 27)

Allied Likes the First Nat'l Drive-In Conv. So Much It'll Go One-a-Year

Milwaukee, March 31.

Highly pleased with its first National Drive-In meeting held here last week in conjunction with the annual convention of the Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin, Allied States Assn., the parent body, has determined to hold a separate ozoner parley each year.

Plans are already under way for setting up next year's meeting. Allied's feeling is that its members who operate ozoners require a separate confab to discuss issues pertaining to specifics in the drive-in business.

With more than 700 ozoner ops from every state, in addition to reps from Puerto Rico and Canada, get-together here covered every aspect of ozoner operation, including development of 3-D and widescreen projection.

Herbert Barnett, prexy of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers, told the group that endless problems of 3-D projection remain to be solved prior to 3-D's becoming standard with ozoners.

On the question of trade practices, the ozoners were warned by

(Continued on page 87)

L.A. Fed. Court Denies Injunction Vs. 'Rouge'

Los Angeles, March 31.

Injunction asked by Moulin Rouge Montmartre of Paris to stop distribution of the film, "Moulin Rouge," was denied by Judge Leon R. Yankwich in Federal Court. Plaintiffs were given 30 days to amend their complaint and file again.

Defendants included Jose Ferrer, John Huston, United Artists and others. Judge made his decision after viewing the pic in the courtroom.

Hakim Gets U. S. Rights To British-Made 'Dare'

Former 20th-Fox producer Andre Hakim, who recently organized his own outfit, has acquired the United States sales and distribution rights to the currently-shooting British film, "They Who Dare."

Being produced by the Mayflower Co. (Maxwell Setton and Aubrey Baring) in partnership with Sir Alexander Korda, the film is currently shooting on location in Cyprus with Lewis Milestone directing. A Technicolor production, it concerns the activities of British Commandos in the Mediterranean during World War II.

Company expects to spend 10 weeks in Cyprus and another six weeks in London for interiors. Akim Tamiroff has a leading role in the picture.

SKOURAS SPEEDS UP SUPPLY OF LENSES

Hollywood, March 31.

Increased numbers of lenses for CinemaScope cameras and projectors at an early date were promised by Spyros Skouras at a meeting of the Motion Picture Industry Council. The 20th-Fox prexy also announced that more theatre equipment for CinemaScope than was originally expected will be available this year.

Meanwhile, 20th-Fox will install CinemaScope screens in three sizes for demonstration purposes in theatres in key cities throughout the country. Installations will be in large, middle and small-sized houses.

Zsa Zsa Out of 'Female'

Hollywood, March 31.

Pix producer Albert Zugsmith dropped negotiations with Zsa Zsa Gabor for the starring role in "Female of the Species" because of her demands for choice of a director and leading man.

Lili St. Cyr has been inked for the role instead. Pic rolls in June in Majorca. Victor Stoloff will direct.

NEW ECONOMY PROMPTS SALES

Policy of major theatre chains to lop off marginal houses as a means of enhancing the economic structures of the exhibition companies was further spotlighted within the past week on several fronts. Loew's disposed of a few neighborhood spots; RKO Theatres board has adopted a policy of terminating leases of properties which "do not contribute to the profitable operation of the business," and both United Paramount Theatres and National Theatres similarly have been relinquishing non-money-making houses.

Circuit operators have taken the position in many instances that theatres which operate in the red over any lengthy period are too much of a burden and might just as well be sold or shuttered. Conclusion being drawn is that, as a result of market changes over recent years, it's too difficult, and often impossible, to somehow convert a losing theatre into an in-the-black operation.

Commenting on this in his annual report, UPT president Leonard Goldenson said: "The industry seems to be evolving toward a situation where fewer theatres will exhibit better pictures. Nu-

(Continued on page 95)

Eye Strain & Distortion Of Stereo Lensing Are Eased in New 3-D Camera

A new 3-D camera which can be adjusted to zero inter-ocular separation, and takes the distortion out of stereo photography, was demonstrated in N. Y. Monday (30) by its inventor, Floyd A. Ramsdell, Worcester Film Corp. prexy. Ramsdell on March 10, '53, was issued patent number 2630737 on his camera which actually consists of two Bell & Howells built into a single casing.

Cameras are facing one another at right angles, with a movable mirror mounted between them. One photographs through the mirror, taking a conventional two-dimensional picture, while the other works from the reflected image.

Ramsdell illustrated the problem of obtaining correct inter-ocular. The mirror is adjustable to place the picture to be lensed in its proper relationship to the camera. Where other cameras have a minimum inter-ocular of three-quarters of an inch, his can be moved to absolute zero, Ramsdell showed. Elimination of eye-strain is part of the resultant improvement.

He disclosed he was discussing use of the camera "with several studios," and that he was building others. Arthur DeBra of the Motion Picture Assn. of America has a financial interest in the new device which, it's said, should be of great importance in the developing 3-D field.

Demonstration Monday involved both slides and color film. While the Ramsdell camera is in 35m, test footage shown was in 16m. Various scenes, emphasizing the applicability of the camera for long and medium shots as well as closeups, were screened. Polarized viewers are needed to get the 3-D effect.

Distribs Fete Cravenne

Robert Cravenne, rep of the French Unifrance org which promotes distribution of Gallic product abroad, will be the guest of honor and will deliver a report today (Wed.) at a luncheon thrown for him by the Independent Motion Picture Distributors Assn. at 21 in N. Y.

French film exec, who's here to arrange for a French Film Week in October, is skedded to report on conditions in the French industry and on the production outlook.

Parlay of 2-D, 3-D, Widescreen, TV Seen Potent Hypo for Theatre Biz

With a hassle obviously brewing between studios advocating the wide-screen medium as against those pitching 3-D requiring the use of polaroid specs, one group of industryites is taking the unusual view that there is no need for standardization. The feeling is that both methods offer different values, giving the industry a chance for the first time in its history to offer patrons a variety of entertainment.

By employing polaroid-type 3-D as well as CinemaScope plus conventional flat films and theatre TV, these tradesters maintain that theatres can put forth the most potent array of entertainment ever offered to the public and multiply the reason for theatre attendance. They argue that producers will have to use the utmost discretion in determining which story properties are most suitable for particular medium, be it 2-D, 3-D, CinemaScope or the new Todd-AO process.

It's pointed out that the only standardization necessary would be that involving similar equipment for each particular medium. Under present conditions, these filmites note that most theatres in the U. S. can be equipped for polaroid 3-D because of the comparative low cost. CinemaScope, they maintain, appears to be at present a medium for the larger key houses, although, it's conceded, it could come shortly within the range of the smaller situations.

Despite enthusiastic exhib reception of 20th-Fox's CinemaScope, there was no indication that theatre men would junk the present 3-D systems. In fact, there are

(Continued on page 29)

Color Scheme

"It's easy to spot a film man these days," comments Charles Boasberg. "He's wearing a green glass over one eye and a red one over the other."

RKO sales chief is more concerned over 3-D than ever since eight pix on that outfit's sked are depth pix.

Green Threatens 20th-Fox Via SEC

Impression that Charles Green, chief protagonist in a threatened proxy fight at 20th-Fox, might have called it quits on his announced intention to topple the 20th management was dispelled last week (26) when he told the Customers Brokers Assn. in N. Y. that a proxy letter embodying his complaints against the management would be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission some time this week.

Green, who didn't appear particularly anxious to talk about 20th at the start, preferring to recall his past proxy battles at the Twin City Rapid Transit Co. in Minneapolis and the United Cigar-Whelan Stores, was quickly drawn into a discussion of his plans re 20th.

Pinpointed by the brokers, he informed them that his group had offered Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th production chief, the company presidency "if he wants it;" that he had a slate of officers for the company all drawn up in case he should win his fight, and that he thought he owned as much stock in the company as its president, Spyros P. Skouras.

Extent of Green's holdings of 20th stock is a matter of considerable speculation since he's been

(Continued on page 95)

Par Process Cleanses 3-D Viewers for Re-Use

Effective means of sterilizing polarized glasses to permit their reuse in viewing 3-D pix has been developed by Paramount. Apparatus, in which Par has no investment, will be distributed by a new company, Steriloptics, Inc.

Outfit is owned by a group of industryites, including Herman Goldstein, prexy of Electro-Aire, which built the apparatus for Par's experiments; Izzy Rappaport, Baltimore exhib, and Joseph P. Kennedy Industries.

Important aspect of sterilization is that insurance cos may refuse to honor liability risks unless viewers are cleansed to avoid eye infections.

Par's purpose in experimenting with germ-killing equipment was to forestall a shortage of polarized viewers. Unit peddled by Steriloptics uses a high concentration of ozone to destroy germs. Method was devised by Dr. Leon Warshaw, Par medical director, according to Par v.p. Paul Raibourn.

Social Maneuvers For 'Titanic' Bow at Norfolk

Bally tying in the world premiere of 20th-Fox's "Titanic" with an amphibious assault landing and a gala ball for Navy Relief is set at the Norfolk, Va., naval base April 11-12. A group of stars from N.Y. and Hollywood will attend, along with mag reps and trade and lay press.

Top-ranking Navy and Army brass are skedded to attend. Among the officers are Admiral W. M. Fechteler, USN, Chief of Naval Operations; Gen. L. C. Shepherd, USMC, Commandant U. S. Marine Corps, and Gen. J. R. Hodge, USA, Chief, Army Field Forces. Pic stars Barbara Stanwyck and Clifton Webb.

AO Expands Its Board But No Mention's Made Of Schenck-Todd Ties

Brief annual stockholders meet of American Optical Co. at South Bridge, Mass. yesterday (Tues.) voted to expand the AO board to 14 members with the addition of four new trustees. Walter A. Stewart was reelected prexy of the optical outfit which is making the equipment for the Todd-AO 65m widescreen process.

Total of 56,000 shares were repped at the meet at which AO's tieup with Magna Theatre Corp. never came up. Trustees elected to the board were John S. Coleman, prexy of the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., Detroit; Dr. Brian O'Brien, American Optical v.p. in charge of research; E. Weldon Schmaucher, v.p. in charge of AO operations, and Donald F. Valley, general v.p. and director of the National Bank of Detroit.

Officers elected with Stewart were George E. Baskie, v.p. for finance and treasurer; Irving W. Wilson, v.p.; Henry S. Woodbridge, v.p. for biz research and biz development; Rodgers Donaldson, secretary and general counsel; John A. Richitelli, comptroller, and E. D. Mitchell and W. H. Rogers, assistant treasurers.

American Optical annual report issued three weeks ago showed net sales for 1952 at $17,000,225 and a net of $2,407,504, equalling $2.96 per common share.

COURT TO DECIDE WHO OWNS 'SECOND FACE' PIC

Los Angeles, March 31.

Suit to establish ownership of the motion picture, "Second Face," formerly titled "Skin Deep," was filed in Superior Court by Sunset Securities Co. Film co-starred Bruce Bennett and Ella Raines.

Defendants are Nassour Studios, ELJ Productions, Eagle Lion Classics, RCA, United Artists, Consolidated Film Industries, Edward J. Leven, Ella Raines, Eugene Vale, Roland D. Markson and H. A. Ginsburg.

Mpls. Scribe Gives Space Gratis To NCA 'Pan' Beef But Paid Ad Snafued

Minneapolis, March 31.

Aiming specifically at "Peter Pan" during its current RKO-Orpheum engagement here, North Central Allied obtained gratis publicity twice in Will Jones' Morning Tribune column mentioning the picture and theatre. Otherwise, however, it had to settle for a Morning Tribune paid display ad which, generalizing, omitted its desired attack on the Disney offering and the RKO showhouse, and simply purported to reveal the alleged harm being done to neighborhood and small town theatres by the current policy of pre-releasing pictures at advanced admissions.

In effect, the newspaper refused to accept the original ad submitted by NCA. That ad called "Peter Pan" a "cartoon;" branded the RKO-Orpheum admission prices "unfair," declared that if the public patronizes "Peter Pan" other companies will be encouraged to boost admissions on pictures; and effect would be to put many small neighborhood theatres out of business. It also claimed "there is absolutely no justification for this huge price increase," and carried the heading, "Why Pay These Prices to See 'Peter Pan'?"

Newspaper advertising department "suggested" changes in the ad's copy that eliminated almost all of the aforegoing and resulted in a much watered-down general statement of the NCA position regarding pre-releases. NCA accepted the "suggestions," and the three column 10-inch ads ran two days after "Peter Pan" opened at the Orpheum.

Cutting 'Pan' Terms?

As result of continued blasts at RKO and Walt Disney for terms demanded on "Peter Pan," exhibs report that the distrib and the producer have shown an indication to come down in their terms in certain situations.

It's reported that RKO has agreed to accept a 35% rental for subsequent runs. Company's original asking price was as high as 70%.

M-G SEEKS LEGITER AS 'CAESAR' N.Y. SHOWCASE

With a two-a-day roadshow policy set for "Julius Caesar," Metro's filmization of the Shakespeare classic, company is reportedly on the prowl for a legit-type theatre for its Broadway showcasing. Negotiations, it's reported, have been held with the Shuberts as well as other legit theatre ops, with a May opening date in view. Talks with the Shuberts also involves houses in other cities.

Presentation of film versions of the Bard's efforts on a roadshow basis have proved successful in the past. Both "Henry V" and "Hamlet" chalked up substantial returns playing to specialized audiences.

Launching of the bally campaign for "Caesar" finds Metro sponsoring a Shakespearian reading contest in the N. Y. metropolitan area, with 46 high schools competing.

Although not yet in release, "Caesar" is already garnering awards. Parents mag will present its "extraordinary award to the picture, third time in 27 years that a film has received the honor. Christian Herald is also readying an accolade.

St. Louis Trade Zone To Get 25 New Ozoners

St. Louis, March 31.

There are 25 new ozoners building or planned in the St. Louis trade area, with possibility of more being readied for the 1953 season. At the end of last year, there were more than 100 ozoners operating in this area. LeRoy Baston and John Kirby, Effingham, Ill., have let a contract for a $75,000 ozoner near Casey, Ill.

Other spots in southern Illinois where new ozoners will be constructed or are about to be started are near Beardstown, McLeansbor, Vienna, Breese, Carlyle, Anna, Belleville, Cobden Mt. Carmel and Jonesboro. In St. Louis county and outside Missouri, 10 or more new ozoners are being built while in northeastern Kentucky, also in St. Louis trade area, plans have been made for five new ozoners.

J. L. Warner Due in N.Y. For Premiere of 'Wax'

Jack L. Warner, Warner Bros. production chief, is due in New York from the Coast Monday (6). Topper will be on hand for advance activities as well as the April 10 Paramount preem of "House of Wax," company's initial 3-D effort.

Following "Wax" unveiling, Warner heads for England for the Coronation.

UPT's Mpls. Divorcement Fling; Nixes Renewal Of 2 Nabe, 2 1st-Run Houses

Minneapolis, March 31.

Apparently embarked on a policy of divorcing itself from a number of its Twin Cities downtown and neighborhood theatres as fast as it can, United Paramount Theatres (Minnesota Amusement Co.) is not renewing its now expiring leases on two important local nabe houses, the Granada and Arion, and a pair of St. Paul shuttered downtown first-runs, the Strand and Tower.

Circuit previously had sold another of its local neighborhood houses for commercial purposes. It's known to be desirous of relinquishing the lease on a closed Minneapolis downtown first-run theatre, the Aster, and it has tried to peddle its lease on still another local loop firstrun house, the Century, on condition the latter be converted to commercial uses.

With dropping of the Granada and Arion, UPT will be left with four neighborhood and a similar number of loop theatres in operation here. In St. Paul it now is operating five neighborhood and two downtown theatres.

Granada and Arion revert to their owners, Abe Kaplan and Charlie Rubenstein, who also own and operate several other of their own Minneapolis and St. Paul neighborhood theatres, one of which latter they recently shuttered and then leased out. They state their plans regarding the Granada and Arion are uncertain, but that both houses will be kept dark in May and June at least.

The Strand and Tower are involved in a suit. In compliance with the consent decree, Paramount sold them to a group which now is suing to have the deal rescinded and to recover the $75,000 of the $150,000 purchase price already paid.

3-D to Dominate 2-Day Confab of Ohio Exhibs

Columbus, March 31.

It'll be a 3-D convention when the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio gather for their annual two-day meeting April 7 at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel here.

Only a few speakers have been scheduled, says Robert A. Wile, ITO exec secretary, but they'll all talk on the depth technique. Among those to be heard are: Herbert Barnett, Society of Motion Picture Engineers prez; Ralph Heacock, RCA theatre product manager; J. W. Servies, veepee of National Theatre Supply and of SMPE. Martin Quigley, Jr., is also scheduled for a brief talk.

Banquet speaker will be Arthur L. Mayer, author of "Merely Colossal."

Regular film clinics, a feature originated in Ohio, are also scheduled. Drive-in Clinic will be led by T. L. Mendelssohn, of United Booking Service in Indianapolis; Small Town Clinic by William A. Carroll, general manager of Caravan; and Subsequent-Run Clinic by William Snaper, national president.

Metro Delays 'Rope's End'

Hollywood, March 31.

Unable to decide in what process the upcoming "Rope's End" will be shot, Metro postponed start of the film from Thursday (2) to next Monday (6).

Studio is considering Metrovision, the Metro-owned widescreen system, and CinemaScope, 20th-Fox's system offered to all studios.

'Express' to Schaefer

George J. Schaefer, indie producer's rep, has taken over distribution of "The Paris Express," British-American pic lensed in France and Holland with Claude Rains and Marta Toren in the leads. Film was financed by Eros Films, London outfit, which owns the eastern hemisphere rights, and, on the American side, by Ben Schrift and Theodore Tickten.

Latter two own the western hemisphere rights, with the releasing under Schaefer's supervision.

8-Week 'Salome,' 'Rouge,' 'Pan' Runs Pace Loop Bid For Extended Showings

Chicago, March 31.

Number of outlets available for the extended showing of films in the Loop is continuing to grow. While Balaban & Katz houses and the Grand are still limited to two-week showings of releases downtown, this has been almost voided by the granting of extended showings. For example, "Peter Pan" just had a sock eight weeks at the B&K State-Lake, and is being followed by a similar eight-frame grant for "Moulin Rouge." Grand starts an eight-week run of "Salome," with a $1.50 top April 4.

Palace has been showing only two-week bills, but is bidding for extended run product. It also has hopes for an end to the hassle about Cinerama with the motion picture operators' union. Ziegfeld, which has been playing import product, took over "Come Back, Little Sheba" and has been playing close to capacity. Monroe, which had been playing sub run double feature, brought in "Anna" for six excellent weeks and is doing okay with "Androcles and the Lion." "Sombrero" follows after Easter.

Latest possible entry is the McVickers, which has been owned jointly by Balaban & Katz and the Jones, Linick & Schaefer organizations. House has been a double feature policy with A product, but JLS has bought out, for undisclosed sum, the interest of B&K. However, house has 2,200 seats which would make it attractive to producers who wanted large capacity for their long runs. At present, no steps have been taken towards bidding for top products, now that it is not affected by the terms of the Jackson Park decree.

'Captive' Company Labs May Join Indie Group

With the Motion Picture Assn. of America showing interest in the newly incorporated Assn. of Cinema Laboratories, Inc., which brings together indie labs on a national basis for the first time, possibility now looms that the lab group will be widened to include the so-called "captive" or company-affiliated labs.

John Stott, DuArt-TriArt exec and prexy of ACL, disclosed in N.Y. Monday (30) that he's been contacted by both COMPO and the MPAA, and that he expects to meet with Ralph D. Hetzel, MPAA v.p., in N.Y. later this week. MPAA pitch is that there is a natural tie-in between ACL and MPAA aims.

Next ACL meet of the group's 15 charter members is skedded for April 20 in N.Y., when the membership will be asked to approve the association's bylaws. Labs are paying dues of $50 a year. There's to be another meeting in May, possibly in Los Angeles, in conjunction with the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers convention, when ACL officers will be elected.

Current slate has Stott as prexy, Russell Holslag as treasurer and Harry Sale as secretary. Indie labs would welcome the entry of the company labs and of Technicolor into their association, since it would strengthen their position vis-a-vis the industry.

210G Finnish Divvy

Film companies are currently in the process of divvying $210,000 of accrued earnings remitted from Finland. Transfer clears out all of the American distribs' frozen funds in that country.

Motion Picture Assn. of America members recently divided a $200,000 melon from Sweden, which also cleared out their balances there.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

Back from the Coast, RCA president Frank M. Folsom details the manner in which Darryl Zanuck, Dore Schary, Charles Brackett, any number of the Hollywood stars and other echelon openly applauded RCA Victor's financial contribution which made possible the Academy Awards telecast over NBC. Not only did it solve the economic stress that faced the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences on its quarter-century fete (because three of the studios had removed its usual financial assist), but the "national house party" that resulted from some 50,000,000 lookers (estimated), participating in the two-hour Oscar sweepstakes telecast, resulted in pro-Hollywood reaction beyond any anticipated horizons.

While Folsom had instructed NBC's west coast veepee John K. West to bid for the Academy TV rights as a natural move, because he felt this was an important enough "show," the resultant RCA Victor dealer and distributor enthusiasm also parred the Hollywood phase by its large-scale reaction. The dealers felt that events of this scope, size and glamor are "made to order for TV" and was a welcome hypo to the retail trade. Many so expressed themselves in letters to RCA board chairman David Sarnoff, to Folsom and other company execs.

Schary was particularly volatile that "of all the anti-TV companies, little did I think I'd be there on behalf of Metro participating in such a video event," adding, however, that this telecast was "a big plus for the film industry."

Folsom is of the private opinion that the RCA commercials were slightly overdone, although well within the time allocations, and "this would be something I'd be inclined to watch, personally, more closely in the future."

Technicolor is rated as having a "strong industry position" in an analysis made last week by the Wall St. house of White, Weld & Co. Its special report cites the tint firm's stock as offering a "possible three-way play in two-dimensional motion pictures, three-dimensional movies and color television." Traded on the American Stock Exchange, Technicolor common hit a 1952-'53 high last week of 30⅜ following disclosure of healthy profits in the company's annual report for the year ending Dec. 31, 1952.

Due to plant expansion and a rising demand for Technicolor products and services, the White, Weld report opines, anticipated earnings for 1953 will be "substantially" above the $2.19 per share return in 1952. Analysis also expresses the belief that no outside financing will be required in order to carry out company plans to boost print capacity to 750,000,000 feet annually. Other salient advantages indicated in the report stress the fact that Technicolor holds a $7,000,000 contract with Cinerama and it's "contemplated" that 20th-Fox will employ the Techni process in its CinemaScope presentations.

With industry interest at a peak for the use of TV as a means of pitching current films, Demby Productions, packaging outfit, is peddling a 15-minute stanza to video outlets. Titled "What's Playing," show is keyed to local release dates of pictures. Show's format consists of a six-minute clip from one film plus a prepared script for use of local emcees. Package is being offered to one station in each city for local sponsorship. Distrib participation is offered at no cost, with the filmeries providing the clips which Demby cut down to 16m for shipping to stations. Current idea stems from the half-hour stanza presented over WABC-TV in September, 1951 with Maggi McNellis as femcee. Although show ran for 39 weeks, it ran into difficulty in lining up clips, due to distrib resistance at that time.

Statement attributed to RKO sales chief Charles Boasberg has North Central Allied wondering if the company intends to sell a couple of reissues on a roadshow basis. Boasberg's comment, as relayed in an NCA membership bulletin, was that the program of "Fort Apache" and "Blood on the Moon" "will not be available to small towns until it has played the key cities in the proper order of their progression." Replied NCA: "RKO has set some kind of a record by roadshowing a cartoon ('Peter Pan') on a reported 70-30 basis. Is it now going to roadshow reissues?"

Amount involved in the deal by which Paramount bought the rights to Sam Taylor's play, "Sabrina Fair," actually could go higher than the $75,000 purchase price reported last week. That's the minimum sum in the pre-production arrangement. Par is called upon to shell out, additionally, a royalty for every week the play runs on Broadway, plus other coin for every week's run of a touring company. The ceiling price is $200,000.

Columbia is playing up the news, emanating from Sydney, Australia, that a Japanese whaling ship, the Settsu Mara, was crushed in the Antarctic ice pack and abandoned by its crew. The same thing happens in "Hell Below Zero," the Alan Ladd starrer currently filming in London, for Columbia release.

Production stills in 3-D, plugging "The House of Wax," will be made available by Warners to first-run houses for use in their lobbies. Ten panels, each equipped with three viewers, will show 30 different 3-D scenes. Panels will also be made available to merchants for window displays.

A Palisades, N. J., exhib is using 3-D pix as an enticement to bring customers in to see the more prosaic "flats." Every Saturday night the theatreman hands a pair of tix to Cinerama to the holder of a lucky number.

"Forbidden Games," French import, is released by Times Film Corp. and not Arthur Mayer-Edward Kingsley as noted in the VARIETY listing of Oscar winners last week (25).

Lyons, Camera Vision Stock Suit Settled

Hollywood, March 31.

Federal Judge Ernest Tolin yesterday (Mon.) okayed a settlement whereby Arthur S. Lyons gives up some of his shares to Camera Vision Productions, Inc., and waives $15,000 due in divvys, in the suit brought by Mrs. Gilda Dahlberg, N.Y., and Mrs. Rose K. Davis of Hawaii against CVP prexy Lyons and directors Edgar Morris and Edward Flynn.

Women sued, contending they invested $120,000 in the company. They declared that Morris kept incomplete books and demanded an accounting. They accused Lyons of "misappropriating" funds and acting "fraudulently." Corporation was formed to develop a special camera invented by Jack Strauss. Judge Tolin ordered a board of directors meeting April 20.

L. de Rochemont Preps N. H. Documentaries

Concord, N. H., March 31.

Louis de Rochemont of Newington, producer of "Lost Boundaries," "Walk East on Beacon" and other films, has been engaged to make a documentary picture depicting life in New Hampshire as part of the stepped-up "Sell New Hampshire" campaign.

John Brennan, of the State Planning & Development Commission, and Prof. Austin Olney, director of the audio-visual centre at U. of New Hampshire, in Durham, will co-operate in providing material for the film. Some of this material, including wild-life shots from the Fish & Game Dept., is already available.

De Rochemont has also started shooting a short film featuring the Spaulding high school orchestra and band in Rochester, N. H.

. . . . . a WAVE to a WONDERFUL girl

she's the toast of Broadway!

. . . . . now at the Winter Garden

in WONDERFUL TOWN

(BREAKING ALL EXISTING RECORDS)

. . . . . at the Astor, starting April 16

in NEVER WAVE AT A WAC

(DOING HOLD-OVER BUSINESS ALL OVER THE U.S.A.)

and the WINNER of the Antoinette Perry Award

ROSALIND RUSSELL

for her distinguished performance in the musical play,

WONDERFUL TOWN

season 1952 53

RECORD BREAKING RUNS IN

NEW YORK...19TH WEEK!
BOSTON...15TH WEEK!
LOS ANGELES...15TH WEEK!
PHILADELPHIA...9TH WEEK!
CHICAGO...8TH WEEK!
SEATTLE...7TH WEEK!
SAN FRANCISCO...7TH WEEK!
WASHINGTON...7TH WEEK!
LOUISVILLE...4TH WEEK!
MONTREAL...3RD WEEK!
DETROIT...3RD WEEK!
CLEVELAND...3RD WEEK!

...and

SAMUEL GOLDWYN'S

"HANS CHRISTIAN

CITY AFTER CITY AFTER CITY!

still running!

ANDERSEN"

HITCH on to Promotion and HIKE your profits!

Latch on to this exploitation sockeroo the trade press is calling: "Tops in tension!" Hollywood Reporter; "A genuine sleeper... a 'natural'!" Boxoffice; "Has out-hitched Hitchcock!" Showmen's Trade Review. Seven top showmen give you their ideas in the show-packed press book. Get it today!

Some of the ads, backed by exploitation, that boomed the RKO Boston's grosses to 18-months' tops!

Chi Loaded With H.O.s; 'Beneath Sea' Ace New Film, Great $14,500, 'Spur' Stout 18G, 'Confess'-Joni 38G, 2d

Chicago, March 31.

Loop picture houses currently are not hit as much as expected although business is off. Most of offsetting influence comes from the strong holdovers, there being only two new entries this week. Both should do fairly well. "City Beneath Sea" and "Gunsmoke" at Roosevelt shapes great $14,500 while "Naked Spur" and "Rogue's March" at United Artists should hit a solid $18,000.

Chicago, with "I Confess" and Joni James and Ralph Marterie onstage should get a smash $38,000 to lead the second-weekers. "Battleground" at the Grand is fine in first holdover round. "I Love Melvin" at the Palace appears slim.

"Come Back Little Sheba" has a sock fourth week at the Ziegfeld in view. "Androcles and Lion" at Monroe shapes fair in third week. "Niagara" at Woods still is okay in third frame. "Peter Pan" ends its eight weeks at the State-Lake with fine total.

Estimates for This Week

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 98-$1.25) —"I Confess" (WB) with Joni James and Ralph Marterie orch onstage 2d wk). Sock $38,000. Last week, $55,000.

Grand (RKO) (1,500; 55-98)— "Battleground" (M-G) (reissue) (2d wk). Tall at $9,000. Last week, $17,000. "Salome" (Col) opens April 4.

Monroe (Indie) (1,000; 55-98)— "Androcles and Lion" (RKO) 3d wk. Moderate $4,500. Last week, $8,500.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 98-$1.25) —"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (7th wk). Fine $17,000 or near. Last week, $20,000.

Palace (Eitel) (2,500; 98)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G) (2d wk). Lean $9,000. Last week, $14,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,500; 55-98)— "City Beneath Sea" (U) and "Gunsmoke" (U). Great $14,500. Last week, "Girls in Night" (U) and "Dance Hall Girls" (Indie) (2d wk), $10,000.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,700; 98-$1.25)—"Peter Pan" (RKO (8th wk). Ends eight-week stay with hefty $19,000. Last week, $25,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685, 98)— "Member of Wedding" (Col) (3d wk). Smart $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 55-98)—"Naked Spur" and "Rogue's March" (M-G). Fast $18,000. Last week, "Treasure Goldon Condor" (20th) and "Taxi" (20th) 2d wk), $8,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,073; 98)— "Niagara" (20th 3d wk). Neat $13,-000. Last week, $18,000.

World (Indie) (587; 98)—"Forbidden Games" (Indie) (4th wk). Nice $4,300. Last week, $5,000.

Ziegfeld (Lopert) (485; 98)— "Little Sheba" (Par) (4th wk). Lush $7,000. Last week, same.

'Sheba' Rousing $12,000 In L'ville; 'Face'-'Jekyll' Hot 13G, 'Gunsmoke' 4G

Louisville, March 31.

Current session is bullish, with downtown area teeming with pre-Easter shoppers, despite coolish weather over weekend. Downtown stores report Saturday preceding Palm Sunday as one of the year's biggest days, and film houses shared in upbeat. "Come Back, Little Sheba" at the Rialto, getting benefit of Oscar awards publicity looks sturdy. "Gunsmoke" shapes lively at the Kentucky. "Woman's Face," heading reissue combo at the State, is smash.

Estimates for This Week

Kentucky (Switow) (1,200; 50-75) —"Gunsmoke" (U) and "White Lightning" (AA). Lively $4,000. Last week, "Seminole" (U) and "Girls In Night" (U), $4,500.

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,200; 50-75)—"Blue Gardenia" (WB). Fair $5,000. Last week, "Back On Broadway" (WB) (2d wk), about same.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (3,000; 50-75)—"Little Sheba" (Par). Oscar awards helping this one. Sturdy $12,000. "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (2d wk), swell $14,000 at 99c top.

State (Loew's) (3,000; 50-75)— "Woman's Face" (M-G) and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" (M-G) (reissues). Horror combo looks sock $13,000. Very big for oldies. "The Clown" (M-G) and "Battles Chief Pontiac" (Indie), $11,000.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i. e., without the 20% tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include the U. S. amusement tax.

'Madam' Torrid $26,000 in Philly

Philadelphia, March 31.

Combination of Holy Week and Passover is sloughing film biz here to a great extent this stanza. "Call Me Madam" shapes loud in first week at the Fox, with a subsequent upbeat expected. "Blue Gardenia" looms dull at Mastbaum and is being yanked after a week. "Girl Had Everything" faded after a bright start at Randolph. "Cleopatra" is a surprise with a fine session at the Stanton.

Estimates for This Week

Aldine (WB) (1,303; 50-99)— "Sombrero" (M-G). Trim $8,500. Last week, "Quiet Man" (Rep), nice $7,500 on return date.

Arcadia (S&S) (625; 85-$1.30)— "Bad and Beautiful" (M-G) (8th wk). Okay $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Boyd (WB) (2,360; 99-$1.30)— "Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) (6th wk). Sturdy $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Fox (20th) (2,250; 85-$1.30)— "Call Me Madam" (20th). Loud $26,000. Last week, "Silver Whip" (20th), mild $10,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,200; 50-99)—"Last Comanches" (Col). Big $12,000. Last week, "Battle Circus" (M-G) (2d wk), $13,000 in 10 days.

Mastbaum (WB) (4,360; 50-99)— "Blue Gardenia" (WB). Drab $10,-000. Last week, "Stars Singing" (Par) (2d wk), $12,000.

Midtown (1,200; 85-$1.50)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (8th wk). School holidays helped to big $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,500; 50-99)—"Girl Who Had Everything" (M-G). So-so $12,500. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G) (3d wk), $8,500.

Stanley (WB) (2,900; 50-99)— "Back on Broadway" (WB) (2d wk). Sluggish $7,000. Last week, $10,000.

Stanton (WB) (1,473; 50-99)— "Cleopatra" (Par) (reissue). Fancy $8,500. Last week, "Ride Man Down" (Rep), $6,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 90-$1.50)— "Moulin Rouge" (UA) (4th wk). Great $14,000 or near. Last week, $17,000.

'GOBI' MODEST $7,000, PROV.; 'MELVIN' NG 9G

Providence, March 31.

So-so pic fare is levelling biz this week. Loew's State's "I Love Melvin" getting top coin but minor total. "Little Sheba" is still good in second week at Strand. RKO Albee's "Destination Gobi" is fairish while Majestic's "Blue Gardenia" is average.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 44-65)— "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Flying Squadron" (Rep). Fairish $7,000. Last week, "The Star" (20th) and "Black Swan" (20th), $8,500.

Majestic (Fay) (2,200; 44-65)— "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Daughter of Darkness" (Indie). Average $5,000. Last week, "Lawless Breed" (U) and "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U), solid $9,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 44-65)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "San Antone" (Rep). Slow $9,000. Last week, "Battle Circus" (M-G) and "Old Overland Trail" (Rep), $9,-500.

Strand (Silverman) (2,200; 44-65)—"Little Sheba" (Par) and "Midnight Serenade" (Par) (2d wk). Nice $5,500. First week was socko $12,000.

'A&C TO MARS' LOFTY 14G IN FAIR DENVER

Denver, March 31.

Brightest newcomer here this session is "Abbott-Costello Go to Mars," which is big at Paramount. "Lady Wants Mink" is rated fairly okay in two spots but "Tall Texan" is only fairish in three locations. "Peter Pan" is holding at a fancy figure in second Orpheum week. Heavy snow yesterday (Mon.) put a damper on biz that night.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (1,400; 50-85)— "Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip). Fair $6,500. Last week, "Bwana Devil" (UA), $6,000.

Denham (Cockrill) (1,750; 50-85)—"Little Sheba" (Par (3d wk). Okay $8,500. Last week, $13,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,525; 50-85)— "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep) and "Ride Man Down" (Rep). Fairish $12,500. Last week, "Seminole" (U), $13,000.

Esquire (Fox) (742; 50-85)— "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep) and "Ride the Man Down" (Rep). Okay $3,500 or near. Last week, "Seminole" (U), $2,800.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,600; 76-$1.20) — "Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Fancy $17,500. Holding again. Last week, $23,500.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,200; 50-85)—"Abbott & Costello Go To Mars" (U) and "Savage Mutiny" (Col). Rousing $14,000 or close. Last week, "City Beneath Sea" (U) and "Girls in Night" (U), $13,500.

Tabor (Fox) (1,967; 50-85)— "Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip), as Aladdin, Tabor. Fairish $3,000. Last week, on reissues.

Webber (Fox) (750; 50-85)—"Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip), as Aladdin, Tabor. Fairish $3,000. Last week, on reissues.

'Limits' Lively $12,000, D. C. Ace

Washington, March 31.

Current session is a preview of Holy Week, with lack of sock first-run pix adding to gloom. "Off Limits" at the Warner, by far the sturdiest of the newcomers, is pleasing, but not up to hopes for a Bob Hope starrer. "Down Among the Sheltering Palms" looks sluggish at the Palace. Holdovers are generally off, except for "High Noon" at Lopert's Dupont and "Little Sheba" at the Playhouse, both of which are still riding the crest of the Oscar wave.

Estimates for This Week

Capitol (Loew's) (3,434; 55-95)— "K.C. Confidential" (UA) plus vaude. Slow $14,000. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) plus vaude, $21,000.

Columbia (Loew's) (1,174; 55-80)—"Destination Gobi" (20th) (2d wk). Pleasing $5,000 in 5 days after solid $9,000 last week.

Dupont (Lopert) (372; 55-$1)— "High Noon" (UA) (13th wk). Amazingly sturdy $5,500 after terrific $6,000 last week. Stays on.

Keith's (RKO) (1,939; 90-$1.25)— "Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) (7th wk). Sturdy $8,000 after $9,000 last week. Stays on to get Easter trade.

Metropolitan (Warner) (1,200; 90-$1.25)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (6th wk). Trim $8,000 after $9,000 last week. Holds.

Palace (Loew's) (2,370; 55-85)— "Down Among Sheltering Palms" (20th). Sluggish $12,000. Last week, "President's Lady" (20th), ditto, but way below hopes.

Playhouse (Lopert) (435; 55-$1)— "Little Sheba" (Par) (7th wk). Big $5,500 after last week's $6,000. Stays indefinitely.

Warner (WB) (2,174; 55-85)— "Off Limits" (Par). Neat $12,000, but well below expectancy. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB), $10,-000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (600; 55-$1)— "Member of Wedding" (Col) (3d wk). So-so $3,500 after $4,000 last week. Holds another round.

'Gardenia' Bright 9G, Buff.; 'B'way' $12,500

Buffalo, March 31.

First-run film trade shapes offish here this week. However, "Blue Gardenia" is heading for solid session at the Center. "Back on Broadway" is rated okay at Paramount while "Sombrero" is slow at the Buffalo.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew's) (3,000; 40-70)— "Sombrero" (M-G) and "Confidentially Connie" (M-G). Slow $10,-000. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G) and "Hell Is Sold Out" (Indie), $18,000 in 9 days.

Paramount (Par) (3,000; 40-70)— "Back on Broadway" (WB) and

(Continued on page 24)

5 New Entries Brighten B'way; 'Salome' Hot 65G, 'Madam' Wow 96G, 'Moon' Bright 136G, 'Off Limits' 27G

Five new, strong bills are giving Broadway first-run business a nice lift this session despite the Holy Week handicap. Theatres had to contend with steady downpours for two days, with the springlike weather which followed cutting in on trade especially last Sunday (29). Easter Week vacations start for N. Y. schools next Friday (3) but many colleges already have begun their vacation periods.

The outstanding newcomer is "Salome" despite being rained on opening day (Wed.). Initial week at the Rivoli looks like smash $65,-000 or near. The $2 top for week-end night shows is a big help, naturally.

Just about as strong are the Roxy and Music Hall. "Call Me Madam" with iceshow looks giant $96,000 at the former, with rave reviews a hypo. The annual Easter stageshow with "By Light of Silvery Moon" is heading for a very good $136,000 at the Hall with matinees especially big.

"Off Limits" figures to take a nice $27,000 in its initial frame at the Astor. "Naked Spur" hit a fine $24,000 opening week at the State.

"I Confess" with Patti Page, Jerry Wald and Bobby Sargent topping stage bill held at big $63,000 in second week at the Paramount. "Lili" continues its record run at the Trans-Lux 52d Street, landing a very big $13,700 in third session.

"Moulin Rouge" still is holding in smash fashion at the Capitol, being great $38,000 in seventh stanza after $49,000 for sixth week. It is now scheduled to stay at least 10 weeks. "Anna" still is okay with $8,500 for sixth round at the Globe and stays a seventh.

"Come Back, Little Sheba," held at socko $15,500 in 14th frame at the Victoria. In the previous week it had the help of Shirley Booth's Academy Award.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,300; 80-$1.50) —"Off Limits" (Par). Initial week ending next Friday (3) is heading for a nice $27,000 or near. Got good reviews. Holds. In ahead, "Stars Singing" (Par) (2d wk-10 days), $16,000.

Broadway (Cinerama) (1,250; 90-$2.80)—"Cinerama" (Indie) (27th wk). The 26th round ended yesterday (Tues.) held at $39,500, virtually capacity. The 25th week was $40,000.

Baronet (Reade) (430; 90-$1.50) —"Importance of Being Earnest" (U) (15th wk). The 14th stanza ended Sunday (29) was nice $3,700 after $3,500 for 13th week. "I Believe in You" (U) opens in about two weeks.

Capitol (Loew's) (4,820; 70-$1.80) —"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (8th wk). The seventh round ended last night (Tues.) held at $38,000, remarkable in view of length of run. The sixth week was $49,600, way over hopes, with interest in Oscars handed pic pushing it ahead of fifth round's $45,700, both terrific. This is beating "African Queen" (UA) biz here and being topped only by "Quo Vadis" (M-G) which played at upped scale. Stays at least 10 weeks.

Criterion (Moss) (1,700; 85-$2.20) —"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (19th wk). The 18th stanza ended Monday (30) slipped to $8,-500, but still okay for period of longrun. The 17th week was $13,-400, way over expectancy. Stays on until after Easter.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; 90-$1.80) —"The Promoter" (U) (23d wk). The 22d round ended Monday (30) held at $3,800 after $4,300 for 21st week. Continues on.

Globe (Brandt) (1,500; 60-$1.50) —"Anna" (IFE) (7th wk). Sixth session ended last night (Tues.) continued okay with $8,500 after nice $11,000 for fifth week. "Man in Dark" (Col) due in April 8.

Holiday (Per-Rose) (950; 60-$1.20)—"Thunderbirds" (Rep) (4th wk). Third stanza ended last night (Tues.) was $7,000 after solid $11,-000 for second week. "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep) opens next Saturday (4), limiting fourth round of "Thunderbirds" to three days.

Mayfair (Brandt) (1,736; 70-$1.80) —"Jeopardy" (M-G). Opens Monday (30). In ahead, "Above and Beyond" (M-G) (9th wk-3 days), $7,700 after fancy $12,000 for eighth round. Helped by preview of "Jeopardy" on Sunday (29).

Palace (RKO) (1,700; $1.20-$6)— Danny Kaye and all-vaude bill (11th wk). The 10th session ended Saturday (28) was $50,000 after $52,000 for ninth week. Windup now set for April 26. Steady gait of this vaude lineup is sensational.

Paramount (Par) (3,664; 80-$1.80) — "I Confess" (WB) plus Patti Page, Jerry Wald orch, Bobby Sargent heading stageshow (2d wk). Initial holdover stanza ending next Friday (3) continues very strong at $63,000. Goes a third. First week was big $75,000, slightly below hopes. "House of Wax" (WB), first 3-D pic to play Par flagship, is due in April 10.

Paris (Indie) (568; $1.25-$1.80)— "Hans C. Andersen" (RKO) (19th wk). The 18th frame ended Monday (30) held with $6,100 after $6,500 for 17th week.

Rivoli (UAT) (2,092; 95-$2) — "Salome" (Col) (2d wk). First stanza ended last night (Tues.) soared to a smash $65,000 or near. Hurt by rain opening day just when it started out ahead of "Snows Kilimanjaro" (20th) record-holder here. Looks in for longrun. Opened March 25 after elaborate preem Tuesday (24) night. In ahead, "The Star" (8th wk-6 days), $5,500 but winding up a very nice run here.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (5,945; 90-$2.40) — "By Light of Silvery Moon" (M-G) with Easter stageshow. First week ending today (Wed.) is landing a very good $136,000. Matinees so far have been very strong. In for usual run over Easter and subsequent weeks. In ahead, "Story of Three Loves" (M-G) and stageshow (3d wk), $100,000.

Roxy (20th) (5,886; 59-$2.20)— "Call Me Madam" (20th) with iceshow onstage (2d wk). Climbing to giant $96,000 in first session ended last night (Tues.). Rave reviews from most crix helping. Looks set for a run. In ahead, "Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) and iceshow (6th wk), okay $52,000 to close out a highly successful longrun. "Pan" was the seventh pic in Roxy history to go six weeks. It landed a smash $485,500 total.

State (Loew's) (3,450; 85-$1.80)— "Naked Spur" (M-G) (2d wk). Initial round ended last night (Tues.) hit fine $24,000. In ahead, "City Beneath Sea" (U) (2d wk), $17,000.

Sutton (R&B) (561; 90-$1.50)— "Penny Princess" (U) (2d wk). First frame ended Monday (30) was nice $10,000. In ahead, "Story of Mandy" (U) (4th wk-8 days), $4,000.

Trans-Lux 60th St. (T-L) (453; 90-$1.50)—"Justice Is Done" (Indie) (5th wk). Fourth stanza ended Sunday (29) hit $5,500 after fine $6,600 for third week.

Trans-Lux 52nd St. (T-L) (540; 90-$1.50)—"Lili" (M-G) (4th wk). Third round ended Monday (30) held at big $13,700 after socko $16,200 for second week. In for longrun here.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,060; 95-$1.80)—"Little Sheba" (Par) (15th wk). The 14th session ended yesterday (Tues.) held at great $15,-500. Added laurels for Shirley Booth, pic's star, via Antoinette Perry legit award sustaining momentum after she was named Academy's best actress for 1952. Latter Oscar boosted this to smash $21,000 in 13th week.

Hub Off; 'Lion' Mildish $17,000, 'Gardenia-Way' $14,500, 'Moulin' 12G, 5th

Boston, March 2.

Usual Holy Week slump prevails this stanza with downtown majors marking time prior to unveiling staunch product the day before Easter. As a result, current pix are holding for nine days. Best newcomer is "Androcles and Lion" at Memorial with "Blue Gardenia" at Paramount and Fenway also fairly nice. "Come Back, Little Sheba" in second round at Met is holding well with "Moulin Rouge" in fifth week at Orpheum also strong.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,500; 85-$1.25)— "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (14th wk). Winding nifty 14-week run plus one day with satisfactory $5,000 after $5,800 last week.

Boston (RKO) (3,000; 40-85)— "Great White Hunter" (Lip) and "Capt. Kidd" (Lip) (reissues). Fair $10,500 in 9 days. Last week, "Hitch-Hiker" (RKO) and "Port Sinister" (RKO), $14,800.

Exeter (Indie) (1,300; 60-80)— "Forbidden Games" (Indie) (6th

(Continued on page 24)

THIS IS THE GREAT ADVENTURE!

...from the Flaming History of the Famed French Foreign Legion...and the bullet scarred legends that have inspired so many fabulous box-office successes!

UNIVERSAL-INTERNATIONAL presents

ALAN LADD IN DESERT LEGION

COLOR BY Technicolor

CO-STARRING RICHARD CONTE
ARLENE DAHL
AND AKIM TAMIROFF

BIG PICTURE
BIG CAMPAIGN
with Full Color National Ads in the Nation's Leading Magazines

U-I MAKES THE MONEY-MAKERS!

'Bwana' Giant $21,000, K.C.; 'Kettles' Sturdy 16G, 'Sombrero' Light 7½G

Kansas City, March 31.

Trade is spotty this week, being terrific at Paramount with "Bwana Devil" good at the Fox Midwest first-runs with "Kettles on Vacation" but slow at most other spots. With admission boosted to $1.25, "Bwana" is giving the Par one of its biggest sessions. "Kettles" is unusually nice for Holy Week. "Breaking Sound Barrier" continues strong at the little Vogue. "Sombrero" is a major disappointment at the Midland. "Tonight We Sing" is very sluggish at Orpheum. Weather is springlike.

Estimates for This Week

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; 65-85) — "Under Red Sea" (RKO) (2d wk). Pleasant $1,600. Last week, $1,700.

Midland (Loew's) (2,500; 50-75)—"Sombrero" (M-G) and "Confidentially Connie" (M-G). Light $7,500. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G) and "Rogue's March" (M-G), $8,500.

Missouri (RKO) (2,650; 50-75) — "Invasion U. S. A." (Col) and "Last Train Bombay" (Col). Dull $4,500. Last week, "I Confess" (WB) and "Savage Mutiny" (Col), $5,000.

Orpheum (Fox Midwest) (1,913; 65-85) — "Tonight We Sing" (20th). Closed out week Thursday (26) with sluggish $5,000. House currently dark.

Paramount (Tri-States) (1,900; 50-90-$1.25 — "Bwana Devil" (UA). With upped scale heading for one of house's biggest takes, terrif $21,000. Holds. "Little Sheba" (Par) (2d wk), $8,000.

Tower, Uptown, Fairway, Granada (Fox Midwest) (2,100; 2,043; 700; 1,217; 50-75)—"Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U). Stout $16,000. Last week, "Gunsmoke" (U) with "Tinger Incident" (AA) at Tower and Granada, $12,000.

Vogue (Golden) (550; 65-85) — "Breaking Sound Barrier" (UA) (3d wk). Sturdy $2,000. Holds. Last week, same.

'Stooge' New Record At $24,000, Toronto; 'Sheba' Wow 23G, 'Seminole' 9G

Toronto, March 31.

"The Stooge" is landing top this week with a new record at the Imperial, largest cinema in Canada. Neck and neck on gross is "Come Back Little Sheba" at two houses for runaway trade second frame. Newcomers are "Hitch-Hiker" and "Seminole" for nice if not smash.

Estimates for This Week

Eglinton, University (FP) (1,080; 1,556; 40-75 — "Little Sheba" (Par) (2d wk). Capacity $23,000. Last week, same.

Crest, Downtown, Glendale, State (Taylor) (863; 1,059; 955; 638; 35-60) — "Prince of Pirates" (Col) and "Kansas Pacific" (AA). Good $11,000. Last week, "The Savage" (Par) and "Fangs of Arctic" (AA), $10,500.

Imperial (FP) (3,373; 40-75—"The Stooge" (Par). Smash $24,000. Last week, "Iron Mistress" (WB) (2d wk), $8,000.

Loew's Loew's (2,096; 40-75 — "Jeopardy" (M-G) (2d wk). Neat $9,500. Last week, $11,500.

Odeon Park (2,390; 50-90 — "Desert Rats" (20th) (2d wk). Satisfactory $8,000. Last week, $12,000.

Shea's FP (2,386; 40-75 — "Hitch-Hiker" (RKO). Okay $9,500. Last week, "The Star" (20th), $9,000.

Uptown Loew's (2,743; 40-75 — "Seminole" (U). Nice $9,000. Last week, "The Clown" (M-G) (2d wk), $8,000.

'CONNIE' OKE $13,000, ST. LOO; 'SHEBA' 12G, 2D

St. Louis, March 31.

Holy Week is exacting a heavy toll at first-runs here this session, and with a heavy rain Monday (30) washing out biz, outlook for a second week are very dim. "Confidentially Connie" looms as best of new pix but it's just okay at Loew's. "Come Back, Little Sheba" is sturdy in second frame at the Ambassador. "Destination Gobi" shapes sluggish at the Missouri.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (F&M) (3,500; 60-75 — "Little Sheba" (Par) and "Face to Face" (RKO) (2d wk). $12,000 after $18,000 open-Fox (F&M) (5,000; 60-75 — "Man Behind Gun" (WB) and "The Sys- [illegible] (WB). Opened today (Tues.). [illegible] "Stars Singing" (Par) [illegible]

(Continued on page 24)

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $2,212,400
(Based on 24 cities, 205 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)
Total Gross Same Week
Last Year $2,138,300
(Based on 24 cities, and 218 theatres.)

'Clown' Crisp 12G In Drab Balto

Baltimore, March 31.

Biz is mainly dull this session, with big new entries set to come in over the weekend. "The Clown" at Century looms nice, however. "Come Back, Little Sheba" at Playhouse is cashing in on Academy Award publicity, still big in second week. "Down Among Sheltering Palms" looks mild at the New and "Blue Gardenia" is drab at Stanley.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Loew's-UA) (3,000; 20-70 — "Clown" (M-G). Nice $12,000 or near. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G), $13,000.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,100; 50-$1.25)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (6th wk). Nice $14,400 after $17,000 for fifth frame.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,400; 25-90 — "Tropic Zone" (Par). Slow $6,800. Last week, "Stars Are Singing" (Par) (2d wk), $6,000.

Little (Rappaport) (310; 25-90 — "Song to Remember" (Col reissue). Fair $3,700. Last week, "Forza Del Destino" (Indie), $3,500.

Mayfair (Hicks) (930; 20-70 — "Ride Man Down" (Rep). Moderate $4,600. Last week, "Silver Whip" (20th), $4,200.

New (Mechanic) (1,500; 20-70 — "Down Among Sheltering Palms" (20th). Mild $7,200. Last week, "President's Lady" (20th) (2d wk), $7,000.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (420; 50-90 — "Little Sheba" (Par) (3d wk). Hot $7,000, same as second week.

Stanley (WB) (3,280; 50-90 — "Blue Gardenia" (WB). Dim $7,300. Last week, "Back on Broadway" (WB), $7,000.

Town (Rappaport) (1,500; 35-70 — "Invasion U. S. A." (Col). Okay $10,000. Last week, "Last Comanches" (Col), $9,700.

'Beneath Sea' Stout 9G, Port.; 'Sheba' Big 8G, 2d

Portland, Ore., March 31.

City is loaded with holdovers and extended-run pictures, making the overall total offish from recent stanzas. Top newcomer is "City Beneath Sea" which is rated good at Broadway. Return date of "High Noon" paired with "Song in Heart" to cash in on Oscar awards is rated tall at Oriental. "Come Back, Little Sheba" still is big in second week at Paramount while "Peter Pan" continues sock in third Orpheum session.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,890; 65-90 — "City Beneath Sea" (U) and "Toughest Man in Arizona" (Rep). Good $9,000 or near. Last week, "Back on Broadway" (WB) and "San Antone" (Rep), $8,000.

Guild (Parker) (490; 90-$1.25 — "Four Poster" (Col) (2d wk). Fancy $4,500 to top first week's $4,200.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,875; 65-90 — "Naked Spur" (M-G) (3d wk). Fine $5,000 in four days. Last week, $8,500.

Oriental (Evergreen) (2,000; 65-90 — "High Noon" (UA) and "With Song in Heart" (20th) (m.o.). Tall $3,000 for return dates for both pix. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "Never Take No for Answer" (Indie), $6,000.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,750; 90-$1.25 — "Peter Pan" (RKO) (3d wk). Sock $9,000. Last week, $14,000.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,400; 65-90 — "Little Sheba" (Par) and "No for An Answer" (Indie) (2d wk). Big $8,000. Last week, $12,000.

United Artists (Parker) (890; 65-90 — "Tall Texan" (AA) and "I'll Get You" (Indie). So-so $5,500. Last week, "Ivanhoe" (M-G) (2d wk), $4,500.

'Peter Pan' Huge $18,000, Seattle; 'A&C Mars' 7G

Seattle, March 31.

"Peter Pan" is standout here this session with a smash week at Paramount. "Abbott-Costello Go to Mars" looms nice at Liberty while "Kansas Pacific" and "Torpedo Alley" look good at Coliseum. "Seminole" is only so-so at Orpheum.

Estimates for This Week

Coliseum (Evergreen) (1,829; 65-90—"Kansas Pacific" (AA) and "Torpedo Alley" (AA). Good $8,000. Last week, "Sheltering Palms" (20th) and "Homesteaders" (AA), $7,600.

Fifth Avenue (Evergreen) (2,366; 65-90)—"Little Sheba" (Par) and "White Lightning" (AA) (2d wk). Swell $9,500. Last week, $13,800.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,650; 65-90) —"Abbott & Costello To Mars" (U) and "Gunsmoke" (U). Nice $7,000. Last week, "Naked Spur" (M-G) and "Desperate Search" (M-G) (3d wk-5 days), $4,300.

Music Box (Hamrick) (850; $1-$1.25)—"Andersen" (RKO) (6th wk). Great $5,500. Last week, $5,500.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,263; 65-90)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G) (2d wk). Mild $4,500 in 6 days. Last week, $7,200.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,600; 65-90)—"Seminole" (U). So-so $7,000. Last week, "Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip), $6,800.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,039; 90-$1.25—"Peter Pan" (RKO) and Bear Country" RKO. Huge $18,000. Last week, "Bwana Devil" (UA) (3d wk), $5,200 at $1.25 top.

'Pan' Great 35G Tops Dull Frisco

San Francisco, March 31.

The auto show plus summer weather is sloughing first-run biz here this stanza. However, it does not appear to be hurting "Peter Pan," which is way out ahead of others with a wow session at the Golden Gate. Upped scale of 60c-$1.20 is helping. "Sombrero" looms okay at Warfield while "Blue Gardenia" is in like groove at Paramount. "Moulin Rouge" still is big in sixth round at United Artists.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,850; 65-95—"Peter Pan" (RKO). Terrific $35,000 or over. Last week, "Iron Crown" (Indie) and "Port Sinister" (RKO), $9,000.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; 65-95—"Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip). Dull $11,000. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Taxi" (20th) (2d wk), $9,500.

Warfield (Loew's) (2,656; 65-95—"Sombrero" (M-G). Okay $14,500. Last week, "Naked Spur" (M-G) (2d wk), $10,000.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; 65-95 — "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "San Antonia" (AA). Oke $12,000. Last week, "I Confess" (WB) and "Golden Madonna" (Indie), $8,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; 65-95)—"The Star" (20th) (2d wk). Down to $7,500. Last week, big $13,000.

Orpheum (No. Coast) (2,448; 65-95—"Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U) and "Romance and Rhythm" (Rep). Modest $9,000. Last week, "Glass Wall" (Col) and "Jack McCall" (Col), $9,500.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,207; 80-$1.50—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (6th wk). Still big at $10,000. Last week, $12,000.

Stagedoor (A-R) (370; $1.20-$1.80)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (6th wk). Great $14,000. Last week, capacity $16,000.

Vogue S. F. Theatres (377; 85-$1—"Casque d'Or" (Indie). Oke $1,900. Last week, "Brandy for Parson" (Indie) (2d wk), $1,900.

L.A. Spotty; 'Gardenia' Limp $14,000, 'Hitch-Hiker' Fast $23,000, 'Palms' Pale 17G, 'Sheba' Strong 14½G, 2d

Los Angeles, March 31.

While most first-runs are benefitting by Easter Week school holiday here, there are only three new bills in current week and only one is doing biz. "Hitch-Hiker," in two theatres, shapes nifty $23,000 or better. "Blue Gardenia" looks only slow $14,000 in two locations while "Down Among Sheltering Palms" is scant $17,000 in four houses.

"Peter Pan," in third week, two spots, looks solid $32,000. "Little Sheba" shapes nice $14,500 for second session, two sites while "Lili" is pleasing $7,500 on second frame at Vogue.

"Moulin Rouge" is holding at sturdy $9,000 or close in 14th week, two situations. School holiday with TV and newspaper ads are helping "Andersen" to oke $6,000 in 14th week at Beverly Hills.

Estimates for This Week

Downtown, Wiltern (WB) (1,757; 2,344; 70-$1.10)—"Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Thundering Trails" (Indie). Slow $14,000. Last week, "Back on Broadway" (WB) (2d wk), $6,500.

Los Angeles Paramount, El Rey (ABC-PT-FWC) (3,200; 861; 70-$1.10)—"Hitch-Hiker" (RKO) and "Woman They Almost Lynched" (Rep). Stout $23,000. Last week, L. A. Par. only, "Battle Circus" (M-G) and "White Lightning" (AA) (2d wk), $5,200. El Rey, second-run.

Los Angeles, Chinese, Uptown, Loyola (FWC) (2,097; 2,048; 1,715; 1,248; 70-$1.10)—"Down Among Sheltering Palms" (20th) and "Face To Face" (RKO). Scant $17,000. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Secret Sharer" (RKO), $26,200.

United Artists, Hollywood Paramount (UATC-F&M) (2,100; 1,430; 70-$1.10)—"Little Sheba" (Par) (2d wk). Nice $14,500. Last week, $21,000.

Orpheum, Egyptian (Metropolitan-UATC) (2,213; 1,533; 60-$1.10) —"I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Jalopy" (AA) (2d wk). Light $12,000. Last week, $18,000.

Loew's State, Four Star, Hawaii (UATC-G&S) (2,404; 900; 1,106; 60-$1.10—"Seminole" (U and "Kansas Pacific" (AA) (2d wk). Fairish $12,000. Last week, $20,000.

Vogue (FWC) (885; 80-$1.20) — "Lili" (M-G) (2d wk). Fancy $7,500. Last week, $8,300.

Hillstreet, Pantages (RKO) (2,752; 2,812; 74-$1.50)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (3d wk). Solid $32,000. Last week, $25,800.

Ritz (FWC) (1,370; 80-$1.50 — "Call Me Madam" (20th) (4th wk). Smart $11,000. Last week, $11,200.

Fine Arts (FWC) (679; 80-$1.50) —"Four Poster" (Col) (3d wk). Thin $3,000. Last week, $3,700.

Wilshire, Globe (FWC) (2,296; 782; 80-$1.50) — "Moulin Rouge" (UA) (14th wk-Wilshire, 5th wk-Globe). Sturdy $8,000 or near. Last week, $10,400.

Beverly Hills (WT) (1,612; $1.50-$1.80)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (14th wk). Okay $6,000. Last week, $5,900.

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $625,500
(Based on 20 theatres)
Last Year $461,400
(Based on 21 theatres)

'Circus' NSG 11G In Sluggish Pitt.

Pittsburgh, March 31.

It is the usual Holy Week story here although Lent has not hurt as much as usual here. "Battle Circus" at Penn looks like best bet, but it is sluggish. "Limelight," which finally got a downtown showing after Loew's passed it up, is dying at the Warner. "Blue Gardenia" at Stanley shapes drab while "Redhead From Wyoming" and "Girls in Night" at Fulton is moderate.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea) (1,700; 50-85 — "Redhead Wyoming" (U) and "Girls in Night" (U). Modest $4,000. Last week, "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (5th wk), $6,000 in 8 days.

Harris (Harris) (2,200; 50-85 — "Gunfighter" (20th) and "Yellow Sky" (20th) (reissues). Oke $5,500. Last week, "City Beneath Sea" (U), fine $9,000 in 9 days.

Penn (Loew's) (3,300; 50-85 — "Battle Circus" (M-G). Sluggish $11,000. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par), slipped down in stretch after Oscar for Shirley Booth had sent picture off to flying start. Big $16,000 but not figured strong enough to hold. "Sheba" moved to Ritz.

Squirrel Hill (WB) (900; 50-85 — "Face to Face" (RKO). Excellent notices enabling duo drama to get at least $2,500, fine. May hold. Last week, "Importance of Being Earnest" (U) (3d wk), $1,500.

Stanley (WB) (3,800; 50-85) — "Blue Gardenia" (WB). So-so $8,500, if that. Last week, "Angel Face" (RKO), about same.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 50-85 — "Limelight" (UA). Only slight interest in Chaplin pic here apparently. No trouble here, but no business either. Dismal $4,000. Last week, "Peter Pan" (RKO) (6th wk), $6,000.

Mpls. Uneven But 'Pan' Smash $22,000; 'Kettles' Fat 9G, 'Jeopardy' 6G

Minneapolis, March 31.

Sudden wealth of competing attractions is making rough going for films but "Peter Pan" is coming through in major style with smash session at RKO-Orpheum. Stiff outside opposition includes the Shipstad-Johnson "Ice Follies," the annual Sportsmen's Show, "Top Banana" legiter and the Minneapolis Lakers' basketball championship playoff games. Other newcomers doing well are "Ma and Pa Kettle On Vacation" at Radio City, "Love Melvin" at Century and "Jeopardy" at the Gopher.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Par) (1,600; 50-76 — "I Love Melvin" (M-G). Stout $6,500.

Continued on page 24

Holy Week Bops Cincy But 'Gardenia' Oke 8G; 'Stereo' 9G, 'Star' Dim 9½G

Cincinnati, March 31.

Effect of Holy Week is evident at all first-runs this stanza. Slump started in latter part of last week. "The Star" is slow at the big Albee. "Stereo Techniques," playing upped scale at the Grand, looms nice. "Flat Top" at the Palace is modest. "Blue Gardenia" in the Capitol shapes okay.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; 55-85)— "The Star" (20th). Slow $9,500 or near. Last week, "Battle Circus" (M-G), $10,000.

Capitol (RKO) (2,000; 55-85 — "Blue Gardenia" (WB). Oke $8,000. Last week, "Ivanhoe" (M-G), $8,500.

Grand (RKO) (1,400; 75-$1— "Stereo Techniques" (Indie) and "San Antone" (AA). Upped scale for 3D boosting to nice $9,000. Last week, "One Girl's Confession" (Col) and "Problem Girls" (Col), $7,000 at regular scale.

Keith's (Sbor) (1,500; 55-85— "Taxi" (20th). Fair $5,500. Last week, "City Beneath Sea" (U), $6,500.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; 55-85— "Flat Top" (AA). Moderate $8,500. Last week, "Back on Broadway" (WB), $8,000.

'Circus' Sock $18,000, Buff.; 'Sheba' Fine 12G, 2d

Buffalo, March 31.

Trade is spotty this week, with "Circus" at Buffalo and "Sheba" at Century standouts. "Blue Gardenia" at Hipp is fair. "Peter Pan" is still big in second week at Great Lakes. "Sombrero" is mild at Lafayette.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Shea) (3,508; 50-85) — "Circus" (RKO) and "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U). Sock $18,000. Last week, "Bwana Devil" (UA) (2d wk), $8,000.

Century (Basil) (1,752; 50-85) — "Little Sheba" (Par) (2d wk). Fine $12,000. Last week, $15,000.

Great Lakes (Basil) (1,200; 50-85) — "Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Big $9,000. Last week, $12,000.

Hipp (Basil) (3,400; 50-85) — "Blue Gardenia" (WB). Fair $11,000. Last week, "Ivanhoe" (M-G), $9,000.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 50-85) — "Sombrero" (M-G). Mild $7,000. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G), $8,000.

'Cinerama' Huge $29,000, Det.; 'Angel' Fair 14G, 'Sheba' OK $17,000, 2d

Detroit, March 31.

Biz looms slow this week. Combination of "High Noon" and "African Queen" shapes just average at the Fox. "Angel Face" is fair at the Palms. Big exception to offish tone is "Cinerama" which was virtually capacity opening week at Music Hall. 1,145-seat house. Others are holdovers with "Peter Pan" strongest in sixth week at the Madison with sturdy session. "Come Back Little Sheba" looks okay in second week at the Michigan. "Andersen" still is fast in second round at the Adams.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox-Detroit) (5,000; 70-95) —"High Noon" (UA) and "African Queen" (UA). Barely average $29,000. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "No Time for Flowers" (RKO), $17,000.

Music Hall (Cinerama Prods, Inc.) (1,145; $1.50-$1.80)—"This Is Cinerama" (Indie) (2d wk). First week ended Monday night (30) was virtually capacity with $29,000. Faster pace being set starting Monday, with fine press and big word-of-mouth even selling out all

(Continued on page 24)

U-I makes the Money Makers!

IT'S PLANETARY PANDEMONIUM!! WHEN BUD AND LOU GO ON A SPACESHIP SPREE!

They get manhandled by the sexiest sirens in outer space..the manless vixens of Venus!

SO NEW! SO HILARIOUS! They'll rock you right out of this world with laughter!

UNIVERSAL-INTERNATIONAL presents

BUD ABBOTT and LOU COSTELLO GO TO MARS

WITH

MARI BLANCHARD

ROBERT PAIGE HORACE McMAHON and the MISS UNIVERSE CONTEST BEAUTIES

Directed by CHARLES LAMONT • Screenplay by D. D. BEAUCHAMP and JOHN GRANT • Produced by HOWARD CHRISTIE

A CHARLES J. FELDMAN 25th Silver Anniversary Picture

Paris Legit Deluge Continues With U.S. Adaptations Leading Parade

Paris, March 24.

Legit deluge continues here, in the last part of the season. Biggest openings this week are Roland Petit's Ballets de Paris and Tennessee Williams' "La Rose Tatouee" ("Rose Tattoo"). A revue and a few more legits of doubtful staying power make up the week's openings.

"Rose Tattoo" is generally considered one of the more interesting openings of the season, and a fine evening of theatre. Most crix pegged this over "A Streetcar Named Desire." It was called a fine piece of sound direction and thesping, with kudos to Lila Kedrova for her enactment of Serafina.

Also opened this week is an English-speaking version of Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," by an American acting group headed by Arthur Klein. Gallic crix found the juxtaposition of the two plays an interesting coincidence, and both worth a visit to get the savor of Williams in two lingos. "Menagerie" was well mounted and acted. Play will have a short run before touring.

"Triple Galop," an intime revue at the Bruyere, received nice notices from the crix. Most found it agreeable and lightweight, with some fresh talent.

"La Piege A L'Innocent" ("Trap For The Innocent"), at the Theatre A L'Oeuvre, is a rather confused piece about the Calvary of a young poet. Except for some of the thesping, this was found wanting and looks like a short-lived venture.

'Dizl,' 'Madam' Due

"Dial M For Murder," here known as "Crime Parfait," bows at the Ambassadeurs today (24). Adapted by Roger Feral, this sports a high-pressure name cast in Bernard Blier, Jacqueline Porel and Jean Martinelli. Also on the agenda here is "Call Me Madam," for the "Chatelet."

Of legiters here adapted from stateside plays, most successful is "L'Heritiere" ("The Heiress"), now in its second year. Next is the Grenier-Hussenot production of the Irwin Shaw play, "The Gentle People," called "Philippe Et Jonas" here. This fable on good and evil is in its fourth month and looks like a hit. "Dorothee," the S. N. Behrman adaption of the Somerset Maugham story, "Jane," got mixed reviews, but all were in accord on hep thesping of Denise Grey. This will probably not reach the hit category. A revival of "The Bat" at the Grand-Guignol fits in with the atmosphere of this house, known for its gore and gristle, and will probably have a long run.

Most American adaptions in the last few years have not done too well here b.o.-wise. "Harvey," adapted smartly by Marcel Achard, languished at the Theatre Antoine, with the practical French not won over by the whimsy of the invisible pooka. "Mr. Roberts" had a very short career, in spite of the presence of Claude Dauphin in the cast. "A Streetcar Named Desire," with a careful, erotic adaption by Jean Cocteau, baffled French crix and did not make the grade, in spite of the topnotch performing and pull by Arletty. "Annie Get Your Gun" played at the big spec house, the Chatelet, for a season, but was not of the top success category of this house, which usually carries a hit for years.

Austria Censors Pix To Suit Juve Tastes

Washington, March 31.

Austria is sharply censoring films according to the yardstick of suitability for children, reports the U. S. Department of Commerce. Of the 104 features released in that country during the third quarter of 1952, only 17 were classified as suitable for children under 14 years old and another 29 were okayed for those between 14 and 16 years.

Of the total number of pix, 38 came from Hollywood, 28 were German, 14 British, 4 Austrian, and the remainder were divided among French, Italian, Russian, Swedish, Swiss and Spanish. The past year saw a decline in the number of U. S. pix released in Austria, largely because the Motion Picture Export Assn. released fewer films, and withdrew from that field, throwing it open to the individual U. S. distributors.

Gonzales Expands His So. American Pix Setup

Madrid, March 24.

Cesareo Gonzales has expanded his film interests in Latin-America. On his recent trip, he founded Suevia Film do Brazil, a production-distribution company in Brazil.

Plans for future pix include the filming in Mexico of "The Lottery and Love," starring Lola Flores and bullfighter Carlos Arruza. Another bullfighter Luis Miguel Dominguin has been put under contract by Gonzales, who wants to get Rita Hayworth to co-star with him.

Gonzales has the Spanish rights to "Decameron Nights" but censorship difficulties until now have delayed its showing in Spain.

Coral Dickering For British Tie

London, March 31.

Coral Records, a subsidiary of U. S. Decca, has sent a representative, Hubert Stone, to London to negotiate a British tie-up for the label. At the moment, Coral is unrepresented here, with no release of its disks with such artists as Karen Chandler, Les Brown's band, Teresa Brewer, Pearl Bailey, etc.

It's understood that the EMI group is strongly in the running for clinching the deal. EMI control the H.M.V. Parlophone and Columbia labels here. Question aroused by these negotiations is how they may affect the distribution of the Brunswick label here. Coral controls Brunswick in the U. S. If Coral goes to EMI, question is what will happen to Brunswick, at present handled by EMI's biggest competitors, British Decca.

Stone is Coral's export manager in N. Y.

Pix Prods. Up in Arms Over Latest Censorship In India; Too Costly

Washington, March 31.

Film producers in India are up in arms over the new government censorship regulations there, reports Nathan D. Golden, director of the Commerce Department motion picture branch. Regulations states that any censorship certificate issued by the Central Board of Film Censors will be good only for five years and that a print of the pic must be deposited with the board before certification.

Film Federation of India, an organization of producers and exhibitors, points out that at least 1,000 old pictures will have to be resubmitted for censorship since their previous certicates will be invalidated under the new rule. It was estimated that the charges for submitting these oldies to censorship will come to at least 1,500,000 rupees ($315,000).

The government of India counters with the argument that many pix, once suitable, may not be okay under present economic and political conditions; hence, the censors should get another look at them.

President of the Indian Motion Picture Producers Assn. said in Bombay that the amended rules would impose great penalties on the industry and necessitate large expenditures. He hinted at possible court action.

In Pakistan, said Golden, the government plans to provide financial aid to the Punjab film industry by granting loans through cooperative banks. Shahnoon Studios is expected to start four films immediately with the help of these loans.

Newcastle Okays Sun. Cinemas

Newcastle, Eng., March 31.

Battle for Sunday opening of cinemas ended in victory here. April 19 will be opening date of Sunday pix.

Agreement on conditions has been reached between the Watch Committee and the Sunday Cinemas Assn.

Richard Todd, Star Of 'Roy,' Hurt on Location

Aberfoyle, Scot., March 24.

Playing the title role in Walt Disney's "Rob Roy" on location here, Richard Todd, British actor, put himself out of action early when he pulled a leg muscle as he led his Highlanders in a charge over the moors. Objective was a lath-and-plaster fort built on a hilltop.

"Rob Roy" is from a story by American Larry Watkyn. It concerns the outlaw's exploits as a younger man. Shooting in the Highlands may last eight weeks.

Tinters Forging Ahead in France Despite Delays

Paris, March 24.

With the Film Aid Law now awaiting ratification before the Assembly here and with Gallic pic finances now having a chance for stabilization, attention of producers is turning towards color. Centre National Du Cinema has revealed that color films distributed in France automatically mean an upped gross of 30,000,000 francs ($90,000) over the black-and-white pix. From 1945 to 1952 France made only seven tinters, and 17 are already announced for the 1953 season.

An important unreleased tinter here is "La Dame Aux Camelias," another remake of the Alexandre Dumas play, starring Micheline Presle. This was made in Gevacolor. Another Gevacolor tinter is "Agonie Des Aigles," a costumer on the Napoleonic wars, and "Bluebeard." Also utilizing this process is Jacqueline Audry for her sex drama among cowboys on the French plains, "The Blonde Gypsy." Although a Technicolor print here now is reputed to cost 25% more than a black-and-white already slated for this process despite the long wait necessary at English labs are the costumer remake of "The Three Musketeers," by Andre Hunebelle, Jean Renoir's "The Poachers," with Jose Ferrer and Christian-Jaque's "Till Eulenspiegel" starring Gerard Philipe.

Now being finished in Technicolor is the giant spec costumer, "Lucrecia Borgia," starring Martine Carol and Pedro Armendariz. Also in the offing for color is the Franco-Spanish, "Nuits Andalouses," and another Dumas epic, "The Iron Mask," and "Le Dernier Judgement" by Henri Decoin, "Mamzelle Nitouche" with Fernandel, and the three costumers, "Don Quixote," "La Reine Margot" and "La Dame De Montsoreau."

'Show,' 'Fatima,' 'Snows' Open in Rome Easter

Rome, March 24.

Most local distributors, with an eye to the Easter holiday trade, are holding their top product for release during that period. In addition to the many revivals of religioso pix during Holy Week, Warner's is prepping a blanket release for its "Miracle of Fatima." Lux Films will preem its Jennifer Jones-Montgomery Clift starrer, "Termini Station," directed by Vittorio DeSica April 4th in all key cities.

Among other big guns pending release are Paramount's "Greatest Show On Earth" hypoed by its Oscar win, and "Snows of Kilimanjaro" (20th), Metro's entries for the Easter parade include "Quo Vadis," "Scaramouche" and "Ivanhoe."

1st Colombia Feature Pic

Bogota, March 24.

Camilo Correa is directing "Cristales" ("Crystals") from his own yarn, this being Colombia's first feature-length pic. Film is being shot at Medellin on a four-week schedule, for Procinal, Colombian production company. Many of the actors and extras being used are Procinal stockholders.

Cast and technicians are all Colombians.

Other Foreign News on Page 18

Brit. Film Biz Huddles With BBC-TV Over Fate of Current Release Show

London, March 31.

An all-industry meeting will be held here tomorrow (Wed.) with representatives of British Broadcasting Corp.-TV to discuss a future series of the Current Release program. This was withdrawn from video last week after an uninterrupted run of 14 months. The program, which has been aired fortnightly since its inception in January, 1952, comprises excerpts from films on release in London and the provinces, together with studio interviews of screen and trade personalities.

Although there was considerable press criticism that BBC-TV was giving the industry an invaluable boost gratis while getting nothing in return, the program retained its position as a top rating show. It was kept on without being rested after the usual period of six months. There are no available figures to indicate the extent to which this program hypoed receipts. But the general industry feeling is that it has been a b.o. aid.

A suggestion that TV should launch a film scrapbook feature while Current Release is off the air has been nixed for the time being by the trade. Apart from the fact that it is felt such a program might keep people away from film theatres, there is the possibility that the clips required would involve entanglement with copyright restrictions.

'Limelight' Tops Tokyo B.O.; 'Zero' Sock 50G

Tokyo, March 24.

"Limelight" led the boxoffice sweepstakes here in the last two weeks of February, earning $31,600 for that period at one house. Other films roadshown at one spot for seven days during the fortnight were "Paradine Case" (WB), $9,700; "Le Plaisir," $7,600; "Detective Story" (Par), $6,200, and "Fanfan La Tulipe," $3,300.

Biggest grosser for a single week among the day-daters was "One Minute to Zero" (RKO) with $50,000 in nine theatres. "Snows of Kilimanjaro" (20th) at nine houses, did $36,000; "Mutiny on Bounty" (M-G) was a good $24,100 at nine theatres, and "Operation Secret" (WB) did $23,000 at seven sites.

Nip TV Network Expanding Setup

Tokyo, March 24.

The Broadcasting Corp. of Japan (NHK), now in its second month of television operating, is expanding both its radio and its TV facilities in Tokyo and Osaka. Expansion begins in Tokyo this month with construction of new four-story Radio Hall. Building will be completed in September at a cost of $2,250,000.

Patterned after the broadcasting station in Copenhagen, Denmark, the new building will incorporate the latest in design. Total floor space will equal 261 acres. Three radio and TV studios will be housed in the hall.

In Osaka, the network will refurnish one of its radio studios for the start of its local telecasts in October. In Nagoya, a TV studio will be added to the newly-constructed radio building. The network now owns six TV cameras, but will double this total soon.

Total Mex Film Prod. Off to 99 in '52 But Quality Pix Pay Off

Mexico City, March 24.

Film production started a downward trend last year with a total of 99 pix, official figures reveal. This compares with 102 pix in 1951 and 125 in 1950. The 1950 total was a record high, but a hard lesson for the trade because so many proved very poor boxoffice. Releases for the 1952 crop were very high, 96 getting playdates.

Production costs last year went to a new high of $6,820,000, an average of $69,300 per film. Trade complains that pay of top stars has become a costly item. For instance, Maria Felix, one of the best boxoffice actresses, not only asks but gets $52,000 per film. Arturo de Cordoba rates $28,900 per pic. Ordinary stars have no trouble getting $1,150 a production.

With the strengthening of the swing to quality, producers are not afraid to pay out important coin to players who can draw patrons to the boxoffice.

Brit. Queen to Attend New Coronation Opera

London, March 24.

The Queen is to attend the gala preem of Benjamin Britten's Coronation opera within a week of being crowned. The new opus, "Gloriana," will make its world bow at Covent Garden Opera House June 8.

The Queen authorized Britten a year ago to write the Coronation opera. The libretto is by William Plomer. Scenery and costumes have been designed by John Piper and choreography is by John Cranko. The cast will include Joan Cross, Peter Pears, Adele Leigh, Monica Sinclair, Jennifer Vyvyan, Frederick Dalberg, Geraint Evans and Arnold Matters.

Prices are being upped, with orchestra stalls, normally around $2.50, at $18, scaling down to $1.50 for the gallery.

Honolulu Video Hassle Has Stations in Middle; Mixup Over Ownership

Honolulu, March 24.

Honolulu's confused TV situation finds control of KONA sold to a new local syndicate, and temporarily shut down. Station's short-lived operation leaves KGMB-TV as the only TV outlet in the territory of Hawaii.

KONA's premature off-again, on-again transmissions hurt the station.

Latest development is that the Advertiser Publishing Co., which runs KGU, and Island Broadcasting Co., operators of KPOA, have jointly bought controlling stock of KONA.

Herbert M. Richards, Honolulu financier and executive veepee of Radio Honolulu, which operated KONA, said he was selling his controlling interest because of ill health. Minority stockholders of Radio Honolulu also will be given the opportunity to sell their holdings on same basis as realized by Richards. KONA meanwhile went off the air for three or four weeks of "technical improvements and reorganization of the company."

Val Parnell to Present Petit Ballet in London

London, March 24.

Contrary to expectations, Sir Laurence Olivier won't present Roland Petit's Ballets de Paris in London, at St. James' Theatre. Val Parnell will present it, at another house.

Troupe, starring Petit and Colette Marchand, opens at the London Hippodrome, replacing Parnell's revue, "Wonderful Time," May 11, and will stay four to six weeks.

This will be followed by a new Parnell-Delfont revue, starring Terry Thomas and Richard Hearne, with several Continental attractions yet to be booked.

Nip Grosses for Yank Distribs Soar in Jan.

Tokyo, March 14.

The 10 U.S. major film companies earned a gross of $1,833,000 from distribution of their product in Japan in January. This was $561,000 ahead of the January total in 1952. Metro led the list with $375,000 but Warner Bros., which was second with $330,000, reported figures for only 24 days. Other grosses were Paramount, $300,000; 20th-Fox, $275,000; Universal, $225,000; RKO, $175,000; Columbia, $132,000; Republic, $32,000; Allied Artists, $26,300; and United Artists, $13,800.

Stout Lineup of Legit Shows Set for Eire Easter Home Festival

Dublin, March 31.

An Tostal, the Ireland at Home Festival, which opens here for three weeks on Easter, is bringing in a full lineup of legit shows. Abbey is reviving Lennox Robinson's "The Whiteheaded Boy" and serving it up with a one-act Gaelic-language opera, "The Man Who Married Balba," authored by Abbey producer Tomas MacAnna.

The Hilton Edwards-Michael MacLiammoir Dublin Gate Productions will stage the first Irish production of Christopher Fry's "A Sleep of Prisoners," and making a double bill of it with W. B. Yeats' "The Countess Cathleen." Stanley Illsley-Leo McCabe combo is reviving the production of Mary Chase's "Harvey" at Olympia Theatre, Illsley again playing Elwood P. Dowd.

The Theatre Royal is producing a spectacle, "Trumpet Call," which involves most of the leading Irish vaudeville artists and detachments of Irish Army and Naval Service. "Everyman," the Salzburg morality play, is slated for the Capitol (seldom used for legit shows) with Dr. Ernst Lothar in from Austria to produce. Christopher Casson plays the lead. The Gaiety will stage a revival of "La Vie Parisienne."

Longhair concert sked is heavy with visits by Jose Iturbi, Campoli (violin), Sir John Barbirolli and Halle orch, Vienna Boys' Choir and special concerts by the Radio Eireann Symphony.

Major Chains Living Up To Brit. Quota in 1st 6 Mos.; First-Runs Lag

London, March 31.

With the first half of the current quota year ending today (Tues.), a roundup indicates that the three major circuits are running ahead of their commitments, while several West End first-run houses are falling short of their legal requirements.

Under the provisions of the Films Act, none of the circuits is allowed either exemption or relief and all have to play the full 30% quotas, which is the equivalent to approximately eight weeks of British screen time in the half year. Associated British has given playing time to British films for 10 weeks in the period and the Gaumont and Odeon groups have nine weeks each.

In the half year, one of the J. Arthur Rank pre-release theatres, the Gaumont, Haymarket, has fallen short on quota with only six weeks of playdates for British product. The same circuit's Leicester Square Theatre is 100% above requirements with 16 weeks, the Odeon, Marble Arch, has played British films for 12 weeks and the Odeon, Leicester Square, for eight. The only other West End theatre which has met its requirements is the Rialto where, under the relief scheme, they are only obliged to give two-and-a-half weeks playing time, and have wound up the half year with four weeks.

Paramount's two first-runs, the Plaza and Carlton, are both short on quota, with six and four weeks respectively. Metro's Empire has played three-and-a-half weeks while their adjacent Ritz has had only one week of British films. Warner's showcase winds up the half year with four weeks of British films screened.

Trace Majesty's Theatre History in BBC Series

London, March 31.

First of a series of four radio programs embracing the history of Her Majesty's Theatre will be aired by the British Broadcasting Corp. tonight (Tues.). Present house was opened in 1897, but the airer will go back 250 years to the time of the opening of the original theatre of that name.

The radio treatment, devised and arranged by Charles Brewer, will be narrated by Martin Lewis and Derek Prentice. Programs will include excerpts from "School for Scandal" and "Pygmalion" with music from "Bitter Sweet," "Faust," "Balalaika" and others.

40-Year-Old Matinee Idol Top Nip Film Wage Earner

Tokyo, March 24.

Japan's perennial matinee idol, 40-year-old Chiezo Kataoka of Daiei Studios, led film stage players in 1952 earnings, according to figures released by the income tax officials here. Kataoka was paid $34,000 for his work before the cameras last year. Actress Michiyo Kogure, presently freelancing from a Schochiku Studio contract, was femme leader with an income of $23,900.

A novelist topped all other persons of artistic professions. Eiji Yoshikawa, author of feudal age novels, earned $42,000.

British Indies Frame Tax Relief

London, March 31.

A newly-formed trade association for independent theatre operators has submitted an alternative tax relief scheme to the Chancellor of the Exchequer to that advocated by the Cinematograph Exhibitors Assn.

The new group, called the Assn. of Independent Cinemas, has suggested to the government that there should be a flat rate concession of $42 per week for every theatre in the country. They claim this would help the small theatre owner and would cost the Treasury only $500,000 less annually than the CEA's revised schedule.

In support of its representations, the AIC points out that more than 40 theatres have gone dark in the last year and at least 200 more are on the market. They claim many British picture theatres have lost about half their former value because they cannot be run profitably.

Rasumny Set for Film Stints in Rome, Madrid

Rome, March 24.

Mikhail Rasumny, in addition to appearing in "The Great Loves of History" for producer Victor Pahlen at Cinecitta, has been set for a picture this summer in Madrid. This is "Flight Into Darkness," by Don Appel, to be produced and directed by Edward Blatt. Rasumny will play a character lead.

Edgar G. Ulmer will direct "Loves" as a filmed TV series in 39 half-hour segments and first three will be combined as a feature for world theatrical release. Hedy Lamarr will star in stanzas depicting romances of historical figures. TV series and the feature will be in English. Shooting starts around June 1.

Rasumny's last Hollywood feature was Paramount's "The Stars Are Singing."

London Legit Bits

London, March 24.

Jack Buchanan is expected to have financial interest in the Terence de Marney play, in which de Marney stars himself. Play is "Dangerous Curves," by Peter Cheney, and will be tried out at Streatham Theatre, April 27, with Hippodrome, Golder's Green, to follow . . . Thelma Ruby has been added to the cast of Stephen Mitchell and Stewart Cruickshank's new revue, "High Spirit," which will have a provincial tryout, opening at Aberdeen March 30, and comes to the Piccadilly Theatre early May.

New legit shows are encountering trouble in getting provincial pre-West End tryouts. Reason given is that big shows now tour the provinces after a long London run, and are given a four-week run instead the former one to two-week run . . . New play by Fred Emney and Jack Melford, "Here Comes the King," with former starred, will be presented by Jack Hylton, with Warren Mitchell likely to be added to the cast. Show is being produced by Richard Bird, and opens at Blackpool Easter week. Will tour the sticks for seven weeks, prior to coming to the West End.

Icelandic Story for Film

Stockholm, March 24.

For the first time a novel by an Icelandic author will be used as the background for a film to be shot in Iceland. Titled "Salka Valka," it was written by Haldor Kilian Laxness, who is here completing the screenplay. The film will be produced by Swedish producer Nordisk Tonefilm, who will send a big unit to Iceland shortly.

Leading role will be played by Maj-Britt Nilsson with Holger Lowenadler, Folke Sundquist and Nils Hallberg in support. Helping with the screenplay is Swedish playwright Rune Lindstrom.

Roller Derby For Condon, Continent

London, March 24.

Latest U. S. novelty over here, the Roller Derby, booked by Fosters' Agency, in association with the William Morris Agency, will be under the aegis of Harringay Arena boss Frank Gentle. This is the first time that any imported novelty has been presented at the Arena by Gentle on his own. Previously ice shows and ice pantomimes were always done by him jointly with Tom Arnold. The Arnold office told VARIETY it was out of the derby setup because it only presents shows imported direct, not through intermediaries.

Although show is booked for 12 weeks with options, Harry Foster, who personally closed the deal, believes it will run through the summer, with bookings already set for France, Spain, Italy and Switzerland to follow. Opens here in May, according to present plans.

Three Names Pitched For Canada Govt. Film Post

Ottawa, March 31.

With Arthur Irwin, Canadian government film commissioner and head of the National Film Board, skedded for foreign diplomatic service, the following are being mentioned as his successor: Dr. A. W. Trueman, president of U. of New Brunswick, now a member of the board; Walter Herbert, secretary of the Canada Foundation, and Dan Wallace, a former NFB secretary, now executive assistant to Paul Martin, Federal Minister of National Health and Welfare.

Irwin is slated to leave shortly for Australia as Canada's High Commissioner there.

'Paradise' Ends Shooting

London, March 31.

Filming of "Paradise," the Alec Guinness, Yvonne De Carlo, Celia Johnson starrer, was completed over the weekend at the Shepperton Studios.

Directed by Anthony Kimmins, "Paradise" will be released in the States in the early fall by Lopert Films.

Legit Shows Abroad

LONDON

(Week ending March 14)

Affairs of State, Cambridge (8-21).
Call Me Madam, Coliseum (3-15).
Dear Charles, New (12-18).
Deep Blue Sea, Duchess (3-6).
Dial M Murder, West (6-19).
Escapade, Strand (1-20).
For Better Worse, Comedy (12-17-52).
Glorious Days, Palace (2-28).
Happy Marriage, Duke York (8-7).
Little Hut, Lyric (8-23-50).
London Laughs, Adelphi (4-12).
Love of Colonels, Wyn (5-23-51).
Love From Judy, Saville (9-25).
Man, St. Martin's.
Meet Callahan, Garrick (3-27).
Mousetrap, Ambas. (11-25).
Murder Mistaken, Vaudeville (10-4).
Paint Wagon, Her Majesty's (2-11).
Paris to Piccadilly, Pr. Wales (4-15).
Quadrille, Phoenix (9-12).
Reluctant Heroes, White (9-12-50).
Ring Out Bells, Vic. Pal. (11-12).
Seagulls Sorrento, Apollo (6-14-50).
Shrike, Princes (2-13-53).
South Pacific, Drury Lane (11-1-51).
Three Cheers, Casino (3-7).
Water of Moon, Haymarket (4-19-51).
Wild Horses, Aldwych (10-6).
Wonderful Time, Hipp. (10-21-52).
Woman Importance, Savoy (2-12-53).
Young Eliz, Criterion (4-2).

CLOSED LAST WEEK
The Man, St. Martin's (1-20).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS
(Figures denote premiere dates)
Murder in Cathedral, Old Vic (31).
Stalag 17, Princes (4).
Redheaded Blonde, Vaudeville (4).
Dr. in Bean Street, Embassy (8).

AUSTRALIA

(Week ending Feb. 28)

White Horse Inn, Empire, Sydney.
Larger Than Life, Tivoli, Sydney.
Seagulls Over Sorrento, Royal Sydney.
South Pacific, Majesty's, Mel.
Cassino, Comedy, Melbourne.
Follies Bergere, Tivoli, Melbourne.
Annie Get Gun, Majesty's, Bris.
LaBoheme, Princes, Mel.
Take It Off, Royal, Bris.

French Films Biggest at Paris B.O.; 'Trinidad' Is Top American Grosser

Paris, March 31.

Gallic films are the biggest grossers here this season, with color and comedy the lures. Topper is the first French Technicolor pic, "Un Caprice De Caroline Cherie," which chronicles the amorous adventures of the Gallic Amber and includes lots of unveiling of the Martine Carol chassis. Playing three big houses, the first week grossed a good $69,000. Comic Fernandel is a bucolic opus, "Le Boulanger De Valorque," about a baker who goes on strike, is pulling in second money in its second week in three big theatres, with $40,500.

Next coin is going to "Affair in Trinidad" (Col), which grossed $43,500, actually second money for a first week. Following is the new Jacques Tati comedy, "Les Vacances De Monsieur Hulot" which, in its second week, drew $30,000. The Sacha Guitry satire on honest men, "La Vie D'Un Honette Homme," was next with $18,500 at two houses.

Next up is the French version of "The Big Carnival" (Par), which already played here in its original version. This took in $18,000. The Jean Renoir Franco-Italo Technicolor film, "Le Carrosse D'Or," next best, took in a mild $15,000 in its second week. Final tally is the U. S. indie sex film, "Mom and Dad," with $12,900.

Provinces were giving top money to "Snows of Kilimanjaro" (20th), "Affair in Trinidad" (Col), "Limelight" (UA), "Scaramouche" (M-G), and the Gallic pix "Plume Au Vent," "Le Boulanger De Valorgue" and "Adorables Creatures."

Gielgud's 'Richard' For Rhodes Cent. Exhibition

London, March 31.

John Gielgud's recent London production of "Richard II" will be featured at the Rhodes Centenary Exhibition in Bulawayo this summer. Gielgud planes to Southern Rhodesia next July with most of the original London cast including Herbert Lomas and Eric Porter. They will open July 20 for a limited run.

A new theatre is being built in Bulawayo for the Centenary, with celebrations opening May 30 with a Scottish vaude fortnight starring Harry Gordon. Other attractions will include the Halle Orchestra, Sadler's Wells Theatre Ballet and Covent Garden Opera Co. Opera company repertory will include Benjamin Britten's coronation opera, "Gloriana."

Nips Launch Own 3-D Pic Systems

Tokyo, March 24.

Hypoed by widespread curiosity here about 3-D films, Toho Studios has begun production of its own three-dimensional films, using a process called Tovision, which is similar to Natural Vision. First attempt is a two-reel romance directed by Takeo Murate and Shigeru Tajiri. Expected completion date is March 31, with release in April. It will be titled, "Jumping Out Sunday." The studio began shooting its second Tovision short this week. This dance revue short is titled, "I Am Marked." Tovision requires polarized glasses. Cameras and projectors currently in use can be easily transferred to Tovision use.

Shochiku Studio's production head, K. Takamura, will visit Europe next month to huddle with the inventor of CinamaScope in Paris with a view to using the system in Japan. He also will study Soviet 3-D methods.

Meanwhile, the Shiga Bros. Laboratory here has developed a system called Panorama Cinevision which requires no glasses and which can utilize existing equipment. Only added device is a convex prism placed before camera lens to reduce visual angle from 150 to 50 degrees. Concave prism will be placed before projector to reverse the angle on a semi-circular screen three times the normal size.

Mitsubishi Electrical Mfg. Co. has received orders from Shochiku for its polaroid-type glasses, Dichromes, for use during the Shochiku-United Artists exhibition of "Bwana Devil." Company is now producing about 40,000 specs per month but expects to increase to two or three million a month when enough equipment is acquired.

London Film Notes

London, March 24.

Bonar Colleano, Simone Silva and Andrew Ray will costar in Tempean Films' "I'm in the News," an original film on newspaper life which goes into production this month . . . Edue Connor, playing feature role in the Jack Hylton-Sam Wanamaker's "The Shrike" at the Princes Theatre, engaged by Alexander Korda as technical music adviser for latest Korda-Graham Greene's picture, "Heart of the Matter." . . . Betty Box's next film for J. Arthur Rank release is titled, "The Hand and the Flower," based on Jerrard Tickell novel of same name. Ralph Thomas will direct, with femme lead taken by French star Odile Versois. Shooting is slated to start in April.

Steedman Metro's Aussie

Sydney, March 31.

Bernie Freeman, Metro's Aussie topper, has appointed Ossie Steedman as general sales manager. He takes over the post held for 28 years by the late Dave Lake.

Steedman joined Metro back in 1930 as a clerk in Perth. In 1945, he was named branch manager covering the Victorian-Tasmanian territory.

See 'Rising Hopes' For British-U.S. Equity Pact On Alien Actor Issue

London, March 31.

There are rising hopes of a settlement between British and American Equity on the alien problem, but any agreement reached during the current negotiations here will need the blessing of the enforcing authorities on both sides of the Atlantic before it can come into effect. In other words, any pact will need endorsement by the U.S. Department of Justice and the British Ministry of Labor before it has any real meaning.

It has been provisionally agreed in London that once all outstanding points have been cleared, the British union, together with Alfred Harding, who is repping U.S. Equity in the negotiations, will go hand in hand to the Ministry of Labor, explain what they propose and seek official blessing. It is assumed that the American union will make a similar approach to the Department of Justice.

After two weeks of heavy confabbing, the two unions have reconciled most of their differences, but some proposals submitted by American Equity have not been acceptable to the British thespers who have come forward with their own counter-proposals. There was a slight hiatus in the negotiations while Harding sought advice from New York on these alternatives.

Despite reports to the contrary, it is understood in London that the provisions of the McCarran Act have not proved a stumbling block to the negotiations and that none of the proposals made by either side conflicts with the principle of that legislation. All decisions so far taken fall within the framework of the Act, as well as complying with the appropriate labor and immigration laws in Britain.

WB, Far Northern Set Film Deal in Aussie

Sydney, March 24.

Reported here that Warners and Far Northern Theatres have finally agreed on product terms following a long holdout. Loop, headed by Charles Munro, operates a chain of theatres in the important Queensland sector extending as far as Cairns. Deal also will cover certain Brisbane nabes in which Munro is interested.

Holdout is understood to have been brought about by the refusal of Munro to pay certain percentage terms for WB fare. New pact will be signatured this week by Munro and Stanley Higginson, WB local managing director.

"Bless your talented heart, ETHEL MERMAN!"

—Louis Sobol, Journal-American

"You're wonderful in the best musical production to reach the screen in many moons!"
—Kate Cameron, Daily News

"You have an air of spreading affection all over your audiences!"
—Alton Cook, World-Telegram and Sun

"You're inimitable and magnificent!"
—Leonard Lyons, Post

"You're terrific! You have the audience with you every moment. Your dynamic personality comes through the screen with the same force that it does on stage!"
—Rose Pelswick, Journal-American

"You're wonderful...in spades! You make 'Call Me Madam' bounce and zing!"
Bosley Crowther, Times

"You're a tempest of musical comedy perfection! A double magnum of dry champagne!"
—Otis L. Guernsey, Jr., Herald Tribune

"You're great! You sing as no one else can!"
—Frank Quinn, Mirror

"You're in high gear, and there's nothing much higher than that!" Archer Winsten, Post

"You're dan-dan-dandy! Sensash!" —Earl Wilson, Post

"You're the gal with 3-dimensional personality!"
—Hy Gardner, Herald Tribune

"You're an even greater personality on the screen than on stage!" Hedda Hopper

"You're undeniably the songstress with the mostes'!"
—Time Magazine

"You spark a musical that has everything!" Coronet Magazine

starring
ETHEL MERMAN
DONALD O'CONNOR
VERA-ELLEN
GEORGE SANDERS
Music & Lyrics by IRVING BERLIN

with Billy De Wolfe
Produced by SOL C. SIEGEL
Directed by WALTER LANG
Screen play by ARTHUR SHEEKMAN
Based on the Musical Comedy "Call Me Madam"
Book by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse

There's No Business Like 20th Century-Fox Business!

Paris '53 Baedeker

Continued from page 2

the Sphinx, which have a well established niche for tourists and French provincials who want a little of the high high life and the usual epidermis exposure. Martini's boites here give fair floorshows with a modicum of top staging but plenty of flesh. Drinks are in average category here. Other boites on this level are salted all over the section and supply their wares and champagne at Les Naturistes, Romance, Caprice Viennoise, Indifferent and Paradise. A niche above those is the Eve and the Nouvelle Eve. Run by Rene Bardy, these display better floorshows and pulchritude. Eve adds a cover (entrance charge) of $1.50 and the Nouvelle Eve has a cover of $3. Tabs can mount here; the Nouvelle Eve also nicks $15 for champagne. It also features attractive taxi dancers for the stags who charge 50c a dance. Shows are slick and of high calibre with costuming and pacing always standout.

Rue Pigalle

Pigalle also is dotted with the offbeat places such as the limp wrist show at Madame Artur's; the masculine dames at Moune; while a kaleidoscopic floor show at Liberty's, which runs for four hours, packs in a lot of topnotch acts plus a hilarious atmosphere. These clubs are all in the $15 champagne category but $5 a head is the average.

The Moulin Rouge is a large, garish, big seating cabaret that features a musichall show and puts a service charge of 75c to get in and a moderate $2 for mixed drinks (scotch or rye; cognac and champagne cost cheaper per drink). Too upholstered and chrome-plated for old time atmosphere, it still has the moniker pull.

Bal Tabarin, famed tourist lure, will reopen in May after a nine-month shuttering for refurbishing and lining up of a new show. It will still give out with its lush, rococo floor show replete with mecanno gimmicks and the usual high powered production numbers. The "Paris By Night," buses will again unload their fare at the Tabarin.

The Lido, the lushery on the Champs-Elysees, which did some of the bus biz during a slow winter, is now girding for its new show in June. Nitery still has the $5 minimum and still gives out with the best cabaret show in town. A combo ice and floorshow, this has pace, costuming and well selected acts to make this a usual must-see for visitors.

The plush Drap d'Or, near the Hotel George V, functions as a topliner house and will probably have Edith Piaf for the carriage and tourist trade in June. It now houses Suzy Solidor and Colette Mars, two of the top sophisto diseuses here. Tab here is padded to the $15 category. Carrere's is the other Champs plushery which gets the after-theatre crowd and usually features dancing and a few selected acts. Le Carroll's is a show biz haunt that gets the younger set and features a name chanter most of the the time.

Other plush danceries which are the places to be seen for the cafe set are Jimmy's and the Elephant Blanc in Montparnasse. Chez Florence in Pigalle; and the Dinarzade, near the Etoile. These are all in the Stork Club-El Morocco category.

More Cabaret-Theatres

New tendency here has been a reversion to old style cabaret-theatre clubs which feature an intime revue for those who really want to see the show and be stimulated as well as titillated. L'Amiral, off the Champs-Elysees, has a hep young troupe sparked by a droll trio, Jean Richard, Roger Pierre and Jean-Marc Thibault, whose flock of sketches are in the high yock level, and draw a big part of the show biz crowd here. Le Night Club, next door, also has a small revue to cut into the swing, and further down, the Villa D'Este has built a show around the sentimento comeback of old cinema time idol, Henri Garat, who sings old Gallic street songs in a raspy voice. Garat gets the pic crowd who are giving him a big sendoff.

Chez Gilles, in the Opera district, has a long show, a la the "chansonniers," with scads of acts, skits and songs. All are top level and this makes for a fine Gallic evening. Chez Agnes Capri has converted to turn-of-the-century cabaret-theatre. Her tiny stage houses a revue, "Injustine," which chronicles the sad destiny of a curvaceous chick whose innocence and virtue are constantly threatened throughout the five tableaux. Worked in are hep song acts and comedy to make this an eye-catcher for the Gallic cabaret crowd.

The western style Crazy Horse Saloon, a block from the George V Hotel, houses on its miniscule stage a takeoff on American gangster pix. Though humor is facile and pacing not always tops, this has its share of trade and plenty of machinegun humor as all the participants finally get taken for a ride.

Le Chat Noir is a new Pigalle boite that was the original chansonnier in 1870 and has been resurrected with a treadmill show of singers, comics and mimes in an old baroque decor.

Left Bank

The Left Bank still has its two big existentialist caves—the Rose Rouge and Le Fontaine Des Quatres Saisons which packs in those wanting a hep show. Both have their small theatre groups in amusing parody numbers surrounded by fine offbeat song and puppet acts that draw a steady clientele. Prices of these are in the $2 category for a mixed drink.

The Club De St. Germain, which was a forerunner of the existentialist caves, has now gone carioca. Though it still has the membership gimmick to allay cabaret taxes one is ushered into a room full of rumba and South American decor rather than the smoky jazz outline of yore. Other niteries are cashing in on a pop appeal of the carioca atmosphere. La Macumba features dancing and the contortive wriggling of Aisita. Also in this category is the Habana Mexico, the Puerta Del Sol, the 6th Avenue, a new plush intimery catering to and angling for the carriage trade, and the Canne Au Sucre (Sugar Cane Club), featuring two refugees from Katharine Dunham, Othella Strozier and Byron Cutler.

Yank Invasion

American clubs are still springing up here, with the Princess Room, in the large Cafe de Paris, run by Muriel Gaines and Roger Callaway catching on with the U. S. Government set and looking like a perm adjunct to this facet of nitery biz here. Dick Edwards, who runs the Ringside here, a reasonable boite with jazz offerings which gets the young Gallic and American set, has branched out and opened a new boite off the Champs-Elysees. Called Sassy's, it features Laura Mitchell and the Billy Moore Trio. Success will be a touch-and-go proposition with the American club ranks still big enough to support those wanting this sort of atmopshere. Spivy's East Side is still a late mecca, and L'Abbaye, the tiny boite run by Gordon Heath and Lee Payant, draws in the faithful who want an earful of folk music. Mars Club is a good relaxing bar for an after-show drink, and the L'Arlequin features the bellowing of Fats Edwards and the jazz of Claude Bolling. Gone from the scene are Jean's Intrigue and Chez Inez which folded this winter.

Filling out the nitery scene are the high price fiddle boites which are in the $18 champagne league, but offer lush surroundings, blinding violins and Russian elegance. These are the traditional Monseigneurs, Ciro's, Scheherazade, Don Juan, Les Grands Seigneurs and Casanova.

There is also the well produced femme impersonation show at Le Carrousel; the many folk song caves around the St. Michel district which, for a dollar tab, give out in atmosphere and medieval folkeries plus a look-see at subterranean museums. Among these are the Caveau Ve La Boule, Caveau Des Oubliettes and the Caveau De La Huchette. In this district are also the belly-wagging Arab joints which feature "le danse du ventre," couscous and shish-ke-bab.

Nitery owners are hoping for the rush which they think will follow in the van of the Coronation when most visitors will take the channel hop. They realize that the tendency, of late among tourists has been to cut Paris stays and move on to other parts of Europe due to the HCL here. The Bureau de Tourism has taken steps to combat this by having hotels list prices and taxes on full bill instead of suddenly adding them. It is still trying to keep a hotel and restaurant prices on a level which will not give stateside tourists that shorn feeling after they dole out the lucre. Syndicat feels that the Paris nitery scene is usually an important part of the tourists horizon here, and hope to try to get his patronage without earning his anger or feeling that he has been taken.

Italo-U.S. Pact

Continued from page 3

ing. Under the deal, each American company must make available two of its pix for possible handling by indie Italo distribs. Latter, in the past, haven't had access to cream Hollywood px and have complained about this situation. If an American distrib can't come to terms on the two pix, it can distribute them through its own facilities.

Up U.S. Biz To $6,000,000

With Italy generally considered a $12,000,000 market, the new pact should bring the American industry about $6,000,000 at the official rate of exchange. This breaks down into $4,800,000 representing 40% of revenue; $1,000,000 on the strength of dubbing permits, and an added 5% of coin accumulated and blocked at the end of the year. It's estimated at about $5,000,000. The 10% "loan" to the Italian industry comes to $1,200,000 and is to be used partly to finance IFE as long as it sticks to plugging pix and not distributing them.

Prior to Johnston's departure for Italy (accompanied by Paramount's George Weltner and MPAA economist Griffith Johnson) officers of the newly-formed Independent Motion Picture Distributors Assn. of America obtained from the MPAA prexy a pledge that he would try to eliminate the use of American coin for IFE distribution from any new agreement.

IMPDA prexy Joseph Burstyn said Monday (30) that his group would accept "in good faith" the Italian government's assurances. But he said his group would keep close watch on developments, and may still go to Washington to seek an end to IFE distribution activities with money still left over from the last agreement.

American distribs also haven't been happy with IFE's switch to distribution. Observers comment, however, that the assurances received by Johnston may not mean much in practical effect, since the line between promoting and distributing can be rather finely drawn. While it's agreed that there is unhappiness in Italy over IFE, it's also realized that, in setting up its own dstribution branches and hiring personnel, the agency may have gone in too deep to permit a sudden turnabout.

IFE is still operating on a $550,000 loan received a year ago. There is still plenty of money left for it if the Rome government wants to continue investing it in IFE. According to Jonas Rosenfield Jr., IFE v.p., the org should know by September "whether we are within striking distance of becoming self-sustaining." By that time, IFE will have five pix in distribution.

The American indies have charged that IFE could finally push them out of the market. This has been denied by the Italian agency. Under the new Italian agreement, IFE not only could not use American coin to distribute, but also has to end the practice of making advances on Italian production.

Spinrad Consultant On Columbia U. Program

Leonard Spinrad, formerly news editor of Warner Bros.' homeoffice flackery, has been named consultant on entertainment motion pictures to the Bicentennial Committee of Columbia U.

A public relations officer of Army Pictorial Service during the war, Spinrad will handle liaison with the major film companies and others in the entertainment field. Film participation in various phases of the Bicentennial and coverage of the program is now in the blueprint stage.

Herman Hickman makes his screen bow as a college football coach in UI's "All-American."

Amusement Stock Quotations

(N.Y. Stock Exchange)

For Week Ending Tuesday (31)

1952-'53 High	1952-'53 Low		Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net. Change for week
157⅛	137⅛	Am Br-Par Th	147	153¾	141½	143¾	— 5⅛
43½	33	CBS, "A"	71	42¼	40⅛	40⅛	— ⅝
43⅜	32¼	CBS, "B"	48	41⅞	40	40¾	—
137⅛	107⅛	Col. Pic.	23	137⅛	13	13	— ⅝
48	41⅞	Eastman Kdk	222	46⅝	44⅝	45¼	—1¼
181¼	111¼	Loew's	735	143⅜	131¼	131½	— ½
73⅜	33⅜	Nat. Thea.	910	73⅜	61⅜	73⅜	+11⅜
30⅞	21¼	Paramount	341	30⅜	28⅛	29	— ⅜
36½	26⅝	Philco	123	34⅞	32	32⅜	—1⅝
29⅜	23¼	RCA	1,145	28¼	26	26⅜	—1⅛
4⅞	3¼	RKO Picts.	199	3⅞	3⅝	3¾	— ⅛
4½	3⅛	RKO Thea	518.	4½	4⅛	4½	+ ⅜
5⅛	3¼	Republic	87	4	3⅝	3⅝	— ¼
11½	9¾	Rep., pfd.	29	11½	11	11½	+ ⅜
11⅛	10¾	Stanley War.	99	10½	10	10¼	— ⅛
19¼	10½	20th-Fox	719	19¼	17⅝	17⅞	—1⅛
16⅜	11	Univ. Pix.	83	16⅜	15	15⅛	— ½
65	57	Univ., pfd.	*100	65	64	64	— ⅛
16⅜	15¾	Warner Bros.	117	16⅜	15⅝	15⅝	—
88½	68	Zenith	66	79	74¾	75¼	—4⅝

American Stock Exchange

19¾	15	Du Mont	125	16⅜	15⅜	15⅝	— ⅝
4	2¾	Monogram	17	3⅝	3⅛	3⅜	— ⅛
30⅜	20⅛	Technicolor	75	29⅞	28⅜	28⅝	—1
3¼	2¼	Trans-Lux	7	3⅛	3	3⅛	+ ⅛

Over-the-Counter Securities	Bid	Ask
Cinecolor	1½	2	— ¼
Cinerama	3⅜	3⅞	—
Chesapeake Industries (Pathe)	4	4¾	— ⅛
U. A. Theatres	11¼	12¼	+ ¼
Walt Disney	8	9	— ⅛

* Actual sales.

(Quotations furnished by Dreyfus & Co.)

'Pan' March B.O. Champ

Continued from page 4

dates in the first two weeks of the month obviously held it down.

"Bwana Devil" (UA), sixth in February, plainly indicated the sustained interest in 3-D by landing seventh in March. "Naked Spur" (M-G) took eighth money, attesting to the continued popularity of James Stewart, who not only surmounted the title but the onus of it being another westerner.

"The Star" (20th), with Bette Davis, scored mainly in bigger key cities, wound up ninth. "Jeopardy" (M-G) was 10th, not shaping up as strongly as some Barbara Stanwyck pix. "City Beneath Sea" (U), just getting started, showed enough to capture the 11th spot. "Niagara" (20th), seventh in February ratings, rounded out the Top 12 list.

"Jazz Singer" (WB), which finished 10th in February, topped the runner-up films. "Battle Circus" (M-G) and "Bad and Beautiful" (M-G), the latter second in February, were the other runnerup films.

New, strong array of pictures was launched late in the month. "By the Light of Silvery Moon" (WB) started well at the N.Y. Music Hall last week. Since it's the Hall's annual Easter picture, it is insured of a running start as a high grosser. "Salome" (Col), winding up its first session at the N.Y. Rivoli last night (Tues.), shapes as a big winner, predicated on the terrific take on its preem engagement.

'Madam' Starting Big

"Call Me Madam" (20th), which drew rave reviews in N.Y., likewise teed off big at the N.Y. Roxy, with indications that it might become a top grosser over the country. It also was solid on its L.A. opening. "Lili" (M-G) did smash biz on its two initial playdates, one a small art theatre in N.Y.

"Desert Legion" (U), also teed off sock in Minneapolis and big in Buffalo. "I Love Melvin" (M-G), which finished ninth one week, came through with several strong-to-big sessions. "Seminole" (U) was stout in L.A. and okay in Denver.

"President's Lady" (20th) started okay in Baltimore and was lively in Washington. "Stars Are Singing" (Par), rated as a major disappointment, appears to have won enough dates to establish Rosemary Clooney for her next pic. "Down Among Sheltering Palms" (20th) so far has proved somewhat uneven.

"Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U) was big on its preem in Providence. "Destination Gobi" (20th) was fair in Frisco and Buffalo.

"Never Wave at Wac" (RKO), runnerup picture two weeks, turned in some good-to-solid sessions. "Man Behind Gun" (WB), a 12th-place winner one week, was mainly good to brisk. "Tonight We Sing" (20th) was neat in Minneapolis but fair in some other locations. "Back on Broadway" (WB) was sixth one session but generally did not live up to hopes.

Oscaring helped "High Noon" (UA), which was brought back in several keys to take advantage of the Academy Awards. Same was true of "Quiet Man" (Rep), which months ago had finished its key dates. "Blue Gardenia" (WB) was rated big in Washington.

"Thunderbirds" (Rep), on extended-run in N.Y., is turning in its most profitable engagement at the Holiday Theatre there. "Member of Wedding" (Col) did nicely in numerous dates over the country, mostly small art houses.

"Anna" (IFE), which headed the runnerup pix one week, was principally fine to big. It is now on a highly profitable longrun at the N.Y. Globe. "Confidentially Connie" (M-G), good in some spots, had a number of disappointing sessions.

"Girls in Night" (U), ace runnerup pic one week, is proving a money-maker where plugged along sensational lines. "Hitch-Hiker" (RKO) was great on its initial playdate in Boston. "All Ashore" (Col) did well enough one week to land 12th spot. "Golden Condor" (20th) was ninth another week. "Breaking Sound Barrier" (UA) added substantial coin, although fairly well played out in main key cities.

Theatre TV

Continued from page 4

cal. He had a deal all lined up for "Pal Joey," but delay in reaching an agreement with Actors Equity killed the event, since "Joey" takes to the road during April. Rosen, who has reached agreements with all the other unions involved, met again Saturday (28) with Equity prez Ralph Bellamy in order to set up a satisfactory scale for the performers. Should Equity and Theatre TV interests come to an arrangement, Rosen will attempt to close a deal with another Broadway musical. He reports that the producers of at least one current legituner have displayed interest.

Harold Azine, head of Closed-Circuit Theatre TV, is pitching the televising of baseball games. His proposal, depending on the acceptance of exhibs, involves the telecasting of "away" games in certain major league cities. Similar efforts at telecasting of sports events with a local interest have been attempted in the past, but haven't met with success. Nate Halpern, of TNT, discloses he's working on a number of attractions, but so far has kept them closely under wraps. Tele-Conference has been silent since the blowup of the proposed telecast of a Bendix sales meeting.

LEADERSHIP!

HOLLYWOOD!

In the capitol of the film world M-G-M for the second successive year has been accorded more Academy Awards than any other company. Among M-G-M's Awards, there were 6 just for "THE BAD AND THE BEAUTIFUL." Exhibitors are putting this ticket-selling fact into the newspaper ads of this great attraction. M-G-M has also added it to the trailer.

Tops In Shorts Too!

M-G-M leadership in the Short Subject field is proven again with the selection of the Tom and Jerry Technicolor cartoon "Johann Mouse" as the Oscar winner for The Best Cartoon. This is M-G-M's 8th Academy Award for Technicolor Cartoons.

BROADWAY!

In the capitol of show business the M-G-M trade-mark is more importantly on theatre marquees than that of any other company, as we go to press:

STATE — Now: M-G-M's "THE NAKED SPUR" (Tech.)
Coming: M-G-M's "I LOVE MELVIN" (Tech.)

MAYFAIR — Just completed 9-week-engagement:
M-G-M's "ABOVE AND BEYOND" • Now: M-G-M's "JEOPARDY"

CAPITOL — Next: M-G-M's "BATTLE CIRCUS"

MUSIC HALL — Just completed: M-G-M's "STORY OF THREE LOVES" (Tech.)

TRANS-LUX 52nd St. — Record-breaking extended run: M-G-M's "LILI" (Tech.)

★

Music Hall, N. Y.

"Glory of Easter" and "Rainbow," with Jacqueline Langee, Patricia Doyle, Andree Wilson, George Santelle, 3 Cavanaughs, Martinit & Parand, Chanel Ensemble, Music Hall Corps de Ballet, Rockettes, Music Hall Symphony Orch conducted by Raymond Paige; "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" (UA), reviewed in VARIETY March 25, '53.

Heralding the spring holiday season, the Radio City showcase is once again presenting its "Glory of Easter" production with the same adroit mixture of religiosity and showmanship that has made this feature one of the biggest annual tourist draws. Like a church service, this number is staged inbred from year to year against an impressive cathedral background with full altar and Gothic stained glass windows. Soprano Jacqueline Langee ably handles the solo assignment of the "Kommel Ostrow" number with choral backing.

The rest of the show is in a strictly secular groove but also keyed to a seasonal theme. It's a good though conventional layout featuring one outside vaude turn, the Three Cavanaughs New Acts. The European water display importation, "Dancing Waters," is again back on the stage and makes for a highly colorful framework for the finale production with the whole company.

Another interesting twist is the screening of time-lapse film clips of unfolding flower blossoms. This segues into a couple of fast-moving production numbers with Patricia Doyle, Andree Wilson, George Santelle and Miss Langee handling the featured warbling assignments.

The Rockettes are again standout in a snappy precision hoofing display after a clever opening in which they come out of a candy box. The ballet company also scores in a more classic choreographic routine with Myrtill & Parand, in glittering, form-fitting costumes, out front with the adagio stints.

Raymond Paige stylishly batons the syncoh orch, which foregoes its usual prelude number this show because of the opening Easter number. Herm.

Olympia, Miami

Miami, March 23.

Carmen Cavallaro, Miguel Twins, Sunny Fox, Paddy Cliff, Capt. Willis Seals, Les Rhode House Orch; "Androcles and the Lion" (RKO).

It takes Carmen Cavallaro, in the topline spot, to pull an in and out show into pleasing class for the stubholders this week. Yet pianist is an astute showman and wins them quickly via warm manner and smooth approach to his keyboard arrangements. The Cav mixes ballads, boogie and long-hair, with final touch the novelty to spark steady mitts.

Runners-up on the mitt meter are the Migal Twins. Pair of acro-tapsters turn up a fast-paced session of heel and toe work with softshoe ideas and acrollips blended in for the continued build of and reaction.

Eye-catcher is Sunny Fox. Blonde is a Mae West type with deep cleavage gown and material obviously tailored to the Westian idea in rihaldry. Shows aptitude for the double-entendre lines, but act as currently constituted needs rebuild of the leerics, which miss out in too many instances. Stage deportment is on the assured side; would be a bet for the intimeries once routines are strengthened.

Paddy Cliff handles the emcee chores in fair fashion, tossing in assortment of weak waggery. In his own spot he offers up series of vocals for lukewarm returns.

Capt. Willis and his duo of seals make for a dull spot; flippers could stand more training and faster pacing on their standard tricks. Les Rhode house orch handles showback assignments aptly. Lary.

Capitol, Wash.

Washington, March 27.

Bob Carroll, Lou, Hite & Stanley, Los Robertos (3), Johnson & Medill; "Kansas City Confidential" (UA).

This stacks as sprightly vaude, though lacking the sparkle of an act which even approaches showstop proportions. There's promising new talent here and well-worn old routine. Stubholders take it all with good humor but no all-out enthusiasm.

Headliner Bob Carroll has a better-than-average set of pipes which he shades to best advantage. Sticks closely to ballads, which are well suited to his romantic style. Plays it straight with almost no gimmicks and little in his style to detract from tunes. Those who like their music undiluted go for him, and he garners nice response. Best bets are "Wild Horses" and repeat of his disclick, "Say It With Your Heart." His newest recording, "A Little Love," lacks musical stature of former, but is a pleasant tune with an appealing, bouncy quality. Routine is longer than most—six numbers—and sendoff is warm.

Lou, Hite and Stanley do so well just by dint of contrast in size between the giant, the midget and the "normal" guy that they apparently lack incentive to alter routine one whit. There are still beaucoup chuckles in the little guy's pratfalls and antics and in the general incongruity of the team. Best bet remains takeoff on the Andrews Sisters with offstage recording tagged on to tail end. Returns are okc, but might be better if the trio would dare to add something new to a well-worn routine.

Los Robertos, Latin-American version of juggling, is a fast and flashy act of its type and does fine in the mitt department. Gal and boy team, with a femme assistant complete with cheesecake, juggle clubs, plates, hat, glittering tennis rackets and even cigars to south-of-the-border melodies and with a few terps to match. Customers like. Johnson & Medill pace layout (New Acts). Flor.

Palladium, London

London, March 24.

Johnnie Ray, Max Wall, Tony & Eddie, Andrea Dancers (3), Hal Monty; Lucienne, Bob & Ashour, Vogelbein's Bears, Tosca de Lee, Evy & Everto, Palladium Girls (16), Woolf Phillips Skyrockets Orch.

The new Palladium's bigleague vaudeville season has opened with a smash hit of unprecedented stature. Johnnie Ray's impact, stated cautiously, is fabulous, and the furor, both inside and outside the theatre, is way above expectation. The lachrymose warbler had the audience of fans yelling with delight and displaying an enthusiasm which was rare, even for the Palladium.

This is a masterly presentation by an artist whose whole performance is dominated by instinctive showmanship. There is not a word misplaced or a movement mistimed. He knows when to move freely across the stage or sit rigidly at the piano without in any way losing contact with the audience. He could change tempo, working his fans into a state of frenzy, or holding them with restraint. As his presentation develops, the enthusiasm becomes more vociferous and large chunks of some of his later songs are partially drowned by the approving yells from ecstatic gallerytes.

There is the familiar hep Palladium audience who recognize every tune after the first two or three bars are played and their approval is indicated in generous style. There is a good measure of corn in the routine, with oldies of the calibre of "Walking My Baby Back Home," "Somebody Stole My Girl" and "All of Me" taking up a fair slice of the 30-minute stint. No complaints from the customers, however, who like these as much as "Little White Cloud." "Cry" and the other numbers associated with the wailer.

Although the rest of the bill has a quality flavor, it is the headliner who is the b.o. attraction and two extra Saturday matinees have been added to the program to cope with the advance booking demands.

British comic, Max Wall, a strong local fave with an individualistic style of humor, justifies the prominent billing to earn boffo reception. He is a fluent gagspinner with an eccentric style of movement which garners plenty laughs.

Tony & Eddie score another London hit with their disk mimes. It's a strictly comedy routine with occasional outrageous interpretations which receive solid audience reaction.

The Andrea Dancers are a stylish adagio trio with a bunch of palm-mitting positions combining grace, precision and skill.

Another British comedian, Hal Monty, disappoints. He has a crude brand of humor in which almost every yarn is polluted by vulgarity. Lucienne, Bob & Ashour click with a lively apache sequence. Vogelbein's Bears follow the standard formula of performing animals. Tosca de Lee displays some first-class aerialistics in her trapeze act, and Evy & Everto get strong response for their unicycle turn.

The Palladium dancing line opens the show with a nimble routine and is also the curtain-raiser after the intermission. The Woolf Phillips Skyrockets aggregation does a sterling backgrounding job, accompanying the star on stage. Myro.

Roxy, N. Y.

"Melody Time," with Toni Hollingsworth, 3 Mars & A Marc, Robin Nelson, The Cavanaughs (2), Feodore Tedick, Johnny Flanagan, Evelyn Chandler, Brandt Sisters (2), Ballet Corps, Choralaires, Rory Blades & Belles, Bob Boucher House Orch; producer, Arthur Knorr; choreographer, Dorothie Littlefield; costume designer, Miehl; narration, Buddy Arnold, Woodie King; "Call Me Madam" (20th), reviewed in VARIETY March 4, 1953.

The current Roxy program adds up to a boff parlay of Irving Berlin music with his "Call Me Madam" score on the screen and the ice show offering an historic medley of hits by the top pop cleffer of this era. The whole layout, except the newsreel soundtrack, is Berliniana in a unique showcase of the songsmith's versatility in both the smart showtune and pop idioms.

On stage, the ice show frames a varied series of specialties and production spectacles around the Berlin repertory. The layout comes up with another attractive peg in its fashion show idea with Toni Hollingsworth, a lean and towering model, as the clothes horse for the eye-opening gown and chapeaux creations. One coutourier's nightmare, designed, natch, by Salvador Dali, spotlights the mannikin in a sexy hoofing stint.

Standout sequence is a blade takeoff on Berlin's "Yip Yip Yaphank," World War I show. This is an amusing bit with a tough sergeant and a quartet of raw rookies in a familiar drill routine snafu. Johnny Flanagan, in a WAC disguise, also contributes a sock comedy bit here via his stumbling acrobatics.

Another effective turn is delivered by the Brandt Sisters. This is a neat precision routine in which one member of the duo works in front of a fake mirror with the other gal as her reflection. The illusion is near perfect and rates heavy mitting for the clever execution.

Opening number is a swinging production themed to "Putting On the Ritz," with the three Mars & A Marc featured in some typical blade terping for okay results. The followup drunk act by Robin Nelson, however, lacks point and fails to register. Another production number, with the chorus and the ice line, hits a snappy pace to "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

A bridal sequence, keyed to Berlin's "The Girl That I Marry," is done up in an attractive setting with the Cavanaughs stepping out of picture frames for their graceful ballet routine. Feodore Tedick capably handles the vocal assignments on the Berlin medley.

In the Dali garb number, Miss Hollingsworth's modelling-hoofing stint is backed up by Evelyn Chandler's superlative blade solo and a line routine with luminous costumes on a darkened stage. It's tailored to the futuristic Dalieque moods.

Closing number latches on to the seasonal "Easter Parade" Berlin click for a lush production turn with the whole company. Herm.

Empire, Glasgow

Glasgow, March 25.

Peter Brough (with Archie Andrews), Harry Secombe, Ronald Chesney, Ossie Noble, Nino the Wonder Dog, Edward Victor, Les Rayner & Betty, Kandy Sisters & Eddie (3), Bobby Dowds Orch.

Peter Brough, w.k. radio vent, heads vaude layout with his famous doll, Archie Andrews, from the the British radio series, "Educating Archie." Brough's work is polished but lacks new material, and he's obviously making the most of his radio reputation.

Cheeky-style dummy is fave with moppets in audience and has been endowed with a personality of his own. Cross-talk could be more up-to-date and less familiar. Star exits to friendly mitting.

Ronald Chesney, on harmonica, shows musical artistry, scoring in "Blue Tango." Also registers solidly in classical pieces and garners strongest mitting of show.

Prior to Chesney and Brough both of whose acts are too long, layout is spun out with conventional acts. Kandy Sisters & Eddie, two brunet lookers and a young male, open the stint with agreeable terping. Act is freshly garbed, gals being in black and white dresses and Eddie in easy-fitting pants. Femmes follow on dressed in tights.

Edward Victor is shadowgraph maestro, producing from behind screen hand-pictures in black-and-white of Pop-Eye, Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer, Maurice Chevalier, Field Marshal Montgomery, President Eisenhower, the late Marshal Stalin, and Winston Churchill. His Coronation Cavalcade, showing kings and queens of England, gets patriotic hand-to-hand music. At end of act, Victor emerges from behind his screen to take a bow. Hand technique is up to good level.

More exciting is the roller skating of Les Rayner & Betty, mixed duo, who skate on special platform atop stage. Twain are brightly dressed in cherry-colored costumes. One-foot skating by the male is feature of act.

Nino, billed as the Wonder Dog, is a solo performer moving up and down stage on top of blown-up rubber balls, each larger than the one preceding. Balancing work interests most when canine stops balls from falling over into orch pit. At end of act the pooch moves into centre of stage, takes a bow, does a back somersault four times, then bows again. No human ever appears on stage.

Harry Secombe, English comedian with big British radio name, indulges in inane buffoonery that raises laffs from a section of stubholders. He grows his hair long in mad Bohemian style, is garbed in blue suit, and adds a song or two.

Second segment is opened by Kandy Sisters & Eddie, this time dressed in tartan blouses, gals wearing brown jeans. Ossie Noble is miming clown, never uttering an audible work but speaking continuously in mumbo-jumbo and making expressive use of makeup in clown style. Billing himself as "The Clown Prince," he ends act with an exhibition at the drums. Has only adequate entertainment value. Gord.

Academy of Music, N. Y.

Jackie Miles, Helen Forrest, Don Cherry, Jaywalkers (3), Martells & Mignon (4), Edwards Bros. (3), Nick Francis House Orch; "Niagara" (20th), "Something for the Birds" (20th).

This ambitious Skouras nabe operation is continuing to pile up enjoyable and business-producing bills. The house is getting the tops in availabilities for these five-day sessions. Despite the fact that the policy was instituted at one of the worst times of the year, during Lent, the spot is getting the trade and may hit a degree of permanency. The budget is unusually big for a theatre removed from midtown, being approximately $4,000. Apparently it's bringing in more than its share of business.

The topliner is Jackie Miles, whose previous N. Y. appearances have usually been at the Roxy. Miles' story assortment constitutes laugh-getting fodder. They're familiar enough to be classics and still retain sufficient freshness to be highly entertaining. The audiences here apparently rarely get up far enough uptown to be accessible to the Miles' delivery and yarns. It would be better for the theatre as well as Miles to have the comic forego the emcee chores, but apparently there's no one on the layout who can assume the job.

The singing spots are by Helen Forrest and Don Cherry, who have the goods and do a forthright job of selling same. Miss Forrest, once the vocalist for many top name bands including those of Benny Goodman and Harry James, has a potent projection. Her songs are hearty, exude an air of cheerfulness and are sufficient for encore hands. Most of her tunes are in the standards, but the delivery is fresh.

Cherry, who's now better known as a golfer, can still break par for the course in this house. He's a robust singer who projects a homey type of song. He gets folksy with the crowd with such tunes as "Vanity" and "High Noon" and he's off to a warm exit.

The novelty sections open with Martells & Mignon, three huskies and a girl whom they toss about with careful abandon. They show some good tricks that indicate a good quota of midterm applause. The Jaywalkers 3 have a good line of nonsense which gets across. They combine knockabout and some zany bits which hit their mark. The Edwards Bros. do some excellent hand-to-handing for a rousing closer.

The acts being collected for this house are a bigtime quality. They deserve a much better presentation which would be obtainable by putting the capable Nick Francis house band into the pit and providing some good backdrops. More intimacy and better projection would result. Jose.

COHASSET REPACTS BUSCH

Hans Busch will again be music director this summer of the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset, Mass., under auspices of Richard Aldrich.

Before returning to Cohasset, Busch will repeat the opera "Parsifal" for the fifth year at Easter time at the U. of Indiana in Bloomington.

Seville, Montreal

Montreal, March 28.

Eileen Barton, Wally Vernon (with Ginger Sherry), Ben Yost's Vikings (5), Tokayers (6), Leroy Bros. (2), Nick Maikos, Len Hoad Orch (6); "Flesh and Fury" (U).

Eileen Barton, who opened the vaude sessions at the Seville two years ago, returns to wham over her particular chirp stylings and gal shows greater potential than ever. Suffering from a slight cold that broke her thrushing occasionally, she got away in a hurry with "Great Day" and settled down to a songafog made up entirely of her Coral platters.

There is a breeziness about this chantoosie that makes her a sure-fire click with patrons, and her animated personality is refreshing contrast to the usual disker with a voice and little else to offer. Following a plandit earning set of "Stars Get in Your Eyes" and "Pretend," she belts over her initial hit "Baked a Cake," and then wows house with an impresh of Johnnie Ray doing "Cry." She begged off at show caught.

Wally Vernon does well with his sentimental patter about the old vaude days and scores with a few nifty softshoe bits. Vernon gets an assist from well-stacked Ginger Sherry, who does a "dumb blonde" routine with him early in his act and then comes out for a modified strip while Vernon tries to impress the sitters with his vocal ability. Underlying talent keeps the hokum from going overboard.

Teeoff slot goes to the six Tokayers, who pick up as good a reception as anyone on the bill for their frantic but precise teeterboard antics. Payoff, when one of the boys goes to the ceiling in a somersault to a basket on a lofty pole, draws salvos.

Ben Yost's Vikings are faultless songwise and in appearance. The five guys team up on the faves both in semi-classical and ballad, getting best returns for "Old Man River." The puppeteering of the Leroy Bros. carries same good impact as on previous showings on the local cafe circuit. Their Durante impresh is okay and racking points up offering neatly without getting in the way at any time. Newt.

Casino, Toronto

Toronto, March 27.

The Kings & Their Ladies (6), Buddy Lewis, Frances Brunn, The Tuckers (3), Jerry Leeder, Al Gordon's Dogs, Jimmie Cameron, Archie Stone House Orch; "Kansas City Confidential" (UA).

Kicking off on their first theatre date after some five years in nitteries, the Kings & Their Ladies are headlining the Casino bill and leave for Britain in June for Lew & Leslie Grade bookings in the U.K. and on the Continent. It's a dance group of five girls and a boy (Buddy King), who are tops in modernistic rhythmics, with the girls lookers and costuming sexily lavish. Brunt of work is borne by Buddy King and Dorothy Snowberger, a longhaired blonde, in duo numbers which show plenty of ballet training, plus their exciting comedy eccentrics.

Their work is admirably backed by the girls, who evidently take keen delight in their colleagues' dancing. Two separated full-stage numbers are a blues mood to "New Orleans" and an Oriental number, both majored by King and Snowberger for plenty of dramatic spins, leaps and catches. Disciplined backgrounding of the girls lends flash effects.

Sharing hefty applause honors is Buddy Lewis for his splendid impersonations of past and present Hollywood stars; the Tuckers trio for their trampoline act, with fine elevation, triple spins, back somersaults and a straight finish of thrilling foot and shoulder catches; Frances Brunn for his swift and spectacular acros and juggling; Al Gordon and his obstreperous mutts who refuse to follow instructions.

But Jerry Leeder, with his labial effects at the mike, strikes a sour and serious note in the otherwise pleasant proceedings. His plane-dive effects, plus previous machine-gun stuttering, were cleverly realistic, but his announcement that "the pilot is now in a blackout and the blood is coming out of his mouth" was not redeemed by his clowning and received a chilly audience reception that made it difficult for the following act at show caught. His handkerchief waving and swish takeoffs on Frankie Laine's trade-marked pops and a weak carbon of Danny Kaye's skat style, plus interpolated bomo patter with hand on hip, have no place in a family theatre.

Jimmy Cameron expertly emcees the show with Archie Stone's orch giving all acts hefty backing. McStay.

Another History-Making FIRST from WARNER BROS.

From the studios that first successfully introduced sound to the motion picture screens of the world...

WARNERPHONIC

Heard for the first time by 500 of the nation's leading exhibitors in a series of screenings now being held in WARNER BROS. 3-DIMENSION STUDIO AUDITORIUM, in Burbank, the astounding revolutionary audio complement to

"HOUSE OF WAX"

in

WARNERCOLOR

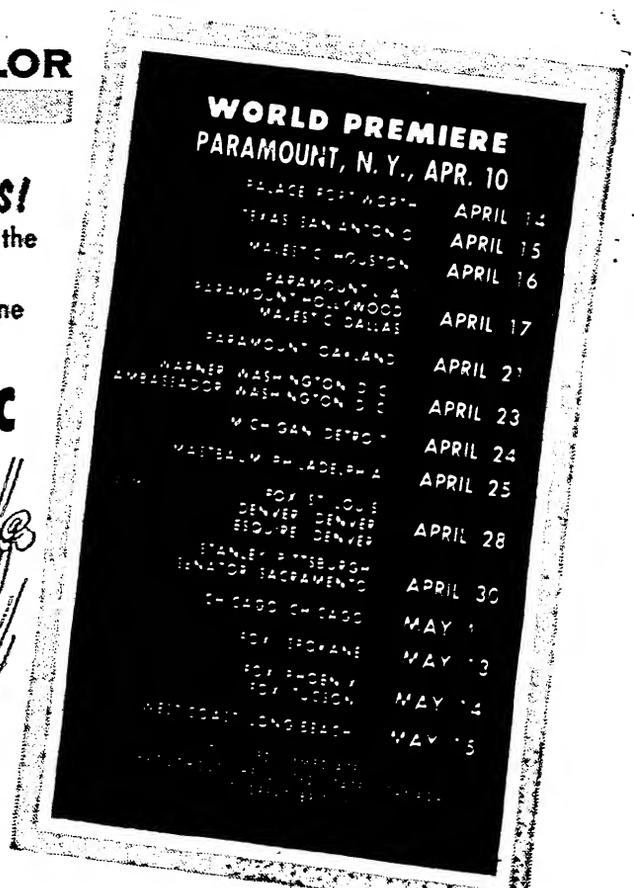
THE FIRST ALL 3-DIMENSION FEATURE PRODUCED BY A MAJOR STUDIO

MUSIC! DIALOGUE! EFFECTS!

The richest beauty of sound comes to you in the screen's first complete electronic merger of dimension-camera and dimension-microphone in their most fully dreamed-of relations.

WARNERPHONIC

is the wedding march of Sound and 3-Dimension.



Picture Grosses

BUFFALO

(Continued from page 13)

"House of Darkness" (Indie). Oke $12,500 in 10 days. Last week, "Stars Are Singing" (Par) and "White Lightning" (AA), $10,500.

Center (Par) 2,100; 40-70) — "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Wherever She Goes" (Indie). Solid $9,000. Last week, "Silver Whip" (20th) and "Babes in Bagdad" (UA), $8,200.

Lafayette (Basil) 3,000; 40-70)— "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U) and "White Goddess" (Indie). Tame $8,500. Last week, "One Girl's Confession" (Col) and "Problem Girls" (Col), $9,000.

Century (20th Cent.) 3,000; 40-70)—"Angel Face" (RKO) and "Captive Women" (RKO). Mild $9,000 or less. Last week, "Never Wave At a WAC" (RKO) and "Faithful City" (RKO), $9,500.

'At Fair' Boffo 17G, Mont'l; 'Hans' 23G, 3d

Montreal, March 31.

"Meet Me at Fair" is standout newcomer here this session with a great total at the Capitol. "Hans Christian Andersen" still is sock in third round at Loew's. "Thunder in East" still is nice in second frame at Princess.

Estimates for This Week

Palace (C.T.) (2,626; 34-60) — "Miracle of Fatima" (WB) (2d run). Mild $11,000. Last week, "Limelight" (UA) (3d wk), $15,000.

Capitol (C.T.) (2,412; 34-60) — "Meet Me at Fair" (U). Great $17,000 to pace city. Last week, "Above, Beyond" (M-G) (2d wk), $13,000.

Princess (C.T.) (2,131; 34-60) — "Thunder in East" (Par) (2d wk). Nice $11,000 following socko first at $16,000.

Loew's (C.T.) (2,855; 75-$1) — "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (3d wk). Still big $23,000 after smash $35,000 for second.

Imperial (C.T.) (1,839; 34-60) — "Road to Bali" (Par) (2d run) and "Devil's Mask" (Par). Okay $8,000. Last week, "Rogue's March" (M-G) and "Sky Full Moon" (M-G), $7,000.

Orpheum (C.T.) (1,048; 34-60) — "Bachelor in Paris" (Indie) and "Wings of Danger" (Indie). Fair $7,000. Last week, "Women of Twilight" (RKO) and "Mr. Walkie Talkie" (RKO), same.

MINNEAPOLIS

(Continued from page 15)

Last week, "Desert Legion" (U) (2d wk), okay $4,500 in 6 days.

Gopher (Berger) (1,026; 50-76)— "Jeopardy" (M-G). Big campaign, including 39 TV spot announcements, radio and TV contests, for this one. Fancy $6,000. Last week, "Battle Circus" (M-G) (2d wk), $3,800.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; 50-76)—"High Noon" (UA) (2d run) (2d wk). Academy awards have done box-office wonders for this one. Big $5,000. Last week, smash $8,000.

Radio City (Par) (4,000; 50-76)— "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U). This series coming up in the world, what with this one being spotted in Paramount circuit's top house. Hefty $9,000 or near. Last week, "The Star" (20th), $7,000.

RKO-Orpheum (RKO) (2,800; 76-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO). Smash $22,000. Last week, "Last Comanches" (Col), $5,500 at 76c top.

RKO-Pan (RKO) (1,600; 40-76)— "Jack McCall, Desperado" (Col) and "Five Angles on Murder" (Col). Slow $4,000. Last week, "One Girl's Confession" (Col) and "Problem Girls" (Col), $5,000.

State (Par) (2,200; 50-76)—"Fort Vengeance" (AA). Slight $5,000. Last week, "I Confess" (WB), $7,500.

World (Mann) (400; 55-$1.20)— "The Promoter" (U) (3d wk). Oke $2,300. Last week, robust $3,900.

ST. LOUIS

(Continued from page 15)

and "All Ashore" (Col), oke $14,000.

Loew's (Loew) (3,172; 50-75)— "Confidentially Connie" (M-G) and "Breaking Sound Barrier" (UA). Okay $13,000 or near. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G) and "Breakdown" (Indie), $10,500.

Missouri (F&M) (3,500; 60-75)— "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Taxi" (20th). Modest $9,500. Last week, "Angel Face" (RKO) and "Tangier Incident" (AA), $9,000.

Fageant (St. L. Amus.) (1,000; 90)—"Magic Box" (Indie). Fine $4,500. Last week, "Member of Wedding" (Col), $4,000.

Shady Oak (St. L. Amus.) (800; 90)—"Member of Wedding" (3d wk). Trim $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

'Peter Pan' Sock $7,000, Omaha; 'Bwana' Big 10G

Omaha, March 31.

While "Bwana Devil" shapes big at the Omaha this week, it is rated as not up to hopes. "Stars Are Singing" is just okay at Orpheum. "Peter Pan" at Brandeis is standout with sock session.

Estimates for This Week

Brandeis (RKO) (1,100; 20-76)— "Peter Pan" (RKO) and "Bear Country" (RKO). Socko $7,000. Last week, "I Confess" (WB) and "Sea Tiger" (WB), $5,000.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,100; 50-$1.25)—"Bwana Devil" (UA). Big $10,000, thanks to upped prices, but rated a bit disappointing. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "Scotland Yard Inspector" (Par) 2d wk, $5,500.

Orpheum (Tristates) (2,970) — "Stars Singing" (Par) and "Tropic Zone" (Par). Just okay at $10,500. Last week, "Naked Spur" (M-G), $10,000.

'Hans' Hotsy $17,000, Indpls.; 'Monster' 7G

Indianapolis, March 31.

Biz is uneven at first-run situations here this stanza. "Hans Christian Andersen" at Keith's is overriding Lenten lethargy for big take to lead city. "I Love Melvin" at Loew's also is getting good play.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Cockrill-Dolle) (2,800; 50-76)—"The Star" (20th) and "High Treason" (UA). Tepid $8,500. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "White Lightning" (AA), $13,600.

Indiana (C-D) (3,200; 50-76)— "Treasure Golden Condor" (20th) and "Jalopy" (AA). Mild $9,000. Last week, "Back On Broadway" (WB), $8,500.

Keith's (C-D) (1,300; 50-$1.20)— "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO). Sock $17,000. Set for run. Last week, on subsequent-runs.

Loew's (Loew's) (2,427; 50-76)— "I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Bandits of Corsica" (UA). Nice $16,000. Last week, "Confidentially Connie" (M-G) and "Prince of Pirates" (Col), $7,500.

Lyric (C-D) (1,600; 50-76)— "Magnetic Monster" (UA) and "Target" (Indie). Oke $7,000. Last week, "Tropic Zone" (Par) and "Fangs of Arctic" (Indie), $5,000.

BOSTON

(Continued from page 13)

wk). Oke $3,000 after $4,000 last week.

Fenway (NET) (1,373; 40-85)— "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Trouble Along Way" (WB). Nice $3,500. Last week, "Niagara" (20th) and "Jalopy" (AA) (2d wk), $3,700.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 40-85)— "Androcles & Lion" (RKO) and "Amazing Mons Fabre" (Indie). Fairish $17,000 in 9 days. Last week, "Mississippi Gambler" (U) and "No Time For Flowers" (RKO) (2d wk), $10,500.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,367; 40-85)—"Little Sheba" (Par) and "Tropic Zone" (Par) (2d wk). Satisfactory $18,000 for 9 days. Last week big $30,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (3,000; 74-$1.25) —"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (5th wk). Bright $12,000 for final 9 days after $13,500 for fourth stanza.

Paramount (NET) (1,700; 40-85) —"Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Trouble Along Way" (WB). Fine $11,000. Last week, "Niagara" (20th) and "Jalopy" (AA) (2d wk), $9,600.

DETROIT

(Continued from page 15)

matinees. Advance indicates a very long run.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,000; 70-95)—"Little Sheba" (Par) and "Taxi" (20th) (2d wk). Okay $17,000. Last week, $21,000.

Palms (UD) (2,961; 70-95)—"Angel Face" (RKO) and "Torpedo Alley" (Col). Fair $14,000. Last week, "Man Behind Gun" (WB) and "Blades of Musketeers" (AA), $15,000.

Madison (UD) (1,900; 90-$1.25)— "Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) (6th wk). Sturdy $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

United Artists (UA) (1,938; 70-95) —"Jeopardy" (M-G) and "Kansas Pacific" (AA) (3d wk). Down to $3,500. Last week, nice $10,500.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; 70-95)— "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (2d wk). Fast $15,000. Last week, $17,000.

Broadway-Capitol (Korman) (3,500; 70-95)—"Naked Spur" (M-G) and "Babes in Bagdad" (UA) (2d wk). Slow $9,000. Last week, $16,000.

N.Y. Roxy First House To Get CinemaScope Screen

Roxy Theatre, N. Y., will be the nation's first house to get a CinemaScope screen, according to Dick Dickson, Roxy exec. The theatre has also ordered the rest of the 20th-Fox CinemaScope "package" which includes stereophonic sound and the special projection lens. Screen at the Roxy will be 80 feet in width.

In view of developments which make it likely that the Rivoli, N. Y., will precm the first pic to be made for the widescreen system developed by the new Magna Theatre Corp., it now appears uncertain whether that theatre will be equipped for CinemaScope. Original 20th plan had been to put the CinemaScope into the Roxy and the Rivoli and to show it also at the homeoffice projection room in N. Y.

Backstage Moves

Continued from page 3

on Greene's part could possibly give the latter the voting edge.

It was further reported that the Greene syndicate proposed a deal to buy out Hughes at $5 per share with the condition that if Hughes were to accept, the same offer would be made to all other stockholders. Proposed offering hasn't reached any negotiation stage; Hughes reps felt the price was inadequate. RKO Theatres within the past week hit a year's high of $4.37½ on the N. Y. Stock Exchange, up from a low of $3.12½, and volume has been unusually heavy.

New RKO Offers

Sam Dembow, indie film producers' rep, who was a key figure in unsuccessful attempts to negotiate a deal with Hughes in the past, returned to N. Y. from the Coast late last week after making new offers, in behalf of unidentified interests. Dembow presented two separate propositions to Noah Dietrich, Hughes' chief exec aide, covering both the exhibition and pic companies, but neither was sufficient to form the basis for negotiations.

On still another front, persons close to Floyd Odlum's Atlas Corp. operation related that Odlum would be willing to shell out $5 per share for Hughes' pic company stock. Hughes, however, is represented as wanting at least $7, which was the price paid by the short-lived Ralph Stolkin regime. Hughes owns over 1,000,000 pic shares, representing 26% of the total outstanding. It was Atlas from whom Hughes acquired control in the spring of 1948.

Big Name Lineup

While Dembow declined to name the group he's repping, it's learned that an association of prominent circuit operators has been eyeing the RKO film setup. If such a deal were to go through, it would have been the most spectacular of all because of the names involved. They included Leonard Goldenson, head of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres; S. H. Fabian, president of Stanley Warner, and such circuit men as Fred J. Schwartz, M. A. Lightman, Sam Pinanski and Mitchell Wolfson.

It reportedly was agreed that, because of antitrust decree restrictions, Goldenson and Fabian would trustee their respective shares of the RKO stock, upon consummation of a deal, and after a five-year period would divest themselves of the shares entirely. In any event, the prime motivation was the desire to take hold of RKO and undertake to continue it as an important source of supply of pix for the theatremen's houses.

Chas. Green Cagey

As for 20th-Fox, Charles Green still is keeping under wraps his plans regarding a stock battle, but promises the tipoff will come shortly in a statment to be filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission. In contrast with this, observers in N. Y.'s financial area express the opinion that the spurt in the price of the 20th issue, to about $19, has severly hurt Green's chances of bringing other 20th investors into his camp against management. Regardless of future developments, it appears a cinch that Green will emerge with a handsome profit. Green himself is reticent but the buzz in Wall St. is that he and his partners picked up 100,000 shares of 20th when the stock was selling at around $15.

Film Reviews

Continued from page 6

The Cruel Sea

tion has been telescoped and quite a few major incidents have been completely omitted. As the commentator explains, the heroes are the men, the heroines are the ships, and the villain is the cruel sea. These three elements are put into focus via the activities of a corvette which puts to sea with only one experienced officer—the captain—aboard. The others are the normal wartime recruits from civilian life, including a freelance journalist, lawyer, bank clerk and second-hand car salesman. Their first operational duties land them into a storm, but subsequently they encounter enemy activity and are harassed by U-boats. Eventually, their ship goes down and there remains only a handful of survivors.

Eric Ambler's script retains most of the dramatic content of the original. With the sea as only background, the film naturally suffers from some measure of repetitive incident, but this is a weakness which can hardly be avoided. Film could be tightened by sharper editing, and elimination of 15 minutes' running time would give the production greater speed and momentum. Otherwise, "Sea" emerges as a fine technical achievement.

Notable thesping comes from Jack Hawkins, now one of the most reliable, convincing and solid British actors. He plays the captain with requisite authority. Surrounding cast is well matched, with sterling work contributed by Donald Sinden, John Stratton, Denholm Elliott and Stanley Baker at the head of a handpicked cast. Femme roles are little more than incidental, but are capably filled by Virginia McKenna, Moira Lister, June Thorburn and Megs Jenkins. Charles Frend has directed with a sure touch, the settings have an authentic look, camera work is pleasing, and sound effects provide an important adjunct to the action. Myro.

La Mujer de las Camelias

(ARGENTINE)

Buenos Aires, March 24.

Argentina Sono Film production and release. Stars Zully Moreno. Carlos Thompson; features Santiago Gomez Cou, Nicolas Fregues, Mona Maris, Ricardo Argenti, Mario Faig. Directed by Ernesto Arancibia. Screenplay by W. Eisen and Arancibia, from Alexander Dumas story. Camera, Antonio Merayo; musical arrangements, Tito Rivero; editor, Jose Serra. At Gran Rex, Buenos Aires. Running time, 114 MINS.

This is a big b.o. entry in Argentina. Carlos Thompson's increasing lure for femme audiences, plus the beauty and lavish costuming of Zully Moreno, together with the perennial magic of the Alexander Dumas story about Marguerite Gauthier and Armand Duval, insure terrific impact.

The picture has strong exploitation possibilities in most parts of the world. Screenplay by W. Eisen and director Ernesto Arancibia combines an odd hodge-podge of Dumas with tricks to interest foreign markets. In fact, the picture has everything except a bathtub scene—eye appeal of both leads, love-scenes, soap-opera suffering for the heroine, nitery frolics, longhair pianistics, gambling tension, sylvan landscapes and tear-jerking melodramatics.

The classic yarn has been sharply altered. Miss Moreno is made to suffer from a dread brain disease, and ends her life by a dive into the river, in lieu of coughing it out into a pillow. Armand Duval (Thompson) is a pianist, who pounds the ivories in niteries as a step to becoming a concert-player, thereby disappointing his bourgeois parents, who destined him for an engineering career. Duval meets Marguerite, ex-model turned daughter of joy on a deluxe scale, as a result of his nitery work, and the chemical reaction is instantaneous. The heel protector (S. Gomez Cou) has the usual heavy role of satanic cad who blackmails the gal with threats of revealing that she suffers from an incurable scourge.

Duval appropriates family funds to pursue her to Mar del Plata, and loses all at the tables. This is compensated by her surrender and an idyllic interlude at a country spot loaned by his musician friend, Christian Szarvas (Nicolas Fregues). The discovery that the musician had once enjoyed Marguerite's favors in that same spot arouses Duval's jealousy, so after the classic interview with his father she returns to her old life, leaving him to conquer fame as a pianist. In Paris she is on the downward grade when the two meet and start love again, but as her illness progresses she slips out while an enraptured audience listens to one of his concerts, and finds oblivion in the river, leaving her favorite camelias on the ledge of the loge, where they are placed ever after whenever the pianist plays there.

Antonio de Raco doubles for Thompson in the piano sequences, which adds to the b.o. pull. Mona Maris has a small part as a French couturiere, and acquits herself with liveliness, albeit with faded looks. Miss Moreno is made to talk French in Paris scenes, and authenticity is given to these in the use of French actors. Thompson's French is authentic, but the femme star's very labored.

Outdoor scenes are beautifully lensed. Some excellent shots of urban Buenos Aires substitute very well for corners of Paris. The femme costuming by Bernarda is good, but interior sets have the look of a furniture store. In fact, the credits included mention of the stores supplying the decor.

The film runs too long, despite its eye appeal, and there is inadequate logical sequence to the continuity. Nevertheless, it is satisfying entertainment, even to foreigners in B.A., and should impress abroad. Kid.

Tormento

(ITALIAN—SONGS)

I. F. E. release of Titanus production. Features Amedeo Nazzari, Yvonne Sanson. Directed by Raffaele Matarazzo. Screenplay, Aldo de Benedetti, based on story by L. Bovio and Gaspare Di Maio; camera, Tino Santoni; music, Gino Campano. Previewed in N.Y., March 25, '53. Running time, 99 MINS.

Carlo Guarnieri	Amedeo Nazzari
Anna Ferrari	Yvonne Sanson
Matilde	Giulietta Simone
Signor Ferrari	Annibale Betrone
Lawyer	Mario Ferrari
Child	Rosalia Randazzo
Ezio	Roberto Murolo

(In Italian; English Titles)

This Italian import, which opens at the Cinema Verdi, N. Y., Friday (3), milks the tearjerker angles dry. Pic's best prospects are for the matinee trade at nabe Italian-language theatres. English titles suffice in getting the yarn across, but film registers as a lengthy soap opera with nothing of an outstanding nature to qualify it as art house material.

Bounced out of her home by a slave-driving stepmother, Yvonne Sanson takes up residence in Rome with her salesman boyfriend, Amedeo Nazzari. Eventual marriage is contemplated by the duo following the conclusion of a business deal involving Nazzari. Situation gets snarled up when Nazzari is accused, and then convicted, of a murder he didn't commit. Meanwhile, Miss Sanson, still unwed, gives birth to a girl. A marriage is performed, however, before Nazzari goes off to serve a 20-year prison stretch.

Miss Sanson finds work almost impossible to come by, as a convict's wife. She finds herself unable to care for her child and is forced to turn the girl over to her stepmother, who takes the child only on the condition that the mother voluntarily enter a reformatory for wayward women. Windup has Nazzari, found innocent after five years of imprisonment, reunited with wife and child.

Acting following routine lines, although Roberto Murolo, as a nitery singer-guitar player, is impressive. Nazzari makes a nice appearance and should register with femme seatholders. Miss Sanson is okay. Direction, at times, tends to point up the obviousness of certain cliche situations. Jess.

20th Rentals

Continued from page 4

erations. The difference in theatre income for the two years is $688,477.

The 1952 net of $4,747,587 1952 equals $1.71 a share. Earnings, for a similar period in 1951 came to $1.47 a share. The stockholders report pointed out that since early 1942, when the present management took over, the corporation had earned more than $126,000,000 and had paid out in excess of $68,000,000 in cash dividends.

Consolidated profit and loss of statement showed a considerable rise in distribution and administration expenses, which went up from $24,656,726 in 1951 to $27,753,004 in 1952. Provision for Federal taxes on income dropped from $825,746 in 1951 to $425,000 in '52. Besides film rentals and dividends, other income was listed at $6,183,707, compared with $4,601,079 in '51.

The Raves are International!

(AND SO IS THE BUSINESS!)

Evening News:
"ENTHRALLED. A brilliant new American actress in a courageous picture."

Daily Telegraph-Post:
"FILM HAS SIZE, GLITTER, BIG NAMES, practically everything that makes for box office."

Daily Mirror:
"SHIRLEY BOOTH...JOINS THE SCREEN IMMORTALS...one of the best performances I have ever seen ...realistic drama of alcohol, sex, and repressed maternal instincts."

Sunday Observer:
"WILL SHAKE YOU IN YOUR SEAT."

Daily Sketch:
"SHIRLEY BOOTH...SHATTERING SCREEN DEBUT with superb acting support from Burt Lancaster...a most memorable film."

Daily Herald:
"HERE IS GREAT ACTING...magnetic fascination. You cannot resist it."

Daily Express:
"SHIRLEY BOOTH BURSTS LIKE A STAR. Nothing quite like her since the great days of Greta Garbo and Marie Dressler. Frank, raw and fascinating."

Evening Standard:
"HAILED AS THE FEMALE PERFORMANCE OF THE YEAR."

Daily Mail:
"IN EVERY WAY, AN OUTSTANDING PIECE OF ACTING."

The Star:
"AN ACTRESS OF SUPERB QUALITY ...worth going miles to see."

The Sunday Times:
"A STRONG FILM...composed and brought to the cinema with great skill. Shirley Booth...a performance which is quite overwhelming."

Empire News:
"HEART RENDING AND MORE THAN OSCAR-WORTHY PERFORMANCE BY SHIRLEY BOOTH...relentlessly true study of human beings, in the 4-star class."

News of the World:
"ACTING OF AN INSPIRED ORDER."

The People:
"INTELLIGENTLY HANDLED ADULT FILM that should appeal to all discriminating cinema goers."

Sunday Dispatch:
"ONE OF THE GREAT PERFORMANCES OF THE AMERICAN CINEMA."

BURT LANCASTER • SHIRLEY BOOTH in HAL WALLIS' Production
"COME BACK, LITTLE SHEBA"
co-starring TERRY MOORE with RICHARD JAECKEL • Directed by DANIEL MANN • Screenplay by KETTI FRINGS • Based on an original play by William Inge • Produced on the stage by the Theatre Guild
A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

COLD FACTS about HIGH PRICES!

FOOD
133.2%
INCREASE

HOUSE FURNISHINGS
105%
INCREASE

APPAREL
102.3%
INCREASE

FUEL
47.6%
INCREASE

RENT
42.4%
INCREASE

If your temperature has been rising along with soaring prices . . . you'll find the answer in the Bureau of Labor Statistics' revelation that the Cost of Living has increased 90.8% since 1939. FOOD has soared 133.2% . . . HOUSE FURNISHINGS, 105% . . . APPAREL, 102.3% . . . FUEL, 47.6% . . . RENT, 42.4%. And while this has been happening, the cost of YOUR theatre's equipment and supplies has taken an average 98.9% jump since 1940 (according to The Exhibitors Digest).

But here's a COOL, comforting thought in the midst of this high-price inferno. Just compare these rising expenses with the negligible increase, IF ANY, you've given NSS during all these years of skyrocketing increase.

Yes, Compare ALL your costs with the LOW COST, Service-With-A-Smile Policy of The Prize Baby!

NATIONAL Screen SERVICE
PRIZE BABY OF THE INDUSTRY

TOA Bid

Continued from page 3

issued following the Starr-Reade bids.

Allied States Assn., mainly responsible for instituting the Senate probe already has indicated that its leaders will appear before the committee. Board chairman-general counsel Abram F. Myers and prexy Wilbur Snaper will be key witnesses. Pair's testimony will include data received from Allied members via a questionnaire which asked the exhibs to detail instances of the alleged trade abuses.

With TOA joining in rapping rentals and pre-releases, there was renewed trade speculation that the oft-talked-about meeting between TOA and Allied pertaining to mutual exhibs problems may finally become a reality. TOA has sought such a meeting, but Allied has nixed it unless TOA was willing to include the question of rentals in the joint talks. Snaper sounded out the Allied board on TOA's overture at last week's board meeting in Milwaukee. He indicated Monday (30) that the board's decision would be conveyed directly to Starr upon latter's return from Europe.

Meanwhile, the monopoly subcommittee of the Senate Small Biz Committee opened hearings in Los Angeles yesterday (Tues.) with Coast exhibs airing their complaints.

Exhibs' Gamble

Continued from page 3

of 3-D and large screens in theatres that may wish to show one of the current three-dimensional pix now and switch to CinemaScope or one of the other panoramic screen systems later. There will also be millions spent in theatre reconstruction and dressing, additional projectors, labor, etc.

Lively Interest

An RCA announcement last week said several large theatres would install two additional projectors, bringing the total in their booths to four. Purpose is to eliminate intermissions and oversized film reels now required when there are two inter-locked projectors.

Cost of converting a theatre to 3-D varies slightly and ranges between $1,000 and $1,500. Main items are the screen, which runs between $350 and $500 and is an absolute necessity, since the ordinary screen surface depolarizes the light; the larger magazines, and the interlocks which synchronize the two projectors and can be either mechanical or electric.

Expense of installing CinemaScope is still undetermined and is likely to vary from theatre to theatre. It's been quoted by 20th-Fox at anywhere from $5,000 to $25,000, with the stereophonic sound the most expensive item. Nothing is known of the cost of the Paramount and other widescreen systems. 20th hopes to equip about 1,000 houses with CinemaScope by the end of '53, with 500 a month going in after that.

In any event, if they involve a special screen, costs will go up. In discussing the screen to be used for the unveiling of the new Magna Theatre Corp.'s widescreen system at the Rivoli, N. Y., Joseph M. Schenck, Magna board chairman, put its cost at $20,000.

Stereo sound, for which considerable rewiring is necessary at the theatre, costs exhibs between $11,000 and $12,000. Three-dimensional pix, like Warner Bros.' "House of Wax," will come in two versions, with three added sound channels on tape and also with sound photographed on film for standard use.

Still another consideration pressing conversion costs upwards is that many of the larger houses will have to have the work done at night, following close of the last performance. This automatically ups union scales. Example is the Paramount Theatre, N. Y., where "House of Wax" will preem April 19. House is likely to spend in excess of $50,000 to get ready for the 3-D show.

Equipment manufacturers report lively interest in 3-D and widescreen among the first-runs but a tendency to "watch-and-wait" when it comes to many of the smaller situations. Key chains are naturally snapping up the novelty and are anxious to cash in on it. Feeling among the little guys is that it's better to gauge reaction to the first two or three 3-D pix before taking the jump.

Rush of orders already has created a bottleneck in screens, for which houses now have to wait anywhere from five to eight weeks. 20th reports that it has a sizeable number of orders for its CinemaScope and claims it fits any theatre. There is some disagreement about this among equipment men who aren't quite so optimistic.

Urge Film Biz

Continued from page 2

the public's point-of-view, interest in who will emerge the winner in any one given category centers largely in the acting awards and the Oscar pic, and less in the behind-the-scenes and technical departments.

One immediate difficulty about industry-sponsored Oscar TV shows is that it might be difficult to convince the studios to come across with the necessary coin. On the other hand, with RCA having set the pace, and the show having proved its entertainment potential, it's believed that the companies may view the problem in a different light.

Apart from other considerations, it had been one of the studio contentions that stars might not show up to best advantage in spontaneous TV appearances. Exhibs feel that this argument has now been laid to rest. Last week's Oscar show also has intensified interest in the proposed half-hour promotional TV show which the Motion Picture Assn. of America has blueprinted and which is under active consideration. The filmed stanza would plug the industry and would be sponsored.

Oldies

Continued from page 3

1.33 proportion, for comparison purposes, measures 16 feet, six inches in height and 22-foot base, or an area of 363 square feet. Screens vary, of course, in accordance with the size of each theatre. Par system has a 1.66 ratio so that the 16½-foot high screen would have a base of 27½ feet and an area of 454 square feet.

Par execs feel that a screen developed by Stableford Screens, London outfit, is best suited for the system. Distribution rights to the screen have been acquired by producer Sol Lesser and manufacturing rights have been taken by the Donford Corp., Kansas City, it was disclosed in N. Y. yesterday (Tues.).

Screen is concave in shape, can be reproduced in any size and is designed to meet the needs of various projection developments, including stereo, wide-vision and theatre television. Average installation for theatremen is figured at $5,000.

Whitecollarites

Continued from page 7

ditions for the exchange employees as those received by other home-office white collar employees.

Before granting strike permission, it is the policy of the IA to step into the negotiations, with either prexy Walsh or a top-level union exec taking part in the talks. Decision on approach will be made following the outcome of the meeting with the Government labor representative.

Film Exchange Employees, repping backroom staffers such as shippers and examiners, also received a turndown from the company negotiators. Union, however, hasn't indicated what action it plans. N. Y. talks are part of local exchange negotiations taking place throughout the country. Teams of film company reps have been dickering with unionites for about three months, but not a single contract has been finalized to date.

Shea Circuit's Meets

Shea Theatre circuit will hold a series of three regional meetings beginning April 21 in Zanesville, O. Confabs will cover sales and promotion for all Shea theatres in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Second palaver is set for Youngstown, O., on April 23, with third meeting for managers in the New England area slated for a later date. Gerald Shea, Richard A. Harper and Ray Smith will represent the homeoffice.

CinemaScope Answer For All Houses: O'Donnell

Hollywood, March 31.

After a special showing of CinemaScope on a 21-foot screen for Leonard Goldenson of United Paramount Theatres, John Balaban of Balaban & Katz, Bob O'Donnell of the Interstate Circuit and Bob Weitman of United-Paramount, the reaction was enthusiastic. Echoing the sentiments of the other three, O'Donnell said:

"This is the ultimate proof that CinemaScope is effective for any size theatre. It is as intimate and just as spectacular on a small screen as it is on the 65-foot screen. CinemaScope is the answer."

OZONERS RUSH M'PLS VS. FROST, SNOW & 3-D

Minneapolis, March 31.

Uncertainty as to whether 3-D and other new projection developments will be adaptable for drive-in theatre operation apparently isn't putting a damper on new ozoner construction in this territory. Rush to enter this field, previously unaffected by TV inroads on conventional theatre patronage, seemingly is continuing undiminished, as additional projects continue to be announced.

In the Twin Cities area, construction is being rushed on another new ozoner that will bring the section's total of outdoor theatres to nine. Other new outdoor theatres have just been planned or are in the construction stage in Bismarck, Devils Lake and Langdon, N. D.; Canby, Jackson, New Ulm and Montevideo, Minn., and in a number of South Dakota towns.

Many of the ozoners also are planning record early openings during the ensuing few weeks, although frost is still in the ground, there are occasional snowstorms yet, and temperatures drop to 15 or lower. Several have announced April 9 teeoffs, two weeks earlier than ever before.

Ill. Allied Head Pleads Caution in Stereo Moves

Chicago, March 31.

Jack Kirsch, head of Allied Theatres of Illinois, at the 23d annual election of officers last week, hailed the 3-D processes and CinemaScope as the most important matters before the industry today, but warned exhibs not to go overboard until some standardization could be established with the various systems. In his report he also urged continued action against the 20% excise tax and favorable going along with COMPO for at least another year.

He rehashed the old arguments about arbitration, saying as long as film rentals were not made a matter for discussion, that arbitration was futile. He admonished the producers, especially Republic, for selling films to teevee. Getting down to the state and local level, he warned against a proposal in the legislative hoppers which would bar actors from appearing in films or on the stage who had been convicted of a state or narcotics count. Kirsch, objecting to the bill, said if it passed it would give the industry a black eye by implying that Hollywood employs such people.

He said that Allied had done much in obtaining a reduction in county real estate taxes and that monies raised for La Rabida Sanitarium, the Variety Club project, exceeded the previous year by 10%.

Saroyan Sues Ex-Biz Manager in Tax Mixup

Hollywood, March 31.

As a result of an income tax mixup, William Saroyan filed suit against William Stern, his former business manager. He wants an accounting, plus penalties and interest on income taxes which, he charges, Stern neglected to pay on time.

Plaintiff declares Stern refused to make an accounting of $13,654 he handled during a six-month period from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1952.

Mae Marsh, former D. W. Griffith star, drew a role in "The Robe" at 20th-Fox... Steve Forrest will do a two-week tour of active army duty when he completes

Clips From Film Row

NEW YORK

Publicity and public relations advisory committee of Variety Clubs International meets at the Hotel Astor April 16 to judge entries in the organization's publicity story and photo contest in connection with Variety's activities. Press rep with best story wins an all-expense trip to Variety's convention in Mexico City next May. Winner in the photo end wins a $300 check.

Republic sales manager Walter L. Titus, Jr., left Sunday (29) for Tampa, then to Jacksonville and Atlanta.

WB to film 3-D short of National Hot Rod and Sports Car Show at Palisades Park, N. J., this month.

H. M. Richey, Metro exhibitor relations head, back from Milwaukee where he attended combined convention of drive-in theatres and Allied States unit there.

DALLAS

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Sterbenz sold their Follett Theatre, Follett, to L. A. Trout, local merchant.

C. C. Hamm, owner of the Queen, Quitaque and Harry Barnhill, owner of the Gem at Turkey, combined to construct a new 100-car ozoner.

The Star, Hillsboro, undergoing facelifting according to Ed Brin, one of owners of building housing the theatre.

E. T. Simpson, of McKinney, named general manager of the Walmur Amus. Co., operators of the Walmur and Princess, Bristow, Okla.

Charles Weisenburg, prez of Texas Drive-In Theatre Owner's Assn., announced the annual meeting of the group will be held here at the Adolphus Hotel April 14-15.

C. W. Moss, manager of Interstate Theatres at Paris since 1941, transferred to Tyler in similar capacity; will be succeeded by Truman Riley of Denison. Jimmy Neinast named to succeed as city manager at Denison.

Harry Gaines, assistant manager at Denison, being transferred to Brownwood as manager.

Paul W. Gay took over as manager of the Oasis, Kermit, Lariat and Tower Drive-Ins and the Kermit and the Rig at Wink; he replaces Frank Love, Jr.

S. L. Oakley, veepee of East Texas Theatres, announced the circuit will construct a new 678-car ozoner at Lufkin.

Lloyd D. Rust appointed office manager for United Artists film exchange here, replacing Roy Sach, moved to sales division.

The Capitan, operated by Albert Sussman and M. M. Lewis is now operating here under a first-run policy

James Neely took over as manager of the Cuero Drive-in and assistant manager of the Rialto at Cuero.

Owen Killingsworth, owner of circuit of theatres in Athens, bought a chain of houses in the Rio Grande Valley from R. N. Smith.

About 12,000 attended the preem of "Oil Town," a film with a Houston locale which was produced by Billy Graham. Pic was shown at the 8am Houston Coliseum, Houston, with 500 turned away.

MINNEAPOLIS

Century tied in on TV newspaper ad for "Toast of Town" announcing "I Love Melvin" due soon at house.

Film makeup artist Frank Westmore, in from Hollywood, grabbed off publicity for "City Beneath the Sea," Gopher Theatre underliner, by using localite as model to demonstrate various steps in makeup.

RKO exploiteer John Thompson here drum beating for "Hans Christian Andersen" which follows "Peter Pan" into the RKO-Orpheum.

Only one local house, Alhambra, indie nabe theatre, rushed in "Greatest Show on Earth," following Academy Award as "best picture," having had it booked for a month and a half. Picture had previously played seven weeks downtown and made rounds of most other later spots.

Mannie Youngerman, 20th-Fox utility salesman, covering city for Harry Fox while latter vacations in Florida.

Universal exploiteer Ed Borgen here to plan campaign for "City Beneath Sea."

United Artists had trade screening of "Moulin Rouge" and invited bids.

Wilbur Snaper and A. F. Myers, national Allied States president and general counsel, to attend North Central Allied convention here May 4-5.

Circuit owner Eddie Ruben vacationing in Florida.

Lauren H. Clark, owner of Arrow Theatre, Parkers Prairie, has announced that either 20% federal admission tax goes off in July or will close and dismantle his showhouse.

Southern Minnesota Exhibitors Assn., North Central Allied affiliate, members expressed concern at meeting here that 3-D development might sound death knell of many small theatres, especially those in towns of lesser population.

Minneapolis Federal Reserve bank's current report states Upper Midwest business activity was even with a year ago for first two 1953 months, but internal revenue department's admission tax collections, derived almost entirely from film theatres, shows a considerable drop for film exhibition.

Vet Columbia booker Joe Behan resigned.

Charles W. Perrine, Minnesota Amus. Co. veepee, elected a veepee of Civic & Commerce Assn.

PHILADELPHIA

William Goldman, head of indie Goldman Theatre chain off on five-week European vacation.

Warner Circuit's first-run Stanton, Philly's oldest first deluxer, is to get a facelift this summer.

Mastbaum will play WB's 3-D "House of Wax" later this month, with equipment borrowed from Aldine, also a Stanley operation.

Jac Beresin, international president of the Variety Clubs, will be feted with testimonial dinner April 20, with coin going to Philadelphia Tent 13 Heart Fund.

Imperial, West Philly nabe, purchased by Jimmy Toppi, local fight promoter, who will convert it into a rink. Purchase price was $40,000, with remodeling to cost $100,000.

Melvin Fox, indie chain operator, reopened three of his New Jersey drive-ins—Bridgeton, Vineland and Burlington.

W. C. Smith interests, which operate several ozoners in this area, are building new drive-in at Devon, Pa., on Philly's Main Line.

New Egypt Theatre, New Egypt, Pa., shuttered.

Dan D'Andrea, former Warner manager in South Jersey, now full time manager of Cumberland County Fair (Bridgeton), Jersey's second largest state fair.

PITTSBURGH

Morris Finkel converting Hilltop Theatre on Warrington Avenue into a storeroom, which will be occupied by the Warrington Variety Store. Finkel has another house operating in same neighborhood, the Capitol.

Robert Murphy, manager of Strand, a WB nabe, in Oakland, promoted to manager of circuit's big Columbia in Erie.

Alpine and Star in Wellsburg, W. Va., acquired under long-term leases, with purchase options, by Camillo Cionni from the Jur chain. Cionni opened Blue Moon Drive-In three years ago and just a few months ago entered standard theatre field when he acquired the Avella, Pa., theatre.

Joe Mazzei, owner of Grant Theatre, Millvale, and formerly house manager of downtown Art Cinema, revealed here last week as having been an undercover man for the FBI in the Communist party for the last 10 years.

Sid Jacobs, WB city district manager, out of hospital and expects to be back at his desk in a few days. He collapsed early last month.

Joe Shapiro, Mt. Union exhib, is on job again after checkup at Battle Creek, Mich.

Johnny Zomnir, UA salesman, returned to work following his convalescence from an operation.

Don Hayman left Uniontown, Pa., to Hollywood to handle, for the sixth straight year, special press, radio and TV exploitation for Coast opening of Clyde Beatty's circus. Hayman owns the Seneca and Tunnelton theatres in West Virginia.

Ken Hoel, former ad-pub head for Harris Amus. Co., and now with Norman Burk ad agency, handling campaigns around here for twin bills Col has been first-running in nabe and suburban houses.

Bryan Foy entering indie production with "The Mad Magician," to be filmed in Natural Vision.

Want to sample thrills thousands of miles away—make back-of-home armchair viewers pick up and GO? Want to do all this effectively and at low cost? Yes? Then . . . USE EASTMAN FILM.
FOR COMPLETE INFORMATION WRITE TO:
Motion Picture Film Department, EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY, Rochester 4, N. Y.
East Coast Division
342 Madison Avenue
New York 17, N. Y.
Midwest Division
137 North Wabash Avenue
Chicago 2, Illinois
West Coast Division
6706 Santa Monica Blvd.
Hollywood 38, California

Magna Bow With Musical

Continued from page 3

covers a 35m system of widescreen projection said to be different from the compressed-photography system used for 20th-Fox's CinemaScope.

Both systems and the screen are the invention of Dr. Brian O'Brien, v.p. in charge of research at American Optical at Southbridge, Mass., which is manufacturing the equipment and the special screen. It's estimated that the 65m installation, employing six-channel stereophonic sound, will cost around $25,000, whereas the 35m system will come to $15,000.

Lens Three Versions

The Magna musical will actually be lensed in three versions—65m, 35m widescreen and 35m regular. Schenck explained that the latter will be aimed primarily at the foreign market and would not be released "until we have saturated the field." It's Schenck's opinion that ordinary flat 35m films will eventually be sold as "subsidiary rights," similar to the way in which 16m is handled today.

Todd-AO screen to be used at the Rivoli will measure 52 feet in width and slightly more than 24 feet in height. Todd described it as being "very flexible" from the point of view of installation and as having a slightly more pronounced curve than Cinerama, which it emulates. Difference is that Todd-AO uses only one projector and is claimed to give the viewer a more pronounced sensation of being in the midst of what is happening on the screen around him.

Extensive projector changes are required when 65m film is used. Dr. O'Brien is patenting a new light source said to embody a new idea for keeping the equipment cool and the film from burning up despite the great increase in light intensity. American Optical Corp.'s instrument division in Buffalo is currently getting set to turn out the necessary projection units, with the first to be ready soon and another 14 currently being assembled. Total of 24 are expected to be ready by 1954.

License Other Studios

American Optical is also turning out the Todd-AO cameras, of which five are already available. Schenck said Magna may eventually license other studios to make pix in the new process. Some 60,000 feet of color black-and-white test footage have already been lensed. According to Todd, Ansco will provide wide-gauge color film and du Pont the black-and-white stock, with Eastman also ready to produce the stock. Todd is taking a sound expert to the Coast to work with the Ampex Co. on the stereophonic sound, which also poses production problems. Six sound channels on tape may eventually be reduced to three.

Schenck explained that Todd-AO is a Magna subsidiary, which will handle and lease the American Optical equipment to theatres. Both Magna and Todd-AO are closed companies, but Magna may eventually be thrown open for public investment "depending on the success of our first picture." Magna owns 75% of Todd-AO and American Optical 25%. George Skouras of United Artists Theatres is prexy of both outfits.

On the impressive Magna board, besides Schenck, Todd and Skouras, are Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 2d, Lee Shubert, Edward Small, Arthur Hornblow, who is v.p. in charge of production; Charles Seligson and Judge James Landis. Rodgers & Hammerstein will produce pix exclusively for Magna and may supervise the first musical.

While Samuel Goldwyn's name doesn't appear as one of the Magna backers, he declared in N. Y. Friday (27) that he was very well aware of what was going on. And he added: "Don't forget, I own almost 30,000 shares of United Artists Theatres stock."

While Schenck and Todd stressed that they would not be in competition with Cinerama or 20th's CinemaScope, Schenck nevertheless observed that "the best system will win in the end." It's planned to sharply limit the number of 65m roadshows and to give Magna productions wide circulation via the 35m widescreen system. Asked whether he would permit pix shot in the Todd-AO process to be shown in theatres equipped with CinemaScope screens, Todd said it would be up to Schenck to decide. "We are going to be very jealous of our system," Todd commented.

Todd, one of the Cinerama pioneers, sees the new system as "a parlay between the legitimate theatre and the picture industry. Going to the film theatre will become a premeditated proposition. This is where the new film era starts." Schenck said Spyros P. Skouras, 20th prexy and promoter of CinemaScope, had known of Todd-AO, "but not from the very beginning," and that when told about it, he hadn't appeared particularly upset. Schenck complimented CinemaScope as "a fine medium," but thought Cinerama "impractical."

3-D Keys

Continued from page 1

the number of first-run outlets is reduced.

Industryites tend to take the longrange view, however. They feel the special processes, requiring special equipment and productions, will have to face the competition from the regular theatres that also will be equipped with wide screens. It's felt that, while these houses may not come across with as imposing an image, they'll nevertheless take the edge off Cinerama and Todd-AO. 20th-Fox's CinemaScope, observers point out, stands a good chance for wide installation.

Once that point has been reached, the argument runs, it'll all come back to the same old showbiz axiom of the picture quality determining the final b.o. result, regardless of the gimmick used.

ABC-TV Quest

Continued from page 1

York yesterday (31), is expected to finalize deal with NBC as first item of business. She will star in her own variety show, with 26 appearances per year. ABC lost out to NBC because latter offered longterm payoff aspects.

In line with its policy of acquiring top talent, ABC signed comedian Danny Thomas last week to a long-term pact. Thomas will do a weekly half-hour show on film, starting in the fall, plus a radio show, nature of which hasn't yet been decided.

Acquisition of Thomas follows pacting of Ray Bolger, who will do a similar stint on radio and TV. Network is still negotiating for the services of Danny Kaye, Joel Gray and Sam Levenson.

Films will be made by Thomas' own production outfit at a reported price tag of $42,500 per show. Network will probably syndicate them following original network playoffs, with Thomas getting a share in the residuals.

'Bwana' in World Markets By Middle May Despite Print, Viewer Shortage

Despite the pronounced shortage of prints and polarized viewers, United Artists expects to open "Bwana Devil," the first 3-D feature, in all major world markets by mid-May. Arnold Picker, UA v.p. in charge of foreign distribution, reported in N. Y. last week (26).

Picker, who recently returned from a swing through Europe, where he set up dates for the pic and arranged for the necessary equipment, said he had found "tremendous enthusiasm" among exhibs abroad over 3-D and widescreen developments in this country. He added, however, that there also was a lot of confusion over what was what in the search for a new dimension.

"Bwana Devil" so far has opened in San Juan, Puerto Rico; Johannesburg, South Africa, and in four cities in England—London, Birmingham, Leeds and Glasgow. Everywhere, Picker asserted, the pic was doing outstanding biz. At the Plaza, Johannesburg, "Devil" broke all records during its first week's run, and the Lorraine, San Juan, where the film played without subtitles, did the biggest business on record, Picker said. He described the London biz as "sensational."

United Artists is using permanent glasses in Europe where patrons pay the equivalent of seven cents per showing for them. Picker indicated UA was pushing "Devil" openings abroad as much as possible, but added that "how fast we can get into volume distribution in those countries after playing the keys I don't know yet. So much depends on print and glasses availability."

He gave considerable credit to the Titra Laboratories for licking the problem of substituling 3-D pix, a precision job which at this moment can only be carried out by Titra's automatic titling machine in N. Y. The lab is building five more units of the equipment for use here and abroad.

Spec Lack

Continued from page 3

gow, where there is no Sunday opening permitted.

United Artists is proposing to transfer its 3-D opus to new situations as soon as receipts drop from their current peak level. It believes it will be to its advantage to move around quickly and cash in on the novelty value of the booking, rather than hold on at existing engagements once the take is on the decline. With Warners scheduled to open in the West End with "House of Wax" and Columbia moving in to a nabe situation with "Man in the Dark," UA will soon lose its advantage of being first in the field. For some time, of course, they will all be affected by the bottleneck in viewing spectacles, but adequate numbers are being made available both for Warners and Columbia for their scheduled openings.

The scarcity of glasses will persist until regular supplies of polaroid sheeting can be imported into Britain. The viewers must be made locally, but the raw material is a dollar import from the States. Apart from the fact that polaroid sheeting is in short supply, the British Treasury is not enthusiastic at the prospect of having to free dollar currency to permit unlimited imports.

Quickie Pix

Continued from page 3

the country where the film can be exhibited. Ozoners, for example, occasionally book the stripix for special midnight showings. There is also interest in the foreign market for the burley films. Right to "Holdup," according to Sensational, have been sold for Belgium and the Belgium Congo for a flat $1,500.

Unique aspects attendant to the production of a stripic include two versions of the strip sequences—"dressed" and "undressed" ones. For states with censor boards, bumps and grinds are eliminated and peelers strip to panties and bras. Original musical scores are used, since employment of stock burlesque tunes requires royalty payments. From the distribution standpoint, no print is made until a definite booking has been set.

Censors On March Again

Continued from page 3

jecting films, the measure says the board shall approve such films which are moral, decent and proper. It also authorizes the board to reject films tending to incite an immediate breach of the peace or advocating, teaching or advising the overthrow of the Government by revolution, force or violence. Permits would also be required for the showing of films by schools, religious groups and charitable institutions. Bill also calls for upping of salary of chief censor from $3,200 to $6,000 and his associates from $2,750 to $4,000.

Many groups in the state are particularly burned at the attempt to censor non-commercial showings by libraries, schools, etc. Thomas King, director of the Maryand Academy of Sciences, termed the bill "just an extension of bureaucracy," and Miss Amy Winslow, director of the Enoch Pratt Free Library, said the measure was "a step backward" at a time when the courts are placing films in the same category as the free press.

Ohio, considered by the industry as the most vulnerable state with a censorship law, continues as the most active scissors wielder. Foreign films appear to be the chief victim of the Buckeye censor board. On Friday (27), it completely rejected the Mexican-made film, "The Young and the Damned," a Mayer-Kingsley release. According to the distrib's Ed Kingsley, immediate court action would be instituted against the Ohio board. He pointed out that the film had been okayed with some cuts by the censor bodies of both New York and Pennsylvania and had been approved untouched by the censorship authorities of England. It was banned in Boston.

Ohio Snipping

"Justice Is Done," the French import being distributed by Joseph Burstyn, is not entirely satisfactory to the Ohio blue-pencillers, the board demanding certain cuts before it can be exhibited in the state. Two cases, involving the films "Native Son" and "M," are currently being weighed by the Ohio Supreme Court and a decision is expected to be handed down momentarily. If the distribs of these films receive an adverse ruling, they have indicated they will take the cases to the U. S. Supreme Court. Meanwhile, the industry is submitting newsreels to the Ohio board under protest based on a Toledo municipal court decision ruling that the pre-restraint of newsreels is an unconstitutional infringement of freedom of the press.

An attempt to repeal the Ohio censorship statute by legislation is currently being made. A bill, introduced by Sen. Charles Mosher, Republican of Overland, O., is being weighed by the state's legislature. Hearings are expected to get under way in about two weeks. If enacted, the repeal would be effective next October. Manning (Tim) Claggett, of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, left for Columbus Friday (27) to confer on industry strategy with Robert Wile, executive secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio. Exhib org has been extremely active in attempts to eliminate the Ohio censor board.

Puzzling Moves

Georgia recently passed a so-called "censorship law" aimed at elimination of obscene literature from the state. Whether films would be involved has not been indicated.

In Illinois, a bill has been introhibit theatres from showing pictures in which an actor, convicted of violation of a state or Federal narcotics act, appears as a player. It also prohibits personal appearances of such persons in film houses and prescribes penalties. Allied Theatres of Illinois, fighting the bill, charges it is discriminatory and is typical of the smears the industry is constantly subjected to.

The continued activity of censor boards is puzzling to some industryites in light of decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court last spring in the "Miracle" and "Pinky" cases. The high tribunal said that "expression by motion pictures is within the free speech and free press guarantees of the First and 14th Amendments." The continued existence of censor bodies, attorneys note, is not due to defiance of the Supreme Court. It is based on confusion as to the precise meaning of the high court's opinion and the extent to which its rulings must be observed by the local blue-pencillers.

Qualifying statements made by Justices Tom C. Clark and Stanley Reed have convinced industry attorneys that the complete elimination of film censorship may have to be done on a piecemeal basis, with each snipping action being tested separately. Attorneys further contend that it bears out the court's reluctance to make sweeping all-encompassing decisions and indicates a predilection to make rulings on specific facts of the case only. The film censorship cases, they note, leave open the question of whether each member of the press (including films) is equally protected.

Parlay

Continued from page 7

constant reports of additional installations. Opinion is that the smart money is not making any choice but is planning to utilize every method that'll bring customers into theatres, including the use of conventional flat films.

Indication of an intra-industry fight was contained in the Jack L. Warner statement decrying the "self-elected spokesman who make decisions for the public and the mystic mumbo-jumbo beclouding the facts of stereoscopic film photography." Warner's views were issued almost immediately following the unveiling of 20th's CinemaScope, a wide-screen technique that does not require the use of specs. Although it's pointed out that Warner had to make the statement to maintain a competitive position for his company's 3-D stereopic, "House of Wax," industryites feel the studio chieftain has helped to bring the situation out into the open.

M-G to Get CinemaScope Lenses by Mid-April

Twentieth Century-Fox expects to deliver the first CinemaScope shooting lenses to Metro around April 15, with the latter's "Knights of the Round Table," first M-G pic in the widescreen process, due to roll in mid-May.

Spyros P. Skouras, 20th prexy, flies to Europe next week. It's understood that he'll try to step up the production of CinemaScope camera and projection lenses.

New York Theatres

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center
DORIS DAY • GORDON MacRAE
"BY THE LIGHT OF THE SILVERY MOON"
color by TECHNICOLOR • A Warner Bros. Picture
plus THE MUSIC HALL'S GREAT EASTER STAGE SHOW

Alfred Hitchcock's
I Confess
MONTGOMERY CLIFT
ANNE BAXTER
In Person
MISS PATTI PAGE
BOBBY SARGENT
CLARK BROTHERS
JERRY WALD and ORCHESTRA
PARAMOUNT

Beaulieu Vineyard
BV
Wines
At your next dinner party, serve proudly one of the world's finest wines... grown on the de Latour vineyard-estate in lovely Napa Valley.
Beaulieu Vineyard, Rutherford, California

Available For Immediate Use!
NEW 35mm 3-D CAMERA
STEREOVISION, INC. Burbank, Calif. ROckwell 9-3144

Hotel St. Regis, N. Y.

Rosalind Courtright; Milt Shaw and Horace Diaz Orchs; $1.50 and $2.50 cover.

Rosalind Courtright is a show biz anomaly—a stagestruck gal who is really good. The wife of Hernando Courtright, boss man of the Beverly Hills Hotel, she is a famed Hollywood hostess but prefers to gravitate around the hotel and nitery plusheries and make good on her own as a chanteuse. She delivers all the way in sound professional manner. She is a good stylist, a classy chassis personality, and obviously a painstaking performer as she bespeaks with her constantly new and improving songalogs.

In spring green-decored costuming, she is at ease and not overgarbed at the slick Maisonette Room of the St. Regis as she unspools a warm opener, "There's Nothing Nicer Than People to Greet You," followed by "Shopping Around," "Because You're Mine," "He Takes Me Off His Income Tax," "King and I" excerpts, "Hold Me," "My Carer" (with Merman and Hildegarde variations) and "Viva la Vie." Her repertoire is versatile; she does ballads and saucy lyrics with equal facility, and the end result is a solid click in this big league room.

Per usual, the ultra violin-batoning of Milt Shaw's backer-uppering, and Horace Diaz's Latinesters make for some of the best "society" dansapation in town. Per usual, too, maitre d' August and his capable veteran staff know their catering pews and cues in a manner that goes handily with this suave Pierre Bultinck hotel operation. Abel.

Mocambo, L. A.

Los Angeles, March 25.

Mary McCarty, Eddie Oliver Orch (7), Joe Castro Orch (4); $2 cover.

Broadway's "Small Wonder" girl, Mary McCarty, has grown into a rather large headliner on the class bistro time. After several starts here she has finally "arrived" and is ready to be "discovered" all over again by pictures and television.

There's a little bit of three others in this animated colleen, who ranges in repertoire from sly innuendo to controlled violence. When she raises her voice in song, there's a trace of Merman. Her wilder moments of comedy conjure up Martha Raye. In her flights of imitative fancy there's a wistful touch of Tanguay, with hands gesturing wildly and every fibre strained. To wrap up opening-nighters as she did in this spot—and there's no tougher audience anywhere—just about shoos her in for the rest of the stand.

There's a rich lode of versatility in this performer, who got her big break in the N. Y. stager, "Small Wonder," and went on from there to moderate success. As a singing comedienne she must be rated in the first 10 but, in fairness, she has facets that most of the other don't have. Her pantomime is a delight, she can mimic with the best of 'em and removes any offense from her impressions of a tipsy dame brushing off the passes of her motel companion. Her panto of a silent picture star emoting through a dramatic scene is high skill.

Most of her songs are coated with satire, but she's equally facile at serious rendition, with strong pipes and pleasant tonal quality. Some of her material could stand sharpening and her hillbilly number she can do without. Eddie Oliver's crew gives her a musicianly backup and with Joe Castro keeps the small floor alive with shuffling feet. Helm.

Fairmont Hotel, S. F.

Hildegarde, Bob Norris Orch (10); $2 cover.

There is a new welcome verve to Hildegarde's melange which stems from an enhanced pacing and cohesion. These, added to the chantoosie's always notable handling and shading of material, achieve new dimension for the star which is a desirable addition to her performance, especially for longtime fans who are familiar with her wares. She still weaves that spell but the pacing makes for a more compact, faster-moving package of entertainment, and her discontinuance of her rose purveying and substitution of an "interview" with one guest (male when caught) is also a speeder-up all to the good in the Venetian Room.

Hildegarde, by thus cutting down on the interlarding, is able to roll off an extensive repertoire in her 50-minute compote of song, piano and chatter. Garbed in a white satin accordion-pleated gown garnished with a transparent, flaming red coat, she breezes on with a warmer-up "Relax" and then scores with a sentimental "Let's Try Again." From this point on she pitches a varied succession of items, all of them solid, several of them exceptional.

A "Jingle Bells" parody, in French, is well received and serves as a natural lead into "Merrily, Merrily," a waltz which is a step-off to her bit with a ringsider which begins with a dance around the floor and winds with a gaffest onstage. This is infectious stuff that sits well with the customers if not with the victim.

Succeeding tune text includes a trilogy of her signatures, "The Last Time I Saw Paris," her theme, "Darling Jai Vous Aime Beaucoup," and "I'll Be Seeing You," all of which are paydirt. On lighter side are two German tunes, gleaned from her recent Continental GI tour, "Bake A Kuchen" and "Slazkommergut," an excerpt from "An American In Paris." As a closer for the vocals the thrush has another click in a medley of the '20s consisting of "Lady Be Good," "I Don't Know Why" and "Gimme a Little Kiss." Finale at the piano, with longhair interpretation of "All The Things You Are," is a crescendo bowoff.

This is not an ideal room for Hildegarde with its narrow frontage and hence a lessening in lighting and romantic impact, but her material is better than since her first local socko and her accelerated pacing is a credit to her adaptability and basic entertainment appeal.

Music by the Bob Norris troupe is tops for both show and terping. Ted.

Hotel Roosevelt, N. O.

New Orleans, March 27.

Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy, The Talbots, Ted Weems Orch (15); $2.50 minimum.

The home folks, plus out-of-towners in large numbers here for conventions, gave Mary Healy and hubby Peter Lind Hayes a lavish welcome at the opening of their four-week stand in this plush Blue Room. And the Mr. and Mrs. team, in turn, rewarded first-nighters with one of the brightest shows seen here in months.

It's Miss Healy's first appearance in her native city as a name since she was a starlet with 20th-Fox and her marriage to Hayes. City officials, civic leaders and a host of kin and friends turned out to give her a big homecoming.

It took the capacity crowd a few minutes to adjust themselves to the team's effortless comedy, but once they were warmed, the reception was solid all the way. They smash over a wide assortment of satirical bits, impressions of name personalities and songs. After kicking off with their lyrical trademark, "Getting To Know You," they wham over a series of characterizations that spark the tempo of the rest of their stint. Hayes' thespic ability is highlighted in a routine of a souse carrying a torch, meshing a combination of comedy and tragedy with skill. Another hilarious bit is that of a well-heeled Texan returning aboard an ocean liner after touring Europe.

Miss Healy has transformed herself into a fine comedienne and mimic since her bathing beauty days in New Orleans and expertly fits her sense of comedy into the overall pattern. A highspot of the act is their duet in which they cartoon Ethel Merman and Russell Nype. She draws enthusiastic applause with the Merman mimicking. Other top takeoffs are on Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, and Mario Lanza and Judy Holliday.

Encores brought lampooning of toothy dancers, a TV addict's nightmare, with a recorded commercial to end all commercials as background (with Hayes acting them out), and "Disk Jockey Blues." Latter gives them opportunity to present impreshes of name singers. Their good voices are big assets in this instance.

The Talbots, a tall lissome blonde and her handsome male partner, present a terp turn that is imaginatively conceived. His gravity-defying spins are spontaneous applause-getters. Their down-to-earth attitude infects patrons and enhances the act's value.

Ted Weems and crew, playing their fifth engagement in the poshy spot, repeat the favorable impression made in previous appearances. The vet maestro has assembled a group that's equally strong on the vocal, novelty and musical sides, and provides a generous portion of the show. Dancers flock to the floor during the dance sessions. Grabbing their share of the evening's mittings are Bonnie Ann Shaw, thrush who also whistles; Glenn West, Ray Sullinger and Red Ingle, members of the crew who also make a solid entertainment contribution to the show. Weems emcees capably with minimum of chatter. Lluz.

La Vie En Rose, N. Y.

Peggy Lee (5), Bob Whalen, Van Smith Trio; $3 minimum.

Peggy Lee will wham 'em and jam 'em for three frames at Monte Proser's joie de vivre eastsidery. There's nothing but a bigtime aura about the glamour puss, and she invests her chirp chores with that extra-curricularity at no extra charge. Additions encompass bleating with her eyes, her hands, come-hither hips and other nuances projected with warmth and felicitous salesmanship.

Fetching silver blonde cafe-debuted at the Copa (Proser's ex) just two years ago and since then she's been a frequent TV filliper plus a show of her own on a Mel Torme pairing, a bestseller waxer via "Lover" (Decca) and made the film grade as Danny Thomas' vis-a-vis in WB's "Jazz Singer." This doesn't take in her vaude and nitery knitting, for one of the most active of show bizzers.

Striking in a gunmetal net strapless with pink showthrough—and add that hair-do—she rides, slides and glides over a flock of songs that run out the string in casing her versatility, pace and handling—from teeoffer "Under My Skin" to the thunderous "Lover." In between she caresses a Russ Columbo oldie, pays obeisance to Benny Goodman in a blues (she's BG's ex-thrush), reverses suddenly for her evergreen "Get Me Some Money" and draws a large yock on latter, quipping "that's on Capitol, but I'm Decca now."

Before a costume change Miss Lee gives newer significance to "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," and then, in fluffy feathers, socks over "Hard-Hearted Hannah," complete with a modified bump-and-grind route and a sparkling pistol prop. In this one, her quartet of backer-uppers don derbies, and she uses the occasion to pay tribute to her support. Leader is Jack Rowles at the piano, with other instrumentation being bass, trumpet doubling on congadrum, and regular percussion. They do nobly by Miss Lee in providing unmistakable production facets.

After a torcher, the singer smashes over with her trademarked "Manana" and sustains the click, but in a sharply contrasting mood, with an English folker, "The Riddle Song," which she articulates with a deep sense of the lyrical values.

"Lover" finale has Lee capturing La Vie with all the stops out and she encores with a partial reprise of it to work herself off. There's no doubt she could have been at it through the night.

Other turn is Bob Whalen, a pleasant tenor in his N. Y. preem (New Acts). Van Smith Trio operates neatly for the lulls and Whalen's stint. Trau.

Palmer House, Chi

(EMPIRE ROOM)

Chicago, March 27.

Kyle MacDonnell, Tippy & Cobina, Skeets Minton, DeMattiazzis (2), Bob DeVoye & Betty Lorraine, Clare Leonard, Merriel Abbott Dancers (8), Emil Coleman Orch (12); $3.50 minimum, $1.10 cover.

This overextended vaude show needs a lot of juggling—not in the act sense—and also hefty pruning. While all the turns are well received, the pacing tends to bog down. There is just too much.

Kyle MacDonnell makes her midwest debut here and does a neat job. She worked under improper conditions hindered by a wayward mike system. Pretty blonde has the vocal equipment to sing without a p.a. system and act would have greater effect if she freed herself from it.

Video star appears at her best with a medley of tunes from hit shows she's been associated with and has a good piece of special material about Suzabelle Jones, a young lass who rises to great heights in the film industry and makes an equally rapid descent into obscurity.

Tippy & Cobina are the real show-stoppers, the monkeys capturing the audience with their antics. While the simians are possibly not members of the AFM, there are looks of envy from some of the cardholders in Emil Coleman's band as the pair make the room jump with a maracus and bongodrum session. Running chit-chat with their trainers is a producer of hearty laughter, but the heavy applause-getter is the playing of "People Will Say We're in Love" by Tippy on the miniature solovox.

Skeets Minton is an accomplished ventriloquist who, in between some lukewarm jokes, does a fine manipulation job on his dummy. He has some sharp pop singer takeoffs which don't have the usual tinny sound of ventro crooners; in fact, he has some surprisingly good deep tones for which he gets a brisk hand on "Old Man River."

DeMattiazzis open the revue with their socko imitation doll dance. Although by now their payoff is known, it holds audience interest through the tight timing and doll-like shuffling.

Bob DeVoye and Betty Lorraine repeat their solo offerings in the production number and Clare Leonard does an able job on chirping the line selections. Emil Coleman acquits himself nobly in the showbacking slot as well as bringing the customers onto the floor in between revues. Zabe.

Birdland, N. Y.

Sarah Vaughan, Erroll Garner Trio, Tito Puente Orch (10); $2.50 minimum.

Sarah Vaughan is in for a week following her European tour. She'll be gone by the time Billy Eckstine moves in next door at the Bandbox, but meanwhile, Birdland should register solid biz.

Miss Vaughan's performance here is on the listless side, for her. Perhaps the friendly atmosphere makes her too relaxed. Runs through a few of her standards, does a delicate job on "I Ran All the Way Home" and closes with "Perdido." Most of it was perfunctory, except for the laughs all around when she got lost doing "Perdido" at show caught. John Malachi does a fine piano accomp, and Wyatt Ruther and Eugene (Fats) Heard, borrowed from the Erroll Garner Trio, blend in nicely on bass and drums.

Garner is the real star of this bill. His pianistics, supported by Ruther and Heard, run the gamut from hard, driving jazz to deftly fingered ballads. Garner, for all his heavy-handed style, can be amazingly lightfingered at times, as in his version of "Avalon." In the ballad category, he's tops with "Might as Well Be Spring" and "Can't Get Started."

Tito Puente orch, four brass and six rhythm, supplies loud, driving mambas for the numerous Latino devotees. Pee Wee Markette does okay emceeing. Chan.

Le Carrousel, Paris

Paris, March 24.

Le Carrousel presents "Impressions," revue in three tableaus, with Zambella, Pierre Gurvan, Sandre, Valdes, Coccinelle, Claude Lamara, Roger Stefani, Cricri, Hula Djengo, Ivan; additional music, Fred Freed; Sam Stinn Orch (5); decor, Aubin, Valdes; costumes, North; choreography, Stefani, Maurandi; $3 minimum.

Le Carrousel, in its plush new surroundings two doors down from the old location on Rue Colisee off the Champs Elysees, still houses the best femme impersonation show in town. Benefitting from extreme care in costuming, well-written show and talented troupe, this is always an eye-filling and beguiling bill that draws the French carriage trade and makes it at least worth one visit for the tourist. Show can be enjoyed by all, though some of the wittier moments are reserved for those hep to the lingo. Club has regular price level, and when caught was SRO.

Show starts with a series of impressions of various towns as an intro to the femme impersonators. Solid costumes and jewelry and hep individual numbers get this off to a good start. Second part has a takeoff on various impressionist painters with the performers bringing to life several famed tableaus. This leads to fine costume moments and a rousing can-can in the Lautrec section. Show winds with a hoff and at times wicked takeoff on femme thesps and personalities in the public eye, and some uncanny imitations of Edith Piaf, Suzy Solidor and Josephine Baker.

Some of the group like Zambella, Coccinelle, Ivan and Gigi would make Christine Jorgensen extremely envious. Dances are well arranged on the small platform by Roger Stefani, who also does a snappy can-can. Valdes plays the comic and satiric characters with a flair and pacing that make every appearance a delight. He also does a batch of quick walkons with fantastic costumes and four-inch eyelashes always good for a yock. Zambella is the femgenue of the show and no Danish doctor could tell him from a Folies chorine. He does an aud participation number good for big mitting.

Nothing tawdry or off-level about this show. Sam Stinn orch plays good interim dance music for the patrons who hoof on the stage. Additional music is in the diseuse vein and adequate. Same management also runs Chez Madame Arturs on Rue Des Martyrs which is a more ribald type of femme interping for those looking for this kind of entertainment. Mosk.

Last Frontier, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, March 24.

Marilyn Maxwell, Noonan & Marshall, Kirby Stone Quintet, Cliff Ferre, Roy Fitzell, Dolores Frazzini, Devlyn Dancers (10), Bob Miller Orch (10); produced by Sammy Lewis; no cover or minimum.

What started out to be a tabshow "Panama Hattie" as vehicle for Marilyn Maxwell, turned out to be a mildly threaded plot skein under a new title, "Belle of New Orleans." The Sammy Lewis package put together especially for this room is not depending upon the name concoction to bring in roomfuls, but upon the surprisingly good lure of Miss Maxwell. Once drawn into the nitery, tablers are in for another eye opener—a competent and clicko performance from a Hollywoodian who displays savvy in her new metier. (See New Acts).

Noonan & Marshall have come a long way since their first big break-in couple of years ago in Vegas. As a team, it's mostly Noonan's terrif funnyhiz that puts the house in a fit of yocks. Marshall has wisely minimized his comedic approach to give his partner the lion's share of the spot, and results pay off. Noonan's great characterization in lampoon of a British cinema director is tops, yet not equalling for sheer hoke his Chef Alberti and cake-mix episode. Marshall's solo is a warble of "Embraceable You," while Noonan inserts offstage lines of what a crooner thinks while purring for the populace. Lads set up dialog earlier for Miss Maxwell's entrance with Cliff Ferre, but nothing sparkling emerges.

Kirby Stone Quintet unloads musical and vocal dynamite within the already loaded parcel. Expert comedy touches around the various novelty tunes, with each member coming in for several cuties—and all in a frantic pace—unlimber palms right from entrance to bow-off. Featured warbler, "Cow Eyes," has curtailed his vocal bombasts plus energetic songstyle since suffering a broken leg in an auto accident a few months ago. Such an impediment, however, hasn't seemed to slow him down as spark of the combo.

Cliff Ferre unlimbers a mild sesh of legmania, also comes in for three-way gab as gob on shipboard with Noonan & Marshall, and teams with Miss Maxwell during finale for some tapistry. He gets credit for some special lyrics throughout show.

Devlyn Dancers take an immediate theme setup with opening "Mardi Gras," spotting the fine ballet-styled terps of Roy Fitzell. Latter returns in finale with Dolores Frazzini legging a rousing cakewalk, having ensemble and cast forming bright pic for curtain. Bob Miller has quite a chore on the podium with many cues and scores, but sails right along for neat backing. Will.

Monteleone Hotel, N. O.

(SWAN ROOM)

New Orleans, March 25.

Roberta Quinlan, Mickey West & Bernie Ross, Danny Deane Orch (7); $2.50 minimum.

The Swan Room continues its policy of "new face" acts and it all adds up to an entertaining layout. Latest is Roberta Quinlan, known hereabouts for her TV appearances on the "Mohawk Showroom" and guest video appearances.

Attractive thrush sets well in the spot's intimate surroundings and acceptance is warm. She clicks with a well-handled group of tunes that range from "You Do Something To Me" to a medley of "I'll Be Seeing You," "Then I'll Be Happy" and "Once In Awhile," plus other nostalgic bits done in torchy style to her own accompaniment on the keys. Petite blonde warbler gives caressing treatment to ballads and is also standout in oldies like "A Good Man Is Hard To Find," which she does as an encore.

Miss Quinlan does her stint in two stanzas—standing at the mike and at the 88. She seems more relaxed and assured seated at the piano, and registers more effective vocally.

West & Ross, a couple of zanies, lampoon everything from the flickers to TV commercials. They don't depend wholly on gags, but extract guffaws from everyday situations. Consequently, their lines do not seem to have been ground of the Joe Miller comedy mill. Their turn is a conglomeration of what one might see and hear, plus some burlesque impressions of a woman on a shopping spree and a sedate store floorwalker.

Danny Deane and his crew back the show and play for ankle-action. Tableholders like their rhythms. Lluz.

Riviera, Miami Beach

Miami Beach, March 28.

Larry Steele's "Smart Affairs of '53" with Butterbeans & Susie, 3 Chocolateers, Conrad & Estelle, Olivette Miller, La Bonnie,. 2 Olivette Miller, La Bonnie,. 2 Earls, Beige Beauts (6), Jimmy Tyler Orch with Merdis Thomas; $3.50 minimum.

In a surprise move, Bill Miller reopened his Riviera (ex-Copa City) and installed spot's first all-colored revue. Figuring he'd have a chance for the patronage that has filled this town for the Easter holiday—what with Ciro's, Latin Quarter and Beachcomber shuttered—he's also set the tariff at a $3.50 food or beverage charge, to entice the buck-wary types around.

The Larry Steele unit played this town three seasons back at the Cotton Club, now the Latin Casino. Basic pattern is same as last time out, but the emcee-producer-writer has wisely blended in several sock acts to buttress the overall fast-moving revue which, in the main, keeps hearty and reaction maintained. It is in his own emceeing that Steele lets down the pace, his long, wordy intros slowing matters.

Standouts are Conrad & Estelle, Olivette Miller and the Earls. In Conrad & Estelle he's come up with a brace of terpers who sock with ballet-styled leaps and spins. Lad is a lithe, graceful prancer and keeps mitts mounting, with his partner joining in adding excitement via a "Blues Ballet" that is imaginatively staged.

Jazz harpist Olivette Miller set them pounding with her showmanly approach and fingering skill; attractive lass is handsomely gowned. Spells out "I've Got You Under My Skin" for instrumental showing, then adds vocal on "Black Magic" that brought encore topper a boogie-woogie beat that the crowd bought big.

Aero balancing of the Two Earls is another scorer. Hand-to-hand, shoulder lifts and arm stands, plussed by harmonica bit with the acrobatics, set them for callback. They pay off with a howl-raising judo bout for solid novelty bit.

Three Chocolateers also set well with their solo, duo and triple hoofery, comedy and knockabout routines. All of their stuff is laugh-angled, for a click with tablehold-ers. Butterbeans & Susie are standard with Steele's units and vet vaulders maintain the mood with their patter, songs and eccentric dance. Butterbeans adds to sight values with some yock-raising comedy outfits. It's tried and true stuff that comes off to hearty plaudits.

Odd insert in the lineup is grind artist La Bonnie. It's a fast turn and the torso-twister knows her biz. Question is, will it go with the family biz Miller is seeking to attract?

Jimmy Tyler and his orch tee off matters with two jazz arrangements, both brought off in the slambang tradition set by other Negro bands playing the area this season. Session proves more deafening than entertaining. Vocalist Merdis Thomas handles her two assignments in apt fashion with "Tenderly" especially well rendered.

Line is an attractive one and works out chores in sprightly manner. Steele has costumed them in colorful design with middle number a western idea that shows originality. Steele heads up the numbers and handles the intro. Cipser bringing on the gals via talk background, is a long and unnecessary addition to the show.

Larry.

Sahara, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, March 24.

Beatrice Kay with Sylvan Green, Harry Mimmo, Baro & Rogers, Amin Bros. (2), Dewey Stokes (2), Gene Louis, Johnny O'Brien, Sa-Harem Dancers (12), Cee Davidson Orch (12); no cover or minimum.

Beatrice Kay will make the large Congo Room jump for her two frames. An established fave—and an El Rancho Vegas fave at that—Miss Kay has been "loaned" to the Sahara for this fortnight, but will play the Rancho later on this year. Same sort of deal between bonifaces of the two spas was worked out in the Harry Mimmo pact. He first played Vegas several months ago across the street from the Sahara in the posh-rustic Katleman empire.

The Kay boisterousness is good for this spacious room, and with her clowning plus known quantity in Memory Lane songalog, she ropes boisterous enthusiasm. Sylvan Green comes in for some amusing byplay noodling accompanying.

Mimmo was padding his session a little tonight, but has since been trimmed to proportion. Best sight stuff is oldtime flicker miming, the Fred Astaire impresh, and his nervous hand gestures. Good yocks roll his way throughout.

Baro & Rogers ply their hoke ballrooming for running chuckles with breakaway dress suit on Baro and falling tresses on Miss Rogers adding comic effect to knockabouts.

Startling risley and balancing puts the two Amin Bros. in top category with tablers. One trick in particular has underman prone on table balancing frere on upright legs, when with a flip tosses topman into headstand on one foot sans hands. Plenty of mitting follows each display, with ovation at close.

Sa-Harem Dancers exhibit their usual lavish George Moro choreos, prancing a delightful "Singing in the Rain," a midway swing thing, and mad "Charleston" finale. Gene Louis comes to the fore in "Rain," plus grabbing orbs for his John Held, Jr., racoon-coated outfit and terps in latter. Dewey Sisters are spotted in the halfway line routine, giving some rubbery acroflips for added value. Johnny O'Brien melodizes production numbers and carries capable emcee load. Cee Davidson orch fills a topnotch slot on showbacking.

Will.

Mapes Skyroom, Reno

Reno, March 26.

Buddy Lester, Bunny Bishop, Jimmy Vey, Mapes Skylettes, Eddie Fitzpatrick Orch; no cover or minimum.

Buddy Lester appeared across the Truckee in a competitor's spot just five months ago with "The Diamond Jim Brady Revue" and is word-for-wording in this show. Although still fresh in the minds of locals, the material nevertheless holds up.

Harry Richman impresh is the finale of a series of hat acts as he rummages through a box and comes up with various chapeaus. A trek through the African jungle is accented by a collection of imitations, evidently caused by heat deliriums.

Lester's nonsensical stint is characterized by complete "disgust" with a square aud. If the bits and jokes themselves don't register, Lester can usually salvage himself by feigning distaste, throwing down his hat with "Geez" . . . standard for most comics lately.

Bunny Bishop makes her bid with initial song, "I Feel (one) Coming On," which seems forever getting launched with ponderous intro. Voice has a musicomedy flavor and could probably go sans mike. Blonde and dimpled, Miss Bishop looks like a personality but displays none, saying absolutely nothing between four songs. Although opening night probably contributed to flaws. "Don't Let the Stars Get in Your Eyes" goes for naught. Perhaps a more standard repertoire would aid her.

Jimmy Vey is doing his seventh job on these boards. He taps vigorously, pounds the xylophone snappily and, in a condensation, does both at the same time.

Marc.

La Ronde, London

London, March 27.

The Harmonics (4), La Ronde Trio, Peter Daminoff Orch; $3 minimum.

The West End's newest nitery, just off Piccadilly, is probably the nearest approach London has to the intime atmosphere so popular across the channel in Paris. There are fewer than 100 covers, the decor has a Gaelic charm, while the illuminated glass dance floor provides an additional dash of color. And the below-average minimum tag of $3 should give it an added popularity during this period of money scarcity.

Because of its limited gross potential, La Ronde cannot contemplate entering the bigleague cabaret talent field, but must content itself with modest attractions which, while not being a customer lure, will provide a pleasing diversion. That is about the measure of the Harmonics, a vocal quartet recruited from the cast of "South Pacific." They have a pleasant harmony style and freely use some intricate arrangements, but this is an act which could be readily adapted to vaudeville where its impact could be far stronger. Their negative qualities as cabaret do not imply criticism of their vocal skill.

As an embellishment, the nitery has a trio of dancing girls, one of whom does a Spanish solo with castanets; decorative but hardly justifying the expense. The Peter Daminoff combo does a fine job on the dais alternating the terping music with table serenading.

Myro.

Village Vanguard, N. Y.

Anita Ellis, Irwin Corey, Pat Carroll, Clarence Williams Trio; $3.50 minimum.

With the Vanguard practically the only remaining Village nitery presenting talent on a par with the uptown eastsideries, business there continues brisk. Current show is largely holdover, with Anita Ellis, who appeared at VV last fall, returning as the newcomer to a talent-laden bill.

Miss Ellis is a thoroughly pro songstress who puts her numbers across with authority and a flair for dramatics to keep her audience sold all the way. Tunes are largely in the blues vein, and she punctuates them with tricky variations in modulation and clever posturing. Tops are her editions of "A Woman is a Sometime Thing" and a Spanish gypsy song. Two minor drawbacks: her choice of "If You Were the Only Girl in the World" is a bit too delicate for her style, and her habit of clutching at her dress is distracting.

Irwin Corey, holding over, rolls them with his malaprops, switch in accents from British to Brooklynese and general disheveled appearance. "The world's foremost authority . . ." has a solid bit of business on the history of armies that's the mainstay of his turn. He encores with some nonsense with the ringsiders and bows off with a hilarious panto to the Figaro aria from "Barber of Seville."

Pat Carroll is a fresh young comedienne with all the attributes that can bring her to the top of the heap. Here her material is good, but routining is poor. She opens with an excellent number called "Smile," but from that point on her stuff is progressively less effective. Her impresh of Mae West telling a fairy tale is basically a good idea, but it's too drawn out. Some judicious cutting and some switching of material would show her off to far better advantage.

Clarence Williams Trio does a good job backing the acts and provides rhythmic dansapation.

Chan.

Gatineau, Ottawa

Ottawa, March 27.

Louis Armstrong & All-Stars (7), Harry Pozy Orch (8); 75c admission, $1 Sat.

New decor, new policies for show and dance times and the socko crew of Louis the Satch obtain at the spring reopening of Gatineau Country Club (26) after a four-month shuttering. New stage settings for band and show with additional and improved lighting make the Gat the handsomest it's been in its nearly quarter-century existence.

Armstrong and podners had everything on hand for teeoff night, using different routines for each of three shows (switch from two-a-night). Lazy, nonchalant opening brings Armstrong and boys in front of curtain with "Sleepy Time Down South" and "Indiana." "Muskrat Ramble" comes after Satch voices "Kiss to Build a Dream On" to salvos. Trummy Young, trombone, solos with his solid "Margie" arrangement and Marty Napoleon's keyboarding of "Limehouse Blues" brings mitting throughout. Barney Bigard on clarinet is slowed down compared to the others, but nevertheless gets his share of palms.

Arvell Shaw's unique bass-slapping of "Man I Love" catches tablesitters' fancy and kudos as does Cozy Cole's persistently okay drumming. But it's the Satch himself, and Velma Middleton's vocalizing and ponderous terping, that bring the rejoicing, pair huddling for a socko "Baby It's Cold Outside." Armstrong begged off with solo on "Blueberry Hill." Every appearance has boff showmanship and clicko entertainment.

Harry Pozy's band plays for dancing and shows and Al Costi is at the piano in the cocktail lounge except during shows.

Gatineau's manager, Joe Saxe, who operates a posh shoestore in town, has effectively enhanced the cafe's lobby with distinctive displays of shoes and handbags.

Gorm.

Hotel Statler, Wash.

EMBASSY ROOM

Washington, March 24.

Quintetto Allegro (5), Dupre Trio, Steve Risley Orch (8), Ted Alexander Quartet; $1.50-$2 cover.

Quintetto Allegro, now on a two-week stand in the Embassy Room, makes its bow in the east after working through Europe, Latin America and the Southwest section of the U. S. The five Italians bear considerable resemblance in overall format to Los Chavales de Espana. But whereas "The Kids" emphasize precision, speed and change of pace in their singing and playing, the Quintetto puts the greatest weight on romantic appeal.

These are five nice-looking youngsters handsomely garbed in white full dress suits and varying their offering from five violins to a combination of vocalizing, violins, clarinet, drums, piano and accordion. There's considerable movement, some light songs, including one where all five gang up and play the same piano, but they really lay it on the line in the romance department.

Biggest and best looking of quintet is a fine baritone named Mario who holds centre stage with such selections as "O Sole Mio" and "Gypsy Violin" while a fiddler leaves the floor and weaves his way among the tables playing a sweet accompo and leaning over to give gals the full benefit of the music. For one selection, "La Vie En Rose," Mario himself leaves the dance floor to sing the schmaltzy chorus while strolling tables not only at ringside but in the bleacher locations, while the remainder of the troupe, on stage, furnishes background music.

There's lots of showmanship to this aggregation, whose opening night at the Statler brought an even more enthusiastic audience reaction than did the teeoff of Los Chavales in the same room last October.

Opening act, Dupre Trio, follows pretty much in the groove of the Hamilton Trio in the "Show of Shows" TV troupe. The Dupres are not nearly as polished or accomplished, but the two attractive blonde gals and male leader come up with a diversified offering ranging from a softshoe dance to a twirling number outlined by fluorescent costumes and a tap dance. This team is young and shows considerable promise.

As usual, the Embassy offers the Steve Kisley and Ted Alexander units for dansapation. Loure.

Jung Hotel, N. O.

New Orleans, March 26.

Gogi Grant, Jack Gilford, The Pickerts (2), Russ Carlyle Orch (11); $2.50 minimum.

Well-paced and diversified three-act bill adds up to 60-minute sesh of pleasing entertainment. While not studded with names, there's a nice mixture of talent like Gogi Grant, fresh young singing personality; Jack Gilford, pliable-visaged comic, and the Pickerts' dance duo. There's also the topflight warbling of Russ Carlyle plus the music of his versatile dance crew. Layout is one which has to build biz primarily on word-of-mouth and off that it should mount in the Cotillion Room.

Miss Grant, making her bow here, is a savvy songstress despite her youth. She captures her audience by just standing and warbling. She has pro qualities which project throughout her repertoire, plus a strong voice and sharp rhythmic perception and a capacity for restraint that almost completely obviates the need for showmanship.

Brunet thrush takes off on "I Feel a Song Coming On," a happy choice for an opener, and she is well launched on her 20-plus minutes in the spotlight. She varies the proceedings with "Because You're Mine," sung in fine, full voice, and then throws in the lilting "My Wonderful One" and oldies like "Love Is Sweeping the Country" and "Rainbow Around My Shoulder," done in rhythmic style. Her work is first-rate, her voice highly musical, and her songalog comes off tops. Effect on tableholders is socko.

Only a sound and solidly equipped comedian like Gilford could follow Miss Grant, and rubber-faced funster comes through all the way. Purveying a refreshing and original brand of comedy, he keeps building from his waltzon. There's his appealing satire on the fellow on the subway car who falls asleep and passes up his station; his burlesque of a symphony conductor as the orchestra sees him, and a classic takeoff on the sentimental "You Always Hurt the One You Love," including some bruising tactics.

Other comedy highspots are his slow-motion shots of sports in the newsreels and the various types of jitterbug terping. Adding to the hilarity of his stint is his marshmallow-like face, one of his biggest assets.

Teeing off show are the Pickerts, who work as a team and singly in rapid tap and toe routine, and highlight turn with grasp-raising dance on stilts that put their heads near the ceiling. Novelty turn earns solid applause.

The smooth but highly rhythmic quality of Carlyle's band makes it particularly effective and versatile. Crew gets much appreciation for its efforts and draws crowds to floor for knee-action. Carlyle also scores with vocal impressions in his contribution to show. Lieu.

New Golden, Reno

Reno, March 25.

Helen O'Connell, The Johnstones, Jimmy Ray, Golden Girls, Sterling Young Orch; no cover or minimum.

Helen O'Connell returns in star position to the Golden. Among first to play the New Golden, she was No. 2 on bill last June with Al Morgan. Top billing this time is payoff for the fine reception she got then.

Golden has had continuous big biz this winter and Miss O'Connell arrives to already established crowds. The spot can't seem to drive them away, so with her usual brand of sweet song, she and spring will do a big trade.

Still the starry-eyed, dimpled, pugnosed little girl, Miss O'Connell looks to be in her first party dress. There's a feeling of watching a featured band vocalist, an unusual category in this era of stylized chanters. Perhaps she spends too much time on ballads, or at least runs them together too often. Equally adept at ballad and upbeat, it's difficult to tell which scores best, although "You're The Only One I Adore," bounced up, seems to hit the bell.

Current pops, "Wish You Were Here" and "Keep it a Secret," are soothing, and medley of J. Dorsey-Eberle-O'Connell collaborations gets proper cognizance.

The Johnstones have mixed about three parts comedy with their magic. The magician is crew-cut with the usual female helper. Tricks with two chosen from audience show amazing magic—obvious to everyone but the victim or subject. Most of routine looks like a "People Are Funny" production. Sleight-of-hand gimmicks let customers in on the trick, through "clumsiness" of wand-waver. Relentless chatter, mostly good, keeps the act moving.

Jimmy Ray works hard in a series of softer-than-soft shoe prancings. His action on a slick platform has him sliding in rhythm.

Customers are seeing more and more of the Golden Girls. There's more exposure, but the subjects are worth it. Marc.

Chez Agnes Capri, Paris

Paris, March 24.

Agnes Capri presents "Injustine," by Miss Capri, Jean Rougeul; with Francoise Dorin, Roger Saget, Jacques Legras, Les Guaramios (4), Tsella Schelton; decor and costumes, J. Noel; music, Mick Michayl; staging, Miss Capri, Saget; $3 minimum.

Songstress Agnes Capri has turned her boite into a cabaret theatre. In the turn-of-the-century decor of her intime club she has utilized the small stage for a farcical, philosophic charade called "Injustine." This is primarily for the Gallic clientele with all nuances and satire lost to the tourist. However, fast-paced carryings-on and a quartet of good song acts make this worth a look-see for all.

The theatrical bit is speedy but uneven in appeal. It concerns the odyssey of a young country girl who tries five roads of destiny before deciding to marry her bucolic lover. They all lead to adventure, and her eventual demise in each episode. She decides to marry her bumpkin, but he turns out to be a drunkard and wife-beater. The affair is nicely paced but repetitious in spots. Though no longer daring in its potshots at convention, it benefits by appealing thesping on the part of a young troupe with the freshness and guile of Francoise Dorin a standout (New Acts).

Show winds with the folk chants of Les Guaramios (4) in an interesting rendition of South American folk songs accompanied by their guitars. Tsella Schelton has an irrepressible comic mugging talent that pays off in yocks (New Acts), and Francoise Dorin adds a nice interlude of songs and patter.

Agnes Capri does her usual cerebral but capricious song recital in which her crisp voice and eccentric movements underline the offbeat qualities of her songs about a tunnel, the king who killed too many people, and the little boy who saw a devil. She rates big palming.

Prices are in the $3 category for a mixed drink and show starts at 11 and winds at 2 a.m. Mosk.

Latin Quarter, Boston

Boston, March 24.

The Gaylords with Buddy Greco (4), The Sanfords (2), Bob Conrad Girls (8), Charlie Wolke Orch (8), Zarde Bros. Orch (4); $2 beverage minimum.

Having hit the jackpot recently via booking newcomer Norman

(Continued on page 86)

JOE E. LEWIS UNIQUE IN SHOW BIZ; WORK IS HIS PLAY AND VICE VERSA

By ABEL GREEN

Joe E. Lewis is a show business phenomenon whose work, almost literally, is his play, and vice versa, because he's doing what comes naturally.

Almost a gypsy in reality, paradoxically the pixie personality that spells out Joe Everglades (some prefer to call him Everlow-in') Lewis is at home in all the gayer cities of America, and could virtually call 75% of them his home if he so chooses. His homes away from home are what dissipates the legend about the necessity to call something, some place, his home.

This is the engaging vagabondage that constitutes Lewis. And so be it. That's the way he wills it. Perhaps the store-room of the Hotel Warwick, in New York, when he plays his annual quarter-of-a-year runs at the Copacabana might be regarded as a home base for his memorabilia, his voluminous press books, and the like, but otherwise Joe E. pledges allegiance to what he calls his personal Four Freedoms—breakfast in the afternoon, the newspapers, his mail and a scratch sheet. "Where else but in show business could I be enjoying all these any time between 3:30 and 5 in the afternoon, and not 'go to work' until 8 o'clock at night'," says Lewis.

The personal idiosyncrasies and trademarked associations of show biz personalities, be they Cantor's pop-eyes, Marilyn's pep Monroes, Berle's pop bits, Durante's schnoz, Chaplin's walk, Winchell's talk, Groucho's gawk, Berle's jokes, Downey's cokes, now include a noble equine as Lewis' coat-of-arms.

For the Muggs and the Chichi

The mobs and the snobs, the effete set and the muggs, the bunch belt and the Texas oil tycoons all dig his stuff. Perhaps the best common denominator to point up Lewis' truly wide appeal were his several repeat engagements on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" vaudeos. These are by no means geared to any specially hep set; they're the average public. But by gearing his stuff to the hep he also knows how to perform for the squares or, at least, the so-called not so initiate.

That's where the pixie personality proves potent because, in even more rarified atmosphere, he has gotten away with some slick nifties which, under other auspices, would be pedestrian. What is one man's B.S. Pulley comes out ultra-sly divertissement with which only a Lewis seemingly can get away. By the nature of his saloon circuiting, his stuff is perforce seasoned with more spice, but whether he revels in ditties such as "She's Got the Biggest Parakeets in Town," or parodies about "Mink Coats Are A-Comin'" and ghostly bookmakers in the sky; whether he discourses on Sam who made the pants too long, or the groom who couldn't get in, or "Lancelot and McKeester," Lewis purveys a brand of bistro badinage that insures him 52-out-of-52 weeks' bookings.

Loyal Friends

Excepting that the vagabond lover of the cafe capering circuit elects—and is sometimes compelled by firm and loyal pals like Dan Arnstein, the taxicab tycoon—to take periodic voluntary layoffs. As loyal as is Cuban sugar millionaire Jorge Sanchez in following Lewis almost at will to this or that resort engagement; or as equally loyal is the monied Texas set in showing up at his sundry openings, be they New York, Miami Beach, New Orleans, Chicago, Las Vegas or Hollywood; or as sentimental as is Jock Whitney, who can't stage a birthday party without Lewis' presence as a personal guest, so loyal, albeit a shade more realistic in his relations, is Arnstein's firmness with Lewis. This includes enforced layoffs in Hot Springs, Ark., for the baths and the "thawing out" period, or periodic hospital checkups which he (Arnstein) arranges and personally handles.

Lewis' capacity for friendship obviously is as much part of his basic boxoffice appeal as his talent. Naturally, the last comes first—undoubtedly his Uncle Max in Passaic also has lots of friends but maybe wouldn't be such a smart feller on a saloon floor. But there is no minimizing his wide personal following, some of it almost bordering on a cult. Result is that Lewis can do no wrong, be it with the press or pundits. In certain key cities as much as 90% of his draw is personal, or customers who feel they have an almost personal relationship with him.

"I like to do my business work," he says. "You know, drift around the tables, personally say hello, and when the joint folds at 3:30 or 4 I still like to wander over to Lindy's or Toots' and sit around and the same more with whomever I know."

Lack of 'Jamhon'

The show biz phenomenon phase stems from his seemingly lackadaisical attitude about matters which usually occupy a performer's most consuming mental processes. But Lewis never worries about billing or advertising—being the draw he rightly assumes the management is not going to sneak him into town. Money matters are left to Sam Brannon of the William Morris office, who personally goes back with Lewis some 25 years. The press' generosity makes his p.a. Budd Granoff's chore a cinch and he's the first to admit it. Lewis' inmate generosity in building up talent makes him a palsy-walsy automatically intra-trade. This was the raison d'etre for the Friars' unusually heart-warming testimonial dinner to him at the Waldorf-Astoria three years ago. Within show business this was accepted as one of the most genuinely touching tributes from show biz to a show biz great.

Lewis' unique design for living reels well all around. He did legits and pictures (Fox), he clicked on TV and, of course, was cradled in the traditional burlesque "at 15" and vaudeville. He doesn't want to break any records at the Paramount or the Roxy; he can't see himself doing a breakfast show at 10 a.m. for layoff salesmen and schoolkids playing hookey, which is an hour when he is just about ready to "work off" after his night's work.

Warned to Alter Diet, He Switches Medicos

When medicos warned him to slow down on the cup that cheers he didn't change his diet; he changed doctors. And made capital thereof that "from where I'm standing all I know is this—you see more old drunkards in these plush saloons than you see old doctors, so how positive can they be!"

Underneath this avowed vagabondia is a realistic awareness that the business of being a professional fool brooks no foolishness. No matter the "maggoty" feeling at 5 the a. m. before, there is the intense business of new material, and that is a day-in-day-out job in any headliner's career. Especially when it's complicated by three different radios attuned to three different tracks or race results' broadcasts. For Lewis knows that the rehearsed ad libs, and the leering or satirical lyrics that he brings to his business night after night, are as much his stock in trade as the tables, chairs, potables and edibles that the bistros provide the public. Lewis pays special material writers like Eli Basse plenty for constantly replenishing the scripts.

Like all who are exposed to the saloonatics that constitute occupational hazard to any establishment where the joy juice is a sizable commodity, Lewis has had his share of hecklers. He has his quota of toppers—"Madam, I don't bother you when you're working at Macy's"; or "that's the first time I saw three heels on a pair of shoes," etc.—but only rarely indulges in these bitter squelchers. He prefers to remember unrehearsed ad libs that saved the day—or nonplussed him. Such as in one Hollywood joint some years ago when they were sneaking a game and the Feds raided it. He quieted the plush audience, "Ignore them folks—they're just making retakes for 'Drums Along the Mohawk'."

Those (Too) Passionate Fans

"But when they love you up, that's really murder," Lewis recalls in the case of a VIP, down-front party at Chicago's Chez Paree which kept punctuating his routine, "We love you Joe," and loud asides, "He's terrific, ain't he?" Not only were they enthusiastic but genuinely "nice folks who weren't sharpies; this was their way of expressing fraternal appreciation," says Lewis. "The fact that it was lousing me up never occurred to them." When Lewis hit on the idea of signaling for the spotlight on the party as a means to get across the idea they were becoming too much the cynosure, at Lewis' expense, this didn't phase the hearty host who bellowed at his party, "Stand up folks, we're having our pictures taken!" That was the end.

"This is something of a relatively new and poisonous technique which a couple of the Hollywood singing babes are accused of practicing, especially when some new face or newcomer to Ciro's or the Mocambo looks especially good and threatens to get Hollywood attention. The gals' asides of "This girl is wonderful." and "How charming?" and "She's lovely; where's she been hiding?" are just heard enough around the ringside, and by the newcomer, to unnerve her. And how can she say "drop dead?" or "get lost" or "why don't you keep your big mouths shut?"

18 Weeks in Spring, Ditto in the Fall

It is said that Lewis, by phone, could raise a couple of million if he wanted to go into the racetrack, bistro, haberdashery or any other business. He is constantly propositioned to be bankrolled in cafes, restaurants, pubs, clubs and the like, but is happy in his duly appointed rounds of the country's major cities and clubs which are usually near the respective racing seasons at the tracks—"all this is purely coincidental and well-planned," says Lewis.

Unlike the inauguration of names into the Copa, which was somewhat by accident 13 years ago, when Lewis stayed 18 weeks that spring and returned for another 18 weeks in the fall—a show biz record of some sort; 36 weeks in one saloon within the same year, not counting the owner-entertainers like Eddie Davis or the late Jack White, Pat Harrington, Jackie Gleason & Co. at the lamented Club 18, on New York's West 52d Street—Lewis now plays more key cities. Heretofore it was limited to the Saratoga August racing season, Florida, Nevada, Chi's Chez Paree, the Sunset Strip spots in Hollywood, and New York, but quicker turnovers in recent years have added New Orleans, Dallas, Detroit, Pittsburgh and other keys.

There are anecdotes galore about public entertainers who shun company in private. Hildegarde can lame a lush on a cafe floor and is scared of the telephone. Lewis is renowned for his gregariousness but prefers head-to-head gin rummy with a single pal at a time, as with Damon Runyon for a long stretch. Of the latter, Lewis once cracked, "If Damon knew when to break up his kings he'd never have to write or work for a living."

'Pure Runyon'

Like many a Runyonesque character, Lewis does his good deeds in the dark. Champ Siegel opened a new bar opposite Lindy's on Broadway and suddenly Seymour Weiss, the New Orleans hotelier, Sanchez, Arnstein, bistro bonifaces like Toots Shor and Monte Proser found themselves being steered into this pub which might be just another filling station on Broadway. That was Lewis' way of helping a pal.

Or a chorus line and some musicians might be having lunch around the El Rancho Vegas pool and discover "somebody picked up your checks," that somebody being Lewis. A fast man with a buck to his show biz confreres, he goes out of his way at competitive joints to spend some money at Proser's or Eddie 'Leon & Eddie,' literally looking around for pals to whom to send over a bottle of wine as a means to leave a few bucks behind. The unostentation is renowned but not anonymous to the hepsters.

This live-and-let-live philosophy would never give him occupational ulcers, because such equanimity brooks no such disturbances. The ulcer he did develop was the end-result of too much of the fraternal spirit and spirits. And then he "fooled" the MD by spiking the milk with his favorite "sauce."

This seeming benignity may be the evolution of that Prohibition era "accident" in Chicago when Lewis left the Green Mill for the opposition Rendezvous, hurting his former speakeasy proprietor's exchequer to the degree that "Machine-Gun" Jack McGurn's torpedoes were enlisted. It left Lewis in a throat-to-cheek slashed condition which at first looked fatal but paralyzed him physically, including his vocal chords. His physical survival thus loomed as professional suicide in view of his inarticulation, but after Al Jolson brought him to the Coast, and he recovered his speech, he was back in high at the then famed Sunday night auditions at the old Trocadero. This was the springboard for many important Hollywood careers. While recuping he saw McGurn at the track and, asked what he was gonna do about it, Lewis laughed, "I'll send him a nasty letter."

Prankster

The legends around the Troc grew beyond proportions and for a time Lewis was good copy as to his discoveries and proteges. Always one for a practical joke, his favorite script was, "I gave Judy Garland, George Raft, Deanna Durbin and the Martins, Tony and Mary, their first chance." He would pause and continue, "Mary Martin came to me, poor kid, and begged for a tryout. She was about to be dispossessed. No one wanted to listen to her, but I told the mob to pipe down and give the youngster a chance." Then, fixing the interviewer with a solemn face, "And that, so help me God, is the biggest lie I can think up to tell you at the moment."

Actually Lewis in his peregrinations has touted and scouted a considerable passel of people for top spots; notably into the Copa, N. Y., Ciro's, Hollywood, the Chez Chi, and his many other connections in Florida, Nevada and Texas. Most recently, the manner in which Red Buttons, alumnus of the borscht belt, personated Joe E. Lewis on CBS-TV's "Suspense" was what focussed that network's interest in Buttons, who now has his own show as a direct result.

Capping the gambling, drinking and practical jokestering peccadilloes is his capacity for friendship which, some feel, almost figured as an unconscious factor in his abortive marriage adventure—the lone try—with film player Martha Stewart, who now has her own TV show, "These Two," costarred with Pinky Lee. The habits of a free soul who would rather gravitate with the mob as may be his mood may have figured importantly.

Just as does his instinctive rebellion at anything too closely approaching a script or libretto. He has had his share of Fox films and Broadway legit. When he did "The Lady Comes Across," with the English comedienne, Jessie Matthews, he sensed it wasn't long for the Broadway world. "It wasn't a bad play, just a bad theatre—the seats faced the stage," observed Lewis. While still in New Haven he instructed Abe Lastfogel to "book me out," and while the William Morris Agency topper didn't quite get it he did arrange for Lewis to double int. the Copa, selling the then boniface, Monte Proser, that "the price is right: Lewis will double and do only one midnight show and you'll get a new set of customers." Thus was the Copa's name-policy born. Lewis got good notices in "Lady," but it folded suddenly and Lewis found himself doing three-a-night at the Copa instead of the post-midnight frolic.

Pianist Austin Mack Tops as Cue-Thrower

Austin Mack, who had the band in the old Green Mill, went with Lewis as his pianist and is not only a perfect foil for Lewis, who calls him "the late George Apley" and other pleasantries but who, when occasion warrants, as it will, is one of the greatest line-throwers when his star's lyrics become somewhat vague as the "maggoty" mood overwhelms Lewis.

For all of Lewis' nonchalance his $5,000 to $10,000 per week for 40-45 weeks per annum puts him comfortably in the Fort Knox league. Not for nought is he the bookmakers' delight although, as isn't generally known, the same firm friend, Dan Arnstein, has done more than a thing or two to insulate Lewis' personal exchequer against too many ill winds.

The lack of ham in him; the warm personal relations; the colorful career of a Chi smalltimer who sequed into the best pinsheries in the top American resorts; his sojourns into continuous avenues of show biz (pix, legit, radio, TV); his melodramatic and almost fatal brushes with the tough Chi mobs just because he, a relatively lowly performer, enjoyed too strong a personal draw which, when he jumped over to the opposition was too much to cope with; his abhorrence of anybody who is too close a student of the dollar; his wide audience appeal to the class and the mass trade, interspliced with his off-to-Buffalo struggles as a vaudeville two-act with Johnny Black and his World War II off-to-Guinea—all these are natural celluloid material for the Joe E. Lewis biopic.

Black Era in More Than One Way

When and if it is done—and it should be done—it will reprise, for example, how Black, songsmith-pianist of the act, and he would scrounge meals in almost any town by "making like surveyors." Says Lewis, "We'd time it around Thanksgiving, Easter, Christmas, Saturdays, and the like. We'd set up a surveyor's tripod and put a bead on this or that house, or the adjacent road, and sure enough we'd be asked for whom we were surveying. Johnny knew about the local railroad lines or some local road improvement projects and the head of the house envisioned being bought out at a fancy profit because the new railroad, or highway, or gas station chain operator, wanted the right of way, and of course we'd wind up being well fed."

How They Almost Got Killed in Montreal

Black, who composed "Dardanella," "Paper Doll," among other tunes, was a ladies' man and "almost got both of us killed in Montreal. I'm reminded of this because I just played Montreal, the first time in over 20 years, but I'll never forget the 'Pretty Baby' and 'come to my house' asides he was throwing at two gals down-front, neither of us knowing that the two burly Canucks behind them were their husbands. They came backstage with the manager, who threatened to cancel us, but Black ad libbed that this was a 'patter' he always uses as counter-melody to my song. The manager was skeptical and only when we promised to sing it for him—'but first we gotta eat, we'll pass out on the stage if we don't have our dinner'—did this appease the righteously sensitive husbands and that manager, who was also of French-Canadian extraction and knew the foursome as regulars of the theatre. We did go out to eat and Black had to improvese a special patter for the manager's particular private audition or we'd have been cancelled in a season when we sure needed the work. Not to mention what the booking office in New York could do to us."

Broadway Moves To Guinea

When it was a question of excess weight in making the first USO-Camp Shows hop to New Guinea, Lewis decided he'd "cut" his clothes and other equipment, but he was not going to "cut" his liquor. He took more avoirdupois in Scotch than in theatrical props and or personal paraphernalia. Lewis was a big welcome to the brass because of the liquid cargo as well as to the GIs hungry for entertainment.

One CO admonished Lewis at one show to "stick on the back of this truck and don't ever get off it as you perform for the men." It was some 20 miles quite close to the front and Lewis appreciated the caution because of personal safety, but when he found himself not getting any laughs throughout he almost felt like jumping down to working closer to the GIs in order to "get" to them. The Special Services officer and the CO both restrained him and only then explained that he was doing well; the boys enjoyed him a lot; this was an evacuation station en route back to the field hospital. All the GIs had the mumps and couldn't laugh. And, of course, the contagion risk caused the admonition for Lewis to do his stuff from the truck.

Congratulations

JOE E. LEWIS

on your 30th Anniversary

in Show Business

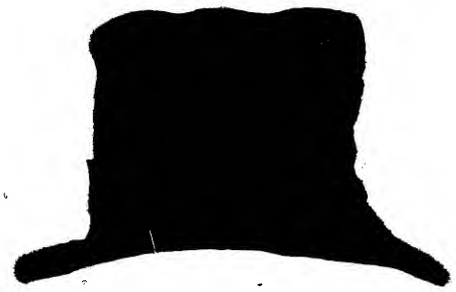
★

From All Your Friends at the

WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

Est. 1898

New York • Chicago • Beverly Hills • London • Paris



I doff my hat to a great guy, Joe E. . . . no matter what PLACE you SHOW, you always WIN.

Ted Lewis

Congratulations to

JOE E. LEWIS

BEN MARDEN

To a Great Star and a Good Friend

JOE E. LEWIS

It has been a pleasure working with you through the years.

MICHAEL DURSO

and his Copacabana Orchestra

TO JOE "EVERGLADES" LEWIS!

"A POEM" BY HILDEGARDE, AND ANNA SOSENKO

First Stanza

As long as there will be a sky,
A flaming sun, a moon on high,
A world of people loving laughter,
You'll make them laugh forever after.

Second Stanza

From "Sam you made the pants too long,"
In every line of every song,
You're wry, you're sly, so warm and witty,
Why Dear JOE "E," you're even pretty!

L'Envoy
Afterthought

Whether east, or west, north, or dixie,
You'll always be our Favorite Pixie!

(All Rights Reserved by the "Authors" ? ? ? ?)

From the girl who sings it . . .

HILDEGARDE

and the girl who wrote it . . .

ANNA SOSENKO

"DARLING JE VOUS AIME BEAUCOUP"

To My Sweetheart

Love

Sophie Tucker

To a Great Fellow

500 CLUB
Atlantic City

PAUL (SKINNY) D'AMATO

To a Most Beloved Guy

JOE E. LEWIS

RALPH LOWE

To JOE E.

My Pal and
A Great Artist

Dan Arnstein

Congratulations Joe!

JACK BENNY

May the most you wish for be the least you get Jorge and Brownie.

Sincere
Congratulations

Seymour Weiss

CONGRATULATIONS

on 30 years of top entertainment

From one of the younger set

Congratulations

Bob Hope

30 YEARS — is that all?

Many more!

Jackie Miles

Congratulations

Joe E. Lewis

upon the anniversary of your 30th successful year
in show business

★

Mert Wertheimer

Riverside

HOTEL – CASINO
RENO, NEVADA

"He always gives a first-rate performance."
"And always serves Seagram's V.O. to his friends."

Known by the company it keeps

Seagram's VO

Canadian Whisky—a Blend . . . of rare selected whiskies

THIS WHISKY IS SIX YEARS OLD—86.8 PROOF. SEAGRAM-DISTILLERS CORP., NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE HOUSE OF SEAGRAM

Extends Best Wishes to

JOE E. LEWIS

To

JOE E. LEWIS

AMERICA'S GREATEST ENTERTAINER

•

He Breaks Fast and Wins Going Away

FRANK L. ANDREWS
President

GENE VOIT
General Manager

HOTEL NEW YORKER, 34th St. at 8th Ave., New York

With Thanks for All
Those Wonderful Benefits
On August 17.

BETSEY and JOCK WHITNEY

Congratulations

TO OUR GOOD FRIEND

JOE E. LEWIS

FROM

JERRY BRADY AND NATE HERZFELD

TO OUR BOY
TO OUR PRIOR

All the Best That We FRIARS Can Wish to the NICEST GUY in the World.

HARRY DELF
JACQUES KOPFSTEIN
EDDIE ELKINS
EUGENE GREENHUT
IRA STROUSE
NICK MANOR
JACK BREGMAN
HARRY WEINSTEIN
SID GARY
HARRY SUBER
FRANK ROSS
JULES KURZMAN
JOE PHILLIPS
SID HALL
IRVING CAESAR
RAY BLOCH
MYRON FIRKSER
SID REIS
DAVID S. STERN
ABE MINES
KEN KLING
EDDIE HANLEY
MAX ASNAS
PHIL SPITALNY
BERT FROHMAN
JACKIE BRYCE
GEORGE MEYER
JESSE BLOCK
FRED AHLERT
DAVE LEVINE
NAT LOW
LOUIS A. SCHENFIELD
MACE NEUFELD
EDDIE CHESTER
LOU LEVIN
SAM WARD
MILTON AGER
JACK FELDMAN
PITZY KATZ
MURRAY KAUFMAN
ARTHUR GOLDBERG
PAUL GROSSINGER
MILTON BLACKSTONE
PVT. EDDIE FISHER
JACK FRUMMER
BEN BLOCK
DR. S. L. MEYLACKSON
SLAPSIE MAXIE ROSENBLOOM
JACK LORD
MILTON ALTMARK
LARRY BEST
BOBBY RAMSEN
MURRAY BAKER
CHESTER CONN
MANIE SACKS
MACK GOLDMAN
RUBE BLOOM
BEN BROCKMAN
DR. GEORGE H. SOLOMON
SENIA GAMSA
SIG SCHNARCH
HARRY ADLER
ROCCO VOCCO
NAT DUNN
FRED GAMSU
IRVING BECKER
PHILIP COHEN
DR. BENJAMIN FREUDENFALL
DR. MILTON REDER
DICK HENRY
MORTY CURTIS
JIMMY MARK
CHARLES RAPP
ABE LASTFOGEL
ALLEN HERMAN
JERRY LESTER
DUDLEY GILBERT
ALBERT H. MOREHEAD
HAROLD DENSEN
AL NORMAN
AL STEVENS
AL K. HALL
SAM D. LEWIS
CHARLES HART
MURRAY ROSE
EMIL JARROW
DAVE STAMPER
BEN PIERMONT
SARRY SARANOFF
JOE CAITS
ALAN CORELLI
EDDIE MILLER

MAY YOU NEVER BE "OUT OF THE MONEY"

Dear Joe E.
Congratulations on your 30th
Anniversary in Show Business.
We know from personal experience
there's no business like Joe business.
Come Soon!

Jake Freedman • Jack Entratter

The Sands
Las Vegas, Nevada

Best wishes, you're swell, and we'll book you
again and again

•

CONCORD HOTEL
KIAMESHA, NEW YORK

"Zul Zine Mit Click"

MARTHA RAYE
my ever lovin'
NICK CONDOS
with our daughter
MELODYE

"WE ALL SING YOUR PRAISES"

JOE E.

ALL OUR LOVE

Baby and Toots

To Joe E

Best Wishes

Phyllis and Abe Gottlieb

Dear Joe E:

If you were a girl,
you'd be my wife
—that's how much
I love you.

Myron Cohen

TO A GUY NAMED JOE

ROCCO VOCCO
CHESTER CONN
JACK BREGMAN

Joe:

To us, you've been a star
for more than thirty years...
and always will be.

Edward J. Barrett
Judge Abraham L. Marowitz
Ray Moloney

to our pal, JOE E. LEWIS

from the

SILVER (like in your sterling performances)

FROLICS (like in your rollicking, frolicking act)

CHICAGO (where we love ya!)

400 North Wabash Avenue

Our Congratulations to

JOE E. LEWIS

who is thirty years young in a business
in which he will never grow old.

BILLY GRAY
PATTI MOORE
BEN LESSY
LARRY GREENE
AUSTIN MACK

Congratulations

DANNY THOMAS

Best Wishes to Joe

JULES PODELL

COPACABANA, NEW YORK

To JOE E. LEWIS

A Grand Person
A Real Friend and
A Great Humanitarian

Irving Geist

Best Wishes Joe E—
You're a swell guy

WILBUR CLARK
Desert Inn, Las Vegas

Next to Joe E. Lewis
I love Joe E. Lewis best.

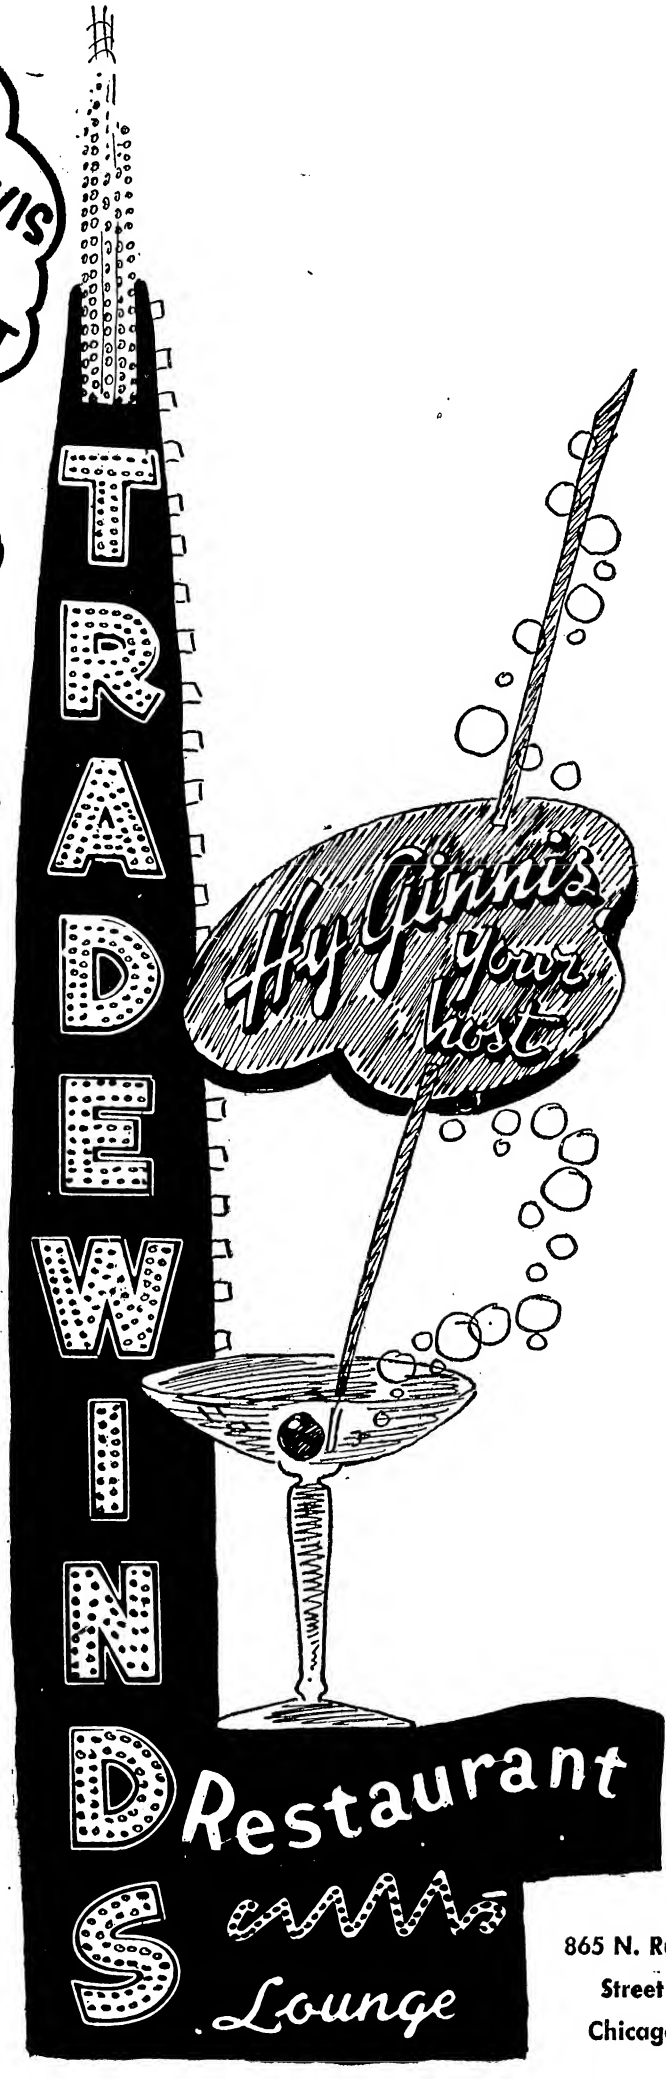
ELI BASSE

JOE E. LEWIS

HORSES LOVE HIM...
PEOPLE LOVE HIM...
GOD LOVE HIM ON HIS
30th ANNIVERSARY

—with warmest personal regards from his pal,

HY GINNIS
TRADE WINDS
CHICAGO



I am very proud of our happy association thru the many years.

SAM BRAMSON

Congratulations—
PEGGY

Congratulations to

Joe E. Lewis

from
FRANKIE
and The
TWO TOMS

Chicago, Ill.

Cheers to a wonderful performer

...but more important...

Cheers to a Great Human Being

Judge Bernard A. Frank
Miami Beach, Fla.

To— JOE E.

My wonderful friend
Good Health, Good Luck and Good Horses.

Eddie Davis

Leon & Eddie's
New York

To

JOE E. LEWIS

A Swell Guy

and

Our Good Friend

ETTA and SAM RUBY

Roses to Our Boy

JOE E. LEWIS

on His

30th Anniversary

CHEZ PAREE
CHICAGO

Best Wishes
FRANK GALLOP

thank you, Joe E.

for all the help you gave me on my very first date in New York . . . at the Copa as a production singer back in '47.

Your kindnesses on many occasions have probably long since been forgotten by you, but they will always be remembered by me.

Eddie Fisher

to Joe E.... C'est La Vie!

Regards from an old friend down the block...

Monte Proser

Realistic Stand on Foreign Vidpix Is H'wood AFL Bid for More Work

Hollywood, March 31.

Hollywood A.F.L. Film Council has decided to relax its former rigid policy against all vidpix produced abroad and to adopt a more "realistic" stand. As a result a green light has been given to at least one telefilm series which will be shot in Europe, it's reported here by Dolph Thomas, chairman of the council's foreign production committee.

Thomas explained, "We shall examine the circumstances of each individual case, and if there is a legitimate reason for use of a foreign locale, we will okay it. We have adopted a more flexible and realistic attitude because we don't want to injure producers who may already have commitments. We feel this spirit of mutual co-operation will be advantageous to American industry workers in the long run. Too tight a crackdown might jeopardize jobs for our workers here. This attitude will prevail so long as the producers cooperate with us."

He said that this recognition of realities has built up a reservoir of good will, and it was already certain more work for Hollywood labor would be the result.

Council has okayed a PSI-TV series, "International Police," with 13 of the vidpix to be shot here, and 13 in various European cities. Producer Bernard J. Prockter has assured the council he plans to process, edit, score, dub and use special effects in Hollywood despite the fact he will be making half the series abroad. He also intends to take key personnel from this country to Europe. Prockter told the council he expects to bring at least two live N. Y. shows to Hollywood for telefilming, Thomas said.

Thomas and Council chief Roy Brewer go to N. Y. early in April where they and IATSE prexy Richard Walsh will meet with heads of the networks for a discussion on the problem. "We hope to impress upon them the importance of our request, and get cooperation from them so that production will be kept at home," Thomas said. He added there will also be a discussion with Paramount regarding the teevee series it's shooting in England.

Sheldon Reynolds, producer of "Foreign Intrigue," which has been put on the unfair list because it's shot in Europe, has requested a conference with Brewer and is expected here soon for the meeting.

Hal Hackett's OF Top Exec Status

Hal Hackett this week joined Official Films as executive vice president in an expansion move that will mark the telepix firm's entry into live teevee packaging and producing and taping of radio shows as well as expansion of current film production and distribution.

The former MCA v.p. in charge of radio and television started with Official on Monday (30). He's currently scanning the outfit's current operations and laying down plans for the packaging operations. Hackett hasn't set any properties yet for production.

Entry of Hackett into the firm will fill the void left when Billy Goodheart, president of Official, retired to his farm last July because of ill health. Goodheart, incidentally, is due in New York this month for a checkup, at which time some decision presumably will be forthcoming as to his status. His visit will be timed to coincide with the semi-annual meeting of the board of directors of which Ike Levy is chairman.

Firm is currently engaged in production on "Four Star Playhouse," on which Singer has renewed as alternate-week sponsors on CBS-TV; "My Hero," which Dunhill ciggies is moving into the Saturday 8 p.m. slot being vacated on NBC-TV by its "All Star Revue," and "Terry and the Pirates," which Canada Dry is spotting in over 50 markets. Official is also combining its musical vidpix library with other short subjects in its catalog as a special package.

RKO Okays Teleblurbs

Hollywood, March 31.

RKO Pictures has joined the teleblurb parade, permitting showing of several film clips from its upcoming "The Hitchhikers," made by Filmakers, to KNXT for "Hollywood Film Forecast," seen last week on the local channel. Along with the clips were producers Ida Lupino and Collier Young, and stars Edmond O'Brien, Frank Lovejoy and William Tallman.

William Cameron Menzies was moderator of the show which amounted to a half-hour trailer for the film which opens locally soon.

UTP's 'Lone Wolf,' 'Treasury' Series

Two top literary properties last week were acquired for vidfilming next fall and both will go into syndication via United Television Programs. Gross-Krasne Productions, a partner in UTP, has gotten rights to the "Lone Wolf" mystery series, while Ben Frye's Studio Films, another UTP partner, got rights to the recently edited "Treasury of Great Reporting."

Gross-Krasne will start shooting the first 26 in the fall, with a cast not yet set. Series, by Philo Vance, was subject of a number of RKO pictures some years ago. Half-hour films will be budgeted at $18,500 each.

Studio got the rights to "Treasury," compiled three years ago by Richard S. Morris and Louis L. Snyder, from Simon & Shuster. Frye will shoot the series in Hollywood, although previous Studio production has been done in Cleveland.

Films will be sold in syndication rather than nationally to boost the UTP catalog. UTP is currently a syndication-only outfit, but large part of its catalog consists of second-run commodities. Outfit wants to bring more originals into its library.

KLING SPREADS WING ON CHI VIDPIC BOUTS

Chicago, March 31.

Kling Studios, Chi telepix producer, will introduce Windy City boxing to two new markets. "Boxing From Rainbo," Monday night swats telecast on WBKB, has been filmed by the producer and peddled in other areas. WCOV in Montgomery, Ala., and WBRE-TV serving the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) districts are the latest customers for the telepix.

Kling has also invaded the west with their "Old American Barn Dance" package. A natural for the films were KGNC-TV in Amarillo, Tex., KCSJ-TV of Pueblo, Colo., and Colorado Springs' KRDO-TV.

Set Production Reins On 'Mark Twain' Telepix

Scripter-director team has been set by Filmcraft Productions for its upcoming Mark Twain series, based on works of the author acquired from his estate. Novelist Robert Nathan and playwright Siegfried M. Herzig will script the series, while film producer-director-writer Irving Pichel will direct.

Literary rights include 36 of the author's major works, 250 articles, 2,300 published and many unpublished letters. Shooting starts immediately on series. Signing of Pichel marks his first full-time TV directing assignment. He recently finished "Martin Luther" in Germany.

Tip Top Expands

Tip Top Bread, now hitting the kiddie market on WNBT, N. Y., Mondays from 7 to 7:30 p.m. with "The Cisco Kid" film series last week (28) started sponsorship of another portion of "Cisco" on the same station on Saturdays, from 10:30 to 11 a.m.

Chi Fire Doesn't Faze Sponsor; Puts Up 100G For Vidpix, Pitches Tent

Chicago, March 31.

First prize in the Chi scavenger hunt for telepix goes to Bud Hauser, emcee-sponsor of WNBQ's "Grand Marquee." Hauser Nash qualified by putting up the $100,000 paid for the 18 pix to be shown on the auto dealer's Saturday night show.

Deal was made with G. Bagnall & Associates, film distributors, for such Windy City first-runs as "Carnegie Hall" and De Mille's "King of Kings" (which will be shown on Easter eve).

Although the Hauser Nash folks might have felt content as the new owners of one of the country's largest telepix packages, Friday (27) found them the victims of a $175,000 fire. It seems, however, that it would take more than a fireman's hose to dampen the spirit of Hauser, since the bankroller is determined to continue the TV shows. Regardless of whether or not the fear of a drop in sales or the $100,000 investment is responsible for the business-as-usual attitude in the Houser ex-showrooms, live auto blurbs will continue to be telecast. A carny tent has been erected just for such purposes.

SAG Pacts 60 Teleblurb Prods.

Hollywood, March 31.

More than 60 teleblurb producers have signed letters of adherence to the new Screen Actors Guild pact since the three-month strike of SAG against vidblurb producers ended a month ago, it's reported here by John Dales, Jr., national exec secretary of the guild.

Ad agencies which have signed, agreeing to have filmed commercials for their clients made only by producers who have inked with SAG, are J. Walter Thompson, Young & Rubicam, BBD&O, Compton, Ruthrauff & Ryan, Biow, Ted Bates, William Esty, McCann-Erickson, Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles, J. M. Mathes, Cecil & Presbrey, Franklin Bruck, N. B. Ross, Ben Sackheim, Grey Ad Agency, Al Paul Lefton and T. Robley Louttit.

Producers who have inked include American Film Producers, Leonard Anderson, Artists Management Associates, Baldwin, Bowers & Strachan, Barry & Enright Productions, Franklin Bruck Advertising, Clayton W. Cousens Productions, Thomas Craven Film Corp., Shamus Culhane Productions, Dowd, Redfield & Johnstone, Elliott, Unger & Elliott, Film Creations, Gray-O'Reilly, Lalley & Love, Maxon, Inc., Prockter Television Enterprises, Quality Bakers of America, Sarra, Inc., Fletcher Smith Studios, Sound Masters, Winetraub & Co., Winev Television Productions, all located in N. Y.

Atlas Film Corp., Chicago Film Studios, Francisco Films, Galbreath Picture Productions, Kling Film Enterprises, Sarra, Inc., Telefilm Productions, Vogue-Wright Studios, Wilding Picture Productions, all in Chicago.

Arrow Productions, Bernard of Hollywood Film Productions, Theodore Bliss Productions, Cascade, Jack Denove, Dudley TV, Five Star Productions, George Fox, Ozzie Glover, Hurrell Productions, Tom Kelley, Lou Lilly, Mercury International Pictures, New World, J. J. Parker Productions, Ray Patin, Pickwick Pictures, Quality Pictures, Elizabeth Raines, Roland Reed Enterprises, Roland Reed Productions, Roland Reed TV, Screen Classics, Dean Simmons Ad Agency, Al Simon, Song Ads, Swift-Chaplin Productions, Telefilm, Tempkin-Plummer Associates, TV Ads, TV Spots, Video Pictures, V.I.P., Norman Wright Productions, all in LA, and De Frenes Company, Philadelphia.

'Sheilah's' Shekels

Hollywood, March 31.

Writer Gabrielle Upton sold an original, "Sheilah," to Meridian Pictures for "Scalitz Playhouse of Stars," and then landed the title role.

The pix-TV scribbler was formerly an actress.

UTP Wraps Up Full-Year Package For New Video Market at 14G

Following in the footsteps of the package plan pioneered by Consolidated Television Sales a couple of weeks ago, United Television Programs is offering a package of 390 half-hour shows to stations in new markets at a minimum price of about $14,000. Plan calls for purchase of nine half-hour series, of varying length, totalling 390 half-hours, with proviso that entire package must be played off in one year.

With price varying with size of the market, average half-hour show will cost smaller stations $36.50 per half-hour. Series includes "Heart of the City" (Big Town" re-runs); "Royal Playhouse" ("Fireside Theatre" re-runs), "Counterpoint" (second runs of "Rebound"), "Dick Tracy," 'Old American Barn Dance," 'Hank McCune Show," "Hollywood Offbeat," "Sleepy Joe" and "Enchanted Music."

Package is similar to Consolidated's in that there's a flat rate for the one-year deal, but differs in that all UTP shows are half-hour segments whereas Consolidated's vary in length. UTP is pushing the package as a "made exclusively for TV" buy at a pre-hour price comparing favorably to that of old feature films.

Ziv Preps for Color

Ziv starts filming its programs in black and white as well as color next week. Many telefilm firms have been shooting in color, as against the day color television emerges, and running color prints on television. Loss of picture quality, Ziv says, dictates the double shooting.

Shows to receive both black-and-white and color treatment are "Favorite Story," "The Cisco Kid," and "Boston Blackie."

Desilu Hassle On Scripts to NLRB

Hollywood, March 31.

NLRB has ordered further hearings in the jurisdictional dispute about Desilu Productions, involving Screen Writers Guild and the Authors League of America and the Television Writers of America. SWG has contended TWA is company-dominated insofar as Desilu is concerned, and therefore not qualified to rep writers employed by that company.

At hearings which regional director Howard DeBaron will hold here NLRB will look into charges of SWG that TWA v.p. Jess Oppenheimer, a top exec of Desilu, gets 20% of the profits, and has almost complete authority over hiring and firing key personnel, including writers. SWG contends Desilu's interests would be repped by Oppenheimer at both sides of the bargaining table, and consequently asks that TWA be denied a place on the ballet in any election held for jurisdiction of Desilu scribblers.

WCBS-TV'S NEW BATCH OF PIX (TV '1ST RUNS')

WCBS-TV, N. Y., has signed a new first-run (on television) package of pictures from Tele-Pictures, Inc., a subsidiary of Robert Lippert Productions. The deal is for 26 pictures, with the oldest a 1950 release. Some of the strongest titles include "Stronghold," starring Veronica Lake and Zachary Scott, "Stolen Face," with Paul Henreid and Lizabeth Scott, "Savage Drums," with Sabu, and "Rocketship XM," with Lloyd Bridges.

The price is reported to be as high as WCBS-TV's Republic deal last December, which cost the key an estimated $200,000 for 104 films.

The new batch of pictures, some of which will not be released to the station until the end of the year, will be worked into the "Early Show" and "Late Show," beginning May 1.

Jessel's Vidpic Israel Documentary for WOR-TV

George Jessel may have already inked with ABC for his exclusive services, but WOR-TV, N. Y., will have first crack at a show with him. It's going to air his one-reeler, "Adventure in Israel," next Saturday as a Passover presentation.

Documentary was made by Jessel and his daughter while on a trip to Israel last summer. It's a plea for the United Jewish Appeal.

DuPont Brokenshire Vidpic for 5 Markets

E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. has bought United Artists Television's "Norman Brokenshire, the Handyman," for five markets. Chemical outfit will sponsor the program four days weekly on WMAR-TV, Baltimore, and WBNS-TV, Columbus, and cross-the-board on KGUL-TV, Galveston; WCAU-TV, Philadelphia and WNAC-TV, Boston.

Films were produced by Princeton Film Center, distributed by UA-TV. BBD&O agented duPont.

WABC-TV Sets Kidfilm Block

With setting of "Superman" on WABC-TV, N. Y., this week by Kellogg, ABC's flagship now has a solid cross-the-board kiddie block from 6 to 7:30 p.m. "Superman" vidpic will run 52 weeks in the Wednesday 6:15-6:45 slot.

Block tees off at 6 with "Rootie Kazootie," which is sponsored four times weekly with deal pending for remaining open day. Airline Foods, Gordon Baking Co. and Weston Biscuit Co. bankroll all but Monday. "Superman" has Kellogg bankrolling on Wednesdays, while other sponsored slot in the 6:15 time is "Range Riders" on Thursdays, with Chuckles Candy backing. "Bar 7 Ranch," still sustaining, will run Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays.

Slot from 6:45 to 7:15 is all sustaining, with "Buck Rogers," "Tim Tyler," "Don Winslow," "Flash Gordon" and 'Ace Drummond" running in that order. "Lash of the West," also sustaining, runs cross-the-board from 7:15 to 7:30.

Most of programs are vidpix. "Superman" is distributed by Motion Pictures for Television, as are most of the others. "Lash" was bought from Guild Films, which is under contract to produce more of the westerns. All but "Rootie," which is live, have been added in the past five weeks, supplanting previously programmed feature film show.

SINGER GOES FOR FULL '4-STAR RIDE'

As anticipated, the Singer Sewing Machine Co. has picked up the weekly tab for its "Four Star Playhouse," dramatic telefilm series now seen on CBS-TV alternate Thursdays from 8:30 to 9 p.m. Old Gold had bid for the time, but Singer found the additional dough to hike its advertising budget (an added $750,000 for time alone).

The Singer weekly sponsorship, for 52 weeks, starts Sept. 24. "Four Star" has been alternating with "Amos 'n' Andy," but latter is being dropped by Blatz beer.

Edmond O'Brien Host In New 5G Telefilms

Screen Gems, Inc., has gone into production with a new telefilm series, "The Law Strikes Back," with Edmond O'Brien as host and narrator.

First program is "The Last 30 Minutes," and stars Arthur Franz, Martha Vickers, George Macready, Eve Miller and Kyle James. Michael Kraike produces and Ted Post directs.

Each program in series, soon available for audition, will have different story, locale and stars.

AGENCY MEN IN SHOW BIZ YEN

M-G's 'Kukla, Fran and Lili'

Influence of television on the Hollywood pix studios is so pronounced in the new Leslie Caron filmusical "Lili" that Burr Tillstrom, creator of the "Kukla, Fran and Ollie" show, and NBC-TV are reportedly in the process of appraising the click pic's "format" in terms of possible legal redress.

The Metro carnival story draws heavily on the "Kukla" method of puppet presentation, even down to the play on the TV show's names and projection of the puppets. As one NBC exec put it: "Sometimes you don't know where 'Kukla' ends off and 'Lili' begins."

Web legalities are of the opinion that Metro trespassed too deeply into forbidden territory and are mulling the possibility of doing something about it.

Film drew favorable reviews and is doing big business.

Insurance Firms Shy Away From 'Errors & Omissions' TV Policies

Rapid mushrooming of the television industry and audience, together with the advent of vidpix, has cued major insurance companies to reappraise the entire field of "errors and omissions" insurance, covering libel, invasion of privacy and literary and title rights.

What they've seen has disturbed them to the extent that all but one major company has withdrawn from the highly specialized field, and that company is in the process of raising its rates as much as 400% for certain types of shows.

Only reassuring factors in the entire picture, according to Bernard W. Levmore, consultant and insurance specialist for some of the top telepix firms, are the fact that there still remains one domestic underwriter, and also that Lloyds of London is not yet known to have posted a rate increase. Latter, through its considerable influence in the American market and its availability to broadcasters and producers, is providing a cushion for the market.

Reasons for the increased rates stem from a number of factors, according to Levmore. One is a recent rash of invasion of privacy and literary rights suits that's expected to cost the underwriters millions and has been responsible for driving one insurance outfit out of the errors and omissions field. Another is the advent of vidpix, with their second-runs and "future exploitation" potentials. In the case of the latter, the underwriters fear that replay of the pix in local areas at later dates may invalidate all protection afforded by the statutes of limitations in the states where the programs first originated.

As an example of what's worry-

(Continued on page 70)

Dollar Trouble

There's a spare dollar floating around NBC radio offices.

It was given by Peg and Walter McGraw, documenters of "The Challenge of the Prisons" program, to Gov. Mennen (Soapy) Williams of Michigan for a release on some recordings for the show. The governor thought the bill trouble to income-account, so he returned it to NBC.

Jack Cleary, NBC radio program manager, sent the dollar to Hollywood for use on a quiz show, but Harry Bubeck, Hollywood program director, returned it with thanks.

The dollar now rests on Cleary's desk, and he's up a tree. It belongs to NBC, but the bookkeeping to return it will cost more than it's worth.

CBS-TV Facing 400G Nag Rap In Derby Deal

With only a few weeks remaining to the annual May running of the Kentucky Derby, CBS-TV is still without a sponsor for the turf classic. Last year the network succeeded in snaring a Gillette sponsorship. On that occasion the tab for the half-hour TV (plus radio) ride was $250,000, which also included time charges.

This season CBS has upped the ante to $400,000, including time. Gillette has turned it down, feeling it's too much of a rap for such a quickie attraction. Instead the razor company has negotiated for a race series pickup on NBC-TV and ABC radio.

It's doubtful that Columbia will telecast the event on a sustaining basis. But it's saddled with a long-term contract for the Derby event —one of the few major sports classics in the CBS camp, since NBC has the World Series, Army-Navy game, grabbed off the NCAA grid series last season, etc.

Evans Into 2-Hr. NBC-TV 'Hamlet'

Maurice Evans will make his dramatic television debut in a special two-hour "Hamlet," sponsored by Hallmark, on NBC-TV Sunday, April 26, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The play, to be done in Victorian dress as was the City Center production of "Love's Labour Lost," will co-star Ruth Chatterton as the Queen, Sarah Churchill as Ophelia and Barry Jones as Polonius.

Albert McCleery, director of Hallmark Hall of Fame dramatic series, will be executive producer and director. The Bard's play, first time on TV, will be adapted by Mildred Freed Alberg and Tom Hughes Sand.

No TV for Indpls. Race

Indianapolis, March 31.

The 500-mile auto race classic on May 30 at the Indianapolis Speedway will not go on television, said Wilbur Shaw, general manager. However, all five Indianapolis radio stations will carry a continuous start-to-finish account of the event.

The event will be sponsored by the Indiana Ford Dealers Assn., and all stations will carry identical programs, and this also will be fed to a network of stations outside the city who sign up for the service.

ED BYRON BOYHOOD SERIES FOR NBC-TV

Ed Byron, more recently missing from the radio-TV scene since the demise of his "Mr. District Attorney" package, which was one of the longtime staples in AM, has kine auditioned a new TV entry for NBC, with Harry Holcombe in the lead role.

Series is built around Byron's early boyhood and the emigrating of an Irish family to America. As such it will be something in the nature of an "I Remember Papa" series.

Minute Maid's TV Buy

Minute Maid, through Ted Bates agency, buys into NBC-TV's Gabby Hayes 5:15-5:30 strip, sponsoring Thursdays beginning June 11.

Sale leaves Tuesday open, with Quaker Oats on Mondays and Fridays and Wednesdays co-op.

'BIZ ONLY' CUES RESIGNATIONS

By GEORGE ROSEN

The erstwhile creative factotums in the agency picture who are now reduced to status of media and business execs are apparently in revolt. Resignation this week of Adrian Samish as radio-TV director of the Dancer, Fitzgerald, Sample agency (see separate story), following shortly after the bowout of Everard Meade as AM-TV topper at Young & Rubicam, highlights a growing unrest and disquietude among key agency executives who, by virtue of the "business only" status to which most agencies are reduced today, find themselves getting lost in the shuffle at a time when the whole TV production picture is mushrooming into new approaches and techniques.

Even at risk of gambling in finding their proper niche in the TV production sweepstakes, as in the case of Samish (who is presently without portfolio), the agency boys who once played key roles in solidifying broadcasting's stature as a show biz medium but whose activities are now confined to buying outside packages (mostly from networks) and taking orders for station time, want to get back into the production swim rather than face a "what-ever-happened to — —?" oblivion.

As in the case of Samish and Meade (who exited Y & R to stake his future in the more creative facets of TV writing), it's no secret that other key agency operators who once enjoyed topdog status in molding the bigtime entries on the networks are unhappy over their lot in the agencies, now that the networks (and a few outside package operations) dominate the TV — and radio — programming field.

Only a bare handful of radio and TV shows come out of the agencies today. The emergence of vidpix as a major commercial component in TV (in most cases the product of outside indie producers on the Coast), hasn't exactly contributed toward making the agency director's life a happier one.

Samish was one of the initial proponents of TV programming via film. Today D-F-S has one of the major stakes in vidpix, representing multi-million dollar billings annually. But there are enough shows in the can to see the clients through until far in '54. For 'guys playing the gin-rummy circuit, that's okay. But for the hep showmen with a yen to get back into the production swim, regardless of income, it doesn't make sense.

U.S. Steel Eyes TV Bow in Fall

U.S. Steel may make its initial splurge in TV in the fall. Company execs and BBD&O, agency on the account, are currently sifting aspects of the video bow and it's anticipated that the steel company will embrace the medium under ambitious auspices.

U.S. Steel's long career in radio has been an impressive, expensive one, with accent on major league showmanship in the pop idom rather than public service programming, as witness its current "Theatre Guild on the Air" NBC series. Expectations are that the company may latch on to a topflight drama vehicle as its TV counterpart.

Emerson Foote Citation

For his aid to the American Cancer Society, Emerson Foote, executive veepee of McCann-Erickson, Inc., last Sunday (29) received the 15 annual Clement Cleveland medal.

It's the highest honor to go to a lay person for "outstanding work in the campaign to control cancer."

Blatz Cancellation May Cue A&A's TV Demise; Alive & Kicking in Radio

Dead End

The local public-service Sunday shows featuring newsworthy prominent figures in New York City, such as "Let's Find Out" on WCBS, "Between the Lines" on WNBT and "Citizens Searchlight" on WNBC, are having trouble.

The shows are competing for the same people, such as City Council president Rudolph Halley and Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. It's strictly a limited cuffo guest market.

Unless CBS succeeds in latching on to a new sponsor, the TV version of "Amos 'n' Andy," which Blatz Beer is dropping at the end of the current cycle, will fade off the video airlanes. Thus, after a two-season ride, TV will register one of its alltime major casualities in the radio-to-video transition of stellar properties.

As radio personalities, "Amos 'n' Andy" (Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll) have one of the most enviable and profitable records in broadcasting annals. One of the first network shows to hit the bigtime, A & A as a radio component are going strong, continuing to hit the Sunday night CBS rating jackpot (although Gosden and Correll have indicated that they may retire at season's close).

It's recalled that when CBS board chairman William S. Paley engineered his now-famous $2,000,000 capital gains coup to woolng A & A over from NBC a few years back, one of the major subsidiary intents envisioned the transition to video, using different characters for the A & A and Kingfish portrayals. TV version as such has had a $40,000 weekly talent-production tab, but hasn't figured in the bigtime rating payoff.

Lux's 'No Soap' To Ford on Yielding Time for Jubilee

Ford, which had planned a mammoth 50th anni radio-TV jubilee for Monday, June 15, has skidded on a cake of Lux soap.

The motor company had in mind, for saturation effect, two hours (9 to 11 p.m.) on both NBC-TV and CBS-TV and one hour (9 to 10 p.m.) on CBS Radio. The radio time belongs to "Lux Radio Theatre," which is one of the rating leaders.

Therein developed the engine trouble. Lux, for the first time (in almost two decades), is staying on the air for the summer. Lever Bros., reluctant to relinquish the time anyway, also felt regular listeners might think the Lux show was off for the summer if the special Ford show interrupted the schedule.

So Lux has refused to give up its time. This, in addition to some trouble over clearing peak number of tele stations, decided Ford to relinquish its Monday plan. Now it is shopping around for another evening time period, probably Wednesday, June 17.

The Ford anniversary show, with New York and Hollywood originations, is a whopping-budget high-class affair. Frederick Lewis Allen, the historian and editor, is writing the script, and Leland Hayward is producing. Bing Crosby and Ethel Merman are slated to be the master and mistress of ceremonies.

Projected two-hour show represents one of the most ambitious tele undertakings in the brief history of the industry. Used to describe the event will be a visual history of the country as it paralleled the growth of the Ford and the automotive industry in general. Indications of the budget that's being shelled out lies in the fact that every major agency has submitted its top talent and writers to Hayward.

Plans have not been finalized as yet, although some ideas have been settled. Foremost among the novelties in the presentation will lie in the fact that there will be no commercials as such. The only time Ford will get a mention is as it relates to the growth and history of the U. S.

DuM's DUAL SALES POLICY ON DIXON

DuMont is developing a scheme whereby it will sell the first half-hour of its daytime "Paul Dixon Show" on a co-op basis while reserving the last half-hour for national sponsorship. Cross-the-boarder, sold currently in 10-minute segments, has three national sponsors at present.

When nationally-sponsored half-hour is sold out, network would retrieve co-op strips for network sponsors should there be any bidders. Move marks the first co-op for the net beyond its boxing and wrestling shows.

Howard, CBS Calling Quits

Hollywood, March 31.

CBS and Cy Howard are parting after nine years when his contract runs out in August of next year. Negotiations for a new term deal collapsed when Howard held out for outside picture work. Network demanded exclusivity and was willing to pay the creative producer more than $1,000,000 over a term of years.

Howard has asked for his release so he can bargain with other networks. He conferred with NBC's program chief, Charles Barry, and was to meet with ABC prexy Robert Kintner before his return east.

Among shows created, developed and produced by Howard are "My Friend Irma," "Life With Luigi" and the upcoming "That's My Boy."

SAMISH RESIGNS AS D-F-S RADIO-TV HEAD

Adrian Samish has resigned, as of today (Wed.), as radio-television director of Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample agency, after six years in the post. He will be succeeded by Al Kobaker, who headed up the Coast office for D-F-S.

Samish's resignation stems from differences of opinion on radio-tele policy of the agency, plus a desire to return to the "creative" aspect of broadcasting-telecasting.

ABC Radio in Bid For Peggy Lee Stanza

ABC has approached singer Peggy Lee to do a four-a-week 15-minute musical stint on its radio net. Talks are currently being held with General Artists Corp., which represents the singer.

Program would tee off late this spring and would run through the summer. If sold, it would be a permanent airer on the web.

ABC's 141G '52 Loss

ABC financial report, issued simultaneously last week with that of United Paramount Theatres, showed a loss of $141,725 for 1952. Report was the last ABC will ever issue, since future reports will come under AB-PT banner.

Company showed an operating profit of $232,127, but interest and taxes turned net to a loss. Total billings amounted to $56,803,508, less discounts (not including agencies') and rebates.

'52 Banner Year for TV Networks, But Profits Are Lower Than Radio; 16 Stations Pass Million Net Mark

Washington, March 31.

As was to be expected, in view of the growth of its audience, the television broadcasting industry had its biggest year in 1952, with revenue up 43% from 1951 and profits (before taxes) 31% greater. It was the second year in which the industry, as a whole, operated in the black.

The increase in business roughly paralleled the gain in the number of viewers, as measured by sale of sets and geographical expansion of network coverage. There were about 6,000,000 sets sold in 1952 which raised the number in use by about one-third.

The coaxial cable was also expanded to bring more areas within the network orbit. As a consequence, the percentage gain in the volume of business done by the webs was substantially greater than that by the overall industry.

The importance of the networks in TV broadcasting was accentuated in 1952, with the webs (including their owned and operated stations) accounting for 57% of the total industry volume. Their share in 1951 was 54.4%.

Total revenues of the industry, according to preliminary estimates by the FCC, were $336,300,000, while profits amounted to $54,500,000. Revenues, as compiled by FCC from financial reports submitted by all networks and stations, are based on sale of time, talent and program material to advertisers.

50% Gain in Network Revenue

Network revenue for 1952 totaled $191,900,000, or a gain of almost 50% over the previous year. However, because of proportionately greater operating costs in 1952, profits of the webs were only $9,000,000 as compared to $11,000,000 in 1951.

Despite the big increase in TV volume, the webs made less money last year from video than from radio, revenues of which dropped. Web profits from AM operations in 1952 totaled $11,200,000 for a gain of about 18%. This was in contrast to 1951 when TV profits of the networks for the first time exceeded those from radio.

The explanation was shown in the FCC figures. While AM revenues of the nets dropped only $1,900,000 last year (from $99,000,000 in 1951), there was a decline of $3,600,000 in AM operating expenses (from $89,500,000 in 1951).

Despite the substantial increase

(Continued on page 70)

O'Neil Dickering WLAW Mass. Buy

Tom O'Neil's General Teleradio is dickering to purchase WLAW, 50,000-watter in Lawrence, Mass., to add to its Yankee network. Negotiations are still in the early stages, and being handled by Teleradio's Boston reps.

Teleradio has been after the property on and off for some time. Negotiations couple of years ago fell through after nearly being consummated. Teleradio owns WNAC in Boston, which is a 5,000-watter. Addition of WLAW would give it top New England coverage. Mutual Broadcasting System, controlled by Teleradio, currently has a Lawrence affiliate, the 250-watt WLLH, but if sale of WLAW goes through, WLLH presumably would switch affiliation to ABC; which currently is repped by WLAW, while the latter would come under the Mutual banner.

WPTZ's Esso Show

Philadelphia, March 31.

Esso Reporter, for years one of radio's best known news programs, becomes a nightly TV feature on WPTZ, starting April 6.

Dick McCutcheon, ABC news commentator, has been signed as news editor by WPTZ and will be seen and heard nightly on WPTZ "Esso" show. B. Calvin Jones will be producer-director and Ernie Liess, former WCAU news editor, joins WPTZ staff as writer and reporter.

Scotti Gets 'Luigi' Role

Hollywood, March 31.

Vito Scotti, former stage actor now playing character parts in pictures, has been picked by Harry Ackerman, CBS-TV veepee, for the title role in the comedy series, "Life With Luigi," formerly played by J. Carrol Naish.

Romo Vincent, nitery comic, auditioned for the part of Pasquale.

L. B. Wilson In Miami TV Race

Miami, March 30.

Fourth application for permit to telecast on available Channel 10 here was disclosed this week with filing before FCC by L. B. Wilson, operator of WCKY-AM, Cincinnati.

Company has opened offices in Miami Beach and joins AM stations WGBS-(CBS), owned by George B. Storer chain; WKAT-(MBS) and indie WFEC in the bidding for the FCC nod.

Two other standard frequency channels here are Channel 4, with WTVJ already in operation on that lane. Applicants for Channel 7 include Biscayne Television Corp., the Niles Trammel-Miami Herald Daily News combo; the East Coast Television Corp.; local resident Jack C. Stein and a Davenport, Ohio group.

Channel 2 has been reserved for educational purposes with strong controversy raging among civic groups on practicality of County School Board operating the station proposed, or raising private funds via donation for same.

Ultra High Frequency channels are two, with only applicants thus far Television Corp. of Greater Miami, a New York group seeking Channel 33 and Suncoast Broadcasting Corp. which operates local indie WMIE-AM applying for Channel 27.

ABC'S FRISCO CENTER TO COST $1,500,000

San Francisco, March 31.

Construction of a new ABC Radio-TV Center will start in downtown San Francisco within 60 days, ABC president Robert Kintner announced last week. Kintner, touring web's Coast facilities with other top ABC brass, said the center, which will house KGO, KGO-TV and the web's Western Division, will cost $1,500,000.

Center will be housed in ABC's four-story building, purchased in 1951. Building will undergo alterations and reconstruction to make room for eight studios, control facilities and office space.

Lotsa Horse Racing On Tap for ABC Radio

ABC radio is supplementing its schedule of 10 key horseraces sponsored by Gillette with another 10 on a sustaining basis that will give it a full Saturday afternoon turf schedule that will start next week and run through August 15. In addition, it has set races from September through November.

Series will be built around the Gillette schedule, starting April 4, laying off from April 18 to June 20, while the Gillette series is on, then resuming June 27 and running till Aug. 15. After a three-week layoff, series returns till Nov. 14. Jack McCarthy will handle sportscasting. Series bows with the running of the Excelsior Handicap from Jamaica.

Prep Jostyn Series

Two radio audition shows have been cut for a new cross-the-board suspense series created and packaged by Alan Sands and starring Jay Jostyn, ex-"Mr. D.A."

Teledition scripts for twice weekly 15-minute program are being written by Sands and Ellie Tarshis.

81 Cities Now on Cable

Bridgeport and Sioux City were added to the coaxial cable this week, bringing the total number of interconnected cities to 81 and total number of stations served to 126, A. T. & T. Long Lines Dept. announced.

Stations are WICC-TV in Bridgeport, which is fed from the New York-Boston route, and KVTV in Sioux City, which taps its feeds from the transcortinental system at Omaha.

Cleve. AM-TVers Score News Beat On Train Wreck

Cleveland, March 31.

Quick action and long hours without sleep by the WTAM-WNBK news staff in Cleveland enabled NBC, locally and nationally, to get a real beat on the March 27 wreck of three N. Y. Central trains near Conneaut, O.

First news of the wreck came to news editor Edward Killeen shortly before 11 p. m. After alerting NBC's Cleveland-based TV newsreel cameraman Bob Blair, Killeen wrote a bulletin for Cleveland NBC radio and TV. At the same time, Killeen informed Edward Wallace, director of News and special events for WTAM-WNBK, who called staffers Sanford Markey and Neil Flanagan, both of whom had already worked eight hours Friday.

Another call went to Engineer Wilbur Kost at home. He was alerted to ready for a flying trip to Conneaut. Markey, in his own car and equipped with "minitape," and Flanagan and Kost in NBC's mobile unit, raced to the scene for the nation's first on-the-spot reports of the tragedy. Runners for Markey and Flanagan were TV WNBK's staffers Charles Dargan and James Bell.

In less than two hours, Cleveland NBC, radio-TV, was at the wreck, more than 70 miles from Cleveland. Cameraman Blair, first arrival, shot several hundred feet of night film.

Difficult technical problems stood in the way of getting Blair's film on NBC Saturday afternoon. Wallace, back in Cleveland, called lab personnel to process Blair's film when he arrived. Again someone was roused from bed. WNBK's film director Albert O'Deal was also routed from bed to handle the tedious, exacting job of cutting and splicing Blair's film.

This done, a four-minute special telecast was written by news editor Windsor Smith and sent to the full NBC-TV network.

On the radio side, Markey with portable minitape, and Bell serving as runner, covered the wreck scene itself, about a mile and a half from paved roads and quarter to a half mile from either of two mud roads made completely impassable by steady rains.

Flanagan, engineer Kost and Dargan took recording equipment to Brown Memorial Hospital in Conneaut, closest hospital to the wreck. There, in hallways, emergency rooms and wherever there was room, recording of nurses, survivors, Red Cross officials and volunteer rescue workers were taped.

Between them, Flanagan and Markey taped enough on-the-spot material to provide the web with a two-minute feed at 8 a. m. Saturday. A similar feed for a locally produced radio news show at the same time and a full half-hour taped material was fed the net in New York via closed circuit. That material was for use on NBC's "Today" and local radio news in New York.

WABC Sets John Conte For Disk-Jock Gab

WABC, ABC's N. Y. flagship, has set John Conte in a cross-the-board afternoon disk-jockey gab strip. Conte will play records, sing, do a five-minute sports news strip and do occasional interviews from 5:15 to 6 p.m.

He'll move into the Bobby Sherwood slot. Latter moves into the 6:15-7 period, formerly occupied by one of the staff deejays. Show will be carried participating. It's to be produced by Jerry Gross and Norman Baer. Conte, incidentally, will use as a theme "You and I," which he sang some years ago as emcee of the Fanny Brice-Frank Morgan airer for Maxwell House.

How They're Rated & What They Cost

American Research Bureau rating figures for March, '53, project NBC-TV into the top 25 lead with 14 entries as against 11 for CBS-TV. As usual, it's "Lucy" and Godfrey in the No. 1 and No. 2 spots, with Groucho Marx's "You Bet Your Life" moving into third position and Milton Berle, usually No. 3 occupant this season, dropping to sixth position.

Lineup follows:

	Network	Rating	Cost (Exclusive Of Time)
I Love Lucy	CBS	72.7	$38,000
Godfrey's Talent Scouts	CBS	58.0	25,000
You Bet Your Life	NBC	54.7	20,000
Godfrey and Friends	CBS	52.1	25,000
Dragnet	NBC	49.9	30,000
Texaco Star Theatre	NBC	48.2	50,000
Comedy Hour—Bob Hope	NBC	45.7	50,000
What's My Line	CBS	43.5	8,500
Our Miss Brooks	CBS	41.9	27,200
Toast of the Town	CBS	41.1	25,500
Mama	CBS	40.8	11,500
Blue Ribbon Bouts	CBS	40.1	15,000
Your Show of Shows	NBC	39.9	29,700 (Per ¼ Hr.)
Cavalcade of Sports—Giardello vs. Graham	NBC	38.7	15,000
Life of Riley	NBC	38.7	25,000
Television Playhouse	NBC	38.6	26,000
Your Hit Parade	NBC	38.4	40,000
Red Buttons	CBS	38.3	20,000
Fireside Theatre	NBC	37.6	18,000
Jackie Gleason	CBS	37.1	54,000
All Star Revue—Durante	NBC	37.0	50,000
Kraft TV Theatre	NBC	36.2	17,500
Big Town	CBS	35.9	16,500
Big Story	NBC	35.4	17,000
Ford Theatre	NBC	35.1	25,000

Erwin, Wasey Hits TV Jackpot With New Low-Cost 3-D Comm'l Technique

Chicago, March 31.

Erwin, Wasey ad agency hit the low-cost television commercial jackpot last Friday (27) on the DuMont telecast of the Golden Gloves intercity fights by producing 33 minutes of commercials for $5,000, using a new technique which the agency has developed for the Admiral Corp.

Weeks ago, when only 10 feet of space was available for the live Admiral commercials on the Bishop Sheen program, the agency started searching for a different method of presenting commercials. Filmed commercials were nixed by the agency as too expensive and inadequate for network programs. Michael Levin, director of creative production for Erwin, Wasey, experimented with scale models of Admiral products and found the cost prohibitive—with the going price of a miniature TV set being $1,000.

Color Transparencies

Levin found his answer in color transparencies. By carefully planning the set for proper perspective, and by later retouching the red end of the spectrum with blueish tints, photog Nicholas Guida was able to deliver color transparencies which have much greater three-dimensional effect than is possible to obtain with either live or black and white stills or motion pic film. (In preliminary testing on advertiser, agency personnel and the public, both live shots and transparencies of the same scene were viewed on the monitor, and Levin claims the vote was unanimously in favor of the transparencies for realism.)

In using transparencies, such as

(Continued on page 68)

'Today' Hikes Rate

The NBC-TV "Today" participation price structure goes up today (1).

New rates are $50 for 10 seconds, $150 for 20 and 60 seconds (this last as available and subject to preemption if adjacent five-minute period is sold).

The five minute cut-ins remain the same, from once per week at $340 to five-a-week at $1,250.

ABC-TV 'Album's' Major Properties

ABC-TV is virtually set on its schedule and much of the casting for the Sunday night "Album" series, which tees off April 12 at 7:30. First presentation will star Paul Douglas in "Justice," program based on Legal Aid Society files with Lee Grant featured. Justice Learned Hand will appear along with program's host, Donald Cook.

Second in the series will be "Glencannon," with Robert Newton; Myron McCormick and Melville Cooper in the cast and Sir Cedric Hardwicke directing. Third program will star Brandon de Wilde in "Jamie," scripted by David Swift. Fourth and fifth programs will be two-episode version of "Tale of Two Cities," for which cast isn't set. Sixth show will have Cook relating three vignettes, program to be called "Sketchbook."

Number of other shows are virtually set, with last four in the series to be chosen from nine properties the web has on hand. One of them is "Courtroom," the Quentin Reynolds biog of Judge Samuel Liebowitz.

Plans call for programs to be aired from N. Y. and the Coast, with some of the shows live and others on film. Each program will be created in such a manner as to make it the basis of a projected series, should sponsor interest be aroused. In that line, web has worded the contract with de Wilde so that he will be available should the show be projected into a series. Douglas' is strictly a one-shot appearance, however.

Jack Pearl Auditions Radio Series for NBC

Jack Pearl (Baron Munchausen) and Cliff Hall (Sharlie) have cut an audition record of a new program, "The Baron and the Bee," for NBC Radio.

The program will be a contestant spelling bee, with comedy relief by Pearl and Hall, offered for a summer ride.

Camel's Walk To Hypo 'Show' Spots

It's now fairly certain that Camel cigarets will call it quits after this season on its sponsorship of the NBC-TV "Show of Shows," for which it has been paying $2,500,000 for a weekly half-hour ride on a time-and-talent basis.

However, it looks as though Prudential, which has also been sponsoring a half-hour on an alternate week basis, may decide to continue, despite previous reports that the insurance company was planning to check off the Saturday night Sid Caesar-Imogene Coca series.

In the event of the Camel walk, the network will abandon the full 30-minute sponsorship formula in favor of increasing the program's spot potential (more profitable and more in keeping with the web's original sales concept for the show).

RADIO'S 'ME, TOO' QUEEN LIZ BID

'C Day' for Sarnoff

RCA board chairman David Sarnoff's move-in on the NBC subsidiary operation on an active basis, now that he's also become network board chairman, has been translated into something more than idle rumor.

On the same day last week which found CBS throwing in the non-compatible sponge on color TV and paving the way for the all-industry system based on the RCA-NBC all-electronic concept, Gen. Sarnoff celebrated C (for color) Day by his first full-day occupancy of the NBC executive suite formerly occupied by ex-board chairman Niles Trammell, and engaging in network-level duties through practically the entire day.

No Panic on Compatible Color TV; 'Time Unripe' Says FCC's Walker

Washington, March 31.

The FCC won't be pressured into hasty action on color TV, Commission chairman Paul A. Walker told the House Interstate Commerce Committee today. Not until the Commission has redetermined that a satisfactory compatible system has been developed and thoroughly tested, Walker testified, no such system will be authorized. The agency, he said, has been disappointed "many times" with representations that a satisfactory compatible system has been developed.

In forceful testimony before the committee, Walker declared "with all the force at our command" that the agency has found from experience that "short cuts to a commendable objective frequently are blind alleys or dead-end streets."

"And we say," he added, "that any system or color television which is to be with the public for years merits the most serious governmental deliberations. These deliberations should not and need not be interminable, but they should assure the public that all persons having a worthwhile contribution to make to a correct answer should have the opportunity to be heard."

Under questioning by committee chairman Charles Wolverson (R-N.J.), Walker said that "whenever anyone presents a satisfactory compatible system, the FCC will do everything it can to make it available to the public." He added that the Commission has "nothing before it" to warrant calling a hearing to consider compatible systems.

Questioned further, he said "It would not be advisable to hold hearings at this time . . . I think it would be futile to conduct a hearing on what the NTSC is trying to do."

"Then the time is not ripe for an immediate formal hearing to adopt standards?" Wolverton asked.

"That's my opinion," Walker replied.

Gotham Tele, AM Good for Taxi Biz

New York's radio-TV industry, once highly centralized in the midtown area, is mushrooming all around the town. Latest to move is ABC, which over the weekend completed its shift to the West 66-70th St. areas. And strangely enough, ABC is now the only network whose operations are centralized in one spot.

NBC, mass of which is in Rockefeller Center, has studios and offices on 105th St. CBS, on Madison

(Continued on page 69)

Breathing Space

ABC's shift from the RCA Bldg., N.Y., over the weekend finally gave NBC some much needed quarters. Web started to shift some of its offices into those vacated by ABC toppers.

Biggest plum went to the WNBC-WNBT executive staff (Ted Cott, Dick Pack & Co.) and the owned-and-operated brass (Charles R. Denny and execs) who move into the Robert Kintner-Edward Noble ABC executive suite.

WOW's 30th Anni

Omaha, March 31.

WOW here will celebrate its 30th broadcasting birthday tomorrow (2). Station is owned by Meredith Publishing Co., Frank P. Fogarty is manager.

First known as WOAM, outlet obtained its 590-kilocycle frequency in 1926 and the following year joined NBC.

N.Y.'s TV Stations Face Sun. Rap On Mail Order Curbs

Those mail order houses concentrating on television advertising are up in arms over a bill which has passed the New York State Legislature and is awaiting signature of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey which would outlaw taking of phone orders for retail goods on Sundays.

Bill would seriously curtail business of the mail order houses, and would also hurt the Sunday sales picture at the N. Y. tele stations themselves. N. Y. stations estimate that roughly 20% of their Sunday programming is sponsored by the mail order firms. These would cancel all Sunday telecasts, so great a role does the Sabbath play in their sales figures.

One firm, a retail watch outfit which uses spots seven days a week, estimates that 30 to 40% of its business is done on Sunday. Another mail order house, which presently is inactive in N. Y. but at one time was one of the largest of the TV houses, estimated that Sunday business accounted for 50-60% of its week's gross.

Television has changed the selling picture for these houses, in that now only 5-20% of their business is done by mail, as opposed to 80-95% by phone. Amount of damage bill could do to their business is obvious.

Passage of the bill came as a surprise to retailers, but pressure is now building up for Dewey to veto it. N. Y. State Council of Retail Merchants, which includes most of the Gotham department stores, has filed a brief opposing the bill. Stores have been instituting practice of accepting phone orders on items advertised in the Sunday newspapers, and business has run into the millions annually.

Even if Dewey does sign the bill, one mail order exec, Harold Kaye, said he doubts if it will stand up in court. Kaye pointed to a similar bill in Baltimore which went into effect, but was ruled unconstitutional by a Baltimore court.

NBC Radio Mulling Strip for 'Aldrich'

NBC radio will experiment, in a few weeks, with a 15-minute strip cross the board for "The Aldrich Family," now in the Sunday 7:30 p.m. spot.

"My Son, Jeep," starring Donald Cook, will shift half an hour later Sundays into the "Aldrich" time. No announcement yet on the fill-in for the Sunday 7 o'clock time.

'WE CAN DO IT BETTER THAN TV'

The network newshawks of broadcasting, most of whom are radio-accented (TV-only newsmen are still a handful, the joint radio-TV journalists a hatful, while there is a barrelful of strictly-sound newsmen), are watching the mounting hoopla about television's coverage of Queen Elizabeth's Coronation June 2 with parallel mounting amazement.

Television, agog at its first Coronation, is talking feverishly of jet planes, rockets, and sympathetic ocean waves that might possibly carry a picture back to America almost as fast as sound—and all this with a straight face. The latest along this line is NBC-TV's hiring of stunt flyer Paul Mantz and a "mystery plane."

The radio newsmen, Coronation veterans, are astonished at all the TV fuss. They are also more than a bit put out at being ignored. They are not saying this out loud. After all, their checks are being paid by the same companies that carry television. But the blinding fact of the Coronation coverage, they say, is that it's a radio show.

Radio, they say, can do the job better. Westminster Abbey, where the royal ceremony is held, is some 3,000 miles away across an uncooperative (for television signals) ocean. Radio spans the distance in a breeze.

It's ironical, the radio newsmen say privately, that what they admit is essentially a picture story proves once more the importance of radio. Especially in international coverage, the ear is quicker than the eye. For the Coronation, only radio will have immediacy, that precious quality television throws in the face of movies at home here in the U. S. A.

5:30 a.m. Radio Bow

That the television boys are coming around to a slow realization of this fact is evidenced by the CBS-TV decision to carry CBS Radio sound when it begins its "television" coverage at the early time of 5:30 a.m. June 2. ABC begins at 6 a.m. with similar-type coverage, while NBC is mulling same idea.

On coverage, CBS, NBC and ABC all have fuller schedules on radio—hours more—than TV. The three webs are opening their radio networks 2½ hours earlier than usual, at 5:30 a.m., a decision made first by radio.

But televisionwise, coverage will be essentially radio with still pictures—no matter what time the TV

(Continued on page 70)

BOB HOPE PARTNERS AM-TV PACKAGE FIRM

Bob Hope has joined in partnership in a radio-TV production and packaging business with J. Hugh E. Davis, former exec veepee of Foote, Cone & Belding agency, Chicago. Firm is to be called J. Hugh E. Davis Co., with office in L. A. and another office to open later in N. Y.

Davis, w.k. Chi radio-TV supervisor, has handled in his eight years with FC&B, Hope's AM and TV stanzas, plus "Man Called X," "Corliss Archer," "Hallmark Playhouse," "Arthur Godfrey Show," "Pulitzer Prize Playhouse" and others.

Reynolds Tobacco Buys Joe E.'s Fore-Aft Gab

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. will bankroll Joe E. Brown's pre- and post-game color commentary of the N. Y. Yankee games on WPIX. Brown will do a 15-minute show before and 10 minutes following the games. Wm. Esty Co. agented.

Since the entire setup is a Yankee package, Brown will also do some of the sportscasting on the games themselves, which are sponsored on video and on radio on WINS by Ballantine and White Owl. He'll assist Mel Allen and Jim Woods.

When Will Compatible Color TV Be Ready? Depends on Who's Testifying

Washington, March 31.

The House Interstate Commerce Committee hearings last week into the status of color television demonstrate one thing for certain; the timetable for a compatible system varies with the witness and the pressure of public demand.

For example, RCA, the dominant force in the manufacturing industry, said it is "more optimistic" about the "imminence" of a compatible system than Dr. W. G. R. Baker, chairman of the National Television System Committee, with whom RCA is cooperating in developing color standards.

Dr. Baker told the Committee he thought CBS prexy Frank Stanton's estimate that it would take FCC six to 18 months to make a determination "reasonable," once, of course, the NTSC system now being developed is successfully field tested.

Stanton, whose company is also cooperating with NTSC, said that on the basis of "present but incomplete" information, the new compatible system faces "substantial problems, particularly in cost and complexity both at the transmitting end and at the receiving end." Whether the NTSC system is "feasible" for the home, he said, "we do not know."

Dr. Allen B. DuMont, also a member of NTSC, when asked if a compatible system is ready, said, "we do not have it" and would not "guarantee" that the industry "can come up with a satisfactory system in six months or two years." Dr. DuMont went even further and suggested he may not be "far off" in an estimate he gave the FCC in 1946 that color is 10 to 20 years away.

Philco, another member of NTSC, gave no estimate on readiness of a compatible system but said that its "technical feasibility" has been established and that NTSC has adopted "tentative" standards.

The key to the Committee inquiry resides in its chairman, Charles Wolverton (R., N. J.) who has made it clear, despite pious pronouncements that there's no "iron curtain" over the hearings,

(Continued on page 70)

Tallu's Situation Series

Tallulah Bankhead will appear in a situation comedy series for NBC-TV next fall, under Dee Engelbach's production-direction, with Hugh Wedlock and Howard Snyder scripting.

Latter team is also polishing Miss Bankhead's nitery routine for her nitery debut into The Sands, Las Vegas, on May 23.

Time, Inc. Into Salt Lake AM-TV In Empire Bid

Time, Inc., which has previously shown its interest in television via its March of Time-TV unit and co-ownership of the Albuquerque Broadcasting Co. (stations KOB and KOB-TV) with ex-FCC chairman Wayne Coy, stepped into a larger tele picture with announcement yesterday (Tues.) of completed negotiations for purchase of the Intermountain Broadcasting and Television Corp. in Salt Lake City.

The Intermountain stations, all NBC affiliates, include KDYL-TV, KDYL-AM and KDYL-FM. The transfer must be approved by the FCC.

Time has been shopping around the country for available tele stations at an acceptable price, as a hedge for the future. It has explored properties at San Diego, Kansas City and Columbus. The publishing outfit would like to buy tele stations up to the FCC limit of five, picking them up where available at acceptable prices.

$2,100,000 Price Tag

The agreed tab of the Salt Lake property was $2,100,000 which, compared to $900,000 tag on the Albuquerque company bought a year ago, indicates the increasing earnestness of Time's intention.

Time's purchase of Intermountain was made in association with G. Bennett ("Ben") Larson, Salt Lake City native and veepee and general manager of WPIX N.Y. A stockholder, he will become president and general manager of the new company

Sidney S. Fox, Intermountain's prexy and principal stockholder, will stay on as adviser. No plans for immediate personnel changes are contemplated by Time president Roy E. Larsen. Other KYDL executives include John M. Baldwin, veepee and technical director; George A. Provol, commercial manager; Dan Rainger, program director; E. J. Drucker, sales director; and Connie Eckhardt, film buyer.

KDYL-TV with its transmitter nearly 9,000 feet above sea level atop Mount Vision in the Oquirrh Mountain Range, covers a radius of almost 200 miles outside Salt Lake City and 87 per cent of the Utah population as well as parts of Idaho, Wyoming and Nevada.

Besides the March of Time's 30-minute TV news documentary now shown weekly in major cities, Time Inc., which publishes Time, Life, Fortune Architectural Forum and House & Home, has produced two earlier TV productions, "Crusade in Europe" and "Crusade in the Pacific."

Pinkley's ABC Show

Virgil Pinkley, editor and publisher of the Los Angeles Mirror, started a four-times-weekly 15-minute news commentary on ABC radio this week. Sustainer, on Monday through Thursday at 10:15 p.m., will originate from various spots.

Program is part of the net's campaign to secure new talent in all programming fields.

Speidel-Crosley Settle for 'Name'

With Paul Winchell grabbing off the Sunday night at 7 NBC-TV slot in a switch from his current Speidel-Crosley sponsorship to Procter & Gamble (with the present 7 o'clock tenant, Red Skelton, shifting back to his erstwhile 10 p.m. niche), NBC-TV has grabbed off a quick sale of Monday night at 8. That's the time being vacated by Winchell.

Speidel and Crosley remain as the alternate-week sponsors in the Monday time, with "What's My Name?" to occupy the segment. Latter show is packaged by Lou Cowan, who, until the switch to P&G, has had the Winchell show. "Name" format has been integrated into the Winchell stanza, but henceforth will be packaged separately for the Monday show, with likelihood of Bert Parke emceeing.

CBS Ups Irving Fein

Advancement of Irving Fein to director of public relations for CBS radio in Hollywood has been announced by Louis Hausman, administrative veepee. For the past 18 months he has been Coast director of publicity and exploitation.

Fein came to CBS in 1949 with the purchase of Jack Benny's Amusement Enterprise, of which he was advertising and publicity director. Previously he had served as head of radio and exploitation for Warners, Samuel Goldwyn and Columbia.

THE PHRASE THAT PAYS
With Red Benson, emcee
Producers-Directors-Writers: Walter and Peg McGraw
15 Mins.; Mon. thru Fri., 11:30 a.m.
COLGATE
NBC, transcribed from New York
(Sherman & Marquette)

Any "Bob and Ray" listeners, who are devoted if not legion, catching this replacement will be brought up sharply by the realities of radio. Instead of the light kidding duo, there's a new quiz panting in their place.

"The Phrase That Pays" is almost pure commercial, what with the Colgate products and the many free plugs for prizes given away to contestants. Red Benson, who has the usual breathless excitement of the giveaway emcee, calls a home listener who has sent in a well-known phrase or slogan. While she (it's usually a housewife) dangles on the phone, Benson gives a studio contestant three clues to the phrase. Smaller prizes are given either to the home phrase-maker or the studio rival (the audience is in on the phrase) on the first two clues, with the third the gateway—via a quiz-identification of a commercial—to a bonus prize. The bonuses on the first show consisted of a two-week Canadian vacation (for a housewife at home) and a complete set of the Book of Knowledge (to an Army major).

In the rather horrendous succession of mentions, about the only entertainment provided is the contestants' greed to latch on to something for nothing (discounting the homebodies' "work" in sending in such phrases as "Go West, Young Man" and "Let 'em Eat Cake"). Are there still that many Virginias who believe in a commercial Santa Claus?

The musical clues are offered on the organ—what else?

HIGHWAY HARMONIES
With Marilynn Lovell, Kenny Carbonel, George Stone, Caesar Giovannini
Writer: Bob Carman
Producer-director: Herb Lateau
25 Mins.; Wed., 9:35 p.m.
CHICAGO GREYHOUND COOPERATIVE
WMAQ, Chicago

NBC in Chi has added another potential winner to its showmanship stable by airing a solid blend of music-chatter on its Windy City local WMAQ each Wednesday eve. Headlining the 25-minute musiciana is Marilynn Lovell who handles the warblings in a mellow manner. On broadcast heard Wednesday (25) Miss Lovell seemed a bit shaky on the fast beat, although her rendition of such torch tunes as "Begin the Beguine" was really tiptop.

Kenny Carbonel as a male vocalist seems more at home with a yodel than a ballad. However, the talent itinerary again rounds itself out with an instrumental aggregation topped by pianist Caesar Giovannini, who aside from providing a fine backstop, is solid with such originations as "Celeste Blues." As emcee, George Stone does a masterful job of show blending and also in handling the commercials. Arne.

DR. SCHOLL'S NEWS WITH ED PETTITT
5 Mins.; Sun., 4:55 p.m.
SCHOLL MFG. CO.
Mutual, from N. Y.
(Donahue & Coe)

Audience for this five-minute news shot will undoubtedly be limited to a carryover from Mutual's preceding 25-minute airing of "Dear Margie, It's Murder." There's not enough offered to warrant special tuning in of the show or to draw dialers away from other stations. Due to scant running time program comes off as nothing more than a brief news summary with net's newscaster Ed Pettitt rattling off the day's current events highlights.

Broadcast preemed Sunday (29) with Pettitt authoritatively handling his reporting assignment. Plug for sponsor's product was okay. Jess.

Offbeat Clients

Couple of unusual sponsors popped up on the Gotham scene this week. Penrod Drilling Co., a Shreveport, La., oil drilling firm, bought "Facts Forum" on WOR radio for 52 weeks. Firm's commercials on the discussion show read, "Before drilling your next well, ask for a bid from the Penrod Drilling Co."

In television, the N. Y. School of Memory and Concentration bought a 15-minute one-shot on WABD to plug its memory method.

FREEDOM, USA
With Tyrone Power, Francis X. Bushman, Edwin C. Hill, Patsy Campbell, others Producer: Herbert Gordon
Director: Henry P. Hayward
30 Mins.; Sun., 9:30 p.m.
TEAMSTERS UNION, AFL
WABC, N. Y.

A curious twist whereby the commercials are far more dramatic than the program itself is offered by "Freedom, USA." This transcribed Ziv drama series starring Tyrone Power, on its preem last Sunday (29), is ballyhoed as "the first time a trade union has ever sponsored a radio show of this magnitude for sheer entertainment value, and kept it free of all union propaganda."

That claim is true, but it may be the sponsor is up the wrong alley. The wilted drama could have done with the fervor read into the commercial by George Barasch, secretary treasurer of Local 815, Teamsters Union AFL. Waxing enthusiastic over the need for non-unionized office and warehouse workers to join Local 815, Barasch rhapsodized, "We're not selling soap, or autos, or toothpaste. We're selling the idea that people are important. That intelligent men and women banded together can extract more beauty out of life . . ."

On the other hand, the drama was a hackneyed affair posing Power in the role of a freshman senator heading a crime investigating committee. Mouthing patriotic cliches, Power gets the goods on a Costello-style slot machine racketeer. The bad man tries to bribe Power and his witness, a tax examiner, but virtue remains triumphant, and the rotten yegg gets tossed into the pokey. Power and his supporting cast, Patsy Campbell playing his adoring steno and Francis X. Bushman playing a philosophical old savant, try to wrestle with the script valiantly, but the cliches toss them for a fall. Edwin C. Hill does his bit okay, establishing the Washington scene as a news commentator. If Barasch were to write the script, as well as his union pitch, it could be that Local 815 may yet have a show on its hands.

DR. JIVE
With Tommy Smalls, deejay, and John Magnus, announcer
Producer: Fred Barr
120 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Sun., 11 p.m.
Participating
WWRL, N.Y.

WWRL, which has served as the springboard for deejays Art Ford, Symphony Sid, Ray Carroll and Bob Garrity, has flipped up another winner with Tommy Smalls. As "Dr. Jive," Smalls, an Atlanta, Ga., newcomer, spins the platters with an ingratiating manner, a rich, relaxed voice, and a savvy of the hot music world. His sovereign attribute is his acuteness of knowing when to keep his mouth shut and let the disks speak for him. Excessively gabby late-hour jocks could well learn a lesson in golden silence from him.

The two-hour nightly show, which preemed a week ago Monday (23), emanates from a glass-enclosed booth at the bar of the Harlem nitery, Club Baby Grand, on 125th Street. Stanza is directed to the Negro stay-up-late crowd, who phone in their selections. Smalls urges his votaries to "Sit back, relax, and enjoy the wax." Then he reciprocates with a balanced mingling of sepia ballads ("Hey, Hey, Sugar Ray"), bebop disks ("Red Top"), blues ("Laugh, 'Cause You Feel You Want To Cry") and knock 'em down jive ("Ding Dong Boogie").

Commercials for the 13 participating sponsors, ranging from Gallo Wine to Miles Shoes, are delivered by both Smalls and announcer John Magnus, whose precise, wooden accent provides a contrasting foil to Smalls' easy-going style. Smalls, as a come-on to listeners, gives a big hello to Harlem celebs dropping in to the nitery's bar, and also plugs worthy racial causes like the N.Y. State Commission Against Discrimination.

The deejay shows no strain of the heebiejeebies, though the hardworking fellow also hosts another "Dr. Jive" show Monday through Saturday at 3:05 to 5:30 p.m. on the same station. Interestingly, WWRL has such faith in Smalls that it's now ballyhooing his new stanza through Harlem billboards, disk shop streamers, ads in the Negro press and displays in Negro supermarkets.

Seattle — Broadcasts of Pacific Coast League games of the Seattle Rainiers will be aired here over KOL, with play-by-play coverage also broadcast over chain of 11 other stations in Western Washington. First game in Seattle on April 14.

NORMAN BROKENSHIRE SHOW
With Jack Berch
Producer-Director: Jose DiDonato
Writer: Gene Goldsmith
15 Mins., Various Times
JACKSON & JERKINS, INC.
WOR, N. Y.
(Maxwell Sackheim)

This 15-minute entry, broadcast over WOR five times weekly in various time slots, is targeted at those dialers interested in gardening. There's little to lure listeners who have no horticultural leanings. Program may even prove too talky for the spade and hoe set. Show's pattern, judging by airer caught Sunday (29), is to give the historical background of certain flora, also highlighting scientific developments pertinent to the species being discussed.

Historical segment of the program is handled by Jack Berch with Norman Brokenshire filling in the scientific data. Sunday's broadcast devoted itself to a study of the chrysanthemum with both Brokenshire and Berch giving their all in expounding the flower's merits. Plugs for the sponsor, a nursery, tied in with the proceedings.

Program airs Sunday (10:15 a.m.), Monday, Wednesday and Friday (7:45 p.m.) and Saturday (9:15 a.m.). Jess.

SATURDAY NIGHT PARTY
With Clellan Card, Red River Valley Gang (4), Diane Frandrup
Producer-director: Ed. Viehman
Writer: Card
30 Mins.; Sat., 6 p.m.
SAL HEPATICA
WCCO, Minneapolis

Experience has shown that corn is relished not only by livestock on Northwest farms reached by WCCO radio, but also, in a different form, by ruralites themselves. Hillbilly music and comedy, too, have proved to be a welcome entertainment dish for many in this neck of the woods, including, of course, the soil tillers. And this new ether show, serving the aforegoing in large quantities and having a great asset in the person of Clellan Card, one of the Twin Cities' most gifted and best liked audio and video personalities, should win its popularity spurs and sell plenty of its sponsor's wares.

Back on WCCO radio where he has attained his highest standing, Card seems in fine funmaking fettle. His talent for amusing character lampoons, often involving a resort to the numerous comedy dialects at which he's proficient, his raconteuring, his ability to extract full value from gags and his smooth emceeing stand him in good stead on this occasion.

Show is compounded of comedy, song and commercials, and the interspersement of those ingredients made for teeoff entertainment which undoubtedly pleased and held the audience for which it's intended. Handling the commercials himself, Card even gave them a comedic twist occasionally. His gags and stories dripped corn, but that fact probably didn't make them less funny to dialers, and his sallies with other cast members also were productive of laughs.

Individually and in ensemble, the Red River Valley Gang, male singing, instrumental and comedy quartet, familiar to Northwest radio audiences, made their presence felt with such numbers as "Gay Caballero," "Steel Guitar Rag," "Cool, Clear Water," "My Kind of Country," "Wagon Wheel" and "Arkansas Traveler." Diane Frandrup, 13-year old yodeler, who has appeared on network shows, performed in her usual topdrawer style. Rees.

Seattle Enlists School Kids in Pitch For Educ'l TV Channel

Seattle, March 31.

Seattle school kids will be doing their bit to get an educational TV channel here when they take home pamphlets next week explaining the advantages of educational TV and asking for contributions from parents.

Seattle School Board approves the solicitation, requested by the Seattle Committee for Educational Television, which is helping the Univ. of Washington in its application for Channel 9 here. Other cooperating organizations include King County Schools, Seattle Pacific College and the Seattle Public Library.

Goal of the solicitation is $50,000, needed to add to $182,000 worth of television equipment donated to the committee by Mrs. Scott Bullitt, president of KING-TV in order to get a grant of $116,000 from the Adult Education Fund established by the Ford Foundation.

From the Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY . . .

Bernice Judis and Ira Herbert, WNEW toppers, due back from Florida this week . . . Neil R. Gahagan, former NBC flack, joined Sylvania's public relations staff . . . Judson Irish named copy chief at Hewitt, Ogilvy, Benson & Mather . . . Holland (Mich.) Furnace Co. decided to repeat its one-shot sports interview on Mutual by having Harry Wismer interview Joe Walcott in Chicago April 4. Wismer had done two specials with heavyweight champ Rocky Marciano over the weekend for the furnace outfit . . . WHLI, Hempstead, broadcast instructions to Nassau County's 5,000 volunteer Cancer Crusade workers Monday (30) as a result of the County Cancer Committee's inability to get them all assembled . . . Jay Blackton, original pit conductor for "Oklahoa," reminisced on the 10th anni of the Rodgers & Hammerstein musical on WQXR yesterday (Tues.)

Bill Hodapp, producer of "American Inventory" program, making rounds of guest radio-TV circuit, beginning April 2, on behalf of National Sunday School Week, for which he is tele chairman . . . Hank Ladd upped to general supervisor of radio-TV production and Al Reibling appointed radio-TV manager at Kudner Agency . . . Daniel L. Schorr, vet newsman, joins CBS Radio News staff in Washington May 1 . . . Samuel Carter III, radio-TV commercial supervisor, elected veepee of Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles . . . Red Barber auditioning teen-age panel show for CBS Radio . . . WCBS prepping New York chapter of the American Red Cross on radio techniques. Chapter plans appeal recordings . . . Jay Garon-Robert Schultz producing "Country Lawyer" for "ABC Caravan" . . . Alfred I. duPont Awards Foundation in Radio and Television cited Stations WBNS-TV of Columbus, and WMT of Cedar Rapids, and commentator Gerald W. Johnson of Station WAAM of Baltimore for "meritorious service to the American people" during 1952 . . . Milton Katims starting NBC Spring Symph series April 4 . . . Deejays getting special Ethel Merman publicity package, with multiple credits and two songs, for special Decca "Call Me Madam" filmusical album push . . . Announcer Bob Hall set for WCBS American Airlines postmidnight disk show starting April 13 . . . New York chapter of American women in Radio and Television starting femme-broadcaster survey to determine radio-TV selling power of women broadcasters.

IN HOLLYWOOD . . .

Bob Light left Abbott Kimball agency to head up sales promotion for Don Lee . . . Guy della Cioppa, CBS radio veepee, spent a few days at the hospital to have his schnoz repaired. It's an old break sustained when he was middleweight champ at Penn . . . Jimmy Vandiveer, former special events head and sportscaster for ABC, joined Erwin, Wasey to supervise radio, TV and theatre screening for Coronation . . . Compton is moving Floyd Holm to N. Y. as assistant to Lewis Titterton, radio and TV head. James Seaborne transfers west to take over Holm's berth . . . Eric Paige, late of WCAV, Norfolk, Va., will work the coast league ball games on KFWB with another ex-Virginian, Mark Scott . . . Lowell Thomas being piloted along the Coast by Paul Mantz to make all the stops on his schedule.

IN CHICAGO . . .

Radio and TV columnist Jack Mabley switching duties with Jack Ryan, also of the Chi Daily News. Mabley will assume Ryan's duties on the sports desk and Ryan will visa viz. Scribbler transfer will not affect Mabley's job as production coordinator for WBKB's "Impact" . . . Calvin Hugy to head branch op ads for Hallicrafters . . . WBBM announces the addition of Louis F. Allen to its sales stable. Allen comes to the Chi station via previous radio work in Bloomington, Ind. . . . Carroll Marts, midwest manager for General Teleradio, in New York for a brass confab . . . Paul Neubert taking over as Eastern manager for Zenith Radio Corp. . . . Don Allen joining WBBM announcery via KLIX in Twin Falls . . . Fred Wagenvrood and Pat Patterson of Cedar Rapids' KCRG visiting MBS . . . The WBBM-CBS family regains announcer Bill Oliver formerly with KMOX in St. Louis. . . . Deejay Josh Brady of WBBM acquires two new bankrollers as James Barnett Co. and Western Recording Co. sign for the first and last quarter-hours respectively.

IN PITTSBURGH . . .

Maria Schuetz, Girl Friday to Dave Lewis, head of sales promotion at KDKA, has resigned to become secretary to the sales manager of the Blaw Knox Chemical Division of the Blaw Knox Steel Co. . . . Bill Jewett has been upped to the newly-created post of operations cost supervisor at WDTV while Julian Drob, a stagehand, moves into job of studio facilities supervisor . . . Singer Bette Smiley and WCAE have parted company after eight years. Following a major operation shortly and a summer rest, she'll give TV a fling in the fall . . . Muriel Robb, ex-vocalist with the ex-Will Roland (now a CBS producer) band here and later box-office chief of the Pittsburgh Playhouse, has been appointed media director for the Cavanaugh Morris advertising agency . . . Harry Brooks, WWSW accountant, and his wife have moved into the new Cedarhurst Manor ranch home they designed themselves . . . Emancia Bonaventura, sales service secretary at WDTV, buried her mother last week . . . Lucille Johnson has been named assistant to Shirley Gray, traffic director at Channel 2 . . . Romain Johnston, after spending a month's leave of absence in town, has reported back to ABC-TV in New York. He's on the designing staff.

IN SAN FRANCISCO . . .

KNBC option on Fairmont Hotel studio space expires April 10. May be extended pending disposal of long-term lease on present Radio City facilities . . . Phil Harris headlined local Auto Show . . . Ellsworth Teck and A. V. Krisick bought KGYW, Vallejo, with a $60,000 ticket . . . Nancy King (KCGS) to wed Tom Faulkner, April 12 . . . Dean Maddox taped three KFRC shows in a submerged snorkel sub . . . Doug Pledger's KNBC daily platter show expanding to an hour, April 6 . . . KLX, Oakland, boosted power to 5,000 watts . . . Al Pearce readying a daily disk show for KIBE . . . KLOK, San Jose, opened San Francisco studio in Lankershim Hotel . . . Del Gore ceased KROWing to become KROW salesman. Ted Carlson of same station shifted to KGO sales . . . KIBE, Palo Alto, signed with five major league teams for local re-creations voiced by Ernie Smith . . . KSFO to beam Mutual's "Game of the Day." Schedule on KFRC, local Mutual outlet, is too tight to handle . . . KYA plans two-a-day re-creations of big league games with Les Keiter on vocal.

IN MINNEAPOLIS . . .

Univ. of Minnesota radio station KUOM offering series of Lenten "festival broadcasts" of sacred music during Holy Week . . . KSTP-TV staffers Bill Ingram and Bob Burnham handling the numerous George Grim video shows while latter, also a Minneapolis Morning Tribune columnist, is on a Hawaiian jaunt for his sheet . . . Twin Cities' first microwave radio relay link with Chicago and the east now under construction and will be ready this summer. It eventually will be used for carrying television programs . . . Stanley E. Hubbard, KSTP

(Continued on page 70)

DUMONT IN REPEAT FORMULA

TV Takes Adv. Leadership Away From Dailies, Radio in Cleve. Area

By SANFORD MARKEY

Cleveland, March 31.

After five years of radio and newspaper competition, this area's three video outlets are moving into a spring programming and sales period that is making TV the top advertising and entertainment medium in Northeastern Ohio.

TV's rise to dominant position in this typical midwestern industrial community is evidenced by a host of factors including an 85% set saturation with increased sales—in many instances—being estimated on a two-in-home basis; a levelling off of rates at around $200 per spot during the SRO 6:30-10:30 p.m. period, and the end to the "gimmick-hoopla-and-sales-pitch" operation for a diet of quality programs, public services features and good merchandising presentations.

As a result of its format of success in a bustling area, WEWS, WNBK and WXEL offer a clear-cut modus operandi for radio operators first embracing TV. This format revolves around six major points of suggestion:

Before 9 a.m. sign-on impractical.

Spot sales mean financial success.

Films are prime sales vehicles.

News is a growing sales program format.

Public service is a "must" showcase.

Personalities are time salesmen.

There are, of course, exceptions. For example, WNBK, the four-year-old NBC o-o outlet signs on at a successful 7 a.m. because of the network's "Today." But, the Scripps-Howard's WEWS, on the air for

(Continued on page 69)

More Union Sponsors

Adding to the increasing use of television by labor organizations, two unions will sponsor a discussion-type program, "America Speaks," on WOR-TV Saturday nights. Unions are International Laundry Workers and the Paper Pulp and Sulphite Workers, both AFL.

Program will feature John B. Hughes, WOR's news director, and adman Don L. Passante, New Jersey adman and packager of the show.

'Duopoly' Angle Bigger Worry On TV Permits

Washington, March 31.

Problems of "concentration of control" are becoming more and more frequent as the FCC continues to dish out permits for TV stations. In last week's batch of 11 authorizations, the problem was posed by dissenting commissioners in three cases.

Situation arises whenever an applicant files for a station near one he already owns. Since Commission "duopoly" rules prohibit single ownership of two TV stations in the same city, a minority of commissioners questions whether it is good public policy to license to one applicant stations with overlapping coverage.

In granting a permit to E. Anthony & Sons for a UHF station in Boston, three members of the Commission objected (Chairman Paul A. Walker, Eugene Merrill and Frieda Hennock) because Anthony had previously been issued a permit for a TV station 50 miles away, in New Bedford, Mass.

Pointing out that the overlap between the two stations would be even less with operations at maximum power, Commissioner Merrill expressed fear that such dual authorizations might lead to "a degree of regulation of television broadcasting industry that would not otherwise be necessary." This could happen, he said, because such "over-concentration" of facilities

(Continued on page 68)

$1,425,000 Net For DuMont Labs

DuMont Labs showed a net profit of $1,425,000 last year on a record gross income of $76,367,000, firm's annual report showed. Gross was 50% higher than 1951 and the profit compared to a loss of $583,000 in same year.

Network billings accounted for about one-seventh of the parent company's total gross. No breakdown was given on the network's net income.

Key factor in the increased income, according to the report, was the lifting of the freeze on new stations by the FCC last April. New stations, according to the report, afforded new sales for receiver and transmitter equipment, and also by giving the network new affiliates, increased the web's billings.

KPRC PREEMS NEW RADIO-TELE CENTER

Houston, March 31.

New Radio-TV Center for KPRC and KPRC-TV went into operation Sunday (29) with a host of dignitaries, including former Gov. W. P. Hobby, attending opening ceremonies.

Tele station increased its power to temporary 65,000 watts, pending construction of a new antenna tower that will boost power to 100,000 watts.

New center has some unique features, including an outdoor studio. Building is in the form of a hollowed square, and the landscaped patio will be used as a year-round studio. Construction plans call for separation of directors' and engineers' control booths. Building has two tele and four radio studios.

Opening ceremonies are only a part of a two-week hoopla that will see tours of the facilities by the public, with orchids given to lady visitors, special events and special programs. Harry Bannister, NBC station relations v.p., and Edward Petry, station rep, were among those at the opening ceremonies.

Curtain Up for New Chi Brass, Imported Talent On WNBQ 'Curtain Time'

Chicago, March 31.

In an effort to hypo the Windy City's lone local drama show, "Curtain Time," the advertiser-packager Grant ad agency has revamped the show's TV brass and talent sections. Although most of the talent for the Wednesday night show now being telecast from WNBQ, Chi NBC studios, will be from this city, Windy City actors will have to compete with imported talent for the leads.

According to Don Tomkins, who replaces Harry Holcombe as Grant radio-TV director (Holcombe leaving for N. Y. to become a thesp), the aches and pains of "Curtain Time" do not stem from any lack of Chi talent, but rather from difficulties involved in adaptation of the show's old radio scripts to teevee. To further aggravate the hurdle headache, the show's format is limited to the comedy-romance angle.

Tomkins, however, is quite definite in his assurance that no matter how problematical the transition, Chi talent will be used whenever and wherever possible. This attitude seems to have the approval of the Chicagoland Dodge Dealers who bankroll the program.

WILL TAKE SHOWS FROM OTHER WEBS

DuMont network will consider repeating top shows on other webs if sponsors wish to air such repeats, Chris Witting, network's director, disclosed this week. Witting feels such a policy is "inevitable," due chiefly to programming techniques that pit one toprated show against another.

He disclosed he was approached on the idea by the media director of one agency, who noted results of DuMont's Westinghouse-sponsored pickup of the political conventions last summer coincidental with the CBS-TV coverage sponsored by Westinghouse. Discussions with one top sponsor were held but without result.

DuMont would decide according to the particular merits of each show suggested, rather than set a definite policy in regard to repeats. But it's available for the top shows. Witting offered as a possible example of such repeats the battle for audiences between CBS-TV's "Toast of the Town" and NBC-TV's "Colgate Comedy Hour." With so many people missing one because they tuned in on the other, it would be worthwhile to air a repeat of one on DuMont in midweek. Costs would be substantially reduced, both on the talent end (repeat might be a kinescope) and on time, via DuMont's lower rates.

Web hasn't received any offers yet beyond the first, and won't actively push for any, but it's willing to listen to any rebroadcast pitch any sponsor has to offer, Witting said.

White Huddles With Pres. Eisenhower On TV'd Press Conference

Washington, March 31.

Plans for televising Presidential press conferences have progressed to the high level point where NBC prexy Frank White visited the White House last week to discuss angles with the President.

White said later that details are not yet fully worked out and that the first televised press session is still some time off. The four networks have been working on this matter for several weeks. Thus far, the best way of handling it seems to be a specially staged news conference at which there will not be any "off the record" material. Big stumbling block for coverage of a regular news conference is that the press may never quote the President directly without his specific permission. But, in a televised press conference, his direct words would be going to millions of people, including any slips of the tongue he might make.

DuMONT MULLS CO-OP DEAL FOR PEARSON

DuMont network is negotiating with Drew Pearson for the commentator to return to the network for a Thursday night half-hour segment which web would air on a co-op basis. Network has cast queries to affiliates on availability of local sponsors for the show, and should response be favorable and DuMont be able to agree on terms with Pearson, program would bow in three weeks.

Pearson was dropped by Carter products couple of weeks ago on DuMont and ABC radio, and let loose with a blast at the nets for "being one-sided" in their presentation of news commentary. DuMont has contended all along that it wanted to keep Pearson on as a sustainer until a backer could be found, but that his price was more than it could afford.

However, since the web centralized its co-op system two months ago under command of Elmore (Buck) Lyford, station relations

(Continued on page 68)

Still No Bunny Money in Sight For This Year's TV Easter Parade

Last year's display of the Easter Parade on television, with stuntsters, hip dancers, animals and cuffo, plugsters getting into the act, has frightened sponsors away from the event this year.

As of this week, merely days before the promenading on Fifth Avenue, only one sponsor, Peerless Camera Stores, has committed to brave the total-picture memory of last year.

Peerless, satisfied with WPIX, N. Y., handling, is picking up the tab, as it did last year, from 11:30 to 1:30. But playing it safe, the sponsor and station have shifted the main coverage from Fifth to Park Avenue, at the St. Bartholomew Church site, with a camera in the Waldorf-Astoria lobby.

For shots of the Fifth Avenue activity, WPIX will pick up a feed from CBS.

Everyone is playing the Easter Parade cautiously. DuMont, which had a sponsor for the 1952 event is not covering this year. WOR-TV, which had sponsorless coverage last year, is skipping the event too.

NBC and CBS, both commercial a year ago, are without bunny-money spenders in 1952. ABC, which covered sponsorless last year, has placed its Parade event on a co-op basis, with no takers.

There have been great efforts to fight the sponsor reluctance. The New York City police, to avert an unpalatable repetition, has been alerted to screen publicity seekers and wild and weird demonstrators from the promenade area.

But anything can happen before live cameras on the streets. So the television stations and webs

(Continued on page 68)

Border Incident

Toronto, March 31.

Fired from his job as sound effects man by CJBC, Toronto, Joseph Lacosse, 25, tied up traffic and drew crowds in the rain for two hours at the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. key station here when he climbed to the top platform of the CBC's adjacent 468-foot TV tower and threatened to jump.

He is in jail for mental tests and appears in court here April 2 on a charge of creating a public disturbance.

Godfrey & Co. To Do Full Week Of Fla. Originations

What is probably TV's biggest programming junket will be translated into a reality on April 10 when Arthur Godfrey begins a full week of originations of his multiple CBS radio and TV shows from Miami. Godfrey is taking along the full complement of his morning and nighttime performers—in all over 50 people—as well as the production staffers, etc.

All the shows will emanate from Kenilworth Hotel, including the Monday-through-Friday morning simulcasts, the Monday evening "Talent Scouts" on radio and TV and the Wednesday night full hour TV show. Latter will be in the nature of a super swimming show, originating from the Kenilworth pool.

Godfrey, who has long had a yen to do his shows from Florida, particularly in the wintertime, is anxious to determine its feasibility in terms of the future.

The NBC-TV "All Star Revue" will showcase Spike Jones out of Miami later in April, but Godfrey is getting the jump as the first major commercial TV entry riding the Miami-to-N. Y. cable.

Kay Kyser Projected In New Role: Kollege Of Video Knowledge

Greensboro, N. C., March 31.

Educational television has unlimited potentialities but it must be handled with ingenuity, showmanship, good judgment and proper safeguards.

That view was emphasized by Kay Kyser in an address at a banquet session of a regional seminar workshop of the National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters, comprising 10 Southern states and Puerto Rico. The meeting was held at the University of North Carolina. Earl Wynn, director of the university communication center, who is director of this region, presided.

Kyser said, "With proper guidance television can be as great a boon to our spiritual, intellectual and economic enlightenment as the printing press was. We cannot afford to shut our eyes to this challenge. We must proceed cautiously but not too slowly. There is a fine line between procrastination and impetuosity.

"Educational television programs can be—I said can be—entertaining as well as informative so long as they effectively challenge the curiosity of people to know more. They can be made palatable and provocative."

Chancellor Robert B. House set the theme when he urged the broadcasters to set their standards on a high level. "Nothing can stop you if you keep your standards high and your work interesting and human," he said.

K-F's Radio-TV Spurt in Merger

Kaiser-Frazer's announced acquisition of Willys-Overland for $63,000,000 has led to a spurt in Kaiser's radio-TV bankrolling, but still leaves up in the air the question of which ad agency will handle the merged autos' future air billings.

Beginning today (Wed.), Kaiser-Frazer will begin bankrolling three weekly inserts on the NBC-TV "Today" show, and on April 15 will launch a radio-TV spot campaign in 100 markets. Agency handling the time buying is William Weintraub.

Willys-Overland will continue to bankroll the "N.Y. Philharmonic Symphony Musicale" on CBS-Radio Sundays until the end of April, has pacted with CBS-TV to cover the June Coronation, and will participate in CBS-TV's "Omnibus" until the end of the season. Its agency is Ewell & Thurber.

A spokesman of Ewell & Thurber said he would have to remain mum about the possibility of any future agency clash until the Willys-Overland board of directors officially okayed the Kaiser deal on April 24.

Pitch To Ball Fans

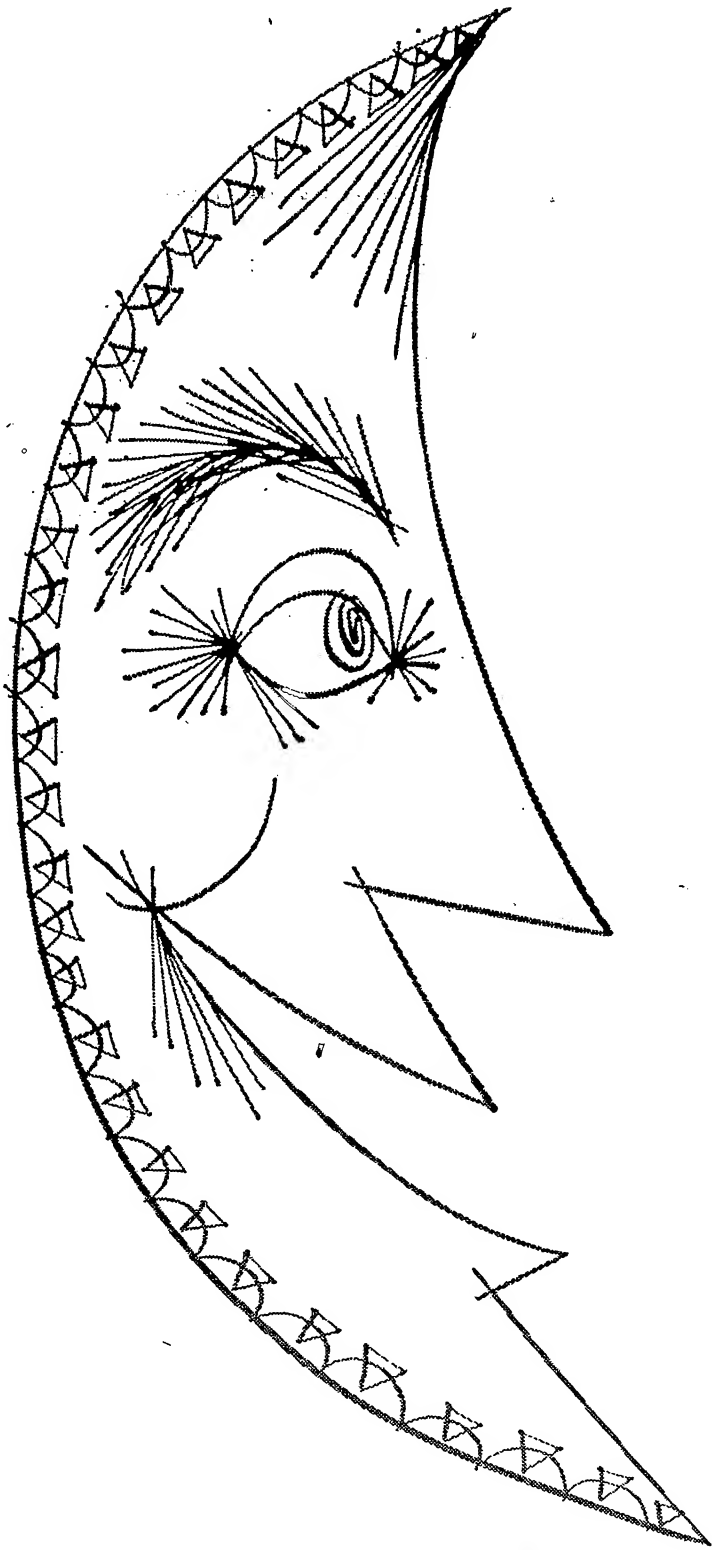
Kaiser-Frazer has signed for 32 segments of NBC-TV's "Today" during the months of April and

(Continued on page 68)

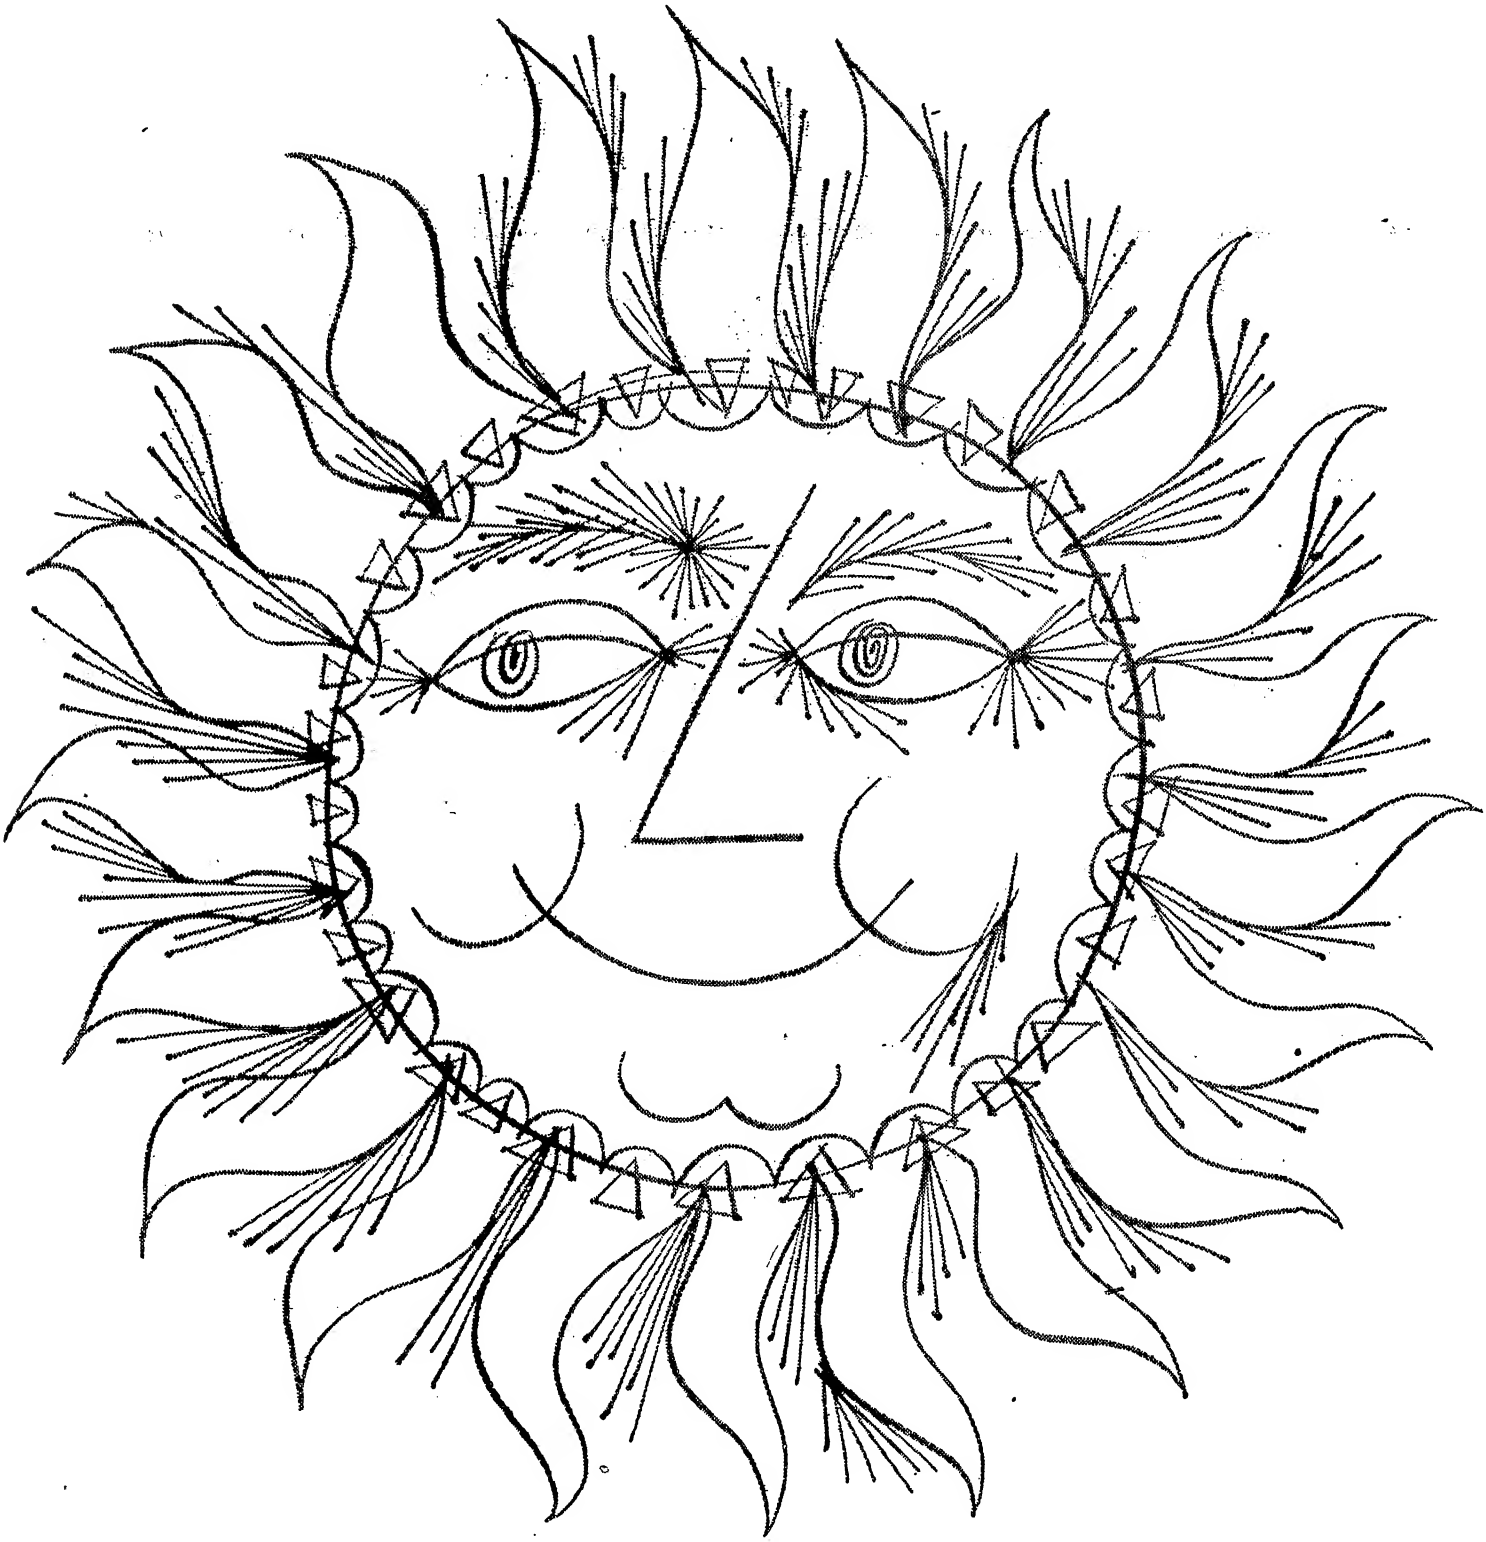
SEP'S 1-NITE RADIO BALLY FOR LINDBERGH

Unusual radio time purchase will find Curtis Publishing Co. buying in on Mutual's Multi-Message Plan for one night only, April 8, to plug the Charles Lindbergh serialized autobiography beginning in its Saturday Evening Post of that week.

What amounts to a nationwide spot (460 stations) for a price of $2,000, was available due to fact that the plan is only two-thirds sold, to Camel's and General Mills. No station clearance was necessary since spot previously was used for public service announcements. BBD&O agented.



what's hot in the daytime?



A show that wins customers for the lowest cost in network television

—less than a dollar a thousand!

It's made for all kinds of budgets and sales calendars:

It can be bought in any number of five-minute segments for only $355 each, plus time

...a single insertion for a special holiday promotion—

or a seasonal or year round campaign.

It's on Monday through Saturday... 11 to 11:30 between "Arthur Godfrey Time" and "Strike It Rich."

Its rating is almost half as high again as the next best "magazine-insertion" show.

It's the hottest buy today in all advertising.

It's called "There's One In Every Family." It's on CBS TELEVISION

Television Followup Comment

Sunday's (29) edition of the CBS-TV "Omnibus" had all the elements of pre-telecast time excitement, but, like many another in the Ford Foundation series, came off as a frustrating, tantalizing showcase that failed to match the expectations. Two diverse but equally awaited segments shared top honors of the week. One was a Tennessee Williams one-act play, "Lord Byron's Love Letter," adapted for television (from a collection "27 Wagon-Loads Full of Cotton"), with Ethel Barrymore as the star. The other was a heretofore unstaged George Gershwin one-act opera, "135th Street," with an all-Negro cast that provided, at least, some vibrant staging by Valerie Bettis.

The Williams play, set in the French quarter of New Orleans in the late 19th Century, concerned a spinster (Patricia Collinge) and her grandmother (Miss Barrymore) whose most prized possession is a letter supposedly written to her by Lord Byron. There was no mistaking the Williams trademark (on a minor key) in this one—a sad, pitiful saga of two women living in nostalgic memory on which they exist. It is two tragedies in one—the escape from reality of earning bread and butter and daily sustenance by reading the fabricated day dreams of a diary to French quarter visitors, and the spinster's emotional flutterings and flights into romanticism as she reads from the diary—her vicarious grasp at happiness. In the latter role, Miss Collinge, who had much the weightier part, acquitted herself well, but neither in terms of a Barrymore vehicle or as creative scripting did it offer much to the viewer.

The one-act opera (with a book by Buddy DeSylva) was composed by Gershwin 31 years ago when he was 23. It was originally designed as an insert for George White's "Scandals," but was discarded during its Philly tryout. In terms of later Gershwin (notably "Porgy and Bess") it is primitive in construction and content, although "The Blue Monday Blues" and some other early Gershwin excursions into the jazz idiom stand out. George Bassman is credited with orchestrating the work from the original piano score. As an "Omnibus" contrib, it was more stimulating to Gershwiniana "students" than to the average viewer.

The controversial question of the historical relationship between Abraham Lincoln and Ann Rutledge, brought together writer James Agee, emcee Alistair Cooke and Prof. Allan Nevins for some interesting pro-and-con documentation to supplement another in the "Abe Lincoln" film series.

Rose.

During his discussion last Sunday (29) of the spiritual challenge confronting America, in the fourth of the NBC series of filmed statements by distinguished men of our civilization, Dr. Louis Finkelstein, chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, recalled how he had been told as a boy, entering the Seminary in 1911, that he was there not so much to study as to associate with great men.

The theologian might have been talking about the notable NBC series. For these half-hour conversations with the world's cultural leaders—a more worthy heritage to leave posterity than many of the time capsules buried under our real estate—provide the television audience with free association with the thinking of some of our time's great men.

In preceding films, philosopher Bertrand Russell talked of a long view of the world, Robert Frost of the state of poetry and the poet, and Carl Sandburg of American ballads with his own guitar accompaniment and Abraham Lincoln.

In "A Conversation With Dr. Louis Finkelstein," as might be expected from an eminent American Jewish scholar, the subject applied himself to American moral issues. The camera work, under Martin Hoade's direction, was as it should be—simple and direct, concentrating through medium shots and closeups on the eloquent face of the speaker. Dr. Finkelstein, whose long, lean face is adorned with graying beard and topped by black hair, has expressive eyebrows and a humorous twinkle in his eyes.

Dr. Finkelstein sketched the nation's spiritual beginnings, "a negation of the Marxist doctrine that men can live by bread alone," and noted that our material abundance frees us to enjoy things of the spirit. Our future, he said, lies in spiritual goals, and this means a spiritual revolution to follow the accomplished materialistic, or industrial, revolution.

"America has been called to greatness," Dr. Finkelstein said, "not for itself but for service to mankind," with the ends to be human dignity, human freedom, liberation of man's mind and human brotherhood. In this revolution he foresaw, the speaker asked for an end of the "great national sin" of existing second-class citizenship for Negroes, a self indulgence "America can't afford."

Although a great peril faces us, Dr. Finkelstein said, we mustn't forget that those who don't believe as we do are still our brothers in the human family. Aggression must be resisted, he emphasized, but to win our enemies to love us is to win the real battle and fulfill ourselves.

Our country cannot escape its responsibility, as Moses wished and Jonah attempted, Dr. Finkelstein maintained, for "we achieve real greatness or we perish."

In posing questions to the theologian, Edward Stanley, manager of NBC public service programs, was commendably unobtrusive. The program, filmed in the chancellor's office on Morningside Heights in New York City, was produced by Doris Ann.

In a courageous spirit of experiment, far too much lacking in television dramas, Armstrong's "Circle Theatre" last Tuesday (24) stuck its enterprising neck out with "The Parrot," first opera commissioned by a commercial TV sponsor. The show was interesting and well worth the effort, but hardly the success it might have been as a musical change of the program's dramatic pace.

The story, an original by Frank P. De Feiitta, related the effect of a will left by an eccentric woman, who gave the bird to three close relatives by leaving them a total of $2 as an inheritance and giving the bulk of her fortune to her parrot, Benjamin. If the well-feathered macaw (expected to live another 90 years) is done in by a relative, the estate goes to the Royal Ornithological Society. Naturally the bird meets an untimely end. Whodunit? The butler! And he, a tipsy old gent, turns out to be—in the author's sleight-of-hand—a distant kin.

For a comic opera, the proceedings were entirely too grim, with composer-conductor Darrell Peter's music (played on two pianos by Bernard Gabriel and Marion Machno) hitting more notes of melancholy than light laughter. Atmosphere of a recent death is hardly a cue for gaiety. Highlights were provided in the off-camera singing of the will by Shannon Bolin (it was played as a record, a neat bit), and a lament of the young lady sung by Jo Schillig, as one of the relatives.

The genuinely comic parts were limited to two: Robert Holland, as a large-mustached ornithologist, and the parrot, which didn't miss a cue of Garry Simpson's fine direction and whose screechings were the work of veteran bird-caller Donald Bain. Properly enough, and a nice ending gag, the parrot's agent, Henry Trefflich, had his name and address listed handsomely in the tail credits.

Producer Hudson Faussett is to be commended for his enterprise if not for the final flawed result. Every now and then—as in S. Lee Pogostin's gay and whacky comedy, "A Volcano Is Dancing in Here," last November—he comes up with a gem. Joe Ripley and Kay Campbell handled the commercials in nice style, low pressured and informal.

With the combined talents of Irving Berlin and team of Richard Rodgers & Oscar Hammerstein at hand, it's difficult to go wrong. Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" on CBS-TV Sunday highlighted some of their work, and these portions of the show made for excellent viewing.

Best segments, in fact, were on film: Ethel Merman's singing of Berlin's "Hostess With the Mostest on the Ball" and "International Rag" via clips from 20th-Fox's current "Call Me Madam," and an 18-month-old kinnie of the late Gertrude Lawrence singing "Whistle a Happy Tune" and "Getting to Know You," from R & H's "King and I," in which she was starring at the time of her death.

Clips from "Madam" were excellent, with only complaint being they weren't of top numbers in the pic and there wasn't enough of them (two clips ran about seven minutes). Miss Merman, of course, was socko. Black and white prints (film's in color) were crystal-clear.

Kinnie of Miss Lawrence was taken from a "Rodgers & Hammerstein Biography" show on "Toast." Film had R & H onstage with Miss Lawrence on one of the numbers, with Rodgers accompanying her on piano. Star's personality shone through the poor quality of the film—entire segment was a little awe-inspiring.

Occasion for the R & H reprise was the 10th anni of their collaboration. Show had Metopera stars Rise Stevens and Mario Del Monaco singing several of their hits, but it was interesting to note that none, for some strange reason, were from "Oklahoma!" subject of the anniversary. Miss Stevens has the ability to slide into the pop idiom easily: her renditions of "It Might As Well Be Spring" and "If I Loved You" were excellent. Del Monaco retains his operatic style: it was fortunate that he chose "Some Enchanted Evening," which fits most easily to his strenuous type of vocalizing.

Despite these entertaining segments, program had much this stanza on the debit side. Some poor timing left an anti-climactic quality to the show, with Sullivan interviewing Branch McCracken, U. of Indiana basketball coach, whom he had introduced previously, as a closer. Timing was also off in showing of slides during a Sullivan commercial for Mercury, giving it a rather sloppy quality.

Opener was the Harlem Globetrotters giving an exhibition of their hoop antics. It was a trifle disappointing due to its shortness (they had a game to play shortly afterward at Madison Sq. Garden) and the absence of "Goose" Tatum, their top clown.

Georgie Tapps did a solid job on his "Birth of the Blues" song-and-dance routine, and Will Jordan pleased with his impression of Sullivan. Gae Foster girls executed a nifty precision routine to tune of "American Patrol." Usual top-notch musical backing was supplied by Ray Bloch orch. Chan.

Ronald Colman can be depended on to carry the ball with savvy and suavity. This he does in his w.k. style in "The Man Who Walked Out on Himself," a curious and sometimes overly subtle telepic of Singer's "Four Star Playhouse" series given last Thursday (26) over CBS-TV.

In a virtual one-man affair of direct voicing and recorded soliloquy, Colman displays a shrewd facility in building the Milton Merlin story to half-hour proportions, but at some sacrifice of pace and interest. It's a whimsical tale, of Colman in the throes of divorce and contemplating another marital tie—all of this and more carried out via phone conversations with the never seen principals and in heart-to-heart talks with himself.

In the process of making up his mind about these domestic matters while in a room of his club, he discovers that his reflection in the mirror—intended as his inner self—has walked out on him. His decision to go back to his wife parallels the return of the image. It's not much to go on, and some of the narrative is vague, but Colman gives the piece an aura of credibility and realism under Robert Florey's direction. Only other character, in two brief scenes, is the old bellhop, played by film vet Francis Pierlot. Tram.

Ben Blue came through with one of his better tele shows to date with his turn on "All Star Revue" Saturday (28) over NBC-TV with excellent support from Dorothy Lamour, Connie Haines and Mickey Rooney. Layout represented a couple of substitutions. Time slot was originally allotted to Martha Raye, and Paulette Goddard had been slated for the spot assumed by Miss Lamour. Miss Goddard felt that the writing wasn't up to her standard, but as it came off Miss Lamour looked and sounded exceedingly well in the sketch department. Her major contribution was a bit in which she did a nagging wife who, after a party, berates her husband for boners pulled at same. Miss Lamour's stream of words and Blue's pantomime created an excellent laugh-session.

Sketches on layout were particularly good. The opener wherein Rooney and Blue hide scripts in various parts of the set was a howler. Miss Haines' aiding in this bit also helped the comedy total. The night court bit is an oldie that's been around for a long time, but Blue made it count. Blue's panto was again telling in the Easter Parade session in which his Chaplinesque tramp character put over a wistful and warming period.

Miss Haines and Rooney made good in their individual slots. Former sang in a vivid manner on two occasions, showing good projection and highly workable arrangements. Rooney probably showed up at his best to date in the bit in which he does impressions of various filmsters. This part constituted a good commercial act. He probably could make good on the circuits if he had more material of the same calibre.

All the elements in the show were tied together neatly by producer Ernest D. Glucksman, who also contributed to the writing. His handling of material and the personnel made everyone connected with the layout look good.

Jose.

There has been a lot of Bob Hope on television lately—from the Academy Awards on. But Hope wears well, particularly in his standup and give sessions alone, and he didn't suffer from further exposure on "Colgate Comedy Hour" Sunday (29). His sketches, however, were an out-and-out plug for his new picture, "Off Limits," which is pushing the film-tele romance to the limit. One supposedly behind-scenes skit from the picture, involving a director, an Army major technical adviser and Hope, fell flat, and another—a Mata Hari spy sequence—was pretty old hat, ringing in Mickey Rooney (Hope's pic co-star) as a surprise guest.

Appearance of Rosemary Clooney on show was marred by cable breakdown, and loss of picture through most of her warbling of "I Haven't Got a Worry to My Name." Otherwise the singer was attractive, in good form, and appropriately broken up by Hope's straying from the script. The program, which included a Hope Navy skit too, was aimed at a serviceman audience. Incidentally, the picture fadeout on Miss Clooney was the second time in two nights that an NBC-TV show was interrupted. The night before, a late NBC news flash cut most of the Lucky Strike film introduction to "Hit Parade" with latest word on the ammunition train wreck.

CBS-TV's "You Are There" last Sunday (29) presented a powerful documentary for our times in its reenactment of the Salem Witch Trials of 1692. Based on the same material as Arthur Miller's stage play, "The Crucible," this stanza underlined in strikingly dramatic terms the lethal threat of false accusations and mass hysteria. It was an obvious parallel to contemporary events and more effective because of the stanza's avoidance of spelling out the similarities.

The production was flawless, one of the best since this firstrate series started a couple of months ago. In the usual format, the trials were handled like a current news event with CBS news commenators, headed by Walter Cronkite, picking up the coverage from courtroom, where one trial was in progress, and a jail where a group of other accused persons were in shackles.

The setting of the stage for the trial, the introduction of the leading personalities via face-to-camera interviews and the trial itself were projected with terrifying reality. Particularly so were a couple of sequences in which a group of girls become madly hallucinated with the idea of witches.

Janet Ward, as the accused, handled her assignment with sensitivity. It may have been a mistake, however, to have such a goodlooker in this role since the predicament alone should have been enough to win viewers' sympathy. The rest of the large cast, headed by Joseph Anthony, Vinton Hayworth and Milton Delzer, was uniformly excellent. Kate Nickerson scripted with Sidney Lumet directing and Charles W. Russell the producer.

Herm.

An important contribution to science as well as to tele was offered on NBC-TV's "American Inventory" Sunday (29), with a report on cancer research prepped by an "Inventory" unit. With five top cancer research experts taking part, and another, Dr. Charles S. Cameron, of the American Cancer Society, serving as narrator, airer proved a fascinating as well as significant half-hour.

A normally sensitive if not distasteful subject was treated seriously but not dully, to remove all objections. A literate but not pedagogic script; a lucid, attractive narrator, and vital subject matter, absorbed the layman. Viewer interest was further retained by visual aids—charts, X-ray pix, microscopes, mice, rabbits, interviews with patients—and by shifts from one lab and medico to others. Camera would wait while a doctor interrupted his talk to light his pipe.

These aids didn't detract from the message presented—that cancer research is making progress, though problems remain. Heredity factors, genetics studies, hormones, tar chemicals—all these were discussed by leading researchers in a way to reassure laymen that the good work of finding the cure for a scourge was going on.

Bron.

"Broadway TV Theatre's" presentation of "In Any Language" on WOR-TV last week (23-29) should set a lot of dialers wondering about Broadway legit and what it has to take to make one show a hit and another a flop. The Ed Beloin-Henry Garson comedy opened to a flock of negative notices last October and shuttered after 45 performances. In its television version, however, the spoof on Italian film-making emerged as a hit-stature comedy with script, thesps and production coming in for a simultaneous score.

Could be that as a theatre-piece, "Language" was a bit too flimsy for the $4.80 trade? No such flaw was apparent in the 90-minute TV adaption. It came across as a brisk romp that made for good viewing.

Much of the credit belongs to Audrey Christie (in the role created on Broadway by Uta Hagen) as a Hollywood song-and-dance queen in Rome to tackle tragic drama via Italian pix. Miss Christie's comedic savvy kept the session moving at a bright pace and she dominated each scene with the mastery of a pro. Mischa Auer, costarring with Miss Christie, was effectively ludicrous as the brilliant but broke pic director. He was a firstrate foil.

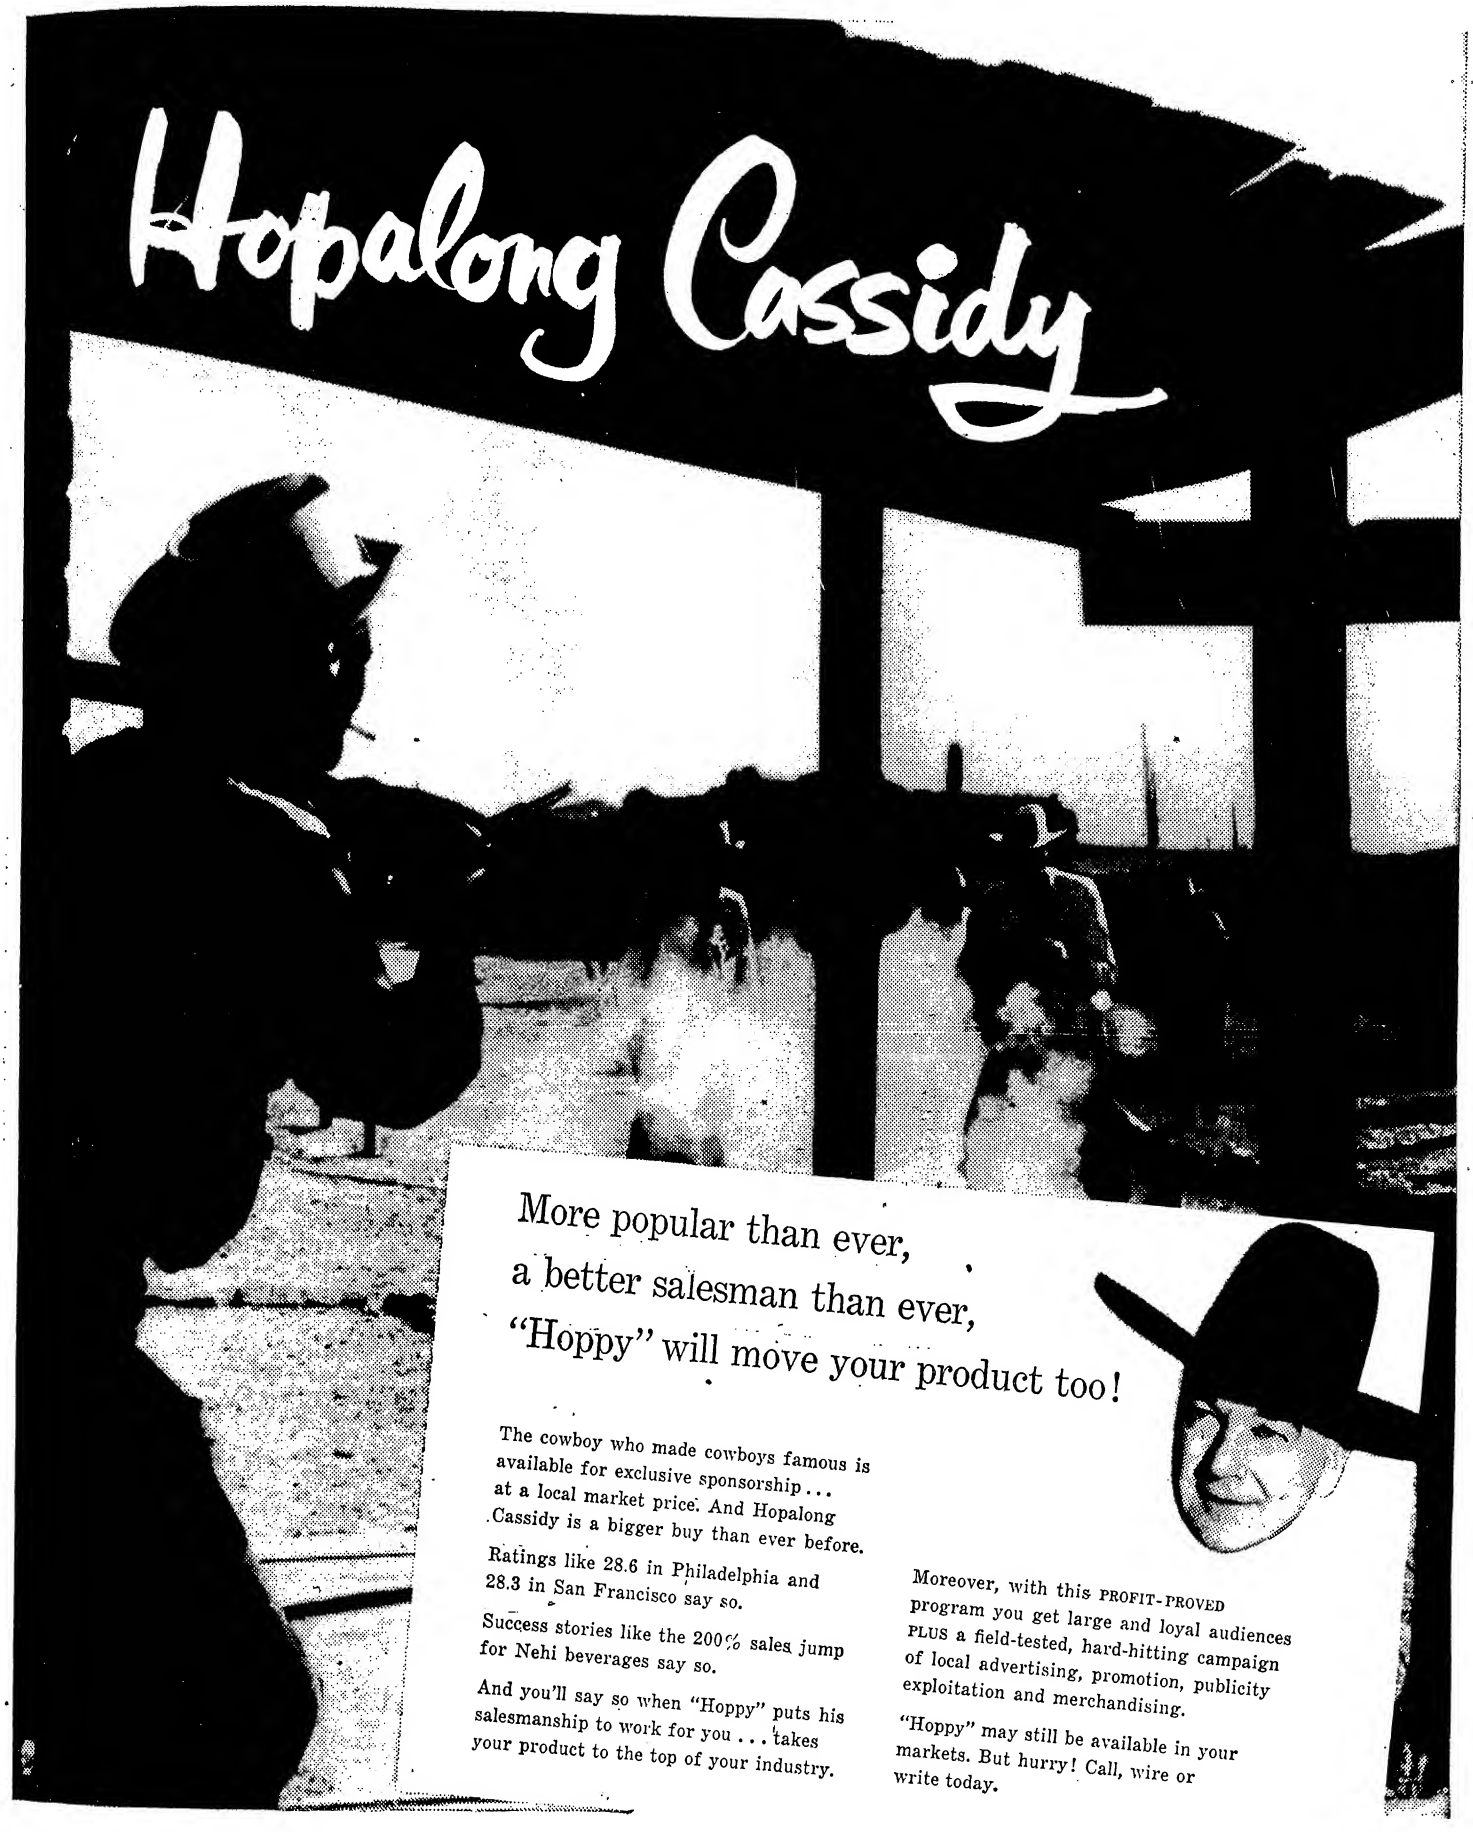
Supporting players also were standout. Jody Drew did an excellent bit as an Italian film star and John McQuade was properly blustering and devoted as Miss Christie's estranged spouse. Beverly Roberts, Bartlett Robinson, Joe Verdi and Effie Afton also rate nods for their effective contributions.

Warren Wade's topnotch production and Martin Jones' lively directorial touches helped bring the show home a winner. Gros.

"Danger," which seems to have trademarked the solid psychological suspense dramatic show, had one of its good ones on CBS-TV last Tuesday (24). The play "Carpool," a Jeremy Daniel original, unleashed a chilling tale of an unbalanced gent (William Prince) who hated violence so much he got violent about it while sharing a cross-country auto trip with a mildly bickering married couple (Hildy Parks and Richard McMurray). Story unfolded a neat study of the odd character who, obsessed by the tragic quarreling of his parents, takes to befriending the girl and plotting to kill her husband. The plan is spiked when the husband, as usual slightly jealous, does not enter a tampered car but returns to spy on his wife, thereby averting his death and his wife from a fate worse than.

Prince did an excellent job as the psychopath, whom the viewer got to know and pity, while Miss Parks and McMurray were skillfully natural as the loving and quarrelsome couple. Unusual motion, lifting the play out of the studio, was provided by film inserts of a road on which the threesome's car "traveled," and cuts to a spinning photo of a tire. The producer-director team of Charles W. Russell and Sidney Lumet could well bring their psychological touch to more advantage, if that's historically possible, on the "You Are There" show, which they also handle. Dick Stark treated the Ammident commercials in his usual aggressively friendly manner.

Hopalong Cassidy



More popular than ever,
a better salesman than ever,
"Hoppy" will move your product too!

The cowboy who made cowboys famous is available for exclusive sponsorship... at a local market price. And Hopalong Cassidy is a bigger buy than ever before.

Ratings like 28.6 in Philadelphia and 28.3 in San Francisco say so.

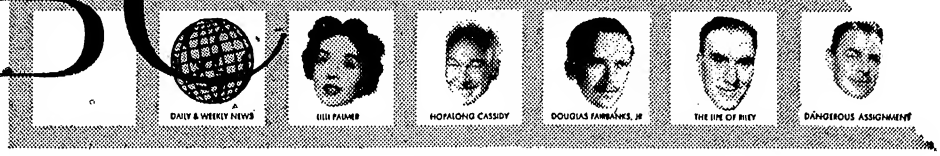
Success stories like the 200% sales jump for Nehi beverages say so.

And you'll say so when "Hoppy" puts his salesmanship to work for you ... takes your product to the top of your industry.

Moreover, with this PROFIT-PROVED program you get large and loyal audiences PLUS a field-tested, hard-hitting campaign of local advertising, promotion, publicity exploitation and merchandising.

"Hoppy" may still be available in your markets. But hurry! Call, wire or write today.

NBC FILM DIVISION



NEW YORK, CHICAGO, LOS ANGELES

EYE WITNESS
(The Cruel Clinic)
With Mercer McLeod, Harry Townes, Eric Dressler, Gregory Morton, Dorothy Elder, Rosemary Pettit, Harold Gray, Ann Rutherford, narrator
Producer: Joseph W. Bailey
Director: Perry Lafferty
Writer: Irving Gaynor Nieman
30 Mins.; Mon., 9 p.m.
PEARSON PHARMACAL CO.
NBC-TV, from New York
(Harry B. Cohen)

"Eye Witness" is NBC-TV's latest pitch to woo dialers away from CBS-TV's "I Love Lucy" magnet. Riding back-to-back with Robert Montgomery's teledrama series, web now has a strong 90-minute lineup but whether "Witness" will dent the "Lucy" ratings is doubtful. It's a sure bet, however, to win dialers whose tastes go to off-beat dramas of the science fiction and supernatural genre.

Series got off to a fine start Monday (30) with Irving Gaynor Neiman's adaptation of Arthur Gordon's original yarn, "The Cruel Clinic of Dr. Schmidt." It was a tightly knit televersion that built interest and excitement. Firstrate thesping and slick behind-the-camera techniques added to the overall top score.

Story took place in a hospital in an unidentified South American country where a ruthless German doctor who conducted experiments for the cure for schizophrenia on Nazi concentration camp inmates was continuing his human guinea-pigging. An experiment on one patient eventually backfired in that latter was given prophetic knowledge as well as amnesia and the doc slowly developed into a schizophrenic himself in his efforts to cure the patient. Through all this, a young medic was an unwilling aide because the mad doc had threatened to blackmail him if he attempted to expose his weird experiments to the authorities.

Mercer McLeod was properly wild-eyed as the German doctor, Harry Townes was convincing as the med student and Erie Dressler was effective as the patient. Lesser roles were adequately handled by Gregory Morton, Dorothy Elder and Harold Gary. Ann Rutherford had little more to do than set the scene.

Plugs for the sponsor's deodorant were obvious and distracting. Gros.

BEAUTY ON PARADE
With Jerry Bundsen, Evangeline Baker, others
Producer: Jay Grill
Director: Bill Hollenbeck
30 Mins.; Thursdays, 10:30 p.m.
HUDSON DEALERS
KGO-TV, San Francisco
(Fenton-Grill)

This is a bright-paced stanza spotlighting four damsels per program in a three-way stretch for beauty, talent and personality honors. Winner of series will be gifted with scads of merchandise.

Affair is co-hosted by Evangeline Baker and Jerry Bundsen, the right hand aide of Examiner columnist Herb Caen. It's Jerry's initial TV series, but even with first-night distractions he was busting out all over with sock ad libs.

Miss Baker introduces the lovelies who (a) parade their charms, (b) give with talent, and (c) discuss the lighter facts of life with Bundsen. In this latter set-to, when the cuties huddle around him, Jerry emerges as an ultra smooth, sharp and witty emcee.

Following each round, Miss Baker posts the point-standing to whet viewer's interest. For his premiere (26) producer Jay Grill selected gals pre-tested on his other TV shows. In looks, chatter and talent they set a pace that may be hard to maintain.

Barbara Huffman and Rayna Clay chirped pop tunes. Elizabeth Lee tip-toe'd an interpretive dance. Ardeen De Camp doubled on violin and vocals. Ardeen's professional experience (she's with Dick Foy's band at the Claremont Hotel), edged her into the winner's circle by a one-point squeeze.

Show may win an award—a dandy dandelion, or something—for the number of sponsors appearing on camera. Not one, not two, but five—in person to hawk their product.

Between rounds, Bundsen (off camera) queries the sponsors (on camera), stooging them into preplanned sales pitches. And between commercials, the busy sponsors act as contest judges!

Despite this weighty commercial burden, program is much livelier than Grill's previous show of the same name, a 15-minute job confined to beauty alone. Winner of first series was Nancy Woodruff, now a New York model. Dwit.

JOURNEY THROUGH LIFE
With Tom Reddy, Carl King, guests
Director: Frank Moriarty
30 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 1 p.m.
Participating
WCBS-TV, New York

Latest trend in the daytime participationers seems to be serious stuff—audience guests are handed household problems to solve, or are cited for their good deeds. "Journey Through Life" falls into this vein. Format calls for three married couples to appear on each show. Each couple tells what's contributed to make their marriage a happier one, via trials & tribulations.

Tom Reddy makes a capable emcee in that he keeps the stories on the straight and narrow, with no oversentimentality. On initialler, in fact, he had a little difficulty in keeping one overeager guest from talking past his limit. But it's a straight-forward job which keeps the show on a dignified level.

Following each couple's story, Reddy asks them three questions, correct answers to which rate prizes. Carl King announces, and also describes the prizes. At the end of the show, a panel of celebrities, contacted by phone, decide which couple deserves the day's grand prize, in case of the premiere, a free weekend in Atlantic City.

Guests were interesting. One couple fled from Danzig after being persecuted by the Russians; a housewife whose husband was in poor health worked as a janitress; a third pair of newlyweds were preparing to take in the bride's three youngest sisters and brothers.

On the whole, show is a fairly creditable job. Idea is a good one that should appeal to the housewives and it's carried out in a restrained manner. If guests continue to be as sincere and interesting, show should click.
Chan.

DREW PEARSON STAFF CONFERENCE
With Jack Anderson, Fred Blumenthal
Director: Charles Hill
15 Mins.; Sat., 6:45 p.m.
EMERSON RADIO OF WASH.
WTOP, Washington
(Gamble)

There's the germ of a solid show in the new Drew Pearson format, but, as it now stands, it just doesn't quite come off. The rather formless, self-conscious "staff conference" which rambles around many subjects without socking across any, is hardly a substitute to Pearson fans for the excitement of the stop-the-presses, breathless type of newscasts they have come to associate with him.

Show, which is strictly local and obviously still in an experimental stage, is conceived to give the viewer a look-see at a typical Pearson staff powwow, from which the famed columnist evolves his broadcast and daily news column. From this point of view it must be both surprising and interesting to Pearson fans that he has reporter assistants and that he must "dig" for items even as you and I. Aside from this, show is too short and covers too much territory to actually give Mr. & Mrs. John Q. more than the vaguest idea of the development of a news story. Lacking this, there's no logical reason for substitution of the group huddle for a solo recital of the news.

Contradictory as it sounds, show is at once too short to cover all the ground attempted, and at the same time lagging in pace and punch. It might be well to telescope the staff efforts to a few selected items, rather than mention so many and then leave them dangling mid-space.

On the credit side, format of show makes for an easy, informal type of discussion which can be informative albeit not exciting. The two Pearson staffers, Jack Anderson and Fred Blumenthal, have TV personalities of their own and appear relaxed and at home before the lenses. The big exclusive on show caught, an item "leaked" from the testimony of Henry Gruenwald before a House Committee, was still the boss' bailiwick, and staffers' reaction was matter-of-fact. The "prediction" gimmick is kept in a modified form, and impressed as one of more spontaneous portions of show. Pearson, mulling his prediction for his next night's web broadcast, consulted staff, who disagreed with him. There's no indication, however, of how much the boss' opinion was affected.

There's been talk of kinescoping show for syndication. There's enough meat in it for wider circulation, and material is of national, rather than local interest. But considerably more punch as well as a general tightening is needed before this rates A for effort as well as for effort. Lowe.

HISTORY IN THE MAKING
With Richard Tobin, Phil Tonken
Producers: Tobin and Tonken
Director: Richard Blue
15 Mins.; Sat., 2:45 p.m.
Sustaining
WOR-TV, N. Y.

"History in the Making," a co-production of the N. Y. Herald Tribune and WOR-TV, is a propaganda wolf masquerading in sheep's clothing. Officially, it's billed as a recap of "the week's highlights in international, domestic and local news events, as well as the latest bulletins." Actually—and many viewers are bound to resent this—it's the editorial page of the Herald Tribune thinly disguised as a news presentation.

Initialer last Saturday (28) contained at least three non-objective inserts parroting the editorial line of the Trib. As a rationalization of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's fiat thrusting a Transit Authority on N. Y. City, thus creating a subway fare boost, newscaster Richard Tobin displayed a list of high fares charged in other cities. At another point, Tobin, citing Chrysler's price cut, generalized that the Republicans' lifting of price ceilings had resulted in a drop, not a rise, in the overall cost of living. And explaining President Eisenhower's apparent reluctance to interfere in the Bohlen affair, Tobin injected this opinion, "Sen. McCarthy may be the target of the occupant of the White House—who has never liked him anyway."

Tobin, who is radio-TV director on the staff of the Trib, impressed with his smooth voice and presentable appearance. But his manner is wooden and, near the end of the stanza, he jerked his head toward the side uneasily. His function, theoretically, is to explain news photos, maps and film strips flashed on the screen. His associate, Phil Tonken, nervously plugged the Trib's This Week mag section and offered the weather forecast.

If "History in the Making" purports to be an editorial analysis of current affairs, it should say so. Otherwise, it ought to stick to the hard, unslanted facts of the news.

QUOTES ON SPORTS
With Fred Vant Hull
Producer-director: Bill Garin
Writer: Vant Hull
15 Mins.; Mon., Wed., Fri., 10:30 p.m.
BOB KNOWLES AUTO CO.
KSTP-TV, Mpls.-St. Paul

Former University of Minnesota and professional football star Fred Vant Hull, who has suffered permanent paralysis following polio and is confined to a wheel chair, makes this sports commentary show one that many fans are sure to tune in on and approve.

Sitting behind a desk that conceals his infirmity, the pleasant, smiling ex-gridder projects a winning personality and demonstrates an ability to report graphically and concisely, as well as to comment authentically, on up-to-the-minute sport happenings. He rarely, if at all, refers to notes, his method of delivery making for an intimate informality that increases its effectiveness. His diction leaves nothing to be desired and he has a swift, easy flow of language.

At show caught, he told of the results of the state high school basketball tournament finals, an event of paramount interest hereabouts, and gave details of the championship game. He also related several amusing tournament incidents and reported other late sport events. Commercials were right in order. Rees.

ANSWER ME THIS
With Tom Romano
Producer-director: David K. Harris
Writers: Romano and Harris
30 Mins.: Mon., 7 p.m.
Sustaining
WNHC-TV, New Haven

One of the more favorable aspects of this particular quiz show is the fact that it hits a fairly high intellectual level without being too stuffy. Questions steer clear of the "something-for-the-morons" angle but also sidestep the overpedantic phase.

Paced by nonchalance of quizmaster Tom Romano, program strikes an informal pose which gives an impression of friends dropping into the living room for an evening of interesting chatter.

Panelists on show caught were Prof. Fred Rodell of Yale Law School; Attorney James Egan of Hartford; Dr. Paul Sears, Director of Conservation Dept. at Yale; film thesp Debbie Reynolds.

Program functions on a straight q-&-a basis, with no giveaways, no forfeits—just conversation. A possible hypo from viewer angle would be a financial tax on the "experts" when they flub a question, cash to be donated to a worthy cause.

Okay camera work gets good directorial assist in keeping shots well mixed during the half-hour stanza.

"Answer Me This" has been in session for about 15 weeks and has accumulated a substantial following. For a sponsor interested in picking up some video ballyhoo at not too high a talent tariff, this is not a bad pitch. Bone.

Television Chatter

New York

Sam Levenson, who did his camping routine on "Toast of the Town" March 8, unhappy about Alan King's summer-camp routine in the night clubs . . . Half-hour TVR of the Larry Storch CBS-TV show, written and produced by Leo Solomon, has been made and rushed to potential clients . . . "Television Trends — Live and Films" subject of panel discussions of Television Writers Group of the Authors League of America at Barbizon-Plaza, April 15 at 8 p.m. Participants include Lewis Titterton, Compton Advertising veepee; Kendall Foster, William Esty veepee; Marion Personnet, prexy of Parsonnet Productions; Frank Schaffner and Fred Coe . . . Hal Weiss, radio-TV writer, joined I. R. Stempel Advertising Agency as account exec . . . Mercedes McCambridge debuts into "Studio One," produced by husband Fletcher Markle, April 6, in A. J. Russell's original television play, "Shadow of the Devil" . . . NBC-TV's Harold Kemp now a country squire, domiciling in suburban Mt. Vernon . . . The George F. Foley's are new parents of daughter, Barbara . . . Bernard J. Prockter, prexy of Prockter Television Enterprises, appointed chairman of Radio-TV and Stage Artists Division of the United Jewish Appeal . . . Bud Collyer replaced Steve Allen on ABC-TV's "Talent Patrol" March 30. Allen into "Pink Elephant" legiter . . . Martin Cohen of the Kate Smith unit has joined Teleprograms, Inc., producers of "American Inventory," as administrative director . . . Walt Framer in California . . . Penny and Johnny Olsen have first baby chinchilla on their Conecticut farm. Named Sherman because Olsens received word at Stork Club . . . Electric Auto-Lite Co.'s second automobile show, with Irene Dunne as emcee, replaces "Suspense" April 7.

Jean Martin, singer on WNBT's Sammy Kaye show, named head of teevee committee on ticket sales for the National Wheelchair Basketball Tournament scheduled for April 17-19 . . . Don Bennett, producer-moderator for DuMont's "The Big Idea," addressed the American Patent Law Assn. in Washington last week, is skedded for another speech before same body in Pittsburgh, April 17 . . . Walter Fields named sales manager for DuMont's newly formed Tampa Factory Distributing Branch of the receiver division . . . Terry Tashjy joined Sandy Howard Productions as program coordinator for "Inside Times Square," bowing on WOR-TV . . . Rubsam & Hormann Brewing Co. renewed on Jimmy Powers' "Powerhouse of Sports" on WPIX . . . William Molyneux set to design sets for the NBC-TV's upcomin production of "Rosenkavalier" . . . Grant Sullivan of DuMont's "Captain Video" set to do the lead in Mono-Drama Theatre's version of "Count of Monte Cristo" on WABD.

Three radio-TV execs at William Weintraub agency are being boosted up the ladder. Lee Curlin becomes assistant business manager in charge of timebuying; Les Blumenthal to general manager of the radio-TV dept.; Bill Weintraub, Jr., to radio-TV production manager.

Robert Montgomery doing John O'Hara's "Appointment in Samarra" on his hour show May 11 . . . Lin Cook ended two-week run on "Aunt Jenny" and off to Chicago for WNBQ tele lead in "Curtain Time." Latter show co-starred Virginia Vincent and Kevin O'Morrison, now back in N. Y., last week . . . When "Hollywood Screen Test" celebrates 5th anni on ABC-TV this week, scripter Alton Alexander, with show from start, will have written 500 plays and sketches for program.

Top AB-PT and ABC brass including Leonard H. Goldenson, Robert E. Kintner, Robert H. O'Brien, Robert M. Weitman and Frank Marx, due back from Coast late this week . . . Giuseppe Baggi, European artist who constructs caricatures out of wire, to guest on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" on CBS-TV Sunday (5) . . . Reub Kaufman, Guild Films prexy, back from Coast . . . Ditto Ben Frye, United Television Programs sales veepee . . . Legit actress Jean Stapleton will appear on Robert Montgomery show next Monday night (6) for the third time in "Second Hand Sofa."

Hollywood

Beaver Motor Corp. bankrolling Saturday movie on KECA-TV . . . "Fishing Tips," sponsored by Associated Sporting Goods Dealers, tees off on KLAC-TV . . . Jack Creamer, formerly with William Morris agency, joins TV sales department of ABC as account exec . . . KTTV acquired vidpix series, "Files of Jeffrey Jones" . . . Mary McCarty guestarring on Martin & Lewis' "Colgate Comedy Hour" on NBC-TV May 3 . . . KTTV manager Dick Moore vacationing in Phoenix . . . KNXT launched new panel show, "Platter Panel," with Frank DeVol as moderator, and Bill Ballance, Ronnie Kemper, Johnny Grant, Lina Romay, Margaret Whiting and Connie Moore on first show . . . KTLA renewals include "City at Night," Lawrence Welk, "Man's Best Friend," and wrestling, and Southern California Gas begins angeling Robert Linn show . . . Sunbeam Corp. picks up tab on "Window on Washington" on KTTV . . . "Sports Car News," sponsored by Wells Motors, begins April 8 on KLAC-TV . . . Bell Brands renewed "Ramar of the Jungle" on KTTV.

San Francisco

Lawrence A. Harvey, southern California industrialist, awarded UHF Channel 20. Expects to start operations by September . . . S. H. Patterson, KSAN owner, applied for UHF Channel 32 . . . Les Malloy off his KGO-TV stanza for several days with a kidney infection. Bob Day replaced him . . . The three local TV stations firmed "freelance" pact with AFTRA. Terms comparable to Los Angeles area but minimum scales are 12½% lower . . . Thoreau Willatt and Leo Diner dissolved partnership. Diner will specialize in TV films, Willatt in newsreels . . . Ann Sothern in for a weekend rest cure with her daughter, Tish . . . Mae Tai Sing, Forbidden City entainer, featured in a "Mr. and Mrs. North" film . . . Marjorie Trumbull selected to emcee fourth annual local TV Academy Awards banquet (28) at Mark . . . Caesar Grimaldi, local producer, shifting to California Advertising Agency, Hollywood . . . "Uncle" George Lemont, on his KGO-TVerie, essayed "Dognet," actual case films from the city pound. And "I Love Losing," story of a lady gambler.

Chicago

Jack Curry takes over as WBBM-TV sales promotion topper via a tour of the same at St. Louis' KMOX . . . An "Ice Capades Rehearsal" will be telecast by WBKB today (31) from the skating rink of the promotion-wise Polk Bros. who also bankroll the show . . . WBBM-TV will televise the Pontifical Mass of the Cathedral of the Holy Name via CBS on the web's Easter Sunday programming . . . Ken Nordine spelling vacationing Bob Cunningham on "Welcome Travelers" . . . Sarra, Inc., completing tele commercials for Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe Railways, Sunbeam Corp., and Pillsbury Mills . . . CBS' chief talent, Arthur Godfrey, speaking before the Chi Executive Club prior to emceeing the Beau Nash ceremonies at the Ambassador West . . . WBBM-TV debuted a quarter-hour shopping show yesterday (Mon.) featuring Pat O'Riley and Lee Phillip . . . The Disabled American Veterans will award ABC-TV's "Super Circus" a citation on April 19 for its role in entertaining hospitalized vets . . . Clark Davis joining WBBM-TV's scripting stable

Vincent Vice Fisher On Recruiting Show

Singer Ronnie Vincent, newly drafted, takes over for Eddie Fisher on the CBS-Radio-Army Air Force recruiting show (Saturdays at 4 to 4:30) on May 2.

That's the same week Fisher, out of the Army, will go over to NBC television and radio for Coca-Cola.

Vincent, who sang with "The Gaylords," is expected to have finished his basic training before taking to the air for Uncle Sam.

AFTRA Tackles $64 Question

Hollywood, March 31.

When the Un-American Activities Committee ends its hearings here on Communism, the American Federation of Television-Radio Artists board of directors will meet to take action on members who refused to answer the $64 question, executive secretary Claude McCue said Monday.

Before the committee convened, AFTRA members voted a resolution demanding subpoenaed members to answer queries regarding present and past associations with the Communist party.

The resolution gives the AFTRA board the power to expel members who decline to answer. McCue said that actress Jody Gilbert, dancer Libby Burke and other members who didn't answer will be called before the board April 13 or possibly sooner.

Kids Getting to School Late, So 'Telecomics' Gets Earlier Period

Two considerations mark the earlier opening (7:30 a. m. instead of 8) of WCBS-TV, N. Y., which started Monday, March 30.

One is to get the kiddie shows, "Telecomics" and "Time for Beany," on the air earlier. Letters from parents have complained that their tots have been getting to school late. The shows have been popular on the ARB rating charts.

The other is to pitch the entire "Kovacs Unlimited" show, formerly from 8:30 to 9:30 a. m., against a whole hour of "Today," and get away from the entertainment competition of Morey Amsterdam's "Breakfast with Music" on WNBT.

"Time for Beany" picks up a sponsor April 6. Cocoa-Marsh at that time begins three participations a week, Monday, Wednesday, Friday.

'SUPERMAN' GETS A GLOBAL RADIO SPREAD

"Superman" with a British accent is currently being sold in a number of world markets, along with a Spanish version of the radio series. Fremantle Overseas Radio, AM syndication outfit, has set deals for sponsorship of the program in some 14 countries, with more deals pending.

Paul Talbot, Fremantle chief, secured rights to the airer for world syndication with the exception of the U. S. and Canada. The British-accent open-ender, made in Australia, is sponsored by Kellogg in South Africa. It's on the air in Australia, New Zealand and Ceylon, with a deal pending in British West Indies.

Spanish version, made in Mexico City, has Kellogg picking up the tab in Mexico and Costa Rica, with other bankrollers in Colombia and Peru. Rights to the series are owned by National Comics, which also distributes foreign-langauage comic versions in those countries.

Wiley New Flack Chief For CBS Central Div.

Chicago, March 31.

Chuck Wiley, director of Special Events for CBS Central Division, has been named public relations chief for the division, succeeding Stuart Riordon, who resigned last Friday (28).

The public relations end will be split into two sections, with video publicity under Andrew Murphy, former CBS staffer, currently with Thor Corp., and with Sam Paxton heading the audio flackery. Wiley will retain his special events duties.

Sen. Johnson Series

Dallas, March 31.

U. S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, of Texas, will make his debut in a regular weekly report to the state each Sunday over stations of the Texas State Network and added outlets.

The talks, carried as a public service, will report to the people of Texas on happenings in Washington and on how they affect the state.

ABC Sets Simulcast As Metop Fund Benefit

ABC radio and television networks will air a special broadcast for the Metropolitan Opera Fund next Monday (6), with a top lineup of Met stars. Composer and critic Deems Taylor will emcee.

Lineup for the simulcast, set for 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. with an additional half-hour on radio, includes Zinka Milanov, Mario Del Monaco, George London, Lucia Albanese, Salvatore Baccaloni and Robert Merrill. Met conductors Fausto Cleva and Max Rudolf will lead the ABC Symphony orch.

Show will present scenes from various operas as well as straight arias. Network had done a benefit broadcast for the Opera's fund two years ago on radio, but this is the first telecast of such a show, and the first on such a scale. Henry Souvaine produces, while William Marshall directs on TV and Marshall Diskin megs the radio version.

Cry 'Foul' Over Husing's Ouster By 'Packager' of DuM Boxing Bouts

Dropping of Ted Husing as commentator on the Monday night fights from Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena on DuMont network has set a precedent which is being labelled as a discredit to the industry. First reports had it that Husing was dropped for reasons of economy, a reason Husing himself subscribed to.

But subsequent revelations indicate he was fired because of criticism levelled at him by boxers, managers and other segments of the boxing industry. It wasn't DuMont which fired him; it was Emil Lence, "packager" of the bouts for the web and promoter at the Arena. Lence pays all the salaries involved in the tele productions—and has the final say.

Unhappy aspect of the situation is fact that DuMont let a boxing promoter package and control the production of its telecasts of the fights. With all the criticism levelled at handling of boxing by the commentators, and all the charges of "buildups" by sponsors, agencies and networks, the revelation that a segment of the boxing world itself should control production of a network telecast is seen indicating the need for some basic changes in the viewpoint of the networks.

Under the present setup, if a commentator remarks about the slow pace of a fight, the fact that one of the participants isn't pitching, or delivers any adverse commentary, the fight promoters themselves can enforce censorship.

Greensboro, N. C. — WFMY-TV has welcomed back one of its veteran staff members, Don Hardison, after his two-year Army hitch.

Millions of nickels in juke boxes tell the story of the Italian Influence on modern American life. They go to pay for repeated playings of American hits based on Italian originals.

More and more American hit tunes, such as those pictured above, are adaptations from Italian popular songs. In their original form, WOV was first to bring them to American airwaves. What is today a nationwide hit may have been familiar, a year and more ago, to over two million Italian-Americans to whom WOV directs its Italian-language broadcasting.

In every phase of American life, Italian creativeness makes its daily contribution. From music to motor cars, from fashions to films to food, Americans have eagerly accepted the good things the Italian Influence brings us.

In New York, with the greatest Italian population of any city in the world, the Italian Influence makes its first and most penetrating impact. WOV will show you the way to turn this Influence to the profit of the product you advertise.

Originators of Audited Audiences
WOV NEW YORK
5000 WATTS

Representatives:
John E. Pearson Co.

730 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK 19 • ROME STUDIOS: VIA di PORTA PINCIANA 4

Eileen BARTON
Currently
SEVILLE, MONTREAL
CORAL RECORDS
Dir.: MCA

Erwin, Wasey Formula

Continued from page 58

a kitchen scene showing several Admiral appliances, the camera was dollied in from a view of the entire room to a point where, with the lense just 1/16 inch from the photo the entire screen was filled with a turkey roasting in the oven, all with remarkable three-dimensional effect. From this shot, Levin then switched to a live shot of a turkey turning on a spit in the oven—without the viewer being aware of any change. The intricacies of split second timing required in this operation have posed no problems to date.

In another commercial, the camera dollied in from a full living room picture to a closeup of a window airconditioner. Then the switch was made to a live set, with camera showing exact pic of the still, and the camera dollied back far enough for a girl to demonstrate the unit. In this case, only a live window set was used, matching completely the photographed set as to drapes, etc, at a cost of from $50 to $75, as compared with the $1,000 the whole set would have cost to produce the entire demonstration live.

Other examples of the lens crowding the transparencies gave depth effects to views of refrigerator shelves, freezers, etc.

Shadows & Lighting

Another important advantage of this operation as against live or film, Levin points out, is the old bugaboo of shadows and lighting when moving the cameras. With the use of transparencies, the light and shadow is constant, and appears as it would to a hausfrau walking towards the appliances in her home. And by subtle backlighting of the transparencies, with pinpoint control, the appliance to be shown can be brought into greater prominence by delicately increasing the amount of lighting on the desired object while dimming the rest of the scene.

However, in addition to facilities available and the final appearance of the commercial, a big factor is cost. In this respect, Levin reports his system is far superior. It's his belief that a single commercial, whether live or film, can be used a maximum of only five times in a year on a network basis. By use of the many and varied color transparencies, the agency needs to photograph the entire Admiral line only once, then adapt the pix to any given commercial. Admiral's product line changes only once annually, and at a cost of about $120 per transparency, the initial sum involved is between $25 and $30,000. This amount is amortized on a per-use basis during the year.

Before any shooting is done, the agency uses a scale model of each studio and each appliance for planning purposes, and when the agency men are ready for the photographer, they know exactly where every piece of furniture will go, and every camera angle is planned in advance.

Costs of each network commercial are estimated by the agency three days in advance of production, and totaled three days after telecasting when the client is billed. In every case, Levin claims, the initial estimate on the work sheet is never off more than 1%.

Still No Bunny

Continued from page 61

have been pounding home the story that the 1953 Parade will be dignified and in keeping with the religious tone of the day. Dignity, dignity, dignity the tele people keep saying.

Privately, however, they're scared too. One untoward reprise will touch off a bale of criticism. And to prevent anything like that, they're taking extraordinary precautions to control coverage of the event.

ABC Prefers Going To D.C.

ABC, for instance, in its "Easter 1953" from 1 to 2, will carry only a quarter of an hour from New York and then will switch to Washington, where a brunch is being held under the joint auspices of ABC and the International Rescue Committee (of enslaved peoples).

In New York, extreme care will be exercised by having a controlled ABC interview area blocked off in the Plaza across the street from the Sherry-Netherland Hotel. Maggi McNellis and Reginald Gardiner will speak to society folk there. At the Washington brunch, ABC expects Vice-President Richard M. Nixon, Mrs. John Eisenhower, the President's daughter-in-law, and other distinguished guests.

Besides their outdoor coverage, both NBC and CBS have controlled areas—NBC at the Roof Gardens of Radio City's Italian building, where there'll be a kiddie-clothes and international fashion show, and CBS in the Terrace Room of the Plaza Hotel, where fashions will be modeled and UN children interviewed by Yul Brynner on native celebrations. If there is some disturbance in the street, the nets can switch away, and this time they're sensitive to the situation.

In spite of all the care, everyone concerned is still jumpy and jittery—so much so that the sponsors have not been persuaded that an outlay is more than an investment in worry. It's wait and see for Easter, 1953.

Pearson

Continued from page 61

director, it's been casting about for a nationally known commentator with which to launch co-ops in a big way (currently only Saturday night wrestling and Monday night boxing are carried co-op). DuMont consequently went after Pearson with the local sponsorship pitch and at the same time queried its affiliates, leading to current discussions.

Tapes Own Show

Washington, March 31.

Drew Pearson, whose network radio show on ABC wound up Sunday, is ready to replace it with a taped news show commencing next Sunday.

Columnist and gabber is selling the taped version himself and claims he will have upwards of 200 stations buying the tapes, which will be for Sunday release at about the same time as his outgoing radio show. Stations pay Pearson for the tape and then sell sponsorship locally. Commentator says about 100 stations have already sold the time and that some of the others are holding back temporarily because the tab is too high for them to handle on a sustaining basis.

K-F's Radio-TV

Continued from page 61

May. W. H. Weintraub is the agency.

Unusual angle of deal is that it's pitched right at the baseball picture. For the first two weeks of April, K-F will have three "Today" segments a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, on baseball films from the major-league training camps. After baseball's opening day in mid-April, there will be a segment a day featuring a baseball scoreboard. The time reverts to three participations a week for the last two weeks in May. Jack Lescoulie will spiel the baseball scores.

If the car company likes its two-month ride, it has what amounts to an option to continue on "Today"—probably at three a week—for the rest of the baseball season, an investment of about $250,000 for K-F. The program had eight big auto company sponsors in the last year, but only for a saturation push. This is a new attack, hitting the baseball season with a car pitch.

K-F will start off the sponsorship with a big dealer-display of banners, and later initiate scoreboard contests.

Curtain Time

Continued from page 61

in the same area limits competition, reduces diversification of control of programs, and puts competitive TV stations at a disadvantage.

Similar questions were raised by Miss Hennock in dissenting to authorizations issued to the Utah Broadcasting & TV Corp. in Salt Lake City and to Television Services of Knoxville, Tenn.

Other TV permits issued last week went to Valley Telecasting Co. in Yuma, Ariz.; KFXJ in Grand Junction, Colo.; Marion Radio Corp. in Indianapolis; Empire Coil Co. in Indianapolis; Rib Mountain Radio Co. in Des Moines; Minnesota-Iowa TV Co. in Austin, Minn.; Alamo TV Co. in San Antonio, and KNAL in Victoria, Tex.

These authorizations brought to 325 the number issued since the lifting of the freeze and to 433 the total number of stations authorized.

New Orleans—Betty Underwood, for 12 years a top femme mike personality here, has been upped to director of women's programs at WNOE. She airs two daily Monday-through-Friday a.m. stanzas, "The Betty Underwood Show" and "Woman's Page."

Inside Stuff—Television

Courses in radio and television production, direction and writing will be offered by Barnard College and NBC in the third annual Summer Institute of Radio and Television from June 29 to Aug. 7. Six courses, including two new ones, will be given by NBC execs. New courses are "Directing, Writing and Producing for Educational Television," to be conducted by Robert Wald, associate producer of "American Inventory," and "Films for Television," to be taught by William C. Hodapp, producer of same show and exec director of Teleprograms. Other courses will be taught by Michael Dann, planning manager for NBC; Ross Donaldson, net's supervisor of literary and story rights; Patrick J. Kelly, supervisor of announcers and Robert L. Garthwaite, senior production coordinator.

WCBS-TV, N. Y., last week installed a clock with correct time on station breaks in the early morning. The clock breaks will be seen from 7:30 a.m., new key opening, to 9 a.m.

Right time is a regular "Today" feature on opposing WNBT from 7 to 9.

One of those inadvertent camera slips occurred on NBC-TV's Friday night bouts from Madison Sq. Garden, N. Y., last week, in which the NBC camera picked up and held for a moment an ABC radio unit at ringside. Viewers got a good look at the ABC letters when the camera followed the ring announcer through the ropes as he picked up the judges' votes on the outcome of the Paddy Young-Ernie Durando bout.

Events are sponsored by Gillette on NBC-TV and ABC radio.

Novel promotional test is being tried by WABC-TV, N. Y. Tele station is advertising in the BMT subways, testing pull of subway ads. Station has installed large-sized posters in the cars reading "Discover the New Channel 7."

Unique phase of the operation, according to Mitchell DeGroot, station's advertising chief, is that it can be tested. Most riders of the BMT live in Brooklyn. Station is conducting surveys of listening habits in Brooklyn as opposed to the other boroughs. After a suitable period, it will be able to measure effect of the ads.

If they prove successful, station will expand advertising campaign to the other two N. Y. subway systems, plus suburban trains and stations.

NBC television, facing a sustaining desert from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. with "The Big Payoff" shift to CBS-TV, is attacking advertiser resistance with an audience-measurement broadside.

The NBC facts and figures claim that in daytime (a) women viewers average 1.1 per set, same as evening, (b) program costs are much less than half evening talent charges, (c) commercial time allowances are higher, and (d) station lineups are more complete.

Storer's Miami Beach Exec Setup; Jr. Now V.P.

Miami, March 31.

Storer Broadcasting Co., with television stations in four cities and radio outlets in seven, will consolidate in Miami Beach all executive operations now divided among Birmingham, Ala., Toledo, O., and Miami Beach.

The new home office will be located in a modern, air-conditioned building, expected ready for occupancy by mid-September, to be erected on recently bought Storer property. New York and Chicago offices will remain, with Gotham branch soon expanding into new five-story Storer House on East 57th St.

In an another development, the board of directors last Wednesday (25) elected George B. Storer, Jr., eldest son of the president, to the position of veepee. He has been managing director of television station KEYL, San Antonio, and v.p. of the San Antonio Television Co.

Carter to Co-Sponsor DuM 'Plainclothesman'

Carter Products last week bought half-sponsorship of DuMont's "Plainclothesman," Sunday night mystery series, for total of 16 weeks during spring and summer. Carter will co-star with Larus Bros. from April 15 to May 24 and then from June 21 to August 9.

Carter is also co-sponsor on "Down You Go," web's Friday night quizzer, with Toni. It continues through the summer as co-bankroller.

'Early Birds' 23d Anni

Dallas, March 31.

WFAA "Early Birds," rated as the oldest breakfast show on the air, is rounding out its 23d anni on the outlet with 9,700 performances already chalked up.

During the anni week oldtime members of the cast, some in person and some by transcription, will be featured.

Dick Gilbert's Pact

Phoenix, March 31.

Dick Gilbert, KTYL disk jockey, has pacted new deal with the station until September, 1957. Currently broadcasting over KTYL AM and FM, he's slated to add an hour-long daily TV show to his schedule when station enters that medium.

Tele operating is expected to start April 12.

AM WEVD FM

4 Reasons Why

The foremost national and local advertisers use WEVD year after year to reach the vast

Jewish Market of Metropolitan New York

1. Top adult programming
2. Strong audience impact
3. Inherent listener loyalty
4. Potential buying power

Send for a copy of 'WHO'S WHO ON WEVD'

Henry Greenfield, Man. Dir.
WEVD, 117-119 West 46th St.
New York 36

WGAL-TV
LANCASTER, PA.*

MR. CHANNEL 8 . . .

symbol of WGAL-TV's increased power, now gives larger coverage, bigger audience, greater sales potential to WGAL-TV advertisers.

*Market includes Harrisburg, York, Lancaster, Reading, Lebanon

WGAL
AM TV FM
A Steinman Station
Clair McCollough
President

Represented by
ROBERT MEEKER Associates
New York Chicago Los Angeles San Francisco

Now starring on NBC's
ALL STAR REVUE
Saturdays, 8-9 p.m., EST
Mgt.: William Morris Agency

Attention TV Producers
AVAILABLE SOON
Major Studio Space
IN HOLLYWOOD
FOR YOUR TV PRODUCTIONS
Complete facilities, equipment, and vaults. For details write Box 321, Daily Variety, 6311 Yucca Street, L. A.

REHEARSAL SPACE AVAILABLE
Ideal stage for television and radio rehearsals and broadcasting. Completely equipped and lighted. AIR CONDITIONED. Five minutes from Times Square. Call Stanley Kostner—WAtkins 4-5230 or WA 4-0782.
THEATER DE LYS
121 Christopher St.

NEWSMAN
Ex-account exec, 31, single, personable, college grad, experience with metropolitan daily, heavy feature work, SEEKS RADIO-TV FILM connection, any capacity. Highest references.
Will Start at Any Level
Write Box VV 336, Variety, 154 W. 46th St. or PHONE Perth Amboy 4-0677

LO. 8-3100
ALTON ALEXANDER
Writer-Director
500 PLAYS AND SKETCHES ON
Hollywood Screen Test, ABC-TV
(Starting Sixth Consecutive Year!)
Thanks to LESTER, JULIET and MORT LEWIS

Inside Stuff—Radio

Local 153, Office Employes International Union (AFL), has started an organizing drive at CBS. The AFL outfit distributed leaflets twice last week attacking the Employe-Management Committee set up by CBS after employes turned down union representation two years ago.

"World of Sound," program on WNEW, N. Y., which has blind children talking about sounds and what they bring to mind, will undergo a couple of changes on the technical and human side. Two weeks from now, topic will be the circus, and instead of the customary tapes and sound effects, station will bring in some actual circus people from Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey circus. Clowns, other performers will entertain the kids, then take them to the circus. Other programs scheduled will come from the children's school, the N. Y. Institute for the Education of the Blind, where station is taping the school's choral group (for its Easter Sunday show) and various classes where sound is used to illustrate principles ordinarily limited to sight.

Mutual has split its network into four divisions for operating convenience under Daylight Saving Time and for satisfactory scheduling of the net's "Game of the Day" series.

Networks A and B went into operation Monday (30), four weeks prior to DST. Other two divisions become effective April 26, when DST goes into effect. Plans call for networks A and D (Eastern and Mountain-Pacific time zones) to release programs on Eastern DST schedules, with B and C releasing programs one hour later. Programs will be controlled through a new control-recording center in web's N. Y. quarters.

RCA topper David Sarnoff was nominated last week by President Eisenhower for the permanent retirement rank of Brigadier General which Sarnoff held during the war. Last year, Sarnoff headed a Commission named by President Truman to try and work out economies in the armed forces. He is now a member of a similar commission appointed by the President.

A radio-newspaper editorial in the New York Post (26) is giving broadcasting flacks a bitter laugh. The Post sermon chided The New York Times for failing to mention, in a story on Rudolph Halley, "Post columnist Barry Gray's show." Times has referred twice to a post-midnight radio broadcast.

The airwave flacks note that the Post is none too scrupulous about network, station or program mentions when hot news is made on broadcasts, on such shows as "Meet the Press" or "Man of the Week," for instance.

ABC radio has changed the name of its counterpart to ABC-TV's "Album" series from "Caravan" to "Playbill," but format will be the same. Initialler for the series, which tees off April 16, hasn't been selected yet.

Number of the subsequent airers have been set. Bert Lytell will star in "Country Lawyer," adapted from the Bellamy Partridge novel. Caesar Romero will appear in "Passport to Adventure," while several AM versions of plays on the "Album" series will be done on the AM "Playbill." Among these will be Paul Douglas in "Justice" and Alan Mowbray in "Colonel Flack."

Florence S. Lowe, VARIETY's Washington Bureau, has been named president of the capital chapter of American Women in Radio & Television. Mrs. Lowe, whose husband, Herman, is VARIETY's bureau chief, has been covering the Washington beat for past seven years.

Others named to new officers' slate for AWRT are vice-president, Betty Doolittle, assistant to chairman of NARTB; treasurer Helen Coar, assistant manager of Joint Congressional Radio-TV Facilities; secretary, Imogene Putnam, manager of WCFM and town's sole femme station manager. Nancy Osgood, head of femme activities and commentator for WRC & WNBW, NBC o. and o. outlets, is retiring prexy.

Omaha—Jim (Cottrell) Howard last week joined WOW-TV as announcer.

TV Package

Continued from page 1

inked, Music Corp. of America, William Morris office and General Artists Corp. have all assured TV Roadshows, Inc., of "complete cooperation" in booking talent with the project. Among the topliners whose agents have stated interest in present negotiations are Frankie Laine, Ginger Rogers, Dorothy Lamour, Marge & Gower Champion, Gene Nelson, Jack Carson, Jerry Lester, Jeanette MacDonald, James Melton, Peter Lind Hayes & Mary Healy, Bert Wheeler, Johnnie Ray, Ethel Waters, Mel Torme, Nat (King) Cole, Jimmy Dorsey, Woody Herman, Mindy Carson, June Valli, Mills Bros., Stan Kenton and Rhonda Fleming.

Prexy of the new firm is James Beach, former TV producer for BBD&O, who just resigned as assistant to the director of the radio-TV department of Biow agency, to head up the project. Other members of TV Roadshows, Inc., are George T. Duram, who becomes sales manager, after having served as media director for Lever Bros. and radio-TV veepee at the Geyer agency; Byron McKinney, former TV producer for Calkins & Holden, Carlock, McClinton & Smith agency, who becomes veepee; and Richard M. Dunn, former radio-TV producer for N. W. Ayer, also a veepee.

Firm was incorporated last June by Phillips, Nizer, Benjamin & Krim. Treasurer is James Leyden, composer and conductor for RCA Victor records, but financing is reportedly from a Wall Streeter with coal and shipping interests.

'Old as Vaude, Complex as TV'

Beach, who began shaping up the project last April, says, "The idea is as old as vaudeville and as complex as television." This coming weekend, Duram will begin pitching the plan to bankrollers in Detroit and Cleveland, with a special appeal to beer companies, auto dealer associations, dairy associations, soft drink bottlers and department stores. On basis of present schedule, mobile star units will begin rolling in the last two weeks of July.

Beach maintains that no TV station manager queried so far has raised a squawk at the notion of shuffling schedules to fit in the once-a-month live starrer. He says the project has been extolled by toppers for WXYZ-TV, Detroit, WENR-TV, Chicago, WMAR-TV, Baltimore, and WBZ-TV, Boston, with an exec for an Indianapolis video station reporting, "I know of five regional advertisers in town who can't afford to let their competitors get their hands on this sponsorship."

Recruit Top Names

Project calls for each unit to be rehearsed in N. Y. four days by a topflight showman. Three toppers who have expressed willingness to direct are David Alexander, who directed Broadway hits "Pal Joey" and "Hazel Flagg"; Charles Dubin, who produced "Pulitzer Prize Theatre" on ABC-TV; and Eddie Nugent, who produced the "Paul Whiteman Show" on ABC-TV. Among the writers who want to go along is Bob Schiller, Hollywood scripter of Danny Thomas and Ed Wynn stints on NBC-TV.

Each unit, composed of a star and supporting acts, will be accompanied by a stage manager, camera director, script girl, musical conductor, seven first-chair musicians, and a publicity man. Overnight stand performances will be made from the TV station's auditorium or a remote from a local theatre. Each local bankroller will get a publicity-promotion kit and his commercials will be integrated into the locally-angled half-hour program. Extra merchandising tie-ins, such as truck panels, window displays, contests, and point of sale hoopla, are paid for separately by each bankroller, in addition to the program package price. However, the project will offer gratis cooperative promotions, such as theatre lobby displays, music store cards, deejay and newspaper publicity.

Beach sees some bankrollers rotating this live starrer every fourth week for 13 weeks with an existing weekly half-hour program. "In a similar way," he says, "American Tobacco now uses its live high-budgeted 'Jack Benny Show' once a month, rotating with the filmed 'Private Secretary' on CBS-TV."

The company's "Show of the Month" is being offered to these markets: Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Minneapolis-St. Paul, N. Y., Philadelphia, Schenectady, St. Louis and Washington.

Prockter Bid to Throw Out 153G Suit Denied

New York State Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente, in a decision last week (28), turned down motions by Prockter Productions, Inc., to dismiss the $153,000 breach of contract suit brought against Prockter by three former employes.

The trio—writer Abram S. Ginnes, producer David Pressman and director Daphne Elliot—was summarily dropped last year, and claims firm's offer of later settlement is a concession of liability.

Cleveland TV

Continued from page 61

five years, and the Empire Coil's WXEL, on the air for three years, both continue to sign on at either 9 or 10 a.m. "because there is no audience."

Eliminating network programming, there is a broad basis of agreement among the general managers that spot sales are responsible for the bulk of station income; that local programming, because of high cost, is relegated to a secondary position.

Yet, this does not eliminate the need for both local programming and public service since both are key vehicles attracting spot sales, tie-ins and participation blurbs.

Competitive Claims

James Hanrahan, WEWS general manager, credited his station's "best position in the community because of our constant stress for quality programming and attempts to offer educational programs within the public service field. With almost six hours of weekly educational programming we exceed any other Cleveland TV outlet."

The claim of "best position" was instantly challenged by both Hamilton Shea, general manager of WNBK, and Franklin Snyder, WXEL general manager.

Shea pointed to Channel Four's "top merchandising success story" as reflecting the "high quality and abundance of local programming" in the station's average weekly output of 115 air hours, largest in the city.

You must incorporate "local talent in your programming," declared Shea, adding, "local talent can bring that vital neighborhood flavor into your operation that not only makes you a 'community' enterprise, but permits good merchandising."

Snyder cited the construction of WXEL's downtown studio as but one step in the "$1,000,000 expansion program geared to greater local participation in our overall program format. There is greater prestige value placed on our operation because of live programming," he maintained, and said prestige built around quality programs reflects in increased time sales.

All three outlets agree that sports and news are generating increased viewer interest, although WXEL and WNBK are utilizing more sports and news programming than WEWS. The Scripps-Howard outlet pivots its news around Dorothy Fuldheim, news analyst; WNBK hypos news around "Today," noon, supper and late evening hours, while WXEL has built its 11 to 11:20 p.m. segment into one of Cleveland's top news-sports segments of the entire telecasting day.

Television has brought one large new advertiser into broadcasting: the banks of Cleveland. During radio, the financial institutions were strangers. Today, they form a growing time-buying element, particularly on cross-the-board public service program basis.

Industrial concerns, seeking employees, are also taking advantage of television and are purchasing sports, news and participation spots.

Because of the surge of TV, all three outlets are increasing their facilities: WEWS is planning a new 858-foot transmitter; WXEL is upping its radiated power to 370 kw, and WNBK is building a new $1,000,000 transmitter station and tower for its TV power increase to 100 kw visual.

WNBK's operation offers a firm presentation to AM prospectors now moving into TV. Shea operates from a dual position as general manager of both media. He does not see the immediate "death of any radio time salesmen, because radio's impact is still dynamic, particularly during the morning hours, at meal times, when there are shift changes at industrial plants, and, of course, auto radio."

Shea made three suggestions to AMers moving into TV.

"Don't sell radio short, it can do a sales job for you. With the addition of TV you should put extra effort into our AM operation to explore new avenues. In building your TV staff don't fail to integrate your AM personnel—with the one exception of sales—and thus avoid duplication, and finally, start your TV operations moderately. Pick your programming for high audience peaks and work from those points out."

Gotham Tele

Continued from page 59

Ave., has a huge plant near the Hudson River on West 57th St. DuMont has exec offices on Madison Ave. but program department and key studios are in its new E. 67th St. Tele-Centre. Mutual has its main offices and studios in its old 40th St.-Broadway location. but WOR-TV is run from its new building on W. 67th St. WPIX is in the Daily News Building on E. 42nd St.

Situation, especially studio-wise, is further complicated through the use of theatres and other facilities. DuMont still operates from Wanamaker's Dept. Store, on 8th St., in addition to two theatres. CBS and NBC have theatres all over the place, as does ABC.

Radio-wise, most complete split is WLIB, which has its exec offices on E. 30th St. with additional studios in Harlem's Hotel Theresa on 125th St. It all makes for good business for the hackies, anyway.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS
104 St. (2731 B'way) Modern Elevator Apts. Full kitchen and bath. 1½-2½ rooms. Everything new. Immediate occupancy. Agent on premises or UN 5-5878.

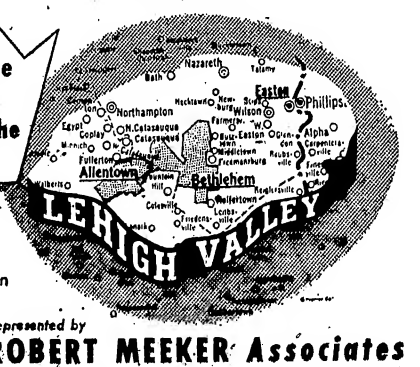
SECRETARY AVAILABLE
Competent, intelligent, executive ability, wide experience, college: $75. weekly.
Telephone: MO 2-2350, Miss J.
Evenings: SA 2-5497

"HUMAN ENCYCLOPEDIA"
Young man, well-read, well-informed, possessing enormous fund of general information, desires position preparing material for husband-wife team in Radio-TV. Specializing in Human Interest angle. Also wealth of material for monologist.
Joseph Duncy
224 Sutter Avenue, B'klyn 12, N. Y.

RECORDING TAPE
Plastic Base, New, Non-Spliced
3 reels 7" $5.00
3 reels 5" $3.50
Add 50c postage West of Mississippi
VOGUE TAPE CO.
(Dept. V.) 118 Bleecker St., N. Y.

it's big... it's prosperous
$1,533,373,000
yearly buying income
the WDEL-TV Wilmington, Delaware market
Delaware, with highest per capita income of any state, is the heart of this market which also includes parts of New Jersey, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Buy WDEL-TV for an audience that buys.
A Steinman Station.
WDEL AM TV FM Wilmington Delaware
Represented by MEEKER
New York Chicago Los Angeles San Francisco

Selling Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton
WLEV-TV
Bethlehem, Pa.
the only single medium reaching the entire



A Steinman Station
NBC TV affiliate
Represented by
ROBERT MEEKER Associates
New York Chicago Los Angeles San Francisco

From the Production Centres

Continued from page 60

radio and TV head, one of organizers of Missouri Valley Television Co. which has applied to the FCC for a TV station permit in St. Louis. . . . "Last Man's Club" of 300 localities under observation of Univ. of Minnesota psychological hygiene laboratory on a heart disease research project will participate in a CBS TV series, "The Search," to start next October and intended to dramatize higher education's scientific and cultural contributions to individual and national welfare. . . . Twin Cities bus and streetcar service to be speeded up through installation of two-way radio communications between headquarters and 10 "roving" dispatchers . . . As a public service more than 26 of state's radio stations carried a speech by Gov. C. E. Anderson of Minnesota detailing progress of present Legislature . . . In order to speed FCC action two applicants for a TV station on Channel 6 in the Duluth, Minn.-Superior, Wis., area, Lakehead Telecasters, Inc., of Duluth, and Ridson, Inc., of Superior, are consolidating the applications, with Lakehead withdrawing and Ridson left as only applicant. Latter is headed by Robert Ridder of newspaper and WCCO-TV and radio family.

IN CLEVELAND . . .

Adelbert A. Skirbunt has been added to the WEWS sales staff . . . Saul Glantz has left WHK to become sales and promotion manager of Cleveland's Mainliner, Inc. . . . Chris Miller, WSRS disker, doing an all-night spree from Castellano's Restaurant . . . Glenn Rowell added another half-hour, Mon.-thru-Fri. 9 a.m. stanza to his list in which he sings his own compositions as well as spins disks . . . Gus Ameler, formerly of New York, doing NBC scenic designing here . . . Gordon "Skip" Ward said farewell to Uncle Sam to resume announcing chores at WTAM-WNBK . . . Johnny Andrews back from a three-week Carib cruise to emcee WTAM "Bandwagon" and do WNBK piano-singing stint . . . Joe Berg and Sid Nadler opened their "Just Plain Bedlam" hour-disk stanza WJW Sat. 8 p.m. . . . Warren Guthrie, TV-Sohio voice on week's vacation, with Bill Tomkins AM Sohio taking on the WXEL nightly pitch at 11 . . . Miller High Life Beer, WEWS, and March of Time previewed magazine's Cleveland Indians Film at a cocktail party at the Cleveland Ball Club's Wigwam . . . Sam Levine, proprietor of bowling shows on WHK and WNBK, elected to national bowling board . . . Nat Shilkret in town for Hanna Theatre show, visited old friends including NBC's Fred Wilson of Rondaleers . . . Carl Stahley of Lakewood Little Theatre directing upcoming Press Club presentation of "Blessed Event."

IN PHILADELPHIA . . .

Paul Whiteman, whose "TV-Teen Club" is a WFIL-TV origination, celebrated his fourth anni with the ABC-TV web and his 63d birthday Saturday (28) . . . Lanse McCurley, veteran sports editor of the Daily News, and Al Wistert, former captain and lineman of the Philadelphia Eagles pro football team, launch a nightly TV program April 6 on WPTZ. Show is sponsored by Gretz Beer . . . DeSoto dealers of this area are picking up the tab for George Walsh's nightly recap of baseball scores and sports headlines, starting April 6 . . . WFIL celebrated its 31st anni (17) and Hal Simonds, radio sales manager, began 32d year with station . . . Gov. John S. Fine, of Pennsylvania, is appointing a committee to study proposed legislation for State funds to help schools and others in the TV-educational field . . . Sales of television receivers in the Philadelphia area were up slightly in February this year, according to official figures from the Electrical Assn. of Philadelphia. Total for February, 1953, was 16,871, compared with 16,064 for the same month last year.

CBS net asked for shift in WCAU-TV's live western "Action in the Afternoon" to 4 p.m. slot to permit wider audience.

IN BOSTON . . .

Ray Giradin, WEEI production director and vet of 2 years at the station, has resigned his post to take over as radio and TV director for Humphrey, Alley & Richards ad agency. He will divide his time between Hub and New York . . . Bob Gilman, formerly associated with Northeast Airlines, has been added to Yankee Network sales force . . . Sabby Lewis, WBMS deejay for past six months, has ankled the station . . . Coleman Cody has been named merchandising manager of WEEI filling the spot vacated by Tom Young, who recently switched to station's sales dept. . . . WNAC-TV set to telecast the Easter Vigil Service at St. Paul's Church, Cambridge, Easter Saturday night, from 11 to 1 a.m. . . . ABC-TV's Saturday night fight telecasts will be carried by WNAC-TV here . . . WEEI's Priscilla Fortesque will join Dave Garroway, Al Capp and Bradford Bachrach on judges' stand at General Electric's Lynn Plant Beauty Contest, April 6.

TV's Banner Year

Continued from page 58

of business by the TV broadcasting industry, there were still 14 stations in the red last year (same as in 1951) although their average losses were smaller. None of these 14 losers were in the seven-station market classification of New York and Los Angeles (FCC does not reveal reports of individual stations), indicating the possibility that one station in one of these cities went from black to red ink last year as FCC reported only eight losers in the seven-station markets in 1951 (of only 12 stations which submitted reports in that year).

Average profits of the 94 stations which made money last year were $453,000. The same outlets averaged $330,000 in profits in 1951.

There were 16 TV stations which averaged more than $1,000,000 in profits last year and of these there were 12 averaging over $1,500,000. Another 17 stations cleared, on the average, over $600,000 (before taxes), another 19 cleared over $400,000, another 22 over $200,000, another 16 over $100,000. In the lowest category of profitable stations—those averaging less than $10,000 profit—there were only four.

Of the 14 losing stations, two reported losses of $400,000 to $800,000. Three others averaged losses of over $200,000, two others of over $100,000 and seven of less than $100,000.

In the 40 cities with only one station there were no losers last year, whereas in 1951 one of the 40 lost money. These "only" stations averaged profits last year of $632,000. In 1951 they averaged $381,000.

In the seven-station markets of New York and L. A., the five profitable outlets averaged over $1,703,000 in the black. The average of the four stations which reported profits in these markets in 1951 was $1,307,000.

Narrowing of the gap between profit and loss in the N. Y.-L. A. markets is evident from the FCC figures. Average losses of the nine losing stations in these cities last year were $296,000. In 1951, the average deficit of eight stations which reported losses was $538,000.

Color TV—When?

Continued from page 59

that he doesn't want to go too deeply into the color morass.

When the ranking Republican member of the Committee, Rep. Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.), suggested questioning officials of the National Production Authority regarding the ban on color set production, revoked last week, Chairman Wolverton snapped: "That's not necessary. The ban has been rescinded."

Chairman Wolverton had made known his resentment against newspaper accounts, declaring that the Committee is inquiring into charges by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) that "powerful interests" are delaying color video. He insists that plans of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee to look into the color situation had nothing to do with his Committee's inquiry.

Just the same, it was not until Sen. Johnson released his letter to Sen. Charles Tobey, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, urging a full investigation into color, that Wolverton suddenly scheduled hearings after previously telling reporters there was no possibility of a color inquiry until after the Congressional Easter recess in April.

It's apparent, therefore, that the House inquiry was designed to head off the Senate probe, to emphasize that development of a compatible system is not around the corner, and to make sure that sale of black and white sets will not be slowed by talk of color. Dr. DuMont frankly urged that the Committee "clear the air" of confusion over color which might hurt black and white.

Wolverton has also given lip service to suggestions that FCC relax its restrictions against broadcasting by the proposed NTSC system during commercial hours. And he has indicated that he will go along with recommendations by Dr. Baker that the Commission modify its criteria for an acceptable color system so as not to specify cost within reach of the general public.

Sen. Tobey, meanwhile, with Sen. Johnson's help, plans to go ahead with a full inquiry after the House Committee reports on its hearings. Sen. Johnson indicated last week it will be a different kind of inquiry.

TV Insurance

Continued from page 57

ing the insurance companies, Levmore offers the following hypothetical case: Suppose the film "X" was replayed in a small town in Iowa several years after it played on the networks in New York. Latter's statute of limitations provided for a certain number of years, which had already elapsed since initial showing of the film. But on seeing the film in Iowa, someone decided his privacy had been invaded and filed suit. Not only could he claim present damages against the local station owner, but could sue the show's producer, writer, actors, and even the original network, sponsor and agencies.

Result, as noted before, has been formulation of a new rate card by the only remaining domestic underwriter offering errors and omission coverage. In the case of filmed dramatic shows, rates will be up 300 to 400%. One series just going into syndication had a rate of less than $400 a year offered it for coverage of about $200,000 per picture. Couple of weeks later, as contracts were about to be signed, insurance outfit demanded $1,500 for the same coverage. This particular show managed to get the original rate on a technicality, but the underwriter served notice that in the future rates would be at the highest level.

Couple of other changes have been added. Instead of offering a specified coverage on each episode, there's now an aggregate figure for the series beyond which the underwriter won't pay. Another change is a 15% surcharge if the original title is changed on a live show, and complete new coverage is necessary if title is changed on pic going into syndication.

Significantly, variety shows have dropped in rates, simply because experience has shown few suits have resulted from them. But on radio, those post-midnight deejay-gabber programs have been hit so hard that no insurance company is willing to indemnify the commentators.

Radio's 'Me, Too'

Continued from page 59

nets open—until 6 p.m., when CBS, NBC and ABC hope to have their British jet-flighted first films on the air. By then, the afternoon newspapers will have had their big chance at a wirephoto splash.

On immediacy, however, a big question remains. How many Anglophiles in America will get up at 5:30 a.m. (or earlier across the country's time zones)?

The question of total audience aside, sponsorwise it looks like General Motors (picking up the NBC tab) and Willys-Overland (most of the CBS bill) will get a longer, more immediately complete and less-risky ride for their dough with radio.

For the radio boys have still another point to make. The route of television's jet, Stratocruiser and "mystery" planes is over the rugged North Atlantic. If flying weather is bad, they say, their hearts bleeding very little, then the Coronation June 2 will be a completely radio show all day.

Chicago—A. C. Nielsen announces nine ad agencies have subscribed to the researcher's station coverage data. Agencies are Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles, Doherty, Clifford, Steers & Shenfield, Sherman & Marquette, Hewitt, Ogilvy, Benson & Mather, Ruthrauff & Ryan, William Esty, Cunningham & Walsh, Weiss & Geller and Erwin, Wasey.

Resnick Quits As FCC Examiner

Washington, March 31.

Leo Resnick, FCC examiner who presided at the Paramount package hearings, resigned today to enter private law practice in Washington, specializing in radio and TV.

Resnick has been with the Commission since 1940, when he joined the litigation division. He has been an examiner for six years. Besides the Paramount case, which resulted in the merger of ABC and United Paramount Theatres, he presided at important proceedings involving broadcast station transfers and applications and common carrier matters.

Prior to entering government service, Resnick was in private practice in N. Y., where he graduated from Columbia U. Law School, with Phi Beta Kappa honors, in 1936.

Miles Labs, Bell Telephone In NBC Radio Renewals

Renewals, on several fronts, are sounding sweet music in radio's ear.

Miles Labs renewed its back-to-back strip sponsorship of "News of the World" (7:30 p.m.) and "One Man's Family" (7:45) p.m.) on NBC radio, beginning March 30 for 52 weeks.

Bell Telephone takes added 52-week NBC Monday ride, starting April 13, with "The Telephone Hour."

On WCBS, N. Y., Sinclair Refining Co. (through Jan. 2, 1954) and Richard Hudnut via Kenyon and Eckhardt, beginning April 6, renewed their schedules of weekday station breaks.

Cincinnati—WLW-T will originate a special Easter program for the NBC-TV network April 5. It will be the pontifical high mass at St. Monica's Basilica here from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. with Archbishop Karl T. Alter celebrating.

STARS' CARS

X-COUNTRY

Going from B'way to Hollywood, or vice versa? "The Best Way" is to ship your car, not to drive it, advises Judson Freight Forwarding Division of National Carloading Corporation, now celebrating its 75th anniversary. Judson has shipped thousands of cars and trunks for stage, screen, radio and TV celebs.

You save wear and tear on you and car, actual driving costs, storage enroute, and expenses involved in the long trip. Besides, you have much better chance of arriving in one piece yourself if you take rail or air and let Judson ship your car and belongings.

If your trial engagement on either coast extends into a solid spot, just call Judson and have your car shipped to you.

See your telephone directory for nearest National Carloading Office or write to: Judson Forwarding, National Carloading Corporation, 19 Rector Street, New York 6, N. Y.

IN THE Upper Midwest...

...KSTP-TV Now Reaches Over a MILLION People Regularly with Its 100,000 Watts!

100,000 WATTS

REPRESENTED BY EDWARD PETRY and COMPANY

KSTP-TV NBC

MINNEAPOLIS ★ ST. PAUL

IN THE LIMELIGHT

Specialized

- DISPLAY
- THEATRICAL
- STUDIO
- MOTION PICTURE

Rental Equipment

WHEN YOU WANT IT—WHERE YOU WANT IT AT THE PRICE YOU WANT TO PAY!

Whatever your lighting needs, rent Jack Frost equipment for greater convenience . . . greater lighting! Jack Frost's unique national service includes complete installation and removal—anywhere! When you call on Jack Frost . . . the world's finest specialized lighting is just a phone-call away!

FOR FULL INFORMATION ON RENTAL EQUIPMENT, MAIL COUPON, OR CALL DETROIT, TRinity 3-9030

JACK A. FROST, DEPT. F, 234 PIQUETTE AVE., DETROIT 2, MICH.

Please send me full information on your rental service.

Name_____

Address_____

City_____ Zone____ State_____

PUB COIN OILS INDIE DISKING

Some ASCAPites See Better Break Vs. BMI in 'Doggie' Climb to No. 1

For the first time in many months, Broadcast Music, Inc., has relinquished its top song position to the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Santly-Joy's "Doggie in the Window," strictly on the strength of only one recording, Patti Page's Columbia platter, has displaced "Till I Waltz Again With You" (Teresa Brewer's Coral record).

This is grudgingly conceded by the aggressive ASCAP group of songsmiths as evidence that the broadcasting interests seemingly are inclined, for one reason or another, to give the Society writers and publishers "a slightly better edge."

It is no secret to BMI that a Songwriters Protective Assn. group of ASCAP tunesmiths, under attorney John Schulman, have a fall starting date in mind for their projected suit against BMI because of the alleged tie-ins with the radio and TV broadcasters, diskeries (Victor and Columbia), networks (NBC and CBS which respectively own these two major platteries), plus other reasons.

Some 200 ASCAP writers, including most of the top names, have been allocating 5% of their ASCAP money to a legal kitty; over $300,000 has already been collected. A special uptown office, in the WMGM Bldg., has been set up by attorney Schulman for mutual convenience (the Hays, St. John, Schulman & Abramson law firm is headquartered in downtown New York on lower Broadway).

Radio contributes some $9,000,000 to ASCAP's royalty melon annually and TV now accounts for $4,000,000. The Society's peak dividend was this past year with $16,000,000.

ASCAP's basic contention is that with the rare exceptions of an Eddie Fisher disk plugging of "Wish You Were Here" into a legit song hit; and three or four Hollywood filmusical excerpts, such as "Be-

(Continued on page 78)

Another 'Mystery' Voice

History is repeating itself in the field of masked singers. The indie ATV label's release a couple of weeks ago, featuring a male vocalist billed as the "Masked Singer" is a throwback to the pioneer "The Silver Masked Tenor" of radio and vaude during the 1920s. Latter was later identified as Joe White, but current masked singer's identity now is known only to the diskery execs.

Publisher of both sides, "Bravo" and "Only For You," however, has been revealed as Marks Music.

Flanagan's 'Toddy' Disk Sale Accents Bands' Comeback

The comeback of the band business, after the uncertain post-war years, is currently being dramatized by the solid click on wax of the Ralph Flanagan band. For the second week running, the Flanagan band on "Hot Toddy" has been Victor's bestselling disk and has already topped the 400,000 sales marker. Not since 1942 when Harry James was a hot commodity on platters has a straight dance band led a major company's bestselling lists.

Flanagan's surge on wax is being duplicated, albeit not so strikingly, by other dance bands whose disks are also getting healthy sales reaction. Billy May's "Bacchanalia" album for Capitol has been showing strongly along with a couple of Ray Anthony sides. Ralph Marterie has been going steadily for Mercury with "Pretend," while Buddy Morrow is still building with "Train, Train, Train" for Victor.

Flanagan's click on "Hot Toddy," incidentally, represents an all-way payoff for the bandleader. Tune was written by the bandleader in collaboration with his personal manager, Herb Hendler. Number is published by their jointly-owned firm, Coachella Music.

Dirksen's D.C. Bill Livens Juke Joust

Washington, March 31.

Efforts of the writer-publisher segment of the music business to get performance fees from jukeboxes received another shot-in-the-arm last week when Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (Rep., Ill.) threw another bill into the hopper which would completely remove the juke exemption from the Copyright Law. Another bill by Sen. Pat McCarran (Dem., Nev.) to the same effect was introduced into the Senate several weeks ago. McCarran's bill would maintain the licensing exemption for location-owned coin machines.

Cloak room speculation as to the reason for Dirksen's bill is that the Republicans want to take credit for any such legislation rather than permit a Democrat to have his name on the law, if passed. Writers and music publishers, through their various trade associations and licensing groups, prefer the Dirksen version since it eliminates any possibility of hassles over whether a juke is or is not owned by an individual or a syndicate operator.

DISK BIZ TAX BITE BIGGEST IN HISTORY

The disk industry shelled out the biggest Federal tax payment in its history last December with $921,360 going into the U. S. Treasury. In 1947, the industry's peak year, the tax bite was only $750,140. Federal tax is 10% of the manufacturers' price to the distributors.

Tax payment for the whole of 1952, however, was $6,912,370 as compared with the 1947 total of $8,189,410.

New Federal Tax Edict Limits Band Split to 30% In Admission Exemptions

Chicago, March 31.

An interpretation of the exemption of admission taxes for charitable affairs, especially for dances, has led to a great deal of confusion among bandleaders, promoters and booking agencies. South Dakota Bureau of Internal Revenue is ruling that where a dance or concert is held, which involves a guarantee and a percentage, that to qualify for exemption of the Federal excise tax, that not more than a 30% slice above the guarantee can be had. Most of the bands play a 60-40 split above the flat fee, although some of the territorial bands take a 50-50 break.

Dakota ruling was in answer to request of a Gettysburg, S.D., firemen's bash with a name orch as the headliner last month. Leader usually gets a 60-40 break, but the tax bureau ruled that more than 30% would be in violation of the directive issued by Robert Spaulding, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, March 4. According to the midwest agency, more than 30% would defeat the purpose of the exemption, which is to raise funds for charitable work. The interpretation claims that the non-exempt person or organization, in this case the orchestra, would be the heaviest gainer

Most of the tax exempt agencies, such as firemen and policemen and

(Continued on page 76)

MOST EFFECTIVE PLUG TECHNIQUE

The indie label surge in the current wax picture is getting plenty of momentum from the exploitation, promotional and occasional financial assists contributed by the major publishing firms. With an increasing number of click shellac breaking for the minor diskeries, the pubs are going all out in working out deals with the indie bosses to get their tunes etched.

The growth of major pubbery concentration on the indies has not taken any of the play away from the major companies, but according to pub thinking today, an alliance with an indie disker is equally necessary. They're hitting the indies with the same frequency as they do the a.&r. boys at the major labels and they've discovered that its easier to get a tune set with the former if promises are made to shell out coin and labor in promoting the disk. In some instances pubs have gone so far as to lay out coin for the cost of the recording session.

The major pubberies promotional efforts generally consist of getting the platters around to the top deejays around the country (a regular part of a major label's operation), and in many cases lining up territorial distributors for the indie operator. The expenditures for such other exploitation items as brochures, flyers, streamers and overall advertising come as high for plugging a tune cut on a small label as it does for a major disking.

The majority of pubs are willing to string along with the indies on this basis because a click indie disk can spark a run on sheet copies as easily as a major label rendition. Pubs also base their indie concentration on the fact that if the disk starts making a little noise in the market the top diskeries generally are forced to cover.

Pubs Checkmate Chess Label With 7½G in Royalties

Harry Fox, as trustee of the Music Publishers Protective Assn., obtained a settlement of $7,500 last week for the infringement actions and claims brought by him on behalf of a number of major publishers against Chess Record Corp. of Chicago for unlicensed recordings. This is substantially in excess of the statutory royalty rate of 2c for each record manufactured under the copyright law.

However, Fox has refused to consider any settlement of the actions likewise instituted by him in Chicago on behalf of a number of publishers against James H. Martin, Inc., because of his desire to obtain a reversal of the decision in the Chicago case of Shapiro-Bernstein vs. Miracle Records. In that case the court held, that as the "production and sale of a phonograph record is fully as much a publication as production and sale of sheet music," the absence of a copyright notice would throw the composition in the public domain. Julian T. Abeles, of Abeles & Bernstein, in association with Arvey, Hodes & Mantynband of Chi-

(Continued on page 80)

Harbach in Hosp

Otto A. Harbach, ASCAP prexy, is currently in Doctors Hospital, N. Y. with a slight respiratory infection.

Fred E. Ahlert, former ASCAP prez and now a member of the board, has been bedded in the same hospital for the past week with the flu.

ASCAP Performance Payoff Puts BMI Longhair Pacts on Ascendancy

Although the new payoff plan of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers has gained virtually solid approval within the pop cleffer ranks, standard or longhair ASCAP composers have been seriously hit economically by the operation of the new system. As a result, Broadcast Music, Inc., has been able to make big inroads recently in corraling top name contemporary longhairs to exclusive writer deals.

ASCAP execs are frankly in a dilemma over how to regain the Society's attraction for the longhairs. The 100% accent on performances under the current distribution system has put all but a few top longhairs in a financial predicament and ASCAP can do nothing about it since it must pay off by a strict machine-counted rating of the plugs.

An effort was made in the payoff plan to rectify the imbalance between the pop and standard performances by weighting the plug values in favor of longer compositions. This, however, has been only a slight palliative since the longhair works still don't garner enough air plugs, even with the weighting system, to mean much in the overall performance picture. Under the old system the longhair composers were favored by the "availability" bracket under which a work's value could be rated by subjective criteria, such as "cultural importance."

BMI, however, is not inhibited in its payoff to the symphonic composers. A private corporation, BMI can make its own deals and in recent months has inked such longhair luminaries as William H. Schuman, Walter Piston and Ulysses Kay. These deals are part of BMI's program to encourage serious music in the U. S. and have contributed to BMI's "prestige" buildup in recent years.

Cahl Exits Disney Music

Phil Cahl exited as head of the New York office of Walt Disney last week after being in that spot for almost a year. Cahl came in after Herb Reis left to head up Frank Loesser's music publishing operation, Frank Music.

Fred Raphael, head of Disney's firm on the Coast, is coming to N.Y. this week to name a replacement.

Vaughn Monroe Quits Band Biz To Do a Single

Vaughn Monroe, who has had the biggest grossing organization in the band biz for the past three years, is giving up his orch to do a single. Monroe has already been set for a two-week stand into the Sahara in Las Vegas, starting June 30 and talks are being held now with Bill Miller, owner of the Riviera, Fort Lee, N. J., for a booking there for Monroe in August. Miller also books the Sahara.

For the past few years, Monroe has grossed consistently over $1,000,000 via his one-niter tours, the "Camel Caravan" air show and his disks. He gave notice to his band last weekend and will fold his band operation early in May. Willard Alexander, who handled the band, will continue to book Monroe as a single.

Monroe will remain as an RCA Victor artist and may continue to be billed as bandleader, but with a studio orch. Similarly, Monroe will stay with the "Camel Caravan" series, using special musicrews for this assignment. Monroe heads for Hollywood May 12 to star in the Republic Pictures production, "The Professor and The Co-Ed."

Monroe organized his band in 1940 and has operated since that time with virtually the same lineup of sidemen. The orch has been consistently active on the one-niter circuits, playing over 200 such dates annually.

Chi's Campbell-Hinge Drops Sheet Jobbing In Copy Sales Slump

Further pointing up the general decline of music copy sales around the country is decision of one of Chicago's top sheet firms, Campbell-Hinge, to drop its jobbing of sheet music. New York pubs were notified of the action, which goes into effect April 20, early this week.

Rising costs and steady sales drop were given as the reasons for closing out its jobbing division. It's understood that such other Chi sheet firms as Carl Fischer and Lyon & Healey will absorb C-H's jobbing activities.

Sheet sales slump has been a growing retailer and publisher headache for the past few years. Disk hits no longer indicate the copy sales potential of the tune and, in many instances, platters which have topped the 250,000 mark have made no dent in the sheet market. The majority of tunes that pace the disk field today, sheet retailers claim, are strictly performance items and are of little value to the sheet buying public.

Hendl Wins Diston Award

Dallas, March 31.

Walter Hendl, conductor of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, is the 1953 winner of the annual Diston Award of Columbia University. The award is $1,000.

Joni James, Rodde Settle Pact Tiff

M-G-M Records' songstress Joni James settled the contract dispute with her personal manager, Leroy Rodde, with the latter relinquishing all managerial rights. In return the thrush will pay Rodde $100,000 over a period of years.

New deal gives Miss James all rights to her royalties from her M-G-M disks, including her first hit, "Why Don't You Believe Me?" Originally, Rodde was to receive all royalties from this side since he made the master independently and sold the master to M-G-M. Rodde, a Chicago appliance dealer, reached the settlement amicably with Miss James.

Harry Meyerson, M-G-M Records artists & repertoire topper, will wing to Chicago Sunday (5) to wax a flock of sides with the warbler. Diskery wants to have a stockpile of Miss James' platters in the can because her lengthy personal appearance booking sked will make it difficult to hold recording dates.

MINEVITCH'S CAPITOL DEAL; BACK TO PARIS

Having set up his harmonica manufacturing plant in Hollywood, which had him tied on the Coast for several months, along with other interests, Borrah Minevitch is slated to sail for Paris April 10 on the Liberte. He makes his home in France.

While on the Coast Minevitch also set a diskery deal with Capitol to release 12 masters he and his Harmonica Rascals had independently recorded at Universal labs some time ago. The first eight sides will be issued as an album in all speeds, with the remaining four to follow as singles.

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By MIKE GROSS

Joni James: "Is It Any Wonder"-"Almost Always" (M-G-M). This is a hit bracket coupling. Thrush is in top piping form on "Wonder," a mellow ballad that projects a romantic mood. "Always" has a catchy Latino beat and a lively lyric to match.

Ames Bros: "Candy Bar Boogie"-"At the End of the Rainbow" (Coral). Ames Bros. buoyant delivery of "Candy Bar Boogie," a bright rhythm novelty should make plenty of noise in the market. Combo slows up on the reverse for an okay workover of a fair ballad.

Richard Hayman Orch: "Ruby"-"Love Mood" (Mercury). Theme music by Heinz Roemheld from the 20th-Fox pic, "Ruby Gentry," is headed for a big payoff via a flock of topnotch disk versions. Richard Hayman's cut has taken an early lead and should lead the pack. His is a lush instrumental treatment. Also clicko are Les Brown's orch workover on Coral and Lew Douglas' orch rendition for M-G-M. The Douglas disk, incidentally, uses the Jack Halloran choir to pipe the Mitchell Parish lyric for top impact. Hayman's slice of "Love Mood" is okay platter fare.

Bob Carroll: "A Little Love"-"Where Did You Go" (Derby). "Love" is a likely successor to Bob Carroll's clicko "Say It With Your Heart." It's packed with a rhymthic beat that should keep the slice moving on all levels. Flip is a slow ballad entry given topnotch shellac production values.

Don Cherry: "If They Should Ask Me"-"All By Myself" (Decca). "Ask Me" has slim chances in current wax competition despite Don Cherry's understanding interpretation. Tune is a moody ballad with too many dull spots to keep it moving. Cherry changes pace on the bottom deck for a brisk workover of the Irving Berlin oldie.

Margaret Whiting-Jimmy Wakely: "Gomen-Nasai"-"I Learned to Love You Too Late" (Capitol). This is a late starter on "Gomen- Nasai" and it's doubtful if it has the power to catch up in the race to the payoff wire. The Margaret Whiting-Jimmy Wakely tandem gives it an okay oriental flavor. Pair goes hillbilly on the bottom deck for better results. It's a cornball's wail of unrequited love grooved the surefire alfalfa way.

Doris Day: "When the Red, Red Robin Comes Bob, Bob, Bobbin' Along"-"Beautiful Music to Love By" (Columbia). Doris Day's rousing rendition of "Red, Red, Robin" should keep this slice jumping on all levels and arouse plenty of interest in the standout oldie. She switches to a plaintive ballad on the flip and gives it a tender workover.

De Marco Sisters: "Boullibase"-"Pretty Baby" (M-G-M). "Boullibase," a jive-grooved novelty gets a jaunty workover via the slick De Marcos' voice blendings. Packs punch for the juke trade. Workover of the oldie on the flip doesn't come off too well.

Sammy Kaye Orch: "I Couldn't Keep From Crying"-"Sweet Sue" (Columbia). "Crying" is an alfalfa-grooved entry and Sammy Kaye plays cornball with it for good effect. The lyric is delivered with proper feeling by the Kaydets. Orch's job on "Sweet Sue," on the bottom side, strays from Kaye's usual arrangement pattern with its hep beat and overall energetic quality.

Irving Fields Trio: "Mr. Piano Player"-"Cuban Carnival" (King). Irving Fields has a standout preem slice for the King label in "Mr. Piano Player." Bright melodic line and catchy lyric are expertly projected via the Fields' honky-tonking. Trio catches the south-of-the-border flavor for a neat rendition of "Cuban Carnival."

Tommy Edwards: "Au Revoir"-"I Lived When I Met You" (M-G-M). The wistful mood of "Au Revoir" is an excellent frame for Tommy Edwards smooth and relaxed vocal style. It's a good spinning bet with breakaway potential. Edwards dittoes on the reverse, another topdrawer ballad.

Mace Barrett: "I Don't Have to Close My Eyes"-"It's the Strangest Feeling" (Coral). Coral's new crooner, Mace Barrett makes an impressive debut with "Close My Eyes." He's of the big-voiced genre and belts it out with lots of impact. Tune's a lilting ballad piece, a perfect match to Barrett's piping attack. Shows up well on the flipside ballad.

Mel Blanc: "Little Red Monkey"-"Tia Juana" (Capitol). "Monkey," which is breaking as a potent instrumental, gets a novelty lyric workover via this Mel Blanc cut. Okay for the jukes. The Harmonicats give it a bright instrumental rendition on the Mercury label. Blanc has a flock of comedic touches in the Latino novelty, "Tia Juana," Billy May orch supports.

Don Cornell: "Many Are the Times"-"There's No Escape" (Coral). "Times" is a charming ballad offering that Don Cornell builds to socko impact via his high-powered piping. "Escape" is a grandiose-styled ballad but with doubtful chances.

Bernice Parks: "Your Game of Let's Pretend"-"Two Kinds of Love" (Mercury). Pair of expertly tailored ballad entries give Bernice Parks a fast start as a Mercury label pactee. Her vibrant wax projection makes each tune a class slice. It's a tossup as to which will nab top spins.

Ann Hathaway: "Supper Time"-"It Goes Like This" (Avalon). Ann Hathaway registers as clicko canary on her Avalon label debut with two standout oldies. She projects as a top purveyor of mood ballads with "Supper Time" and as a brisk rhythm stylist with "It Goes Like This."

Bette McLaurin: "In the Middle of Kiss"-"Can't You See" (Coral). Bette McLaurin shapes up as a potent wax force with this coupling. "Kiss," a big and sentimental ballad, gets the kind of pash workover that wins spins. Same goes for the bottom slice.

LAWRENCE WELK
and his
CHAMPAGNE MUSIC
84th Consecutive Week, Aragon Ballroom, Santa Monica, Calif.
Exclusively for Coral Records
"OH HAPPY DAY" backed by "Your Mother and Mine"

Album Reviews

"Hazel Flagg" (Victor). The Jule Styne-Bob Hilliard score for the Broadway legituner has, with few exceptions, little to offer in the way of standout tune material. At times it's brash and gay but for the most part, the overall impresses as an unimaginative job. The original cast album includes Helen Gallagher, Benay Venuta, John Howard and Jack Whiting. Standout, of course, is "How Do You Speak to an Angel," which Howard delivers in the romantic style of legit crooners. Next best is Whiting's charming rendition of "Every Streets a Boulevard in Old New York." The rest is routine.

"Call Me Madam" (Decca).

(Continued on page 73)

Longhair Maestro Exchange

Dallas, March 31.

Walter Hendl, conductor of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, leaves for New York tomorrow (Wed.) enroute to Sweden where he will conduct the Goteborg Symphony Orchestra.

Sixten Eckerberg, the Goteborg conductor, will be guest conductor of the Dallas Symphony next January.

Longhair Disk Reviews

Elgar: Enigma Variations and Brahms: Haydn Variations (RCA Victor, $5.45). Elgar's charming, piquant variations are cleanly, vigorously and not too sentimentally played by Arturo Toscanini and his NBC Symphony. Reverse has a spacious, colorful performance of Brahms' Haydn variations by Toscy. A colorful coupling.

Mendelssohn: Symphony No. 3 (London, $5.95). "Scotch" Symphony, full of the color and mood of moors and highlands, has a glowing, romantic reading by the London Symphony under Georg Solti.

Rimsky-Korsakov: Snow Maiden and Skazka (M-G-M, $4.85). Continuing its praiseworthy policy of releasing lesser-heard or offbeat works, M-G-M comes up with two fine bits in these Rimsky-Korsakov suites. Pleasant, light old-Russian music.

Nielsen: Symphony No. 6 (Mercury, $5.95). Nielsen's "Sinfonia Semplice," a fine Scandinavian work, alternately witty and brooding, gets an excellent performance by the Danish National Orchestra, under Thomas Jensen, a Nielsen protege.

Beethoven: Concerto No. 3 (Bluebird, $3.10). Fine RCA reprint of a charming work by pianist Benno Moiseiwitsch, assisted by the Philharmonia Orchestra under Malcolm Sargent. Playing is warm, sensitive, maybe a little too sedate. Excellent value.

Strauss: Ein Heldenleben (Mercury, $5.95). Lush performance of the tonepoem, rich in symphonic colors, by the Minneapolis Symphony under Antal Dorati. Rafael Druian is an excellent violin soloist.

Beethoven: Appassionata and Liszt: Concerto No. 1 (RCA Victor, $5.95). Fine playing by Danish pianist Victor Schioler in the Beethoven sonata, and in the Liszt warhorse, assisted in the latter by the Danish National Orchestra under Issay Dobrowen. The Liszt gets a dashing performance, full of technical brilliance. Bron.

Eddie Maxwell collaborated with Ben Oakland in writing the material for Guy Cherney's act at Top's, San Diego.

Best Bets

JONI JAMES ..... IS IT ANY WONDER
(M-G-M) ..... Almost Always
AMES BROS. ..... CANDY BAR BOOGIE
(Coral) ..... At the End of the Rainbow
RICHARD HAYMAN ORCH ..... RUBY
(Mercury) ..... Love Mood

Songs With Largest Radio Audience

The top 30 songs of week (more in case of ties), based on copyrighted Audience Coverage Index & Audience Trend Index. Published by Office of Research, Inc., Dr. John Gray Peatman, Director, Alphabetically listed.

Survey Week of March 20-27, 1953

A Fool Such As I	Robbins-M
April In Portugal	Chappell
Blue Porcelain	Veronique
Bye Bye Blues	Bourne
Doggie In The Window	Santly-J
Don't Let The Stars Get In Your Eyes	Four-Star
Downhearted	Paxton
Even Now	Pickwick
Golden Years—†"Houdini"	Paramount
Gomen Nasai	Disney
Hello Sunshine	Erwin-H
High Noon—†"High Noon"	Feist
Hot Toddy	Coachella
How Do You Speak To An Angel—*"Hazel Flagg"	Chappell
Hush-A-Bye—†"The Jazz Singer"	Remick
I Believe	Cromwell
I Confess	Witmark
I'll Be Hangin' Around	Broadcast
Kaw-Liga	Milene
Moving Away	Bristol
My Jealous Eyes	Famous
No Help Wanted	Acuff-R
Ohio—*"Wonderful Town"	Chappell
Open Up Your Heart	Longridge
Peter Cottontail	Hill-R
Pretend	Brandom
Say It With Your Heart	Feist
Side By Side	Shapiro-B
Song From Moulin Rouge—†"Moulin Rouge"	Broadcast
Tell Me You're Mine	Capri
Till I Waltz Again With You	Village

Second Group

Anywhere I Wander—†"Hans Christian Andersen"	Frank
Blue Gardenia—†"Blue Gardenia"	Harms
Can't I	Harvard
Caravan	American
Don't Let Your Eyes Go Shopping For Your Heart	Porgie
Ecstasy Tango	Jefferson
Have You Heard	Brandom
Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me	Mills
I'm Sitting On Top Of The World	Feist
Jambalaya	Acuff-R
Jumpin' Bean	O'Flynn
Keep It A Secret	Shapiro-B
Lady Of Spain	Fox
Nearness Of You	Famous
Oh Happy Day	BVC
Pour Me A Glass Of Teardrops	Advanced
Say It Isn't So	Berlin
Say Si Si	Marks
Seven Lonely Days	Jefferson
Twice As Much	Porgie
Why Don't You Believe Me	Brandom
Your Cheatin' Heart	Acuff-R

Top 10 Songs On TV

(More in Case of Ties)

Doggie In The Window	Santly-J
Don't Let The Stars Get In Your Eyes	Four-Star
Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me	Mills
How Do You Speak To An Angel	Chappell
Kaw-Liga	Milene
Keep It A Secret	Shapiro-B
Pretend	Brandom
Side By Side	Shapiro-B
Till I Waltz Agin With You	Village
Where Did You Learn To Dance	Feist

Five Top Standards

(More In Case of Ties)

Alexander's Ragtime Band	Berlin
I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now	Marks
Put Your Arms Around Me Honey	Broadway
'SWonderful	Harms
There's No Business Like Show Business	Berlin

† Filmusical. * Legit musical.

VARIETY 10 Best Sellers on Coin-Machines

1. DOGGIE IN THE WINDOW (8)	Patti Page	Mercury
2. TILL I WALTZ AGAIN WITH YOU (13)	Teresa Brewer	Coral
3. TELL ME YOU'RE MINE (11)	Gaylords	Mercury
4. PRETEND (5)	Nat (King) Cole	Capitol
5. DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYES (15)	Perry Como	Victor
6. HAVE YOU HEARD (11)	Joni James	M-G-M
7. SIDE BY SIDE (9)	Kay Starr	Capitol
8. YOUR CHEATIN' HEART (4)	Joni James	M-G-M
9. TELL ME A STORY (2)	F. Laine-J. Boyd	Columbia
10. KEEP IT A SECRET (12)	Jo Stafford	Columbia

Second Group

CARAVAN	Ralph Marterie	Mercury
WHY DON'T YOU BELIEVE ME	Joni James	M-G-M
HOT TODDY	Ralph Flanagan	Victor
SLEEP	Les Paul	Capitol
I BELIEVE	Frankie Laine	Columbia
ANYWHERE I WANDER	Julius LaRosa	Cadence
NO HELP WANTED	Patsy Draper	Mercury
YOUR CHEATIN' HEART	Frankie Laine	Columbia
MY JEALOUS EYES	Patti Page	Mercury
SAY IT WITH YOUR HEART	Bob Carroll	Derby
WHY DON'T YOU BELIEVE ME	Patti Page	Mercury
A FOOL SUCH AS I	Jo Stafford	Columbia
SEVEN LONELY DAYS	Georgia Gibbs	Mercury
TWICE AS MUCH	Mills Bros.	Decca

(Figures in parenthes s indicate number of weeks song l s been in the Top 10)

Welk Band, a Coast Phenom, Grosses $8,000 Weekly Via TV, One-Niters

Hollywood, March 31.

The biggest boost ballroom biz has had hereabouts in a long time is one of the sum totals of the spectacular success of the Lawrence Welk band. Starting with little more than a squeezebox and a smile, Welk dug in here less than two years ago and by now has become almost as much a fixture of the area as the LaBrea Tar Pits. In addition to the squeezebox and the smile, Welk also has parlayed for a two-way payoff a ballroom perch and TV.

Back in April, 1951, Welk's orch rolled in here from a long road trek of one-niters and went into the old Aragon ballroom, Santa Monica, on a four-week ticket at scale. He did well enough to earn a return in August, whereupon his manager, Sam Lutz, went to Klaus Landsberg, major domo of the Paramount-owned TVer, KTLA, and suggested the station try beaming a Welk program right out of the terpalace.

KTLA did so, but only after Lutz agreed to pay the musicians' tele-shot salaries. One free show was enough to convince Landsberg; the next week the station paid. The following week a sponsor was paying. Since that time Welk has telecast weekly from the Aragon over KTLA, commercially. Today he is under contract to KTLA till 1955.

Meanwhile, the success of his 60-minute program on TV has boomed biz at the ballroom. The band plays five nights weekly at the Aragon, and on March 11 started a straight one-year contract which guarantees the orch $4,000 weekly, plus a 50-50 split of all coin taken in at the door in excess of $6,000. Prior to that Welk got a $3,500 guarantee plus the same percentage.

Presently, sponsored by Central Chevrolet Dealers, the crew gets a flat $2,000 weekly from KTLA. During 1952, the band went into percentage at the ballroom every week but three, earning in all $38,000 in that manner.

Additionally, off the popularity built via TV, Welk has become more in demand for one-niters along the Pacific slope—within range of KTLA's beam—than any other orch. With the ballroom dark each Monday and Tuesday, Welk invariably takes Mondays off and one-nites on Tuesdays. For these gigs he gets guarantees of between $1,750 and $2,500 (depending on type of event and distance from L. A.) against 60%. Thus, from all sources, Welk's band now grosses an average of $8,000 weekly. And, his weekly one-niter bookings now extend into October. Although the orch came here under AFM traveling band status, by now the gang has become purely Local 47. There's no doubt about the fact that Welk's is the only local band in the country reaping the kind of coin it does.

First Disclick

Welk recently has had his first big disclick—that Coral cutting of "Oh, Happy Day," with the band's frog-voiced vocalist, Larry Hooper, chirping the choruses. To date more than 400,000 Coral copies have been sold nationally. But before becoming a national seller of note, Welk had been a hefty seller here, also an offshoot facet on heels of his TV popularity.

Coral last year released two Welk albums primarily for Greater L. A. consumption and the stunt paid off. During 1952, Welk also had 30 sides released. None till "Happy Day" was a big hit, but they sold. Batoner gets the regular 5% royalty rate and pays cost of his own recording sessions. Since these sessions average between $1,400 and $1,700 and Welk ended the year in the black, biscuit-wise, he sold appreciable shellac. He also has a Capitol Transcriptions contract.

Avant garde jazz musicians would brand Welk's style as "Mickey Mouse" or ricky-tick, but, like Lombardo, he is now doing concert dates. By mixing foxtrots, waltzes and polkas—pegged off his own accordion lead-ins—Welk keeps his beat schmaltzy and always highly danceable.

The concerts started one night last summer accidentally. On one of his Tuesdays off Welk and the boys went down to Mission Beach ballroom, San Diego, on a $1,500 guarantee against 60% for a dance. He set an alltime record at the spot, snapping a high previously set back during World War II by Tommy Dorsey. The gross that night was $9,860 and the throng was so great, no one could dance. Consequently, Welk told 'em to stand still and he put on a four-hour concert. It went over. Now he plays as many concerts as one-nite dance dates. The band simply melds together a lot of routines previously done on telecasts.

In June Welk will attempt his biggest coup, a concert in Hollywood Bowl. It will be the first time an accordion-paced assemblage ever has put on a bash up on that slope under the Pepper trees.

Castro Exits Peer After 21-Year Tie

Fernando Castro, who had been associated with Peer International's Latino division for the past 21 years, exited the firm last week. Pubbery's Latin-American division will continue to be headed up by Provie Garcia with no replacement for the Castro vacancy.

In other pubbery moves last week Bobby Kornheiser exited Paramount Music and Benny Ross left Goday Music.

Columbus Competish For Top Platter Names

Columbus, March 31.

Palm Garden's monopoly on record nanies here is being challenged by a new local entry, the Riviera.

Riviera is bringing in Don Cornell, April 20, for a frame, as the first of the string of disk headliners.

RED BUTTONS TV TUNES ON COL DISK

Red Buttons, CBS-TV comic, is making his debut on wax via two sides for Columbia Records. The Buttons' disk will comprise two tunes which he has done repeatedly on his video show with good audience reaction. Numbers are "Strange Things Are Happening" and "The Ho-Ho Song," both written by Buttons with Elliot Lawrence, and Allen Walker collabbing on "Strange Things" and Joe Darion and Jack Wolf on "Ho-Ho."

Tunes were etched after a recent Buttons TV stanza with Mitch Miller, Col artists & repertoire chief, inviting several hundred kids from the audience to the recording session to supply the background color.

Tony Donald to Annpls.

Tony Donald has switched his disk jockeying activity from WQAM, Miami, to WNAV, Annapolis, Md.

Deejay sold his Miami home, moving lock, stock and barrel to new location.

BIEM Deal in Works, To Open Way For U. S. Disking of French Moderns

Settling a complex international copyright hassle, the major disk companies are on the verge of wrapping up a deal with the French publishers' collection agency, BIEM (Bureau International de L'Edition Mechanique). Projected agreement would once again permit the majors to release new works by modern French composers operating through the BIEM setup. Heretofore unrecorded works by such noted longhairs as Ravel, Puccini and Debussy have not been etched in the U.S. during the past two years due to the absence of a BIEM deal.

It's understood that the new pact settles the question of royalty payments on pre-1909, the date of the U.S. Copyright Act, compositions on a compromise basis. BIEM had been holding out for royalties on such works while the U.S. disk companies originally contended that they would pay only on works written after the date on which the U.S. made copyright treaties with separate foreign countries. In all cases, these treaties were made several years after 1909.

The new settlement would establish 1909 as the starting date for royalty payments with BIEM waiving the pre-1909 claims and the U.S. diskeries waiving the intervening years between 1909 and the treaty dates. Reason for BIEM's claim on pre-1909 works is that under European copyright acts, the copyright term runs for 50 years after the composers' death. The duration of the U.S. copyright is for two terms of 28 years apiece.

BIEM and RCA Victor are currently in the process of finalizing the royalty deal. Future payments will be based reportedly on 1c for every four minutes of music. The same pact will be available to other U.S. diskeries.

Lion Label Expands

Lion Records, M-G-M Records lowprice long-play platter label, is expanding its repertoire to include sambos, mambos, tangos, waltzes and square dances in addition to the previous "Design for Dancing" pops and standards.

Already set for release are the mambo package, waxed by Ramon Argueso's orch and the square dance album, etched by Billy Barrett and his Hot Timers. An "All Time Favories" package was cut by Teddy Powell's orch.

Merc Puts 'Doggie' Into Kidisk Field

Mercury Records' hottest selling biscuit, Patti Page's "Doggie in the Window," was added to the company's kidisk line last week. Move marks the first time diskery has culled a top pop platter for the moppet trade. "Doggie" will be backed on the kidisk by Miss Page's etching of "I Wanna Be a Cowboy's Sweetheart."

Meantime, the pop cut of "Doggie" has topped the 1,000,000 mark.

Hub Music Festival Set for May 1 With Sullivan as Emcee

Boston, March 31.

The second annual Music Festival, sponsored by the Boston Post, has been set for May 1, at the Boston Garden, with indications that this year's edition will duplicate the SRO biz racked up at initialer, when more than 16,000 fans turned out. Proceeds go to swell coffers of various charitable organizations hereabouts.

Slated to handle the emcee chores is columnist Ed Sullivan with composer Leroy Anderson and vocalists Bob Eberle and Cindy Lord among the pro talent inked to appear. Warren Freeman, producer of the festival, is currently negotiating with other showbiz names. In addition to professional talent, layout will consist of a 450-piece band comprised of local high school musicos, under the baton of composer-bandleader Anderson, the 100-man Naval Aviation Choir from Pensacola, and finale of vocalist auditions currently underway at nine New England radio stations.

Affair is getting the works, publicity-wise, under the supervision of Mark Finley, newly appointed tubthumper for the daily.

Col's Judy Garland

Pic warbler Judy Garland has been inked to a longterm pact by Columbia Records. Col will wax Miss Garland for its album and single release schedule. It's expected that one of the first albums in the Miss Garland-Col alliance will be "A Star Is Born," filmusical she's making for Warner Bros. with a score by Harold Arlen and Ira Gershwin.

Mitch Miller, Col's artist & repertoire topper, and Paul Weston, diskery's Coast musical director, are skedded to wax the thrush on several single sides on the Coast during the latter part of the week.

RCA Victor and Capitol had been dickering for Miss Garland over the past 18 months but no deals were ever finalized. Thrush previously had waxed for Decca and M-G-M, latter via soundtrack platters from Metro filmusicals.

Singer Russ Landi, cousin of the late Russ Colombo, has been inked by Segar Records, N.Y. indie.

VARIETY Scoreboard OF TOP TALENT AND TUNES

Compiled from Statistical Reports of Distribution Encompassing the Three Major Outlets

Coin Machines Retail Disks Retail Sheet Music

as Published in the Current Issue

NOTE: The current comparative sales strength of the Artists and Tunes listed hereunder is arrived at under a statistical system comprising each of the three major sales outlets enumerated above. These findings are correlated with data from wider sources, which are exclusive with VARIETY. The positions resulting from these findings denote the OVERALL IMPACT developed from the ratio of points scored: two ways in the case of talent (disks, coin machines), and three ways in the case of tunes (disks, coin machines, sheet music).

TALENT

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	ARTIST AND LABEL	TUNE
1	1	PATTI PAGE (Mercury)	Doggie in the Window
2	2	TERESA BREWER (Coral)	Till I Waltz Again
3	4	JONI JAMES (MGM)	Have You Heard / Your Cheatin' Heart
4	5	GAYLORDS (Mercury)	Tell Me You're Mine
5	7	FRANKIE LAINE (Columbia)	I Believe / Your Cheatin' Heart
6	9	NAT (KING) COLE (Capitol)	Pretend
7	3	PERRY COMO (Victor)	Don't Let the Stars / Wild Horses
8	8	F. LAINE-J. BOYD (Columbia)	Tell Me a Story
9	6	KAY STARR (Capitol)	Side by Side
10	..	RALPH FLANAGAN (Victor)	Hot Toddy

TUNES

(*ASCAP. †BMI)

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	TUNE	PUBLISHER
1	1	*DOGGIE IN THE WINDOW	Santly-Joy
2	2	†TILL I WALTZ AGAIN	Village
3	7	*PRETEND	Brandom
4	8	*I BELIEVE	Cromwell
5	4	†TELL ME YOU'RE MINE	Capri
6	3	†DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYES	Four Star
7	5	*KEEP IT A SECRET	Shapiro-B
8	6	*SIDE BY SIDE	Shapiro-B
9	10	†TELL ME A STORY	Montclare
10	9	†YOUR CHEATIN' HEART	Acuff-R

Top Record Talent and Tunes

VARIETY DISK JOCKEY POLL

This compilation is designed to indicate those records rising in popularity as well as those on top. Ratings are computed on the basis of 10 points for a No. 1 mention. 9 for a No. 2 and so on down to one point. Cities and jockeys will vary week to week to present a comprehensive picture of all sectors of the country regionally.

 ASCAP. † BMI.*

Pos. this wk.	Pos. last wk.	No. weeks in 'Top'	Artist	Label	Song	EAST: New York — Martin Block—WNEW	EAST: New York — Bill Silbert—WMGM	EAST: Ithaca — Jack Deal—WHCW	EAST: Rochester — Joe Deane—WHEC	EAST: Syracuse — Ed Murphy—WSYR	EAST: Baltimore — Al Ross—WEAL	EAST: Worc'ster — Dick Smith—WORC	EAST: Hartford — Ross Miller—WTIC	EAST: Pitts'b'gh — Sid Dickler—WEDO	SOUTH: Atlanta — Bob Watson—WSB	SOUTH: Savan'h — Stan Friedman—WTOC	SOUTH: St. P't'b'g — Bill Wright—WPIN	SOUTH: Richmond — Ray Schreiner—WRNL	SOUTH: Gonzales — David Walshak—KCTI	SOUTH: L'ville — John Gale—WAVE	MIDWEST: Cleve — Tom Edwards—WERE	MIDWEST: Chi. — Bill Evans—WGN	MIDWEST: Omaha — Sandy Jackson—KOWH	MIDWEST: Cincy — Rex Dale—WCKY	MIDWEST: St. L. — Chuck Norman—WIL	MIDWEST: K.C. — "Oil" Wells—WHB	MIDWEST: Cincy — Will Lenay—WCPO	MIDWEST: Mpls. — Jack Thayer—WTCN	FAR WEST: Long B'ch — Buddy Beason—KFOX	FAR WEST: Denver — Ray Perkins—KFEL	FAR WEST: Hollywood — Bill Anson—KFWB	FAR WEST: San Fr. — Wally Nelsgog—KESC	FAR WEST: Albuq'que — Jerry Nesler—KGGM	FAR WEST: Hollywood — Ira Cook—KECA-KMPC	FAR WEST: Phoenix — Frank Pollack—KOOL	TOTAL POINTS
1	8	8	Nat (King) Cole	Capitol	*Pretend	2	..	3	6	1	4	1	..	3	..	7	..	..	6	..	..	..	3	5	3	4	..	..	..	3	..	..	3	3	1	129
2	1	9	Patti Page	Mercury	*Doggie in the Window	1	..	5	5	2	1	6	1	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	2	1	..	1	..	1	8	1	5	..	10	..	..	123
3	3	9	Kay Starr	Capitol	*Side by Side	4	..	7	..	..	7	2	..	..	3	2	10	1	..	..	..	..	7	..	2	9	1	..	1	8	6	..	8	..	7	108
4	2	18	Teresa Brewer	Coral	†Till I Waltz Again	3	..	2	..	..	2	10	..	7	..	8	4	2	2	..	..	..	8	7	..	2	..	..	..	2	..	1	..	..	..	94
5	6	8	Joni James	M-G-M	†Your Cheatin' Heart	7	..	..	9	..	5	9	4	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	5	4	4	6	2	5	3	7	3	..	..	..	..	86
6	7	6	Frankie Laine	Columbia	*I Believe	..	8	..	1	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	1	3	5	9	4	..	..	4	..	7	4	71
7	10	16	Gaylords	Mercury	†Tell Me You're Mine	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	3	8	7	..	6	..	..	..	1	4	..	57
8	4	9	Perry Como	Victor	*Wild Horses	..	..	..	3	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	9	4	6	..	5	..	52
9	12	3	F. Laine-J. Boyd	Columbia	†Tell Me a Story	6	..	..	..	..	..	4	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	1	..	10	8	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	44
10	5	17	Karen Chandler	Coral	*Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me	..	..	6	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	2	5	..	..	..	..	..	33
11	15	2	Percy Faith	Columbia	†Song From Moulin Rouge	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	3	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	32
12	19	4	Ralph Marterie	Mercury	*Caravan	..	6	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	4	9	9	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	31
13	15	17	Perry Como	Victor	†Don't Let the Stars	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	6	..	..	9	..	29
14	9	12	Ralph Flanagan	Victor	*Hot Toddy	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	6	9	..	..	5	..	..	..	2	..	..	28
15	19	10	Eddie Fisher	Victor	*Downhearted	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	9	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	7	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	27
16A	19	8	Julius LaRosa	Cadence	*Anywhere I Wander	..	..	8	..	..	9	7	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	26
16B	26	8	Patti Page	Mercury	*My Jealous Eyes	9	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	3	..	..	..	26
18	..	1	Freddy Martin	Victor	*April in Portugal	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	25
19A	15	4	Mills Bros.	Decca	†Twice As Much	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	5	..	8	10	23
19B	..	2	Nat (King) Cole	Capitol	†Can't I	..	1	9	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	23
19C	36	2	Hugo Winterhalter	Victor	*Magic Touch	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	23
22	18	9	Eddie Fisher	Victor	*How Do You Speak	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	22
23A	..	1	Johnnie Ray	Columbia	*Somebody Stole My Gal	..	5	..	8	..	..	8	9	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	21
23B	32	12	Tony Bennett	Columbia	*Congratulations to Someone	..	..	10	..	5	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	21
25	26	13	Joni James	M-G-M	*Have You Heard	..	..	..	..	3	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	17
26A	36	2	Paul-Ford	Capitol	*Sitting on Top of World	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	16
26B	..	2	Eddy Howard	Mercury	*Gomen-Nasai	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	6	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	16
28	25	3	Russ Morgan	Decca	†I'll Be Hangin' Around	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	15
29A	44	4	Richard Bowers	Columbia	*Gomen-Nasai	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	14
29B	51	6	Rusty Draper	Mercury	†No Help Wanted	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	14
31	..	1	Stan Kenton	Capitol	*Hush-A-Bye	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	12
32A	..	1	Ray Anthony	Capitol	*Wild Horses	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	11
32B	..	2	June Christy	Capitol	†Heart Belongs to Only You	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	11
34A	44	11	Bob Carroll	Derby	*Say It With Your Heart	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
34B	23	10	Artie Wayne	Mercury-Kem	†Rachel	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
34C	..	1	Crickets	M-G-M	†You're Mine	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	10
34D	..	4	Frankie Laine	Columbia	*Tonight You Belong to Me	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
34E	34	2	Gordon MacRae	Capitol	*Congratulations to Someone	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	10
34F	..	1	Edmundo Ros	London	*Ecstasy Tango	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
40A	..	1	Percy Faith	Columbia	*Swedish Rhapsody	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9
40B	30	7	Jo Stafford	Columbia	*A Fool Such As I	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	9
40C	..	1	Bob Carroll	Derby	†A Little Love	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9
40D	26	9	Mindy Carson	Columbia	†Tell Me You're Mine	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	9
40E	..	2	Jackie Gleason Orch	Capitol	†Melancholy Serenade	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	9
45A	..	1	Teresa Brewer	Coral	*Dancin' With Someone	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8
45B	..	2	Lu Ann Simms	Columbia	†Moving Away	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	8
47A	47	3	Bing Crosby	Decca	†Hush-A-Bye	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7
47B	..	1	Hugo Winterhalter	Victor	*Will O' Wisp Romance	..	7	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7
49	..	25	Mills Bros.	Decca	†Glow Worm	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6
50	14	5	Georgia Gibbs	Mercury	*Seven Lonely Days	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4
51	..	2	Florian ZaBach	Decca	*Red Canary	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2

(Copyright Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

ALL SOLD OUT!

We wish to thank all RCA Victor record dealers for their enthusiastic reception of our special limited edition of Beethoven's Nine Symphonies, as interpreted by Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony Orchestra. The edition was oversubscribed even before the recordings were pressed, thanks to your interest. We regret that no further pressings of this history-making album are available.

DINAH SHORE

IS SWEETER THAN EVER WITH

sweet thing

and

why come crying to me

20/47—5247

This Week's BEST SELLING RCA Victor Records

POPULAR	78 rpm/45 rpm	Playing Time
HOT TODDY/SERENADE Ralph Flanagan	#20/47—5095	2:22/3:00
WILD HORSES/I CONFESS Perry Como	#20/47—5152	2:45/3:05
HOW DO YOU SPEAK TO AN ANGEL/DOWNHEARTED Eddie Fisher	#20/47—5137	2:22/2:24
DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYES/LIES Perry Como	#20/47—5064	2:37/2:30
APRIL IN PORTUGAL/PENNY WHISTLE BLUES Freddy Martin	#20/47—5052	3:15/2:25
I FEEL LIKE I'M GONNA LIVE FOREVER/HOW COULD YOU Sunny Gale	#20/47—5216	2:30/2:45
THE MAGIC TOUCH/WILL-O'-THE-WISP ROMANCE Hugo Winterhalter	#20/47—5209	2:40/2:28
LAST STOP/I'M WITH YOU Dorothy Loudon	#20/47—5238	2:38/2:30
ECSTACY TANGO/WAGGASHOE The Three Suns	#20/47—5185	2:30/2:30
TRAIN, TRAIN, TRAIN/I CAN'T GET STARTED Buddy Morrow	#20/47—5212	2:58/2:58
NOW THAT I'M IN LOVE/YANKEE DOODLETOWN Sauter-Finegan Orchestra	#20/47—5248	2:35/2:28
PUT THAT SAWDUST BACK ON THE FLOOR/THE BLUE SCARE CROW Allan Small	#20/47—5198	2:20/2:35
A-L-B-U-Q-U-E-R-Q-U-E/MOON Ralph Flanagan	#20/47—5237	2:56/3:02
BLUE VIOLINS/FANDANGO Hugo Winterhalter	#20/47—4997	2:56/3:28
GOMEN NASA! (Forgive Me)/SPRINGFIELD MOUNTAIN Harry Belafonte	#20/47—5210	2:20/2:29
COUNTRY—WESTERN
MOONLIGHT & ROSES/THE MISSOURI WALTZ Eddy Arnold	#20/47—5192	2:25/3:05
DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYEBALLS/UNHAPPY DAY Homer and Jethro	#20/47—5214	2:20/2:32
YOU ALWAYS HURT THE ONE YOU LOVE/I'M GONNA LOCK MY HEART Eddy Arnold	#20/47—5193	2:38/2:25
RHYTHM & BLUES
I WANNA KNOW/LAUGHING BLUES The Du Droppers	#20/47—5229	2:15/2:48
SHE'S DYNAMITE/I'M GONNA TELL EVERYBODY Piano Red	#20/47—5224	2:31/2:25
AND THE BULL WALKED AROUND, OLAY/MARGIE Les Harris	#20/47—5132	3:01/2:16

RCA VICTOR
FIRST IN RECORDED MUSIC

RCA ®
"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"

TIPS TO DEEJAYS:
THESE ARE THE HITS THAT MAKE A GOOD PROGRAM GREAT!

Connelly Inks Richmond, BMI To O'seas Deals

Reg Connelly (Campbell-Connelly, Dash-Connelly, etc.) returned to London on the Queen Mary over the weekend with two more deals under contract, on top of the reciprocal international music publishing setup previously reported with Jean and Julian Aberbach. The new deals embrace Howard Richmond's music firms (Cromwell, Hollis, Ludlow, Folkways, Melody Trails, Essex and Dartmouth Music Corps.), for straight representation in Britain and on the Continent, a la Connelly's hookup with Santly-Joy; and a hookup with Broadcast Music, Inc.

The BMI deal gives Connelly "Song from the Moulin Rouge," the theme by George Auric which BMI's music firm tied up worldwide and which Percy Faith waxed for Columbia, Montovani for London, etc. Reciprocally, Connelly set up Canford Music as the British outlet for BMI copyrights, a coinage that stems from the famed Canford Cliffs, near Bournemouth, England, where Connelly has his summer home.

The Howard Richmond music deals are for two years. Heretofore Leeds Music, Ltd., the British subsid of Lou Levy's American firm, handled most of Richmond songs on a separate deal.

Incidentally, Bernie Miller (& Miller), who died suddenly the morning of Connelly's return to England, handled the music publisher's new deals, probably his last legal chores. (Details of the w.k. music attorney's death in this issue.) The Aberbach freres' sundry firms (Hill & Range, etc.) will be handled by Aberbach Music Co., Ltd., in England and, reciprocally, Connelly, Inc., will be the U.S. affiliate for the brothers.

In the main, Connelly has clicked with the Santly-Joy catalog, notably the Bob Merrill songs. Merrill currently has the No. 1 and No. 2 songs in England, "Doggie In the Window" (Patti Page) and "She Wears Red Feathers" (Guy Mitchell).

"They announce Merrill on the BBC," says Connelly, "with the same importance as Irving Berlin and Cole Porter. And no wonder, when you consider that he has had 12 hits in a row in the last two years, some of them even bigger with us in England than at home." Connelly cites "Walking to Missouri," "Feet Up (Pat Him on the Po-Po)," "Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania," "Belle, Belle, My Liberty Belle," "There's Always Room at My House" (which stayed on top for 10 weeks), and "We Won't Live In A Castle" (these are a couple, says the London music man, which are bigger abroad than in the U.S.), "Truly Truly Fair" and "A Beggar In Love."

These tunes have been dominantly disked by Mitchell and Mitch Miller on Columbia, and Mitchell's opening at the London Palladium June 8 is figured to ride the crest of the big BBC buildup which has been plugging his platters. Mitchell comes in directly after the coronation; Danny Thomas precedes him and Martin & Lewis follow thereafter. Mitchell, incidentally, is set for his second picture at Paramount as co-star with Rosemary Clooney in "Three Sisters from Seattle."

Burke Forms Hosp. Fund In Memory of His Son

Hollywood, March 31.

Sonny Burke, Decca Records' Coast artist & repertoire head, has set up a Michael Burke Fund in memory of his two-and-a-half year old son, who died Sunday (29) after having been in a coma for 10 days. Child had gone into the St. Johns' hospital, Santa Monica, for an operation March 19 and while undergoing surgery his heart had stopped beating for approximately eight minutes, after which time the surgeon managed to restore the heart activity.

Fund, being supervised by Burke's assistant, Tom Mack, is for the purchase of cardioscopes for hospital use.

BILLY ECKSTINE

Sings

COQUETTE | A FOOL IN LOVE

MGM 11439 78 RPM
K 11439 45 RPM

M-G-M RECORDS

THE GREATEST NAME IN ENTERTAINMENT

701 SEVENTH AVE NEW YORK 36, N. Y.

Disk Companies' Best Sellers

CAPITOL — ARTIST

1. I'M SITTING ON TOP OF THE WORLD — L. Paul-M. Ford
   SLEEP
2. BLUE GARDENIA — Nat (King) Cole
   CAN'T I
3. SIDE BY SIDE — Kay Starr
   NOAH
4. PRETEND — Nat (King) Cole
   DON'T LET EYES SHOP FOR HEART
5. YES SIR, THAT'S MY BABY — Hari Kari
   YOKAHAMA MAMA

COLUMBIA

1. SOMEBODY STOLE MY GAL — Johnnie Ray
   GLAD RAG DOLL
2. I BELIEVE — Frankie Laine
   YOUR CHEATIN' HEART
3. TELL ME A STORY — F. Laine-J. Boyd
   LITTLE BOY AND OLD MAN
4. SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE — Percy Faith
   SWEDISH RHAPSODY
5. I'M THE KING OF BROKEN HEARTS — Tony Bennett
   NO ONE WILL EVER KNOW

CORAL

1. DANCIN' WITH SOMEONE — Teresa Brewer
   BREAKIN' IN THE BLUES
2. GOODBYE CHARLIE, GOODBYE — Karen Chandler
   I'D LOVE TO FALL ASLEEP
3. CANDY BAR BOOGIE — Ames Bros.
   AT THE END OF THE RAINBOW
4. THERE'S NO ESCAPE — Don Cornell
   MANY OF THE TIMES
5. TILL I WALTZ AGAIN WITH YOU — Teresa Brewer
   HELLO BLUE BIRD

DECCA

1. YOU CAN BE IN LOVE — Hamish Menzies
   LESS THAN TOMORROW
2. TWICE AS MUCH — Mills Bros.
   SOMEONE TO CARE FOR
3. YOU FOOLED ME — Four Aces
   IF YOU TAKE MY HEART AWAY
4. KAW-LIGA — Dolores Gray
   MY HEART IS A KINGDOM
5. YOUR CHEATIN' HEART — Louis Armstrong
   CONGRATULATIONS TO SOMEONE

MERCURY

1. DOGGIE IN THE WINDOW — Patti Page
   MY JEALOUS EYES
2. CARAVAN — Ralph Marterie
   WHILE YOU DREAM
3. SEVEN LONELY DAYS — Georgia Gibbs
   IF YOU TAKE MY HEART
4. NO HELP WANTED — Rusty Draper
   TEXARKANA BABY
5. RUBY — Richard Hayman
   LOVE MOOD

M-G-M

1. KAW-LIGA — Hank Williams
   YOUR CHEATIN' HEART
2. COQUETTE — Billy Eckstine
   A FOOL IN LOVE
3. ANNA — Silvano Mangano
   I LOVED YOU
4. YOUR CHEATIN' HEART — Joni James
   I'LL BE WAITING FOR YOU
5. HAVE YOU HEARD — Joni James
   WISHING RING

RCA VICTOR

1. HOT TODDY — Ralph Flanagan
   SERENADE
2. WILD HORSES — Perry Como
   I CONFESS
3. HOW DO YOU SPEAK TO AN ANGEL — Eddie Fisher
   DOWNHEARTED
4. DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYES — Perry Como
   LIES
5. APRIL IN PORTUGAL — Freddy Martin
   PENNY WHISTLE BLUES

Federal Tax

Continued from page 71

some Armed Forces group, are asking that bookers only set orchestras at a flat rate. In other cases the agencies are limiting the percentage deals.

The edict also states that tax exemptions would not be granted museums, art galleries, YMCAs or similar groups such as Campfire Girls, Boy Scouts, 4-H Clubs, all which fall in the educational field, but only the broadest sense. While colleges and schools are ordinarily exempt, most of these buy their entertainment at flat guarantees, using bands, for example, between open one-nighters or locations.

Among the booking offices, it is held that the only move that can be made is to raise the basic guarantee, taking little or no percentage deals. This would hurt the organizations if weather or any other circumstances cut into attendance at the fair. In smaller towns, promoters would rather work a split deal, which takes them off the hook if any thing happens.

In another communication the commissioner emphasized that while admissions to agricultural fairs are tax free, events within the grounds such as vaude shows and horse races which are privately promoted are not.

Brunswick Cuffoing N.Y. Jazz Concert For Atmosphere in Diskings

The Brunswick label, a Coral-Decca Records subsid, will stage a cuffo jazz concert at Pythian Temple, N. Y., April 4 to get a "live" concert atmosphere for a recording session featuring a couple of all-star jazz combos. Brunswick previously cut a similar set, "Jazztime, U.S.A.," under the same circumstances. Upcoming album will showcase Buddy Rich, Terry Gibbs, Georgie Auld and Neal Hefti, among others.

Brunswick, meantime, has inked the Do-Re-Mi trio to a term pact. Vocal combo clicked several years ago on the indie Commodore label with "Wrapped Up in a Dream."

Brunswick also signed jazz clarinetist Tony Scott as a maestro-instrumentalist. He'll also do some work for the Coral label. Scott arrived back in New York early this week after playing a week's engagement at the Blue Note, Philadelphia.

JONES PULLS RECORD CROWD TO MPLS. SHOW

Minneapolis, March 31.

With Spike Jones and his band as the magnet, annual Northwest Builders Show set a new all-time attendance record, drawing 117,180 paid admissions for the nine days, or an average of more than 13,000 daily. Total compares to 76,540 for last year, a gain of 40,630.

Previous high was in 1949 when, with the Ralph Edwards show, the aggregate attendance hit 112,150.

Jack Mills Launches 3 European Subsids

Jack Mills, Mills Music prexy, launched deals for setting up Mills subsids in three European countries during his recent trek abroad. Negotiations are currently under way for the finalization of plans to form Mills outlets in Germany, France and Italy. The firm already is repped in England, Canada and Belgium.

In addition to kicking off deals for new firms, Mills picked up several foreign copyrights for publication in the U. S. First to be released here will be "Gypsy Legend," a semi-classical instrumental penned by Mantovani. Composition was acquired from Lawrence Wright, British music pub.

Iverson Named Peer U.P.

Bob Iverson, business manager of Peer International and Southern Music, has been upped to veepee by firms' topper Ralph S. Peer. In addition to his business managing chores, Iverson will continue to handle the foreign copyrights division.

Meantime, Irving Deutch, firms' general manager, returned to his New York desk last week after Coast huddles with Peer.

FOR MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAMMING!

MY MOTHER'S EYES

LEO FEIST, INC.

DECCA RECORDS

America's Fastest Selling Records!

DON'T MISS

THE THRILL OF YOUR KISS

A LOVELY BALLAD

DYNAMIC Music Co.

1143 West 17th Street
Chicago 8, Ill.
CAnal 6-2782

RCA VICTOR makes April "Movie Month" with Four New Albums from Hollywood's Biggest Hits

TONIGHT WE SING: Thrilling musical episodes from the original sound track of the new 20th Century-Fox film. With Ezio Pinza, Roberta Peters and Jan Peerce. "45" $3.80, 33⅓ $4.45

PETER PAN: Songs and sound effects as you heard them on the screen in the Disney production. Original cast with Bobby Driscoll as Peter Pan and Kathryn Beaumont as Wendy. "45" $2.95, 78 $2.95

THE JAZZ SINGER: Danny Thomas sings old songs and new from the score of Warner Brothers' 1953 version of the history-making musical. "45 EP" (2 records) $2.80, 33⅓ $3.00

THE DESERT SONG: Kathryn Grayson—co-star of the Warner Brothers film—and Tony Martin singing Sigmund Romberg's glorious melodies. "45 EP" (2 records) $2.80, 33⅓ $3.00

From top Hollywood musicals of 1953! All the songs people will be hearing... singing... humming... and asking for!

These widely publicized hit movies will deliver a ready-made record market right to your door. So stand by for lots of requests for these four sparkling RCA Victor albums from Hollywood's biggest hits.

Prices suggested list. Add Federal Excise Tax and local tax.

Special promotional material which "does the selling for you" is available from your RCA Victor distributor. Ask him about it.

RCA VICTOR

RCA to Gift Library Of Congress With Rare Rachmaninoff Disks

Washington, March 31.

RCA Victor will present a series of rare recordings by the late Serge Rachmaninoff to the Library of Congress tomorrow (Wed.) as part of the 10th anni commemoration of the late composer-pianist's death. Disks will include several made in the pre-electric recording era.

Mrs. Sophia W. R. Coors, of Washington, granddaughter of the musician, will be on hand for the ceremonies. Luther Evans, Librarian of Congress, is accepting the collection from Victor and they will become part of the Rachmaninoff's archives, including letters, original musical scores and other material presented to the Library by Rachmaninoff's family. Born in Russia, Rachmaninoff later fled that country and became a U.S. citizen.

MENZIES' DECCA CLICK CUES MAJOR BUILDUP

Hamish Menzies, 28-year-old Scotsman who came to the U. S. a year ago, is currently the latest new voice to forge ahead in the male vocalist sweepstakes. His initial disk for Decca, released last month, is now the company's best-seller and Decca is priming the singer for a major promotional buildup as a result of the initial reaction. Menzies is also a composer, having written his first Decca-sliced tunes, "You Can Be In Love" and "Less Than Tomorrow."

Menzies was spotted by Decca while working recently in a Cleveland nitery. In England, Menzies was vocalist with the Ted Heath and Geraldo orchs and wrote the music for one of the London Palladium revues. He also ran a nitery, Le Bluebird, in Paris shortly before coming to the U. S.

Skylar, Ackers Team For Own Pub House

Joining the growing roster of songwriters who are opening their own publishing firms, cleffer Sunny Skylar has formed Lynwood Music in partnership with Andrew Ackers, piano accompanist for Jane Froman.

Duo decided to organize their own company after placing a couple of their own compositions directly with the major disk companies.

SCOTT, COLLINS LAUNCH NEW AUDIVOX LABEL

Raymond Scott, maestro on the TV "Hit Parade" show, and his wife, Dorothy Collins, songstress on that show, have embarked on an Indie disk venture with the formation last week of Audivox Records. Leonard Wolf, formerly with Decca Records' sales and promotion department, is also partnered in the company. Miss Collins had been under contract to Decca, but a release from her pact was amicably negotiated.

The husband and wife team currently comprise the label's talent lineup. Wolf will handle the administrative, sales and promotional details. Setup marks Scott's second indie operation. He previously owned Master Records via which he released several sets of his own instrumentals.

Mills' Score From Off-B'way Musical

Mills Music has acquired the score to the new legit musical, "Surprise Package," which is being preemed by Originals Only, an off-Broadway group in Greewich Village, Friday (3). Score was penned by Fran Ziffer, Horty Belson and Hardy Weider. The book was written by Tom Hill.

Team's previous musical, "Dakota," was picked up by Mills a couple of years ago.

Jocks, Jukes & Disks

Continued from page 72

Soundtrack album of the 20th-Fox pic with Ethel Merman, Donald O'Connor, George Sanders and Carole Richards (who piped the tunes for Vera-Ellen) is sock all the way. Miss Merman and company rip through 11 Irving Berlin tunes (only the oldie, "International Rag" wasn't in the original Broadway production) with a captivating exuberance and drive. La Merman wins with "The Hostess With Mostes' on the Ball," "International Rag," "The Best Thing for You" and "Call Me Madam." O'Connor impresses as a good shellac bet with his piping of "What Chance Have I With Love" and the duet with Miss Richards on "It's a Lovely Day Today." Sanders is big-voiced and romantic on "Marrying for Love." "You're Just in Love," duet between Miss Merman and O'Connor doesn't come off too well but it's still a Berlin standout. Orch and chorus are directed by Alfred Newman.

RETAIL DISK BEST SELLERS

VARIETY — Survey of retail disk best sellers based on reports obtained from leading stores in 9 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(Davega Stores)	Philadelphia—(A. Williams Co.)	Chicago—(Hudson Ross)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	St. Louis—(Ludwig Music House)	Indianapolis—(Pearson's)	Kansas City—(Jenkins Music)	Minneapolis—(Don Leary)	Seattle—(Sherman-Clay)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	PATTI PAGE (Mercury) "Doggie in the Window"	1	1	1	8	1	..	1	1	1	73
2	3	FRANKIE LAINE (Columbia) "I Believe"	6	9	..	1	2	4	2	3	..	50
3	2	TERESA BREWER (Coral) "Till I Waltz Again With You"	2	4	5	..	6	3	5	..	3	49
4	6	GAYLORDS (Mercury) "Tell Me You're Mine"	10	2	..	..	..	..	3	6	2	32
5A	8	NAT (KING) COLE (Capitol) "Pretend"	9	..	..	..	5	2	4	..	4	31
5B	..	F. LAINE-J. BOYD (Columbia) "Tell Me a Story"	4	10	3	5	..	..	..	2	..	31
7	7	JONI JAMES (M-G-M) "Your Cheatin' Heart"	8	5	..	..	4	7	6	7	..	29
8	11	RALPH FLANAGAN (Victor) "Hot Toddy"	..	..	..	..	3	1	..	..	9	20
9	4	PERRY COMO (Victor) "Don't Let Stars in Your Eyes"	7	6	..	..	10	..	8	..	7	17
10	18	PERCY FAITH (Columbia) "Swedish Rhapsody"	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	4	..	16
11A	8	KAY STARR (Capitol) "Side by Side"	..	..	9	..	8	5	..	9	10	14
11B	..	PERCY FAITH (Columbia) "Song From Moulin Rouge"	5	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	6	14
13	10	PERRY COMO (Victor) "Wild Horses"	..	7	..	..	9	8	7	..	..	13
14	..	RUSTY DRAPER (Mercury) "No Help Wanted"	..	8	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	12
15A	..	KAREN CHANDLER (Coral) "Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me"	..	..	6	..	..	6	..	..	..	10
15B	16	EDDIE FISHER (Victor) "Downhearted"	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	5	..	10
17	..	HARI KARI (Capitol) "Yokahama Mama"	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	5	9
18	..	EILEEN BARTON (Coral) "Pretend"	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8
19	..	SYLVANA MANGANO (M-G-M) "Anna"	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	10	..	5
20	12	JO STAFFORD (Columbia) "Keep It a Secret"	..	..	..	..	..	9	9	..	..	4

FIVE TOP ALBUMS	1	2	3	4	5
	HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN DANNY KAYE Decca DL 5433 A 919 9-364	SWEETHEARTS Marion Marlowe Frank Parker Columbia B 331	TV CALENDAR SHOW Arthur Godfrey Columbia CL 6241 B 331 C 331	MUSIC FOR LOVERS ONLY Jackie Gleason Capitol H 352	KAY STARR STYLE Kay Starr Capitol H 363

ASCAPites See Better Break

Continued from page 71

cause You're Mine," "Be My Love," "Loveliest Night of the Year" and "Cool Cool Cool of the Evening," the major channels for songplugging are the record companies and the radio disk jockeys which, allegedly, are inclined to favor BMI tunes.

BMI just as frankly feels the SPA writers have no case; that the public doesn't care if the hit comes from Cole Porter, Irving Berlin, or from some unknowns in Nashville or newcomers from the Brill Bldg., which has been more the case in recent years.

By the same token, more new songs have been sparked by new artists on independent labels than otherwise. Furthermore, the diskeries are now inclined to favor new writers with direct deals at the expense of the music publisher, frequently bypassing him. The fact that some of the major publishers of late have themselves gone into the indie diskery business as a new form of exploitation is advanced by BMIites as evidence that the entire pattern of pop song hitmaking has undergone a revolution to which the oldline ASCAP publishers and writers seemingly are not yet attuned.

ASCAP has the evidence of the last three or four years to indicate that the Top 10, the Hit Parade and kindred rosters have been dominantly BMI—with the exception this week where an ASCAP publisher is No. 1. And there, too, this same publisher is in the process of setting up a new BMI affiliate, allegedly as an economic cushion, just in case.

A FRED FISHER GEM

I'M JUST LIKE A WHEEL THAT IS TURNING

A Beautiful Ballad

Pub. by
FRED FISHER MUSIC CO.
1619 Broadway, New York City

From "BLACKBIRDS OF 1928"
I CAN'T GIVE YOU ANYTHING BUT LOVE, BABY
and
DIGA DIGA DOO

WHEN MY SUGAR WALKS DOWN THE STREET

THE LONESOMEST GAL IN TOWN

I CAN'T BELIEVE THAT YOU'RE IN LOVE WITH ME

Welcome to the Copacabana! April 2

JIMMY McHUGH

... over 100 Top Tunes by Jimmy McHugh
FROM THE CATALOG OF
MILLS MUSIC INC., 1619 Broadway, New York 19, N.Y.

On the Upbeat

New York

Joe Costa, RCA Victor vocalist, begins a two-week engagement at the Boulevard, Queens, today (1). . . . Harry Belafonte into the Chase Hotel, St. Louis, Friday (3) for two weeks . . . Alan Dean at the Ranch House, Johnston, R. I., Saturday (4) for a nine-day stand . . . Dick Linke, Capitol Records publicity and promotion manager, celebrating his 10th anni in the publicity biz this month . . . Flossie Brooks to Chappell Music as secretary to firm's general manager, Stan Stanley . . . Victor singer Joe Allegro at the Crossroads, Washington, until April 11 . . . Tony Morelli, M-G-M Records crooner, pencilled in for a return engagement at Ka-Sees Theatre Night Club, Toledo, April 13.

Pittsburgh

Shep Fields booked into Vogue Terrace for week of May 4 . . . David Carey, band musician, joined the Dormont High School faculty as head of the music department . . . Frank Wojnarowski plays a one-niter at West View Park next Wednesday (8) and Frank Yankovic dittoes a week later . . . Singer-pianist Gloria Catizone off for a month of hotel and cocktail lounge dates in Miami Beach . . . Eddie Dacco replaced Jack Olson on trombone with the Artie Arnell outfit . . . Tiny Wolfe back on bandstand at the Copa again after the flu.

Chicago

Kitty Kallen headlines the Palmer House show April 23 . . . Art Van Damme group switched over from Capitol label to Columbia and cut four sides with new affiliation . . . Four Freshmen spend four weeks at the Crest Club, Detroit, starting May 18 . . . Stan Kenton stops off for a week at the Palms, Columbus, May 18 . . . Nellie Lutcher does a repeat at the Blue Note May 18 for two frames . . . Jimmy Featherstone goes into the Oh Henry Ballroom April 22 for five weeks . . . Ronnie Vincent Gaylord, of the Gaylords, cut two solos last week for Mercury . . . Phil Napoleon set for two stanzas at the Colonial, Toronto, before coming into the Frolics, Columbus, Ohio, May 12 for a week.

Dinah Washington has nine days at the Riviera, St. Louis, May 15 . . . Billy Deverou into Mario's, Windsor, April 27 for 14 days . . . Jo Ann Jordan group do six weeks at the Maroon Club, Montreal, starting April 4 . . . Sax Mallard inked for two weeks at the Buvette Club, Rock Island, Ill., April 10 . . . Three Twins pacted for a month at the Oasis, Munice, Ind., as of April 6 . . . Norm Dygon is being held over at the Luis Hotel, Joliet, Ill.

Omaha

Guy Lombardo added Chadron to his Nebraska swing April 9 . . . Jack Swanson orch opened at Arlington, Neb., Ballroom . . . Jimmy White's trio began at Club Reno . . . Lauritz Melchior booked at Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum May 4-5 . . . Organist Bill Christofferson into Ritz Dinner Club, Grand Island . . . Albion Swing Kings signed for 12 weeks by WJAG, Norfolk.

Clyde McCoy orch signed for annual Creighton University Junior-Senior Prom April 10 at Peony Park.

Dallas

Cheerleaders, vocal quintet, in for two frames at Baker Hotel's Mural Room . . . "Jewel Box Revue" into Pappy's Showland for indefinite stay . . . Sky Club resumed name orch policy with Hal McIntyre crew . . . Beverly & Twin Tones, instrumental trio, return to The Chateau today (Wed.) . . . Eleanor Roberts opens Saturday (4) in Burgundy Room of Hotel Adolphus . . . Russell Nype set for a split week at Cipango Club's sixth anni April 10 . . . femme singer Lynn Hoyt leaves Teddy Phillips' orch to become a WFAA staffer here April 7 . . . Arnett Cobb orch and Five Royals do a one-nighter this week at Longhorn Ranch. Spot also has solo stands by Harry James orch, April 30, and Billy May crew, May 7.

Best British Sheet Sellers

(Week ending March 21)

London, March 25.

Broken Wings .....Fields
Doggie in Window...Connelly
Wonderful Copenhagen..Morris
She Wears Red Feathers..Dash
Outside of Heaven.....Wood
Now .....Dash
Don't Let the Stars....Morris
In Golden Coach...Box and Cox
Because You're Mine..Robbins
Don't Believe Me...F.D. & H.
Glow Worm .....Lafleur
Little Red Monkey...Robbins

Second 12

You Belong to Me...Chappell
Make It Soon.....Connelly
That's A-Why .....Connelly
Oh Happy Day.....Chappell
Till I Waltz Again....F.D.&H.
Love of My Life.....Reine
Talk to the Trees....Chappell
Comes Along a Love..Kassner
I Went Your Wedding..Victoria
Isle of Innisfree....Maurice
Walkin' to Missouri.....Dash
Dummy Song.....Prowse

Burning Paul-Ford Duo Hottest With Capitol, Sticking With Label

Although Les Paul & Mary Ford are still burning at Capitol Records for its release of Kay Starr's "Side by Side," which used the multiple dubbing technique, the team is sticking with the diskery and currently is pacing Cap's roster with two clicko platters.

Topping Cap's sales list last week was their slice of "I'm Sitting on Top of the World," which jumped into the number one position after only two weeks on the market. Also riding high is "My Baby's Coming Home," which is coupled with "Lady of Spain." The "Spain" side broke through when the platter initially hit the market last November but the "Home" side took over a few weeks after and has been a highrider ever since. In its 22 weeks on the market, disk has topped the 650,000 sales mark.

HCL Catches Up to Philly Orch's Budget; 14,000,000 Disks to Date

Philadelphia, March 31.

Rising costs are catching up with the Philadelphia Orchestra, as with other institutions, and management is skedding its second annual drive this year for funds to offset a deficit. Last year, the orch made its first public drive for funds, asking $85,000, and got it easily. This year, with a deficit of $70,000 to make up, it's asking for $100,000, to wipe out some additional debts it's incurred.

One of America's Big Three, the symph has an annual budget of around $1,100,000. It has been taking in about $750,000 on ticket sales, and another $200,000 to $225,000 on record royalties, and gets about $80,000 annually as return from its endowment fund. Management doesn't perceive any Federal subsidy in the foreseeable future, and anticipates it will need a local drive annually instead, to make up its deficits. "The future looks rough," commented orch manager Carl McDonald, "but we're not perturbed."

Symph, which has had 14,000,000 of its recordings sold to date, is generally regarded as the No. 1 classical recording orch. Royalties, though they vary, run from 12 to 20% of their outlay. Management takes great pride in its disks. It feels an amendment is needed to the copyright laws, to prevent its recordings being played on the air endlessly, on grounds that "a performance is as much a protected right as a composition." It also favors the suggestion of an import duty on foreign masters, to lessen unfair competition.

Orch is chief tourer among major symphs. Of this year's 134 concerts, 54 are out of town. Orch has a transcontinental tour in prospect next year, but rising costs are worrying management. Five years ago it figured $6,000 a week for transportation costs. Today it is $11,000. Tour allowance for its men has jumped from $5,600 weekly to $9,800. Weekly payroll has gone from $11,000 to $16,500.

Management advises costs have gone up this past year alone about 15% in transportation, 12% in hall rentals, 15% in baggage handling, 10 to 12% in advertising, and 10% in office personnel.

Growth of symphonies around the country, management says, has created desire to hear the Big Three, and the PO has had requests from everywhere for appearances. Cost situation prevents, however. On former tours, orch price per concert was around $4,000. Now it is $6,000, and most concert series can't stand the fee. They can't raise their tariffs, either.

ASCAP Cleffers Click At D.C. Press Affair

Washington, March 31.

National Press Club's annual ASCAP luncheon, with entertainment by a group of leading composers was its usual click last Thursday (26), with an SRO attendance. Affairs, which have been going on for some years, are a good will gesture by ASCAP to the D.C. press.

Deems Taylor emceed and the following offered selections from their compositions on the stage of the Press Club auditorium—Hoagy Carmichael, Harry Warren, L. Wolfe Gilbert, Harry Akst, Leroy Anderson, and the husband-wife team of Alex Kramer and Joan Whitney. Miss Whitney sang and provided patter for her team's turn, while Kramer played the piano. Toby Deane furnished vocalizing for the Harry Akst numbers and Eddie Fisher, shortly to get out of the Army, wound up the performance also singing as Akst played.

Also on hand for the doings were the following members of the ASCAP board: Stanley Adams, Saul Bourne, Gene Buck, Paul Cunningham, Donald Gray, John Tasker Howard and Jack Mills.

Britain Salvages U.S. Flop Tunes, Makes Them Hits

London, March 31.

Britain is shaping up as the refuge of lost causes as far as U. S. pop tunes are concerned. American songs, which to one degree or another have laid eggs in their native country, are getting big play here and, via this route, may migrate back to the U. S. for renewed exploitation.

Currently, three out of the four current top tunes in England were salvaged from the U. S. scrap heap. "Broken Wings," in the No. 1 spot, is probably the most dramatic case since this tune never got off the ground despite an RCA Victor disk version by The Todds. This disk, however, is clicking big here.

"Wonderful Copenhagen," from the Frank Loesser score for the "Hans Christian Andersen" film, similarly did not mean much in the U. S. but has climbed here into the No. 3 position. "She Wears Red Feathers" is getting fair reaction in the U. S., but nothing to compare with its reception here. It's currently No. 4.

RETAIL SHEET BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail sheet music sales based on reports obtained from leading stores in 9 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

*ASCAP † BMI

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Title and Publisher	New York, MDS	Philadelphia, Charles Dumont	Chicago, Carl Fischer	Kansas City, Jenkins Music Co.	Detroit, Grinnell Bros.	St. Louis, St. Louis Music Supply	Indianapolis, Pearson's	Minneapolis, Schmitt Mus. Co.	Seattle, Capitol Music Co.	TOTAL POINTS
1	2	†Doggie in the Window (Santly-J)	1	1	1	3	1	1	6	2	1	82
2	1	†Till I Waltz Again (Village)	3	3	2	1	2	3	1	4	2	78
3	3	*Keep It a Secret (Shapiro-B)	8	4	4	5	4	5	2	..	5	51
4	4	†Don't Let the Stars (Four Star)	..	..	3	2	6	2	8	..	3	42
5	8	*Pretend (Brandom)	5	5	7	7	9	8	10	3	..	34
6	7	*Anywhere I Wander (Frank)	9	2	..	8	3	..	3	8	..	33
7	5	*I Believe (Cromwell)	2	6	9	..	10	7	..	1	..	31
8	6	*Side by Side (Shapiro-B)	6	..	6	10	5	6	..	..	9	24
9	11	†Tell Me You're Mine (Capri)	10	..	10	4	..	..	5	..	4	22
10	10	*Oh Happy Day (BVC)	..	..	8	6	..	10	..	..	6	14
11	7	*Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me (Mills)	..	..	5	9	7	..	..	..	..	12
12	..	†Your Cheatin' Heart (Acuff-R)	7	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	11
13A	..	*She Wears Red Feathers (Oxford)	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	7
13B	..	†Tell Me a Story (Montclare)	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7
15	..	*Hush-A-Bye (Remick)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	6

Entire ASCAP Board Reelected

The full board of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers was reelected by the membership, according to a nearly completed tabulation of the vote yesterday (Tues.). First job of the board, which comprises 12 writers and 12 publishers, will be to name a new ASCAP prexy to replace incumbent Otto A. Harbach, whose term automatically expires at the end of April. The prexy race is wide open at present, with Jack Yellen and Stanley Adams most prominently mentioned as choices of the writer-members of the board.

Reelected writers on the board are Harbach, Adams, Yellen, Fred E. Ahlert, Gene Buck, Paul Cunningham, John Tasker Howard, A. Walter Kramer, Edgar Leslie, George W. Meyer, Oscar Hammerstein 2d and Deems Taylor. Publisher members are Louis Bernstein, Saul H. Bourne, Irving Caesar, Frank H. Connor, Max Dreyfus, Donald Gray, Jack Mills, Bernard Goodwin, Abe Olman, J. J. Robbins, Gustave Schirmer and Herman Starr.

Paramount Music Gets Exclusive on Stone In Search for New Cleffers

In another instance of the stepped-up pubbery prowl for exclusive cleffer deals, composer-lyricist Wilston Stone has been pacted by Paramount Music. Stone penned the score for George White's tab revue skedded to bow at the Versailles, N. Y., in the next few weeks.

According to Eddie Wolpin, Paramount-Famous general manager, the Wilston pacting is part of the firms' new policy to expand its sources of material. Heretofore, the firms had relied mostly on pix score tunes from Paramount filmusicals for their pop drives with only a small number creating impact in the wax market. Now, however, the Par-Famous combine is eyeing field for exclusive writing deals with cleffers whose output is directed at current pop market.

In line with the pubbery's expansion-of-sources policy, Wolpin bought a Victor Young Music copyright. "Wintertime of Love," for the Famous firm.

Coots' Jolson Tribute

Tunesmith J. Fred Coots has written a musical tribute to Al Jolson based on the melody pattern of the tunes identified with the late singer. The tribute is titled "The Al Jolson Music Memorial."

It'll be introduced by crooner Sid Gary on Milton Berle's NBC-TV show April 14.

BMI Subsid Promotes U.S. Longhairs on Wax Via Remington Label

In a move to promote contemporary American music on disks, the American Composers Alliance, a Broadcast Music, Inc., subsid, has granted a subsidy to Remington Records, indie lowprice long play line, to record 12 LP sides annually of works of American composers. The Remington subsidy marks ACA's largest grant for recordings. Group previously underwrote three sides for RCA Victor and several for the Rachmaninoff Society.

Remington also plans to stress the works of American composers in the waxings of the recently pacted Cincinnati Symphony. The Cincy outfit is under the direction of Thor Johnson, one of the few American-born major orch conductors.

Pubs Checkmate Chess Label

Continued from page 71

cago, represent Fox in both the Chess and Martin actions.

Fox made a distribution last week to Shapiro-Bernstein, Mills, Feist and Robbins Music of $4,982, representing the judgments Abeles obtained and collected against Paradox Industries and Dante Bollettino for royalty claims totalling only $276. In these actions Fox obtained the first ruling that the $250 minimum damages for each infringement applied to phonograph recordings. There is a further distribution to be made of $4,572, which Paradox and Bollettino were required to pay as a condition of Fox not instituting other actions against them.

Hearings are being held before the Special Master to ascertain the damages sustained through the unlicensed recordings made by Remington Records, of compositions of Shapiro-Bernstein, St. Nicholas, Meridian and Oxford. The Master was appointed by the court upon the granting of the plaintiff's applications for summary judgment. Abeles, who likewise represents Fox in these actions, will adduce evidence of substantial damages sustained through such unlicensed recordings, and seek a recovery of $20,000 for royalty claims totalling only $472.

This is on the basis of a minimum of $5,000 for each infringement, instead of the $250 minimum precedent established in the Paradox actions. In seeking this recovery Abeles is proceeding under the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court in the recent case of F. W. Woolworth Co. vs. Contemporary Arts, Inc., in which the court affirmed an amount of $5,000 for an infringement, although the profits were only a few hundred dollars, upon the holding that the copyright statute not merely compels "reparations for injury but also is designed to discourage wrongful conduct."

LOMBARDO'S SOCK 192G IN 26 DATES

Guy Lombardo wound up the first half of his third annual one-niter concert swing with a socko $192,000 gross in 26 dates. Tour, which was kicked off in Vicksburg, Miss., Feb. 26, worked westwards until it reached the halfway mark last week with a fortnight stand at the El Rancho, Las Vegas.

Lombardo resumes the one-niter sked next week working his way east to resume at the Hotel Roosevelt, N. Y., beginning May 4.

Philly Wins Suit Vs. Wired Music Co.

Philadelphia, March 31.

The city won a four-year battle when the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court (24) sustained its right to collect an extra tax of $5,735 from Muse-Art Corp., which supplies wired music to restaurants, hotels and factories.

Suit was originally brought in Philadelphia courts to restrain the city from collecting the additional tax on a gross of $114,703, which Muse-Art claimed represented installation charges and royalty payments made to the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers and Broadcast Music, Inc.

The High Court affirmed the decision of Judge Raymond C. MacNeille who held "the receipts should be included since none of the plaintiff's subscribers could receive reproduced music unless their place of business were wired and equipped."

Warren, Gilbert to N.Y. For ASCAP Conclave

Coast writers Harry Warren and L. Wolfe Gilbert arrived in N.Y. last week to attend the annual meeting and dinner of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers at the Hotel Astor next Tuesday (7).

Both Warren and Gilbert attended the ASCAP National Press Club dinner in Washington, D.C., last Wednesday (27) at which time the manuscripts of several works by the late George Gershwin were presented to the Library of Congress.

Singer Bill Lawrence, Jack Wring's orch and accordionist Johnny Culpo booked at the Circle Inn, Latham, on the Albany-Saratoga Road, Easter Sunday (5) for afternoon and evening dance shows.

Welcome to New York and the

COPACABANA, April 2

JIMMY McHUGH

Featuring His

EXACTLY LIKE YOU

SUNNYSIDE OF THE STREET

(Lyrics by Dorothy Fields)

SHAPIRO, BERNSTEIN & Co., Inc.

It's Music by

JESSE GREER

Program Today Yesterday's

ON THE BEACH WITH YOU

WORDS & MUSIC, INC.

(1619 Broadway, New York)

WELCOME

JIMMY McHUGH

and His Revue

to the COPACABANA, New York

April 2

ABE OLMAN, General Manager The Big Three

ROBBINS MUSIC CORP. LEO FEIST, INC. MILLER MUSIC CORP.

BILL "RIVIERA" MILLER GOES WEST

...where he will bring the finest performers to the nation's most beautiful Theatre-Restaurant the Congo Room!

HOTEL
SAHARA
LAS VEGAS · NEVADA

CONNIE IMMERMAN

"Happy to hear you are associated with the Hotel - looking forward to greeting you and all of our friends".....

Load of Philly Cafes Scram Shows After AGVA Pulls 2; Casino Cleared

Philadelphia, March 31.

Long smoldering dispute between the nitery owners and the American Guild of Variety Artists, which erupted here Wednesday night (25) with the union calling out shows at the Celebrity Room and the Kaliner Bros. Little Rathskeller, had local entertainment world in a tumult and assumed national proportions over the weekend.

Philly cafemen acted swiftly and voted unanimously for reprisal and in a telegram notified all member clubs and AGVA headquarters that acts were to be dropped. By Saturday night 27 Philly clubs had agreed to cancel shows, although several of this number backslid and ran AGVA entertainment for weekend crowds.

According to Herman Comroe, president of Philadelphia Cafe Men's Assn. and a v.p. of Theatre Restaurant Owners of America, his group picked up seven new members which more than offset those who fell by wayside. Philly bonifaces were heartened by solid support of TROA members throughout country, with Baltimore and Detroit nitery ops promising to drop AGVA performers Sunday (29) and Washington group cancelling shows early this week.

"Not on Strike"—AGVA

Dick Jones, eastern regional director of AGVA, came to town Friday (27) to take charge for union. "We are not on strike," Jones said, "We are the victims of a lockout, which is an unfair labor practice."

Both sides carried the fight to the daily press and both appeared confident of victory. Jones described yanking of floor shows at Celebrity and Rathskeller as a simple "policing action." Comroe said AGVA called out shows because spots failed to sign minimum basic agreement. Cafe association mem-

(Continued on page 86)

Petrillo Warns On Fining Of AFM Members

Chicago, March 31.

The American Federation of Musicians has entered the hassle between the booking agents, mainly members of the Chicago Entertainment Managers Assn., and American Guild of Variety Artists. In a letter dated March 23, AFM prexy James C. Petrillo warned the bookers that they should not pay any fees on AFM cardholders to AGVA, which, while not directly named, revolves around the welfare fund, and that any member working under an AFM contract is only under the jurisdiction of the musicians' union. About 90% of the EMA ranks hold AFM licenses.

Action, it is assumed, has been brought on by an AGVA Cincinnati board fining two AFM-claimed members $1,000 each for playing a date for a Chicago booker listed as unfair by AGVA. Union said Will Mahoney and Don Rice were members fined. However, Mahoney claimed he was an AFM cardholder, although Ernie Fast, AGVA midwest regional head, said Mahoney had applied for an AFM working permit after he had been fined. Petrillo, it is reported, has sent letters to both men telling them under no circumstances to pay the fine.

Milton Raynor, counsel for the Chicago Cafe Owners Assn., rebel group that led the fight against the welfare fund here, last week returned from New York where he said that TROA board had gone on record as stopping any AGVA payments immediately. With Philadelphia, Las Vegas, Chicago and other cities refusing to pay the bite, in addition to New York, it leaves only one large area, Los Angeles, left that is paying off. As yet there has been no concerted action one way or another by Coast agents and operators.

Chicago AGVA called a meeting last night (Mon.) of the remaining agents, mainly members of the large national offices, on problems arising from the messed-up situation.

'DANCING WATERS' SET FOR TEX. STATE FAIR

Dallas, March 31.

Harold Steinman's "Dancing Waters," now playing Radio City Music Hall, N. Y., in a repeat, has been signed by the Dallas Ice Arena for the '53 State Fair of Texas. The 20-minute aqua display will have a huge tent location at the midway entrance.

Steinman is importing two more units of the fountain show and will route them to fairs, theatres and outdoor shows.

Sid Morse to Chi CAC

Chicago, March 31.

Sid Morse, formerly in charge of the act department of Mutual Entertainment Agency, has taken over the Chicago office of CAC Attractions, which is affiliated with Consolidated Artists Corp., Milwaukee.

Morse has been replaced by Bob Vincent, former singer with the Al Trace band.

Lena Horne to Open N.J. Riviera April 25

Lena Horne has been signed to be the preem headliner at the Riviera, Ft. Lee, N. J., April 25. The Szonys are also slated for this layout. Still to be signed are a comic and probably one other act.

The Jersey spot last season was boniface Bill Miller's sole entertainment enterprise. This year he's operating the Riviera, Miami Beach, which he reopened last Friday (27) with Larry Steele's Negro revue, and he's also talent buyer for the Sahara Hotel, Las Vegas, in which he now has an interest.

Shriners, Diners Soar B.O. in N.O.

New Orleans, March 31.

With hundreds of fez-wearing Shriners here for southwest convocation and other out-of-towners in large numbers packing hotels for conventions, plus thousands of tourists who pour in each weekend, the cash registers of the French Quarter niteries and bistros have been singing a merry tune past few weeks. The same goes for the top eateries.

Bourbon St., main stem of the historic section, where the jazz spots and strip joints are located, takes on a carnival atmosphere nightly after sundown. Crowds ankle from one place to another to gander the shows and get their fill of New Orleans' two-beat rhythm.

Principal spots have embellished their shows, but those featuring Dixieland jazz are getting heaviest play. The visitors can't seem to get enough of it.

Operators have plenty reason to smile as this is the first time since the Sugar Bowl game and Mardi Gras that the spots have played to hefty patronage. The boys are also looking forward to Spring Fiest, opening Easter Sunday (5) and running for three weeks, and the city's gala celebration of the sesquicentennial of the Louisiana Purchase early in the fall. Both events are expected to attract plenty of visitors.

Of the leading hotel supper clubs, the Blue Room of the Roosevelt continues to get heaviest play from both the localities and yokelites.

Borscht Belt Can Serve Matzos Before April 1 And Retain Liquor Status

Albany, March 31.

Many hotels in the N. Y. borscht belt will be aided by the passage of a bill permitting hotels to open March 27 without becoming ineligible for a summer liquor license. Until now, the inns or restaurants could not start operating before April 1 and qualify for the summer schnapps permit. Now Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's signature on the Mintz Bill permits the spots to open March 27 without losing eligibility.

Earlier date means that the innkeepers can cash in on the Jewish Passover trade. However, the hotels may not serve liquor before April 1, when the summer license becomes operative.

Bill was introduced by Assemblyman Hyman E. Mintz (R.), who comes from Sullivan County, where a great number of the summer hotels are located.

Reading on Super's 1-Niter Sked; BG & Satchmo 1st

Reading, March 31.

Super Attractions, Inc., of Washington, D. C., has added this town to its list of one-nighters. Irvin Feld has booked the Benny Goodman orch and Louis Armstrong & All-Stars on the same bill for April 22 at the Rajah Theatre.

Feld has named C. G. Keeney, vet theatre manager and exhibitor, as his local rep. Keeney is back in business after four years of retirement.

The house, which seats 2,093, is scaled at $2.60 to $3.90, with two shows listed at 7 and 9:30 p. m. Keeney said other bookings will be made by Feld if the first show is a click.

Balto Bonifaces Nix New Union Pact In Opposition to Fund, Act Status

Baltimore, March 31.

Following lead of nitery operators in Chicago and Philadelphia, Metropolitan Baltimore Licensed Beverage Assn., an affiliate of the Theatre Restaurant Owners of America, decided after an all-night session last Thursday (26) against signing of new American Guild of Variety Artists contract.

Max C. Cohen, operator of the Bandbox and chairman of the board for the local association, stated that objections stemmed from $2.50 weekly welfare fund payment for each performer. Also under dispute is the question of change in performer status from independent contractors to club employee. In addition, the local association is peeved by AGVA's alleged belligerence and refusal to arbitrate with individual associations. Cohen, as spokesman for the local group, threatened congressional investigation of AGVA's status. AGVA boycott began Sunday night (29).

Majority of approximately 150 AGVA members in Baltimore are strippers or "exotic" dancers. Gals are mostly local talent who have domestic ties in town. Cohen esti-

(Continued on page 86)

Cafes, Pix Suffer in S.F. As Auto Show Pulls 150G

San Francisco, March 31.

San Francisco's first Auto Show in 12 years, which concluded a week's run at the Civic Auditorium Sunday night (29), drew $150,000 for the car display and the hour-long show headed by Phil Harris. In addition to Harris, the layout, which played twice daily, featured the Sportsmen, Nicholas Bros., Stuart Morgan Dancers, Margaret Brown and a 30-piece orch under direction of Walter Sharf.

High attendance at the Auto Show affected all of Frisco show biz, resulting in lowering nitery and pic grosses.

Cuba Cracks Down On U.S. Gamblers In Havana Casinos

Havana, March 31.

Latest attempt by the Cuban government to crack down on illegal gambling operations here occurred Saturday (28) when the gaming room of the Sans Souci nitery was shuttered and eight Americans employed in the room were detained by the Military Intelligence Service and the National Police. Move was the start of a drive to weed out foreigners in this city suspected of fleecing tourists at the gambling tables. The problem has been a sore spot with the government for some time.

The undesirable foreign element roundup is expected to take in a number of shady imports from the U. S., currently active in gambling setups here. In addition to the Sans Souci, Americans are connected with the Montmartre Club, the Tropicana Club, and the Jockey Club at the Oriental Park racetrack.

Move to do away with the completely one-sided games (favoring the house) stemmed, primarily, from the rash of beefs registered by American tourists. Especially under fire is the "razzle" game, which is almost 100% in favor of the operator and which has been responsible for some of the major losses suffered by American visitors. Previous attempts to clean up the town have failed. A few weeks ago Martial Facio resigned as head of the Cuban Tourist Institute as the result of a dispute over his alleged attempt to name a gambling commissioner to control nitery gambling. Orencio Nodarse Zayas succeeded him.

CT. DENIES GALE PLEA VS. FUQUA INK SPOTS

N. Y. Supreme Court last week denied a plea to stop Charles Fuqua and Universal Attractions, Inc., from offering an act to be labeled the Ink Spots. Gale Agency asked the court to enjoin Fuqua and Universal, claiming that during the partnership between Fuqua and Bill Kenny in the Ink Spots, duo signed a representation deal with Gale. Upon breakup of partnership Fuqua went to Universal and formed another quartet under the Ink Spots tag. Kenny remained with Gale.

Issue will now go to trial for final adjudication.

Cornell, Zabach to Troy

Troy, March 31.

Don Cornell will open a five-day engagement at the Crystal Lounge here April 14. Singer's only previous solo in this area was at the former 400 Casino in Albany, in the fall of 1950.

Florian Zabach will return to the Crystal April 8, for his third date in four months. Arthur Ellen, hypnotist, closed there Sunday (29).

Milbourne Christopher, magician, to start a week's stand at the Bermudiana Theatre, Hamilton, Bermuda, June 15.

PATRICIA AND CAPPELLA

"Are EXPERT BALLROOM-OLOGISTS . . . their routines are IMAGINATIVELY CONCEIVED and his holds of her in upside down and other equilibrium and GRAVITY-DEFYING HOLDS ARE SPONTANEOUS APPLAUSE-GETTERS."

Abel, Variety, Mar. 25, 1953

"Cappella and Patricia are a FLASHY DANCE TEAM with many interesting lifts and spins . . . the dance patterns not only show off the gown to its best advantage but ALSO HER SHAPELY LEGS."

R. Dana, N. Y. World Telegram, Mar. 24, 1953

Now Appearing

HOTEL PIERRE

NEW YORK

HELD OVER FOR 2 MORE WEEKS

Thanks to STANLEY MELBA and HENRI BECKMAN

MUSIC arranged composed by METIS

1650 Broadway, N. Y. C.

Suite 1104 Circle 6-3869

"BEST COMEDY BITS"

5 Acts of Creative Comedy Containing Monologues, Sketches & Pantomimicry

Price Five Dollars

A. GUY VISK

Writing Enterprises

94 Hill Street Troy, N. Y

(The Birthplace of Show Biz)

"The Answer to NEW TALENT"

—Variety, Dec. 17, 1952

THE CABOTS

Exciting Dance Trio

PATRICIA BRIGHT

Satirist

JIM HAWTHORNE

Romantic Tenor

JEANNE MOODY

Song Stylist

Just Concluded 14-Week Engagement

VERSAILLES, N. Y.

Thanks Nick and Arnold, Georgie Hale

Booked by

HERBERT MARKS AGENCY

152 W. 54th St. New York

600 Lincoln Rd. Miami Beach

"What's on Your Mind"

Lucille and Eddie ROBERTS

Currently 2d Week

RADISSON HOTEL

Minneapolis, Minn.

Opening April 14th

COTILLION ROOM, N.Y.C.

Direction:

Music Corp. of America

HARBERS

4th WEEK

PERSIAN ROOM

Plaza Hotel, N. Y.

and DALE

Grant's Riviera

RESTAURANT AND BAR

158 W. 44 St., New York LU 2-4488

WHERE SHOWBUSINESS MEETS

TALENT CONTEST

MONDAY NIGHTS

Prize: Professional Engagement

Duplicate Prizes Awarded in the Case of Tie

DEMONSTRATORS MEN AND WOMEN

Advertised household products. Experience unnecessary. Salary and Commission. Local and travel. Call or write RAD, 306 W. 117th Stree. N. Y. C. RI 9-8040.

★★★★

WALTER WINCHELL says:

"BIG HIT"

*at the PARK AVENUE!

"She's Lithe and Lovely . . . Born in New Orleans . . . Thrushed in the hinky-dinks there . . . Choo-choo'd to the Big Apple . . . Canaried with Duke's band . . . Decided to single . . . Set out for Europe . . . British cats pronounced her Veddy-Veddy . . . At London's Empress club . . . The Town's swankiest . . . Hit Paris like Sugar Ray . . . Back to the States . . . Studied voice . . . Joined after-the-show songfests with the musical comedy kids . . . So this is it! . . . Her card is Dolores Parker . . . *BIG HIT at the Park Avenue . . ."

WALTER WINCHELL.

"Dolores Parker is an exceedingly attractive singer who has been around on various bandstands . . . She has styling and emerges with her own vocal identity . . . Miss Parker toys engagingly with melody. She takes standards and converts them to her own liking. The results are good. Singer makes an excellent appearance." Jose.

VARIETY

"Miss Parker has impeccable taste and beautifully clear diction, both rare in modern singers, and she has a smooth and melodic original style. She has a sound background with the Ellington and Hines orchestras but in her new role of a soloist she shows a bright and warm personality . . . a favorite in the intimate cafes."

ROBERT SYLVESTER
New York Daily News

"Her name is Dolores Parker . . . she packs a terrific punch."

GENE KNIGHT
New York Journal American

"WOO WOO OF THE WEEK: Dolores Parker, who warbles at the Park Avenue Restaurant."

LEE MORTIMER
New York Daily Mirror

Dolores Parker

Accompanied by SAMMY BENSKIN

Just Concluded—8-Sensational Weeks

Park Avenue Restaurant

New York

Watch for TV Date May 10th

Ed Sullivan's

"TOAST OF THE TOWN"

CBS-TV

GAC GENERAL ARTISTS CORPORATION

Personal Management: JOE LOUIS

Post-Holy Week, Degree of AFM Co-op Seen as Test of TROA-AGVA Strength

The war between the American Guild of Variety Artists and Theatre Restaurant Owners of America increased in intensity over the weekend. The union started its strategy with rapier-like thrusts meant to probe TROA defenses and the boniface organization countered with bludgeon-like blows.

Original AGVA moves were made in Philadelphia and Baltimore, where talent was pulled from three spots. TROA countered by heaving entertainment out of more than 50 clubs. AGVA stated that operators of most of the spots were happy to be relieved of shows during Holy Week. Real test will come if the bonifaces maintain the no-show policy when biz gets better.

Another factor that is going to determine AGVA strategy is the degree of cooperation the union gets from the American Federation of Musicians. AGVA will charge that musical acts are being used as one means of helping lock AGVA people out of the bistros. They're waiting to see whether this will be the overall plan adopted by recalcitrant owners before making a heavy pitch to AFM prexy James C. Petrillo. (See separate story (Continued on page 86)

Mpls. Revokes License Of Gawron's Funhouse

Minneapolis, March 31.

After John Gawron had pleaded guilty in Federal court to charges that he participated in a prostitution ring which specialized in shipping young girls to Chicago to work in a swanky callhouse there and after a U. S. tax lien had named him as a co-proprietor with his brother, Frank, of the Funhouse nitery, headquarters for the ring, the city council rescinded its action in granting the spot a renewal of its liquor and other licenses.

The renewal had been granted after Frank Gawron testified before the aldermen that his brother had been only an employee and was discharged after his run-in with the law. It also was conditional upon shuttering of the second floor where the "fun" devices included one, common to amusement parks, that blows up skirts as women patrons walk across it.

Oregon's Jigger Jag Preems May 4

Portland, Ore., March 31.

Oregon became a liquor-by-the-drink state at noon last Thursday (26), when Gov. Paul L. Patterson put his signature on the bill. The liquor control commission announced that it would be May 4 before the across-the-bar sale will start. It will take this much time to get the machinery in operation and to license the state's 600 to 700 dispensers.

Change of the state's Wagner act had been on the ballot for a number of years and always met with defeat. Last year, however, hotels, restaurants and nitery owners got behind the change and Oregonians voted the change last November. Several big hassles took place at the state capitol in framing the bill. The Independent Night Club Operators appointed Ace nitery owner George Amato to represent them on capitol hill and he did a bang-up job. At present liquor is purchased by the bottle in state liquor stores.

M&L to Play B'way Par At 50G Plus; Copa Date?

Hollywood, March 31.

Dean Martin & Jerry Lewis have been signed for the Paramount Theatre, N. Y., for two weeks starting Aug. 26. Duo will be getting $50,000 weekly against a 70-30 split of the gate. Date will be played immediately after their return from Europe, for which they embark June 3.

While in New York, the team will probably be asked to play a stand at a later time at the Copacabana. They were originally slated for the Gotham cafe some time ago, but elected to pay off the face value of the contract plus $10,000 advance that they obtained from the nitery. The $34,000 check, representing the debt and four weeks at $6,000, is still being held by boniface Jules Podell, uncashed. An attempt will be made to get them to honor the regional commitment.

Dallas Doubler

Dallas, March 31.

Joe Bonds, Sky Club owner, heads a corporation taking over the shuttered Studio Lounge. Intimery, after renovation, opens April 15 as the Blue Lady, with acts but no customer dancing.

Grind policy is skedded with talent rotating between Bonds' two spots.

Word-of-Mouth Builds Borge to 20G in Mont'l

Montreal, March 31.

Victor Borge's one-man show at Her Majesty's last week wound up at a near $20,000 with 1,726-seater scaled to $3.38.

Borge's click in Montreal was due almost entirely to word-of-mouth. Despite good reviews in both English and French press, Borge was an unknown as far as localites were concerned and the idea of watching a single for two and a half hours failed to convince theatre-goers, judging from the poor advance sale and the thin opening night attendance.

However, with show talked up around town, Borge built to capacity from Wednesday night on.

Jack Arthur, in charge of entertainment at the Canadian National Exhibition, who has inked Borge to a two-week contract for the CNE this August, came down with film crix from Toronto to catch the show.

Heidt's 'American Way' Troupe in N.Y. Showcase Pre-U.S. and Global Tour

Horace Heidt and his 60-member musical-variety troupe start a 10-week cross-country tour of one-nighters at Hartford, Conn., Easter Sunday (5). The junket will wind up June 15 at Richmond, Cal., so that the group can catch its breath before planing on a Government-approved world tour.

The show Heidt is presenting, titled "The American Way," had its New York preem last Wednesday (25) at Carnegie Hall, and essentially will be the one—deleting stateside localisms—that will be taken abroad for military base and foreign civilian consumption. Group is scheduled to start the international tour July 15, hitting the major U. S. bases abroad. Lucky Strike, Heidt's sponsor, is footing the bill.

The New York program was a fast-moving, colorful variety bill, with gal-dance production numbers and acts including accordionist Lou Prohut, trampoliner Olie Brien, fireeater-bicycle trickster Wally Blair, pianist Conley Graves, the teeterboarding Hildens and singer Ralph Sigwald.

Dick Kerr, a clever comedy mimic on leave from the Air Force, wowed the aud with his song takeoffs on several pop singers, with the stopper a satirical howler on Johnnie Ray. Kerr edges into his routine by assuming a naive pose and semi-literate falsetto voice. The solid takeoffs come as a surprise. Another standout was Betty Cole, a brunet warbler from Texas, who conceals a mike in the cleavage of her strapless dress. Circus motif ties up the second act neatly.

The pitch overseas will emphasize the rags-to-fame leaps of Heidt's youthful finds, prime example being Sigwald, three years ago a janitor. The talk will be translated in progress before foreign audiences. Opening number, of gals in red-and-white-and-blue tights singing and legging "The American Way" while waving UN flags, will have to be changed for foreign civilian consumption. The GIs will like the girls, but foreigners might get the wrong impression of what constitutes life in the U. S. A.

MPLS.' SEARS-ROEBUCK FOR BRISSON STAND

Minneapolis, March 31.

New gimmick locally for a supper club is an advance mail and phone order sale for an attraction by the Hotel Radisson Flame Room.

Two weeks in advance of the engagement of a local cafe society favorite, Carl Brisson, hotel started running daily newspaper ads, announcing the by mail and phone approach.

Brisson plays the spot April 9-29 in an annual stand.

Gobel's Chi 8-Weeker

Los Angeles, March 31.

Comedian George Gobel has been booked into the Empire Room of the Palmer House, Chicago, opening July 30 on an eight-week ticket with two four-week options.

Gobel is currently playing the Statler Hotel here at $1,000.

Agencies Retrench Despite Good Biz in Act Dept.; TV Causes Dip

The annual economy kick of the big agencies has come earlier than usual this year. Majors are again looking for ways and means of tightening the flow of coin out of the office and have already told personnel to go easy in okaying expenditures.

The first result was made evident at Music Corp. of America last week with the resignation of Harry Diner, of the cafe department. He's not being replaced and spots that he covered will be distributed among the others in the nitery division. He had a comparatively short run at that office, having recently come down from Boston, where he was in charge.

However, the unusual part of the current economy binge lies in the fact that the personal appearance field is more than holding its own. The act departments are doing excellent business. It's probably the most active on the entire roster, despite the fact that it's not the most lucrative. The agencies are booking far in advance even though, in many cases, they're doing so against their better judgment. However, they're forced to operate that way because of boniface pressure in attempting to insure a supply of good talent.

Also, the overall income from the act division is topping those of last season in most cases. Reason lies in the click of an unprecedented number of record names. The fast turnover in name values is (Continued on page 86).

Palm Sunday Rain Offs A.C.; Prep Easter Bills

Atlantic City, March 31.

Overcast skies which later brought light rain put a damper on Palm Sunday crowds. Resort hopes for better luck Easter Sunday, when crowds are supposed to give an inkling of the kind of season in store.

Preparations are being completed to give the Easter Sunday crowds plenty of entertainment. Hotels and niteries will offer special Easter Saturday night bargains and Steel Pier is opening for two days featuring Vaughn Monroe and his organization in the Marine Ballroom. In the pier's principal theatre, Four Aces will top a vaude bill consisting of the Candy Carnival winners, Alan Carney, Mage & Karr, and Benny Meroff & Co. Pier also will offer two feature films.

The Jewish Passover holiday which started on Monday (30) helped fill many of the oceanfront hotels.

Rio's Night & Day Prowl for Names

Jimmy Schure has been assigned the exclusive booking of the Night & Day club, Rio de Janeiro. Acts playing that spot will double into Rio radio and television stations. Recent legislation will enable acts to take U. S. dollars out of that country.

Schure is now negotiating for some top names including Lena Horne. Operator of the nitery is Francisco M. Serradora.

Relaxation of Brazilian ban on exporting the Yanqui dollaire doesn't mean a return to the pre-war days when Brazil bought as many acts as possible at salaries that far eclipsed those prevailing in the U. S. at the time. The performers were bought by the gaming casinos, which have been long outlawed in that country.

Jas. Hart's 20th Century Bally for 18th C. Room

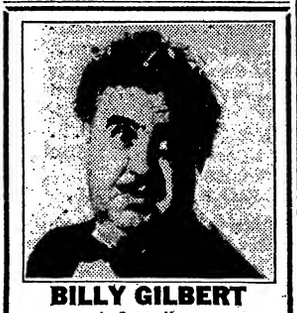
Chicago, March 31.

The opening of the Beau Nash Room in the Ambassador East Hotel here last weekend was one of the most elaborate press and social functions the Windy City has seen in recent years. Jimmy Hart, president of the inn, and Frank Bering, chairman of the board, hosted over 250 people who flocked in from all over the country to help hoopla the debut of the elaborate men's grill. In addition, Mayor Alleyne W. S. Berry, mayor of Bath, England, and his spouse, were flown in to help lend an authentic touch.

Arthur Godfrey, as Beau Nash, led the list of celebs who included John Cameron Swayze, Mac Kreindler of New York's 21 Club, C. R. Smith, American Airlines prexy, and Jinx-Falkenburg, in addition to the localites.

After the press opening Friday (28), which drew more than 200, the highlight of the three-day junket was the reprise of the 18th century luncheon according to English authorities. About 25 men replete with knee britches and powdered wigs sat down to dine on such mundane items (then) as baked grouse in clay, roast Cornish Game hen, roast partridge, roast venison, stewed oysters with buttered whiting and port plum pudding with wine sauce. Potables were ale and stout. For a crowning touch a pigeon pot pie was brought in, which when opened, six white pigeons were released and the entire assemblage took to the nets to catch the birds. Most of the feathered friends nestled in the wigs of the gentlemen.

Later that night, after the men had recovered from the afternoon sports, a black tie affair ended the celebration. Life covered the event, which has been estimated to have cost the hosts more than $15,000.



BILLY GILBERT
Currently
OASIS CLUB
Muncie, Indiana
—
April 13
TRITON HOTEL
Rochester, N. Y.
Personal Management
DAVID L. SHAPIRO
AL 4-1077
For Night Clubs — Mercury Artists

THE CHORDS
Instrumentalists without Instruments
Dir.: GENERAL ARTISTS CORP.
Club Date Bookings by
HARRY GREBEN, 203 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill. | NAT DUNN, 1650 B'way, New York

COMEDY MATERIAL
For All Branches of Theatricals
FUN-MASTER
THE ORIGINAL SHOW-BIZ GAG-FILE
(The Service of the STARS)
First 13 files $7.00—All 35 issues $25
Singly: $1.05 Each IN SEQUENCE ONLY
Beginning with No. 1—No Skipping!
● 3 Bks. PARODIES, per book...$10 ●
● MINSTREL BUDGET.....$25 ●
● 4 BLACKOUT BKS., ea. bk...$25 ●
● BLUE BOOK (Gags for Stage) $50 ●
HOW TO MASTER THE CEREMONIES $3.00
GIANT CLASSIFIED ENCYCLOPEDIA OF GAGS, $300. Worth over a thousand
No C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., New York 19—Dept. V
Circle 7-1130

Latest Comedy Material for MC's, Magicians, Entertainers, etc. Send for our latest price list of great ORIGINAL gagfiles, monologs, dialogs, parodies, skits, etc. Written by show biz top gagmen. Or send $10 for $50 worth of above. Money back if not satisfied.
LAUGHS UNLIMITED
166 W. 45 St., N. Y., N. Y. JU 2-8373

ARE YOU WORTH $1,000.00 PER?
Is your unusual talent paying off less than you're worth?
Whether the fault lies in: unsystematic publicity; un-dynamic routines; or, hit-and-miss connections — get your remedy NOW.
ONE-OFFICE, COMBINED MGT. OF THE UNIQUELY TALENTED PERFORMER ONLY.
Act Before Age Acts for You!
Box V-11220, VARIETY, 154 WEST 46th St., NEW YORK 36, N. Y.

BOB
(Bobby)
ROLLINS
Now Playing
MINNEAPOLIS
Apr. 4 to Apr. 12
Thanks to WILLIAM SHILLING
165 West 46th Street
New York City

DORAINE and ELLIS
"ROMANCE IN SONG"
ATLANTA BILTMORE HOTEL
Atlanta, Georgia
(April 3rd - April 25th)

Byron and Margaret Ann
TALBOT
Currently
ROOSEVELT HOTEL
New Orleans, La.
Thanks TOM MARTIN
G.A.C.

FOSTER AGENCY, LONDON, presents
SEÑOR CARLOS

Currently
LE LIDO, PARIS
American Rep.—WM. MORRIS AGENCY
TAVEL MAROUANI AGENCY PARIS

WHEN IN BOSTON
It's the
HOTEL AVERY
Avery & Washington Sts.
The Home of Show Folk

It's happening at the COPACABANA NEW YORK

"Jules Podell uncovered a new singing sensation in Dolores Hawkins. The professionals in the audience knew they were in at the birth of a new star.

"This Hawkins babe is a local product, one of the neighbor's children, but she clicked first at Ciro's in Hollywood. She is a stunning blonde, and with her architecture doesn't have to sing, either, but could give Marilyn Monroe a battle for honors in that department. Her voice is strong, bell-like and convincing. When she sells a song, she doesn't need tricks or gimmicks to put it over. She is 'the most refreshing newcomer of the year, a sure bet for headlines.'"

LEE MORTIMER,
New York Daily Mirror.

"The chestiest, loveliest, most talented young new singer in a long time—certain star material for Hollywood and TV—Dolores Hawkins."

EARL WILSON,
New York Post.

"A young singing doll named Dolores Hawkins—awfully easy to take. The five-foot-nothing blonde delivers the kind of songs the late Al Jolson used to sing in a sultry, legitimate voice that would draw encomiums from the old master himself. We knew her success was assured the moment the first night Copa audience kept pin-dropping-still to hear her—a medal of honor seldom bestowed by an entertainment-saturated group of people who usually come to cheer the star and merely tolerate the supporting players."

HY GARDNER,
New York Herald Tribune.

". . . And newcomer Dolores Hawkins scores."

WALTER WINCHELL.

"Dolores Hawkins made an impressive showing. A lovely looking canary. But she hadn't finished her first number, "Hallelujah," when she commanded attention. Miss Hawkins showed she can sing on her own. Her finisher with a Jolsonesque bow, "Rock-A-Bye," almost stopped the show. The chorus line was on the steps waiting to follow, but the house wouldn't let her off."

BILLBOARD.

Dolores HAWKINS

Latest OKEH
RECORD RELEASE
"SCRAP OF PAPER"
and
"I'VE GOT A LETTER"
#6949

GAC GENERAL ARTISTS CORPORATION

LQ Unit's 6-Wk. Record in Vegas

Latin Quarter shows are set to have lengthy routings. Layout that recently closed at the Miami Beach edition of the club has been booked at the Desert Inn, Las Vegas, where it is now in an engagement that will last six weeks. This is the longest time that any unit has been allotted in that cafe. Following the Vegas run, unit moves to New York, where it will open around the end of May.

Current LQ show will open at the Casino de Paris of Tahoe Village, Lake Tahoe, Nev., in June and will run there until Labor Day. Lou Walters, who operates both Latin Quarters, will again run the dining room of the Tahoe spot.

Agencies Retrench

Continued from page 84

keeping the percenters hopping. In addition, the strawhat season is now being plotted and the agencies are busy preparing lists and packages.

The reason for the economy kick lies in the summer diminuendo in mechanical media. All the agencies' N. Y. operations are oriented to video now, and if sponsors fail to spend heavy coin on summer replacements, a major share of business goes down the drain. Even if the office comes through with a lot of film replacements, the income isn't as heavy since the stations aren't going to invest in the choice, expensive celluloid when video viewing diminishes.

DONALD RICHARDS
Star of
"THERE'S MUSIC IN THE AIR"
FRIDAYS, CBS RADIO NETWORK, 9-10 P.M., EST
Personal Mgt. DAVID L. SHAPIRO
AL 4-1077

YOU CAN "IMITATE" ANY STAR!
Read "GET INTO THE ACT!"
Complete with 33 "Show-How" Photos
PLUS—Five (5) ORIGINAL MIMIC ROUTINES
ONLY $1.00 POSTPAID
ENCORE PUBLICATIONS
Dept. V—267 S. 10th St., Phila. 7, Pa.

LEW BLACK and PAT DUNDEE
(Beauty and the Least)
A new note in Glamor Comedy
GERBER-WEISS AGENCY
1697 Broadway, N.Y.
Club Dates NAT DUNN

JACK DENTON
WORLD'S GREATEST COMEDIAN
(APRIL FOOL)
C/O IRVING CHARNOFF
1619 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

Philly Cafemen Grapple With Union Performers On Return to 2 Spots

Philadelphia, March 1.

The Club Owners Assn. of Greater Philadelphia held a meeting at Lulu Temple here yesterday (Monday) in an atmosphere as quiet as magnified bedlam. Cafemen attempted to explain to American Guild of Variety Artists' members what was going on. Organization, an affiliate of the Theatre Restaurant Owners Assn., had invited acts to return to the Rathskeller and the Celebrity Club, from which AGVA pulled its shows on the ground that these spots had inadequate bond.

Dick Jones, AGVA eastern regional director, and Joe Campo, AGVA national board member, both took the floor to denounce the action of the operators. Harangue continued on both sides when questions were flung at both club owners and the AGVA reps. Meeting had no immediate result in getting performers back to the pulled spots.

George A. Hamid, Sr., of the Hamid agency, and operator of the Steel Pier, Atlantic City, together with TROA executive secretary, Dave Fox, pleaded for the right of the operator to sit down and negotiate with the union, instead what they described as the present method of drawing up a set of terms and presenting them to the cafemen on threat of a walkout.

Jones reminded the meeting that the operators promised the union that they could guarantee $500,000 to the welfare fund and then dared the ops to post $100,000 against the promised payment, and open negotiations thereafter. Ops countered that this proposition was tantamount to "purchasing negotiations."

Philly Cafes

Continued from page 82

bers had pledged if show were yanked at one spot all would drop entertainers.

Spots refusing to let performers take the floor Saturday night were Barton Show Bar, Black Cat, Catalina Show Bar, Carroll's, Celebrity Room, Cabana, Cumberland, Hawaiian Cottage, Kay Karlton Room, Knotty Bar, Pacey's, Rendezvous, Powelton Cafe, Lou's Moravian, Murray's Inn, Rathskeller, Lynnewood Bar, Boulevard, Gay Time, Golden Bar, Club Chateau, Little Spot, Star Dust and Ciro's.

Substitutions

Prevalence of musical acts in show spots left many places undisturbed and musicians were hastily substituted where shows were dropped. Unusual feature of cafe action was membership's vote to permit Latin Casino, town's largest nitery, to continue floor policy because of costly contractual obligations.

Latin Casino is currently playing Billy Daniels and has name acts signed until late in spring. Exception of Latin, however, was given as reason by several member clubs for their own failure to cancel shows.

Two-column ad in Monday morning Inquirer, headed, "Attention! All AGVA Members," was call to a mass meeting at Lulu Temple Monday afternoon. Ad was placed by cafe groups to permit nitery owners to explain their position to acts.

Principal cause of contention here is union's minimum basic agreement with its demands for the welfare and insurance fund, along with a change of the present operator-artist relationship to that of employer-employee status. Nitery men here believe latter switch would make them liable for social security, city wage tax, unemployment tariffs and other levies.

Carrying fight to newspapers and announcement of loss of shows have had deleterious effect on biz, with cafes already suffering from Lenten layoff. Cafe owners swung into line to show solidarity, but public read news as "no shows" and absence on Friday and Saturday nights was reflected in tills.

Bill Green's Still Pushing In Pitt as Expiration Nears

Pittsburgh, March 31.

Bill Green's, which will expire any day now as a nitery, is operating on a week-to-week basis and plans to bring in as many names as time permits. First of the spring parade is Dolores Hawkins, who comes in Saturday (4) for nine days following her engagement at the Copa in New York with Danny Thomas.

Green's can't book too far ahead since it's skedded to come down at a moment's notice to make way for a big shopping centre. At first it was figured that tomorrow (Wed.) would be the deadline, but construction of centre has been slowed, allowing for some grace. In the new building going up, Green has been ticketed for a bar-lounge restaurant but no nitery.

'Follow the Girls' Legiter to Get Slicing For Flamingo, Vegas

Chicago, March 31.

Tab edition of "Follow the Girls" will hit the bistro circuits June 11 at the Flamingo, Las Vegas. Willie Shore will take over the role of the male comic and Sammy Lewis, producer of the capsule, is seeking either Janis Paige or Rose Marie for the femme lead.

Original show, with Gertrude Niesen as the lead, opened on Broadway in May, 1944, and ran for more than two years there and on the road.

Post Holy Week

Continued from page 84

from Chicago on Petrillo's letter to bookers.)

In Baltimore, most of the cafes that dropped AGVA shows were the occupants of "strip row," where peeler-parlors abound. In this respect, TROA has promised that the Cafe Owners of Chicago, an organization having a working arrangement but no actual affiliation with TROA, will come to the aid of the Balto bistros by sending out strippers from the Windy City.

There's been one change in TROA strategy so far. Originally the cafemen intended to post a notice in all TROA-member cafes stating that the spot would no longer recognize AGVA as the bargaining agent for the performers. So far this hasn't been done. Instead, the cafemen have posted in all bulletin boards a plea to performers to urge AGVA to sit down and negotiate with the owners on the question of the welfare fund.

The only known police action as a result of the AGVA-TROA tiff came in Baltimore, where Vince Iannone, accompanied by Jack Somers, both AGVA organizers, was forcibly ejected from the Club Ambassador Sunday (29), charged with creating a disturbance. He was jugged for three hours and released on bail Monday (30).

Balto Bonifaces

Continued from page 82

mated that 80% have expressed willingness to continue without AGVA contracts. If new contract is negotiated, it is understood that these girls will be reinstated as members in good standing. Musical acts or non-union talent will replace AGVA members who hold on to their cards.

'Block' of Granite

"The Block," Baltimore's famed city block of strictly femme show spots, is untouched by union dispute. Girls working there are virtually all non-union talent with many doubling as waitresses and barmaids.

Sole spot still playing AGVA acts is the Chanticleer. Owner, Curly Miller, expects to replace present burley type show with headliners early next month and will play strictly AGVA talent.

Ban on AGVA entertainers figures to have little effect on this TV-mesmerized town. Business has been way off from recent years lately but publicity dispute is getting in local dailies and could possibly help sagging returns.

Marilyn Maxwell has signed William Loeb as her personal manager. William Morris Agency will continue to book the actress-singer.

Night Club Reviews

Continued from page 31

Latin Quarter, Boston

Brooks on strength of one disclick, "Hello Sunshine," Latin Quarter boniface "Rocky" Palladino has attempted a repeat with the Gaylords, but indications are that experiment will not pay off this time. Although the boys are currently riding the Mercury disk, "Tell Me You're Mine," which has done well hereabouts, it's definitely on the wane and new etchings have so far failed to make any appreciable impression.

Main deficiency apparently stems from fact that group, consisting of three boys, one doubling on piano and another bass, recently lost one of its members and Buddy Greco, a solid performer, who replaced, has not as yet hit upon formula to click with nitery patrons. However, his presence gives the group a lift. Spotlighted sans Greco, the Gaylords vocalize a variety of songs, none of which is outstanding enough to warrant solid reaction with the exception of their trademark platter. Insertion of Victor Borge's "phonetic punctuation" bit by one of group is poorly handled and incongruous, resulting in mild customer reaction.

Greco, although a youngster, has been around for some time and his solo songology, including his w.k. "It's a Sin to Tell a Lie," scores nicely with ringsiders. At show caught however, guy bypassed 88-ing except for closer, "I'm Through With Love," a defection that could be corrected for better results. Joining the group for windup, Greco inserts needed showmanship, pacing boys through "Ain't She Pretty," "That's My Desire" and "Lonesome Road," the latter accompanied by rhythmical handclapping of audience.

Bill opens with the Sanfords, a nifty terp duo starting with a snappy offering. Team showcases graceful terping highlighted by male partner holding femme overhead while executing twists.

Bob Conrad Dancers continue with basically same productions numbers they've been doing for about a month, although currently tightened for slicker results. Charlie Wolke crew showbacks neatly and splits customer terping with Zarde Bros. group. Elie.

El Rancho, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, March 25.

Guy Lombardo Orch (14), with Carmen, Liebert and Victor Lombardo, Kenny Gardner, Kenny Martin, Bill Flannigan, Cliff Grass, Lombardo Trio, Twin Pianos; Johnny O'Brien, Evans Family (4); no cover or minimum.

Booking name bands for headlining Vegas niteries is rare, and occasionally doesn't pay off as well as usual procedure of slotting name acts. In the case of Guy Lombardo and "revue," however, biz will inundate maitre d'Albert for the two frames with ropes likely to be strung across the door. Lombardo has a terrif appeal to all manner and variety of visiting firemen and firewomen.

Suave and smooth, maestro Guy downbeats his tootlers in the w.k. saccharine tunes he has trademarked for many years. Audiences lap up everything. Unusually long period of band numbers kicks off procedings, introing collection of vocalists and instrumentalists. Chief warbler is Kenny Gardner, who handles ballads and novelties neatly. Also parading the pipes are Henny Martin, Cliff Grass, Lombardo Trio centered by Carmen Lombardo. Instrumentally, Twin Pianos stroke "Humoresque," and Bill Flannigan doubles from vocalistics to picking out "Third Man Theme" on guitar. Good precision work is noted from all sections. Lombardo has his crew well disciplined.

Johnny O'Brien hits for healthy yocks from start to finish, trotting out cornball humor, gimmicking a phrase, "It's possible," for clinchers. Harmonica blowing takes second place to his humor, but he also registers okay in this department, reeding "Four Leaf Clover," combined "Poet & Peasant" and movement from "Orpheus." Closes layout in fine fashion before Lombardo segues into medley set for dansapators.

Evans Family toss the nostalgia gong around with hoofing exercises by brother and sister, then step aside for contrasting steps by mother and father. Melissa Evans has chief turn with her fan kicks and on-the-floor contortions before entire family returns for hoofing bowoff. Will.

Saranac Lake

By Happy Benway

Saranac Lake, N.Y., March 31.

Charles (Chick) Lewis, exec v.p. of the V.C. Will Rogers Hospital, in from Gotham for the quarterly inspection tour with the hospital staff here. He extended the usual homespun greetings to the patients that packed a mess of tonic for the ailing gang.

Kenneth Wadleigh, former owner of Wadleigh Theatre Supply Co., Concord, N.H., a new arrival here and received his first top clinic.

The John Van Burens in from N.Y. for a surprise visit with their son, Ray (IATSE) Van Buren, who is skedded for major surgery. A family banquet celebrating his birthday was held at Don's Melody Lounge and emceed by our own Eddie Vogt.

Morris Dworski, research specialist at the V.C. hospital, has added Forrest (Slim) Glenn to his laboratory as an assistant, while Dr. Homer McCreary is assisted by Eddie Vogt in our X-ray lab.

Birthday greetings are in order for Frank Walters and Peggy McCarthy.

This would be a very nice holiday gesture, a letter of good cheer or a getwell card to any of the following patients who are strictly in bed: Murray (& Burns) Kissen, Frank Walters, Oscar Price, Johnny Lake, and Al Brandt.

Write to those who are ill.

Artist and Writers Restaurant, Inc., chartered to conduct business in New York. Capital stock is 200 shares, no par value. Irving Fox, N.Y., is a director and filing attorney.

TERRI STEVENS
"Received a great many compliments on the artistry and excellent performances of Miss Terri Stevens while playing our Raleigh Room. Looking forward to a return engagement." . . . Erwin H. Schlicht, Raleigh Room, Warwick Hotel, New York.
Currently in Philadelphia
STAR MANAGEMENT
846 7th Ave., New York BAside 4-0910

Sensational Singing Duo
CASS MONICA
FRANKLIN and LANE
Currently
CHEZ PAREE, CHICAGO
Just Concluded
ROOSEVELT HOTEL, N. O.
Opening
LATIN QUARTER, N. Y.
May 15
Pers. Mgt.: Antro Amusements, Inc.

JAY MARSHALL

1953
EASTER PARADE
Management:
ARCHBISHOP LEDDY and FATHER NEWMAN

SENSATIONAL
DANCE ACT
(THE VALENTINO WHIP)
WESTERLY and GAIL
Dir.: PHIL BUSH
1650 Broadway, N. Y. C.
JU 6-2313

SIBYL BOWAN
Thank You Kindly JIMMY GRADY
BRITISH COLONIAL HOTEL NASSAU

VARIETY BILLS

WEEK ENDING APRIL 8

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show whether full or split week

Letter in parentheses indicates circuit: (FM) Fanchon Marco; (I) Independent; (L) Loew; (M) Moss; (P) Paramount; (R) RKO; (S) Stoll; (T) Tivoli; (W) Warner; (WR) Walter Reade

NEW YORK CITY

Music Hall (I) 2
Jacqueline Langee
Dancing Waters
Myrtill & Pacaud
3 Carsonys
George Sawtelle
Patricia Doyle
Audrie Wilson
Rockettes
Corps de Ballet
Sym Orc
Palace (R) 29
Danny Kaye Rev
Peiro Bros
Marquis
Fran Warren
Darvas & Julia
Dunhills
Jo Lombardi Orc
Paramount (P) 4
Patti Page
Jerry Wald Orc
Bobby Sargent
Clark Bros
Roxy (I) 30
Ice Colorama
BUFFALO
Buffalo (L) 4-7
L Armstrong Orc
Sugar Ray Robinson
Helen Forrest
Wells & 4 Fays

CHICAGO
Chicago (P) 3
Rosemary Clooney
Mayo Bros
Frank Fontaine
Maurice Rocco
Regal (P) 3
Erroll Garner 3
Big MayBelle
Stump & Stumpy
George Kirby
Alberto Serrras Bd
Fontaine Dancers
MIAMI
Olympia (P) 1
Doyle & O'Donnell
Del Breece
Sunny Gale
Myles Bell
Ciro Remac Co
ROCKFORD
Palace (I) 3-5
Wilfred Mae 3
Hanlon & Clark
Betty Ford
R Newman & Lucky
1 to fill
WASHINGTON
Capitol (L) 2
Don Howard
A Allyn & Hodges
Don Francisco
Chords
Rusty
Bobby Collins
SUNDERLAND
Empire (M) 30
O'Farrells Starlets
Syd Seymour Orc
C Jones & F Ross
Hutch
3 Harvards
P Darban & Wendy
SWANSEA
Empire (M) 30
Les Spanglers
Nitwits
D & L Ferroni
Stan Stennett
Geraldine & Joy
Authors & Swinson
Finlay Bros.
WOLVERHAMPTON
Hippodrome (I) 30
Carroll Levis Co
Violet Pretty
Teen Agers
WOOD GREEN
Empire (S) 30
Beverley Sis
Eddie Fisher Rev
Wright & Zena
Dashs Chipenzees
YORK
Empire (I) 30
Terry Wilson
Seanor Dio
Mavin Whyte
Barbara Quale
Francois & Sandra
Charlie Parsons
A Rogers & A Dixon

AUSTRALIA

AUCKLAND (NZ)
St James (T) 30
Farrar & Carter
Jimae & Junior
Diane Grafton
Pat Gregory
Terry Scanlon
Cissy Trenholm
Armand Perren
Marika Saary
Barbara Howe
Jimmy Elder
Wim De Jong
Chrlbi
Enid Wilson
Joe Whitehouse
Jacques Cartaux
Nellie Small
Netta Dunsmore
Netta Dunsmore
Betty Sulloch
Tom Tobin
Skating Boys (7)
Skating Girls (16)
CHRISTCHURCH
Royal (T) 30
Tommy Trinder
The Botonds
Halama & Konarski
Professor Olgo
Carl Ames
Six De Paulls
Harry Moreny
Toni Lamond
Peter
Singing Girls (4)
Dancing Boys (4)
Adorables (10)

MELBOURNE
Tivoli (T) 30
Trio Fayes
Trio Daresco
Lowe & Ladd
Bert Duke Trio
Guy Nelson
Frank Cook
Renita Kramer
Bouna
Norman Vaughan
Sonya Corbeau
Show Girls (9)
Nudes (9)
Boy Dancers (6)
Ballet (12)
SYDNEY
Tivoli (T) 30
Edwin Styles
Loveday Hills
Mary Parker
June Jago
Walter Pym
John Lee
Collins Hilton
John Huson
WELLINGTON
Opera House (T) 30
Tommy Trinder
Botonds
Halama & Konarski
Professor Olgo
Carl Ames
6 De Paulls
Harry Moreny
Toni Lamond
Peter
Adorables

BRITAIN

BLACKPOOL
Palace (I) 30
Semprini
Jover Co
Nino the Dog
Horrie Dargie 5
Harry Kocke
Richards Sis
Arthur Haynes
S & P Kaye
Adele French
BRIGHTON
Hippodrome (M) 30
Josef Locke
Archie Glenn
Taylor Mannequins
Joan Edwards
Young Ladies
S & D Stevens
Krista & Kristel
CHELSEA
Palace (I) 30
Sonny Dawkes
Tommy Rose
4 Mello-Macs
Arthur Knotts
EAST HAM
Granada (I) 30
Jimmy Scott
Peter Raynor
Tex Martin
H Avon & Clyde
Reid Twins
Marche & Braun
Metropolitan (I) 30
Western Bros
Stanelli
Leslie Sarony
Alex 4
Collette & Karen
Peter Quinton
Charmony 3
Moran & Elof
Palace (I) 30
Sandy Powell
Kay White
E Beam Girls
Dorothy Williams
Norman Meadows
Eve Devers
Eric Vadium
Bernie Lewis
Dudley Dale Co
GLASGOW
Empire (M) 30
Joan & Ernest
Mary Small
MacKenzie Reid & D
Jack Durant
3 Kelroys
G & Colville
Ballet Montmartre
GRIMSBY
Palace (I) 30
Jimmy Young
Eno & Lane
Nicol & Kemble
Rio Ron & Rita
Betty & Harry Austral
Billy Baxter
Auster Sis
HACKNEY
Empire (S) 30
Dickie Arnold
Mickie Warren
Des Dale
Gale & Van
Eva May Wong
Wallace Walsh
Maurice Strotler
Lash Thrushes
Cwen Beaumont
11 Society Girls
LEEDS
Empire (M) 30
J Jewel & B Werriss
Benson Dulay Co
Elizabeth & Collins
Rogers Dogs
Crochet
Cycling Brockways
Charles Ancaster

LIVERPOOL
Empire (M) 30
N & N Grant
Issy Bonn
Ray Allan
Eddie Calvert
Richman & Jackson
Helene Cordet
2 Lucillas
3 Vuoons
Cardew Robinson
LONDON
Palladium (M) 30
Johnnie Ray
Tosca De Lac
Max Wall
Evy & Everto
Tony & Eddie
Hal Monty
Andrea Dancers
Vogelbeins Bears
Palladium Girls
Skyrockets Orc
MANCHESTER
Hippodrome (S) 30
G H Elliott
Leslie Welch
Jack Tripp
Manley & Austin
Robert Harbin
Helga Barry
Sereno & Joy
Arthur Scott
S Fisher Girls
NEWCASTLE
Empire (M) 30
Winifred Atwell
Conway & Day
Jimmy Wheeler
Italo
Tommy Fields
Medinis
Harry North
George Meaton
NOTTINGHAM
Empire (M) 30
Tessie O'Shea
Johnny Lockwood
Granger Bros
Johnny Mason
St Denis Bros
Olga Varona
4 Colony Boys
Dennis Lawes
Vocal Tones
De Vere Lovlies
PORTSMOUTH
Royal (M) 30
Jack Jackson
Mary Lou Williams
F Bamberger & P
Doreen Harris
Wonderettes
Gommer Singers
Dumarte & Denzer
Levanda & Van
Agnette & Sylvio
SCUNTHORPE
Savoy (I) 30
Edmund Goffron
Eddie Wood
R Mingaan & Diane
Claude Williams
Chick Candy Ross
SHEFFIELD
Empire (M) 30
Lester Fergueon.
De Vere C Girls
Hylda Baker
Gaston Palmer
Darlys Dogs
Sid Plummer
Arthur Worsley
SHEPHERDS BUSH
Empire (S) 30
Gladys Morgan
Garry Brereton
Max Geldrry
Fred Atkins
Nadia
Eddie Arnold
Manz & Chico

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

Bandbox
Billy Eckstine
Count Basie Orc
Birdland
Sarah Vaughan
Dizzy Gillespie
Blue Angel
Robert Clary
Kirkwood & Goodman
Helen Halpin
Felicia Sanders
Bart Howard
Jimmy Lyons 3
Blue Note
Nancy Steele
Vicki Carol
Herb Corey
Joe Benjamin
Ronnie Selby 3
Bon Soir
Jimmie Daniels
Mademoiselles
Alice Ghostley
G Wood
Norene Tate
Garland Wilson
Mae Barnes
Copacabana
Jack Carter
Jimmy McHugh
Cabot & Dresden
Dolores Hawkins
Cerneys
Ramona Lang
Jack Purcell
Ted Martin
M Durso Orc
Frank Marti Orc
Chateau Madrid
Alfredo Sadel
Felo & Bruno
F Alonso Orc
Al Castellanos Orc
El Chico
Perla Marini
DeLeon & Gracielella
C & G Galvan
Alvardo de la Cruz
Carlos Camacho
Enrique Vizcaina
Embers
Barbara Carroll
Bunty Pendleton
Hotel Ambassador
Jules Lande Orc
Hotel Astor
Three Suns
Hotel Biltmore
Michael Kent Orc
Hotel Edison
Henry Jerome Orc
Hotel New Yorker
Teddy Powell Orc
Joan Walden
Sid Krofft
Bobby Blake
Collin & Leemans
Adrian Rollini Trio
Hotel Pierre
Giselle Mackenzie
Cappella & Patricia
Stanley Melba Orc
Chico Reili Orc
Hotel Plaza
Lisa Kirk
Wally Boag
Dick La Salle Orc
Monte Continentals
Hotel Roosevelt
Jack Fina Orch
Hotel St. Regis
Rosalind Courtright
Milt Shaw Orc
Horace Diaz Orc
Hotel Statler
Billy Kay Orc
Hotel Sherry Netherland
Beverly Allyson
Hugo Peacli Orc
Hotel Taft
Vincent Lopez Orc
Hotel Warwick
Elise Rhodes
Naomi Stevens
Lee Carroll
Larue
Bernice Parks
Ted Straeter Orc
Cy Walters
Pepito Lopez Orc
Latin Quarter
Mincvitch Rascals
Betty George
Dominique
A, Andree & Bonnie
Fleetwoods
Murphy Sisters
Piroska
Carl Conway
Dagenham Pipers
Blx Brent
Midge Minor
Art Waner Orc
La Vie en Rose
Peggy Lee
Beachcombers
Leo De Lyon
Van Smith 3
Leon & Eddie's
Eddie Davis
Arlyn Stuart
Art Waner Orc
Oliver Dcrs
Le Ruban Bleu
Ceil Cabot
Susan Johnson
Jimmy Komack
Norman Paris
Julius Monk
No. 1 Fifth Ave
Bob Downey
Harold Fonville
Hazel Webster
Old Roumanian
Sadie Banks
Sonny Sands
Carolyn Carpenter
Larry Marvin
Joe LaPorte Orc
D'Aquila Orc
Park Sheraton
Milt Herth
Joan Bishop
Town & Country
Bob Carroll
Dupree Trio
Bob Melvin
Three Riffs
Johnny Morris Orc
Two Guitars
LuBoy Homshay
Sigi Ahern
Eli Spivak
Misha Usdanoff
Kostya Pollansky
Versailles
Carmen Torres
Larry Storch
Salvatore Gioe Orc
Panchito Orc
Village Barn
Ernest Sarracino
Ted Huston Orc
Clara Cedrone
Russell Peak
Mattie Sondi
Mavis Mims
Al Normon
Village Vanguard
Irwin Corey
Pat Carroll
Anita Ellis
Clarence Williams Trio
Waldorf-Astoria
Mary Meade
Nat Brandwynne
Mischa Borr Orc
Wivel
Sal Noble
Bob Lee

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

Algiers Hotel
Buddy Walker
Joe Delillah
Tony & Renea
Mal Malkin Orc
Bar of Music
Bill Jordan
David Elliot
Guy Rennie
Beth Challis
Harvey Bell
Biltmore-Terrace
Jimmy Grippo
Frank Stanley Orc
Brook Club
Charlie Farrell
Continentals
Mickey Roselle
Deeva
Casablanca Hotel
Gene Bayles
Maya Orc
Sandra Karaly
Celebrity Club
Alan Gale
Larry Foster
The Haydocks (2)
Chris Columbo
Teddy King Orc
Ciro's
Red Caps
Damita Jo
The Treniers (7)
Clover Club
Lenny Kent
Lillian Roth
Joy Skylar
Tony Lopez Orc
Selma Marlowe Line
Colby's Cove
Cannon & Harmon
Nichols Grymes
Cork Club
Jo Thompson
Eugene Smith
Eddie Snyder
Delano Hotel
Tony Barie
Tommy Numez Orc
Zina Reyes Dancers
Willie Hollander
Delmonico
Jose & Aida
Carlos & Melisa Orc
El Mambo
Carlos Ramirez
The Rodriguez (2)
Raguel
Sam Gyson
Bobby Escoto Orc
Freddy Calo Orc
Five O'clock
Martha Raye
Paul Grey
Ted Wells 4
Len Dawson Orc
Frolic Club
Kathie McCoy
Don Charles Orc
Gaiety Club
Zorita
Honey Lee Walker
Flash Lane
Marie Stowe
Gaiety Girls
Harlem Club
Bobby Barton
Princess Tara
Camile Stevens
Lee Taylor
Ginger Marsh
Johnnie Hotel
Myles Bell
Nellie Collette
Tony Matas
Randum
Kenilworth
Jack Cavallaro Orc
Al Lozito
Ruth Palmer
George Chatirton
LaRue
Juan Cortez Orc
L'Aiglon
Chuy Reyes Orc
Emile Petti Orc
Leon & Eddie's
Babe Baker Revue
Sandra Barton
Kitty O'Kelly
Pat Clayton
Juan Luis & Eleanor
Perry Bruce
Aeres O'Reilly
Ralph Gilbert
Don Charles Orc
Lombardy Hotel
Babs Ware
Pedro Orc
Enrica & Novello
Henry Taylor
Lord Tarleton
Michael Selker Orc
Jeanne Moore
Lou Collins Club
Ann De Don
The Goofers
Malayan Lounge
The Calypsoans
Mariborne Hotel
Manolo & Ethel
Danny Yates Oro
Monte Carlo
Leonard Young
Gallab Dancers
Rafael Rumberos
Music Box
Belle Barth
Don Ostro 3
Mac Fadden Deauville
Vocalions 3
Nautilus Hotel
Buddy Hackett
Harvey Grant
Gomez & Beatrice
Freddy Calo Orc
Joe Harnell
Paddock Club
Jimmy Day
Miss Memphis
Peggy Saunders
Ernie Bell Orc
Flo Parker
Patty Lee
Riviera
Larry Steele's Smart Affairs '53
Jimmy Tyler Orc
Olivette Miller
Butterbeans & Susie
Choclateers (3)
Conrad & Estelle
Sans Souci Hotel
Arthur Blake
Frank Lynn
Sacasas Orc
Ann Herman Dcrs
Saxony Hotel
Los Chavales de Epana
Trinl Reyes
Bernie Mayerson Orc
Julie Romero
Val Olman Orc
Tano & Dee
Shore Club
Rosalio & Steve
Fausto Curbelo
Haven & Held
Singapore
3 Peppers
Magnetones
Novotones
San Marino Hotel
Phil Brito
Palmer Dancers
Quintones
Sorrento
Charles & Samara
Marc Kahn
Alan Kole Orc
Tony Pastor's
Ray Bourbon
Sheila Sheen
Jose Enriguez
Jackie Cole
The Mithens
Vagabonds Club
Vagabonds (4)
Maria Neglia
Condos & Brandow
Martha Ann Bentley
Frank Linale Orc
Eleanor Guipo
Versailles Hotel
Jack Kerr
Nino Rinaldi 3

CHICAGO

Blue Angel
Hal White
Bob Wednock
Velyn & L French
Grace Nichols
Raquel
Irving Burgess
Black Orchid
J Premice & L Martinez
Stan Fisher
Lola Amechee
Jim Stutz Trio
Chez Paree
Lena Horne
Alan King
Lou Willis, Jr
Johnny Morton
Chez Adorables (8)
Brian Fahnon Orc
Conrad Hilton Hot'l
Jeanne Sook & Teddy Roman
Colstons (2)
Deadenders
Jack Rose
Margaret Naylor
Bill Jordan
Herman Maricich
Dick Peterson
Dick Salter
Dennis & Darlene
Buddy Rust
Ollie Clark
Boulevar-Dears (6)
Frankie Masters Orc
Edgewater Beach
Janis Paige
Nanci Crompton
D Hild Dcrs (8)
Bob Kirk Orc
Palmer House
Kyle MacDonnell
Tippy & Cobina
Di Mattiazzis
Skeets Minton
B DeVoye & B Lorraine
Claire Leonard
M Abbott Dcrs (8)
Emil Coleman Orc
Vine Gardens
Al Mack
Gloria Brooks
Madelyn Wallace Dcrs (4)
Pancho Orc

LOS ANGELES

Ambassador Hotel
Compagnon de Chanson
Landre & Verna
Ray Noble Orc
Bar of Music
Ann Anderson
Freddie Stewart
Madeleine Goddard
Eddie Bradford Orc
B Gray's Bandbox
Betty Reilly
Bill Russell
Roy MacNair
"Shecky" Greene
Bert Stone
Eddie Shine
Jimmy Ray
Biltmore Hotel
Gale Robbins
Willie Shore
Lee Marx
Gene Bari Trio
Hal Derwin Orc
Cafe Gala
Bobby Short
Beverly Alber
Stella Brooks
Dick Hazard Trio
Ciro's
Pearl Bailey
Lou Beilson
Bill Bailey
Bobby Ramos Orc
Dick Stabile Orc
Charley Foy's
Spider
Donald Novis
Frankie Hyers
Mary Foy
Marquerite Padula
Sammy Wolfe
Joe Okey
Abbey Browne Orc
Mocambo
Mary McCarthy
Eddie Oliver Orc
Joe Castro Quartet

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA

Desert Inn
Jimmy Durante
Eddie Jackson
Cover Girls
Kathy Barr
De Matiazzis
Jack Roth
Jules Buffano
Donn Arden Dncers
Carlton Hayes Orc
Don McKay
El Cortez
Joaquin Garay
Bette Black
Jill Adams
George DeCarl Orc
Flamingo
"Annie Get Gun"
Jacqueline James
Earl Covert
Jack Rutherford
Cynthia Latham
Roy Milton
Teddy Hart
Bradley Mora
Torris Brand Orc
Last Frontier
"Belle N Orleans"
Marilyn Maxwell
Noonan & Marshall
Cliff Ferre
K Stone Quintet
Devlyn Dancers
Roy Fitzell
Bob Millar Orc
Sahara
Beatrice Kay
Syivan Green
Johnny O'Brien
Sa-Harem Dancers
Cee Davidson Orc
Sands
Ezio Pinza
Betty & Jane Kean
Dominique
Copa Girls
Ray Sinatra Orc
Silver Slipper
Kalantan
Hank Henry
Bean Jesters
Jimmy Cavanaugh
Sparky Kaye
Bill Willard
Marah Gates Hilyd Palominos
Geo Redman Oro
Gloria Pali
Thunderbird
James Barton
Estelle Loring
Bassis
Earl Barton
Barney Rawlings
K Duffy Dansations
Normandie Boys
Al Jahns Orc
El Rancho Vegas
Guy Lombardo Orc & Revue

HAVANA

Casino Nacional
Hermanos Palau
Havana Cuban Boys
Montmartre
Gali Gali
Corona & Arau
Celia Pena
Magdalena
Serenata Espanola
Sans Souci
Gloria Wilson
Celia Cruz
Rocio & Antonio
Mercedes Valdes
Xiomara Alfaro
Tropicana
Chiquita & Johnson
Gloria & Rolando
Zoraida Marrero
Jose LeMatt
Miguel Angel Ortiz

Antone Cafe's 27G Fire

San Antonio, March 31.

The Aero Club here, operated by Jack Hanratty, was gutted by fire Thursday morning (26) causing an estimated $27,000 damage. Lack of an adequate water supply hampered firemen.

Building loss was set at $20,000 with $7,000 for contents.

New Acts

MARILYN MAXWELL
Songs, Dance
18 Mins.
Last Frontier, Las Vegas

Although costarring in a Sammy Lewis package originally skedded to be "Panama Hattie" tabshow and since rewoven and retitled 'Belle of New Orleans, Marilyn Maxwell is spotted briefly in two sessions. The splash from pix into nitery by the gorgeous-appearing and well-stacked blonde was cautiously engineered. As events have proved—and buzz along the Vegas rialto is highly favorable—she could do more.

Upon windup of this three-frame "audition" a complete nitery layout will be staged by Nick Castle.

The oft-touted Maxwellian charms are viewed to good advantage during her current stand. She not only turns out a neat vocal but legs lightly and rhythmically. Good sense of timing, possibly learned from bouts with Bob Hope, has enabled the oomphy femme to parry dialog expertly. Her song intros are simple and direct, with solid personality touches livening up the chatter.

First turn is with Noonan & Marshall and Cliff Ferre in thrushing and terping of "Louisiana Purchase," showing enough sexy hipfossing and torso-twisting to capture complete interest. Later solo slot reveals her forte—saucy and lightly blue lyricizing. This is in special Ferre wordage within "Two To Tango" and "Take It Easy Boys," latter a proved song commodity with GIs during her Korean trek. Lowdown "Got a Right To Sing the Blues" fits her style of delivery very well. Terps, tossed in for enhancing tunes, are easy to watch.

Should be a welcome addition to nitery and theatre circuits seeking marquee value as well as ability to match. Will.

JOHNSON & MADILL
Music, Dance
10 Mins.
Capitol, Washington

Though the boys sing, play the piano and drums, this is essentially a terp act with novel accents. Team has been together only five months and still has plenty rough spots to iron out. Overall idea, however, is sound, and terping is sufficiently expert to rate this promising.

Duo gets off to a slow start, a definite handicap for newcomers. Come on with a tune, "Gotta Dance," lyrics of which are hard to catch. Since terping is standout, while singing is inferior, it would seem better to segue right into the taps and precision steps in which boys excel. This shows up solidly in number in which they tap out the rhythm sans accompaniment.

Another high spot, an appealing novelty, is routine in which one of lads does a "Music Box" tune on ivories while other taps it out atop the grand piano. There's much hopping on and off piano, incidentally, and customers seem to go for flashy effect. Wind up with a fast turn on a pair of barrel drums, pounding out "When You Hear Drums" with their hands and keeping pace with feet. Latter features some acro and gives fine reaction. With faster opening and a smoother method of transition from number to number, this should rate as fine vaude of its kind. Suitable to small stage of nitery as well as big house like this one. Flor.

BOB WHALEN
Songs
12 Mins.
Le Vie en Rose, N. Y.

In his N. Y. cafe debut, Bob Whalen, a Victor tenor, shows a genial, want-to-be-liked mien, okay pipes and good appearance. He's in the Irish "whiskey" groove and though avoiding that identity in songalog, establishes it beyond question by a tendency to finish every tune in that soprano-like crescendo. He could drop his upsweep, after the first couple, or use it sparingly, where it's appropriate.

Chanter gives a good account of himself, particularly on "Tenderly," after opening well in "Loveliest Night of the Year." "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" seems to accentuate the thinness of his voice, but he redeems himself more than adequately in an all-Italo "Sorrento." Still on the romantic, pashy course, he encores nicely with "Embrace Me" and "Because You're Mine," with latter his topper. He's a promising entry in the gimmickless singer sweepstakes. Trau.

TSELLA SCHELTON
Impressions
10 Mins.
Chez Agnes Capri, Paris

Tall, gangling gal with an intense comic face, Tsella Schelton gives out with a series of impressions that are topflight in zaniness, observation and comic timing. Femme has a malleable face, and with the assist of a long black shawl she gives impressions on how an assorted group would audition for a poetry-reading. Among them are a prim English lass, a tragedian, a madwoman and a burley actress. Bit is rich in top mugging and makes for a lot of yocks. Miss Schelton also adds a slapstick broadside of a mother and daughter trying to catch a suitor that makes this a begoff.

She is fine for TV or nitery material with a good comic phiz for pix. Mosk.

THREE CARSONYS
Acro
10 Mins.
Music Hall, N.Y.

This European act has been around U.S. theatres for a couple of years but have not heretofore been documented in the New Acts file. Trio has a slick acro turn featuring the unique one-finger handstand by the pivot member of the team.

Combo paces its stunts at a fast clip, working for the most part on a small table with long sticks and elongated bottles as underpinnings for the balancing routines. Since two of the brothers are twins, trio opens up as an apparent duo with the twins disappearing and reappearing very quickly from behind a special curtain. It's okay for a surprise laugh when the twins come on simultaneously. Herm.

FRANCOISE DORIN
Songs and Poems
15 Mins.
Chez Agnes Capri, Paris

Francoise Dorin is a young chick with a scrubbed freshness and charm that make her an immediate aud catcher. Daughter of the leading chansonnier here, Rene Dorin, she is well-steeped in the tradition of wit and delivery, and offers a fine broadside of tender songs, bits of poetic thoughts and songs that belie her youth in their astuteness and observation. Gal is assured in presence and her thesp know-how helps in delivery of her offbeat material.

She would be good fodder for intime revues and niteries or ingenue material for musicals. Mosk.

Allied

Continued from page 7

Allied leaders that a solution to the increased rentals being asked by distribs was not in bidding against conventional theatres. This practice, it was pointed out, would result in unnecessary competition that would, in effect, up prices of film.

S. J. Goldberg, re-elected prexy of Wisconsin Allied, blasted major distribs for "deliberately" trying to drive small exhibitors out of business. He charged that the practice of issuing pre-release films to selected key cities is ruinous to small indie ops "in a time when they are fighting for their very existence."

In a report on ozoner biz, Ben Marcus, of Oshkosh, noted that drive-in operation had not been greatly affected by other forms of entertainment. Pointing out that many evening TV programs were not suitable for children, Marcus said the ozoners had learned to book programs that appeal to all members of the family. He predicted that every town with a regular theatre would, within the next three years, also have an ozoner, "operated chiefly by indoor owners." Wisconsin, it was disclosed, now has about 50 drive-ins, with more than 100 expected to be in operation by summer.

Actor George Murphy addressed the closing banquet of the convention, stressing that drive-ins had developed a new family audience which should not be considered competition to conventional theatres.

In addition to Goldberg, officers named included Russell Leddy, Green Bay veepee; Edward Johnson, Milwaukee, secretary, and Oliver Trampe, Wauwatosa, treasurer. Directors named were Jerry Goderski, Angelo Provinzano, Floyd Albert, C. L. Baldwin, John P. Adler, Fred Miner, Lucile Fowler and F. J. McWilliams. Ben Marcus was re-elected to the board of National Allied.

Feud of Chi Managers and Critics Seen Benefiting Both in Long Run

Latest flareup of managerial reprisal against the drama critics, particularly in Chicago and Hartford, is running the usual course. With newspaper editors supporting their reviewers in every case, little permanent effect is anticipated.

Some trade observers figure that the situation will, in the long run, have a subtly beneficial effect. However, it's feared that critical raw nerves and resentment may have unpleasant repercussions temporarily. Long-term result may be somewhat greater understanding on the part of critics toward managerial problems and somewhat more careful reviewing. Also, it's hoped, the situation may lead to more tact on the part of producers and theatre managers in dealing with the press in future.

In Chicago, where J. J. Shubert ordered that critics be invited to second-night performances instead of openings, the principal immediate upshot has been the decision by the dailies to purchase tickets for the reviewers to cover first-nights. That will presumably continue indefinitely. In Hartford, where the management of the New Parsons barred Theodore H. Parker, critic for the Courant, even on a purchased ticket, the paper is not covering the shows. With the local season virtually over, no immediate new development is expected, but it's figured the situation may be ironed out there by the time the new season opens next fall.

Although there are admittedly two sides to the question in both Chicago and Hartford, the general feeling in Broadway legit circles is that the situations were unfortunately handled. In Chicago, it's claimed Shubert picked a dubious example in citing "Paint Your Wagon" as having received unfair critical coverage. The show drew mixed reviews on Broadway, it's

(Continued on page 92)

Helen Hayes Denies Any Hartford 'Ultimatum'; Believes in Free Critics

Detroit.

Editor, VARIETY:

I note in your article in the March 25 issue, in connection with the Parsons Theatre-Hartford Courant controversy, that Charles Bowden (the house operator) quoted me as saying that in a recent conversation with him I took offense at Theodore Parker's review of "Mrs. McThing" and would never play the territory again.

At the outset, I should like to emphatically deny that any such conversation took place recently or at any time in the past. I find the false impressions created by such inaccurate statements to be very disturbing, especially since it has always been my principle to never expect the press or public to wholly agree with me in the selection of my plays or the quality of my playing. It would be a denial of one of our most cherished freedoms if I did.

I am reminded that Mr. Parker gave our play two reviews while playing in Hartford. In the first he furiously scored the play, but in the second review he completely reversed himself and found it most enchanting. I surely couldn't quarrel with anyone who displays such honesty and courage.

May I again stress the fact that I believe Mr. Bowden was undoubtedly confused when he attributed such statements to me.

Helen Hayes.

'FIFTH SEASON' GETS INTO THE MONEY

"Fifth Season," Sylvia Regan comedy at the Cort, N. Y., is now in the black. The Menasha Skulnik-Richard Whorf starrer has repaid $30,000 to the backers and has $35,000 balance, including $10,000 cash reserve and $15,000 in bonds. The venture was capitalized at $60,000.

Production cost was about $40,000. There was a $5,500 profit on the tryout, and the show has been drawing near-capacity grosses, with a weekly operating net of about $8,000 since opening Jan. 23 on Broadway.

Atterburys Write Finis To 6-Year Albany Stock

Albany, March 31.

A six-year presentation of stock in Albany—after the city had been without live theatre for two decades—came to an end Saturday (28) for actor-producers Malcolm Atterbury and Ellen Hardies (Mrs. Atterbury) when the curtain fell on "Joan of Lorraine" at the Colonial Playhouse.

The Atterburys had staged 71 productions, employing 106 professional actors and 46 local musicians and singers, since they opened with "My Only Love" at the downtown Playhouse in October, 1947. Couple invested close to $230,000 in the purchase of the old Capitol and its conversion into a modern theatre. Recently demolished, the site is now a parking lot.

Atterburys will go to California for a vacation, with their three children, and may take up permanent residence there. They operated the Tamareck Playhouse (strawhat) at Lake Pleasant before World War II.

Rossini's 'Cenerentola' (You Pronounce It) Has Sock Revival in N.Y.

Rossini's comic opera, "La Cenerentalo" ("Cinderella," to you), which hadn't been done in N. Y. for almost 125 years, had a sock revival by the enterprising N. Y. City Opera Co. at City Center, N. Y., last Thursday (26). Full of pathos and humorous situations, studded with fine solo and ensemble music bits as well as a lilting running score, opus had a delightful presentation by a fine, young bunch of artists who could act as well as sing. Comedy wasn't overdone (as at the Met) under the skilled staging of Otto Erhardt; picture-book sets of Roubenter-Arutunian were eye-catching, and overall musical direction of Joseph Rosenstock made proceedings hum.

Opera is a little slow and old-hat. It's also difficult to cast because of its singing demands. It calls for a mezzo-soprano with a colortura flair, and it got it last week in comely Frances Bible, who sang the lead role with great skill, tonal beauty and style. She got excellent support. Riccardo Manning, onetime Met tenor, made an impressive Prince, though occasionally straining for a high note.

Basso Richard Wentworth was hilarious (as well as highly accomplished vocally) as the mean stepfather. Laurel Hurley revealed a high-grade soprano coloratura as one of the stepsisters, and Edith Evans was good as the other meanie. But George Gaynes stole the spot as the valet disguised as prince, in an ingratiating comic as well as singing performance that was a treat. (He's on leave for the spring opera season from the Roz Russell legiter, "Wonderful Town," where he plays the male lead of mag editor.)

With addition of a hilarious second-act ballet bit that mocked Grecian dance, "Cenerentola" scored a hit. Too bad it's in the Center repertoire for only two more times this season. Avant-garde outfit can stand a few more of these delightful antiques for balance and variety. Bron.

Shows in Rehearsal

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical Comedy), MD (Musical Drama), O (Opera).

Evening With Will Shakespeare (D)—American Shakespeare Festival Foundation, prod.; Mary Hunter, dir.; Basil Rathbone, Faye Emerson, Eva Le Gallienne, Margaret Webster, John Lund, Viveca Lindfors, stars.

Masquerade (C)—Ben Tomkins, Alvin Cooperman, prods.; John Larson, dir.; Veronica Lake, Charles Korvin, stars.

Me and Juliet (MC) — Richard Rodgers, Oscar Hemmerstein 2d, prods.; George Abbott, dir.

Men of Distinction (C)—Chandler Cowles, Martin Gabel, prods.; Gabel, dir.

L'ville Amphi Season Sets 6 Musicals, Leads

Louisville, March 31.

Lineup of shows for the Louisville Amphitheatre season, July 13 through Aug. 23, has been set. Musicals and leads engaged to date are "Kiss Me Kate," with Patricia Morrison, who originated the role; "Sweethearts," Gil Lamb; "Fireffly," Robert Shafer and Lois Hunt; "Louisiana Purchase," Billy Gilbert; "Call Me Madam"; "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Kyle MacDonell.

Denis DuFor will be back for his eighth season as executive producer. Edward Clarke Lilley will stage productions and William Holbrook will return as choreographer. Ed Hunt will be back for his third season as musical and choral director, and Rollo Wayne will again design the sets.

Schildkraut May Do 'Gynt' Gabber

Joseph Schildkraut, who played the title role in the Theatre Guild production of "Peer Gynt" in 1922-23, is being sought to repeat the assignment on tour next season in a dramatic reading of the Ibsen drama, with an orchestral background of the Grieg score. The production, being planned on the Coast by Charles M. G. McLellan, of NBC, would have a cast of seven or eight names, each playing several different parts. Local symph outfits and smaller orchestras in various cities and towns the show played would be used to provide the accompaniment, but on dates where no resident musical group was available the troupe would carry its own unit of seven instrumentalists.

Schildkraut has several alternate legit prospects for next season, including a possible revival by Albert Marre, perhaps at the City Center, N. Y., of "Measure for Measure." He's also considering a new comedy, "Angelica," by Ronald Alexander, author of "Time Out for Ginger," and a play titled "Diary of a Scoundrel," adapted from the Polish.

Theatre Junket to N.Y. Gets Ohio's Okay; Seen Local Legit Hypo

Columbus, O., March 31.

The Columbus Citizen's second annual theatre party, which returned last week from a week's trip to New York, has proved as boff a success as the original junket a year ago. Norman Nadel, sheet's drama critic and host on the tour, which attracted 250 persons (as against last year's 75); got some interesting reactions from interviewing half of the party on the return home.

Approximately one-third of the group had never been to New York before, and half of them had been there occasionally. Nadel asked them if the theatre party will influence their attendance of the theatre at home. Thirty-four said they will go more often than before; two said they would go less; and 49 said their attendance would be the same as in the past.

All but two of those interviewed by Nadel said they would be interested in making the trip again. Both of these were old people who said they were glad they came, but once was enough. Comments were all highly favorable. A Bellefontaine woman said, "It's worth a lot just to have your seats reserved for you." Another woman said, "Versatility of planning and the variety of the trip would be impossible for an individual to arrange at that cost."

Attitudes toward New Yorkers differed widely. One said, "It takes something like this to make you appreciate the friendliness of Columbus people." But another found Gothamites "most gracious."

The Citizen offered its readers train transportation to New York, hotel rooms, tickets to "Wonderful Town," "Wish You Were Here," "Dial M for Murder" and "Love of Four Colonels," plus "Cinerama," trips around New York, to Radio City and to the UN, for $99.50. "Wonderful Town" was first choice as top attraction among those interviewed. "Cinerama" was next popular. The trip to the UN buildings rated third place.

Show Finances

'OKLAHOMA'
(As of Jan. 31, '53)

Original investment	$90,000
Gross for last five weeks on tour	146,719
Profit for last five weeks on tour	14,685
Total profit to date	5,311,520
Less undistributable items (film rights, $20,000; London company expense, $3,006; cash reserve, $20,000)	43,006
Recently distributed profit	20,000
Total profit distributed to date	5,236,400
Balance available for distribution	32,114

(Note: The Theatre Guild production opened March 31, '43, at the St. James, N. Y., and ran 2,248 performances on Broadway, still the record for a musical. Except for summer layoffs, at least one company has been playing ever since, with productions in many foreign countries. The Rodgers-Hammerstein musical's 10th anniversary was celebrated last night (Tues.) at the National, Washington, where it is current.)

Inside Stuff—Legit

Although the gross for "Porgy and Bess," at the Ziegfeld, N. Y., last week is reported as $89,900, the receipts were actually $7,980 more than that. Explanation is that the revival, a non-profit presentation by Blevins Davis and Robert Breen, retains the 20% Federal admissions tax. It shares with the house on basis of the net amount (that is, minus the tax) and pays royalties on the same basis. But because the enterprise is non-profit, the production keeps the 20% margin. Tickets for the show list the price ($6 top) and carry a statement immediately below, "Tax exempt." Without that explanation, on the ticket, the show management would presumably have to share with the house and pay royalties on the basis of the total amount, since in that case the price would officially be a straight $6, with no theoretical tax involved. But under the present setup the price is figured as $5, with the show retaining the extra $1 normally remitted to the Government.

Odd angle of the situation is that Billy Rose, owner of the Ziegfeld, announced some months ago plans for a non-profit entertainment foundation at the Ziegfeld. However, he never actually obtained Government sanction for the project, and still operates the theatre on a commercial basis.

Backers of "Horses In Midstream," the Gilbert Miller-Donald Oenslager production opening at the Royale Theatre, N. Y., tomorrow (Thurs.), include Oenslager, $4,200; press-agent George Ross, $900; his associate Madelin Blitzstein, $300; choreographer Hanya Holm, $600; theatre owner-investor Howard S. Cullman, $2,400; Actors Fund proxy Walter Vincent, $3,600; United Paramount Theatres proxy Leonard Goldenson, $2,400; John E. Waters, representing Lee Shubert, $7,200; Mrs. Edward Kook, wife of the head of Century Lighting, $600; theatre exec Louis A. Lotito, $1,200; bandleader Meyer Davis, $900; legit producer Elaine Perry, $600; actress Dorothy Patten, $600; theatrical attorney Jesse Moss, $1,200; songwriter Irving Caesar, $1,200; costume designer Helene Pons, $600; talent agent Mrs. Francis Head, $1,200 and Jane Ann Choate, daughter of general manager Edward Choate, $1,200. Production was capitalized at $60,000 without provision for overcall. General partners are Miller, Oenslager, Cedric Hardwicke and Andrew Rosenthal. Rosenthal, who authored the play, reportedly supplied considerable backing, but through one or more unspecified representatives. He's also understood to be putting up the coin to cover out-of-town losses that have taken the show over the budget.

N. Y. Times drama critic Brooks Atkinson, class of 1917 at Harvard, is one of eight nominees for director of the Harvard Alumni Assn. this spring (four to be chosen). Biog sent to alumni on the reviewer reads: "Justin Brooks Atkinson, '17, L.H.D. (Williams) '41, of New York City. Journalist with N. Y. Times. He is a trustee of Antioch College, director of the American Theatre Wing and former secretary of the American National Theatre and Academy. Served as war correspondent in China, 1942-44, and news correspondent in Russia, 1945-46. Awarded Pulitzer Prize in journalism for his report on Russia, 1947. Among his books are 'Skyline Promenades'; 'Henry Thoreau, Cosmic Yankee'; 'The Cingalese Prince', and 'Once Around the Sun.' Associate editor, Harvard Alumni Bulletin, 1920-22."

Mary Morris, Broadway actress now on a year's leave of absence from the faculty of the Carnegie Tech Drama School in Pittsburgh, is directing what virtually amounts to a Tech Alumni Assn. and also starring in a production of 'The Trojan Women," by Euripides, for a single performance Sunday (5) at the Community Church of New York. It's a benefit for the church and the Actors Fund. Among ex-Tech students in the company are Mitchell Agruss, Collette Crawford, Hermine Dubroff, Angela Paton, Susan Willis and Nancy Wickwire. Miss Morris also staged 'The Trojan Women" at Carnegie Tech last year.

Souvenir booklet issued by British producer Emile Littler in connection with his current London hit, "Love from Judy," is unusual in that it includes a list of all his presentations, flops as well as hits. Including his touring editions of shows originally produced in the West End by other managements, the lineup comprises 37 successes and 26 failures, besides 12 annual pantomimes in London, but excluding 50 similar shows in the British provinces. Striking angle of the booklet is the inclusion of a quotation to the effect that success is generally due to persistence rather than talent, genius or education.

Current Stock Bills

(March 30-April 12)

Around We Go — Playhouse, Houston (8-12).

Bell, Book and Candle (Victor Jory)—Palm Springs (Cal.) Playhouse (31-5).

Guardsman (Zachary Scott) — Bermudian, Hamilton, Bermuda (7-12).

Late Christopher Bean (Betty Field)—Bermudian, Hamilton, Bermuda (31-5).

Late Edwina Black — Playhouse, Houston (30-6).

On Your Toes (Patricia Bowman, Georgie Tapps)—Paper Mill, Milburn, N. J. (6-12).

Play's the Thing (Magda Gabor) —Quarterdeck, Atlantic City (6-12).

Shadow and Substance — Dobbs Ferry (N. Y.) Playhouse (4-5).

Anna Russell to Star In Canadian Revue

Anna Russell, concert comedienne who made a splash last season and this with her full-evening show of takeoffs on longhairs, has been signed for her third Town Hall, N.Y., appearance this year, on April 23, as a benefit for the Third St. Music Settlement. Singer, who made her first Frisco appearance March 3, was immediately booked back for two more dates, April 6 and 7. In May, she's to star in a revue, titled "Spring Thaw," to be produced locally by the Canadian National Theatre in Toronto.

Singer, who's handled by Eastman Boomer, of Columbia Lecture Bureau, is also being readied for a tour of the barns this summer, heading a revue package.

Out-of-'Town' Not So Wonderful; B'way Boff More Than Compensates

As usually happens with musicals undergoing tryout revisions, "Wonderful Town" went into the red during its pre-Broadway tour, despite record-setting capacity grosses. The Rosalind Russell starrer had a $6,631 operating deficit on a $207,312 total gross for its five-week road tuneup.

Before settling down Feb. 25 to solid standee trade and substantial operating profit at the Winter Garden, N. Y., the Robert Fryer musical represented an investment of $206,341, excluding $16,955 union bonds. That included $188,391 production cost, $6,631 tryout loss and $11,319 pre-opening expense in New York.

There's a possible $8,000 additional production cost involved in two costume items in dispute, but that would be offset by a similar amount of orchestrating, copying and arranging expense to be recouped from composer Leonard Bernstein and lyricists Betty Comden and Adolph Green, at the rate of $100 per week. An unusual aspect of the initial accountant's statement covering the production is that it lists all unpaid bills.

The production cost of the show included $52,683 for scenery, $36,742 for costumes (excluding the disputed $8,000) $17,679 for orchestration (including the $8,000 to be repaid), $8,750 advance royalties, $33,785 rehearsal salaries, $4,985 other rehearsal expense, $14,677 for company transportation and hauling, and $19,091 in other expenses, including payments of $5,000 and $2,500, respectively, to composer Leroy Anderson and lyricist Arnold B. Horwitt, in settlement of their previous contracts.

George Abbott, who staged the production, received $5,000 advance and gets 2½% of the gross

(Continued on page 90)

It's 'Queen Shirley' As Booth Adds 3d Tony To Oscar, 'Variety' Crowns

By winning the Antoinette Perry award for the third time Sunday (29), at the annual American Theatre Wing dinner in N.Y., Shirley Booth has probably amassed the most impressive parlay of awards in show biz history. Actress copped the Wing's seventh annual Tony award in the distinguished femme dramatic performance category for her starring role in "Time of the Cuckoo." She had just won an Academy Award Oscar for her starring performance in the film," "Come Back, Little Sheba."

Most recent accolade marks her as a three-time Tony winner, as she received that award in 1949 for her supporting role in "Goodbye, My Fancy" and in 1950 for her starring portrayal in "Sheba." She has also taken the spotlight twice in the annual VARIETY poll of legit critics. In this voting, she came out as best dramatic actress for "Sheba" and again for her role in the musical, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

Other winners in the Wing's 16-award categories were "The Crucible," outstanding drama; "Wonderful Town," outstanding musical; Tom Ewell ("The Seven Year Itch"), distinguished starring dramatic performance; Rosalind Russell ("Town"), distinguished starring musical performance; Thomas Mitchell ("Hazel Flagg"), distinguished starring musical performance; Beatrice Straight ("Crucible"), distinguished featured performance; John Williams ("Dial M For Murder"), distinguished featured performance; Sheila Bond ("Wish You Were Here"), distinguished featured musical performance; Hiram Sherman ("Two's Company"), distinguished featured musical performance; Raoul Pene Du Bois ("Town"), outstanding set designer; Miles White ("Flagg"), outstanding costume designer; Joshua Logan ("Picnic"), outstanding director; Donald Saddler ("Town"), outstanding choreographer; Lehman Engel ("Town" and Gilbert & Sullivan season), outstanding musical director; and Abe Kurnit (property man for "Wish"), outstanding stage technician.

Special awards were given to Beatrice Lillie, Danny Kaye and the Equity Community Theatre.

'Devil & Webster' Bows At Mass. Colony July 18

Sturbridge, Mass., March 31.

"Devil and Daniel Webster," music drama by Stephen Vincent Benet and Douglas Moore, will be presented July 18 through Aug. 29 as a feature of an annual festival to be held at Old Sturbridge Village, a restored colonial community here. Folk musical will be staged in an openair theatre, with a professional cast including Clifford Harvuot, Adelaide Bishop and Luigi Vellucci.

Elmer Nagy will stage the production, with Moshe Paranov musical director and Alwin Nicolai choreographer. Operation is budgeted at $70,000.

R&H Backers Sore at Sluff

Regular backers of Rodgers & Hammerstein and Joshua Logan shows are reportedly doing a quiet burn at the financing arrangements for two incoming productions, "Me and Juliet" and "Kind Sir." Beef is that they've been excluded in the special capitalization setups of the two shows, both of which are rated promising b.o. bets in advance.

The disgruntled investors readily admit that they have no legal or even specific moral ground for grievance, and that their feelings are purely disappointment at not being able to string along on hot prospects of successful author-management combos. Moreover, there's no suggestion that they won't be glad to go in on the next project of either Rodgers & Hammerstein or Logan. But they still feel that they've been by-passed.

In the case of the Rodgers-Hammerstein musical, "Me and Juliet," the author-producers are getting $200,000 of the capital from RCA-Victor and putting up the balance themselves. No outside backers are being admitted, so there is no ground for charges of favoritism. But since regular R & H investors have always been included in past productions, they were licking their monetary chops in anticipation of another cleanup on "Me and Juliet."

"Kind Sir," to be produced by Logan, who will also direct, is being financed entirely by him, author Norman Krasna and costars Charles Boyer and Mary Martin. It is capitalized at $75,000, with no provisions for overcall. Backers of the current Logan-Theatre Guild production of "Picnic" were hoping to get in on the upcoming entry, which is slated for Broadway next fall. However, they were specifically notified that investing in either "Picnic" or the Leland Hayward-Logan production of "Wish You Were Here" would not entitle them to inclusion in "Kind Sir."

Backer mutterings in the two cases recall the "Call Me Madam" situation of three years ago, when the Irving Berlin-Howard Lindsay-Russel Crouse musical starring Ethel Merman was backed entirely by RCA-Victor, with the regular Hayward investors left out.

'APRIL' DUE FOR REVISE; WAITING FOR N.Y. HOUSE

Further tryout bookings for "Date with April" (formerly titled "I Found April") have been cancelled and the Kenneth Banghart-Diana Green production will lay off for revisions until a New York house is available. The George Batson comedy, starring Constance Bennett, was to have played Philly next week, after laying off this week.

Actors Equity has given permission for the production to lay off for a maximum of eight weeks, but the management hopes to obtain a Broadway house and open within the next two weeks.

Big Upbeat in Cincy Legit Sked This Year

Cincinnati, March 31.

Current season for stage shows is Cincy's biggest in years. Shubert operations, including their own 1,300-seat Cox and rentals at the 2,500-seat Taft Theatre, are rounding out a 27-week stretch which has been boosted by renting of the Cox for four weeks each by Stage, Inc., and Music Drama Guild, local groups.

Last season there were only 10 weeks of operation. Latest scheduling by Noah Schechter, resident manager for the Shuberts, is Margaret Sullavan in "Deep Blue Sea" at the Cox, week of April 20.

Anne Baxter Set For Readings Tour

Hollywood, March 31.

Anne Baxter will tour next season in a program of dramatic readings of poems by Stephen Vincent Benet and others, with a choral background and possibly a small supporting cast. In revealing the project, producer Paul Gregory denied reports that the screen actress would replace Judith Anderson next fall for the resumption of the tour of the current "John Brown's Body," costarring Tyrone Power and Raymond Massey.

According to the producer, Miss Baxter will confer in England this summer with Charles Laughton, who is to stage the offering, to pick the selections to be read and the compositions for musical accompaniment. The show is tentatively slated to go out next January, playing one-nighters but probably not appearing on Broadway. It will be the first U. S. legit appearance for the film actress, who was on the London stage before coming to Hollywood. Miss Baxter and her mother leave next week for an extended vacation on the Continent.

Miss Anderson (as are Power and Massey) is signed for next season's "Body" tour, Gregory adds, explaining that the show will open its regular bookings Sept. 21 in Los Angeles, after a tuneup date in Santa Barbara. The choral group, directed by Richard White, will again be with the offering. "Body" is currently at the Century, N. Y., but closes there April 11 and will lay off this summer while Power and Massey fill screen commitments.

Meanwhile, Gregory discloses that he's also continuing discussions with Joan Crawford regarding a possible tour in a "reading" show.

5 U.S. ORIGINALS IN LONDON 'GUYS' CAST

London, March 31.

There will be at least seven Americans in the cast of the London production of "Guys and Dolls," which preems at the Coliseum May 28 after a tryout week at Bristol. Proceeds of a pre-opening night will be donated to theatrical charities.

The U. S. contingent, with exception of Sam Levene, is scheduled to arrive here April 13. Rehearsals begin that day for the British cast, with the Yanks participating a week later.

In addition to Vivian Blaine in her original role of Adelaide and Sam Levene in his original part of Nathan Detroit, the Broadway lineup includes Jerry Wayne as Sky Masterson; Stubby Kaye in his original role of Nicely-Nicely; Johnny Silver in his original of Benny Southstreet; Tom Pedi, also an original as Harry the Horse; and Lew Herbert as Big Jule.

All major roles, apart from that of Sarah Brown, have been filled, and the British cast includes Ernest Butcher, as Arvide Abernathy; Danny Green, as Joey Biltmore; Lou Jacobi, as Liver-Lips Louis; Robert Arden, as Angie the Ox; Gordon Needham, as Scanton Slim; and Laurie Webb, as Society Max.

For the 48 parts in the production, Arthur Lewis has auditioned upwards of 3,500 British players. The show, as previously announced, is being presented by Broadway producers Feuer & Martin, in association with Prince Littler.

Legit's Cliffhanging Headaches; Tough to Sell Those Topside Pews

Illness Plagues 'Wife'; Troupe Trekking East

San Francisco, March 31.

Charles Plummer has joined the "Constant Wife" troupe here as understudy for John Emery, who's been in ill health the last couple of weeks. Jean Cameron (Mrs. Claude Horton) went on last week for Eva Leonard-Boyne, who was ill with flu.

The Katharine Cornell production ends its local stand next Saturday (4) and heads for the northwest, after which it will head back east. It winds up its tour with a split week May 18-23 between Springfield, Mass., and New Haven. That will complete almost two years in the Maugham revival for the star, who opened it at the Central City (Col.) Festival in the summer of 1951.

Enuff Stuff For 'Son of Can-Can'

"Can-Can," Cole Porter-Abe Burrows musical trying out in Philly, is a b.o. sensation there. The Cy Feuer-Ernest H. Martin production set a local boxoffice record last week, getting $50,003 for eight capacity performances at the 1,870-seat Shubert, and is an advance sellout for the remaining three weeks of the engagement. The show is due April 30 at the Shubert, N. Y.

Having rolled up the biggest advance sale in Philly annals for its original three-week booking, "Can-Can" announced over the weekend that the stand would be extended an extra week to allow ample time for revisions. When the boxoffice opened at 9:30 a.m. Monday (30) for the added week, there was a line up Broad St. from the theatre, along Locust St. and around the corner into 15th St. Ticket sale for the day totalled $30,500, including 20% Federal tax and a small local levy. That's figured about $24,000 net over the window during the day. At that rate, the final week will be sold out today (Wed.).

With the musical admittedly overlong, the principal problem is one of cutting. Besides liberal slicing of dialog, three songs have been eliminated, at least temporarily. They include "Positively Pay You Next Monday" and "The Law," from the first act, and "A Man Must His Honor Defend" from the second act. However, all three numbers went over well with the audience and their cutting was merely a matter of selection and balance, so any of them may be reinstated.

After the opening performance of the tryout, there was obviously so much extra material that co-producer Martin remarked that they might use the deletions for another show. A former Hollywood resident, the producer suggested, "We could call it 'Son of Can-Can'."

Northampton, Mass., Tent Being Readied by Tuttle

Musical tent may be operated this summer at Northampton, Mass., by former Broadway producer-director Day Tuttle. If the venture can't be readied in time for this season, the plan is to go ahead definitely for 1954.

Tuttle, professor of dramatics at Smith College, will be producer of the operation, and Cornelius Cotter, who was manager for the first three years at St. John Terrell's Lambertville (N. J.) Music Circus, will be general manager. The proposed site of the venture is Look Memorial Park, a publicly owned and privately operated spot near the center of town.

Project is budgeted at $75,000, of which $60,000 has been raised. However, if a suitable tent can't be obtained and other arrangements completed within the next week or so, the scheme will be shelved until a year hence.

Management of "Seven Year Itch," which has played to solid capacity at the Fulton, N.Y., since opening last Nov. 19, has for some weeks been buying radio spot announcements to hypo balcony trade. That's a graphic example of how upstairs patronage, once a substantial part of legit revenue, is now steadily becoming tougher to draw.

For all but a few shows of special appeal, such as classic revivals, balcony tends to be the slowest-selling ticket. That's particularly true of second-balcony, called the gallery at some houses. For almost any current hit on Broadway the topside locations are available on shorter notice than the balcony and/or mezzanine. Hardest to get, in many cases, are the top-scale orchestra seats.

It's a long-recognized fact that it's virtually impossible to sell out a second balcony for a show unless the boxoffice pressure for a hit is so great that prospective patrons are unwilling to wait a few weeks to obtain downstairs or first-balcony seats. In that case they buy the upper locations on relatively short notice. "Top-heavy" shows, as the reverse used to be known, are almost unheard of these days. Only thing that keeps the situation from driving managements daffy is that the amount of unsold seats, at the reduced scale upstairs, represents a comparatively small margin of the total gross.

Feeling among veteran company and house managers and boxoffice

(Continued on page 92)

Unions Miffed at 'Snub' By New ANTA Board; Membership to Be 69

Unions are understood to be burned because they are not represented, except for Equity, on the 63-member new board of directors of American National Theatre & Academy, recently elected by 1,000 of the organization's some 2,200 members. Motion pictures, formerly represented by Spyros Skouras, are likewise not included.

New board, widely-touted as "more representative" than the previous one, expands from 47 members to 69, with the majority of those from the former board also present on the new one, excluding those who were not nominated or who, like Blevins Davis, refused to run.

Some six more persons remain to be named to the board, by the 63 just elected, and union representatives are prepared to claim some of these; however, there is also a feeling that these six seats are designated for VIP's, or more or less "honorary" members, who by name or action might help ANTA get the foundation grant it is seeking.

Old hands on the new board, including Vinton Freedley, Helen Hayes, Clarence Derwent, Peggy Wood, Gilbert Miller, George Freedley, C. Lawton Campbell, Robert W. Dowling and Christian Westphalen, are among those representing the professional theatre and public on the board. There are 18 reps of the professional theatre, chosen from 44 names nominated by Actors Equity. Next largest group is the 12-member "public" panel, chosen from 19 names nominated by the old ANTA board. All but a few of these 30 are from New York and environs. Of the other members elected to the board nine represent educational theatre, nine community and children's theatre, and 14 the geographical regions of the country.

HEIMAN PREPPING 2 MUSICAL REVIVALS

At least two musical revivals are planned for next season tour under the sponsorship of Marcus Heiman, president of United Booking Office. Complete financing for two productions is available. John Yorke is slated to be the actual producer and general manager of the operation.

Out-of-town theatre managers, who would presumably participate in the backing of the shows, are being queried for their choice of vehicles, as are key-city critics.

Plays Out of Town

The Pink Elephant

New Haven, March 26.

Eugene Paul and William I. Kaufman, with Blair Wallisor, production of comedy in three acts (five scenes) by John G. Fuller. Features Steve Allen, Howard Smith, Jean Casto, Bruce Gordon, Heywood Hale Broun, David White, Patricia Barry. Directed by Harry Ellerbe; setting and lighting, Ralph Alswang; costumes, Guy Kent. At Shubert, New Haven, March 26, '53; $3.60 top.

Betty ..... Joel Wesley
Richard Bannerman ..... Bruce Gordon
Jerry Elliot ..... Steve Allen
Bellhop ..... Lee Krieger
Lee Meredith ..... Patricia Barry
Peggy Boyd ..... Jean Casto
Herb Anderson ..... Arthur Tell
Robert Evans ..... Martin Torby
Gilbert Parker ..... David White
Reporter ..... John O'Hare
Henry C. Griffin ..... Howard Smith
Ed Glennon ..... Haywood Hale Broun
Margie ..... Roslyn Valero
Walter ..... Jon Richards

Unless there's a radical stepping up of play values in "The Pink Elephant," the sponsors will probably find a pachyderm of a considerably lighter hue on their hands.

Just as pink is a diluted shade of red, so, in its present status, is this one an example of watered stage fare. A three stanza affair, which finally gets going in the third frame, almost wears out its battery grinding the starter during the first two.

Actually, this is not the type of play that makes too much sense from a story viewpoint. Its theme can be dismissed with a mild shrug, which leaves it up to dialog, situations and playing to carry the ball. There's a fair share of talent in each of these divisions, but not enough to swing a favorable decision.

Nobody can criticize a guy for trying. A man who will stick to writing 11 plays before he finally gets the 12th one produced rates some sort of encouragement. That's how things are with John Fuller, author of "Elephant." His present work shows capability at writing amusing lines, creating amusing business and batting out amusing situations. That these qualities don't add up to a click at the moment is probably due to the fact that they are spread out too thin.

Title refers to a somewhat hazy attempt to hang a Communist-leaning tag on certain members of the G.O.P. national committee, in session at a special meeting in Kansas City. Theme concerns Jerry Elliot, ghost-writer for a G.O.P. bigwig, who is being challenged for the whiphand in running committee affairs. In the scrivening end strictly for the dough, which he hopes will enable him to buy a boat and sail the seas solo, Elliot suddenly encounters Lee Meredith, attractive young actress, product of a swank finishing school.

After a bit of imbibing, the two wake up in Elliot's bed, neither knowing exactly what had transpired during the night. In complications that follow, Lee's admiration for Elliot turns sour when she points out to him that he's just a literary stooge with no mind of his own. To make the tale come out according to formula, author has Elliott tell his boss off and then quit, only to be welcomed back into the fold under terms more to his own liking.

Steve Allen, from TV and radio, is making his legit bow here. As a vehicle, he might have made a more substantial choice, but as a showcase, "Elephant" serves him okay, as it points up his stage presence and ease at tossing off dialog. Patricia Barry, as the young femme thesp, has considerable appeal in her not-too-exciting role.

Howard Smith does a good job as the blustery top G.O.P. committeeman; Jean Casto is authentic as Lee's caustic fellow-trouper; Heywood Hale Broun carves a neat niche for himself as a weasel-type concocter of insidious half-truths; Bruce Gordon makes the part of the politician's right-hand man believable; David White is suitable as the rival committeeman.

Single set is an example of standout designing, showing three separate hotel rooms and a hallway all on a single level. It provides for interesting playing in one, two or three units simultaneously. This factor, incidentally, puts a neat problem up to the staging, which has been accomplished smoothly despite inability of room occupants to see each other. Bone.

Nightmare Abbey

Ottawa, March 24.

Canadian Repertory Theatre presentation of satire in two acts (six scenes), dramatized by Anthony Sharp from novel by Thomas Love Peacock. Directed by Amelia Hall. Set by Basil Armstrong. With William Glenn, Reginald Malcolm, George McCowan, Russ Waller, Lew Davidson, Sam Payne, Ian Fellows, Irving Lerner, William Shatner, Margaret Griffin, Barbara Cummings. At LaSalle Academy, Ottawa, March 21, '53.

"Nightmare Abbey" seems a dubious choice for here. A surprise success in London last year and here receiving its North American preem, play has a heavily literary flavor, except in one very funny second-act scene. It wouldn't stand a chance of pulling in general audience anywhere on this side of the water without a big-name cast. Would be okay for university and such specialized audiences, though.

Anthony Sharp's dramatization of what might be called a parody of manners, by 19th-century novelist Thomas Love Peacock, retains huge portions of the book's dialog intact. Occasional modernizations improve it so much, that more of that treatment might possibly make it palatable to those not steeped in social and literary history, nor familiar with the stilted phrasing of that day.

Plot brings a mysterious black-cloaked beauty to hide in the tower of Nightmare Abbey, a burlesque of the stately homes of England. Its hyper-romantic scion finds himself torn between love for her and his former one-and-only, loses both to men, then threatens suicide but reneges.

Amelia Hall's staging is very effective, considering script handicaps, and Basil Armstrong, formerly a set designer on several British hit films, catches the gagged-up gloom in his single set, rearranged slightly for Act 2. Lew Davidson in the lead (originally written as a rib of the poet, Shelley, who was a friend of Peacock), ranges from okay to excellent. Barbara Cummings, beautiful blonde with some London West End experience, is a perfectly stylized woman of mystery. Other standouts are Ian Fellows, another actor with transatlantic experience, as Mr. Listless; George McCowan, as Mr. Glowry; and Reginald Malcolm, onetime London and Broadway leading man, now living here, as Raven, the Stygian butler. Gard.

Equity Show

Within These Gates

(LENOX HILL, N. Y.)

Sean O'Casey's "Within the Gates," a moving drama of the "down and out," is expressionistic, non-commercial and deserving of better treatment than it receives in the current heavy-handed, confused and unimaginative production by Equity Library Theatre.

Direction by Sala Staw seems to muddle what would otherwise be clear and muzzle what is eloquent. The actors veer between acting realistically and swallowing poetry that should soar, and acting in a hollow kind of abstractionism that makes sincerity look like pretentiousness. If there is a new trend in drama towards free form, then this exhibit of "Gates," written in that form, is a warning that few directors today can cope with nonrealism on the stage.

Joanne Budill is effective about 50% of the time as the castoff young girl, whom a bishop, a dreamer, and an atheist are trying to convert to their respective beliefs. O'Casey gives them equally good arguments, but the acting is not equal. The dreamer comes off worst, as played by Robert Delano, whose performance lacks poetic feeling and does not rise to the lyricism O'Casey has written for it. On the other hand, Alfred Sandwina gives a quietly impressive interpretation of the atheist. Champ Reynolds is best of all in what is probably the most difficult role, the bishop, sensitively bringing out both the human and spiritual qualities of the man.

There is little of the effect of ensemble performance which this play demands, so the crowd scenes in the park where the action is set are confused. Therefore, Tom Bosley, James Greene, Constance Kelly, and Fritz Weaver are probably better than the caricatures they achieve here. Mary Bell as a depraved old woman, the girl's mother, David Elliot as a strolling philosopher, Mary Boylan as a policewoman, and John Morley as a Salavation Army officer, turn in some fine performances. Other assets are Allan Gruener and James Carew as argumentative men in the street, but J. Talbor Holland is hardly convincing as a virile gardener.

Lehman Engel's music is not integrated with the action. Likewise, the dancers are talented, but choreography by Andora Hodgin is unimaginative. Peter Poor's set is useful but creates no mood, while Roger Willis' costumes are a definite contribution. Vene.

Legit Bits

TV comic Steve Allen broke out with a flock of his characteristic ad libs during last week's break-in engagement of "Pink Elephant" in New Haven. Author John Fuller reportedly wasn't too happy about the liberties taken with his script, but most of the gags stayed in at subsequent performances . . . William Harris has withdrawn as treasurer of the National, N. Y., to fill his annual stint at the track, with Anna Hirsch stepping up from assistant to take over as treasurer and Jerry Connell coming in as assistant.

Jose Ferrer is now talking about Audrey Hepburn to costar as Ophelia in his proposed production of "Hamlet" next season, perhaps after a tryout at Edinburgh prior to Broadway . . . Clayre Ribner will be a production associate on "Masquerade" . . . Text of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" will be published today (Wed.) by Viking . . . League of N. Y. Theatres is again getting complaints about the swarm of mendicants soliciting for "charity" in the Times Square, N. Y., area just at show time . . . Elaine Perry has acquired "Angry Apes," by Harry Ridgeley, for fall production on Broadway.

Stan Brody is pressagenting "New Faces" on tour . . . Walter Slezak, male lead of "My 3 Angels," has rented the Ossining (N. Y.) home of Jose Ferrer, who staged the play . . . Sol Jacobson is subbing as associate to press-agent Leo Freedman while Abner Klipstein vacations in the Virgin Islands . . . Playwright Eugene Lerner sails next week for an extended trip to the Continent, during which he'll work on two scripts and do a pilot film for a tele series . . . Dorothy Patten has succeeded Kay Hammond in "On Borrowed Time" . . . Former producer David Heilweil is operating a Bat-a-Ball game in Florida . . . Robert Schnitzer, company manager of "Camino Real," will be in charge of U. S. attractions at the Berlin Festival next September, for the third successive year.

Donald Wolin plans a fall production of an untitled play by pressagent James Proctor . . . Beatrice Lillie and Victor Jory will receive awards as the "most cooperative stars" of the 1952 strawhat season at a Stock Managers Assn. luncheon April 28 at Town Hall, N. Y. . . . Broadway stage manager Robert Dowling was guest lecturer last Thursday (26) at the U. of Houston. He addressed a theatre course regularly taught by Joanna Albus and William Rozen, who operate the Houston Playhouse, where his "Around We Go" is being tried out next week.

Gerald Savory has resigned as a TV director at station WOR, N. Y., to return as resident stager this summer of the Playhouse-in-the-Park, Philly . . . Robert Rapport is general manager, Jack Potter company manager, David Cantor pressagent of "Pink Elephant" . . . Arnold Sundgaard has been commissioned to write a play commemorating the 200th anniversary of Williamstown, Mass., being celebrated this summer. The show will be presented early next fall . . . J. Myles Putnam will be production stage manager of "Masquerade."

Alice Venezky Griffin has resigned as publicity rep for the American National Theatre & Academy to freelance as press-agent and author. Her latest book, "Living Theatre," will be published April 16 by Twayne . . . Niagara Barn Theatre, Vineland, Ont., opens a 30-week season April 10 with "Angel On the Loose," new comedy by Victor Clement and Francis Swann . . . Alan Schneider, resident director of the Arena State, Washington, was married last week to Jean Muckle, a non-pro from London . . . Pending the outcome of her anti-trust suit against the Shuberts, Sylvia Seigler has circularized members of her Show-of-the-Month Club announcing a return to the 1951 subscription rate and asking them to go along with the operation.

Mary Hayley Bell, playwright wife of British actor John Mills, has written a new play, "Foreign Field," set for tryout early April at Bromley. Her current play, now on British tour, is "The Uninvited Guest," starring Mills, Cathleen Nesbitt and Joan Greenwood.

Betty Bruce and John Tyers will head the cast in "Up in Central Park," which tees off the 35th anni season of the Municipal Theatre Assn., at St. Louis with an 11-night frame June 4.

Restaurateur Vincent Sardi, Jr., isn't a backer of "Can-Can," but he says he's got a big investment in it. Owner of Sardi's restaurant explains that he's installing a new, enlarged kitchen and making other renovations in the establishment, counting on the dinner and after-theatre trade from the Cole Porter-Abe Burrows musical due at the Shubert, directly across 44th Street, N.Y., to cover cost of the changes. "It better be a hit," he remarks.

Pressagent Ned Armstrong taking over from Carleton Miles on "Mrs. McThing" in Chicago April 6 . . . William Tregoe, who did leads with Malcolm Atterbury's Colonial Playhouse stock company in Albany, N.Y., this season, is sailing April 16 for a six-week tour of Britain and France . . . Dick Skinner to be company manager for "Evening With Will Shakespeare," opening next Monday (6) in Boston.

Hurok May Run

Continued from page 1

sons. Casino has also lost coin in operations the past four years, and a hypo via ballet, opera and concert attractions at the Opera House, under a world-famed figure as overall director, is seen as antidote.

If deal goes through, Hurok would prep two six-week seasons at Monte Carlo, at Easter and Xmas time. These would call for presentations by either resident or touring opera and ballet companies, plus visiting symphs and solo artists. Opera House has only 550 seats, but is considered a strong culutral shill for patrons, who then spend the rest of their time at the Casino dining and gambling.

From Hurok's point of view, the arrangement would permit him to use some of his artists at Monte Carlo (his repping of most of his talent is now confined to the U. S.), as well as other advantages accruing. Setup would only take two months of his time each year. Hurok is in England at the moment finalizing details for visit of Sadler's Wells Ballet of London to the U. S. next fall. Then he goes to France and Monte Carlo.

Out-of-'Town'

Continued from page 89

(l.e is also getting a weekly rental for electrical equipment he has supplied). Choreographer Donald Saddler got $2,000 advance and draws three-fourths of 1% plus $100 weekly royalty, while Jerome Robbins got $1,000 advance and Albia Kavan, Saddler's assistant, got $750 advance.

The total author royalties are 9.4% of the gross, but no individual breakdown is shown between original story writer Ruth McKenney, adaptors Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, and the composer and lyricists, and no author advances are indicated. Scenic and costume designer Raoul Pene du Bois gets $150 weekly royalty. And on the basis of a comparison of different weeks' grosses and cast payrolls, Miss Russell gets 10% of the gross.

Weekly grosses and operating net for the tryout tour were $30,985 for seven performances in New Haven ($3,109 loss), $43,059 ($2,442 loss) and $42,806 ($489 loss) in Boston, and $44,715 ($2,720 loss) and $45,837 ($1,152 loss) in Philly.

ADVANCE AGENTS!
COMPANY MANAGERS!

We have been serving theatrical shows for over 42 years. Ours is the oldest, most reliable and experienced transfer company on the West Coast!

- Railroad privileges for handling shows and theatrical luggage.
- Complete warehouse facilities!
- Authorized in California. Equipped to transfer and haul anywhere in U. S.!
- RATES ON REQUEST!

Atlantic Transfer Company
GEORGE CONANT
601 East 5th Street
Los Angeles 12, Calif.
MUtual 8121 or OXford 9-4764

Chi B.O. Bearing Up Despite Lent; 'Madam' $34,500, 'Murder' $13,800

Chicago, March 31.

Chi legit theatres still are bearing up very well in spite of all the usual Lenten excuses. There are only four attractions, at present, but three more are set for next week, with three or four coming in the rest of the month. Only one show moves on, "Farfel Follies," which closed Saturday (28). "Male Animal," which opened March 23 at the Blackstone, was greeted by warm notices from all the dailies.

"Affairs of State" comes into the Selwyn April 1. "Mrs. McThing" settles down at the Erlanger April 6. Jose Greco has a week at the Opera House, beginning April 7. Emlyn Williams also has a week at the Great Northern April 13.

Estimates for Last Week

Call Me Madam, Shubert (10th wk) ($5; 2,100) (Stritch-Smith). Keeping toward the black ink with neat $34,500.

Dial M For Murder, Harris (9th wk) ($4.40; 1,000) (Richard Greene). Also weathering the doldrums well with $13,800.

Farfel Follies, Selwyn (4th wk) ($4.40; 1,000). Not as well as previous weeks' due to lack of parties. Closed (28) with $16,000.

Male Animal, Blackstone (1st wk) ($4.20; 1,535). Excellent reviews is giving this a brisk $14,200.

Cornell $27,900, 'Mary' $9,800, S.F.

San Francisco, March 31.

"Gigi," with Audrey Hepburn, will telight the Alcazar April 14. "The Constant Wife" will remain at the Curran until Saturday (4), to be followed Monday (6) by Emlyn Williams and his Charles Dickens readings. Geary will offer "Point Of No Return" with Henry Fonda, April 7.

Estimates for Last Week

Constant Wife, Curran (2d wk) (C-$4.20; 1,775) (Katharine Cornell, Robert Fleming, John Emery). Up to a strong $27,900 (previous week, $26,000).

John Loves Mary, Alcazar (3d wk) (C-$3.60; 1,147) (Jackie Cooper, Peggy Ann Garner, Harry Carey, Jr.). Slipped to $9,800 (previous week, $11,100).

One Moment, Please!, Marines Memorial Theatre (8th wk) (R-$3.00; 640). Slipped to $3,000 (previous week, a nice $3,500.

'GIGI' MILD $14,300, L.A.; SCHWARTZ-'SON' $7,450

Los Angeles, March 31.

Past week was a dismal one for Los Angeles legit, with two presentations exiting after n.s.g. business. Emlyn Williams began a week of Dickens readings at the Biltmore Monday (30).

Maurice Schwartz' "Take Now Thy Son" folded Sunday night (29) and he opens with "It's Hard to Be a Jew" Thursday.

Estimates for Last Week

Gigi, Biltmore (2d wk) (1,636; $4.20). Slow $14,300 for second and final week, for a poor overall take of $36,940.

Take Now Thy Son, Civic Playhouse) (2d wk) (376; $3.60). Took in dull $2,750 second week, with about 60% capacity. Total for two weeks is dismal $7,450.

'April' $7,000, Pitt

Pittsburgh, March 31.

Combination of Lent and bad notices was too much for Constance Bennett in "I Found April" to overcome, and new play by George Batson wound up its pre-Broadway week at the Nixon with under $7,000.

Cornelia Otis Skinner in "Paris '90" is current, and "The Deep Blue Sea" and two weeks of "Stalag 17" which follow may possibly wind up the Nixon, since there's nothing else in sight with the decision of "New Faces" and "Pal Joey" to go straight to Chicago.

'Paris' $10,500, Cleve.

Cleveland, March 31.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, in her solo musical, "Paris '90," got caught in the Lenten slowdown last week, but got by with a modest profit with a $10,500 gross at the 1,435-seat Hanna here.

Star is playing the Nixon, Pittsburgh, this week.

Current Road Shows

(March 30-April 11)

Affairs of State (Otto Kruger, Haila Stoddard, Irene Hervey, Donald Woods)—Selwyn, Chi. (1-11).

Call Me Madam—Shubert, Chi. (30-11).

Can-Can — Shubert, Philly (30-11).

Constant Wife (Katharine Cornell, Robert Flemyng, John Emery) —Curran, S. F. (30-4); Civic Aud., San Jose (5); Mayfair, Portland (8-13).

Deep Blue Sea (Margaret Sullavan)—Nixon, Pitt. (6-11).

Dial M for Murder (Richard Greene)—Harris, Chi. (30-6).

Dickens Readings (Emlyn Williams)—Biltmore, L. A. (30-4); Curran, S. F. (6-11).

Evening with Shakespeare (Margaret Webster, Eva LeGallienne, Faye Emerson, Basil Rathbone, John Lund, Viveca Lindfors)—Colonial, Boston (6-11).

Fourposter (Jessica Tandy, Hume Cronyn)—Parsons, Hartford (6-8); Shubert, New Haven (9-11).

Gigi (Audrey Hepburn)—Metropolitan, Seattle (30-11).

Good Nite, Ladies — Erlanger, Buffalo (30-11).

Guys and Dolls—American, St. L. (30-4); Music Hall, K. C. (5-8); Forum, Wichita (9-12).

I Am A Camera (Julie Harris)—Wilbur, Boston (30-11).

Maid in the Ozarks—Erlanger, Philly (30-4).

Male Animal (Buddy Ebsen, Martha Scott, Charles Lang)—Blackstone, Chi. (30-11).

Masquerade — Court Square Springfield, Mass. (9-11).

Men of Distinction — Locust, Philly (9-11).

Mrs. McThing (Helen Hayes)—Cass, Detroit (30-4); Erlanger, Chi. (6-11).

New Faces—Shubert, Boston (6-11).

Oklahoma—National, Wash. (30-11).

Paris '90 (Cornelia Otis Skinner) —Nixon, Pitt. (30-4); Shubert, Wash. (6-11).

Pink Elephant—Shubert, Wash. (30-4); Forrest, Philly (6-11).

Point of No Return (Henry Fonda)—Music Hall, K. C. (30-4); Geary, S. F. (6-11).

School for Brides—Shubert, Detroit (6-11).

Shakespeare Readings—Colonial, Boston (6-11).

South Pacific (Janet Blair, Webb Tilton) — Memorial Aud., Louisville (30-4); Taft Aud., Cincy (6-11).

Stalag 17—Colonial, Boston (30-4); Playhouse, Wilmington (6-11).

Tobacco Road — Davidson, Milwaukee (6-11).

Top Banana (Phil Silvers)—Lyceum, Minneapolis (30-11).

White Cargo — Majestic, Boston (6-11).

'Melody' Wins Permanent Roost at Toronto Fair

Toronto, March 31.

With a five-year lease and five-year renewal option, first theatrical venture to secure that long-sought, coveted contract of permanent setup at the Canadian National Exhibition is "Melody Fair." Producers Leighton K. Brill and Ben Kamsler, plus a group of Toronto socialite stockbrokers, saw their theatres-in-the-round innovation in Canada grossing some $240,000 last summer for 12 weeks of musicals at $3.50 top. Sequel to lengthy undercover negotiations, this announcement was made over the weekend by Hiram McCallum, general manager of CNF.

"Melody Fair" was previously at midtown Dufferin Park for two successful seasons, but expansion of b.o. returns necessitated a move, according to trade talk. The seating capacity will be upped from previous 1,640 to 1,900; the season extended from 12 to 14 weeks.

'Pink' $6,300, New Haven

New Haven, March 31.

Preem of "Pink Elephant" at the Shubert last week (26-28) did fair enough night biz but hit a weak matinee. At $3.60 top, four shows pulled an approximate so-so $6,300.

Next booking is "Fourposter," due April 9-11. Also for April is "Evening with Will Shakespeare" (17-18).

Greco $10,200 in Cincy, Minneapolis Divvy

Minneapolis, March 31.

Although they garnered the most lavish critics' praise of any attraction this season, Jose Greco and his Spanish dancers wound up with only $6,200 for their five nights and one matinee at $3.60 top in the 1,859-seat Lyceum. Lent and tough Shipstad-Johnson "Ice Follies" opposition might have been factors. It was the troupe's first local appearance.

Greco played a Sunday matinee and night (22) in Cincinnati prior to opening in Minneapolis Tuesday night (24). Two-performance gross was $4,000, giving the show $10,200 for the six-night, two-matinee week.

'Camera' $19,900, 'Poster' 10G, Hub

Boston, March 31.

Newcomer, "I Am a Camera," at the Wilbur, was the big noise here last week, with "Fourposter," in finale of a three-week stand at the Shubert, and "Stalag 17," in its fourth frame at the Colonial, trailing.

"An Evening with Will Shakespeare," with John Lund, Basil Rathbone, Eva Le Gallienne, Faye Emerson, Margaret Webster and Viveca Lindfors, bows into the Colonial April 6 for a one-week engagement. "New Faces" is also slated to open the same night at a currently unannounced theatre.

Estimates for Last Week

Fourposter, Shubert (3d wk) ($4.20; 1,700) (Cronyn-Tandy). Finaled with near $10,000. House is dark.

I Am a Camera, Wilbur (1st wk) ($4.20; 1,200) (Julie Harris). Nifty $19,900.

Stalag 17, Colonial (4th wk) ($4.20; 1,500). Dipped to mild $8,300. Final week is current.

'Dolls' Sock $45,000; 'Take It' 11G, St. Louis

St. Louis, March 31.

"Guys and Dolls" has wheeled into its fourth and final frame and natives are still mobbing the b.o. for ducats. Gross for third frame ending Sunday (29) was a sock $45,000. Manager Paul Beisman has rented the opera house in the Henry W. Kiel (municipal) auditorium for the one-week frame of "South Pacific" that tees off April 20. House is scaled to $4.27 for the piece.

Gene Lockhart in "You Can't Take It With You" copped plaudits from the crix and piece wound up a one-week frame at the Empress Sunday (29) with $11,000 at the usual $2.50 top.

Ballet Theatre $33,400 For Seven in Split Week

Ballet Theatre racked up a sock $33,400 for seven performances in a split stanza last week. These included a Sunday matinee (22) in St. Louis; Des Moines, Monday; Davenport, Tuesday; Burlington, (Ia.) Wednesday; Madison, Thursday, and Milwaukee, Friday-Saturday. Troupe hit capacity in several spots.

After a Sunday (29) in Chicago, troupe is again doing a week of split stands.

Surprise in Chi

Chicago, March 31.

What was originally down in the booking sheet as a train wait between Chicago and Minneapolis turned out to be one of the most profitable ballet engagements here. John Charles Gilbert, manager of the Opera House, noticed that Ballet Theatre had a Sunday and Monday open before going into Minneapolis tonight (31). Gilbert snagged the troupe and did two SRO performances Sunday, the matinee doing $7,700 and the evening $10,300. Monday night (30) was another SRO.

Advance for the six day stand of Jose Greco, who comes in April 7, has reached $30,000.

'Point' 28G in Split

Omaha, March 31.

Henry Fonda's "Point of No Return" picked up a hefty $14,600 in four performances for three days, March 23-25, at the Paramount Theatre here. The 3,000-seater was top scaled at $4.20.

Second half of week, with four shows in Des Moines, play pulled $13,400, for total of $28,000 on the week.

B'way Takes Lenten Header Again; 'Camino' $17,800 First Wk. on Guild, 'Porgy' $39,900, 'Angels' Big $21,800

Anticipating the traditional Holy Week slump, Broadway generally hit the skids last week. Conditions at nearly all shows deteriorated from the previous week's so-so levels, with two of the three current two-for-one entries even feeling the downbeat. The drop in one case was more than $7,000 below the previous week. Only shows to go clean at all performances last week were "Seven Year Itch" and "Wonderful Town."

Trade is due to be poor most of this week. Added to the inevitable Holy Week slowdown, Passover discouraged attendance Monday night (30) and was expected to have an almost equally negative effect last night (Tues.). A sharp uptown is figured likely starting Friday night (3) and trade should be brisk all next week. After that, the general trend will probably be steadily downward through next July.

Last week's only closing was "New Faces," which is touring. Scheduled shutterings include "John Brown's Body," April 11, and "Pal Joey," April 18, but several other shows are uncertain bets to continue. This week's only opening is "Horses in Midstream," due tomorrow night (Thurs.).

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical Comedy), MD (Musical Drama), O (Opera).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to top prices; number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 20% amusement tax, but grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of tax.

Camino Real, National (2d wk) (D-$4.80-$6; 1,172; $30,000). First full week, on Theatre Guild subscription, almost $17,800 (previous week, $13,900 for four regular performances and one preview).

Children's Hour, Coronet (15th wk) (D-$4.80; 1,027; $28,378). Nearly $15,000 on twofers (previous week, $14,700).

Crucible, Beck (10th wk) (D-$6-$4.80; 1,214; $31,000). Over $21,800 (previous week, $21,500).

Dial M for Murder, Plymouth (22d wk) (D-$4.80; 1,062; $30,377) (Maurice Evans). Over $30,200 (previous week, $30,400).

Evening with Beatrice Lillie, Booth (26th wk) (R-$6; 739; $24,184) (Beatrice Lillie). With the star out ill one night, the show drew almost $17,600 for seven performances (previous week, $18,100).

Fifth Season, Cort (10th wk) (C-$4.80; 1,056; $25,639) (Menasha Skulnik, Richard Whorf). Nearly $25,100 (previous week, $25,200).

Fourposter, Golden (75th wk) (C-$4.80; 769; $19,195) (Sylvia Sidney, Romney Brent). Over $8,000 on twofers (previous week, $9,100).

Guys and Dolls, 46th St. (123d wk) (MC-$6.60; 1,319; $43,904). Drew $32,700 (previous week, $33,200).

Hazel Flagg, Hellinger (7th wk) (MC-$7.20; 1,527; $53,000) (Helen Gallagher, Thomas Mitchell, Benay Venuta, John Howard). Over $47,700 (previous week, $48,800).

John Brown's Body, Century (6th wk) (D-$6-$4.80; 1,645; $43,000) (Tyrone Power, Judith Anderson, Raymond Massey). Nearly $26,300 (previous week, $30,000); closing April 11.

King and I, St. James (105th wk) (MD-$7.20; 1,571; $51,717) (Yul Brynner). Over $43,900 (previous week, $45,000).

Love of Four Colonels, Shubert (11th wk) (C-$6-$4.80; 1,361; $39,000) (Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer). Almost $24,600 (previous week, $32,000).

Mid-Summer, Vanderbilt (10th wk) (D-$4.80; 720; $18,500) (Mark Stevens, Geraldine Page). About $9,000 (previous week, $11,000).

Misalliance, Barrymore (6th wk) (C-$3; 1,060; $24,996). Nearly $11,100 (previous week, $10,900).

Moon Is Blue, Miller (108th wk) (C-$4.80; 920; $21,586) (Donald Cook, Barry Nelson, Janet Riley). Almost $9,900 on twofers (previous week, $11,000).

My 3 Angels, Morosco (3d wk) (C-$6-$4.80; 912; $26,000). Nearly $21,800 (previous week, $21,900).

New Faces, Royale (46th wk) (R-$6; 1,035; $30,600). Nearly $19,300 (previous week, $16,800); closed last Saturday night (28) after 365 performances, with a profit of about $10,000 on its $134,000 investment; is touring under management of Walter P. Chrysler, Jr.

On Borrowed Time, 48th St. (7th wk) (CD-$4.80; 925; $22,297) (Victor Moore, Leo G. Carroll, Beulah Bondi). Almost $9,100 (previous week, $10,900).

Pal Joey, Broadhurst (65th wk) (MC-$6.60; 1,160; $39,602) (Vivienne Segal, Harold Lang). Nearly $24,300 (previous week, $25,300); closing April 18, to tour.

Picnic, Music Box (5th wk) (CD-$6-$4.80; 1,012; $27,000). Almost $25,500 (previous week, $26,200).

Porgy and Bess, Ziegfeld (3d wk) (O-$6; 1,628; $48,244). Nearly $39,900, excluding 20% retained by non-profit instead of being remitted to Government (previous week, $38,100).

Seven Year Itch, Fulton (19th wk) (C-$6-$4.80; 1,063; $24,400) (Tom Ewell). Almost $24,700 (previous week, $24,700).

South Pacific, Majestic (206th wk) (MC-$6; 1,659; $50,186) (Martha Wright, George Britton). Nearly $32,300 (previous week, $32,600).

Time of the Cuckoo, Empire (24th wk) (CD-$6-$4.80; 1,082; $25,056) (Shirley Booth). Over $14,700 (previous week, $14,600).

Time Out for Ginger, Lyceum (17th wk) (C-$4.80; 995; $22,845) (Melvyn Douglas). Almost $12,000 (previous week, $13,600).

Wish You Were Here, Imperial (40th wk) (MC-$7.20; 1,400; $52,080). Over $40,500 (previous week, $46,300).

Wonderful Town, Winter Garden (5th wk) (MC-$7.20; 1,510; $55,200) (Rosalind Russell). Over $54,100, with the gross limited by party commissions (previous week, $53,600).

OPENING THIS WEEK

Horses in Midstream, Royale (CD-$4.80; 1,035; $27,100) (Cedrick Hardwicke, Diana Lynn, Lili Darvas). Gilbert Miller and Donald Oenslager production of play by Andrew Rosenthal; opens tomorrow night (Thurs.).

'Okla.' Big $29,300, 'Horses' $6,100, D.C.

Washington, March 31.

"Oklahoma," still going strong after 10 years, drew a sock $29,300 through the gates of the National Theatre here last week. Its scheduled three-week run was promptly stretched to four weeks.

At the Shubert, "Horses In Midstream," struggling to get into shape for a quick New York opening this week, attracted only $6,100 worth of paying customers for the second and last week of its local run. "Pink Elephant" came into the Shubert last night (Mon.).

'PACIFIC' SOCK $42,400 IN CHARLESTON, W. VA.

Charleston, W.Va., March 31.

"South Pacific," still doing big business in small towns, pulled a whacking $42,400 last week at the 3,517-seat Municipal Auditorium here. This is a one-nighter for most shows.

Rodgers-Hammerstein musical, with Janet Blair and Webb Tilton costarred, is at the Memorial Auditorium, Louisville, all this week.

'McThing' $26,800, Det.; 'White Cargo' $11,000

Detroit, March 31.

Helen Hayes proved as potent a drawing card as ever, with "Mrs. McThing" doing a strong $26,800 in the first of a fortnight's stay at the Cass.

"White Cargo" grossed a poor $11,000 at the Shubert, which relights April 5 with "School for Brides."

'State' $8,500, Cincy; 'Tobacco' Slim $4,800

Cincinnati, March 31.

"Affairs of State" grossed a sorry $8,500 last week in the 1,300-seat Cox Theatre at $3.69 top. Otto Kruger replaced George Brent Thursday night (26) in the company, which has Haila Stoddard, Irene Harvey and Donald Woods in other major parts.

Pre-Easter slump also hit a "Tobacco Road" troupe in the indie Emery Auditorium, 2,175-seater, which got a slender $4,800 on eight performances. Top was $3.69 on sprinkling of two-for-one paper.

Plays Abroad

The White Carnation

London, March 23.

H. M. Tennent, Ltd., presentation of comedy in two acts by R. C. Sherriff. Stars Ralph Richardson. Directed by Noel Willman. At Globe Theatre, London, March 20, '53. $2 top.

John Greenwood ..... Ralph Richardson
Lady Mary ..... Mex Maxwell
Lydia Truscott ..... Meriel Forbes
Mr. Pendlebury ..... Harcourt Williams
Sir Horace Duncan ..... Colin Gordon
Dr. MacGregor ..... Lockwood West
Constable Thompson ..... Campbell Singer
Sgt. Phillips ..... John Boxer
Mrs Carter ..... Ann Wilton
Mr. Gurney ..... Frederick Piper
Major Howard ..... Michael Nightingale
Mrs. Howard ..... Frances Clare
Sir George Wallace ..... Kenneth Edwards
Lady Wallace ..... Edith Savile
Tony Dale ..... Peter Wigzell
Cynthia ..... Gillian Howell

Although it has an original opening and closing, this rather heavyweight comedy sags somewhat in the middle. Dealing with an earthbound spirit, it lacks the frivolous spirit of Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," and makes a very earthy ghost of the leading character. There are some amusing situations and plenty of sly digs at governmental procedure in circumstances for which there is no precedent. It will not have the same general appeal of R. C. Sherriff's last play, "Home At Seven," in which Ralph Richardson also starred. This will largely depend upon his individual drawing power. Its chances in the U. S. would be slim.

The central figure is a wealthy stockbroker who finds himself shut out by the slamming of his front door while he is seeing off his guests after a Christmas party. Unable to make anyone hear, he breaks a glass panel and finds himself in a dirty, dismantled room. He tells an investigating police officer that it is his own home, but is informed the house has been uninhabited for seven years since it was blitzed in an air raid when all the occupants were killed. His emphatic refusal to accept this fact causes an increasing embarrassment to doctor, clergy, police and housing authorities.

All efforts to coax the spectral visitor to vacate the premises are fruitless, and much of the play's lighter moments revolve on the variety of means brought to bear to achieve this end. Furniture, books and a watchguard are provided and the householder still wearing his dress clothes and ageless white flower digs his toes in for an indefinite stay. He is only dislodged when he receives an ultimatum from the powers that be notifying him that the house is to be demolished for the erection of a block of flats.

A clever transformation scene emerges from a darkening stage, when on the anniversary of the fateful party, the room returns to its early festivity to the sound of the guests chatting and drinking. The host then realizes that his brief return to earth was intended to make him appreciate and acknowledge the love and devotion of his wife, whom he had constantly snubbed and secretly despised. In the flashback to the few seconds before the bomb explosion, this is touchingly revealed.

Richardson alternates between bewilderment and the irritated petulance of a thwarted child. He endows the role with a maximum of expression and sincerity in his own inimitable style. Meriel Forbes is charming and easy as a sympathetic neighbor whose understanding and innocent companionship help to make the phantom's borrowed time tolerable.

Among the minor characters, Colin Gordon shines as a tape-bound bureaucrat, as does Harcourt Williams as a tolerant, easy-going priest. Frederick Piper is a commercially-minded cop. Play is well directed by Noel Willman.

Clem.

Airs on a Shoestring

Edinburgh, March 21.

Laurier Lister presentation of revue, with lyrics by Michael Flanders, Nicholas Phipps, Jack Gray, Hugh Martin, Charlotte Mitchell, David Climie, Jimmy Wilson, Madeleine Dring, Jerry Mann, Joyce Grenfell, Justin Richardson, Lindsay Kyme, Lionel S. Harris; sketches by James Dyrenforth, Richard Waring, Mary Dunn; music by Donald Swann, Geoffrey Wright, Hugh Martin, Madeleine Dring, John Pritchett, Arthur Benjamin, Charles Zwar, Dolores Claman. Staged by Alfred Rodrigues. Stars Max Adrian, Moyna Fraser, Sally Rogers, Betty Marsden. At Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh.

New revue, in 34 scenes, has a cast cleverer than some of the material it is called on to use, but achieves fairly good standard of wit and polish generally, despite several sketches that don't click. Show, badly-titled, has been writ-

(Continued on page 93)

"Schwartz is definitely O.K. as the celebrated Nathan Detroit, proprietor of 'the oldest established, permanent floating crap game in New York'."
Russell McLaughlin
DETROIT NEWS

"Schwartz warmed into his role with remarkable ease to the delight of a large, appreciative audience. He is a remarkably assured and confident performer."
Leonard Mendlowitz
PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

"Sam Schwartz makes an ideal Nathan Detroit, the dice-game operator who is betwixt and between love of the dominoes and a sweet doll named Miss Adelaide."
Walter Stevenson
THE DETROIT TIMES

"Sam Schwartz's portrayal of Nathan Detroit, the operator of the oldest established, permanent, floating crap game in New York, is Runyonesque to the core."
Herbert L. Monk
ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT

★ STARRING as NATHAN DETROIT ★

SAM SCHWARTZ

in the National Company

"GUYS and DOLLS"

Currently AMERICAN THEATRE, St. Louis

Thanks to FEUER & MARTIN

Balanchine Set to Stage 'War and Peace' Opera

George Balanchine, Broadway and ballet director who did his first opera staging job this winter with Stravinsky's "Rake's Progress," at the Met Opera, in N. Y., has been inked for his second opera stint. He'll stage Prokofiev's "War and Peace" for the Maggio Musical Festival, in Florence, in May.

This will be first appearance outside of Russia of the opera which Prokofiev (who died last month) composed to the famed Tolstoy novel. The Met had planned to present it in N. Y. this season, but dropped the idea because of production difficulties. Balanchine is now in Italy staging ballets at La Scala, in Milan. He'll return to N. Y. in June.

Feud Vs. Critics

Continued from page 88

recalled, and the opening performance of the touring troupe in Chicago was a backstage shambles, it's reported.

Crix Go Overboard?

Nevertheless, there is an almost unanimous feeling in New York managerial circles that the Chicago critics seemingly go overboard in picking touring shows to pieces. The situation in Chicago obviously differs from that in other road cities, where touring shows play only one-week or two-week stands. In Chi, where a successful run may extend many months, unfavorable reviews are a much more serious matter than elsewhere.

For that reason, it has been suggested that, besides following the fairly frequent procedure of holding intensive rehearsals to brush up the playing before the Chicago openings, some arrangements should be made to play preview performances there to give shows time to shake down smoothly before being covered. The idea would be to sell the previews to paying audiences, as in New York, so as not to lose receipts by staying dark or holding re-rehearsals.

In the case of the Shubert move to have critics cover second-nights, it's figured that the action tended to be arbitrary and lacking reasonable explanation and tact. Apparently the only advance notice of the action was a letter some days previously from Shubert to Claudia Cassidy, critic of the Tribune. Miss Cassidy printed the long complaint in her drama column Sunday (29).

First actual word of the move was when Charles Washburn, advance man for the touring "Affairs of State," which opens tonight (Wed.) at the Selwyn, Chicago, visited offices of the four local dailies to reveal Shubert's orders. He offered complimentary tickets for tomorrow's (Thurs.) second-night, but these were refused. Papers immediately bought seats for their critics to cover the opening, and played up the story on the front pages.

With minor changes in the introductory paragraph in different editions, the Shubert letter to Miss Cassidy said in part:

"For a great many years you have been on the various newspapers in Chicago, and now while on one of the leading newspapers in the country, you have unfavorably criticized all of the plays that have come to Chicago.

"I do not think it is your intention to close up plays and I know that you are not antagonistic, but the practice in Chicago has not helped having bad criticisms. We have tried very hard, giving the producers all sorts of arguments and in some cases having to guarantee them against loss to come and play Chicago.

"I can only see one thing that might alleviate the situation—openings in Chicago should be for the public, and the people writing for the newspapers should see the play on Tuesday nights instead of Monday nights. Monday should be for the opening — wherein anything happening could be rectified then, so the specialists of the theatre who have to write for same should see that we do not have a repetition of 'Paint Your Wagon.'

"I hope you will take this letter in the spirit in which it is written because I know the reason for not getting plays produced in Chicago."

Legit's Cliffhanging

Continued from page 89

men is that the marked shift of audience preference away from the top-balcony seats represents the patronage lost a generation ago to talking pictures and never regained. Fact that the upper-deck trade is notably heavier Friday and more particularly Saturday nights is figured substantiation of this theory.

Whatever the reason, lively second balcony patronage is now the exception rather than the rule, almost as passe as the once familiar playgoer willing to sit in boxes. Except for the absolutely solid smashes and for premieres, few shows ever sell out all the boxes these days. The top-deck, once the haunt of hand-holding young couples on lean budgets, shows signs of ultimately becoming almost equally unpopular.

Sell Better For More

An extreme example of public reluctance to buy the bottom-price seats was offered several years ago, early in the run of "Mister Roberts," at the Alvin, N.Y. The management scaled a couple of rows at the top of the house at $1.20, with everything else going from $2.40 to $4.80. The $1.20 seats invariably were sold last, occasionally being the only locations empty. Moreaver, there were always abnormal demands for refunds of $1.20 tickets, because of claims of poor visibility and audibility.

So after a few weeks, the $1.20 tickets were discontinued and the entire rear of the balcony was priced at $2.40. Thereafter, there was markedly less resistance to purchase of the same couple of rows. Moreover, the volume of refund demands for patrons in those locations also declined abruptly. In other words, the public preferred to pay $2.40 rather than $1.20 for the seats, and was more satisfied occupying them at that price.

In general, the second balcony tends to be easier to sell if it has the same entrance, mostly through the main lobby, as the first balcony and mezzanine. For some reason, patrons seem to resist having to go outside to reach the upstairs sections of the house, possibly because it makes them feel conspicuous as lower-priced customers, and perhaps for other reasons. At any rate, the top-deck seats are apt to be more acceptable if reached through the lobby. It makes little difference whether the section is known as the second balcony or gallery (or, as has occasionally been attempted, some other designation).

Broadway theatres having second balconies or galleries, with the capacities of the latter, include Cort (281 seats), Lyceum (252), Empire (269), 48th Street (205), Fulton (190), Miller (200), City Center (800), Playhouse (225), St. James (326) and Shubert (335).

Ft. Wayne Boosts Opera Offerings to 5 in '53

Fort Wayne, March 31.

Fort Wayne Light Opera Festival, Inc., has announced a program of five offerings, in 15 performances for its 1953 season in the 2,090-seat open-air theatre at Franke Park here. Last year's sock success, when the shows hit capacity for each of 10 performances, prompted the group to add two more productions this coming year, according to Lou Culp, business manager.

The 1953 repertory and dates are: "Student Prince," June 19-21; "Kiss Me Kate," July 10-12; "Chocolate Soldier," July 24-26; "Bloomer Girl," Aug. 14-16, and "Blossom Time," Aug. 28-30.

Albert K. Germanson, Columbus, O., is producer and director, and Rose Adair is New York representative in charge of casting. Auditions for the singing chorus will be held in Fort Wayne starting April 4.

Gabor Preems Atlantic City's Off-Season Legit

Atlantic City, March 31.

For the first time since the late '20's, this resort will get out-of-season legitimate theatre when Magda Gabor opens next Monday (6) in "The Play's the Thing" in Hotel Morton's Quarterdeck Theatre, located just off the boardwalk in midcity.

Ezra Bell, owner of Hotel Morton, heads the city's auditorium commission which manages Convention Hall, and is pres of the Gateway Corp., which this summer will offer legitimate and musical plays at the Gateway Theatre in suburban Somers Point. He is convinced that the calibre of his attractions will make this venture a paying one for the 20-week season planned.

Jonathan Dwight, who last summer operated the Gateway Theatre, is producing the plays, while Max Fischer is director. Rex Partington supports Miss Gabor. Second bill, "Three Men on a Horse," week of April 13, will star Natalie Craveth.

North Carolina Outdoor Drama Preps 2d Season

Greensboro, N. C., March 21.

"Horn in the West," Kermit Hunter's outdoor drama, will open its second summer season June 26, according to William Hardy, general manager. The play will be presented in the Daniel Boone Theatre, near Boone, every night except Mondays through Sept. 7. A special performance is to be given on Labor Day.

In its first season last summer, "Horn in the West" played to an audience of more than 55,000 persons. Hardy said a number of changes have been made by playwright Hunter. Thomas Nichols, musical director and composer, has revised the musical score completely. Kai Jurgensen, director of the drama, is now in the process of selecting actors and actresses for the cast of nearly 100.

Scheduled B'way Openings

Horses In Midstream, Royale, April 2.
Room Service, Playhouse, April 6.
Pink Elephant, unspecified theatre, week of April 3.
Emlyn Williams Readings, Bijou, April 20.
Men of Distinction, unspecified theatre, week of April 27.
Masquerade, Alvin, April 27.
Can-Can, Shubert, April 30.
Me and Juliet, Majestic, May 28.

WALTER "Dare" WAHL
Featured in Comedy Hit
"TOP BANANA"
Currently 79th Week
Now Playing
LYCEUM, MINNEAPOLIS
Mar. 30 - Apr. 4
Direction
JOSH MEYER JACK DAVIES

REHEARSAL THEATRE AVAILABLE
Ideal stage. $11,000 switchboard with $3,000 hanging lights. Theatre completely equipped and AIR CONDITIONED. Five minutes from Times Square. Call Stanley Kestner—WAtkins 4-6230 or WA 4-8782.
THEATER de LYS
121 Christopher St.

SUMMER THEATRE AVAILABLE
For star system summer stock. Location: center of South Shore Boston resort area, 750 seats, theatre fully equipped, good condition, one floor. Ample stage room for all types of productions. Parking facilities for 600 cars. Wanted producer to handle entire operation. Prefer percentage arrangement. Box V-32855, Variety, 154 W. 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.

CAB CALLOWAY
Sportin' Life
"Porgy and Bess"
Currently ZIEGFELD, NEW YORK
"—A 'natural'. Here is the best of all performances of this character—amusing, slick, graceful and enormously artful. Calloway's singing of 'It Ain't Necessarily So' and Green's staging of the number makes one of the most delicious events in today's theatre."—John Chapman, Daily News.
Mgt.: BILL MITTLER, 1619 Broadway, New York

Literati

Markey's Western

Gene Markey, author-film producer and ex-husband of actress Joan Bennett, has penned a western, "The Kingdom of the Spur," for Ballantine Books publication this month. Also slated for Ballantine release this month is "Stories of Sudden Truth," a collection of short yarns, including contributions by William Saroyan, John Hersey, Erskine Caldwell and Frank O'Connor.

Richard H. Dana, formerly with Knopf, Music Press and Lippincott, has taken over as promotion manager for Ballantine. Publishing firm, inaugurated four months ago, releases three originals each month in paper and hardcover form simultaneously.

More Ogden Nash

Ogden Nash, who has parlayed his verses into musicomedy librettos and ASCAP membership, remains even without this the most prolific (and successful) versifier this side of Nick Kenny. His newest anthology, "The Private Dining Room (And Other New Verses)" (Little, Brown; $3) is a gay close-up of modern mores which the poet laureate of Baltimore takes from bad to verse. His jaundiced optics scan the scene from pundits to disk jockeys, from lampoons on the ladies to limericks. Bright reading! Abel.

German Daily Sold

New Yorker Staats-Zeitung and Herold, U. S. German-language daily, has been sold by Ridder Publications to August Steuer and Erwin Single. Paper has been owned by Ridder since 1900. Of the new owners, Single has been business manager of the Journal of Commerce for the past 11 years.

The New Yorker Herold, which had a corporative interest in the publication, will continue its association with the new owners.

'Ford At Fifty'

Simon & Schuster, who have issued a couple of books tied in with the Ford Motor Co., such as "Ford Treasury of Favorite Recipes" and "Ford Treasury of the Outdoors," will issue on April 20 a 100-page picture book for the 50th anni of the company, titled "Ford At Fifty." Tome will discuss assembly line operations, case history of an average motor town (Sacramento), etc.

Preparation for the book, subtitled "An American Story," began in January, 1952. It was produced editorially by a staff headed by Joseph J. Thorndike, Jr., former managing editor of Life. Text was written by Joe McCarthy, onetime managing editor of Yank, now a freelance writer. Photographers included Philippe Halsman, Thomas Hollyman, David E. Scherman, Arthur Shay and Suzanne Szasz. The endpapers were done by Boris Artzybasheff. Picture Press did the book for S. & S.

U. of Ill. Mag Awards

The U. of Illinois has set up awards for magazines and magazine writers, known as the Benjamin Franklin Magazine awards. Eight prizes will be given annually. A gold medal and scroll will be given the American general circulation magazine which "performs the most distinguished, meritorious public service during the year." An award of $1,000 will be given the writer of the magazine article "involving original reporting in which serious obstacles had to be overcome."

Other prizes, six in all, will be given for the best article or series depicting life, culture or institutions in the United States; best interpretation of the foreign scene or our foreign relations; best biographical article; best magazine humor; best shortstory, and for outstanding work not covered in definite categories. These awards are worth $500 each. A joint committee from the publishing and writing fields, plus members of the university and public, is being set up.

Ohio Daily Switches

Oliver P. Bolton has purchased the Dover (O.) Daily Reporter from Arthur A. Hoopingarner, publisher of the paper for 33 years. Latter continues on the staff as adviser and consultant. Bolton also owns the Lake County News-Herald, a daily at Willoughby, O. He and his mother, Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, form the only mother-son team in Congress.

Ralph Disler, former general manager of the Mansfield (O.) News-Journal, who resigned in January to join the News-Herald, will become general manager of the Dover Daily Reporter, and Erwin Maus, Jr., formerly advertising director of the Mansfield News-Journal and now general manager of the News-Herald, will devote part of his time to the Dover enterprise.

Buchwald's Book, Etc.

Art Buchwald, N.Y. Herald Trib (Paris edition) columnist, just returned to Paris, placed his "A Day in Paris" autobiog for Little Brown publication next year. He also set two articles for Colliers, one on dubbing of pix in France. He's due to share the Trib's split page with radio-TV columnist John Crosby on a three-a-week basis, his column appearing Tuesdays, Thursday and Sundays.

Scot Radio Review

Thirty years of Scot radio achievement are portrayed, textually and pictorially, in "The First Thirty," published by the British Broadcasting Corp., (25c), to mark the 30th anniversary of Scot broadcasting. Booklet recalls the first Scot station opened in Glasgow March, 1923. Many personalities grew up in pioneer Scot radio days, including playwright Roger McDougall (now a successful London writer); Alan Melville, Muir Mathieson, James McKechnie and film actor Gordon Jackson. Sir Harry Lauder was a keen broadcaster in early days, as was Will Fyffe. "The First Thirty" touches on all aspects of culture skimmed by the BBC in Scotland, and on personalities boosted by the Scotch end of London broadcasting. Gord.

CHATTER

Howard Lewis named editor of Argosy.

Paul Denis has yarn on Joey Bishop in May issue of Real Magazine.

Co-authors J. C. and Helen Furnas back in N. Y. after six months in South Africa.

"The Unfair Sex," by Nina Farewell, to be published April 21 by Simon & Schuster.

Gene Markey's new novel, "Kingdom of the Spur," will be published by Ballantine Books.

Armand Archerd will succeed Sheilah Graham as columnist for Daily VARIETY, starting April 27.

Metro has purchased "Many Rivers to Cross," short story by Steve Frazer which appeared in Argosy.

Bob Moskin, who resigned as articles editor of Look, joined Woman's Home Companion in similar post.

Ernest Hemingway's "The Old Man and the Sea," in Japanese translation, published by Charles C. Tuttle, goes on sale in Tokyo next week.

James B. Frizell, chief of education in Edinburgh and a champion of use of films in schools, to visit America as guest of the U. S. Government.

Ernest K. Gann's "The High and the Mighty," set for William Sloane publication April 20, will be Book-of-the-Month Club selection for May.

A new work by N. Y. Herald Tribune music critic Arthur Berger, "Ideas of Order," will have its premiere, April 11 in N. Y. by the N. Y. Philharmonic.

Climax magazine, new McFadden men's mag, bought Victor Rosen's "Battle of the Bordello." Writer has peddled English rights to his tome, "Wanderlust."

Robert Northshield, feature writer on the Chicago Sun-Times, leaving to join CBS-TV in New York, as a writer on the American Natural History Museum program.

Article by Richard Skinner on the recent tour of Dancers of Bali, for which he was company manager, will appear in the April 4 issue of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin.

Pulitzer prize-winning historian, Bernard DeVoto, discusses censorship of books in the April issue of Harper's magazine, under title of "Case of the Censorious Congressmen."

Martin Feinstein, head of Sol Hurok's publicity department, was guest lecturer last Thursday night (26) at CCNY School of Business, in N. Y., to the class of journalism, talking on pressagency.

"People, Places And Books," by Gilbert Highet, Columbia U. prof who has a book program on WQXR, N. Y., to be published by Oxford U. Press April 30. Book consists of selections from the radio series.

New collection of 25 short stories, under title of "Deep Currents," by William Ornstein, Metro homeoffice trade press contact, now ready, following publication of his first collation of 20 stories, "Ma and Me."

Chicago Herald-American, which gained the Herald name when it merged with the morning Hearst paper more than two decades ago, is dropping the hyphenated name for clarity, and will be known as the Chicago American from now on.

British novelist Nicholas Monsarrat, author of "The Cruel Sea" (1951), arrives in Ottawa May 1 to take over post of information adviser to the United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada. Writer succeeds A. Gordon Huson, who returns to England.

Charles Davis is now writing a daily radio and television column for the Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union, under nom de plume of "Charley Chatter." It replaced the syndicated column of Jack O'Brian, of the N. Y. Journal-American. Davis is on the T-U city desk.

Plays Abroad

Continued from page 92

Airs on a Shoestring

ten by a veritable conglomeration of scribes and composers.

Production is notable for giving scope to a new dancer-comedienne, Moyra Fraser, a tall, shapely gal who merits her star billing, and to Betty Marsden, young English revue artiste who also shows promise.

One of the revue's highlights is a scene titled "Guide to Britten." This is subtle musical tilt at works of longhair composer Benjamin Britten, and at show caught, gained largest volume of applause. Lyric is by Michael Flanders, with Donald Swann music.

Max Adrian, star of show's revue predecessor, "Penny Plain," is again well to the fore in many scenes. His smiling face and general assurance make him an ideal lead for an intimate-style production.

Miss Fraser shows merit as a revue comedienne. In a skit on modern fashions, "The Model Models," she scores with the other femme star, Miss Marsden. She also registers well with Adrian in the Richard Waring sketch, "Fly Customers," but sketch material here is of only average quality.

Jack Gray, Chicago-born lyric writer, has penned several numbers and takes part in them with good degree of success. Sally Rogers, Bernard Hunter, Patricia Lancaster and Carole Newton lend worthwhile support in the many scenes.

Revue has scenes of tender beauty and sweet sentiment as well as others that hit satirically at the British way of life. Program carries so many credits that finding out who has been responsible for the various episodes is, in itself, a task. With new and stronger material, but using same talented cast, production shapes up with good possibilities for a Coronation run in London. Gord.

La Rose Tatouee

(THE ROSE TATTOO)

Paris, March 25.

Marie-Rose Belin production of play in two acts by Tennessee Williams, adapted by Paule de Beaumont. Directed by Pierre Valde. Sets and costumes, Annenkov. At Gramont Theatre, Paris, March 20, '53; $3 top.

Tennessee Williams' heavy sex drama, "Tattoo," has been given a nice Paris staging, okay lead performance, effective atmospheric sets and smooth translation, but all these trimmings fail to upholster an uneven script into a satisfying evening.

"Tattoo," of course, is story of Sicilian-born seamstress, Serafina, who lives in a tiny, Italo-American settlement along Gulf Coast, and of her strange obsession with a rose her late husband, a truck-driver, had tattooed on his chest. Affair with another truck-driver, and disclosure of husband's infidelity, eventually cure her of her obsession.

Combination of torrid sex talk, pseudo-poetic symbolism and mother-love sentimentality make "Tattoo" a difficult script to direct. Pierre Valde has managed constantly changing moods of text well in his staging, and, as "Tattoo" has to its credit some earthly comedy scenes, he is able to make the most of these.

Lila Kedrova contributes fine portrayal of unbalanced Sicilian, Serafina, and Rene Havard, as a clownish truck-driver who solves her sex problem, is first-rate. Support is sound, with Jane Lyse as daughter; Gilbert Edard as daughter's sailor fiance; Leon Daubrel as old priest, and Solange Certain and Anne Marilo, as girls on their way to American Legion convention, giving roles topdrawer interpretation. Sets and costumes by Annenkov catch quality of the background, and Edwards Al Fats, colored American singer, has time for a couple of registering numbers. "Tattoo" is well-done, but play is not to Paris taste. Curt.

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Though you may have observed oblique belts at the foreign press here and there in the L. A. dailies, these alien scribes have done an amazing nipup since 1940. Practically reduced to starvation during the war, since in many instances they could get no copy into their homelands and certainly no money out of them, they were hardly better off after the war, since funds seemed to be frozen wherever one turned. Some got odd jobs, but all kept on writing and mailing their copy, hoping some day, some way to get paid.

The picture companies solved a similar problem by going abroad on junkets and eventually making pictures there to use up their frozen funds. This didn't particularly help the foreign correspondents in Hollywood, since they were rarely invited to accompany a troupe from the film capital to their homeland as pressagents. In fact, it cut off some sources of copy for a while.

Nevertheless, the f.c.'s grew in prestige and in power between 1943 and 1953. In fact, by 1953, they proved they could stage banquets, make awards, and run off shows with the best of them, and were far more competent in this field than the local boys who looked on with curled lips and commented on the inferior quality of the caviar.

That the quality of the caviar was inferior is true. But who gets fresh caviar these days? And why should the comrades send it to us, considering the sort of insults that are heaved over the Iron Curtain by the "Voice of America" these days? But barring this international appetizer, their dinners have been as good (or as bad) as the best dished out at Hollywood banquets.

When the outlanders first formed their organization back in 1943, they held their meetings in private homes of members. Altogether there could have been more than 20 and most of these, barring Guy Austin of the Beaverbrook press, have either fallen by the wayside or gone into other fields. I have no idea what happened to Lon Jones, who was the first president, though Jennifer Jones, who received their first award for her work in "Song of Bernadette," obviously is still around.

Reliable Pace-Setters

In the main, their awards have been excellent front-runners for the final Academy choices. In 1945 they picked "The Bells of St. Mary" as their best picture, and Ingrid Bergman as their best actress. In 1946, they chose "Lost Weekend," and Ray Milland as their best actor. "The Best Years of Our Lives" won their 1947 award and Rosalind Russell was chosen their best actress for her work in "Sister Kenny." Gregory Peck got the nod as the best actor for his performance in "The Yearling." Rosalind Russell came back to win again next year for "Morning Becomes Electra." In 1949, two pictures tied for first honors—"Johnny Belinda" and "The Treasure of Sierra Madre." The foreign scribes picked Jane Wyman as the best actress and Lawrence Olivier as the best actor for his performance in "Hamlet."

Around this time these alien journalists got to reading about the successes achieved in splitting atoms, and the next thing I knew one group was holding a banquet at Palm Springs and another was breaking out at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. The one at Palm Springs called themselves the Foreign Press Assn. (their present prez is Nora Laing from Australia) and the others billed themselves as the Hollywood Foreign Correspondents, with Bert Reisfeld of Denmark as their current topper. But as FPA or HFC, they have gone on doing a beautiful public relations job for a town that hardly could be more sinned against than sinning.

Between the two organizations, they claim 500,000,000 readers and represent as many as 50 countries. They get far better studio cooperation now than they did formerly. And this is easy to understand, since Metro reports 35% of its gross income comes from foreign markets, and Stanley Kramer at the last FPA dinner said 50% of his company's grosses are from the foreign markets.

Aleon Bennett tells me that some Japanese members mailed out 2,000,000 postcards to find out whose stars were getting in whose eyes. And these figures had a lot to do with their choosing Roy Rogers as the most popular international western star over a period of 10 years and John Wayne as their world-film favorite of 1952.

Canned Food and Canned Speeches

Anybody who has sat through presentation of awards on any level knows that at best these after-dinner deals are a bore. There are long waits, the speeches might have just as well come crated out of Sears-Roebuck and the degree of originality and humor is so small as to be homeopathic.

Now and then, of course, even on this mediocre level there are blowups. At the last dinner held by the FPA at the Club Del Mar in Santa Monica, Louella Parsons had an award to give to Jimmy McHugh. You would have thought this would involve no more nervousness than table conversation between the two. Yet she froze, made several false starts, kept repeating about his unforgettable melodies "which everyone was singing in New York," got out her glasses, read the tribute, and left the platform so humiliated that McHugh had to come back for her purse. The rest of the dinner had to get on somehow without her.

On the other hand, at the HFC dinner in the Embassy Room of the Ambassador Hotel, Donald O'Connor receiving, so he said, the first award of his life, and finding himself in a herring-bone business suit surrounded not only by dinner jackets but white ties and tails, explained that his evening clothes were in a picture and he was trying out a new formal attire in a shade of midnight gray. He easily could have blown up in his lines but he came through as the magnificent trouper he is, and anybody wanting to see how he can wear evening clothes need only watch his performance in "Call Me Madam."

Of the two dinners, the FPA's with their Henriettas ran the faster show. The HFC's with their Golden Globes showed more glamor. At both dinners, Stanley Kramer and his "High Noon" cast and staff walked off with so many awards, he could have picked the tab at both places and charged it quite justifiably to public relations. His "High Noon" split awards at both dinners with "The Greatest Show on Earth," but, oddly, three other Academy nominations, "Iyanhoe," "Moulin Rouge" and "The Quiet Man," got nowhere with the foreign press. Seemingly, you can't fool foreigners on foreign-made pix.

Cooper was rated the best actor by HFC and got an Academy nomination, but FPA's, as I have said, handed their Henrietta to Duke Wayne. Susan Hayward was liked equally well by both groups.

What the Hollywood Foreign Correspondents added, which the Academy might well follow, was a Golden Globe for the best performance by an actor in a musical comedy. This went to Donald O'Connor and was presented by Eve Starr, representing Italian papers and deserving of a plaque herself, as the best performance by a presenter of a Golden Globe, though many might argue that the best performance by a correspondent or an actress was Ivy Wilson (3,000,000 readers), who presented the posthumous award to Lamar Trotti for his production of "With A Song In My Heart."

Vincent Price emceed the FPA banquet and David Wayne handled the traffic at the HFC affair. I thought Wayne did a better job, but Price had better support. Either way, for guys and gals pasting up their strips and wondering if their francs, shillings, kroner, pesos and rubles will amount to enough to pay the rent, when they put on the dog they certainly make Grubb St. look like Buckingham Palace during the Coronation.

Broadway

Howard Dietz, Metro pub-ad topper, returned Monday (30) from a quickie Coast visit.

Metro veepee and sales consultant William F. Rodgers returned from a Miami vacation.

Ned Clark, foreign sales chief for Walt Disney, back in town after eight weeks in Europe.

Lana Turner to Paris over the weekend after arriving from the Coast by plane Friday (27).

Samuel Goldwyn talked new film biz developments with N. Y. film critics at a Sherry-Netherland luncheon Monday (31).

Russell Holman, Paramount's eastern production manager, to Pinehurst, N. C., tomorrow (Thurs.) for a 10-day vacation.

Earl Blackwell, Celebrity Service prez, returns from the Coast today (Wed.). Prepping trip April 12 to the Cannes Film Festival.

Sam Taylor, author of "Sabrina Fair," new unproduced play which Paramount is adapting, off to the Coast for huddles at the Par studio.

Charles E. Rochester's coming-of-age cocktailery today (Wed.) at the Hotel Lexington, celebrating his 21st anni as boss of the hostelry.

Harold Lloyd's special Oscar going on display at the Paris Theatre in connection with the re-showing of his 28-year-old "The Freshman."

Phyllis Kirk, in town for bally of Warner's 3-D "House of Wax," interviewed by high schooi and college editors yesterday (Tues.) at McCarthy's.

Spencer Tracy remaining in Gotham for two weeks before returning to the Coast. Star arrived Thursday (26) after vacationing in London, Paris and Rome.

Jascha Heifetz flew to Europe Saturday (28) for an 11-week concert tour of France, Italy, Portugal, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, England and Israel.

Frank Bering, Jimmy Hart and Eugene Barrett assembled a VIP turnout for a special junket to Chi to premiere the new Beau Nash Room of the Congress Hotel.

William Wyler back to the Coast after a brief stopover in Gotham. After lensing "Roman Holiday" in Rome for Paramount, producer had been on a vacation tour of Europe.

Metro producer Arthur Freed sails for London today (Wed.) to begin preparation for filming another picture with Gene Kelly, following "Invitation to the Dance."

Vienna Choir Boys leave for home today (Wed.) aboard the Ryndam, after completing a three-month, 68-city U.S. and Canadian tour, their 10th under direction of Soi Hurok.

Talluiah Bankhead, who is slated to mark her nitery debut at The Sands, Las Vegas, calls the gambling resort "Lastfogel, Nev." As she puts it, "I'm gonna open in a saloon in Lastfogel."

Theatrical attorney Julian T. Abeles planning to sell his Greenwich estate and buy a Park Ave. co-op, with a shack in Connecticut for weekends, instead of commuting as heretofore.

Joseph Mankiewicz, Metro producer, back from the Coast Monday (30) following confabs with producer John Houseman on "Julius Caesar," which M-G is readying for release.

Robert Lantz, former European representative of U. S. picture companies, opening his own agency in New York. He's affiliated with Coast agent Milton M. Grossman who's due in N. Y. April 6.

Lynn Farnol celebrating his third year as an indie in public relations (for 21 years previously he had been Samuel Goldywn's ad-pub chief). Farnol hosted a cocktailery at his office Thursday (26) on the occasion.

Joe Holland, amusements ad manager of the Journal-American, feted last week by some 150 theatre, film and newspapermen upon his retirement after 20 years on the paper. He was presented with a Rolleiflex camera.

Louis Sobol, N. Y. Journal-American syndicated columnist, accompanied by his wife Peggy, made his first plane-trip over the weekend. He roundtripped Chicago, and is now wondering why he didn't travel that way before.

Fay and Sol Lesser marked their 40th anniversary last Thursday (26) with a get-together at their Hotel Pierre apartment before returning to the Coast the next day. Their son, Julian (Bud) Lesser also returned to L. A. the same day, but by air.

Norman Panama conferring with Danny Kaye on script and casting for "Knock on Wood," upcoming Kaye starrer which Panama will co-produce and co-direct with his partner, Melvin Frank. Kaye's wife, Sylvia Fine, is doing the score and lyrics.

As a stunt, Robert E. Sherwood and Bennett Cerf staged a "sneak Coronation", at a party last week. Sherwood was Archbishop of Canterbury and Cerf was Duke of Norfolk. They crowned two queens, Mrs. Sam Goldwyn and Mrs. Arthur Hornblow. All done with special costumes.

Willis Player, publicity director for Pan American, former newspaperman with the Chicago Daily News, the Wall Street Journal and the Booth Newspapers of Michigan, appointed public relations-veepee of Northwest Airlines, St. Paul, Minn., effective May 1. Johnny Creedy, asst. p.r. director of Pan Am, succeeds to the top spot.

Paris

Sacha Guitry rehearsing his new play, "Palsambleu" at the Varietes.

Suzy Solidor, Henry Bry and Colette Mars into new show at Drap d'Or.

Charles Boyer, here for a role in "Madame D...," accepted an invitation to the Cannes Film Festival.

Luis Mariano inked for four musical pix "La Belle De Cadiz," "Colorado," "Carmen" and a new version of "Le Barbier De Seville."

"Limelight" opening at three big houses in its French version while the original version is in its 14th week at Le Raimu on Champs-Elysees.

Theatre Babylone, now housing offbeat legit hit, "En Attendant Godot," inaugurating a 6 o'clock show with the French version of "Night Must Fall."

Joe Bushkin writing nine songs here to lyrics by Garson Kanin.

Bal Tabarin opens this week after a nine-month cloture, featuring Buck & Schik, Les Cassavecchia, Paul Berni and big spec backing.

Hope Williams, over for European holiday, spent week here before going to Rome for long stay.

Erich von Stroheim into new pic, "Aiert in the South," to be filmed at Paris studio.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan

Buddy Greco joined the Gaylords vocal trio.

Mary Pickford coming here April 4-8 to aid U.S. bond drive.

Dan Cedrone, of Esquire Boys, ill with flu and opening at Sciolia's indefinitely postponed.

Thieves broke into Lenny Sloan's Emerson's Show Bar and made off with 23 cases of liquor and $420 in cash.

Kay Karlton Room furnishings auctioned off this week. Spot has been purchased by adjacent clothing store.

Stu Erwin and June Collyer guests of honor at Warwick Hotel luncheon which opened 1953 Cancer Crusade here.

Lee Guber, owner of Rendezvous Cafe, sponsoring Benny Goodman-Louis Armstrong concert at Academy of Music April 30.

Club Shaguire (Central Airport, Camden, N.J. spot) decided to give band policy a whirl, opening with Johnny Austin's orch April 4.

Reno

By Mark Curtis

Peter Lawford in for a visit.

Betty and Jane Kean open at Riverside April 2.

Sanford Adler will run Cal Neva and reclaimed Biltmore in close harmony at Tahoe.

Nevada legislature ends session with gambling laws practically unchanged. Levy of 2% on quarterly gross gaming incomes remains.

Silver Spurs Award for best western pic and actor of year hit snag. Gary Cooper may not be available for May celebration. Other "Spurs" winners were John Wayne, Gregory Peck and Jimmy Stewart.

Havana

Gali Gali heads bill at Montmartre.

The American tabloid, Havana Herald, folded after over two years of losses.

Bola de Nieve playing the piano at Radiocentro after returning from Europe.

President Batista helped inaugurate new airport at the tourist center of Trinidad.

Ana Gloria of the team of Ana Gloria & Rolando leaving the stage to get married.

The Venezuelan Symphony giving a number of concerts here as part of the Marti centenary celebrations.

A new government decree permits tourists to drive autos here if they have licenses from their own countries.

London

Alan Ladd hospitalized with a septic finger. His six-year-old son is a patient in same hospital.

Johnnie Ray's Sunday concert at Bellevue, Manchester, April 12, was sold out as soon as announced.

Robert B. Weiss, European rep for Capitol Records, here last week on his swing around the Continent.

Harry Kosiner, home office exec of Columbia, in London for confabs with Max Thorpe and William Levy.

Jack Hylton hosting three parties of blind people at performances of "Paint Your Wagon" at Her Majesty's theatre.

Val Parnell tossed a special party for Johnnie Ray after his London Palladium opening March 23, at the Embassy Club.

An unknown 18-year-old student, Susan Shentall, inked for femme lead in J. Arthur Rank's joint Italian production of "Romeo and Juliet."

Pandro C. Berman arrives in London this week to prep a Metro-British production of "Knights of the Round Table." Starts rolling in May.

David Niven arrived on the Elizabeth last week to take up the lead in Ealing's "The Love Lottery" which has been scripted by Harry Kurnitz.

Sydney Moseley, British broadcaster, author and editor of For Editors Only, sails for N. Y. April 16 on the Queen Elizabeth. Trip was delayed because of illness.

Mary Small, who has been booked by Lew Grade in England for eight weeks, has been offered a further eight but could only accept four because of her American nitery commitments.

Claude Merchant, with Kathleen Stamford and Ruth Ham, who were such a hit at the Embassy Club last year that they stayed there for 18 weeks, booked by Bob Barnett there as the Coronation attraction. They open May 13 for month.

Montreal

Sonny King clicking at Downbeat.

Paula Watson scoring at Cafe Minuit.

Nancy Donovan into Ritz Cafe today (Wed.).

Blossom Seeley & Benny Fields doing okay at Chez Paree.

Parisian baritone Mouloudji skedded for early April showing at Sans Souci.

Danny Dauberson inked for April 4 opening at Continental Cafe following Lily Fayol.

Normandie Room of Mount Royal Hotel shuttered for Holy Week, reopening April 6 with Burl Ives.

Jack Arthur in town from Toronto to catch Victor Borge show at Her Majesty's forthcoming CNE tieup in August.

Elizabeth Leese, Montreal ballet teacher and former hoofer with the Joos Ballet and Trudi Schoop, to play lead in forthcoming Montreal Rep Theatre's "Anna Christie."

Pittsburgh

By Hal V. Cohen

Ray Bolger booking at Horizon Room for week of May 20 has been cancelled.

Songwriters Sammy and George Mysels home for the Passover with their family.

Charlie Dortic, Col salesman, and his wife celebrated their 30th wedding anni.

Manager Charlie Eagle back on job at Stanley after being roughed up in an auto accident.

Jack Kalmenson, WB exchange manager, and his wife to Florida, Cuba and Nassau for three weeks.

Al Spink in town beating the drums for "Stalag 17" and Robert Reud here ahead of Ballet Theatre.

Casino property man Dave Lewis will have same job with summer opera company again this season.

Local dancer Jack Beaber will be with the Ballet Theatre when it comes here for a one-nighter next April 9.

Lisa Kirk comes home for Twin Coaches engagement May 4 right after her four-week date at Persian Room, New York.

Madrid

By Geeno Garr

Gloria Romero and her musical show at the Latina Theatre.

Mexican tenor Carlos Puig gave a concert here; returns to sing in opera next fall.

Argentine legit actress Zoe Ducos and company will tour the country starting on Easter.

Vet actor Alejandro Uliora and his legit company left for Havana for a long tour of Latino countries with latest Spanish plays.

Hungarian actress Lilly Muratti at the Maria Victoria Theatre with comedy, "S'ncerity," by her husband Lao Vaszary. Good boxoffice looms.

"The Thief," new play by Joaquin Calvo Sotel and starring Mari Carrilio and Enrique Diosdado, presented at the Maria Guerrero Theatre Public and crix lauded it.

With Pepita Serrador, touring the provinces for the last three years, there will be four Argentine actresses playing in Spain with their own companies and presenting plays by South American authors.

Cinema star Fernando Fernan Gomez is doing so well with his legit company at Teatro Comedia where he has been since Christmas doing the comedy "Routine Life" by Carios Llopis, that he continues with same play until after Easter.

Tokyo

"Rashamon" set for release in Egypt.

Walter Gieseking here for four-week concert tour sponsored by Yomiuri Newspaper.

First TV commercial pic completed by Dentsu Advertising Agency. The 30-second quickie was made for Nippon Beer Co.

"Limelight" (UA) designated as a "special select" film by the Japanese Education Ministry's Educational Film Examining Board.

Non-imflammable prints of three Metro pix will be distributed here. First ones are "Singin' in the Rain," "Crown and the Sword" and "Million Dollar Mermaid."

Scochiku Studio board director Ichizo Okuyama leaves soon for U. S. on inspection trip. Another board member, Kiyoshi Takamura, left for Cannes Film Festival March 28.

Ethics Code Board of Motion Picture Assn. of Japan, alarmed by the wave of Pacific War films in production or planned, has established six-man board to check scripts of such pix with an eye to removing anything which might injure Japanese relations abroad.

"Strip Calendar," a short containing some of Tokyo's best-known strippers, is being shown currently at burlesqueries here without the approval of Motion Picture Ethics Code Committee. It claims having no control of films shown at burley houses but will step in if pic is shown at regular theatres.

Minneapolis

By Les Rees

Tex Beneke into Prom Ballroom for one-nighter.

George Wilson back with Jose Greco Dancers at Lyceum.

Roy King and his "Komic-Kings" in third year at Magic Bar.

"Top Banana," current at Lyceum, first musical to play here full fortnight.

Ballet Theatre giving three performances at Northrop Auditorium on Minnesota U. campus.

French pianist Monique de la Bruchollerie soloist with Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

University of Minnesota band on tour, presenting two concerts a day in five northern Minnesota cities in five days.

Town has Shipstad-Johnson Ice Follies and Sportsmen's Show currently at Arena and Auditorium, respectiveiy. Former opened March 26 and remains through April 12.

Chicago

Marshall Migatz, of Salt Creek summer theatre, plans trek to N.Y. to line up players.

Dave Halper, Chez Paree host, off to California to set dates for Jimmy Durante and Ritz Bros.

Charles Coburn in town making plans for the harness racing season here which opens next month.

Arthur Godfrey headed list of celebs in for opening of the Beau Nash Room at the Ambassador East.

"Call Me Madam" company adopted two foreign children, one in Italy and one in France, for one year.

Danny Goldberg to New York next week to pact actors for his strawhatter, the Drury Lane, on south side of city.

San Francisco

By Ted Friend

Lily Pons enroute to Palm Spring.

George Shearing jamming Blackhawk Club.

Alice Faye in to catch Phil Harris' Auto Show stint.

Bill Hogan, Chronicle drama editor, to L. A. for studio gander.

Hildegarde guesting at Press Club Gang Night in record turnout.

Newspaper Frolic set for April 20 at the Curran Theatre, with Jack Benny heading show.

Anna Russell to play repeat concert at Veterans Auditorium April 6 as result of her sock draw five weeks ago.

Hollywood

Fred Allen in from N.Y. for TV work.

Arthur Lubin on vacation at La Quinta.

Hedda Hopper recovering from surgery.

Martha Hyers changed her first name to Marty.

Anna Maria Alberghetti returned from Rome.

Angna Enters here after a transcontinental tour.

Ricardo Montalban to Texas to plug Metro's "Sombrero."

Daniel Mannin from N. Y. to prep Shirley Booth's next film.

Barbara Stanwyck in from Mexico City after six weeks on location.

Richard Beymer returned to "So Big" cast after recovering from surgery.

Josef Auerbach in from N. Y. for release huddles with Mike Frankovich.

Mervyn Le Roy presented with Gold Heart Award by Mount Sinai Men's Club.

Helen Grayco back in town after two months on road with Spike Jones' band.

Reg Whitley in Hollywood to interview studio toppers for London Daily Mirror.

Ramiro Samoyoa in from Guatemala to gander 3-D product for his theatre chain.

Jeanette MacDonald back in tow for huddles with Paul Small about a European tour.

Arthur Freed decorated with Legion of Honor by Raoul Bertrand, French consul general.

George Jessel presented with the Man of the Year Award by the National Home for Jewish Children.

Col. Jason Joy presented with plaque by Southern California Motion Picture Council for his civic activities.

Frank Partos and Ladislas Bush-Fekete assigned to represent Screen Writers Guild at Cannes Film Festival next month.

Scotland

By Gordon Irving

Avril Angers inked for Glasgow nitery date.

Savoy cinema in Glasgow getting facelift.

Tommy Morgan teed off spring stint at Palace Theatre, Dundee.

Sunday opening of cinemas nixed at Motherwell, Lanarkshire.

Globe Revue from London due at King's Theatre, Glasgow, May 11.

Glasgow magistrates gave okay for TV sets to be installed in public meeting places.

Robert Wilson, Scot tenor, planing to Orkney and Shetland islands for vaude tour.

Glasgow and Ayr sharing with London the European preem "Miracle of Fatima" April 2.

Steve Merrick, vocalist and accordionist, joining Tommy Morgan Coronation show at Pavilion, Glasgow, in May.

Last Scot pantomime of season, "Jack and the Beanstalk," folded at Aihambra, Glasgow, March 28, after successful stint.

"Over the Moon," new revue starring Cicely Courtneidge, set for Alhambra, Glasgow, April 13. Vivian Ellis has written lyrics and music, with Jack Hulbert producing.

Margaret Miles, spotted in chorus of London's "South Pacific," inked for title role of "Puss in Boots" panto at Theatre Royal, Glasgow, next Christmas. Freddie Carpenter again directing.

Riviera

By Ed Quinn

Concert pianist Nikita Magaloff gave a recital at the Casino, Nice.

Jacques Dumesnil and Suzanne Dehelly played "La Feuille de Vigne" at the Palais de la Mediteranee, Nice.

Josephine Baker and her company will do a gala show at the International Sporting Club, Monte Carlo, Easter Sunday.

Edwige Feuiliere played in "La Liberte est un Dimanche" at the Palais de la Mediterranee, Nice, and the Casino, Cannes.

Thilda Thamar and Yves Vincent working on exteriors of "Monsieur Scrupule et le Polsson Chinois." Jacques Darcy is directing.

Jacques Helian Orch and vaude lineup gave concert to aid the Red Cross at the Casino, Monte Carlo; was attended by Prince of Monaco.

After a successful season at Casino, Cannes, Marquis de Cuevas Ballet Co. planed to Norway and Sweden for dates before returning to Paris.

Michel Simon working on "L'Etrange Desir de Monsieur Bard," directed by Geza Radvanyi, now being made at the Studio de la Victorine, with exteriors at Nice, Cannes and Monte Carlo.

OBITUARIES

BERNARD L. MILLER

Bernard L. Miller, 56, vet music biz attorney, died in his New York home March 27 following two heart attacks early that day. Miller, as head of the law firm of Miller & Miller with his brother, Morton, was active until his death despite a cardiac condition for the past five years.

Since opening his firm in 1926, Miller had been legal counsel for numerous publishing firms, disk companies and writers. Recently, he repped Lou Levy's Leeds Music firm, Joe Glaser's Associated Booking Corp., the British publisher, Reg Connelly, and other U.S. and foreign music companies. When Decca was formed in the early 1930s, he was closely associated with the diskery's late co-founder, Jack Kapp, on the legal end.

During World War II he was director of the Office of Price Administration in Brooklyn. He was also active in Jewish community affairs, having founded the Madison Jewish Center in Brooklyn.

Besides his brother, Miller is survived by his wife and two sons, Jerry, a member of the law firm, and Allen, who recently launched his own music publishing company.

BERT BAILEY

Bert Bailey, 81, former Australian legit and comedy star and author, died March 30 at his home in Darlinghurst, a suburb of Sydney. He had been retired for some years.

Possibly the biggest star in Australian stage history, Bailey started in so-called "brush shows," traveling in a wagon and playing small towns. He ultimately reached the bigtime in the principal Australian cities and became a national idol.

In 1912, Bailey opened at the Palace, Sydney, in his own play, "On Our Selection," a comedy-drama about Australian family life. It was an immediate hit and became his greatest success and perennial touring vehicle. He appeared in London in the show just after World War I, his only engagement there. He never played the U. S.

Daughter survives.

JENNIE BLECHER

Died March 24, 1953, at 68

So Loved, So Remembered,

So Mourned

MY MOTHER

John Roeburt

EDDIE LEWIS

Eddie Lewis, 52, American manager for Edith Piaf and Les Compagnons de la Chanson, died March 26 after an operation in New York. Lewis recently had joined the Lew & Leslie Grade Agency's N. Y. office as a vice-president.

Prior to the Grade affiliation, Lewis had been with the late Clifford C. Fischer for 20 years. He made frequent trips to Europe where he gandered talent with possibilities for the American market and spotting U. S. turns on the Continent.

Lewis had been suffering from ulcers for some time and had gone down to Florida for a rest. Upon arrival in New York, he entered Polyclinic Hospital where an emergency operation was performed.

JIM THORPE

Jim Thorpe, 64, rated as one of the greatest athletes of all time, and the subject of a film in 1951, died March 28 in Los Angeles of a heart attack. In the 1912 Olympic Games at Stockholm Thorpe won both the decathlon and pentathlon championships, but six months later was deprived of the honor following the disclosure that he had played professional baseball in 1909 and 1910.

After the Olympic incident he played as a pro in both baseball and football. He retired from sports and went to California where he occasionally worked as an extra in films. Warner Bros.' "Jim Thorpe, All American" was based on his career. He made numerous personal appearances in connection with the showing of the pic.

Surviving are his third wife and three daughters and four sons by a previous marriage.

HAROLD L. GROVES

Harold L. Groves, 49, president of Hargroves National Service System, Inc., and All State Field Service, Inc., firms designed to keep tabs on film copyright infringements, died March 24 in N.Y. He began his career in 1926 with the N.Y. Film Board of Trade and also had served with the legal branch of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

In 1945 Grove helped organize Confidential Reports, Inc., which serviced film companies with a check on nationwide b.o. receipts. He became Confidential's exec v.p. in 1951, after serving as its national field director and last year became prexy and g.m. of Hargroves and All State. At the time of his death he was investigating N.Y. theatre ticket agencies and boxoffice personnel on a confidential assignment for the League of N.Y. Theatres.

Wife, daughter, son, mother, brother and five sisters survive.

MAURICE FREEMAN

Maurice Freeman, 81, former actor and vaudevillian, died March 26 in Bayshore, L.I. He had played stock in Boston, New York, Chicago, New Orleans and St. Louis. He had toured vaude from 1908-15 with his late wife, professionally known as Nadine Winston, in a comedy skit, "Tony and the Stork." From 1915-18 he appeared in films and was later seen on Broadway in "Night Hostess," "Celebrity," "Tomorrow's a Holiday," "The Octoroon," "Did I Say No," "Mendell, Inc.," "When in Rome" and "Play, Genius, Play." His legit activity also included appearances in London, where he performed in "Three Men on a Horse." He retired about nine years ago.

Surviving are two brothers.

A. E. CHADICK

A. E. Chadick, 50, exec veepee of Motion Advertising Services Co., Inc., died March 27 in a N. Y. Central train wreck at Ashtabula, O. He had been with MPAS for over 25 years, and before that had been manager of the Saenger Theatre, New Orleans, under E. V. Richards. He had been enroute from the national convention of Drive-In Theatre Owners, held in Milwaukee, to company's N. Y. office.

Wife and brother survive.

MAX THIEL

Max Thiel, 74, professionally known as Maximo the Great, magician, died March 24 in Glendola, N. J. Born in Germany, he came to the U. S. in 1896. He had toured here and abroad and was a former dean of the N. J. Society of Magicians.

Surviving are his wife, Martha Wuensche Thiel, who had assisted him in his act, and a son.

ANDREW GRAY

Andrew Gray, 80, radio pioneer, died March 22 in a hospital near London. Gray had worked with the late Guglielmo Marconi, his personal friend, for many years, dating back to latter's earliest radio experiments. He eventually became technical general manager of the Marconi International Marine Communication Co.

Gray retired 21 years ago.

WALTER R. GOLDING

Walter R. Golding, 57, who had operated the Community Theatre, West St. John, N. B., for the past 26 years and previously had been on film distributing staffs, died in St. John March 21. He had been ill three days with heart trouble. He was a charter member of the Canadian Motion Picture Pioneers.

Survived by a brother and two sisters, one of the latter being the wife of R. G. March, veteran district manager for 20th-Fox.

MRS. SAMUEL HELD

Mrs. Dorothy Sandler Held, 50, known professionally as Dorothy Saunders, former songstress, died March 24 in a Long Island hospital. Miss Held, who had played the Keith and Loew vaude circuits as a singer, began her career as a nitery vocalist.

Husband, Samuel Held, a retired restaurant owner, a daughter and a brother survive.

JAMES ANDERSON

James Anderson, 81, character actor, died in a Glasgow hospital March 22 from burns received when his clothing was set alight by electric fire in his home.

Known on stage and radio, he appeared in the pic, "Tight Little Island," in role of the invalid who kept his whisky in a hot-water bottle in bed.

AL ROMA

Alexander Isaacson, 56, professionally known as Al Roma, vaude and nitery performer, died March 27 in Philadelphia. He had played the Keith circuit and recently had appeared in Philly niteries.

Wife, the former Betty Woodroffe, who had appeared in vaude under the name of Betty Wood, survives.

J. WALTER CAMPBELL

J. Walter Campbell, 62, manager of the Bijou Theatre, N.Y., died March 27 in East Meadow, L. I. He had been manager of the Bijou for the past eight years and before that had managed USO-Camp Shows, 1941-1945.

Wife, two daughters, a brother and a sister survive.

JOHN E. LILLY

John E. Lilly, 78, veteran theatre owner, died March 22 in Sulphur Springs, Tex. He had operated theatres there since 1922 and at one time held interests at Alba, Winnsboro, Mount Pleasant and Honey Grove.

He began at the Alba in 1917.

WILLIAM HUMPHREYS

William Humphreys, 78, musical mimic with the old Dumont Minstrels, died March 24 at his home in Haddon Heights, N. J. In recent years employed as a printer, Humphreys had a long stage career which included several seasons on the Keith circuit.

Wife and daughter survive.

EARL (JEFF) JEFFRIES

Earl (Jeff) Jeffries, 78, oldest stagehand in Dayton, O., died March 24 in that city.

Three years ago he was presented with a gold card by Dayton theatre operators upon completion of 50 years as a stagehand, most of them at the Keith Theatre.

WILLIAM L. ENGELHARDT

William L. Engelhardt, 61, tax accountant with Loew's, Inc., for 30 years, died March 28 in Rockville Centre, L. I.

Wife and two children survive.

ALFRED SEVER

Alfred Sever, 62, actor in silent films, died March 26 in N.Y. He had been a supporting player in a number of pix made in Fort Lee, N.J., in the pre-sound era.

Wife survives.

Mrs. Rose Marie Palmese, 82, retired screen actress, died March 21 in Altadena, Cal. She was formerly under contract at Universal. Surviving are her husband, 11 children, 17 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Fidencio Carbajal Penna, 92, Mexican composer who helped Juventino Rosas arrange the music for "Over the Waves," died March 26 in Cuernavaca, Mexico.

Wife, 35, of Jerry King, president of the Standard Radio Transcription Service, Los Angeles, died March 24 in L.A. Surviving besides her husband are her parents and two brothers.

William Birken, 38, formerly with Joey Sims and Maurice Spitalny orchs in Pittsburgh, died at his home there March 22 of a heart attack. He leaves his wife, a dancer.

E. M. Rush, manager of Lyceum Theatre, Leeds, England, for 35 years, died March 9 in that city. He was secretary of Leeds branch of British Cinematograph Exhibitors Assn.

James A. Callahan, 56, vet member of the projectionists and stagehands union, died of heart disease March 19 in St. Louis. His wife and six children survive.

Brendan A. Poutree, 24, vocalist who had toured the midwest, died March 21 when car he was driving went out of control and overturned near Rawlins, Wyo.

Donald D. Brehm, 32, Lincoln, Neb., musician, died March 17 after an extended illness. He was a drummer for several bands which played Lincoln niteries. Survived by mother and brother.

E. William Pearson, 48, CBS radio engineer for 23 years, died March 25 at his home in Woodland Hills, Cal.

Maurice Clark Turner, 74, prez of the Dixie Lecture & Concert Management Bureau, Dallas, died March 22 in that city.

William Humphreys, 79, former vaude comedian, died March 24 in Haddon Heights, N. J.

Joseph L. Markolf, 60, last employed at the New Shenandoah Theatre, St. Louis, died of a heart attack March 20 in that city.

Brother, 90, of Murray Whiteman, proprietor of Whiteman's Song Shop, Buffalo, died in New Rochelle, N.Y., March 16.

Son, 2½, of Sonny Burke, Decca Records' artist and repertoire head in Hollywood, died March 29 in Santa Monica, Cal.

Brother, 55, of David Niven; actor, died March 25 in Durban, South Africa.

Karl Eberlein, 68, pioneer film studio artist, died March 20 in a traffic accident in Hollywood.

Father, 73, of Joseph Mulone, owner of the Cheswick Theatre near Pittsburgh, died March 12 in Pitt.

Mother, 68, of John Roeburt, radio-TV writer, died March 24 in New York.

H. Miles Williams, Jr., 39, sound technician with 20th-Fox, died March 24 in Hollywood.

MARRIAGES

Yvonne Seder to Don Jaeger, Las Vegas, March 28. She's daughter of the late film director, Ralph Seder; he's with Technicolor.

Myra Key to Eric Pausin, Dundee, Scotland, March 21. She's skater in British ice productions; he's ice skater from Vienna.

Pauline Larson to Edward F. Clinchard, N.Y., Dec. 19 and just revealed. Bride is a TV singer-pianist.

Janet Mario Bera to Johnny Amoroso, Yonkers, N.Y., March 22. He's a vocalist with Tommy Dorsey orch.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. David S. Hall, Jr., daughter, Los Angeles, March 26. Father is assistant manager of the Los Angeles Theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dulaine, son, Hollywood, March 26. Father is deejay and radio announcer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hill, son, Santa Monica, Cal., March 26. Child is the grandson of Jack E. Baker, Republic's veepee in charge of studio operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Carson, son, N.Y., March 25. Mother is Carol Channing, musicomedy performer.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Smith, daughter, Hollywood, March 17. Father is a Metro makeup man.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Lee, son, March 10, Erie, Pa. Father's of the American Theatre there.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Robinson, Jr., daughter, Hollywood, March 27. Father, a quondam film player, is the son of film star Edward G. Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rudman, son, Buffalo, recently. Father is a clarinetist, formerly with Vaughn Monroe's orch.

Green

Continued from page 7

very tightlipped about it. He has stated in the past, and said so again last week, that he would come up with a "surprise" at the 20th stockholders meet in N. Y. May 11. While Green himself has dropped hints that he controls as many as 600,000 shares of 20th stock, a more conservative estimate puts his and his associates' holdings at about 60,000 shares, with an option on another 40,000. Under 20th's cumulative voting system it takes approximately 200,000 shares to elect a director.

Spokesmen for 20th have indicated on several occasions that Green may be able to elect a director. At the brokers' meet, Green was asked whether he had tried to "compromise" with Skouras and he replied that he had tried to do so on several occasions. At the start of his talk, he asserted he had never officially announced a 20th proxy fight.

Green, asked whether owning stock in a company made one competent to direct it, replied that stock ownership provided an incentive to work well. He added that directors should be competent and honest. When asked whether he thought 20th directors were incompetent or dishonest, Green quickly replied, "Absolutely not," and declared he had never said that.

Green discussed 20th's past dividend record and criticized management for not including in its earning reports foreign revenue blocked overseas. In this 20th follows the regular industry pattern of including in its earning report only dollars actually received in New York.

Chains Whittle

Continued from page 7

mercially, the industry may be less impressive; economically it will be more sound, and the individual units should prosper."

In N. Y. Monday (30), Samuel Goldwyn restated an observation which he has made several times in past. He believes about 50% of the present theatres will go out of business eventually.

Upbeat in recent theatre income was noted by Sol A. Schwartz, prexy of the RKO chain, and Goldenson. Due largely to "better pictures," the b.o. for the first two months of 1953 was ahead of the corresponding 1952 period, Schwartz said in his annual statement to stockholders.

RKO's theatre receipts for all of 1952 amounted to $26,954,000, against $29,550,000 for 1951. Drop for comparable theatres and for comparable periods was equal to 8%, said Schwartz. As previously reported, the RKO circuit had net earnings of $1,025,000 last year, compared with $1,322,039 in 1951.

Goldenson revealed that UPT's fourth quarter of 1952 was ahead of the final quarter of 1951. This represents the first time in three years that an improvement was experienced. Earnings amounted to $1,640,000, or 40c a share, for the 1952 final quarter, compared with $1,056,000, or 32c a share, for the last 1951 period.

UPT consolidated net profit for the year was $6,961,113, including earnings of $5,613,626 from operations and $1,347,487 from capital gains. Profit, equal to $2.11 a share, compared with 1951's earnings of $10,705,011, or $3.24 per share.

All-Night Ozoner

Continued from page 1

night policy have also opposed the practice, pointing out that it would arouse both church and municipal authorities and bring about harassment from city officials. These ops note that ozoner operation is based on catering to the family and this trade could be harmed by instituting the dawn-to-dusk policy and reviving charges against "passion pits with pix."

Several of the all-night theatres showed five different features after midnight in addition to five cartoons and other shorts. Snack bars were kept open throughout the night for purchases and a few even served free doughnuts and coffee during the early morning hours.

All-night practice is still being followed in Houston where the general reaction from a biz standpoint appears good. A 1,000-car emporium in Houston was three-fourths full all during last Saturday night. Another, with a 508 capacity, was full throughout the night.

All-night policy was originated in the midwest and recently spread to the southwest. For the after-midnight shows, some ozoners have been exhibiting quickie exploitation-type burlesque films. One was reported also presenting an in-the-flesh stripper.

BBC Chief Loser

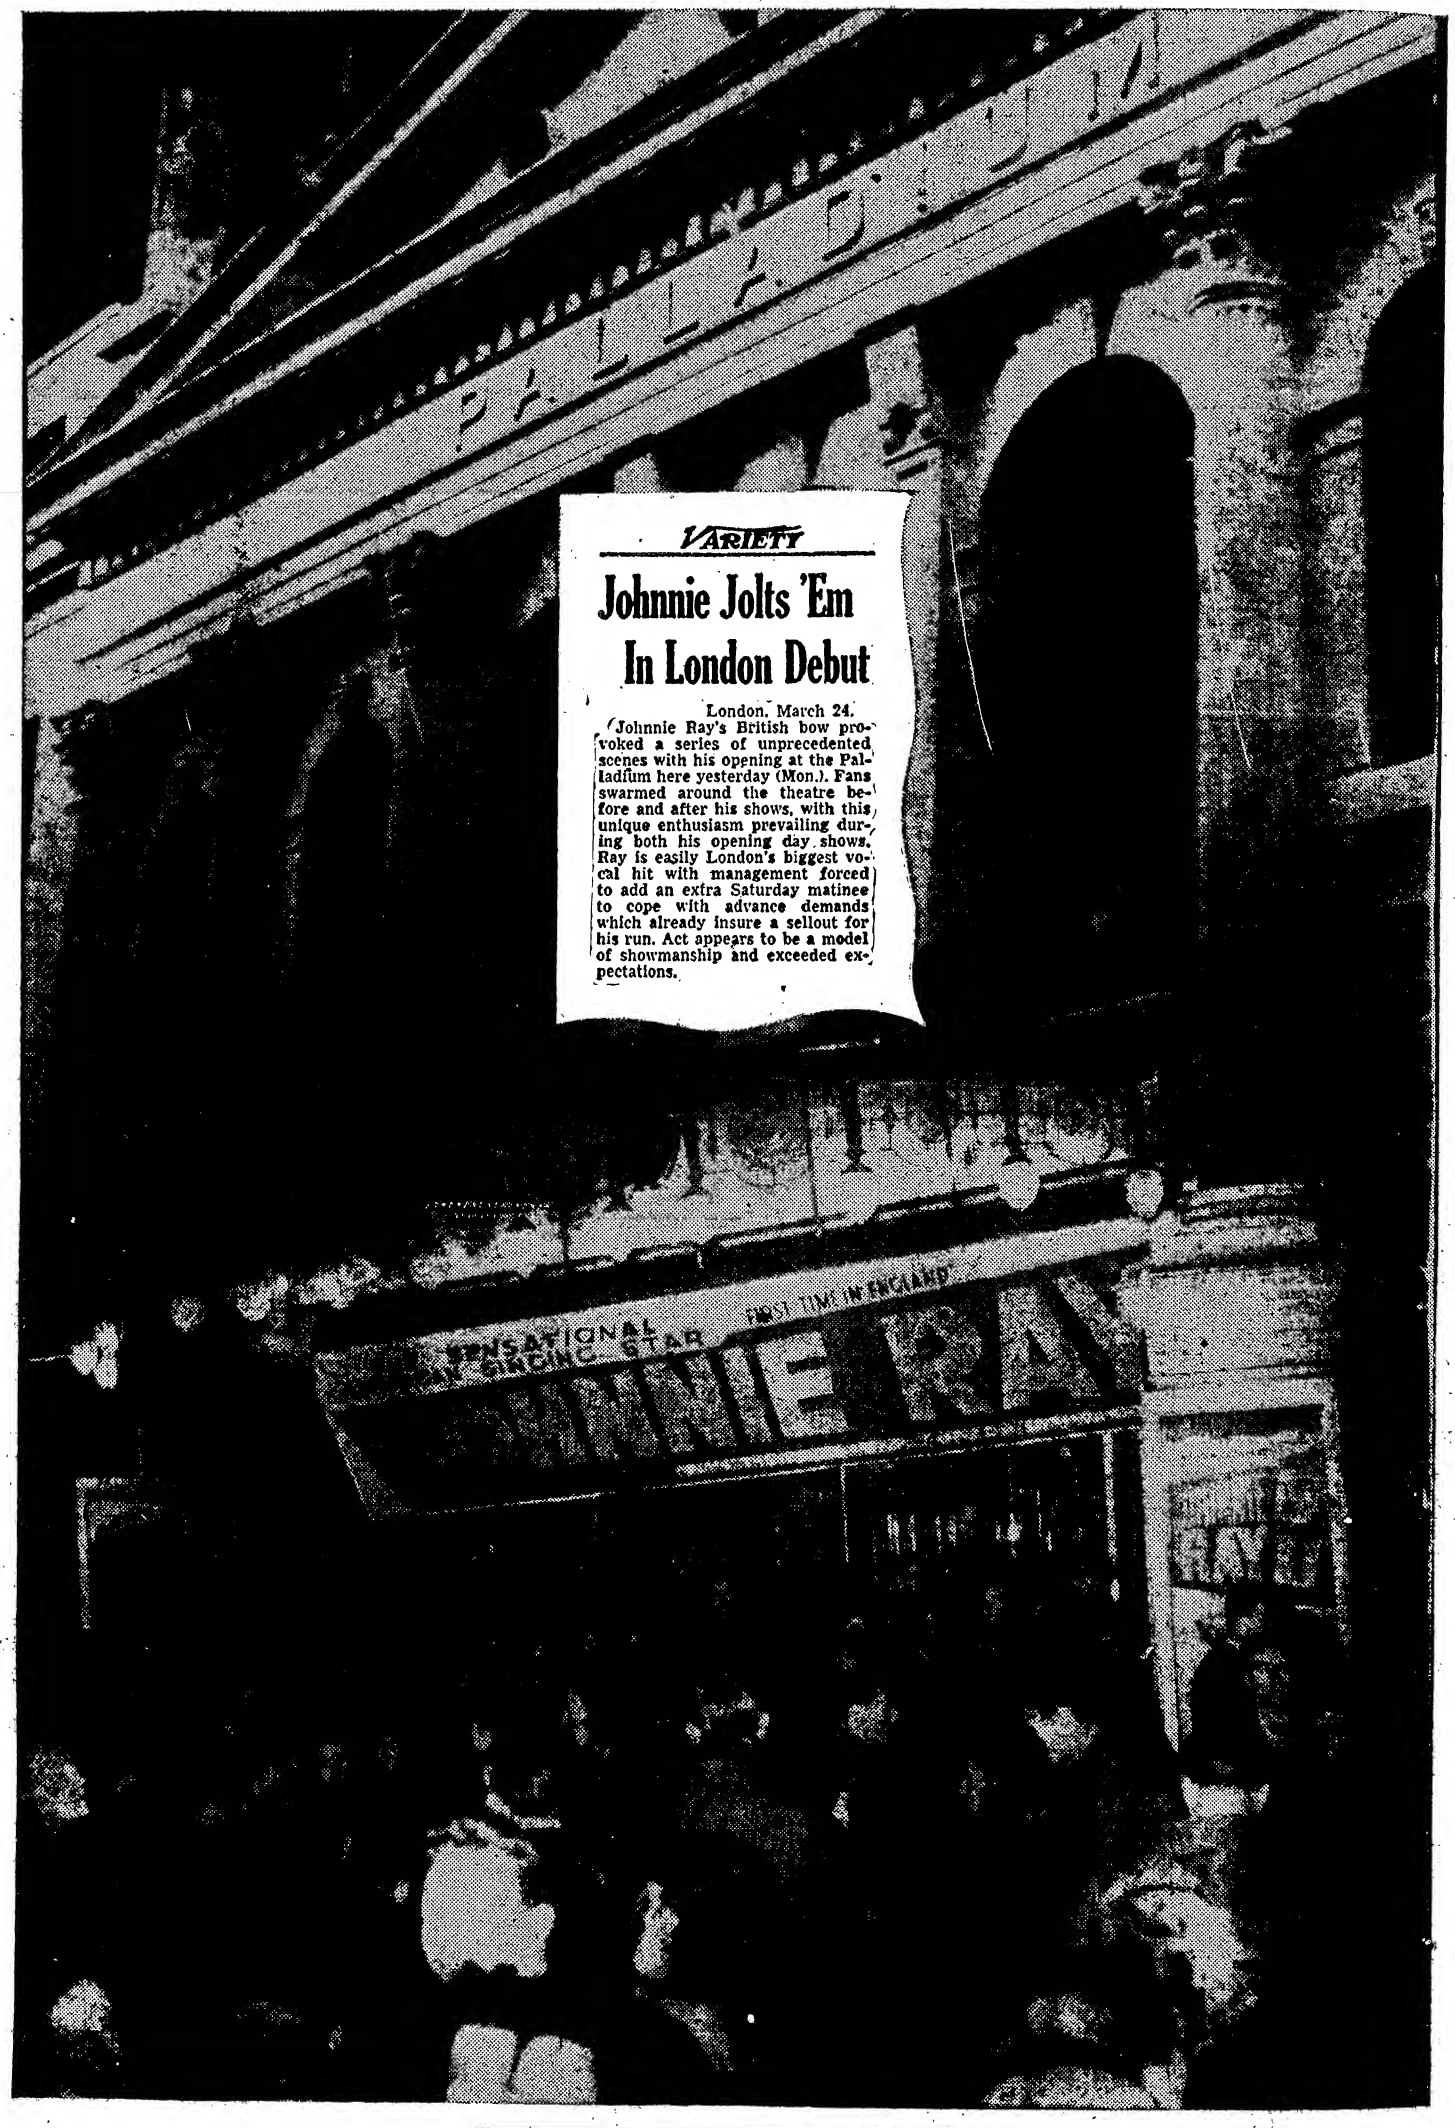
Continued from page 2

these cancelled their programs on the night the news was announced.

Main entertainment casualty is the BBC sound and TV programs. From the time of Queen Mary's passing until after the funeral, only modified programs are being aired, with a partial merging of the three national wavelengths for special memoriam features. One of these was Noel Coward's "Cavalcade" which was one of Queen Mary's favorite shows.

Decision to limit court mourning to a month indicates there will be no suggestion of revising Coronation plans. That ceremony will be staged on June 2, as arranged, with nation-wide junketings to follow.

When the death was first announced, Jack de Leon tentatively switched the opening of "Red Headed Blonde," scheduled for the Vaudeville tomorrow (1), until the following Saturday, but when it was confirmed that it would preem after the royal funeral, he reverted to the original date. The Old Vic's opening tonight (Tues.) of "Murder in the Cathedral" proceeds as scheduled.



VARIETY

Johnnie Jolts 'Em In London Debut

London, March 24.

Johnnie Ray's British bow provoked a series of unprecedented scenes with his opening at the Palladium here yesterday (Mon.). Fans swarmed around the theatre before and after his shows, with this unique enthusiasm prevailing during both his opening day shows. Ray is easily London's biggest vocal hit with management forced to add an extra Saturday matinee to cope with advance demands which already insure a sellout for his run. Act appears to be a model of showmanship and exceeded expectations.

Exclusive
COLUMBIA RECORDS

GAC GENERAL ARTISTS CORPORATION

Personal Manager
BERNIE LANG

Apr 8'53A

FILMS | RADIO | VIDEO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc., Annual subscription $10. Single copies, 25 cents.
Entered as second class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1953, BY VARIETY, INC., ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

VOL. 190 No. 5 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 1953 PRICE 25 CENTS

TV JUST A 'RADIO HANGOVER'

Diamonds as Songwriter's Best Friend When 'Kill the Ump' Time Blossoms

By JIM WALSH

Songwriters and record makers seem to have first got the idea in 1906 that an honest buck could be turned by writing or recording paens to baseball. True, in 1903 there was a ditty called "Strike Out, McCracken," whose title sounds promising, but it turns out to have nothing to do with the bat-and-ball game. Instead, it is the sad story of a sailor forever getting shipwrecked and having to swim to shore. And when Al Bernard and Ernest Hare recorded George F. Briegel's "Slide, Kelly, Slide" in 1920 their hero was not a base stealer but a trombone player. Names can be misleading!

But in 1906 George Whiting and Fred Fisher wrote "It's Great at a Baseball Game," which did fairly well, and Joe E. Howard did even better with "The Umpire is a Most Unhappy Man," (words by Hough and Adams); a genuinely clever comic song which has been occasionally revived since—as on a Signature record by Ray Bloch's orchestra, with "The Giants' March" on the other side. "The Umpire" was introduced in the music film, "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now."

"It's Great at a Baseball Game"

(Continued on page 44)

Pitt's Vogue Fouled Up In Lamour Mumps, Mick's Mate, Kallen's TV, Etc.

Pittsburgh, April 7.

John Bertera, owner of the Vogue Terrace, and George Claire, who books the 1,100-seat theatre restaurant, had enough headaches last week to do them for the rest of the year. It all started when Dorothy Lamour came down with the mumps and had to cancel her Easter booking here, which was to have started Saturday (4) and extended through this Saturday (11).

On strength of the Lamour date, Bertera had lined up a flock of big organization parties and had also spent a nice bundle on advertising when he got the bad news. William Morris office told him and Claire not to worry, that they'd come up with a satisfactory replacement, perhaps either Kay Starr or Frank Sinatra. Twenty-four hours later, Bertera was informed neither one of them was available but would he like to have Mickey Rooney? He okayed The Mick on the spot, and immediately placed big ads announcing Rooney.

Almost before the dailies heralding Rooney were on the street, Claire got another call telling him that Rooney, after okaying the date, had decided he couldn't make it because his wife was sick and he didn't want to leave her. Next name to be contacted was Frances Langford, in Florida. She couldn't

(Continued on page 15)

Arnold's Tip

Hollywood, April 7.

Advice from Edward Arnold, soon to start his 46th year in show biz: "People in the acting end of the business should worry less about the innovations of Cinerama, 3-D and other technical developments, and worry more about improving their acting.

"There will always be a part for good performers."

Legit Crix Stew Hops from B'way, Chi to West End

Situation on the critics front continued to boil last week, taking on international complications, but there were no further instances of aisle-sitters being barred from theatres. New developments were confined to verbal agitation.

In Chicago, where J. J. Shubert recently took reviewers off the first-night free list and sought to have them cover second nights, the four first-stringers attended the local opening of "Affairs of State" on purchase tickets. By coincidence, it was generally agreed, they panned the show. Indications are that the critics will continue to buy their tickets and cover openings indefinitely.

In Hartford, where the New Par-

(Continued on page 18)

SWG Moves to Protect Unwitting Employers Of Communist Scribes

Hollywood, April 7.

Screen Writers Guild is drawing up a new form of contract with a clause designed to protect any producer who unwittingly hires a scripter who is a member of the Communist Party or who has refused to testify whether he has ever been one. Under the new clause, the producer does not have to abide by the SWG pact, nor does he have to give a writer screen credit if he is in any way tainted with communism.

Change in the SWG bylaws is an aftermath of the Guild's suit against RKO, in which Howard Hughes refused to give screen credit to Paul Jerrico on the ground that the writer refused to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Hughes won the case and an appeal is pending. At a SWG meeting on April 22 the membership will vote on a proposed settlement of the suit.

FEW PROPERTIES BUILT FOR VIDEO

The emergence of the former CBS Radio property, "My Favorite Husband," as another potential TV click spotlights one particular facet of video programming that's generally gone unheralded. The fact that many of the big-money, high-rated television network shows had their genesis as major commercial entries in radio would indicate that the basic properties growing out of TV itself, as a medium distinct and apart from radio, are few and far between.

This, too, does not take into consideration the added fact that virtually all the top TV personalities —the Bob Hopes, the Jimmy Durantes, the Abbott & Costellos, the Eddie Cantors, the Dennis Days, the Groucho Marxes, the Arthur Godfreys, the Milton Berles, etc.— are themselves graduates of the radio kilocycle school.

Even the No. 1 "I Love Lucy" TV show has its roots in radio, for it's a video adaptation of the erstwhile Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz "My Favorite Husband" radio program of a few seasons back. Now CBS-TV is reverting back to the original title for a second TV fling, with the new one starring Joan Caufield and Barry Nelson.

The radio-to-TV transition is particularly in evidence on the

(Continued on page 34)

Cinerama's 8-Mo. $1,730,000 Take

Based on advance sales, an estimated $1,730,000 will have been taken in by Cinerama when it concludes its run at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., on June 4 following an eight-month run. The following night, Cinerama will shift to the Warner (formerly Strand) Theatre, which will be its permanent Gotham home.

For the Warner run, Cinerama is dropping its Friday matinees for two evening showings, at 7:15 and 10. According to exhib chief Joseph Kaufman, completely new equipment will be installed at Cinerama's new home. Included will be the new semi-portable projection booths and the giant screen mounted on aluminum pipe scaffolding.

Conant's TV Hitch-Hike

Dr. James B. Conant, U.S. High Commissioner to Germany, arrived at Idlewild Airport, New York, at 5:19 a.m., several hours earlier than expected last Sunday (5).

Lacking other transportation, he rode to New York in the back of a CBS-TV film truck, there to record his arrival.

Conant is back in the U. S. to confer with President Eisenhower.

Figure 'Picnic' Will Cop N.Y. Crix Circle, Pulitzer 'Best Play' Awards

"Picnic," by William Inge, is figured the leading contender for the Pulitzer Prize and N. Y. Drama Critics Circle award as the best play of the season. That appears to be the feeling in Broadway legit circles and concensus of the season's reviews. Critics Circle makes its selection next Tuesday (14) and the Pulitzer committee citation is announced three weeks later.

Other possible candidates for the best-play awards include "The Crucible" by Arthur Miller; "Time of the Cuckoo" by Arthur Laurents, and as a remote possibility, "Seven Year Itch" by George Axelrod. This season, for the first time in several years, there's believed to be a strong chance that the Critics and Pulitzer selections may agree.

"Wonderful Town" is rated a virtual sure thing as the critics' choice as best musical of the season. There's no other serious candidate. For the best foreign play, odds are figured slightly in favor of "Love of Four Colonels," with "My 3 Angels" and "Dial M for Murder" major contenders.

Critics' generally pick the best musical and best foreign entry, but the Pulitzer committee usually selects the best play. In the case of "Of Thee I Sing" that turned out to be a musical, and in the case of "South Pacific" there was a special citation for the musical.

Two highly regarded incoming

(Continued on page 22)

Hope-Crosby's New One?

Toronto, April 7.

In pre-program warmup, radio audience here was asked to join later in on-air singing of Irving Berlin's "Easter Parade," with mimeographed lyrics then passed out.

Song session sagged halfway to upset proceedings when program participants discovered that typist had made an error to read: "The photographer will snap us, and you'll find that you're in the Road to Gravure."

O'seas $1,329,000 Swells ASCAP To Peak $17,672,000

In addition to the peak domestic income of $16,343,000 received by ASCAP in 1952, the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers obtained $1,329,400 from foreign performing societies for distribution to U. S. publishers and writers. Figures were revealed by ASCAP comptroller George Hoffman at the annual meeting in N. Y. at the Hotel Astor, yesterday (Tues.).

The foreign coin is not part of the general fund and its distribution is made on a strict per-performance basis to writers and publishers. Accurate breakdown of foreign performances is possible because of the tieup between the overseas governments and the performing rights societies which

(Continued on page 46)

WB and RKO, Last Major Film Holdouts, to Be 'Toasted' by Sullivan

Ed Sullivan, who has been playing best man at the film-television wedding on CBS-TV's "Toast of the Town," has cracked two more major studios—Warner Bros. and RKO—on showing clips from their new pix on his Sunday-night tele hour.

First WB current release, "Trouble Along the Way," will be seen in a clip on "Toast" next Sunday (12), with Charles Coburn and Sherry Jackson of the cast (John Wayne starred) making personal appearances.

In obtaining WB pix, Sullivan has broken a logjam that prevented at least four WB properties from being shown on "Toast," such as "The Petrified Forest" in Sullivan's Robert E. Sherwood Story,

(Continued on page 15)

Johnny Burke's Other Self, K. C. Rogan, Dips Into Classics Again

With the current release of "Now That I'm in Love," tune's lyricist, K. C. Rogan, has come out from under his pseudonym and revealed himself as pop tunesmith Johnny Burke. The Rogan tag first broke into music biz circles several months ago, with "Wild Horses," which is an adaptation of Robert Schumann's melody of the same name. On "Now That I'm in Love" Rogan (Burke) dipped into the classics again, this time culling from Rossini's overture to "William Tell."

Burke, who collabs with Jimmy Van Heusen on pix score musicals (they've also penned the score for the upcoming legit musical, "Carnival in Flanders") has placed "Now That I'm in Love" in his Burke & Van Heusen ASCAP firm, operated by George Simon. "Horses," on the other hand, was spotted in the Simon catalog.

Burke developed the K. C. Rogan moniker from a compilation of the names of his three children; his son Kevin Curtis (K.C.) and his two daughters, Rory and Regan (Rogan). Four diskeries, RCA Victor, Mercury, Decca and M-G-M, already have covered "Now That I'm in Love."

'Punchy' Met Winds 68th Season With Puffs, Pans and Lower (250G) Deficit

By ARTHUR BRONSON

The Metropolitan Opera will close its 68th season in N. Y. Saturday (11) in a whir of paradoxes. Box-officewise, biz has been good all year, and well ahead of last season, when the Met had a $3,500,000 b.o. take. On the other hand, there's a Met money crisis, which necessitated a public drive for $1,500,000 this winter. Only about $515,000 of this amount has been raised, and prospects are that the drive won't reach $750,000.

Productionwise, the Met offered three new presentations during the 22-week season. These were the highly-touted Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress," in its American premiere; the Howard Dietz English version of "La Boheme," and "La Forza del Destino." Yet, despite the 24 different operas given for 149 performances this year, the season artistically was mediocre.

The '52-'53 season brought many brickbats and few hosannas. Musically and newswise, it wasn't as powerful a season as Bing's first two, retrograding as far as its impact on the public was concerned. Works chosen for presentation may have been the reason. There were few distinguished productions and performances, and many shoddy ones.

After a '51-'52 season, when the Met ran up an alltime deficit high of $475,000, this season's losses look to be more moderate. With three new productions this season as against last season's four (each roughly costing from $60,000 to $75,000 to stage), and no similar outside loss as last season's touring "Fledermaus" nick, the Met's '52-'53 deficit isn't expected to exceed $250,000.

There was nothing as unusual this season as last year's hiring of

(Continued on page 15)

THE HONG KONG STORY: CUGAT'S 30G, $20 SUITS

Hong Kong, March 31.

The five-day stand of the Xavier Cugat troupe wound up last week with a gross of $30,000 for 10 performances. Hong Kong talent-starved fans rushed in to fill rather poor seating arrangements to capacity and acclaimed the show best yet seen here.

Show included Abbe Lane, The Four Step Bros., Tulara Lee, Los Barrancos, McQuaif Twins, and Chinese comic Jose Wong.

Hong Kong pays off to visiting artists not only in the nice takes to be expected but in shopping loot. Right now this is a world paradise for shoppers: men's worsted suits at $20, watches and cameras at factory prices, a free currency market with no restrictions, 12-course menus served with individual attention, dance music and cabaret turns at $2, hotel suites with bath at $8 per day and so on right down the line.

This is almost taxless existence in a tax-crazy world, with lush Oriental beauties, green mountains, blue tropic seas and the comfortable background of Chinese service.

PHOTOS FREE!
8x10
GLOSSIES
5½¢ EA.
Per Thousand
8½¢ EA.
Per Hundred
10¢ EA.
For Fifty
We use Eastman Paper. Free Delivery Anywhere
Our service is to duplicate your photos in quantities as good as your original or better.
Our Guarantee: You must be satisfied or your money back. Samples of our work sent on request.
100 FREE WITH ANY ORDER OF 100 OR MORE
LET'S GET ACQUAINTED!
24 HOUR SERVICE
DUPLICATE PHOTO
GL. 1143 6775 SUNSET BLVD. HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.

New Korean Trek

Hollywood, April 7.

Nine Hollywood troupers left for Korea to entertain U. S. servicemen under auspices of the Hollywood Coordinating Committee and USO-Camp Shows. It is Johnny Grant's third tour and Piper Laurie's second.

Other members of the troupe are Freddie Brown, Arthur Brunner, Ernest Brunner, Wanda Curtis, Jane Davis, Jean Fowler and Elizabeth Talbot-Martin.

Esther Williams Can Do No Wrong in Burma; Spot's Something for the Birds

By JULES BUCHER

Rangoon, March 31.

Burma is a wonderful place to make films, to exhibit films, and to watch film audiences. There are birds in the screening room. There are frequently birds in the theatres, too. Temperatures here stay around 90 day and night, throughout much of the year. There is no air-conditioning, and the ceiling fans aren't much help, so usually a couple of high transoms are left open. Hence, birds. No one takes precautions.

The local film producers really do very well, considering what they have to work with. Like the rest of Burma, they haven't yet recovered from the war. Not only did most of them suffer bomb and fire damage, but the Japanese liberated lights and cameras, leaving only a few old DeBries (and many hand-cranked ones are still in use); a Wahl single-system and a few Eyemos. Recently one of the majors bought a second-hand Mitchell, and another bought a standard Bell & Howell.

Love That Western

Burma produces around 40 pictures yearly, more than half of these being silent, with subtitles. Burmese films usually fall into one of three story categories: historical or mythological, involving actual or legendary characters from ancient Burmese times, frequently involving spirits and demons; romantic modern dramas liberally laced with love songs, and westerns. The last are blood-and-thunder imitations of American westerns, long on violence and gunplay.

The Burmese, as a people, like films. Of about 30 theatres in Rangoon, half-a-dozen play Indian pictures steadily (Rangoon has a big Indian population, and pictures like "Aan," "Awara" and "Hanuman" run for 10 or 12 weeks); about the same number of theatres

(Continued on page 18)

Zukor, Crown, Fuller To Get Alger Awards

Adolph Zukor, Col. Henry Crown and Walter D. Fuller, board chairmen, respectively, of Paramount Pictures, Waldorf-Astoria Corp, and Curtis Publishing Co., will be feted with Horatio Alger awards today (Wed.) at the Rainbow Room lounge, N. Y. Presentation will mark the seventh annual awarding of the Alger bronze plaques to Americans who have come up the ladder a la the Alger legend.

Among others slated to receive the award is former President Herbert C. Hoover.

Grunt & Croon Disk

Hollywood, April 7.

Wrestler Sandor Szabo, a fave on the television grunt-and-groan circuit, turns crooner tonight (Tues.) etching two sides for a new indie tagged Hammerlock Records. Grappler did some singing in his native Hungary, but is known here only as a muscle man.

Session tonight follows four months' work with vocal coach Dick Loring. It will be produced by Bud Freeman, Gene dePoris and Mickey Freeman. Szabor will be backed by a seven piece orch, featuring harp and organ, under the direction of Dennis Farnon.

HORACE HEIDT
FOR LUCKY STRIKE
Under Personal Management
JOHN LEER
111 Fifth Ave., New York

Chevalier's 55 Concerts at 55

Paris, April 7.

Maurice Chevalier is back here from his recent successful tour of England for a rest and to make his plans for the next two years. He has signed a contract with the Theatre Des Champs-Elysees for a series of 55 consecutive concerts which will start in October next year. This will coincide with Chevalier's 55th year in show biz.

Chevalier will prepare a new one-man show for this next appearance here. His songs and patter will trace his show biz life on the Paris and world scenes.

Immediate projects are concerts in Berlin, and then a return to England for another tour and a film. Pic is a sketch film directed by Anatole De Grunewald, featuring Chevalier as a singer. In September, he plans either to go to the U.S. on a concert tour or on a tour of South America. After his 55 stint in Paris, he plans to make a film here based on his recently published memoirs.

Louis Frohlich Passes; Aided ASCAP, Film Biz In Some Big Legal Bouts

Louis D. Frohlich, vet film and music industry lawyer who died in Lenox Hill Hospital, N. Y., last Tuesday night (31), broke into show business under the tutelage of the late Nathan Burkan, the copyright attorney who was one of the founders of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers in 1914. Frohlich, along with his future partner, Charles Schwartz, joined Burkan's firm in 1916 shortly after graduating from Columbia Law School.

Under Burkan's wing, Frohlich handled numerous litigations which established ASCAP's power to collect performance fees. After Burkan's death in 1936, Frohlich formed his partnership with Schwartz in the firm of Schwartz

(Continued on page 15)

Jay Chase to Take Over His Late Mother's Pacts

Jay Chase, son of Mary Chase (Mrs. Mary Gruber), who died in Chicago Sunday (5), will take over as personal manager for Josh White and Josephine Premice. Balladeer and songstress were previously handled by his mother, whom he assisted.

Contracts for the change in representation are being drawn up.

Ouch!

Flock of show biz personalities turned out last Tuesday (31) to help Henry Morgan celebrate his 38th birthday on his WMGM (N. Y.) midnight-to-3 a.m. jabberjockey show from Hutton's midtown Gotham eatery.

Numerous "gifts" were bestowed on Morgan, but the topper was the presentation from station g.m. Bertram Lebahr, who brought along the station's FCC license.

"With you on the air," cracked Lebahr, "we don't need it."

Cuba Arrests and 'Deports' 11 Yanks, Closes Sans Souci, Tropicana Casinos

Havana, April 7.

In a crackdown on the fleecing of U.S. tourists at gambling niteries, the Cuban government last week arrested and deported 11 American gamblers and closed the gaming room at Sans Souci indefinitely and that at Tropicana for five days (beginning March 30). The crackdown came following articles in the American press (VARIETY, Satevepost) regarding the unsavory gambling situation here.

All of those arrested (including one woman) were minor figures. They included shills, steerers and croupiers. Other suspects were quizzed by police, and a number were arrested but then released. Among these was Sidney Jacobs, reportedly chief of the roulette croupiers at Sans Souci. With one exception, all of the arrests were made at Sans Souci and Tropicana. The exception was a man picked up at the Hotel Varadero-Internacional's cabaret.

The gamblers were charged with being employed illegally (because they were in Cuba as "tourists," and tourists are not allowed to work) and with "exploiting tourists at cabarets and other entertainment centres through gambling." It was the largest number of Americans jailed in Cuba in recent times. The arrests were made by police and Military Intelligence Service agents who had been probing the niteries for several days.

Deportation, or Else

Rather than face official deportation proceedings, the 11 gamblers agreed to leave the country voluntarily.

The third of Havana's Big Three niteries, Montmartre, was not affected by the investigation. Manager Mario Garcia said, "Our games have always been on the up and up." (Havana's fourth major night gambling establishment,

(Continued on page 54)

Lolly's 30-Year Stag

Hollywood, April 7.

Louella Parsons will be honored at a stag testimonial dinner at the Masquers Club April 23 to celebrate her 30 years as a Hollywood columnist.

On the dais will be George Burns, Eddie Cantor, Edward Mannix, Joseph M. Schenck, Jimmy McHugh, Cecil B. DeMille, Jack L. Warner and Darryl F. Zanuck.

Roz's Wish Not to Halt 'Town' SRO Momentum May Hold Up Her Pic Stint

Rosalind Russell, star of the click musical, "Wonderful Town," may exit the show temporarily to appear in a film to be produced by her husband, Frederick Brisson. Latter arrived in N. Y. yesterday (Tues.) from the Coast for huddles with Robert Fryer, producer of the legiter, concerning Miss Russell's possible bowout date for the pic.

Star's deal provides that she can take time out for one film during the first year's run of the new musical. It's understood that the time for this, as stipulated, must be mutually agreeable to all parties.

There's understood to be a strong possibility that Miss Russell may pass up the film stint for the immediate future, preferring not to halt the "Wonderful Town" run and thereby perhaps break its momentum. Show is playing to absolute standee-limit attendance at the Winter Garden, N. Y., and is a prospect for solid capacity trade through this summer, if its run is not interrupted.

Earlier, the film had not been in immediate prospect, since Brisson's company, Independent Artists, had been at work on a property lensed in Spain, and Miss Russell was not involved. This idea has been suspended, however, and Brisson's next will be "You Can't Judge a Lady," with Miss Russell as star.

Brisson now has "Never Wave At a Wac" in release through RKO. Miss Russell has the lead. While in Gotham he'll also negotiate a distribution deal for the new pic.

VOICE TO BEAM 'PAN' IN CHINESE, KOREAN O'SEAS

Radio dramatization of Walt Disney's "Peter Pan" will be beamed to Korea and the Chinese mainland by the Voice of America. In okaying the arrangement with the U. S. State Dept., Disney office provided the sound track from the film and a continuity script.

Voice will use the original "Pan" songs and music with dialog dubbed in Chinese and Korean.

Maude Adams in Hosp

Albany, April 7.

Maude Adams, retired stage star, was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital in Catskill, N. Y., Saturday (4) for treatment of bronchitis and pleurisy. Her physician said Monday (6) that her condition had improved and that, barring complications, Miss Adams would be discharged in a few days.

She lives on a farm at Tannersville.

SCHNOZ'S GLAM GALS FOR N.Y. COPA RETURN

Patterning his nitery turn after his "All-Star Revue" NBC-TV shots, Jimmy Durante is coming into the Copacabana, N. Y., April 16 surrounded by a bevy of beauts. In addition to the regular Copa line, bill will include Wanda Smith's Cover Girls.

Latter troupe comprises five femmes, each of which does a specialty. Eddie Jackson, Jack Roth, Jules Buffano & Co., of course, continue.

Show Biz Contingent Sailing for England

Gracie Fields heads a heavy show biz contingent sailing for Europe today (Wed) on the Queen Elizabeth. Also sailing are producer George K. Arthur and writer Sidney Carroll, who plan to make a film in England, and John G. McCarthy, U. S. State Dept. pix rep.

Other passengers include William Karol, European rep for the Mexican film firm, Peliculas Mexicanes; Pamela Mason, wife of actor James Mason, and five "Guys and Dolls" cast members, with Stubby Kaye and Jerry Wayne among them.

4/8

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $

Please send VARIETY for One Year / Two Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City ..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates
One Year—$10.00 Two Years—$18.00
Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional per Year

VARIETY Inc.
154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

QUICK PLAYOFFS COST MILLIONS

Squawking Exhibs May Face Legal Action for Failing to Up Tix Prices

Exhibs who have been beefing about forced tilts in admission scales and complaining that they're illegal, may find themselves the target of legal action if, strangely enough, the theatremen fail to up ticket prices.

Films involved are the product of indie producers releasing through major companies. Latter outfits, who were defendants in the industry antitrust suit, are enjoined from insisting upon raised admission. But there's no such injunction against the indie filmmakers.

Consequently, Disney Productions, for one, is serving notice that an exhib who has agreed to play a pic such as "Peter Pan" at increased prices, and then charges only regular scales, might be subjecting himself to a courtroom bout.

In a specific instance, it's understood that Cincinnati circuit operator Ruben Shor has been threatened with a suit by Disney because he, Shor, played "Pan" at standard prices. Position taken by Disney legalites is that any theatreowner, after having consented to raise the tariff, is guilty of copyright infringement if he fails to make good on that agreement. Disney office contends that, as owner of the copyright, it has the privilege of soliciting the promise from a theatreman that he'll hike the scales for "Pan."

If this position holds up, it obviously would apply to all indie producers releasing through any company. Among the current releases getting advanced admissions, it's noted, is Samuel Goldwyn's "Hans Christian Andersen," also going through RKO.

RKO admits it is restrained from demanding stiffer b. o. prices. But the company further contends that in the case of "Pan" and "Andersen" it serves merely as the distributor, not the seller, and has nothing to do with licensing terms. Disney and Goldwyn set the licensing policy, RKO states.

Hairy Problem

Hollywood, April 7.

Sudden influx of new dimensions has caused a crisis in the beard situation. With telltale 3-D on the job, it is a cinch to detect false whiskers on the screen.

Pine-Thomas sent out a call for 120 bearded extras to appear in "Those Sisters from Seattle" but was able to round up only 63. A legitimate beard on the screen must be at least two inches long.

Rodgers Denies 'Okla.' Set For Magna Filming

Case of left hand not knowing what the right hand is doing appeared in the making this week when Michael Todd, huddling on the Coast with Magna Theatre Corp.'s production v.p, Arthur Hornblow Jr., let it be understood that Rodgers & Hammerstein's musical "Oklahoma" would be the first production to be lensed by Magna in its Todd-AO widescreen process. Todd and Hornblow even have been talking "Oklahoma" with several directors.

Richard Rodgers, who should know what's what with his property, categorically denies any such deal. "Nothing has changed," Rodgers said. "We wouldn't make 'Oklahoma' into a film as long as it's still making money on the road."

It's understood that Todd has the "Oklahoma" director already set. While neither Todd nor Joseph M. Schenck, Magna board chairman, would come straight out and say they'd set "Oklahoma," they also would not deny the fact. Todd made it clear, however, that "no contracts have been signed as yet."

"Oklahoma" is said to be slated to roll at the Goldwyn studios in July with a $3,500,000 budget, of which $1,000,000 is being charged against the legit musical property. Magna plans to roadshow "Oklahoma" in the 65m version, coming down to advanced admissions when it wears thin. After that, the pic will go out in conventional 35m too. Original Magna announcement had said R&H would supervise any of their musical productions that might be made.

Warner Riled On Goldwyn 3-D Rap

Samuel Goldwyn had Jack Warner doing a burn within the past week over 3-D. WB studio sources claim Warner was riled over Goldwyn's statement that 3-D may cash in on novelty value at the start, but is not likely to last beyond a year.

Warner is high on 3-D, including the use of polaroid glasses which, he feels, will be accepted by the public. The Warner Bros. 3-D'er, "House of Wax," is now swinging into release.

Studio topper is represented as feeling that the present situation parallels the introduction of sound which, when introduced by the Warners 25 years ago, also met criticism. On the Coast a couple of weeks ago Warner, via a formal press statement, rapped "irresponsible" persons who sought to tear down 3-D but named no names.

Jack Warner Delays N.Y. Visit for Studio Confabs

Jack L. Warner, originally slated to arrive in New York from the Coast this week for the preem of Warner Bros.' 'House of Wax," has delayed his trip east indefinitely. With "Wax" seen as determining the company's future course in the 3-D field, production chief is holding confabs with a pair of top homeoffice execs.

Veepee Sam Schneider, company's top financial exec, and Norman Moray, short subjects topper, arrived on the Coast this week for talks with the studio chief and prexy Harry M. Warner.

'DOLLS' COY FOR EARLY FILM DEAL, EYEING 3-D

There'll be a filmization deal for "Guys and Dolls" eventually, it appears, but it's not in immediate prospect.

Frank Loesser, composer and lyricist for the musical click, said this week there have been only preliminary talks with Samuel Goldwyn as well as others. Goldwyn stated recently he has been negotiating for the legiter. It's understood the "Dolls" owners figure the show may have added values via 3-D and may hold back on a pic deal pending further clarification of the situation concerning that new depth dimension.

Paramount, incidentally, has some underlying rights to the play via its ownership of screen rights to the original Damon Runyon story and a deal is now being talked for relinquishing these to the "Dolls" company.

Disney Due Overseas

Walt Disney arrived in N.Y. from the Coast yesterday (Tues.) and after a couple of days goes abroad.

Producer will attend the April 16 preem of "Peter Pan" in London.

BUT NO WAY TO HALT WASTE

Film industry is losing vast revenue, figured in the millions of dollars, by trade practices which evolved in recent years, and execs can't come upon a way to prevent the waste. Importantly, that such a situation exists is not denied by many responsible film men.

The money is going down the drain because top films, under the new exhibitor-distributor business relationship, are played off so quickly that the public is denied full opportunity to see them.

Startling illustration of this was provided by United Paramount Theatres via a checkup on the exhibition of Metro's "Quo Vadis." Leonard Goldenson, head of the chain, said it was found in one metropolitan area that "as many as 200,000 people were still waiting for the attraction to play in suburban theatres, although it had already played and gone." Area checked, reportedly, was Philadelphia.

As an outgrowth of the Government's antitrust suit against the eight principal distribs, exhibs have been demanding, and receiving, films in substantially less time than they could book them earlier.

(Continued on page 20)

Lay Off Pic Stocks, Widows, Orphans Told; 'Okay for Hep Specs'

Film industry, appraised for its investment possibilities, is too much of a risk if you're an orphan or a widow, sums up Wall St.'s largest brokerage house. As a matter of fact, says Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, film stocks shouldn't be dabbled in by anyone other than an "experienced and sophisticated speculator."

Financial outfit takes the position that the trade is facing too many uncertainties for conservative stock buyers. Also, the industry's past record has been too erratic.

"All of the many new technical developments such as 3-D films and

(Continued on page 22)

May Reopen Trust Decree; D. of J. Can't Handle 'Hundreds' of Beefs

Piling It On

Two producers were discussing stereo, according to Universal's Bill Goetz. "I've got something much better even than 3-D," one said. "My next picture will be in 4-D."

"What's that?," asked the other.

"It means I'm using 3-D and I've got a story too."

TOA's Reversal; To Testify in D.C. Small Biz Probe

Theatre Owners of America has agreed to appear before the Senate Select Committee on Small Business when hearings open in Washington later this month, it was indicated this week. In a letter to Walter D. Amis, committee staffer, Walter Reade, Jr., TOA exec veepee, declared "that we shall be glad to be heard on the subject of the pending system of arbitration, which subject we gather, from trade reports, will be considered by the Committee." Reade's letter was in answer to request from Amis stating "the Committee would be happy to have an expression from your organization."

Reade, top TOA exec while prexy Alfred Starr is on a European trip, told Amis that TOA feels that most exhib complaints are arbitrable. TOA, he noted, is therefore "prepared to appear before the Committee to do whatever possible to break the stymie in intra-industry negotiations in this field."

Referring to grievances and complaints that do not lend themselves to arbitration, such as "demanding exorbitant film rentals and thus compelling theatre operators to advance their admission prices,"

(Continued on page 18)

Dept. of Justice has received "literally hundreds" of complaints from exhibitors anent the distributor practices spotlighted in the Senate Sub-Committee hearings, but lacks the manpower to investigate them, sources close to the D. of J. disclosed this week. Also, it was said, stymieing any full-scale probe has been the matter of personnel uncertainties brought about by the change to the Republican Administration.

In Los Angeles last week Judge Stanley N. Barnes, presiding jurist of the State Superior Court, who has been named head of the D. of J. antitrust division, said he is now studying whether the Department is understaffed.

Individual beefs registered with the Department by exhibs concern mainly clearances. Another factor behind the lack of pursuit of these has been the assumption that often the complainant theatre ops are seeking merely to improve their market position, although there's no apparent evidence of illegal activity on the part of the film companies.

It was further noted that the final decisions concerning exhib-distrib relations rest with Atty.

(Continued on page 18)

Par's Widescreen 'Shane' Plans

In the first instance of a distrib undertaking to inject added values into a conventional 2-D pic via the widescreen treatment, Paramount is holding up the release of "Shane" until at least midsummer. Hope is that by that time a number of theatres will have the broadened exhibition equipment.

Pic is a "first" on another count, having been shown this week on the Coast to reviewers in the widescreen manner.

George Stevens' production, which has Alan Ladd, Jean Arthur

(Continued on page 22)

National Boxoffice Survey

Easter Booms Biz; 'Madam' New Champ, 'Salome' 2d, 'Pan' 3d, 'Rouge' 4th, 'Hans' 5th

Easter week, with usual school holidays for students and brief vacations, is giving biz in key cities covered by VARIETY a great hypo this session. Several cities were hurt some by rain but clear, mild weather on Easter Sunday in most keys contributed to the upbeat. The extent of the current boom at the wickets is indicated by the fact that the five biggest pictures will show better than $1,400,000 total gross.

"Call Me Madam" (20th) is soaring to No. 1 spot with better than $400,000 gross in some 15 representative key cities. Nearly every playdate is smash to terrific. "Salome" (Col) is capturing second place with about 11 engagements, individual dates ranging from good and nice to record. "Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney), which was champ last week is third.

"Moulin Rouge" (UA) is finishing a very big fourth with some eight playdates, most of them rated great to terrific. Showing was made despite obvious yen of youngsters to see "Pan" in current week. "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO-Goldwyn), third a week ago, is fifth. "Off Limits" (Par) is pushing up to sixth.

"Trouble Along Way" (WB), just out this week, is showing enough to land seventh position. "I Love Melvin" (M-G) will take eighth money. "I Confess" (WB) is still showing enough to win ninth. "Bwana Devil" (UA), "Desert Legion" (U) and "Little Sheba" (Par) round out the Golden Dozen in that order. "Kettles on Vacation (U), "Naked Spur" (M-G) and "Tonight We Sing" (20th) are runner-up pix.

"Man on Tightrope" (20th) is rated good in L.A. on its preem. "Small Town Girl" (M-G), also new, shapes solid in Indianapolis, stout in Washington and lusty in St. Louis. "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep) is doing nicely in N.Y. but looms mild in L.A. "By Light of Silvery Moon" (WB) is pushing up to gigantic $173,000 in its second week at the N.Y. Music Hall, where it is backed by the annual Easter stageshow.

"Sombrero" (M-G) continues on disappointing side although good in L.A. and Denver. "City Beneath Sea" (U) looks sharp in Chi. "Justice Is Done" (Burstyn) still is sock in fifth week of longrun in N.Y.

"Sheltering Palms" (20th) is okay in Portland, Ore. Same is true of "Hitch-Hiker" (RKO) in L.A. "Back on Broadway" (WB) looks fancy in Chi.

"Abbott-Costello To Mars" (U), okay in Toronto, is fairish in Pitt. "Four Poster" (Col) is fine in Portland. "Mississippi Gambler" (U), solid in Louisville, shapes nice in Detroit.

"Anna" (IFE) looms sock in N.Y. and Minneapolis. "Importance of Being Earnest" (U) is brisk in N.Y. and Frisco and big in Boston and Denver.

"Jeopardy" (M-G), fair in Minneapolis, shapes fine in N.Y. "Stooge" (Par) looks lusty in Toronto. "Destination Gobi" (20th), big in Seattle, is mainly mild to fair in other keys.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 10-11)

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered
FOUNDED BY SIME-SILVERMAN
Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Harold Erichs, President
154 West 46th St. New York 36, N.Y.
Hollywood 28
6311 Yucca Street
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building
Chicago 11
612 No. Michigan Ave.
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq.

SUBSCRIPTION
Annual .... $10 Foreign $11
Single Copies ..... 25 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Vol. 190 No. 5

INDEX

Bills	56
Chatter	62
Film Reviews	6
House Reviews	55
Inside Legit	58
Inside Pictures	15
Inside Radio	36
Inside Television	31
International	13
Legitimate	57
Literati	61
Music	37
New Acts	56
Night Club Reviews	48
Obituaries	63
Pictures	3
Radio-Television	25
Radio Reviews	34
Record Reviews	38
Frank Scully	61
Television Reviews	29
TV-Films	24
Vaudeville	47

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a Year. $20 Foreign

Exhibs Losing Coin on 3-D Setup; Customers Balk at Ticket Tilt

While first-run theatreowners have managed to boost admission prices in amounts up to 10c, or more, lesser important houses are finding 3-D an added expense not fully compensated for, because they can't tilt the b.o. tariff sufficiently.

Experience with the exhibition of "Bwana Devil" in many areas has been that theatre ops could boost the price of a ticket by 4c at the maximum. Viewing glasses needed for the run of the 3-D'er were priced at 10c each; consequently there was a 6c differential.

In the "Bwana" setup, specs were paid for off the top of the gross money—that is, before the split with the distributor, United Artists. Thus, of course, the exhib and UA shared the admission loss, the public shelling out for only two-fifths of the glasses expense.

Theatremen, notably in Canada and the midwest, found the public would balk at any attempts to raise scales beyond the 4c level.

Latest among the first-runs to tilt the scales by 10c are the top houses in the Interstate chain in Dallas, bringing the new top price to 70c. Buffalo has gone to a new high of 90c; N.Y. showcases for the most part are holding to a top of $1.80, and Minneapolis and St. Paul downtown spots are underway with price-raising.

Ticket boost in Dallas followed immediately on the heels of an ease-up in Texas state taxation on admissions, marking the successful conclusion to a campaign pressed by Texas COMPO. Last week, Gov. Allan Shivers signed the bill which

(Continued on page 15)

3-D's a Gigantic Power Struggle But Can Revive Films: Barnett to ITOO

Columbus, April 7.

Herbert Barnett, president of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers, told the annual meeting of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio he wishes he knew which 3-D train has the gravy. He could, he told exhibs, put them "hip deep in money" but he's unable to. "It's a secret guarded by time and the public," he declared. The convention opened today (Tues.) in the Deshler Wallick Hotel.

This is no penny ante game, Barnett told the convention, "but a gigantic struggle for power—but at the same time having a common interest in revival of the motion picture industry. Hundreds of millions of dollars are involved. So are the fate of companies and the future of individuals."

Barnett, who refused to indorse any 3-D widescreen system, was optimistic about the outcome of the turmoil because of the by-products springing from the interest in three-dimension and widescreen techniques.

"Motion picture engineers are working hard," he said, "to ease your troubles in a constructive and reasonable manner by establishing standards as quickly as possible. Other engineers are happily taking advantage of this big opportunity

(Continued on page 20)

Par Switch Brings Early Release on Strong Pix

A. W. Schwalberg, Paramount distribution chief, this week claimed a switch away from the traditional slufoff of the spring and early summer months so far as pic releases are concerned. Exhibs over the years have beefed that the film companies hold back on their important pix until late summer, when business generally trends upward.

Schwalberg reported a lineup of 10 Par films on the distribution sked for April, May, June and July. These include "Off Limits," Bob Hope-Mickey Rooney comedy, in April; Par's first 3-D'er, "Sangaree," and the new general release of "Greatest Show on Earth," May; "Scared Stiff," Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis; June, and "Stalag 17," July.

Both George Stevens' "Shane" and George Pal's "War of the Worlds" have been withdrawn from the releasing sked, Par's idea being to groove them for widescreen showings at a later date.

COMPO on Sidelines In Small Biz Hearings

Council of Motion Picture Organizations, all-industry outfit designed primarily for public relations purposes, is muted so far as the Senate Small Business Subcommittee is concerned. Hearings on the Coast last week, which will be continued in other cities, spotlighted intra-mural dissension and resulted in press reports unfavorable to the trade.

COMPO has been enjoined from any role in the situation by its own bylaws. Organization setup directs that any issue involving trade practices must be avoided, and the Senate probe so far has concerned distributor policies.

'Insiders' Add To Pix Stock Buys

Washington, April 7.

Newest monthly SEC report of "insider" transactions shows Harry Warner adding 2,200 shares of Warner Bros. Pictures last month to boost his holdings to 245,200, plus an added 16,000 in a trust account. Samuel Carlisle unloaded his 400 shares of WB.

Harry Brandt, the big man in Translux, sold more of that circuit's stock last month than he bought. He added 1,100 shares to his own account, for a total of 111,215. However, he cleaned out the 2,500 shares in his G. Brandt Foundation and also the 300 in the H. Brandt Foundation. Brandt has another subsidiary, Harday, Inc., which still owns 1,600; and Mrs. Brandt has 17,700 in her name.

Charles P. Skouras bought 7,700 shares of National Theatres Common, and now owns 19,400. Robert Lehman acquired 2,500 shares of 20th-Fox common to boost his holdings to 10,000 shares. Arthur J. Palmer, an officer of General Precision Equipment, exercised his option and picked up 200 shares of the $5 convertible preferred.

Jack Cohn added 700 shares of Columbia Pix common to his trust account which now holds 24,197. He also owns 42,294 in his own name. Herbert Yates picked up an additional 100 shares of Republic common, so that he now owns 87,931. Howard Hughes formally reported to SEC his reacquisition of the 1,013,420 shares of RKO, as a result of the failure of the sale of controlling interest.

COL SEEKS SEC OKAY ON STOCK OPTION ISSUES

Washington, April 7.

Columbia Pictures has made formal application with the Securities & Exchange Commission for registration of 11,275 shares of common stock to be issued upon exercise of options held by general sales manager Abe Montague and laboratory exec Gerald Rackett. These privileges were granted by the company as an inducement to the two officials to extend their respective employment pacts, and were approved at the firm's recent annual stockholders' meet.

Montague's option embraces 10,250 shares which may be exercised at $11.70 per share at any time from Nov. 3, 1952, through Sept. 9, 1958. Rackett's deal permits him to buy 1,025 shares at $15.60 per share in the stretch starting July 1, 1956, up to Dec. 31, 1959. Entire block of 11,275 shares is to be added to a previously registered reserve of 49,768 shares of common against various outstanding warrants and options.

RKO Sets Attorney

Los Angeles, April 7.

Roy W. McDonald, N. Y. attorney, was approved by Federal Judge Ben Harrison to represent RKO in the minority stockholder suit brought by Louis Feuerman and Eli and Marion Castleman.

McDonald asked the court to order the plaintiffs to post security amounting to $35,000 to cover costs. Case comes up on April 13.

U Delays Pension Plan For More Settled Times

Universal will not launch into any pension plan for company execs, until it has determined what the level of the pic biz is likely to be once the 3-D storm has blown over.

Top U exec admitted last week that various pension plans had been studied, but said every such scheme eats up a lot of cash and the company, while in good financial shape, wants to be sure of sufficient dollar reserves against all eventualities before it goes into any non-filmic expenditures.

Col's 4-Way Camera Bows On 'Miss Sadie Thompson' With Stereo Sound Used

Hollywood, April 7.

Columbia Vitascope, a new production process consisting of a four-way camera combined with stereophonic sound, will be used in the filming of "Miss Sadie Thompson" and all future Columbia pictures, according to prexy Harry Cohn and executive producer Jerry Wald. Camera is designed to shoot simultaneously in 2-d, 3-D, 2-D large-screen and 3-D large-screen.

Studio photography and sound departments have been experimenting for more than a year to devise a method to include the best features of stereoscopic and large-screen film and stereophonic sound, all in one single process.

First tests with the new camera were made on "Man in the Dark," which goes into release next week. Since the filming of that picture, further improvements have been made, and the improved invention will be used on "Sadie."

The entire new process will be utilized in the making of "I Ride Alone" and "Renegade Canyon," both of which will be released before "Sadie."

The new magnetic stereophonic system uses three amplifiers and three microphones to pipe sound into a single film track. Sound, in turn, is piped to various outlets in the theatre.

No Industry Reps Set Yet for Tax Hearings

Although the Washington hearings on film admission taxation are set for April 20, there has yet to be any designation of which execs will appear in behalf of the industry. This is to be decided by the trade's National Tax Committee, headed by H. A. Cole and Pat McGee.

It's apparent, however, that a key film rep will be Robert W. Coyne, special counsel for the Council of Motion Picture Organizations. He's immediately acquainted with all the data concerning the tax-repeal fight.

L. A. to N. Y.

Lucille Barkley
Ray Benson
Ward Bond
Marlon Brando
Frederick Brisson
Gloria DeHaven
Olivia DeHavilland
Marian Lloyd Dix
Irene Dunne
Marilyn Erskine
Mike Frankovitch
Milton Grossman
Teddy Hart
Marcia Henderson
Betty Hutton
Sherry Jackson
Van Johnson
Ben Kamsler
Alf Kjellin
Jesse L. Lasky
Robert E. Lee
Frank Loesser
Frank Lovejoy
Pamela Mason
Wallace MacDonald
Frank Marx
Stan Murphy
Helen O'Connell
Paul Picerni
Vincent Price
Hal Roach
Alexander Scourby
Clark Smith
George Stevens
Dorothy Stickney
Jule Styne
Gloria Swanson
Benny Thau
Henry Tobias

Folsom To Goldwyn On Pix and TV

It's not generally known that RCA's sponsorship of the 25th annual Academy Awards was the direct result of a Beyhills dinner party at Frances and Samuel Goldwyn's house to which they had invited both Frank M. Folsom, president of RCA, and Charles Brackett, prez of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences. This was last January when the Oscars faced eclipse in celebration at least, exactly at the quarter-of-a-century mark, because some of the major studios had threatened to withdraw financial support.

While Goldwyn may have thought his current "Hans Christian Andersen" perhaps had a chance in the Oscar sweepstakes—actually the film lost out—the producer's prime thought was to give the Acad financial succor and greater scope. Folsom, last week in writing Goldwyn, who is currently in New York prior to sailing April 21 on the Queen Mary with his wife, saluted the producer in a personal tribute. Wrote Folsom to Goldwyn, ". . . here was the kind of man whose fortitude and imagination provided the film industry with life-blood that has raised it to its present level of peeminence. A welcome and salutary contrast, I felt, to those cynics and skeptics who attempt to stem the tide of the future. With dignity, good taste and technical proficiency, the telecast, sponsored by RCA, brought into the homes of countless millions one of filmdom's most respected and honored events. The public, on whose behalf the awards were actually made, participated for the first time. They, in whose name the awards were presented, joined with Hollywood's elite in bestowing praise and esteem upon those whose talent and ability provided them with enjoyment and entertainment.

"That these millions were impressed is an unmistakable fact on two counts. First, the size of the television audience; and secondly, the number who patronized their motion picture theatres following the event. Interest was undoubtedly stimulated for both media, which is what we hoped for and, indeed, expected. This has been a wonderful and exhilarating experience for me, Sam. It has proven what I have always contended—that motion pictures and television can live side by side and prosper, further, that each has its place in American life and if used intelligently and inventively, can complement the other. I hope that from this auspicious beginning, we can move ahead unencumbered by carping and envious critics . . ."

COMPO Burns at Rosy B.O. Yarns; Takes Rap at 'Villain Distrib' Tag

How can the film industry win repeal of the Federal 20% admissions tax, on grounds of economic necessity, if exhibitors proclaim everything's rosy? Or if others spotlight distributor practices as causing their woe, rather than the offish b.o.?

Council of Motion Picture Organizations is doing a burn this week on each of those two counts.

COMPO reps across the country have been making the pitch to kill the 20% levy largely because it's the only way to prevent thousands of theatres from shuttering. Now, however, the org may have some extensive explaining to do when Congressional hearings on the tax matter open in Washington April 20, because of the "business villain" identity given the film companies, and a prominently-published observation made by a N. Y. circuit op.

Latter is William Brandt who, in a statement printed by the N. Y. Times, declared that theatre business is 25% ahead of two years ago and receipts figure to go higher in the future. Daily's story, which appeared in its financial section Monday (9), quoted Brandt as saying the economic structure of the theatre trade is its strongest in years, and that TV has been licked as a competitor.

This, of course, is the direct op-

(Continued on page 15)

McCarthy on 8-Week O.O. Overseas for State Dept.

John G. McCarthy, former v.p. in charge of the Motion Picture Assn. of America's international division and now consultant to the State Dept. on film matters, leaves N. Y. today (Wed.) for an eight-week European tour to survey and report on State Dept. film activities abroad. He expects to cover 11 countries.

McCarthy, who is accompanied by his wife, will attend the Coronation in London June 2 as guest of J. Arthur Rank and plans to return home in mid-June.

Break for UA's 3-D In Delay of Fight

With bookings going slowly for its release of the upcoming 3-D Marciano-Walcott fight film, United Artists got a break with postponement of the contest from tomorrow (Thurs.) to May 15. At least, there's that much more time for the distrib to hustle sales and for more exhibs to be equipped for the 3-D showings.

To date, contracts volume has been disappointing despite the novel aspects of a championship fray in the new dimension. Situation is said to reflect the feeling among many theatremen that 3-D already has reached the point where novelty alone is not sufficiently salable; the subject matter must have the basic entertainment values. Concerning the bout itself, public interest apparently has been slim and consequently some theatre ops aren't particularly eager about a filmization of it.

Another factor is the possibility of either a dull fight or a quick one. This is always a consideration, of course, but of extra concern with the UA release because it involves extra expense for ex-

(Continued on page 18)

N. Y. to L. A.

Sir Michael Balcon
Edith Barstow
Steve Broidy
Hal B. Cook
John C. Flinn, Jr.
L. Wolfe Gilbert
Van Johnson
Robert E. Lee
Borrah Minevitch
Norman Moray
Sam Schneider
Franchot Tone
Janet Waldo
Walter Winchell

Europe to N. Y.

Richard W. Altschuler
Renzo Avanzo
Sir Michael Balcon
Al Crown
Jean Desnoyer
John Ford
Jocelyn
Barbara Lyon
Anna Magnani
C. Bruce Newbury
Louis Phillips
Gottfried Reinhardt
William M. Saal
William L. Synder
Dario Soria
George Weltner

N. Y. to Europe

George K. Arthur
Anne Baxter
Lou Breslow
Sidney Carroll
Arlene Dahl
Jerry Devine
Walt Disney
Gracie Fields
Gustave Haenschen
William Karol
Stubby Kaye
Fernando Lamas
Pamela Mason
John G. McCarthy
Fred Raphael
Howie Richmond
Edward G. Robinson
Richard Thorpe
Jerry Wayne

OLDIES TO GET ANOTHER WHIRL

Yates Sees New Klondike for Rep Via TV, Raps Exhibs' 'Short Money'

Television represents a vast, new sales field for Republic Pictures' products, prexy Herbert J. Yates told stockholders yesterday (Tues.) at the company's annual meet in New York. He cited FCC reports to show that with the recent lift of the TV station freeze between 350-400 outlets would be operating in the U. S. by the end of the year.

Along with the domestic TV market, Yates declared, when commercial video comes to Europe, South America and other world markets "I wouldn't consider an offer of $25,000,000 for our old pictures and I see more profit for our company in the next two years than we've ever had before—even better than with the jam-packed houses during the war years."

Reviewing operations of Rep's TV subsidiary, Hollywood Television Service, Yates disclosed that the firm's total contracts in its first 15 months in business averaged $4,000,000. Vintage of HTS product runs from 1935 through 1943. Moreover, the Rep chief added, "we anticipate collecting around $3,000,000 this year."

Aside from selling old films to TV, Yates noted that the company is reaping hefty revenue from laboratory operations in servicing TV pic producers. A new plant will open on the Coast May 1 to handle lab business while another has been functioning in New York for the past eight months and is "averaging $1,250 weekly profit."

"Isn't it true," a stockholder asked "that there have been exhibitor complaints about the company's sale of films to TV?" Yates

(Continued on page 15)

Airy Drive-Ins

Air-conditioned drive-ins may be the next ozoner improvement to plague ops of conventional houses.

Equipment manufacturers reportedly are working on individual cooling units, operated from a central system, which can be placed in each car similar to the sound units currently employed. Heatwaves, in the past, have occasionally dented ozoner biz.

Metro Still Mum On Screens, 3-D

Although committed to 20th-Fox's CinemaScope, Metro is maintaining silence in the 3-D and widescreen sweepstakes. According to veepee and treasurer Charles Moskowitz, the studio "is still studying various processes." In addition, Moskowitz added: "I'm waiting for the studio to advise me."

A Coast report indicated that production chief Dore Schary, just back from a vacation, would spend time examining footage prepared by studio technicians in the various new screen developments. Despite consistent reports that M-G would film in CinemaScope "Knights of the Round Table," slated for filming later this month in England, there were indications that an official decision had not yet been determined. Metro, it's noted, has experimented with other widescreen methods as well.

Metro's course in 3-D with specs is also uncertain. It has completed in its own MetroVision process, "Arena," billed as the first three-dimension western. Company previously announced that it would make another picture, "Rope's End," in this process, too. However, there have been reports that

(Continued on page 22)

Polaroid Vs. Depix Corp., Alvin M. Marks in Action On Patent Infringement

Depix Corp. and Alvin M. Marks were named defendants in a patent infringement suit filed against them in U. S. District Court at Cambridge, Mass. Monday (6) by Polaroid Corp., manufacturers of polaroid viewers used in seeing 3-D pix.

The action followed a similar infringement charge filed in the same court last February by Depix and Marks against Polaroid. Marks holds a 1938 patent on the polarized sheet material from which the glasses are manufactured.

Matthew Fox, who controls Depix, disclosed in N. Y. yesterday (Tues.) that Depix was considering going to the Justice Dept. with its complaint against Polaroid which, he said, was trying to monopolize the market. Polaroid could not supply the current demand for viewers, he held, and should welcome relief.

Polaroid is currently turning out about 12,000,000 throwaway glasses a month. The Depix capacity is being stepped up from the current 100,000 a day to where it's expected to turn out 1,000,000 a day by the end of April, according to Fox. Depix viewers are adjustable.

The Polaroid suit charged infringement of U. S. letters patent No. 2,237,567, No. 2,328,219, No. 2,454,515 and reissue No. 23,297. It further alleged that the Depix trademark, "Polalite," constitutes an infringement on the registered trademark, Polaroid. Suit, describing infringements as wilful and deliberate, asks treble damages.

BANK'S BACKLOG OF 20 FORECLOSED PIX

Bank of America now has a backlog of 20 old theatrical pictures, the result of foreclosures. Most recent are Robert Riskin's "Magic Town," Edward J. Leven's "Second Chance" and "The Fabulous Dorseys."

Another of the bank's foreclosed pix is "Arch of Triumph," which United Artists is distributing in Germany, but no domestic distributing deal has been set.

COMPO Exhib-Producer Confab Off Till Fall

Symposium on exhib-producer problems and how the two sides can work together, as planned by the Council of Motion Picture Organizations, now appears off until about the end of the year. Originally set for last February, the get-together had been put off temporarily.

By pushing the conclave back another six to nine months, it's felt, there will be a better chance of appraising 3-D and widescreen trends. It would be difficult to give a meeting of that type at this time any direction because of the confusion over 3-D and the various and conflicting plans mapped by the studios.

Key exhibs from all parts of the country are expected to attend the seminar, which is slated to take place in Hollywood. Studio heads and producers also will sit in.

Broidy to Huddle on Sales Meet With AA's N.Y. Brass

Allied Artists prexy Steve Broidy is scheduled to arrive in New York today (Wed.) to confer with sales chief Morey Goldstein, veepee Ed Morey and foreign chief Norton V. Ritchey on the company's international sales convention slated to be held May 18-20 at the Roney-Plaza Hotel in Miami.

Broidy made the trip east via Chicago and Washington. During his Chi stopoff he huddled with AA exchange manager Nat Nathanson. Meantime, ad-pub head John Flinn arrived in town over the weekend after a brief Miami stay to lay the groundwork for the upcoming conclave. He'll probably head west with Broidy tomorrow (Thurs.) or Friday.

MAJORS SETTING BIG REISSUES

With 3-D uncertainties cutting down on production schedules and summer once again around the corner, the distribs are getting ready to give their oldies another whirl.

Reissues have been set by a number of the majors, with RKO and Metro pacing the field and 20th-Fox not far behind. Companies are more careful than in previous years to pick only surefire winner for re-release, and in line with this reasoning are doing extensive testing in the field before setting pix for national release.

According to William C. Gehring, 20th sales exec, it's a mistake to revive films that have had a mediocre run at the b. o. "It only makes sense to reissue hits. There's no use hoping to make up for bookings a picture didn't get on its original run," he said.

Gehring intends to reissue 12 pix during 1953, broken up in packages of two complimentary films at a time. Unusual duo slated for May, for instance, will be "Gentlemen's Agreement" and "The Snake Pit." July package

(Continued on page 20)

B'way Entry of Majors' Stereopix Seen Big Test Of 3-D With Polaroids

What appears to shape up as the first important test of the 3-D system requiring the use of polaroid specs is the opening this week on Broadway of a pair of stereopix from two major companies—Columbia and Warner Bros. Col's entry, "Man in the Dark," a sepia effort, preemed yesterday (Tues.) at the Globe Theatre, while the Warner contender, "House of Wax," a tinter in WarnerColor plus WarnerPhonic sound, debuts tomorrow night (Thurs.) at the Paramount.

Pulling power of these films will be observed carefully by tradesters to determine if 3-D with specs is a novelty or if it can be set down as a longrange product for the industry. With the increasing number of widescreen developments being announced each day, there has been a tendency to downbeat stereopix. However, Jack L. Warner, WB production chief, has been extremely high on this process, terming it the only true three-dimension process despite the claims of the widescreen adherents. His confidence in the polaroid-type 3-D was further pointed up this week with the announcement that the Alfred Hitchcock screen version of "Dial M for Murder" will be filmed in 3-D in the Warners' own-developed process.

Although burned at Col's rush-

(Continued on page 18)

King Bros. Acquire U.S. Rights to German 3-D

Hollywood, April 7.

King Brothers will distribute in the United States a new German 3-D process developed by the Zeiss Icon company of Stuttgart, prexy Frank King reported on his return from a month's trip to Europe. New process uses only a single strip film, single projector. It requires polaroid glasses. Camera uses prism instead of mirrors. Special device attached to projector lens gives the 3-D effect.

King said Zeiss is still perfecting stereophonic sound to go with the photographic process, declaring that it will be ready within 60 days. Kings will use the process first on "Two-Headed Spy," which they'll produce in Germany after finishing "Carnival," which rolls in Munich June 1. "Carnival," to be made both in English and German versions, will be filmed in an American 3-D process, since the Zeiss system won't be ready in time.

20th Mgt., Green Group Trade Blows; Both Sides File Proxies With SEC

Grudge-Fight?

Personal grudge element apparently enters into the Charles Green proxy fight at 20th-Fox. As Green told it last week, he and his wife were visiting the Coast last summer and wanted to tour the 20th studio. Harry Brand, 20th studio ad-pub head, refused, saying, according to Green: "Do you think we can do this for every stockholder?" After some verbal jousting, Brand finally remarked: "If you don't like it, go get control of the company."

"That kind of put the idea in my head," said Green.

Proxy battle between minority stockholder Charles Green and the 20th-Fox management was joined yesterday (Tues.) as both Green and the company filed their proxy statements with the Securities & Exchange Commission in Washington. Unless the SEC asks for revisions or clarifications, Green and 20th will be free to send out their proxy letters within 10 days, or by April 17. SEC is also free to authorize start of proxy solicitation at an earlier date.

Last week, Green and 20th got set for their big showdown. Developments were these:

Green filed suit seeking to nullify the employment contracts of 20th prexy Spyros P. Skouras and production head Darryl F. Zanuck as "excessive and exorbitant." He also charged 20th execs had received "huge sums" under the heading of corporate expenses, even though the latter were "fictious."

Twentieth directors met and decided to call a special meeting of stockholders at Wilmington, Del., May 5. The issue: Elimination of cumulative voting from the corporation's bylaws.

Green called a press conference at which he voiced his grievances against the 20th management in general terms but refused to be pinned down, pleading it would be unlawful for him to speak out until his proxy letter had been filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission. He also gave his version of his discussions with Skouras on a proposed compromise and he insisted that, while he was a candidate for the board, he was

(Continued on page 18)

Green Girds For May 5 Showdown

Legal right of 20th-Fox to call a special stockholders' meeting at Wilmington, Del., May 5, to vote on the elimination of cumulative voting from the corporation's bylaws, will not be contested by Charles Green, minority shareholder who has challenged management to a proxy fight. Spokesman for Green said in N. Y. Monday (6) that it would be the latter's strategy to go to Wilmington to fight management's proposal which, if accepted, would diminish his chances of electing a director to the 20th board.

The May 5 meet will be followed by the regular annual stockholders meeting in N. Y. May 19. At the Wilmington powwow, management must get 51% of the vote to win its point. Cumulative voting has been in effect at 20th since 1935, when Fox Films entered into a merger with 20th-Century Film Co.

Under the cumulative voting procedure, a stockholder can multiply his shares by the number of directors on the board and then vote the total either for one man or spread it over the rest. Since the death of Seton Porter, the 20th board is made up of nine men. From time to time there have been discussions to expand it. It's believed that, as long as cumulative voting prevails, Green may be able to elect at least one or two directors to the board.

New Stockholder Suit Filed Against Hughes

Hollywood, April 7.

Another derivative stockholder suit has been filed as a result of Howard Hughes' abortive sale of RKO control to the Ralph Stolkin syndicate. Plaintiff, Milton Friedman, owns 1,000 shares RKO common. Suit names Hughes, former RKO prexy Ned Depinet, and RKO as defendants, and demands that the corporation get more than $1,000,000 which the pair are said to have realized from stock sales last September.

It states that Hughes owns 27%, Depinet 2%, with the remainder "spread thin" among 15,000 stockholders the world over. It adds that Hughes, "owning by far the largest single block of stock, has control of the corporation, and that being in the driver's seat, as he is, it gives the defendants inside information on stock trading which is not available to other stockholders."

1st Indie on CinemaScope

Indie producer W. R. Frank says he'll be the first indie to use CinemaScope. He has pushed back start of his "Sitting Bull" from May 20 to late July, at which time CinemaScope system will be available to him.

Boris Karloff has the title role of the Technicolor film, with Dennis Morgan co-starred.

Raibourn in Encore With Wall Streeters As Pix Nostradamus

Paul Raibourn, Paramount v.p., has been invited to address the Customers Brokers Assn., Wall St. financial group, at an April 16 luncheon session to discuss the role of motion pictures in the future. It's to be an encore turn for the exec and he's been asked, in effect, to bring the same crystal ball he used when talking before them two years ago.

In 1951, Raibourn told the Wall Streeters of the excitement which would be whipped up by panoramic screens and specifically predicted the stir created by Cinerama. In an address last September, Raibourn told a Chicago meeting of communications engineers about third dimensional effects and stressed that "standardization problems do exist." Standardized 3-D has been spotlighted in recent months as one of the trade's biggest questions.

At that same session, incidentally, Raibourn related that scientists had "seriously discussed" with him research on how new vicarious experiences can be brought to theatregoers via the "feelies" approach. By holding one of a number of knobs, the patron would experience the emotions of the screen character under the "feelies" idea.

U'S FIRST-QUARTER UP BY 64G OVER YEAR AGO

First quarter of Universal's fiscal year, ended Jan. 31, 1953, showed a net of $475,888, an increase of $64,453 over the corresponding period in 1952. The 1953 earnings were after provision for an estimated $675,000 in federal income and excess profits taxes.

Net of $475,888 is equivalent to 43c per share on the 961,698 shares of common stock outstanding and after deduction of dividends on the preferred stock. Net for the first 13 weeks in 1952 was $411,435, equivalent to 37c per share on the 960,498 shares of common then outstanding. All figures are preliminary and subject to a year-end audit.

Man in the Dark
(3-D)

3-D melodrama with lightweight story but strong b.o. potential due to novelty values. Plenty of exploitation angles.

Columbia release of Wallace MacDonald production. Stars Edmond O'Brien, Audrey Totter; features Ted de Corsia, Horace McMahon, Nick Dennis, Dayton Lummis, Dan Riss. Directed by Lew Landers. Screenplay, George Bricker, Jack Leonard; based on story by Tom van Dycke and Henry Altimus; camera, Floyd Crosby; editor, Viola Lawrence; musical direction, Ross DiMaggio; asst. director, Irving Moore. Tradeshown April 7, '53. Running time, 70 MINS.

Steve Rawley	Edmond O'Brien
Peg Benedict	Audrey Totter
Lefty	Ted de Corsia
Arnie	Horace McMahon
Cookie	Nick Dennis
Dr. Marston	Dayton Lummis
Jawald	Dan Riss
Intern	Shepard Menken
Herman	John Harmon
Mayme	Ruth Warren

"Man in the Dark," Columbia's initial entry in the 3-D sweepstakes, has all the earmarks of a pioneering effort and suffers and gains from them accordingly. Picture looks like a rush job, but could be good for hefty b.o. returns as it's among the very first to satisfy public curiosity about stereo dramatics.

Producer Wallace MacDonald and director Lew Landers play the 3-D gimmick to the hilt and use the added dimension for some first-rate shock effects that should thrill the customers. Unfortunately, the film is handicapped, among other things, by what appear to be certain shortcomings in the process used, since not all scenes come through with depth. Closeups particularly tend to look quite flat and some of the stunt shots are blurred in close range. Sepia coloring in spots made for very dark takes.

Preoccupation with spotlighting what 3-D can do detracts some from the picture's entertainment value. Story, scripting and performances all are mediocre, which puts the whole load on the attraction of the stereoscopic effects. Considering the novelty of the thing, that's probably enough.

Plot has Edmond O'Brien in a standard characterization as a criminal who undergoes a successful brain operation that is supposed to rid him of his criminal tendencies and make him forget his past. He's kindnapped by his former gangster pals who want him to come across with $130,000 he stashed away prior to his arrest for a payroll robbery. He finally manages to track down the money; shoots it out with the gang on a roller-coaster; wins his girl, Audrey Totter, and delivers the dough up to an insurance investigator who's been trailing him also.

If this sounds like pretty tame stuff, the addition of 3-D does brighten it quite a bit. Three-dimensional impression is particularly pronounced in medium and long shots, and when staging is arranged to suit the needs of the stereo camera. It's obvious from the beginning that Landers and photographer Floyd Crosby were still feeling their way in the new medium and delighting in this world of optical tricks.

Film is crammed with such shots as doctors bending over an operating table and apparently reaching towards the audience with their instruments; a bat flapping out of the screen; the inevitable roller-coaster ride, guns being discharged into the camera, etc. One of the difficulties is that an object moving towards the audience at too great a speed doesn't register clearly and the impact dissolves into nothing more than eye-strain.

O'Brien as the man tracing his past manages to look confused most of the time but tries for little more emotion than that. Miss Totter's figure is a definite 3-D asset. Horace McMahon, Nick Dennis and Ted de Corsia make up the gangster trio who think O'Brien is putting on an act. Final chase scene, with the roller-coaster roaring down on the principals as they wrestle on the tracks, is good action stuff but never comes through as much more than just a vehicle for 3-D which doesn't always justify the star part accorded it.

Screenplay, scripted by George Bricker and Jack Leonard, hugs the conventional line from story to dialog. Robert Priestley's sets reflect a lack of preparation and also accentuate the need of more realistic-looking interiors for depth pix. Viola Lawrence's editing job is spotty. Landers' direction relies for climaxes on 3-D and consequently falls short in building up tension. Dream sequence on the amusement pier comes through best.

The film is being offered exhibs in 17-inch and 23-inch reel versions, the former requiring two intermissions and the latter one. Hift.

Jamaica Run
(COLOR)

Ray Milland-Arlene Dahl billing and Technicolor are main b.o. factors in so-so entry.

Paramount release of Clarion (Pine-Thomas) Production. Stars Ray Milland, Arlene Dahl, Wendell Corey; features Patric Knowles, Laura Elliot, Carroll McComas, William Walker, Murray Matheson, Clarence Muse, Michael Moore. Directed by Lewis R. Foster. Screenplay, Foster; from a novel by Max Murray; camera (Technicolor), Lionel Lindon; editor, Howard Smith; music, Lucien Calliet. Previewed in N.Y. April 2, '53. Running time, 92 MINS.

Patrick Fairile	Ray Milland
Ena Dacey	Arlene Dahl
Todd Dacey	Wendell Corey
William Montague	Patric Knowles
Janice Clayton	Laura Elliot
Mrs. Dacey	Carroll McComas
Human	William Walker
Inspector Mole	Murray Matheson
Mose	Clarence Muse
Robert Clayton	Michael Moore
Judge Henley	Rex Evans
Magistrate	Robert Warwick
Mr. Willoughby	Lester Matthews

Some basically interesting ideas for colorful adventure on the screen are given commonplace development in "Jamaica Run." Ray Milland and Arlene Dahl as marquee names, plus Technicolor, may help the initial pull, but the entertainment values are insufficient to give the pic much b.o. power over the long haul. It's okay mainly for lesser-half programming.

Lewis R. Foster's direction and writing provide a few instances of excitement. But the liberal doses of cliches in dialog and story situations detract from conviction. Notable as salable assets are the Island of Jamaica backgrounding and the theme, in which a shipwreck of 100 years ago figures, for both suggest payoff bally playing up the intrigue in an exotic spot.

Milland has a colorful assignment, mastering a schooner on the Jamaica run and romantically pitching for Miss Dahl. Latter resides in an island estate which is going to pot because her mother, Carroll McComas, and brother, Wendell Corey, are a couple of irresponsibles almost constantly on an alcoholic binge.

Complications, and a murder, come into play as Patric Knowles, who's out to pick up some of the island property, attempts to prove that the old manse, called Great House, is not legally the property of Miss Dahl and family. Figuring here is the bill of sale buried in the sunken ship.

Performances are standard, the script limitations rendering it impossible for any player to register in standout fashion. Clarion production has some interesting scenic values in the location shooting and underwater shots, although the staging in several instances muffs opportunities for melodramatic whallop, as with a battle between divers at the bottom of the sea.

As expected, about half-way through the film the climax has Great House going up in flames.

Technical work is okay. Gene.

Fast Company

Comedy programmer for supporting bookings generally. Fair fun.

Hollywood, April 7.

MGM release of Henry Berman production. Stars Howard Keel, Polly Bergen, Marjorie Main; features Nina Foch, Robert Burton. Directed by John Sturges. Screenplay, William Roberts; adaptation, Don Mankiewicz, from a story by Gustace Cockrell; camera, Harold Lipstein; editor, Joseph Dervim. Previewed April 2, '53. Running time, 67 MINS.

Rick Grayton	Howard Keel
Carol Maldon	Polly Bergen
Ma Parkson	Marjorie Main
Mercedes Bellway	Nina Foch
Dave Sandring	Robert Burton
"Jigger" Parkson	Carol Nugent
Manuel Morales	Joaquin Garay
"Two-Pair" Butford	Horace McMahon
"Hungry"	Sig Arno
Ben Iron-Mountain	Iron Eyes Cody

A fair amount of fun is offered in "Fast Company" to get it by as a program comedy for supporting bookings generally. By dint of sheer, silly frenetics, it stirs up a titter here and there, but doesn't merit consideration outside of programmer dates, the classification for which it was made.

Howard Keel and Polly Bergen are the principals involved in this tale of love and larceny along the gypsy horse-race circuit. Marjorie Main is the third co-star, supplying some selling help for the smaller towns and situations, but her footage is comparatively short. They, along with the other performances, enact story "characters" typical of most lightweight race-track comedies, although with less emphasis on schmaltzy heart tugs and more on reaching for chuckles. On that basis, and in view of the budget and release intentions, Henry Berman brings off the production satisfactorily enough, as does John Sturges' direction of the William Roberts screenplay.

Keel, follower of the small-time tracks around the country, owns a beatup nag and is caring for another whose owner has died, leaving it to Miss Bergen. Keel figures to get her to sell cheap, so he keeps the horse losing in all of its races. But when she arrives to claim her inheritance and learns of the shenanigans, she decides to race the nag herself. It isn't long before the gal has been taken by all the track sharpies, but Keel begins to feel sorry for her and offers his aid. There's a romance beginning to bloom before Nina Foch, a wealthy gal, who likes horses and strong men, short-circuits it for a time. Finale gets Keel and Miss Bergen together, and provides Miss Foch with a new muscle boy for the fadeout.

Keel and Miss Bergen are likeable, despite the light material thrown their way, and Miss Main makes appropriate appearances on the scene as a small stable owner. Miss Foch's femme menace chores are done with a broad sophisticated touch. Joaquin Garay figures in as Keel's jockey. Robert Burton and Horace McMahon pair as sharpies, and Carol Nugent is a teen-ager smitten with Keel.

Harold Lipstein's photography is good, and editing by Joseph Dervin keeps the footage down to 67 minutes. Brog.

Invaders From Mars
(COLOR)

Good science-fictioner; comfortable returns indicated.

20th-Fox release of Edward L. Alperson production. Features Helena Carter, Arthur Franz, Jimmy Hunt. Directed by William Cameron Menzies. Screenplay, Richard Blake; camera (Cinecolor), John Seitz; editor, Arthur Roberts; music, Raoul Kraushaar. Tradeshown, N. Y., April 6, '53. Running time, 78 MINS.

Dr. Pat Blake	Helena Carter
Dr. Stuart Kelston	Arthur Franz
David MacLean	Jimmy Hunt
George MacLean	Leif Erickson
Mary MacLean	Hillary Brooke
Colonel Fielding	Morris Ankrum
Sgt. Rinaldi	Max Wagner
Kathy Wilson	Janine Perreau

20th-Fox has a likely science-fiction contender with "Invaders from Mars." While this Edward L. Alperson production lacks marquee names, its suspenseful story is charged with exploitable values. These should insure comfortable returns, especially in situations catering to juveniles and action fans.

Richard Blake's screenplay is pegged around a typical American family which resides in a small California town. Their existence is tranquil until 12-year-old son Jimmy Hunt awakens in a thunderstorm to observe a Martian spaceship land on a nearby sandpit. His scientist-father, Leif Erickson, and mother, Hillary Brooke, investigate the scene, but return with a sinister demeanor that's in abrupt contrast to their usual cheerful attitudes.

Stunned by the mysterious change in his parents' personalities and upset by the disappearance of a neighbor's girl into the sand, Hunt appeals to the local police. They're skeptical of his complaints. However, city physician Helena Carter and astronomer Arthur Franz are convinced that an invader has landed and the country is in vital danger. From this point, the suspense gradually builds until the Army surrounds the pit and routs the menacing Martians.

Imaginative yarn makes full use of astronomical and lab equipment as well as Government atomic research installations as backgrounds to heighten the realism. Highlight, however, is a Martian ray gun which can cause the earth to part into subterranean passages. All this has been effectively filmed by John Seitz in Cinecolor.

Although special effects and technical credits are the star performers of the picture, the cast also turns in creditable portrayals under William Cameron Menzies' fine direction. Miss Carter is coolly efficient as the femme doctor; Franz likewise is mentally adroit as the astronomer who alerts the Army, while young Hunt impresses as the frightened lad. Good support is provided by Erickson and Miss Brooke, among others.

Both producer Alperson and son Edward, Jr., who served as associate producer, extracted maximum physical values from what appears to be a medium budget. Director Menzies' design of the production is warmly inventive as is the art direction of Boris Leven. Musical score of Raoul Kraushaar is in keeping with the film's general suspense. Gilb.

Chaplin Lot's 900G Tag

Hollywood, April 7.

Price tag on the Charles Chaplin two-stage studio, originally $1,400,000 and later $1,200,000, has been lowered to $900,000.

Business interests here are reported ready to buy the lot on Sunset Blvd. for investment purposes, as a rental lot on a long-term lease.

Law and Order
(COLOR)

Good Technicolor western feature, with satisfactory grossing prospects generally.

Hollywood, April 3.

Universal release of John W. Rogers production. Stars Ronald Reagan, Dorothy Malone, Preston Foster; features Alex Nicol, Ruth Hampton, Russell Johnson, Barry Kelley, Chubby Johnson. Directed by Nathan Juran. Screenplay, John and Gwen Bagni and D. D. Beauchamp based on "Saint Johnson" by William R. Burnett; camera (Technicolor), Clifford Stine; editor, Ted J. Kent. Previewed March 31, '53. Running time, 80 MINS.

Frame Johnson	Ronald Reagan
Jeannie	Dorothy Malone
Kurt Durling	Preston Foster
Lute Johnson	Alex Nicol
Maria	Ruth Hampton
Jimmy Johnson	Russell Johnson
Fin Elder	Barry Kelley
Denver Cahoon	Chubby Johnson
Jed	Jack Kelly
Frank Durling	Dennis Weaver
Durango Kid	Wally Cassell
Judge Williams	Richard Garrick

"Law and Order" is a good western shaped to the demands of the Universal action market, where it should prove a satisfactory grosser. Oater story will find favor with fans of outdoor subjects, as will the familiar cast names, headed by Ronald Reagan, and the Technicolor tints that dress up the presentation.

Picture has been put together properly under John W. Rogers' supervision to meet all the demands of release intentions. Nathan Juran's direction is keyed to the same demands, blending in plenty of action to keep the plot moving satisfactorily. While script mixes up a bit too much plot for the 80 minutes of footage, leaving some of the tangents sketchily developed, it is generally acceptable.

Reagan plays a law man who, having cleaned up Tombstone, decides to turn in his badge and take up ranching in another western town. This pleases his girl friend, Dorothy Malone, who can't see a long future with him if he stays a shoot-'em-marshal for whom all the bad men are gunning. With his brothers, Alex Nicol and Russell Johnson, and an undertaker friend, Chubby Johnson, Reagan travels to Cottonwood for ranching. He finds the town is being run by Preston Foster, an old enemy, and the good citizens ask him to clean it up. When he refuses, Nicol tackles the job, is later killed by one of Foster's sons. After this, Reagan, despite his desire for a peaceful life, takes on the task of marshal. His last act as law man is to bring in his own brother, Johnson, after latter has killed another of Foster's sons in self-defense and then fled. When the excitement dies down, Reagan is finally able to retire to ranching and romancing.

Reagan handles himself easily in the top role and the others named pull their own weight in making the picture a likeable outdoor offering. Barry Kelley, a crooked sheriff; Wally Cassell, very good as a bandit captured by Reagan early in the footage; Richard Garrick, a judge, and Ruth Hampton, Foster's daughter who carries on a hurried romance with Russell Johnson, are among other capables.

Script, by John and Gwen Bagni and D. D. Beauchamp, has a leavening sense of humor in the dialog. It is based on William R. Burnette's "Saint Johnson." Excellent color lensing is contributed by Clifford Stine. Editing is good. Brog.

Bright Road

Warmly humorous drama about adolescence; ballyhoo aspects in all-Negro cast for cosmopolitan areas, as companion film.

Hollywood, April 3.

MGM release of Sol Baer Fielding production. Features Dorothy Dandridge, Philip Hepburn, Harry Belafonte, Barbara Ann Sanders. Directed by Gerald Mayer. Screenplay, Emmet Lavery, from "See How They Run," Mary Elizabeth Vroman's Christopher Award story published in Ladies' Home Journal; camera, Alfred Gilks; editor, Joseph Dervin; music, David Rose. Previewed March 30, '53. Running time, 68 MINS.

Jane Richards	Dorothy Dandridge
C. T. Young	Philip Hepburn
School Principal	Harry Belafonte
Tanya	Barbara Ann Sanders
Dr. Mitchell	Robert Horton
Tanya's Mother	Madie Norman
Booker T. Jones	Renee Beard
Boyd	Howard McNeely
Lloyd	Robert McNeely
Rachel Smith	Patti Marie Ellis
Sarahlene Babcock	Joy Jackson
Roger	Fred Moultrie
George	James Moultrie
Mary Louise	Carolyn Ann Jackson

Mary Elizabeth Vroman's tender little story about a Negro boy and his school teacher, which won a Christopher Award under the title of "See How They Run," has been made into a warm and humorous secondary film feature. Because the cast, with one exception, is made up of Negro players, it may rate some special bookings in certain situations. Novelty in casting also offers some ballyhoo aspects for the more cosmopolitan key areas.

Story is simple, and the production keeps the presentation that way, without dragging in racial contrasts or propaganda that would spoil the flavor. Direction is understanding, and works well with both the juve and adult cast members, while properly projecting the heart and humor to be found in the plot.

Dorothy Dandridge, better known as a cafe singer, portrays a new school teacher on her first job. One of her fourth-grade pupils, Philip Hepburn, refuses to respond to school routine, and she determines to win him over, and thus prove her own worth as a teacher. Young Hepburn prefers the wonders of nature to classroom routine, but his teacher's persistence gradually awakens a response. However, when his little sweetheart, Barbara Ann Sanders, dies suddenly, the boy's rebellion breaks out again. As a corrective measure, he is given the silent treatment, but eventually returns to favor with the pupils and the teachers when he successfully rids the school of a swarm of bees by capturing the queen and taking her to the woods.

Miss Dandridge acquits herself creditably as the teacher and sings two simple hymns during the course of the footage. Young Hepburn is splendid as the boy. Harry Belafonte is satisfactory as school principal, and sings one of his folk songs. Miss Sanders' endearing personality carries her through the role of Hepburn's school playmate. Only white player in the cast is Robert Horton, portraying a doctor called in to aid the sick girl and he is good.

Sol Baer Fielding's production draws a reasonably accurate picture of a Negro grade school in the south. Gerald Mayer's direction keeps the 68 minutes of footage interesting and the technical assists are excellent. Brog.

Egypt by Three

Egyptian-filmed short-story trilogy of only mild interest for pseudo-art spots.

Hollywood, March 30.

Filmakers release of Victor Stoloff production, directed by Stoloff. Features Ann Stanville, Jackie Craven, Paul Campbell, Abbas Fares, Charles Fawcett, Mahoud el Miligui, Hassan el Baroudi, Charles Mendick, Eddie Constantine, Nabila Nouhy and the Coptic Priests of the Church of Abu Sefen. Screenplay, Joseph Morheim, Fred Freiberger, Lou Morheim; original, Morheim; camera, Nicholas Hayer; story introduction, Joseph Cotten. Previewed March 25, '53. Running time, 74 MINS.

The girl	Ann Stanville
The wife	Jackie Craven
Knife thrower	Paul Campbell
Caravan sheik	Abbas Fares
American doctor	Charles Fawcett
Egyptian doctor	Mahmoud el Miligui
Magician	Hassan el Baroudi
Charlie	Charles Mendick
Nick	Eddie Constantine
Miriam	Nabila Nouhy
Captic Priests of Church of Abu Sefen

Other than the moot exploitation possibilities in the fact "Egypt By Three" was lensed in Egypt and uses many foreign players, this independently-made trilogy being distributed by Filmakers Releasing Organization doesn't offer much for the domestic market. Some pseudo-art spots may find it of mild interest.

Victor Stoloff produced and directed, using three stories by Lou Morheim. The narrative bridge holding the tales together is spoken by Joseph Cotten. He expounds some cliches on the dark mysteries of the regions of the Nile. Stories, screenplayed by Joseph Morheim, Fred Freiberger and Lou Morheim, each have a twist that strives for an O. Henry touch. Foreign backgrounds are fresh and the lensing by Nicholas Hayer low-key.

First plot, running 24 minutes, concerns the affair between Ann Stanville and Paul Campbell, a knife thrower, and the vengeance exacted by the cast-off wife, Jackie Craven. Latter clears her husband of a murder charge on his promise never to see Miss Stanville again, leaving the viewer with the impression that some night during a performance, the husband will hurl his knife into her instead of the target against which she stands.

Plot two is involved for 26 minutes with a threatened cholera epidemic that quarantines a caravan led by Abbas Fares before it is able to complete its pilgrimage to Mecca, with Charles Fawcett and Mahmoud el Miligui, regular medicos, trying to outwit the tribe magician, Hassan el Baroudi. Fares saves his face and solves the problem by letting the decision whether to stay in quarantine or defy the authorities be settled by a homing pigeon, who flies west to home instead of east to Mecca.

Plot three, running 26 minutes, finds Charles Mendick and Eddie Constantine as a couple of American confidence men trying to make a fast buck out of holy bread baked and given away by the Coptic Priests of the Church of Abu Sefen.

(Continued on page 22)

UNION DEMANDS STIR INDUSTRY

Indies, UA Cling to 2-D Pattern; Sked 45 Pix, Only 2 Are 'Roundies'

Underlining indie filmmakers' hesitancy anent departing from the conventional 2-D, United Artists has the greatest product lineup in its recent history, numbering 45 pix, and only two of these are slated for the 3-D treatment. UA has varying percentages of ownership in more than half the pic program, it's understood.

Distrib has taken the position that "it's the picture that counts," that a good property will sell regardless of dimensions and screen aspect ratio. Of the two in 3-D one is the special filmization of the upcoming Marciano-Walcott bout in Chicago. Other is Victor Saville's "I the Jury."

The 45-pic sked comprises product already completed and awaiting release, some now in various stages of production and others financed to the extent that their delivery is virtually guaranteed.

UA has plans to release the lineup at the rate of three pix a month, it's believed, on the basis of two relatively important productions and one lesser-scale entry per month.

Arthur Krim, UA prez, will leave N. Y. next week for another swing of Europe, looking in on current releasing deals with indie producers and lining up new pacts for the future.

Classics Reprise

Plan to show a series of film classics has been worked out by Richard Brandt, head of Trans-Lux Theatres in N. Y. First pic booked under the project is "Counsellor at Law," 1934 John Barrymore starrer.

Brandt said in N. Y. Monday (6) that he had run into opposition when he took his idea to the majors, with the latter hesitant to let go of the old pix as competition to current product. He hopes that, if "Counsellor" makes a hit, the distribs will loosen up. Pic is a Realart release.

Cinerama Gears For Long Runs

Gearing its product for extended long runs, at least six months in most cities and longer periods in New York, Cinerama is making a careful study of the extent of the trading area of cities in which it plans setting up showcases. Feeling that the population of most cities would not be sufficient to carry an attraction for a half-year's run, outfit is convinced that it must bring in patrons from the surrounding territory.

In Detroit, for example, where the company opened its first showcase outside of New York recently, biz is being sought from the surrounding states. Bally and advertising is being planned to saturate the entire Detroit trading zone, the pitch being that "when you visit Detroit, Cinerama is a must stop." Another aspect of the campaign is special solicitation of group business, with bulk orders being sought from clubs, churches, business organizations, and schools.

In New York, Cinerama has set up a spearate department, headed by Mrs. Diana Sheean, to seek the group business, including conventions, benefits and tours to New

(Continued on page 15)

U.S. Distribs Hope Loan Will Let 'Em Remit Here $8,000,000 of Brazil Coin

U. S. distribs are hopeful of remitting the more than $8,000,000 in blocked revenue in Brazil as soon as terms for the $300,000,000 Import-Export Bank loan to that country have been finalized. This is expected to come about within another week.

There is little doubt that the American film companies are included on the list of importers whose accounts with the Brazilian government will be settled once the loan money is available. But allocation of import permits continues subject to Brazilian study. Licenses for the last half of '52, and the first half of '53, have been issued but not liberated, since at present there are no dollars available to cover them.

Following passage of the free market law in Brazil earlier this year, the government sharply curtailed its list of essential imports, which now does not include American pix. U. S. distribs are waiting for the Brazilians to indicate what merchandise can be imported and paid for, at least partly, at the official rate of exchange.

Brazilian government is known to be anxious to avoid renewed accumulation of blocked balances by U. S. distribs.

Two avenues open to the Brazilians include a quota on imports or unlimited imports and partially-blocked revenues. Latter course would be preferred by the American companies, since it offers hope for eventually getting the money out of the country.

Picking Jury in Jeffers' $200,000 Libel Vs. SEG

Hollywood, April 7.

Selection of a jury has started in the Mike Jeffers $200,000 libel action against Screen Extras Guild and 36 individuals, three years and one day after SEG "dared" Jeffers to sue. Individuals were all members of the SEG board at the time of alleged libel plus attorney Robert W. Gilbert.

Jeffers' complaint is based on the SEG "Newsletter" of April 5, 1950, which described him as a "demagog and a would-be dictator" and as part of "Commie-influenced Conference of Studio Unions." Article also declared "SEG dares him to sue us for libel."

Widescreen Coming Into Its Own, Says Downing

"After all the trial runs in Hollywood, it's evident that the widescreen is coming into its own in one form or another," says Radio City Music Hall president Russell V. Downing. "There's no telling which system ultimately will be adopted universally, but one thing is certain: the new changes are exciting.

"Everyone has become aroused to do something different. It was with that spirit that we (at the Hall) looked around for a suitable production for new usage of our screen, which is the largest in the world." (The Hall will show Paramount's "Shane" in the new Par-advocated screen aspect ratio of 1.66 feet in width to each one foot of height).

Hall is giving "Shane" the widescreen whirl because the pic, with its many panoramic shots, especially lends itself to that treatment, said Downing. He nixes predictions anent the future, because it seems unlikely that all conventional 2-D films will fit into that 1.66 screen pattern.

New M-G O'Seas Screen

New panoramic screen, skedded for installation in various Metro theatres abroad, made its debut last week (3) at M-G's Forum Theatre at Liege, Belgium. Screen is 18 by 32 feet and carries the magnified image from a standard print.

Special screen, developed at the M-G studios, requires a slight alteration in the aperture plate and a lens of proper focal length, according to Arthur M. Loew, prexy of Loew's International.

FILMS RESIST WAGE BIDS

Faced with confusion caused by the introduction of 3-D and widescreen processes and dissension among exhibs regarding high rentals and pre-release pictures, the industry, both the distribution and theatre ends, is being confronted with a hassle on the labor front. Although an open split between the industry and laborites hasn't developed, there are definite signs of union rumblings and discontent among the rank and file. Situations, stalemates and prolonged wrangling are springing up in cases where pacts are expiring and talks get underway for renewals.

So far the disputes have been confined to a handful of unions, involving either exchange workers or projectionists. There is no immediate problem involving studio technicians, since the Coast basic agreement now in effect provides for a reopening on wages and working conditions on Oct. 25, 1953. The 3-D impact on the industry is also influencing labor negotiations, especially among projectionists who are demanding increased pay for handling the depth pictures.

Basic disagreement, however, between the film forces and unions in current talks revolves about wages. Labor outfits involved charge that the film outfits are adamant in re-

(Continued on page 15)

No Single System For U, Says Daff; Owes It to Exhibs

Assurance that Universal at no point plans to make a complete switch to any one specific 3-D or widescreen system, "because we have a definite exhibitor responsibility and intend to live up to it," was voiced last week (2) by Alfred E. Daff, U exec v.p.

Commenting on U's newly-demonstrated wide screen, which increases the light factor from one to four by dint of a special coating which can be applied to an ordinary muslin screen, Daff said he didn't think the accomplishment of a depth illusion on wide screens without glasses would mean much in the long run, since the effect was too slight to be of real impact.

U's new screen is of the all-purpose variety and is adjustable according to the size and type pic shown on it. While it isn't being caught napping on the current 3-D trend—U has one stereo film finished and another planned—Daff indicated the company is banking heavily on its system, which is within range of all exhibs and, besides the screen, requires no more

(Continued on page 20)

Goldenson Sees a Screen Suited for All Purposes

One screen that will be adaptable to all the new lensing and projection developments is anticipated by Leonard Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres. "There may be a series of systems in use," he said, "but I'm confident that one theatre screen will be developed which can be put to use with them all, one which can be masked in and out, depending on the size of the film, and can show either 2-D or 3-D."

Further, there's not going to be a complete industry switch away from the conventional "flats" pattern, Goldenson declared. "Some films lend themselves to 3-D, others to the widescreen treatment. But there still will be films which are best in 2-D."

New Italo Pic Distrib Deal May Unthaw $5,000,000 U.S. Coin in Italy

No 3-D Oldsters?

Although primarily a gimmick to reduce the number of projectionists manning the booths, N. Y. circuit ops negotiating for a new pact with Projectionists Union, Local 306, are suggesting that projectionists over 65 be retired because of the hazards of 3-D.

Theatremen point out that the 3-D 5,000 feet film magazines weighing over 50 pounds are too heavy for the oldtimers to pick up. The convential 2,000 feet reels weigh about 20 pounds.

20th May Farm Its 3-D Pic to Other Co.

Twentieth-Fox may not release its own 3-D production, "Inferno," because 20th execs consider handling of a stereo film requiring polarized viewers inconsistent with their advocacy of the 20th-developed CinemaScope widescreen process.

Studio originally had skedded three stereo pix but later cut that total down to one. Twentieth execs are now discussing whether it wouldn't be best to turn "Inferno" over to an outfit like United Artists and concentrate entirely on CinemaScope.

Projected move underscores the widening gulf between industry factions advocating widescreen pix and those favoring 3-D with glasses as a permanent feature of the biz.

Meanwhile, 20th will be in a position of showing a complete CinemaScope feature before "The Robe" is finished. First print of "The Robe" is due in N. Y. in September and is skedded for October release. "How to Marry a Millionaire," however, should be ready in August. At present, little likelihood is seen for 20th to make the plunge with "Millionaire" since the distrib has already announced that "The Robe" will be its first CinemaScope opus to reach the public.

20th Sets 20 Big-Budget CinemaScope Features

Hollywood, April 7.

An all-out CinemaScope program of 20 high-budget pictures for release starting in October and running through 1954 was announced by Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th-Fox production chief. Program calls for one release per month in October, November and December and one every three weeks in the following year.

Three spectacular films slated for screening in 1953 are "The Robe," "How to Marry a Millionaire" and "Twelve Mile Reef," all in production. "Reef" went into work yesterday (Mon.) on location off Key West and will contain the first undersea scenes ever filmed in CinemaScope.

For the 1954 releasing program the company is readying "Prince Valiant", starting May 11 in England; Irving Berlin's "There's No Business, Like Show Business," June 22; Zanuck's personal production, "The Egyptian", "Hell and High Water", "The Queen of Sheba", "Desiree", "Three Coins in the Fountain", "Sir Walter Raleigh", "The Racer", "Prince of Players", "The Story of Demetrius", "The Wandering Jew", "Jewel of India", "The Gun and the Cross", "The Cannibals", and "The Story of Jezebel."

Barbara Peyton and Tom Neal signed for "The Great Jesse James Raid," to be produced by Robert L. Lippert, Jr.

New Italian film deal, considered an extension of the current arrangement rather than a new pact, gives American distribs the right to make compensation deals which could result in unthawing approximately $5,000,000 in frozen earnings in Italy.

Agreement further permits Motion Picture Assn. of America members to import a "surplus" of 30% over and above the stipulated import limit of 225 pix for work and dubbing purposes. It removes the official rental ceiling when the current pact runs out in June. And it exempts all films, going through Italian distribs, from paying towards the 10% "loan" to the Italian industry.

Execs in N. Y. are still uncertain over whether or not the pact, agreed on between MPAA prexy Eric Johnston and the Italians, cuts off further Italian financial aid out of U. S. funds to support distribution activities of Italian Films Export in this country. It had been announced that none of the additional 10% aid under the deal, which runs through August, 1954, could be utilized for that purpose.

Big question mark is whether money frozen under the current arrangement, which sets aside 12½% for the Italian industry, can still be allocated to IFE's distribution end. If it cannot, the explanation would lie in the fact that the new deal is seen as merely an extension of the old one.

Pact, negotiated by Johnston,

(Continued on page 20)

Educ'l, Biz Groups Fight Attempt to Toughen Md. Pix Censorship Statute

Baltimore, April 7.

Amendment extending film censorship, pending in the General Assembly at Annapolis, is meeting plenty opposition from local educational circles as well as business firms affected. Sydney R. Traub, chairman of the Maryland Board of Censors, is pushing amendment, introduced last week, that would require board censorship for all privately shown 16m used for advertising or sales training purposes. Board censorship would also cover films utilized in the municipal schools as well as those shown or loaned by the Enoch Pratt Free Library, municipally-controlled library system.

Milton Stark, president of Stark Films, local producer of industry and medical films, is spearheading opposition to the amendment. As spokesman for the National Audio-Visual Assn., Stark is petitioning for a hearing before the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee. Stark is backed in his action by the Advertising Club of Baltimore.

Dr. John H. Fischer, superintendent of Baltimore schools, and Miss Amy Winslow, director of the Pratt Library organization, are vigorously campaigning for defeat of the amendment.

Amendment also seeks to change wording of the present censorship law. "Decency" is added to the present standards of morality and the word "profane" is substituted for the term "sacrilegious," which the Supreme Court has ruled unconstitutional.

Incidental to extension of powers and change in wording, the amendment calls for a raise in Traub's yearly salary from $3,200 to $6,000, in addition to a raise for the other two board members from $2,750 to $4,500.

Cal. Lot Sale Okayed

Los Angeles, April 7.

Sale of the California Studios to Gross-Krasne, Inc., for $135,000 was affirmed by Judge Newcome Conde in Superior Court.

Court denied the petition of Teddi and Arlynne Sherman, daughters of the late Harry Sherman, former owner, to set the sale aside.

653 EXHIBITORS SAW IT! AN
AS THE NEW ERA

NATURAL VISION 3 DIMENSION THE WAY WARNER BROS. "H

These are actual and authentic statements. We regret that space does not permit reprinting them in full.

GABRIEL ALARCON, Cines Unidos Theatres, Mexico—"This is really tremendous entertainment. Your process is the friend of the exhibitors!"

MRS. VAN ANDERSON, Richfield, Utah — "Absolutely wonderful! It is the answer to the small town theatre. How soon can I book it?"

DAVE BERSHON, Leimert Theatres, Los Angeles, Calif.—"A real shot in the arm to the industry. We are in business again. From the heart I can state that it is thrilling!"

LESTER BLUMBERG, Principal Theatres — "Wonderful! This is something no other medium can approach!"

JACK BLUMENFELD, Blumenfeld Circuit — "It will prove to be the box office sensation of the year!"

ROY BREWER, Hollywood representative I.A.T.S.E. — "It opens up a whole new field for the Motion Picture Industry. I was tremendously impressed with the potentialities it holds for all phases of our business!"

BILL CONNER, General Manager of the John Hamrick Theatres — "Words can't describe it. It's tremendous!"

ROY COOPER and MARSHALL NAIFY, Golden State and T & D Theatres — "Far and away the most electrifying picture we have seen in many a year!"

JAMES COSTON, Circuit Operator, Chicago —"The most amazing and impressive innovation since the screen first talked!"

EVERETT CUMMINGS, Cummings Theatres, Downey & Norwalk, Calif.—"A thrilling experience and one which gives high hope for the future of this business!"

RUSSELL DOWNING, Radio City Music Hall — " 'House of Wax,' in 3-Dimension with WarnerPhonic Sound is an exciting experience of great interest to all in the industry!"

JOSEPH ENGLAND, Gen. Mgr. Bruen Theatres, Whittier, Calif.—"It will intrigue the public into a boxoffice bonanza that will revitalize the movie industry for a long time to come!"

SI FABIAN, President, Stanley-Warner Corporation—"After seeing it a second time, feel even more positive that it justifies all our hopes about the future of this method of entertainment!"

RAY GRUMBACHER, Esquire Theatre, Portland, Oregon — "It's sure to make boxoffices hum!"

JOHN HAMRICK, President of John Hamrick Theatres — "It's sure to do for sound movies what sound did for the silent screen!"

I. H. HARRIS, Burley, Idaho—"Wonderful! Gives the public the entertainment they want and will acclaim!"

RAY HENRY, Vice President and Gen. Mgr. Inter-Mountain Theatres, Salt Lake City — "It will bring to our theatres the shot in the arm that means box office! It was simply magnificent."

DON HYNDMAN, Eastman Kodak Co. — "Very impressive, and due for great success at box offices!"

EARL JOHNSON and JIM HAYMES, Isley Theatre Circuit—"The greatest innovation in pictures since the introduction of sound!"

JESSE JONES, Jones Circuit, Portland, Oregon — "It's swell. I enjoyed it immensely!"

STERLING JONES, 7-Hi Drive-In Theatres, Minneapolis — "The exhibitors have something to cheer about and something they can recommend unreservedly to their patrons. This is one of the greatest and most profitable introductions show business has ever known!"

TED JONES, Western Amusement Company, Los Angeles—"A showman's Paradise! Tremendously realistic! The color was simply terrific!"

JACK KIRSCH, President, Allied Theatres of Illinois, Inc.—"Unbelievably dramatic and exciting. It's the answer to exhibitors' prayers, and the public will eat it up! Looks like the good old days of lush business are just around the corner. Warners have done it again!"

A. C. KNOX, Salt Lake City, Associated Amusements—"Great and wonderful entertainment. The public will fill our theatres!"

JESSE L. LASKY, veteran producer and pioneer of the motion picture industry—"Pull out the superlatives, because it deserves them all. It will bring a wonderful lift to business and will, I predict, result in the quickest growth in the history of the industry. A positively revolutionary development!"

SYD LEHMAN and HARRY RACKIN, Exhibitors Service Inc., So. Calif.—"Absolutely sensational! The new WarnerPhonic sound and the true 3-D Natural Vision are as great a development in motion picture presentation as was sound when it was first introduced by Warner Bros.!"

BEN LEVIN, General Theatrical Co. — "A great turning-point! My congratulations to Warner Bros. who have done it again as they did in 1927."

HARRY MELSTEIN and HELEN MELLINKOFF, Gardena and Torrance, California — "We'd like to have it right now. It is a wonderful medium of entertainment!"

FRANK MORRISS, Winnipeg Free Press — "That was a thrill! It threw me for a loop. I'm going to write a fine story about it to airmail to my paper today."

AL NASSER, Nasser Circuit — "It's terrific! And what's more, it's box office!"

AL O'KEEFE, O'Keefe & Gamble—"The best I've seen. Will do tremendous business and give a great lift to the industry!"

DICK OREAR, General Manager, Commonwealth Theatres Inc., Kansas City — "Absolutely wonderful! All I can see ahead is a great wave of ticket-buying enthusiasm!"

MRS. J. J. PARKER, the J. J. Parker Theatres, Portland, Oregon—"Of all the things I have seen, this is the most realistic!"

HARRY RACKIN, Exhibitors Service — "Sensational! Beyond my expectations!"

SANTIAGO REACHI, President, Posa Films, Mexico City — "Forms a solid groundwork for a brilliant future!"

"HOUSE OF WAX" Photographed in NATURAL VISION 3-DIMENSION Color by WARNERCOLOR starring VINCENT PRICE · FRANK LOVEJOY · PHYLLIS KIRK CAROLYN JONES PAUL PICERNI Screen Play by CRANE WILBUR

D 653 EXHIBITORS HAILED IT OF OUR BUSINESS!

PRESENT IT IN OUSE OF WAX" AND INTRODUCING THE PHENOMENAL WARNERPHONIC SOUND

COLOR BY WARNERCOLOR

RUSSELL ROGERS, Pres. Preferred Theatres Corp. in Southern California — "An eye-opener! The intimacy of the screen is increased 100-fold. The public will find it a sensation!"

ED ROWLEY, President, Rowley United Theatres — "Magnificent! This is the dawn of a new era!"

LOUIS SCHINE, Schine Chain Theatres Inc. —"All of us agree enthusiastically that this is certain to have a great and profitable future! Warners can take a well earned bow for another history-making contribution to our business!"

ALEX SCHREIBER, Detroit and Los Angeles Theatres — "A box office winner! I'll bet my 34 years in the business on it!"

FRED SCHWARTZ, Century Circuit, New York — "The Warners have taken another seven league step in the advancement of the industry. This should do outstanding business!"

SOL SCHWARTZ, President, RKO Theatres —"I predict without reservation that the public will give its overwhelming support to entertainment presented in this new medium. The realism of this 3-D in WarnerColor and with WarnerPhonic Sound is breathtaking!"

ROBERT SELIG, Asst. to Pres., Fox Intermountain Theatres—" 'House of Wax' stimulated, excited and encouraged all of us. It will be a terrific hit!"

CHARLES SKOURAS, President, National Theatres, Corp.—"It is most impressive and should do spectacular business at the box-office!"

ELY SOMERVILLE, General Manager Cabart Theatres, Long Beach—"Terrific. The only thing we want now is to be able to play it!"

GEORGE STAMN, Antioch, Utah — "A wonderfully thrilling experience!"

FRED STEIN, United Artists Theatres —"I'd like nothing better than to have it for every theatre we operate. I'm convinced 'House of Wax' has a lot of money in it!"

STEVE STIEFEL, Morro Bay Theatres, Northern Calif. — "This is going to create a wave of enthusiasm for moviegoing that will surpass everything!"

DON TORODOR, Panorama Theatre, Van Nuys, Calif. — "Outstanding. This is sensational in scope!"

DAVE WALLERSTEIN, Vice-president and Gen. Mgr. Balaban & Katz, Chicago — "The public will really go for it. It's third-dimension at its best!"

E. L. WILLIAMSON — All States Theatres, Abilene, Tex. — "A wonderful development in entertainment!"

ROY WOLF, Paramount Hollywood theatre, and Fanchon and Marco, Inc. "This is one of the greatest things that ever happened to the movie business. We will start immediately equipping all our houses with WarnerPhonic Sound, which is great beyond description!"

HARRY WOLFBERG, Wolfberg Theatres, Denver — "This is picture-making at its most exciting peak!"

JOHN WOLFBERG, Wolfberg Theatres, Denver — "A new day in the picture business. I was thrilled beyond words!"

ELDEN YERGENSEN, Cedar City, Utah—"I am going to put it into my theatres as quickly as possible. This is a real boon to the movie-goer!"

EDDIE ZABELL, Film Buyer, National Theatres—"Excellent for every boxoffice!"

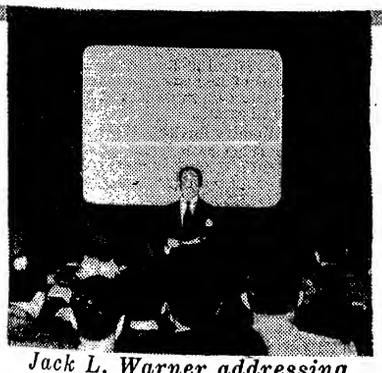
JERRY ZIGMOND, West Coast Division Manager, Paramount Theatres—"The ultimate in true three-dimension, and as shown with the new WarnerPhonic sound, the impact was overwhelming!"



Jack L. Warner addressing one of the series of exhibitor screenings held in Warner Bros.' 3-Dimension Studio Auditorium

My sincerest thanks to each and every exhibitor who attended and so enthusiastically hailed our showing of "House of Wax" in 3 Dimension, WarnerColor and WarnerPhonic Sound.

I wish every exhibitor in the free world could have been present. For us at Warner Bros. Studios this was an occasion as historic as August 5, 1927, when we held our first showing of "Talking Pictures".

As a further demonstration of the tremendous scope of our 3-D program, we showed completed sequences from our forthcoming outdoor spectacle, "The Charge at Feather River" (formerly "Burning Arrow").

The unlimited horizon which we at Warner Bros. saw, was clearly evident to all. And all in our great industry will share the new era of greatness lying just ahead.

Jack L. Warner

d by FOX Directed by ANDRE de TOTH

WORLD PREMIERE N.Y. PARAMOUNT, FRIDAY!

FOLLOWED IMMEDIATELY THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES, CANADA AND GREAT BRITAIN

L. A. Lifts; 'Peter Pan' Still Champ, Wow $43,000 in 4th, 'Madam' Hefty 35G, 'Legion' Big 24G, 'Limits' 22G

Los Angeles, April 7.

Even against new bills, opened to take advantage of the school holiday and Easter weekend, "Peter Pan" remains the outstanding pic here, soaring to a wow $43,000 in fourth session, two theatres. "Call Me Madam," although it just closed a four-week, upped scale showcasing run, is catching a hefty $35,000 on its initial popscale week in four locations.

"Off Limits" shapes nifty $22,000 in two houses, plus $27,000 more in four nabs including three ozoners. "Desert Legion" is grabbing a fine $24,000 in three spots while "Sombrero" is getting a good $25,000 in two sites.

Only fair $13,000 is seen for "Glass Wall" in two theatres. Showcase Ritz is landing a good $9,500 with "Man on Tightrope" at the Ritz.

Estimates for This Week

United Artists, Hollywood Paramount (UATC-F&M) (2,100; 1,430; 70-$1.10)—"Off Limits" (Par). Solid $22,000. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) (2d wk-10 days), $16,000.

Los Angeles, Chinese, Uptown, Loyola (FWC) (2,079; 2,048; 1,715; 1,248; 70-$1,10)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) and "Cairo Road" (Indie). Hefty $35,000. Last week, "Among Sheltering Palms" (20th) and "Face To Face" (RKO), $17,000.

Ritz (FWC) (1,370; 80-$1.50)—"Man On Tightrope" (20th). Good $9,500. Last week, "Call Me Madam" (20th) (4th wk), $10,500.

Los Angeles Paramount, Egyptian (ABC-PT-UATC) (3,200; 1,338; 70-$1.25)—"Sombrero" (M-G) and "Port Sinister" (RKO). Good $25,000. Last week, L. A. Par and El Rey, "Hitch-Hiker" (RKO) and "Woman They Almost Lynched" (Rep), $23,000.

Loew's State, Four Star, Hawaii (UATC-C&S) (2,404; 900; 1,106; 60-$1.10)—"Desert Legion" (U) and "Stolen Identity" (Indie). Fine $24,000. Last week, "Seminole" (U) and "Kansas Pacific" (AA) (2d wk), $12,700.

Downtown, Wiltern (WB) (1,757; 2,344; 70-$1.10) — "Glass Wall" (Col) and "Jack McCall, Desperado" (Col). Fair $13,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Thundering Trails" (Indie), same.

Orpheum (Metropolitan) (2,213; 60-90)—"Lady Wants Mink" (Rep) and "San Antone" (Rep). Mild $5,000, or near. Last week, with Egyptian, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Jalopy" (AA) (2d wk), $13,600.

El Rey, Iris (FWC) (861; 814; 70-90) — "Hitch-Hiker" (RKO) and "Woman Almost Lynched" (Rep) (2d wk-El Rey; m.o. Iris). Okay $6,000. Last week, with other units.

Hillstreet, Pantages (RKO) (2,752; 2,812; 74-$1.50)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (4th wk). Wow $43,000. Last week, $34,400.

Vogue (FWC) (885; 80-$1.50)—"Lili" (M-G) (3d wk). Neat $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Fine Arts (FWC) (679; 80-$1.50) —"Four Poster" (Col) (4th wk). Modest $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Wilshire, Globe (FWC) (2,296; 782; 80-$1.50)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (15th wk-Wilshire, 6th wk-Globe). Good $10,000. Last week, $9,500.

Beverly Hills (WT) (1,612; $1.50-$1.80)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (15th wk). Nifty $9,500. Last week, upped to $7,000 with school vacation, TV ads helping.

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This week $731,400
(Based on 22 theatres)
Last Year $478,000
(Based on 21 theatres)

'Salome' Record $20,000 Tops Prov.

Providence, April 7.

Boff fare in combo with school's Easter holiday week heading all first-runs big totals. Leading the list is Strand's "Salome" with RKO Albee close behind with "Hans Christian Andersen." Also on the lusty side are Loew's State's "Call Me Madam" and Majestic's "Trouble Along Way." Metropolitan's "Off Limits" looks good.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 50-$1)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO). Wow $18,500. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Flying Squadron" (Rep), $7,000.

Majestic (Fay) (2,200; 44-65)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB) and "Seeing Eye" (WB). Big $11,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Daughter of Darkness" (Indie), $5,000.

Metropolitan (Snider) (3,100; 25-65)—"Off Limits" (Par). Looks good $11,000. Last week dark.

State (Loew) (3,200; 44-65)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Nice $14,500. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "San Antone" (Rep), $9,000.

Strand (Silverman) (2,200; 65-$1)—"Salome" (Col). Record $20,000. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "Midnight Serenade" (Par), $5,500.

'TROUBLE' SMASH 12G, BUFF.; 'PAN' TALL 27G

Buffalo, April 7.

Best showing currently is being made by the Buffalo where Louis Armstrong and Sugar Ray Robinson topped stagebill are boosting "Bandits of Corsica" to a great total in four days. Next best is "Trouble Along Way," wow at the Center. "Salome" at Lafayette and "Peter Pan" at Century also are great.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew's) (3,000; 40-90)—"Bandits of Corsica" (Indie) with Louis Armstrong, Sugar Ray Robinson topping stage show (4 days). Fancy $20,000. Last week "Sombrero" (M-G) and "Confidentially Connie" (M-G), $10,000.

Paramount (Par) (3,000; 40-70)—"Off Limits" (Par) and "Wyoming Roundup" (AA). Hefty $15,500. Last week, "Back on Broadway" (WB) and "House of Darkness" (Indie) (10 days), $11,200.

Center (Par) (2,100; 40-70)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB). Smash $12,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Wherever She Goes" (Lip), $8,500.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 40-70)—"Salome" (Col). Giant $21,000. Last week, "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U) and "White Goddess" (Lip) (5 days), $8,000.

Century (20th Cent.) (3,000; 50-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO). Great $27,000. Last week, "Angel Face" (RKO) and "Captive Women" (RKO), $8,000 at 40-70c. scale.

'Limits' Loud 18G, Frisco; 'Pan' 32G

San Francisco, April 7.

"Peter Pan" shapes standout here this session, with Easter week turnout by youngsters holding it near opening week's smash total at Golden Gate. Pic is landing a sockeroo total on second stanza. One of the brightest newcomers is "Off Limits," rated big at Paramount. "Call Me Madam" also looms great at the huge Fox. "Tonight We Sing" shapes good at St. Francis.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,850; 60-$1.20)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Held to boff $32,000. Last week, $35,500.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; 65-95)—"Call

(Continued on page 20)

'Salome' Hot $18,000 Paces Cincy; 'Hans' Wow 16G, 'Legion' Stout 10G

Cincinnati, April 7.

Easter stanza is a wicket feast here. Standouts are "Salome" and "Hans Christian Andersen" at the big Albee and smaller Grand. Latter is especially sock. Both are helped by advanced prices and hold for second rounds. Keith's also is in holiday stride with "Desert Legion." Additional new bills, "Destination Gobi" at Capitol and "I Love Melvin" in Palace, look moderate.

Estmates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; 75-$1)—"Salome" (Col). Big $18,000. Holds for second stanza. Last week, "The Star" (20th), $8,500 at 55-85 scale.

Capitol (RKO) (2,000; 55-85)—"Destination Gobi" (20th). So-so $7,500. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB), same.

Grand (RKO) (1,400; 75-$1)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO). Gigantic $16,000. Will hold. Charles Granger p.a. opening day boosted biz. and publicity. Last week, "Stereo Techniques" (Indie) and "San Antone" (AA), $8,000.

Keith's (Shor) (1,500; 55-85)—"Desert Legion" (U). Strong $10,000. Last week, "Taxi" (20th), $5,000.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; 55-85)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G). Mild $8,500. Last week, "Flat Top" (AA), ditto.

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $3,195,600
(Based on 24 cities, 217 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)
Total Gross Same Week
Last Year $2,045,700
(Based on 22 cities, and 214 theatres.)

'Salome' Wow 37G, Philly; 'Hans' 16G

Philadelphia, April 7.

Rain Saturday and Monday is nicking holiday grosses here this stanza despite a big Easter Sunday. "Salome" is way out in front with terrific week at the Stanley. Personals by Farley Granger will boost "Hans C. Andersen" back into the chips at the Midtown despite being in the ninth week. "Trouble Along Way" is only okay at the Mastbaum but "I Love Melvin" is sluggish at Randolph. "Moulin Rouge" roared ahead to get bigger biz at the small Trans-Lux in fifth stanza.

Estimates for This Week

Aldine (WB) (1,303; 50-99—"Sombrero" (M-G) (2d wk). Off to $5,000. Last week, trim $8,500.

Arcadia (S&S) (625; 85-$1.20)—"Bad and Beautiful" (M-G) (9th wk). Fair $6,500. Last week, $7,000.

Boyd (WB) (2,360; 99-$1.30)—"Peter Pan" (RKO Disney) (7th wk—5 days). Oke $8,500. Last week, $10,000.

Fox (20th) (2,250; 85-$1.30)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk). Great $23,000. Last week, $26,000.

Goldman (Goldman) 1,200; 50-99)—"Off Limits" (Par). Torrid $15,000. Last week, "Last Comanches" (Col), $12,000.

Mastbaum (WB) (4,360; 50-99)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB). Barely okay at $15,000 or near. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB), $10,000.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,000; 85-$1.50—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (9th wk). Solid $16,000. Last week, $10,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,500; 50-99)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G). Tepid $13,000. Last week, "Girl Who Had Everything" (M-G), $12,500.

Stanley (WB) (2,900; 85-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col). Mighty $37,000. Last week, "Back on Broadway" (WB) (2d wk), $7,000.

Stanton (WB) (1,473; 50-99)—"System" (WB). Slow $6,000. Last week, "Cleopatra" (Par) (reissue), fancy $8,500.

Studio (Goldberg) (500; 50-99)—"Justice Is Done" (Burstyn). Fair $3,200. Last week, second-run.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 90-$1.25)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (5th wk). Great $14,000. Last week, $13,000.

World (G&S) (500; 60-99)—"Don Camillo" (IFE). Tidy $3,800. Last week, second-run.

Plenty of Pix Opposish In Omaha; 'Madam' Socko $11,500, 'Melvin' Hep 5G

Omaha, April 7.

Plenty of competition for first-runs here this week, but biz is holding up well. There is the Shrine Circus, "Top Banana" legiter, "Ice Capades" and Western League baseball opening. However, newcomers "I Love Melvin" and "Call Me Madam" are getting an excellent play. Holdovers of "Peter Pan" and "Bwana Devil" are going nicely in second rounds.

Estimates for This Week

Brandeis (RKO) (1,100; 50-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) and "Bear Country" (RKO) (2d wk). Holding well at $9,500. Last week, smash $16,000.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,100; 50-$1.25)—"Bwana Devil" (UA) (2d wk). Big $9,000 or near. Last week, $10,000.

Orpheum (Tristates) (3,000; 20-70)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) and "Operation A-Bomb" (RKO). Sock $11,500. Last week, "Stars Singing" (Par) and "Tropic Zone" (Par), $8,500.

State (Goldberg) (865; 25-76)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Golden Hawk" (Col). Fine $5,000 or near. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G) and "Models, Inc." (Indie) (2d wk), $4,000.

'Rouge' Giant $50,000, Det; 'Gambler' Fancy 22G, 'Cinerama' Huge 28G, 2d

Detroit, April 7.

First-run biz is booming here this week. "Moulin Rouge" looks giant at the Fox while "Mississippi Gambler" is sharp at the Michigan. "Call Me Madam" shapes great at the United Artists. "Cinerama" is virtually capacity in second round at Music Hall. Two holdovers, "Peter Pan" at Madison and "Hans Christian Andersen" at Adams are strong in seventh and third weeks, respectively.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox-Detroit) (5,000; 80-$1.25)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA). Terrific $50,000. Last week, "High Noon" (UA) and "African Queen" (UA), $18,000.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,000; 70-95)—"Mississippi Gambler" (U) and "Prince Pirates" (Col). Nice $22,000 or over. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "Taxi" (20th) (2d wk), $15,000.

Palms (UD) (2,961; 70-95)—"Girls in Night" (U) and "Gunsmoke" (U). Oke $16,000. Last week, "Angel Face" (RKO) and "Torpedo Alley" (Col), $15,000.

Madison (UD) (1,900; 70-95)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (7th wk). Boff $12,000. Last week, $9,000.

United Artists (UA) (1,938; 70-95)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Great $17,000. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G) and "Kansas Pacific" (AA), $8,400.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; 70-95)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (3d wk). Stout $11,000. Last week, $14,500.

Broadway - Capitol (Korman) (3,500; 70-95)—"Fort Vengeance" (AA) and "Hiawatha" (AA). Slow $9,000. Last week, "Naked Spur" (M-G) and "Babes in Bagdad" (UA) (2d wk), $8,700.

Music Hall (Cinerama Prods., Inc.) (1,145; $1.50-$1.80)—"This Is Cinerama" (Indie) (3d wk). Initial holdover week ended Monday (6) held at huge $28,000 after virtual capacity $29,000 opening round. Looks in for longrun, with crix appraisal and word-of-mouth great.

(Continued on page 20)

'PAN' GIGANTIC 29G, BALTO; 'MADAM' 22G

Baltimore, April 7.

Grosses here this week are the best in many months. Leading the holiday lineup are "Peter Pan" at Hipp and "Call Me Madam" at the New, both plenty hot with tilted scales at both. "Off Limits" at Keith's and "Naked Spur" at the Century are also drawing nicely. "Fair Wind To Java" at the Mayfair is getting okay trade.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Loew's-UA) (3,000; 20-70)—"Naked Spur" (M-G). Fast $14,500. Last week, "Clown" (M-G), $11,000.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,100; 50-$1.25) — "Peter Pan" (RKO). Socko $29,000. Last week, "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (6th wk), $13,300.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,400; 25-90)—"Off Limits" (Par). Nice $13,000 or near. Last week, "Tropic Zone" (Par), $6,600.

Little (Rappaport) (310; 25-90)—"Justice Is Done" (Burstyn). Nice $4,200. Last week, "Song To Remember" (Col) (reissues), $3,500.

Mayfair (Hicks) (980; 20-70) — "Fair Wind To Java" (Rep). Over average $5,200. Last week, "Ride Man Down" (Rep), $4,300.

New (Mechanic) (1,800; 35-90)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Rousing $22,000. Last week, "Among Sheltering Palms" (20th), $7,000.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (420; 50-90)—"Little Sheba" (Par) (4th wk). Sticking to great $7,000 mark set in first and second frames.

Stanley (WB) (3,280; 50-90)—"I Confess" (WB). Disappointing $10,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB), $5,500.

Town (Rappaport) (1,500; 35-70) —"Desert Legion" (U). Trim $10,800. Last week, "Invasion U. S. A." (Col), $9,200.

'Pan' Powerful $22,000, L'ville; 'Salome' Sturdy 15G, 'Gambler' Lusty 5G

Louisville, April 7.

First-run trade is soaring to a new high this week, with "Peter Pan" at Rialto and "Salome" at State, both at upped prices, pacing field. Former is terrific while "Salome" shapes sturdy. Mary Anderson with "Trouble Along Way" and Kentucky with "Mississippi Gambler," both looking lively.

Estimates for This Week

Kentucky (Switow) (1,200; 50-75) —"Mississippi Gambler" (U). Solid $5,000. Last week, "Gunsmoke" (U) and "White Lightning" (AA), $4,000.

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,200; 50-75) — "Trouble Along Way" (WB). Excellent $8,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB), $5,000.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (3,000; 75-99)—"Peter Pan" (RKO). Going to town at upped scale. Tremendous $22,000 or close. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par), $12,000, and m.o. to Brown.

State (Loew's) (3,000; 75-$1.10)—"Salome" (Col). Fast tee-off indicates sturdy $15,000 or better. Last week, "Woman's Face" (M-G) and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" (M-G) (reissue), $13,000.

'MADAM' BIG $16,000, CLEVE.; 'MELVIN' 14G

Cleveland, April 7.

Downtown grosses are spurting at most houses with plenty of strong product. "Call Me Madam" at Palace is leading the newcomers closely pursued by "I Love Melvin" at State. Mouline Rouge" is soaring ahead of last week to make its fourth stanza on moveover at Stillman a real smash.

Estimates for This Week

Allen (Warners) (3,000; 55-85)—"President's Lady" (20th). Good $11,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB), $9,500.

Hipp (Telemanagement) (3,700; 50-$1.25)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (3d wk). Sturdy $16,000, following $22,000 last week.

Lower Mall (Community) (585; 55-85)—"Limelight" (UA). Picketing by American Legion not hurting house or pull of this comedy. Easter weekend, had long lines that insure a good $5,300. House closed 10 days preceding pic.

Ohio (Loew's) (1,300; 55-85)—"Battle Circus" (M-G) (m.o.). Excellent $8,000 on second downtown lap. Last week, "San Antone" (Rep), $5,000.

Palace (RKO) (3,300; 60-90)—"Call Me Madam," (20th) Big $16,000 or near. Last week, "Silver Whip" (20th) and "Lady Says No" (RKO), $6,500.

State (Loew's) (3,450; 55-85)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G). Smart $14,000. Last week, "Battle Circus" (M-G), same.

Stillman (Loew's) (2,700; 55-75-$1.25)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (m.o.) (4th wk). Big $14,000, even more solid than last week's $12,000.

'Madam' Terrif $14,000, Pitt.; 'Melvin' Hot 14½G, 'Trouble' Tall at 14G

Pittsburgh, April 7.

It looks like Donald O'Connor Week on marquees here, with "Call Me Madam" at Harris and "I Love Melvin" at the Penn only a few doors away, and both running neck and neck for holiday leadership. "Madam" was extra hefty at slightly advanced prices. "Trouble Along Way" at Stanley shapes good. "Abbott and Costello to Mars" at Fulton is fair.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea) (1,700; 50-85)—"Abbott-Costello Go to Mars" (U). Some holiday action from kiddies but only fairish $6,000 looms. Last week, "Redhead Wyoming" (U) and "Girls in Night" (U), $3,500.

Harris (Harris) (2,200; 65-$1)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Upped scale should get this one nearly to first-run Easter leadership, what

(Continued on page 20)

Chi Soars Despite Rain; 'Salome' Sock 38G, 'Rouge' Terrif 50G, 'Girl' Fast 25G, 'B'way'-Clooney Lush 57G

Chicago, April 7.

Easter weeks' hefty grosses are being dampened slightly by weekend rains and cool weather. However, top product is offsetting most downward inclinations. "She's Back on Broadway," hypoed by Rosemary Clooney and Frank Fontaine onstage, shapes lush $57,000 for single frame at the Chicago.

Grand has a sock $38,000 sighted for upped scale "Salome." "Moulin Rouge" at State-Lake is headed for a huge $50,000 or over. "Girl Who Had Everything" at the Woods looks fast $25,000.

"Tonight We Sing" at the Palace is solid $18,000. "Crash in Silence" at Surf is nifty $5,000. Monroe brought back "Devil in Flesh" with English titles and sexy bally to get nice $6,500.

Holdovers in main also are big. There are only two second-week bills. "Naked Spur" at United Artists looms tidy. "City Beneath Sea" at Roosevelt still is big also in second. "Little Sheba" at Ziegfeld is sharp in fifth round. "Hans Christian Andersen" at Oriental winds up eight-week stay with fine takings.

Estimates for This Week

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 98-$1.25) —"Back on Broadway" (WB) with Rosemary Clooney and Frank Fontaine topping stageshow. Fancy $57,000. Last week, "I Confess" (WB) with Joni James and Ralph Marterie onstage (2d wk), $37,000.

Grand (RKO) (1,500; 98-$1.25)— "Salome" (Col). Sock $38,000. Last week, "Battleground" (M-G) (reissue) (2d wk), $9,000.

Monroe (Indie) (1,000; 55-98)— "Devil in Flesh" (Indie) (reissue). Stout $6,500. Last week, "Androcles and Lion" (RKO) (3d wk), $4,500.

Oriental (Indie (3,400; 98-$1.25) — "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (8th wk). Hefty $21,000. Last week, $16,500.

Palace (Eitel) (2,500; 55-98)—"Tonight We Sing" (20th). Hefty $18,000. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) (2d wk), $8,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,500; 55-98)— "City Beneath Sea" (U) and "Gunsmoke" (U) (2d wk). Sharp $11,000. Last week, $14,500.

State-Lake — (B&K) (2,700; 98-$1.25) — "Moulin Rouge" (UA). Smash $50,000 or over. Last week, "Peter Pan" (RKO) (8th wk), $19,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; 98)— "Crash of Silence" (Indie). Okay $4,000. Last week, "Member of Wedding" (Col) (3d wk), $4,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 55-98)—"Naked Spur" (M-G) and "Rogue's March" (M-G) (2d wk). Excellent $12,000. Last week, $18,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,073; 98)— "Girl Who Had Everything" (M-G). Fast $25,000. Last week, "Niagara" (20th) (3d wk), $13,000.

World (Indie (587; 98)—"Forbidden Games" (Indie) (5th wk). Nifty $4,000. Last week $4,300.

Ziegfeld (Lopert) (485; 98) — "Little Sheba" (Par) (5th wk). Nifty $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i. e., without the 20% tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include the U. S. amusement tax.

'Peter Pan' Smash $30,000, Indpls.

Indianapolis, April 7.

Mild weather for Easter is boosting biz at most key spots here this stanza. "Peter Pan" at Circle is great and leading town, "Small Town Girl" at Loew's looks very good. Both had standees most of weekend. "Hans Christian Andersen" is oke in second week at Keith's.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Cockrill-Dolle) (2,800; 50-$1.20)—"Peter Pan" (RKO). Smash $30,000. Last week, "The Star" (20th) and "High Treason" (Indie), $8,500.

Indiana (C-D) (3,200; 50-76)— "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Taxi" (20th). Tepid $9,000. Last week, "Treasure Golden Condor" (20th) and "Jalopy" (AA), same.

Keith's (C-D) (1,300; 50-$1.20)— "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (2d wk). Stout $12,000 after $15,500 opener.

Loew's (Loew's) (2,427; 50-76)— "Small Town Girl" (M-G) and "Jack McCall, Desperado" (Col). Solid $14,000. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Bandits of Corsica" (UA), $10,000.

'Trouble' Sockeroo 22G, Hub; 'Madam' Wow 26G, 'Salome' Mighty $27,000

Boston, April 7.

Biz is soaring here this week. "Trouble Along Way" shapes as one of big standouts with smash takings in two houses. "Call Me Madam" looms sock at Memorial while "I Love Melvin" is very strong in two locations. "Salome" is terrific at Astor, and "Seminole" is great at Pilgrim.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,500; 74-$1.25)— "Salome" (Col). Smash $27,000. Last week, "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (14th wk), $6,500.

Boston (RKO) (3,000; 50-90)— "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Fame and Devil" (Indie). Good $14,000. Last week, "Great White Hunter" (Lip) and "Capt. Kidd" (Lip) (reissues), mild $9,000 for 9 days.

Exeter (Indie) (1,300; 60-80)— "Importance of Being Earnest" (U). Big $6,000. Last week, "Forbidden Games" (Indie) (6th wk), $3,000.

Fenway (NET) (1,373; 50-90)— "Trouble Along Way" (WB) and "San Antone" (Rep). Sock $7,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Romance and Rhythm" (Indie), $4,500. "Gardenia" was incorrectly billed as playing with "Along Way" last week.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 60-$1)— "Call Me Madam" (20th). Sock $26,000. Last week, "Androcles and Lion" (RKO) and "Amazing Mons. Fabre" (Indie), $20,000 for 10 days.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,367; 50-90) —"President's Lady" (20th) and "Woman They Almost Hanged" (Rep). Fair $17,000. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "Tropic Zone" (Par), $20,000 for second week plus two days.

Orpheum (Loew's) (3,000); 50-90) —"I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Five Angles on Murder" (Col). Great $19,000. Last week, "Moulin Rouge" (UA) (5th wk), $15,000.

Paramount (NET) (1,700; 50-90) —"Trouble Along Way" (WB) and "San Antone" (Rep). Smash $15,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "Romance and Rhythm" (Indie), $15,000 in 9 days.

State (Loew) (3,500; 60-90)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Five Angles on Murder (Col). Big $10,500. Last week, "Sombrero" (M-G) and "Hell Is Sold Out" (Indie), $8,000.

'Salome' Sock $17,000, Seattle; 'Pan' Big 22G

Seattle, April 7.

Biz is still a bit uneven here this session. "Peter Pan" is rated terrific at the Paramount while "Salome" shapes socko at Fifth Avenue. "Ma and Pat Kettle" looks good at Liberty. "Destination Gobi" is big at Coliseum.

Estimates for This Week

Coliseum (Evergreen) (1,829; 65-90) — "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Silver Whip" (20th). Big $10,000. Last week, "Kansas Pacific" (AA) and "Torpedo Alley" (AA), $8,300.

Fifth Avenue (Hamrick) (2,366; 90-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col). Socko $17,000. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "White Lightning" (Mono) (2d wk), $9,300 at 90c top.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,650; 65-90) —"Ma, Pa Kettle Vacation" (U) and "Port Sinister" (RKO). Good $8,000 or near. Last week, "A. & C. Go to Mars" (U) and "Gunsmoke" (U), $6,600.

Music Box (Hamrick) (850; $1-$1.25) — "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (7th wk). Oke $4,500 in 5 days after $5,700 last week.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,263; 65-90)—"Sombrero" (M-G). Slow $6,000. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) (2d wk), $4,700.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,600; 65-90)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB) and "Chief Pontiac" (Indie). Fairish $9,000. Last week, "Seminole" (U), $7,600 in 10 days.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,039; 90-$1.25)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Terrific $22,000 after $18,600 opener.

'Trouble' Boffo $11,000 in Mpls.

Minneapolis, April 7.

Easter week's favorable boxoffice influences spell somewhat stimulated grosses here this round despite having to contend with "Ice Follies," Sportsmen's Show, Minneapolis Lakers basketball championship playoff finals and "Top Banana" legiter. "Trouble Along the Way" looks sock at Radio City to pace field. "Anna" is smash at Century. There's also the powerful "Peter Pan," in its second wow week at Orpheum.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Par) (1,600; 50-76)— "Anna" (IFE). Daring ads helping to sell this one. Sock $6,500. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G), $7,200.

Gopher (Berger (1,026; 50-76)— "Jeopardy" (M-G) (2d wk). Light $3,000. Last week, $6,000.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; 50-76)— "Destination Gobi" (20th). Robust $7,000. Last week, "High Noon" (UA) (2d wk) (2d run), $5,500.

Radio City (Par) (4,000; 50-76)— "Trouble Along Way" (WB). Raves for this one and sold via extra big ads. Building in consequence of critics' orchids and word-of-mouth. Boff $11,000. Last week, "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U), $9,000.

RKO-Orpheum (RKO) (2,800; 76-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Sockeroo $16,000. Last week, $22,000, over hopes.

RKO-Pan (RKO) (1,600; 40-76) —"All Ashore" (Col) and "Voodoo Tiger" (Col). Puny $3,000. Last week, "Jack McCall, Desperado" (Col) and "Five Angles on Murder" (Col), $3,400.

State (Par) (2,200; 50-76)— "Sombrero" (M-G). Mild $5,000. Last week, "Fort Vengeance" (AA), $5,000.

World (Mann) (400; 55-$1.20)— "Magic Box" (Indie). Okay $2,500. Last week. "The Promoter" (U) (3d wk), $2,800.

'Salome' Rousing $19,000, Port.; 'Hans' Socko 14G

Portland, Ore., April 7.

First-run biz is soaring here this week. The standout is "Salome" which is smash at Paramount and Oriental with upped prices. "Hans Christian Andersen" also is sockeroo with tilted scale at United Artists. Despite this competition, "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" is very big at the Broadway. "I Love Melvin" looks nice at Liberty.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,890; 65-90) —"Ma, Pa Kettle On Vacation" (U) and Gunsmoke (U). Tall $12,000. Last week, "City Beneath Sea" (U) and "Toughest Man Arizona" (Rep), $8,300.

Guild (Parker) (400; 90-$1.25)— "Four Poster" (Col) (3d wk). Fine $3,200. Last week, $4,500.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,875; 65-90)— "I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Confidentially Connie" (M-G). Big $11,-

(Continued on page 20)

Holidays Give B'way B.O. Bounce; 'Moon'-Hall Pageant Smash 173G, 2d, 'Madam' 120G, 2d, 'Salome' 60G, 2d

Easter week with the schools out and an unusually large influx of out-of-towners is giving Broadway first-run theatres a hefty boost this stanza. Most houses playing extended-runs are bettering their last week's business. Even the rain Saturday night and the all-day steady downpour yesterday (Tues.) are not harming the week's total to any great extent. Counteracting the Saturday rain was an unusually strong Easter Sunday (5), with bright, mild weather helping.

The strong showing is all the more unusual because of the dearth of new product, only two new pix opening during the week. "Jeopardy" wound up its first stanza with fine $21,000 at the Mayfair. "Lady Wants Mink," which started out strongly, looks to get a hotsy $12,000 at the smaller Holiday.

With so many visitors in N. Y., it is only natural that the big combo houses should do hefty biz. Easily standout is the Music Hall with its annual Easter stageshow and "By Light of Silvery Moon." Second round ending today (Wed.) is soaring to a terrific $173,000. Saturday (4) was one of the biggest days in Hall history.

"Call Me Madam" with iceshow onstage also is forging ahead of opening week to land a huge $120,000 in second session at the Roxy. "Salome" is holding almost even with initial round's take with a giant $60,000 at the Rivoli.

Sensational showing is being made by "Moulin Rouge" which shot up ahead of last week to land a smash $48,000 in eighth stanza at the Capitol. Second week of "Off Limits" looks to hold at fancy $25,000 in the Astor, almost same as opening round.

"I Confess" with stageshow headed by Patti Page, Jerry Wald band, Bobby Sargent continues okay with $51,000 probable for third, abbreviated week at the Paramount. Bill goes only 5½ days in order to hold a special press preview tomorrow night of "House of Wax," Warner's first 3-D film.

Normandie swung back to first-run policy with launching of "Murder Will Out." Pic is heading for socko $13,000 opening stanza. "Come Back, Little Sheba" is forging ahead of previous stanza to hit smash $17,000 in 15th week at the Victoria. "Naked Spur" is holding in great style with $20,500 or better in second frame (8 days) at the State.

"Anna" went ahead of its previous round to land a big $11,500 in seventh (final) week at the Globe. "Man in Dark," Columbia's first 3-D try, supplants today (Wed.). "Andersen" also is strong in 19th week at Criterion and Paris.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,300; 80-$1.50) —"Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk). First holdover round ending next Friday (10) looks to hold at socko $25,000 or better. First week was fine $25,500. Stays on.

Broadway (Cinerama) (1,250; 90-$2.80)—"Cinerama" (Indie) (28th wk). The 27th stanza ended yesterday (Tues.) upped to $41,000, virtual capacity for house. The 26th week was $39,600.

Baronet (Reade) (430; 90-$1.50) —"Importance of Being Earnest" (U) (16th wk). The 15th session ended Sunday (5) was nice $4,000 after $3,700 for 14th week. "I Believe in You" (U) is next in but no date set because "Earnest" is holding up.

Capitol (Loew's) (4,820; 70-$1.80) —"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (9th wk). The eighth frame ended last night (Tues.) climbed to terrific $48,000. Seventh round was socko $37,000, both figures great for length of run at this house. Start of ninth week means that it is runner-up to "Gone With Wind" (M-G) as longest non-stage show run at Cap.

Criterion (Moss) (1,700; 85-$2.20) —"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (20th wk). The 19th week ended Monday (6) pushed up to $18,000 after $9,000 for 18th week. Stays on.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; 90-$1.80) —"The Promoter" (U) (24th wk). The 23d session ended Monday (6) climbed to fine $4,100 after $3,800 for 22d week. Next pic not set for opening date because this is holding so well.

Globe (Brandt) (1,500; 60-$1.50) —"Man in Dark" (Col). Opens today (Wed.), this 3-D pic being second to play house. In ahead, "Anna" (IFE) (7th wk), soared to $11,500 after $8,500 for sixth week to wind up highly successful long-run date.

Guild (Newsreels, Inc.) (600; 95-$1.25)—"Fear and Desire" (Burstyn). Nice $7,500 for first week ended Monday (6). Continues indef.

Holiday (Per-Rose) (950; 60-$1.20)—"Lady Wants Mink" (Rep). First frame ending Friday (10) looks to hit hotsy $12,000. Holds, of course. In ahead, "Thunderbirds" (Rep) (3d wk-10 days), okay $11,000, and finishing strong extended-run engagement, one of best here.

Mayfair (Brandt) (1,736; 70-$1.80)—"Jeopardy" (M-G) (2d wk). Initial stanza ended Sunday (5) was fine $21,000. In ahead, "Above and Beyond" (M-G) (8th wk-10 days), okay $19,500, concluding one of best longruns here in months.

Normandie (Normandie Theatres) (592; 95-$1.80) — "Murder Will Out" (Indie). This British pic returns house to first-run policy with a bang. Looks to reach smash $13,000 or near in first week ending next Friday (10) night. In for longrun. Last week, on subsequent-run policy. Fine reviews helped "Murder."

Palace (RKO) (1,700; $1.80-$6)— Danny Kaye and all-vaude bill (12th wk). The 11th round ended last Saturday (4) was huge $52,000 after $50,500 for 10th week. Now due to wind up this bill April 26.

Paramount (Par) (3,664; 80-$1.80)—"I Confess" (WB) with Patti Page, Jerry Wald orch, Bobby Sargent topping stage bill (3d-final wk). Holding nicely with $51,000 in shortened final round of 5½ days. Second week was $60,000. "House of Wax" (WB), first 3-D pic to play house and initial three-dimensional film of such calibre to play a deluxe N. Y. combo theatre, opens Friday (10) after special press preview (open to public) tomorrow (Thurs.) night. Final showing of "Confess" and current stageshow starts at 3:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Paris (Indie) (568; $1.25-$1.80)— "Hans C. Andersen" (RKO) (20th wk). The 19th round ended Monday (6) climbed to $6,600 after $6,100 for 18th week.

Rivoli (UAT) (2,092; 95-$2)— "Salome" (Col) (3d wk). Second session ended last night (Tues.) held at terrific $60,000 or near. First week was $62,000.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (5,945; 90-$2.40)—"By Light of Silvery Moon" (WB) and Easter stageshow (2d wk). Initial holdover round ending today (Wed.) is soaring to gigantic $173,000, best here in many weeks. Stays, natch! First week was $136,000. Extra shows starting over the past weekend, with doors open at 7:45 a.m., helping to get this money. Mezzanine seats sold for morning shows aided. Saturday (4) was one of biggest days in history of Hall.

Roxy (20th) (5,886; 50-$2.20)— "Call Me Madam" (20th) with iceshow onstage (3d wk). Second round ended last night (Tues.) climbed ahead of initial week to smash $120,000. Opening week was $101,000, ahead of expectancy, with Tuesday (31) much bigger than hoped for.

State (Loew's) (3,450; 85-$1.80)— "Naked Spur" (M-G) (2d wk-8 days). Held at fancy $21,500 after fine $22,000 opening week. "I Love Melvin" (M-G) opens tomorrow (Thurs.).

Sutton (R&B) (561; 90-$1.50)— "Penny Princess" (U) (3d wk). Initial holdover session ended Monday (6) slipped to $5,000 after good $7,500 opener, but below hopes.

Trans-Lux 60th St. (T-L) (453; 90-$1.50)—"Justice Is Done" (Burstyn) (6th wk). Fifth round ended Sunday (5) pushed up to socko $6,500 after $5,500 for fourth week.

Trans-Lux 52nd St. (T-L) (540; 90-$1.50)—"Lili" (M-G) (5th wk). Fourth session ended Monday (6) continued smash with $13,200 after $13,700 for third week.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,060; 95-$1.80)—"Little Sheba" (Par) (16th wk). The 15th round ended yesterday (Tues.) pushed up to great $17,500 after $15,500 for 14th week. Stays on.

3-D Service Co.

Hollywood, April 7.

New three-dimensional servicing company, Tru-Stereo Corp., has been organized here with Al Zimbalist as president and chairman of the board.

Firm will make the Tru-Stereo process, camera and technical crews available to indie producers. Zimbalist recently produced "Robot Monster," first picture to make use of this system.

BIG?

It's

TITANIC

TITANIC
IN EMOTION!
TITANIC
IN SPECTACLE!
TITANIC
IN CAST!
TITANIC
IN CLIMAX!

COMING YOUR WAY IN MAY!...

Date it now! Get in on 300-theatre day-and-date saturation May 13th . . . pre-sold by tremendous news-making "Operation Titanic" showmanship promotion April 11-12 at Norfolk Naval Base . . . and triple TV barrage via Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" April 19, May 3, May 10!

THERE'S NO BUSINESS LIKE 20th CENTURY-FOX BUSINESS!

20th Century-Fox presents "TITANIC" starring Clifton WEBB • Barbara STANWYCK • co-starring ROBERT WAGNER • AUDREY DALTON • THELMA RITTER with Brian Aherne, Richard Basehart, Allyn Joslyn, James Todd, Frances Bergen, William Johnstone. Produced by CHARLES BRACKETT. Directed by JEAN NEGULESCO. Written by CHARLES BRACKETT, WALTER REISCH, RICHARD BREEN

Number of Yank Pix Allowed Into Japan This Year Likely To Be Cut

Tokyo, April 7.

The $3,500,000 allocated by the Japanese government, March 31, for foreign film spending during the first half of the 1953 fiscal year has been divided among the dollar, sterling and open account areas as follows: dollar area, $2,990,000; sterling, $322,000; open accounts, $188,000. This is a switch from last year's policy of awarding import licenses to individual countries.

Another talk between Irving Maas, Motion Picture Assn. of America veepee, and Finance Ministry officials is expected shortly when the two remaining problems holding up final allocations of film import licenses will be thrashed out. These problems include the number of films per area and the rate of royalty remittance, and hinge on the final decision on disposition of yen accumulated by foreign distributors.

After four sessions, the Maas-Finance Ministry huddles remained stymied with Maas insisting on a substantial increase in remittance rates from the current 30% in order to forestall further accumulation of yen and the Finance Ministry holding to its contention that the present foreign currency situation in Japan prevents such increase.

Some observers here see the $500,000 increase in film funds over the last year as a step taken in anticipation of increased boxoffice receipts expected from the Jan. 1 reduction in admission taxes. Others see it as a means to meet the growth of accumulated yen. Neither side expects any increase in the 30% remittance rate.

New system is expected to reduce the number of U. S. pix imported to Japan at the expense of a gain in British films since the only important producer in the sterling bloc is Britain.

U. S. producers may have to share dollar area allocations with the Soviet, the only other country in the dollar area seriously concerned with exporting to Japan and producing enough films to offer numerical competition. Some observers expect U. S. film makers to lose as many as 50 import licenses this year from last year's 152.

FESTIVAL BALLET MAY VISIT N.Y. AFTER CAN.

London, April 7.

The Festival Ballet, under the direction of and starring Anton Dolin, will tour Canada this spring. Ballet opens in Montreal June 4, for one week, with Toronto to follow, also for a week's stand. Ballet then returns to England, to open July 1 for a 10-week season at Festival Hall.

Its local agent, M. Mitchell, left for New York to negotiate a Broadway visit of the troupe either late fall or early next year. It might even visit N. Y. briefly after its Canadian dates.

Mitchell is also interested in booking attractions for London niteries, including the Cafe de Paris, and is taking with him an English musical to sell for Broadway.

Touchard Exits Comedie; Descaves Replacing

Paris, April 7.

Pierre-Aime Touchard exited as director of the two state-subsidized legit rep houses here, the Comedie-Francaise, April 2. Touchard took over the staid old house April 5, 1947. Pierre Descaves succeeds him.

Touchard added Shakespeare to the rep of the C-F with top productions of "Othello," "A Winter's Tale," "As You Like It" and "Romeo And Juliet." He also helped build up the weak sister branch of the C-F on the Left Bank, the Salle Luxembourg, Richilieu.

Descaves comes in with two new productions already on the calendar, Andre Obey's "Une Fille Pour Du Vent" and a reprise of Prosper Merimee's "La Carrosse De Saint Sacrement" with Maria Cesares. Both will be directed by Julien Bertheau.

Lack of Specs to Delay Aussie Preem of 'Bwana'

Sydney, March 31.

Shortage of Polaroid viewing glasses for Natural Vision is seen as possibly delaying Easter debut of "Bwana Devil" at Hoyts' Plaza, according to those behind the first major Aussie 3-D bid. Understood that the Polaroid company will shoot glasses across to its British unit for fitting into frames, which in turn will plane the finished product to this zone.

Move is to overcome the problem of dollars from here to the parent company, understanding being that Aussie Treasury officials will not okay heavy dollar outflow because of current monetary restrictions. The British route, however, looks okay for specs' importation.

Jury Selecting Entries To Compete at Cannes Film Fete, April 15-29

Cannes, April 7.

With the Cannes International Film Festival due to open April 15 (continues until April 29) the 18 members of the jury chosen by the French government, with Jean Cocteau as prexy, are now making selection of the films to represent the various nations. This selecting is being done to get topflight programs for the 14 gala night performances for the press and general public. It is figured that this may lure more cash customers and help reduce the financial outlay of the fete.

In another move to encourage public interest, the committee has asked all the participating nations and film companies to invite their leading stars to visit Cannes during the show. Among the American stars who have accepted invitations to attend are Olivia de Havilland, Charles Boyer, Kirk Douglas, Arlene Dahl, Ginger Rogers, Lana Turner and Fernando Lamas.

The incomplete list of films submitted for selection follows: Argentine: "Sala de Guardia"; Austria: "April 1st, Year 2,000" and "Maitres d'Aujourd'hui"; Belgium: "Bongolo" and "Marionette of Toone"; Burma: "Our Burma"; Brazil: "O Cangaceiro"; Canada: "Country of Days Without End," "L'Abatis" and "Sports and Transports"; Finland: "The White Reindeer"; France: "Le Salaire de la Peur," "Les Vacances de M. Hulot" and "Horizons Sans Fin"; Great Britain: "Heart of Matter," "Figurehead," "Royal Heritage," "Glory of Renoir" and "Stranger Left No Card"; Holland: "Hoven 20" and "Vincent Van Gogh"; India: "Awara," "Great Experiment," "New Lands for Old" and "Kumaon Hills"; Indonesia: "Voyage to Bali".

Italy: "Stazioni Termini," "La Provinciale," "Magia Verde," "Montagne di Cenera," "Cristalli," "Il Pantano," "Immagini e Colore" and "Percatori di Laguna"; Japan: "Legend of Buddha," "Those of Today," "The Children of Hiroshima," "Art Momoyama" and "The Whale"; Luxemburg:: "Luxemburg and its Industry"; Mexico: "Las Tres Perfectas Casadas," "El" "La Red" and "La Peinture Murale"; Morocco: "Salut Casa"; Peru: "Macchu Picchu" and "Castilla Soldado de la Ley"; South Africa: "Survivants of Stone Age"; Spain: "Flamenco," "Welcome Mr. Marshall" and "Dona Francisquita"; Sweden: "Barabbas," "Pour les Ardentes Amours de ma Jeunesse," "The Spring" and "Doderhultarn"; Switzerland: "Our Village" and "Pylone 138"; Tunis: "Le Voyage d'Abdallah"; U. S.: "Call Me Madam," "Little Sheba," "Peter Pan," "Lily and now Miguel" and "Water Birds"; Venezuela: "Light on the Land"; Yugoslavia: "Equinoxe" and "Dubrovnik."

Jennifer Jones in Italo Entry

Rome, April 7.

Of the Italo entries at the Cannes Film Fete, "Terminal Station" is a Jennifer Jones-Montgomery Clift starrer directed by Vittorio De Sica. It opened in key Italian cities Saturday (4).

'Boccaccio' Set For Vienna Music Festival

Vienna, March 31.

The title part of the operetta, "Boccaccio," by Franz von Suppe, will be given 11 nights on the floating stage of Lake Constance at Bregenz, Vorarlberg, at the festivals, July 25-Aug. 16. Hans Beirer, of the Vienna State Opera, will sing the leading role while Esther Rethy will be the leading lady.

Friedrich Schillers' drama, "Die Verschwoerung des Fiesco zu Genua," will be produced by Josef Gielen with an all-star cast of the Vienna Burg Theatre for the fetes. Clemens Krauss and Andreae will conduct symphonic music while a ballet evening has been added to the program.

Buenos Aires Pix B.O. Still Lags

Buenos Aires, March 31.

Grosses during the first two weeks of March do not compare very favorably with those for the corresponding period a year ago, and holdovers also are getting much shorter runs. The weather is cooler, but the start of the fall season found sunny skies which made the lure of the outdoors still a factor with which exhibs had to contend.

But biz may become brighter shortly because a number of major releases, chiefly "Father's Little Dividend" (M-G), at the Opera and Roca; and RKO's "My Forbidden Past" at the Monumental, are coming out. Metro released "The Sun Comes Up" at the Premier and Suipacha, and Paramount "My Favorite Spy" at the Broadway and Luxor.

"Camille" (Sono) has been held over for a sixth week at the Gran Rex, having grossed $74,260 in the first five weeks, satisfactory but not startling. This company now has "The Count of Monte Cristo" running at the Ocean.

"The Secret of Mayerling" (Independiente), a French production directed by Jean Delanoy, held for three weeks at the Opera, grossing $33,120. "Wabash Avenue" (Fox) at the Ocean, held for 5 weeks with a gross of $45,137 in the first four. "Kon-Tiki" (RKO) grossed $31,567 in the first two sessions of a four-week run.

SCOTTISH LEGIT BIZ IS TURNING LIVELY

Edinburgh, March 31.

Scotland's legit season is lively, with many new plays produced or in the offing. New play about Mary Queen of Scots, "Fotheringay," by Scot playwright George Scott Moncrieff, is set to preem here during the forthcoming International Festival.

Glasgow and Edinburgh dramagoers have been flocking to see Mary Hayley Bell's new piece, "The Uninvited Guest," starring John Mills, Joan Greenwood and Cathleen Nesbitt. It is presented by Henry Sherek.

Glasgow Citizens Theatre is registering good business with new comedy by Robert Kemp, "What the Stars Foretell." Plays lined up at this legit house include a new comedy, "The World's Wonder," by Alexander Reid, and a Miles Malleson adaptation of Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

Legit season will get further uplift at the Edinburgh Festival with a world preem of new T. S. Eliot play, "The Confidential Clerk." It will star Margaret Leighton and Denholm Elliot.

Italy's First 3-D Film Prod.

Rome, March 31.

First three-D short, intended for commercial distribution, to be made in Italy has been completed by Guido Guerrasio. Color documentary, titled "Rhythm in Three," was shot in the Italian Alps. Previous local dimensional work was confined to some experimental shorts made some years ago but never exploited.

First announced feature pic to be shot here using both 3-D and normal techniques will be Lux Film's "Ulysses" (formerly called "Odyssey"), which G. W. Pabst will direct with Kirk Douglas and Silvana Mangano in leads. Skedded to roll April 25.

West End Soars; 'Sea' Wow $13,500, 'Bwana' 13G, 'Rouge' 12G, Both Sock In 2d Wks., 'Legion' Lusty 7½G, 2d

London, March 31.

With three big winners currently on pre-release, there was a general air of prosperity at West End theatres last week. Aided by continued good weather, the big crowds recalled some of postwar lush days.

The three smash hits which have been setting the pace are "Bwana Devil," the Ealing naval epic "The Cruel Sea" and "Moulin Rouge." The United Artists' 3-D feature, "Devil" which opened day-date in London and three provincial centres, did a smash opening frame at Odeon, Marble Arch. It still is sock $13,000 in second week. "Sea" at Leicester Square Theatre is set for a giant $13,500 in first week. "Rouge," continues to play to near-capacity, second round being smash $12,000—at the Carlton.

The improved level of biz also was reflected in other first-runs. The Empire, which is preeming "Never Let Me Go" and Metroscopix, on first stanza was solid $16,000 while Universal's "Desert Legion" was sock $7,500 in its second London Pavilion week—after great opener.

Estimates for Last Week.

Carlton (Par) (1,128; 70-$2.15)—"Moulin Rouge" (IFD) (2d wk). Holding up in great shape and playing mainly to turnaway biz. This British-made opus was boffo $12,000 in second frame.

Empire (M-G) (3,099; 55-$1.70)—"Never Let Me Go" (M-G) and Metroscopix (M-G) (2d wk). Exploiting current 3-D trend, this double bill is giving Metro showcase one of its best sessions since beginning of year. Holding at pleasing $14,000 after $16,000 opener. Stays on.

Gaumont (CMA) (1,500; 50-$1.70)—"Desperate Moment" (GFD) (2d wk). Disappointing with only moderate $5,100 first frame; second week is lean $4,000 or near.

Leicester Square Theatre (CMA) (1,753; 50-$1.70)—"Cruel Sea" (GFD) (1st wk). Proving to be one of best bets in theatre's history. Hit a mammoth $5,900 in first three days, first frame should be huge $13,500. Stays, natch!

London Pavilion (UA) (1,217; 50-$1.70)—"Desert Legion" (U) (2d wk). Another big money maker with sock $7,500 for second frame after $9,200 opening week. "Final Test" (GFD) preems April 10.

Odeon, Leicester Square (CMA) (2,200; 50-$1.70)—"Street Corner" (GFD) (3d wk). Below hopes with around $5,000 in third stanza after $5,500 in second. "Grand National Night" (Renown) opens April 2.

Odeon, Marble Arch (CMA) (2,200; 50-$1.70)—"Bwana Devil" (UA) (2d wk). Unaffected by all-around crix panning, 3-D feature has exceeded expectations. Opening week grossed powerful $16,000 and is expected to near $13,000 in its second frame. Polaroid viewer losses are 75%. Continues on.

Plaza (Par) (1,902; 70-$1.70)—"Stars Are Singing" (Par). Despite strong advance campaign looks only light $6,200. Stays a second with "War of Worlds" (Par) opening April 3.

Ritz (M-G) (432; 90-$2.15)—"Quo Vadis" (M-G) (50th wk). No letup with a pleasing $3,200. Continues on.

Warner (WB) (1,735; 50-$1.70)—"Stop You're Killing Me" (WB) (2d wk). Mild $5,000 after $5,600 in first week. "Miracle of Fatima" (WB) preems April 2.

Shea's Hipp in Toronto To Be Razed for Park

Toronto, March 31.

One-time top citadel of vaudeville here, Shea's Hippodrome, the 2,386-seater built by the late Mike and Jerry Shea (brothers) in 1915, is to be torn down in the plans for a new civic square, with the estate prepared to accept a $465,000 expropriation settlement for the building and land.

Ornate structure, in the oldtime architectural motif of the golden days of vaude, is currently leased to Famous Players (Canadian) as a first-run film house. In addition, civic appraisers have set the value on Shea's Hippodrome equipment at $221,904 on a replacement basis.

New Film Era for Mex Under Prexy Cortines Seen by Distrib Karol

Administration of Adolfo Ruiz Cortines, who became president of Mexica last December, has touched off a new era for that country's film industry. That's the opinion of William Karol, general rep in Europe, Near East and North Africa for Peliculas Maxicanas, one of that nation's largest producing organization.

The Cortines government, Karol recalled in N. Y. this week, holds that not only can national production be helped by legislation, but that the best road toward improvement is to produce better pictures.

Karol, who sails for Europe today (Wed.) on the Queen Elizabeth after three months in Mexico City, emphasized that the Cortines administration has given the native industry a further lift through appointments of "two capable men." They are Lao de la Rea, as general director of the film industry, and Eduardo Garduno, (who also heads Peliculas), in a similar capacity with the Banco National Cinematografico. Both de la Rea and Garduno reportedly are firmly committed to enhancing the position of the Mexican film in the international market through fostering co-production with European companies.

Another step designed to push Mexico's picture wares in overseas mart, Karol revealed, is a movement to arrange an international film festival in Mexico City in December, 1954.

First Franco-Mexican co-prod is now before the cameras. Tagged "Les Orguielleux," it stars Michele Morgan and Gerard Philipe.

The Mexican industry is "greatly interested" in 3-D, Karol said. "I believe it is best," he added, "to adopt a 'wait-and-see' attitude—let others do the experimenting. I saw 3-D in Vienna 32 years ago, and there is nothing basically new in the medium. The public will balk at wearing glasses after the novelty wears off."

Govt. Nationalized Biz Pix May Lose Eady Coin

London, April 7.

Films sponsored by government nationalized industries, which qualify for quota, are likely to lose their share of the Eady coin which they have been quietly collecting during the past years. A proposal to this effect is due for consideration at a meeting of the four trade associations which operate the distribution of the Eady subsidy.

It is suggested, however, that industry-sponsored films, including those sometimes made on a 50-50 basis with a production unit, should continue to draw their Eady tribute despite opposition being voiced by ordinary commercial producers.

Although the amount of levy paid over for sponsored films is comparatively small because of their limited playdates, producers are objecting to the fact that some of them qualify for their share, as do shorts, on the basis of two-and-a-half times their gross.

Nip '52 Tourist Biz Up; Spending Soars

Tokyo, March 31.

Tourism in Japan improved in 1952, according to figures released by the tourism section of the Transportation Ministry. Exactly 64,453 foreigners spent $21,244,207 in this country during the year.

Of the total, 26,766 came to stay for some time in the country, while 36,687 were transients. The number of visitors topped 1951 by 4%.

Of the total amount spent by foreign visitors, $21,088,878 came out of the pockets of sojourning persons which was 43% more than in 1951 while $155,329 was spent by transients, showing an 11% increase over the previous year.

BURN THE MORTGAGE!

Here comes the HOTTEST GABLE GOLD-MINE in YEARS!

M-G-M's "NEVER LET ME GO"

"SURE-FIRE B.O." —says VARIETY

Launched to the nation in BIG campaign starting with telecast on ED SULLIVAN'S top-rated "TOAST OF THE TOWN" over CBS-TV. 26 million fans will see thrills from the picture in their homes. Watch the trade press for details of M-G-M showmanship behind a great showman attraction.

M-G-M presents

CLARK GABLE · GENE TIERNEY

in

"NEVER LET ME GO"

with RICHARD HAYDN

Screen Play by RONALD MILLAR and GEORGE FROESCHEL

Adapted From the Novel "Came the Dawn" by Roger Bax

Directed by DELMER DAVES • Produced by CLARENCE BROWN

ABOVE: Fan ad (part of big campaign) shows theme of promotion "Gable and his captive bride."

Inside Stuff—Pictures

"For the first time," writes labor columnist Victor Riesel in the N. Y. Daily Mirror, "we're actually taking from the Communist side the glamorous actors, writers and cultural leaders . . ." Riesel gives credit for the trend to AFL Hollywood stars, producers, directors and technical craftsman. He notes that such film celebrities as Gene Kelly, John Huston, Humphrey Bogart and others now shooting films abroad are playing a large part in the offensive. Working through the AFL's Paris office, Riesel discloses that the U. S. group's first big pitch will be a Parisian demonstration featuring Kelly, Huston and Bogart. "To this rally," the labor writer states, "will be invited French pic stars and writers who have innocently been caught up in covert Communist maneuvers, just as some of our Hollywood artists were snared in the '30s."

"These French creative people," Riesel continues, "will, for the first time, get a new slant on America from their own kind of professional talent, talking to them as members of trade unions (which the Continentals respect highly) on the fight against the Communists in Hollywood. This task has been assigned to hoofer-director Gene Kelly."

Riesel states that there is also a parallel activity in the United States. All U. S. unions having anything to do with films, he says, are being approached by labor men who want to start an International Alliance of Film Labor. He asserts that this group plans an international conference—"out of which may come, along with other strategems, a world boycott of Communist films."

Union Demands

Continued from page 7

fusing to grant wage hikes. Unions' contention is that all the filmeries, excepting RKO Pictures, have shown profits and are paying good stockholder dividends. Based on the current cost of living, unions stress their members are entitled to boosts. Companies, on the other hand, cite the wavering b.o. and claim inability to grant hikes at this time.

Impasse Reached

Negotiations between distribs and exchange workers, both white-collarites and backroom help (shippers, editors, etc.) have reached an impasse. For the first time since 1946, these talks are being conducted on an individual basis with teams of distrib reps holding confabs with local union officials in the different exchange zones. Not a single pact has been inked to date, although negotiations have been taking place since last November, expiration date of the former two-year pact. Exchange outfits, affiliated with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, charge that film companies have given a flat "no" to all demands, countering only with a proposal for a renewal of the present contract for another two years.

In several areas, including New York, both the front and backroom employees have appealed to IA prexy Richard Walsh for the parent body to either enter the negotiations or to grant strike permission. Before committing the IA, Walsh has written each local requesting that a new attempt be made to work out a satisfactory agreement with the filmeries. Acting on Walsh's suggestion, several locals have already wired the distrib negotiating team, headed by F. T. Murray of Universal, requesting that a new meeting date be set. Unions are currently awaiting replies to these wires. Exchange unions are asking for a two-year pact with a pay hike plus a wage reopening provision after the first year. In some instances, Federal mediation of the deadlock is being weighed.

N. Y. Stalemate

In New York, a serious stalemate exists between Projectionists Local 306, IATSE, and the major metropolitan area chains who are holding joint negotiations with the ops of Broadway houses. Talks have been dragging since last September, with neither side showing any indication of yielding to the demands of the other. Boothmen are demanding an approximate 15% boost. Circuits, citing declining b.o., are countering this with a proposal that the number of projectionists manning the booths be reduced by one.

A Loew or RKO house, for example, currently employs six projectionists at $86.50 weekly. By reducing the booth crew to five and maintaining the overall boost cost, theatremen point out that each individual projectionist would receive $103.80 weekly. Should the union continue fighting this demand, it's indicated that the theatres, as a means for reducing the manpower, will press for the retirement of projectionists over 65 plus a stipulation that in the event of deaths no replacements be made. Union, citing the number of unemployed within its ranks, has given notice it will fight every demand calling for watered-down booths. It's expected that prexy Walsh will also be summoned to take part in these talks.

Louis Frohlich

Continued from page 2

& Frohlich and was named counsel for ASCAP.

His main assignment then was to fight the series of anti-ASCAP laws which were being introduced in various state legislatures to outlaw the Society's collection activities. Such legislation was introduced in over 30 states and Frohlich fought them at the hearings and subsequently appealed several such laws before the Supreme Court, where they were declared unconstitutional.

Frohlich also handled ASCAP's side in the antitrust case brought by the Government against the Society and which resulted in the two consent decrees of 1941 and 1950. About 10 years ago, Herman Finkelstein, a lawyer who worked in the Schwartz & Frohlich office, was transferred to ASCAP as resident counsel and later named general counsel.

Frohlich also saw films' transition from an industry run by business executives to one held in close rein by the courts and whose policies came to be often dictated by lawyers. Frohlich acted as litigation rep for Columbia Pictures during the eight principal film outfits' antitrust bout with the Dept. of Justice, which went on and off for a total of 13 years.

Intimately acquainted with all aspects of the film trade, Frohlich handled the legalistics for a variety of other interests, including Fabian Theatres, Alexander Korda Productions and numerous individuals.

ASCAP closed its offices Friday (3) when Frohlich's funeral services were held at the Park West Memorial Chapel, N. Y.

Survivors are his widow and two sons, Richard, public relations staffer for ASCAP, and Everett, a member of the Schwartz & Frohlich firm. Also, there are three brothers and one sister, Mrs. Samuel Fried, whose husband died of a heart attack the day before Frohlich's funeral.

Yates Sees

Continued from page 5

replied, "one or two complained but we pay no attention to these complaints at all . . . in fact many exhibitors today own stations to which we're selling."

Yates implied that the exhibs would do better to cut down on their overhead and "give us more for our pictures." For, he emphasized, "if we don't supply television they're going to make their own pictures—TV and Hollywood have to work together." Taking another poke at theatremen, the Rep topper charged "exhibitors will never give you an even break . . . they made more on Republic than on any other company because we were small."

In one instance of a heated exchange, a proxy holder, who said he represented a couple of California stockholders, asserted that Rep pictures in which Vera Ralston (Mrs. Yates) has starred caused the company severe losses.

Yates, who presided at the meet, shot back: "They claim it, but they don't know it." The star isn't the thing, he added, "it's the story. Moreover, their statement is incorrect to begin with—because they don't know if her films lost money. It takes 10 years to liquidate a picture."

Upon Lawton's request that a breakdown of monetary gains or losses on Miss Ralston's films be provided, Yates refused. "We don't think it's good business to tell you," he said. "No other company in the business would give you that information."

In the course of the one-hour meet attended by some 35 individuals five directors were overwhelmingly elected for a term of three years. They are: Arthur J. Miller, Rep veepee; Harry C. Mills, a J. C. Penney Co. exec; John J. O'Connell, prez of Consolidated Molded Products Corp. (a Rep subsid); Leon A. Swirbul, head of Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., and Walter L. Titus, Jr., a Rep veepee.

Rep's 345G 13-wk. Net

At a board conclave, following the stockholders meet, J. Yates was reelected president. Other officers named include Walter L. Titus, Jr., John J. O'Connell and Arthur J. Miller, veepees; John Petrauskas, Jr., treasurer; Joseph E. McMahon, secretary.

Republic yesterday (Tues.) reported net profit at $345,423 for the 13 weeks ended Jan. 24, 1953. Figure compares with $186,977 for the corresponding 1952 period.

COMPO

Continued from page 4

posite of reports on the biz conveyed to lawmakers across the country by theatremen aligned with COMPO in the tax fight. Particularly riling COMPO is the fact that the Brandt statement, since it appeared in such an influential paper as the Times, almost certainly figures to be noted by members of the House Ways and Means Committee when the theatre tax move comes up.

Inconsistencies

COMPO reps say they can easily point up inconsistencies in the Brandt statement. But convincing the Congressional Committee of flaws in the circuit owner's sizeup of theatre business means still another job to accomplish in an already tough struggle. On one count particularly, it's underlined, tax collection figures covering any recent period would contradict Brandt's stated 25% gain in receipts.

Why Brandt made the statement to the Times in the first place also is stirring conjecture. There's some suspicion that he might have been partly motivated by a desire to negotiate new mortgages, or possibly sell a couple of houses with, in either case, his bargaining position enhanced by an aura of prosperity for theatre business.

It was during last week's hearings, conducted on the Coast by the Senate Small Business subcommittee, that several theatremen pinned the blame for exhibs' financial distress on the distribs.

Exhibs Losing

Continued from page 4

raised, from 51c to 81c, the price at which the state's 10% tax on amusement tickets begin to apply.

Bill was designed to help theatres in their adjustment to the more expensive 3-D operation, it was said.

Twin Cities Tix Up

Minneapolis, April 7.

Admission prices increased over the week-end in Paramount's Twin Cities downtown first-run theatres for the first time in four years. Boost was from 50-76c to 65-85c, with the top figure prevailing for adults after 5 p.m.

Previously, Paramount had tilted children's admissions here from 12c to 20c and over its entire northwest circuit from a nickel to a dime more for adults. RKO Theatres' three Twin Cities' houses and the independent St. Paul World are expected to follow Paramount's lead. Ben Berger's local first-run Gopher falls in line tomorrow (Thurs.). The local indie World raised to a $1 top several months ago.

'Punchy' Met Winds 68th Year

Continued from page 2

the Met's first Negro lead performer, in ballerina Janet Collins, or as exciting as a Kirsten Flagstad making a Met farewell in "Alcestis."

This really wasn't an exciting season. Probably the outstanding event was the revival of "Boris Godunov" in the Moussorgsky original, which was a first-rank achievement. "Rake's Progress," first new work in general manager Rudolf Bing's three-year tenure, created quite a pre-premiere stir, but didn't score an artistic or b.o. success.

Bing In Solid

Bing, finishing up the final season of his first three-year pact, solidified himself with management and public, and got a new three-year contract in mid-season. During this tenure, he revivified the Met, bringing in directors from outside (from legit, mainly) to pep up productions theatrically. He added a few good singers to the roster (George London, Hilde Gueden, Victoria de los Angeles, Roberta Peters, Fedora Barbieri, and Cesare Siepi chiefly), so that the singing has been as high at the Met as it's been since the Golden Days of Opera. On the other hand, Bing has been guilty of gross miscastings on a half-dozen productions.

The Met contributed two special productions of operas to TV, in "Fledermaus" and "Boheme," which were not only outstanding opera events, but among the best things on CBS-TV's "Omnibus" series. The theatre teeveeing of "Carmen" from the opera house was another noteworthy event.

The Met signed Pierre Monteux and George Szell, two distinguished symphonic maestros, to its conducting list for next year. On the other hand, it lost its top maestro, Fritz Reiner, who will head the Chicago Symphony next season.

Season's opener last November, "La Forza," was a fine event, artistically, boxoffice and newswise. Its 60G gross was an alltime record. The "Madame Butterfly," with Victoria de los Angeles, was good; so were this season's "Rigoletto," "Meistersinger" and "Don Carlo." Dorothy Kirsten's debut in "Tosca" was a flop, with the production second-rate; the singer took quite a panning from the press. The Rise Stevens "Carmen," praised by the N. Y. Times' Olin Downes last season, was rapped by him this year, first in his review and again in his Sunday followup. Margaret Harshaw's debut as Isolde wasn't impressive, and "Tristan and Isolde" on the whole was just so-so.

'Worst' Performances

Downes also panned this season's "Rosenkavalier," which the vet critic described as "having the distinction of being the worst performance of this opera that the writer has experienced." Femme lead Astrid Varnay was "one of the masterly miscastings of the occasion." And Reiner conducted "clearly, cleanly, and as if he had given up." On the other hand, the Herald Trib's Francis Perkins called it "one of the season's memorable evenings."

The first "Don Giovanni" was bad, and femme lead Delia Rigal was hissed not once, but twice by some in the audience—an instance rare indeed at the Met. (A subsequent "Giovanni," with London in for the first time, on the other hand, was a good production).

The Howard Dietz English version of "La Boheme," which this reporter strongly liked, got a mixed press, the libretto being rapped as too Broadwayish. But it was on the more traditional Italian "Boheme," a week or so later, that the boys went to town. Especially for the Musetta portrayal of Regina Resnik. The Herald Trib's Virgil Thomson called her a "steam-calliope" Musetta; the Post's Harriett Johnson tabbed it a "borscht-circuit" Musetta. Downes was just as rough, although more elegant.

'Huckster's Pitch'

The Met also came in for raps two weeks ago when it interrupted a "Tristan" broadcast one Saturday afternoon to make a pitch for its public fund drive. There were hisses and boos from the house audience, while subsequent letters to the editor from radio listeners denounced the instance as "the height of bad taste" and "the cheapest kind of publicity." The Times' music ed, Howard Taubman, in a followup, called it "a low-grade huckster's pitch."

A little punchy, perhaps, but resigned, the Met preps for its annual spring tour. This will start Sunday (12), and run seven weeks, with prospects of hitting a $1,350,000 gross, the highest tour take yet.

The Met, which raised its top to $8 for last fall, doesn't intend to raise its top further for next season, despite constantly increasing costs of operation. Although its fund drive won't reach anywhere near its goal, the Met is going ahead this summer with some facelifting, rearranging its seating to add to the capacity, which ought to increase the annual N. Y. take by $100,000.

WB and RKO

Continued from page 1

and a live scene from "The Man Who Came to Dinner," which Moss Hart and wife Kitty Carlisle wanted to do for Sullivan's Hart tele biography. This now opens the way for the "Moss Hart story" on Sullivan's TVer.

The first RKO property set for "Toast" is Rosalind Russell's "Never Wave at a Wac," date to be set. Miss Russell is currently starred in "Wonderful Town."

With WB and RKO added to 20th-Fox and Metro, Sullivan now has the opportunity to select one major film release a week from each company for clip presentation on his TV show.

Due in May on the program are two more Sullivan biographies of filmmakers—David O. Selznick and Cecil B. DeMille.

DeMille on 'Toast'

Hollywood, April 7.

Cecil B. DeMille is due in N. Y. from the Coast the last week in April to work with Ed Sullivan on plans for the latter's May 3 "Toast of the Town" TV show, which focuses on the producer and the pix he's made over the years.

Clips from about 15 DeMille productions will be televised, dating back to "King of Kings."

Pitt's Vogue

Continued from page 1

make it until yesterday (Mon.), so that was out.

Finally Vogue Terrace settled for Kitty Kallen. It wasn't an hour after she was set before Bertera and Claire were long-distanced and informed that Lisa Kirk had cancelled out on the Arthur Murray teevee show Sunday (5) and Miss Kallen was going on in her place, and latter wouldn't be able to open here the day before since there were rehearsals, etc., for the program. By this time, Bertera and Claire were at their wit's end and gave up. They okayed Miss Kallen to open yesterday for the week and forgot about the Easter weekend, putting in just a few standard acts to carry-through.

Miss Lamour's illness gave Bertera and Claire the worst aspirin binge they've ever had. It cost them a million-dollar plug, too, since Miss Lamour had announced on "The All Star Revue" with Ben Blue the night before the mumps felled her that she was opening the following Saturday at the Vogue Terrace.

Cinerama

Continued from page 7

York. Mrs. Sheean contacts the orgs, sets up the dates, and clears ticket availabilities with Robert Ward, manager of the Broadway Theatre. Policy is not to allow discounts of any sort.

Meanwhile, Cinerama is prepping for its Coast opening on April 30. The demand for tix is so heavy that the cashier staff has been doubled to eight. Joseph Kaufman, outfit's exhibition director, is due on the Coast from New York shortly to finalize arrangements. Cinerama homeoffice brass are expected to be on hand for the L.A. preem. With three openings a month planned after June, outfit is working on deals for new showcases, with Pittsburgh, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago and Dallas seen as the next additions to the circuit.

ON MAY 25TH... from U-I!

All the boxoffice power of today's most sensational kind of picture– doubled in impact by the plus-thrills of 3-D!

Starring

RICHARD CARLSON · BARBARA RUSH
RUSSELL JOHNSON · KATHLEEN HUGHES

Directed by JACK ARNOLD • Screenplay by HARRY ESSEX • Produced by Universal International

"IT CAME FROM OUTER SPACE"
in
3-DIMENSION
Filmed in scientifically perfected eye-resting FULL-SEPIA Mono-Color!
Also...AVAILABLE FOR RELEASE WEEK of MAY 25th
The FIRST 3-D MUSICAL SHORT SUBJECT FROM A MAJOR STUDIO.
starring NAT "KING" COLE
RUSS MORGAN'S ORCH.
A UNIVERSAL-INTERNATIONAL FEATURETTE
ith CHARLES DRAKE
JOSEPH SAWYER
WILLIAM ALLAND • A UNIVERSAL-INTERNATIONAL PICTURE

20th-Green Trade Blows

Continued from page 5

not interested in an exec position with 20th.

Zanuck issued a statement tracing the Green court action to a desire for reprisals because he and Skouras had refused to go along with him, and strongly endorsing Skouras as 20th prexy. Zanuck indicated he would not work with Green should the latter obtain control of the company.

Zanuck's Statement

"I am flattered that anyone should think me capable of exercising the duties of the presidency of a corporation as important as 20th-Fox," the Zanuck statement read. "However, it is difficult for me to understand why Mr. Green can find logical or justifiable reasons for unseating the present executive management of the corporation and in the same breath advocate me as his choice for the presidency."

Zanuck went on to say that he had been offered the 20th presidency once before, by Winthrop Aldrich, board chairman of Chase National Bank, and that he then had suggested Skouras for the job.

"I want to make it very clear that the opinion I held of Spyros Skouras at that time, I hold at the present time. It would be difficult for me to contemplate working effectively as vice-president in charge of production with anyone less experienced or qualified than Mr. Skouras."

Green's derivative stockholder's action was brought in N. Y. Supreme Court (2) in behalf of himself and Chalgren Associates, a copartnership, and Green Sales Co. Inc. Named as defendants were L. Sherman Adams, Robert L. Clarkson, Thomas J. Connors, Wilfred J. Eadie, Robert E. Hannegan, Daniel O. Hastings, Donald A. Henderson, Robert Lehman, William C. Michel, Murray Silverstone, Skouras, Zanuck, TCF Film Corp. and 20th Century-Fox Film Corp.

Complaint said plaintiffs own shares in 20th "with a market value in excess of $600,000," which confirms reports that Green himself holds about 40,000 shares. It's believed that, with his associates, he may hold about 100,000 shares, and that in case cumulative voting is retained, he could probably elect one and possibly two directors to the 20th board.

Strongly-worded statement handed out at the Green press confab cited "one-sided contractual benefits" of Skouras and Zanuck and called them an "outrageous and flagrant violation of the responsibilities of management to stockholders." Twentieth execs were quick to point out that Green was taking his time in complaining about the Skouras and Zanuck contracts. Skouras' 10-year deal is dated Jan. 2, 1951, while Zanuck pact goes back to Sept. 28, 1949, and runs for 20 years.

Green attacked 20th's move (a) in calling the special meeting to end cumulative voting, and (b) in convening it, too, at Wilmington "when there's a controversial issue at hand." Elimination of cumulative voting would be "a violation of the rights of stockholders," he declared. The regular stockholders meet is set for May 19 in N. Y.

Green declared that his group's stock control runs "into the millions" at cost, but refused to pinpoint the amount. He said there had been various suggestions, such as the Green faction taking four directors and Skouras five, with one neutral named, and, then, both parties getting five and the board being expanded by another five persons. This, said Green, fell through because Skouras allegedly wanted to name his five men. The last proposal involved a 13-man board, with Green getting five, including a banker and another person, and Skouras getting five.

In Green's version, nothing came of this either, with Skouras finally declaring he could not accept anyone now connected with Green. "There is no solution now but to go through with a proxy fight," Green declared.

Green indicated that, should he gain control, he would not object against Skouras and Zanuck continuing with the company as long as their policies were changed. Questioned on the type of economies he wanted instituted, Green commented that he thought there were many among the 20th employees who are "nothing more than parasites."

Details Shaky?

In presenting part of his case against the 20th-Fox management to the press last week (2), minority stockholder Charles Green proved himself a bit shaky on details. For instance, charging that 20th's Eidophor color theatre TV system was today "the forgotten man," he followed up by emphatically stating he understood Todd-AO has something very similar to Eidophor. He was corrected by reporters, but didn't appear entirely convinced even then.

Later, he recounted how 20th-prexy Spyros P. Skouras had told him how he had "run in" to Earl Sponable in Europe and how the latter had told him about CinemaScope. Green again was corrected by those present who pointed out that Sponable was a 20th employee and was hardly likely to have chance encounters with Skouras in Europe while working for the company.

Burma

Continued from page 2

play Burmese films exclusively, and the rest play American, British, Chinese and Japanese films.

With the exception of Universal, which sends films out to Rangoon to play concurrently with American release, and an occasional special from Paramount or Metro, American films play here only after they have finished their runs in India.

Usually films run for one week (all theatres change bills on Friday). "Quo Vadis" and "The Greatest Show on Earth" each played four weeks, and will be good for a lot of repeats. A dud will be pulled after two days. "Going My Way," "The Blue Veil" and "Trio" fell into this category. They were simply completely incomprehensible to Burmese audiences.

The surefire formula is action in Technicolor. The allowable exception is Esther Williams in Technicolor. To Burmese audiences, Miss Williams can do virtually no wrong, which is certainly an exercise in perversity of tastes—for Burmese girls rarely run over five feet tall, weigh about eighty-five pounds, have ivory skin, long black hair and no more curves than a mailing tube.

Give 'Em Swordsplay

The male stars they go for run along the same lines of attraction of opposites. Randolph Scott, Gary Cooper and Jeff Chandler are very big there, and Tony Curtis and John Derek will probably pass them in the stretch. But the one they really love is Audie Murphy, proving, by way of exception, everything said about the others. For in size and general mien, he's not too unlike what the young-Burman-about-town thinks of himself as being.

(Ed. Note: "Our Burma," filmed in Burma by Bucher for Louis de Rochemont Productions with government assistance, has been entered by the Burmese government in the Cannes Film Festival, the first time a Burmese-produced film will be shown outside Burma).

Break for UA

Continued from page 4

hibs via outlays for the necessary 3-D setup.

Situation could change, of course, from the public interest standpoint. Six-week delay will mean more publicity, which figures to spell out in more accounts for UA. Nate Halpern, producer of the pic, comments that postponements of fights invariably result in added public interest and a bigger gate. He added that exhibs who already have booked the film still intend to show it at the later date.

Stereo-Cine camera crew, which had been in Chicago for the fight, returned to the Coast over the past weekend when it was announced that a nose injury incurred by Rocky Marciano forced the postponement.

Senate to Probe Dept. Of Justice 'Brushoff' Of Squawks by Exhibs

Los Angeles, April 7.

Senate Small Business Committee wound up its three-day investigation of the film distribution business with a promise to investigate the anti-trust division of the Dept. of Justice because of its brushoff of numerous complaints by exhibitors.

Consensus among the exhibs at the hearings was that the consent decree, once hailed as a cure for all exhibitor ills, has made them sicker than ever because of the manner in which distributors have manipulated it. Al Hanson, prexy of South-Lynn Theatres, testified that 246 theatres have closed in the Southern California area. Southern California Theatre Owners Assn., he said, had made many complaints to the Dept. of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission, and that both had ignored them.

Cecil Vinnicof, of Vinnicof Theatres, with six houses closed, charged the distributors with wanting to see the small houses closed up, so that customers would be forced to go to the bigger theatres and pay higher prices. He declared the consent decrees were useless to independent exhibitors and had wrought harm to their business.

Marco Wolff, veepee of Fanchon & Marco, charged that there are still ties between the distributors and Fox West Coast regardless of the divorcement. FWC, he declared, is still a favorite child and can do anything it likes in getting product or switching runs in theatres.

May Reopen

Continued from page 3

Gen. Herbert Brownell. Senate's monopoly probers, according to present plans, will make recommendations to Brownell, who will then decide his course.

In any case, only where "flagrant violations" of the industry consent decrees are found will there be any attempt to prosecute the distribs. Such contempt actions, however, are regarded as highly unlikely.

Other approach for Brownell can be a reopening of the industry antitrust decree with the view of somehow tightening some provisions or adding amendments. Judgment specifically states that either side—the D. of J. or the distrib defendants—is free to seek changes if business conditions are altered since the order originally was entered.

TOA's Reversal

Continued from page 3

Reade noted that TOA felt that the consent decree judgments should prove adequate remedies. "It is for the Dept. of Justice to see to it that the relief granted in that case be observed and complied with," Reade stated.

Decision of TOA to appear before the Committee apparently marks a departure in the exhib org's policy. Previously, its execs, mainly prexy Starr, have stressed that TOA would seek to avoid Government intervention in intra-trade disputes. First indication of a reversal in TOA's attitude was a blast issued several weeks ago condemning high-percentage pre-release pictures. Originally, it was indicated that no action would be taken until Starr's return, coupled with a board meeting. However, with hearings expected to get under way shortly, it's believed that Reade made a hurried survey of the board's reaction and received the green light to commit TOA to an appearance.

Meanwhile, Allied States Assn., largely responsible for bringing about the probe, is amassing data for presentation to the Senate body. Members from various territories are expected to converge on Washington to relate experiences with distrib sales policies in the different zones. Allied, it's expected, will charge laxity on the part of the Dept. of Justice in following up on complaints. Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel, head of the subcommittee which held hearings in Los Angeles, has already indicated that the body might probe the antitrust division of the Justice Dept. on exhibs' complaints for not "policing" the film consent decrees.

Amusement Stock Quotations

(N.Y. Stock Exchange)

For Week Ending Tuesday (7)

1952-'53 High	1952-'53 Low		Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net. Change for week
15⅞	13⅞	Am Br-Par Th	108	15	14⅛	14⅛	— ⅝
43½	33	CBS, "A"	68	40⅝	39¼	40½	+ ⅜
43⅜	32¼	CBS, "B"	18	40½	39½	40¼	— ½
13⅞	10⅞	Col. Pic.	166	13½	12¾	13½	+ ½
11	8	Decca	111	10¾	10⅛	10½	—
48	41⅞	Eastman Kdk	185	45¾	44⅞	45¼	—
18¼	11¼	Loew's	225	13¾	12¾	12¾	— ¾
7¾	3⅜	Nat. Thea.	928	7¾	6¼	6¾	+ ½
30⅞	21¼	Paramount	145	29⅛	26¾	27⅜	—1⅝
36½	26⅝	Philco	123	32⅞	31	32¾	— ⅜
29⅜	23¼	RCA	534	26⅝	25⅜	26	— ⅜
4⅞	3¼	RKO Picts.	75	3⅞	3⅝	3¾	—
4½	3⅛	RKO Thea.	531	4¾	3⅝	4⅜	— ⅛
5⅛	3¼	Republic	40	3¾	3½	3⅝	—
11½	9¾	Rep., pfd.	17	11½	11⅛	11⅛	— ⅜
11⅛	10¾	Stanley War.	100	11	10¼	10⅞	— ⅝
19¼	10½	20th-Fox	533	18	15½	16¼	—1⅝
16⅜	11	Univ. Pix.	79	15½	15	15⅜	+ ¼
65	57	Univ., pfd.	*50	64	63½	63½	— ½
16⅜	15¾	Warner Bros.	44	15⅝	15¼	15⅜	— ¼
88½	68	Zenith	57	76½	73¾	74¾	— ½
American Stock Exchange
19¾	15	Du Mont	131	15⅝	14⅝	14⅝	—1
4	2¾	Monogram	31	3⅝	3⅜	3⅜	—
30⅜	20⅛	Technicolor	49	29¼	28¼	28½	— ⅛
3¼	2¼	Trans-Lux	2	3	3	3	—

Over-the-Counter Securities	Bid	Ask
Cinecolor	1¼	1¾	— ¼
Cinerama	3⅜	3⅞	—
Chesapeake Industries (Pathe)	3¾	4⅜	— ⅜
U. A. Theatres	10¾	11¾	— ½
Walt Disney	7⅞	8⅞	— ⅛

* Actual sales.

(Quotations furnished by Dreyfus & Co.)

Legit Crix Stew

Continued from page 1

sons Theatre management recently barred Theodore H. Parker, critic of the Courant, the paper announced Monday (6) that in lieu of a review of the local opening that night of the touring "Fourposter," it would reprint the original notices by Brooks Atkinson, of the N.Y. Times, and John Chapman, of the N.Y. News, of the Jan de Hartog comedy's Broadway opening season before last. It was the first such case in show business memory.

In announcing the plan, the Courant notice explained that although the Parsons management's action in barring Parker "deprives the paper's readers of their right to know the merits of the theatre's wares before going to the expense of buying tickets," it was reprinting the Atkinson and Chapman reviews "in order to protect the public as far as possible." Angle on the situation is that Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn, stars of the original Broadway production of the play, are playing it on tour.

'Stalag' Squawks

Matters took an international turn with reports from London that members of the cast of the West End production of "Stalag 17" have squawked about the play's panning by the critics. Despite the almost unanimously unfavorable notices, Canadian actor Lee Patterson, who plays the lead, claimed that the premiere audience "screamed and yelled" its appreciation of the Donald Bevan-Edmund Trzcinski comedy-meller.

In New York, meanwhile, a controversy has broken out over merits of "Camino Real," the new Tennessee Williams drama. The play, which drew a four-to-three negative verdict from the first-string critics, has had violently divided reaction from audiences. Numerous patrons claim the show is perfectly clear as to meaning and label it artistic and moving theatre, while others leave the performance shaking their heads and muttering disgustedly.

Salvo of letters-to-the-editor about the Williams opus were printed in the drama section of last Sunday's (5) issue of the Times, and there have been many reported instances of playgoers going back to see the offering two and three times. Grosses thus far have been encouraging, but a better indication will be possible next week, after the Theatre Guild subscription patronage has been used up.

Notices for "Affairs of State" in Chicago last week were uniformly unfavorable, with a number of humorous references to the fact that the critics had bought their way into the opening. In contrast to the four pans (Claudia Cassidy, Tribune; Roger Dettmer, American; Sydney J. Harris, News; Herman Kokan, Sun-Times), the Louis Verneuil comedy got a five-to-three favorable reception in its original presentation with a different cast on Broadway in the fall of 1950.

In the case of "Male Animal," which opened in Chicago a week previously, the Elliott Nugent-James Thurber comedy drew unanimously favorable, though qualified reviews. When the revival opened in New York last spring with two of its three leads different it drew solid raves from the seven first-stringers.

"Mrs. McThing," opening last Monday night (6) in Chicago, got a mixed press. Helen Hayes drew raves as a star, the play got two favorable notices (Harris and Kogan) and two brushoffs (Cassidy, Dettmer). On Broadway last season the Mary Chase comic fantasy received four raves, one moderately favorable notice and three pans.

B'way Entry

Continued from page 5

ing of "Man" to beat "Wax" to the Broadway wire, Warners is attempting to make up on the bally front. Company feels it's product has the advantage in that it is a tinter. In addition, it's noted, that in many spots it will have the plus values of stereophonic sound.

While Col unveiled its entry for crix at its homeoffice projection room, Warners will hold a special press preem at the Paramount tomorrow night (Thurs.). It's felt that at the theatre the full impact of the stereophonic sound will come across more solidly. Since tickets will also be sold, crix have been notified that reviews can run on Friday (10), official opening day of the picture. Of necessity, film reviewers will have to work like their drama colleagues that night, writing their reviews immediately following the showing for the next day's newspapers. To accommodate newspapermen, Warners is setting up a press room at the Par, providing typewriters and messenger service.

Warners has brought the entire starring cast of "Wax" in from the Coast for the press preem. Vincent Price, Phyllis Kirk, Frank Lovejoy and Paul Picerni will be at the opening. The N.Y. preem is the first in a series planned by the company for different areas, with the Gotham opening being followed by a two-theatre debut in Los Angeles.

Warners claims a "first" in making available for exhibs a seven-foot high, five-foot wide "actual three-dimensional display." Company, bypassing National Screen Service, had the piece made up on its own and is also serving as distributor. Units, priced at $18.75, are shipped flat and contain directions for assembling.

"Bob—add this to your new 'Oscar'! New York says you win the prize bunny for your great Easter Show at the Astor!"

OFF LIMITS

BOB HOPE
MICKEY ROONEY
MARILYN MAXWELL

with

EDDIE MAYEHOFF

STANLEY CLEMENTS • JACK DEMPSEY • MARVIN MILLER

Produced by HARRY TUGEND • Directed by GEORGE MARSHALL

Story and Screenplay by HAL KANTER and JACK SHER

Yes, and hundreds of nation-wide Easter engagements are matching Broadway's records and raves which say:

"Topflight! 'Oscar' beamed in the right direction when Bob got that award!" —N. Y. World-Telegram

"Perfect entertainment for the holidays!"—N.Y. Journal-American

"Roars of convulsed customers can be heard as far as the boxoffice." —Brooklyn Eagle

"Boisterous buffoonery finds Bob up to his funnybone in gags and gals." —N. Y. Daily News

"Hope-Rooney frolic a slapstick act put on in hilarious style by real professionals. Bob in top form." —N. Y. Herald Tribune

"Hilarious all the way... a wacky caper." —N. Y. Times

IT'S A PARAMOUNT PICTURE — AND THE BIGGEST EASTER SHOW IN TOWN!

Picture Grosses

WASHINGTON

(Continued from page 11)

Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) (2d wk-5 days), $6,000.

Dupont (Lopert) (372; 55-$1)—"High Noon" (UA) (14th wk). Amazing $5,000 for second consecutive week. Stays on.

Keith's (RKO) (1,939; 90-$1.25)—"Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) (8th wk). Soared to great $13,000 after $8,000 last week. Holds again.

Metropolitan (Warner) (1,200; 90-$1.25)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (7th wk). Holding at sock $10,000 after same last week.

Palace (Loew's) (2,370; 74-$1.20)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA). Terrific $40,000, to top town and equal "Ivanhoe" (M-G) take. In for long run. Last week, "Sheltering Palms" (20th), $12,000.

Playhouse (Lopert) (435; 55-$1)—"Little Sheba" (Par) (8th wk). Big $6,000 for second consecutive week. Stays.

Warner (WB) (2,174; 55-85)—"Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk). Nice $10,000 after $15,000 last week.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (600; 55-$1)—"Member of Wedding" (Col) (4th-final wk). Oke $3,000 for second week in row.

'Madam' Leads Denver, Hotsy 26G, 'Limits' 13G

Denver, April 7.

"Call Me Madam" is gathering in the most coin currently, playing at the Denver and Esquire. Four new pix were launched during week, and three of them rate hold-over sessions. These are "Sombrero," fairly good at Broadway, "Off Limits," big at Denham and "Desert Legion" fine at Paramount. "Importance of Being Earnest" shapes fancy at the tiny Vogue, and also stays on.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (1,400; 50-85)—"Raiders" (U) and "Black Castle" (U). Fair $6,000. Last week, "Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip), $6,500.

Broadway (Wolfberg) (1,200; 50-85)—"Sombrero" (M-G). Good $7,500. Holds. Last week, on reissue.

Denham (Cockrill) (1,750; 50-85)—"Off Limits" (Par). Big $13,000. Stays over. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) (3d wk), $8,500.

Denver (Fox) (2,525; 50-85)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Smash $22,000. Last week, "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep) and "Ride Man Down" (Rep), $12,500.

Esquire (Fox) (742; 50-85)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Sock $4,000. Last week, "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep) and "Ride Man Down" (Rep), $3,000.

Orpheum (RKO) (1,300; 76-$1.20)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (3d wk). Off to $9,000. Last week, great $17,500.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,200; 50-85)—"Desert Legion" (U) and "Tarzan's Savage Fury" (RKO). Fine $16,000. Last week, "Abbott Costello To Mars" (U) and "Savage Mutiny" (Col), $13,500.

Tabor (Fox) (1,967; 50-85)—"Raiders" (U) and "Black Castle" (U). Good $5,500. Last week, "Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip), $6,000.

Vogue (Pike) (600; 60-90)—"Importance of Being Earnest" (U). Fast $2,800 or near. Stays on. Last week, on reissue.

Webber (Fox) (750; 50-85)—"Raiders" (U) and "Black Castle" (U). Oke $3,000 or close. Last week, "Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip), ditto.

PITTSBURGH

(Continued from page 12)

with fine notices. Great $14,000 or over. "Gunfighter" (20th) and "Yellow Sky" (20th) (reissues), $4,000.

Penn (Loew's) (3,300; 50-85)—"I Love Melvin' (M-G). O'Connor's name and some potent newspaper space a week ago for Debbie Reynolds when she visited here factors in brisk. Trim $14,500. Last week, "Battle Circus" (M-G), $10,000.

Squirrel Hill (WB) (900; 50-85)—"Face to Face" (RKO) (2d wk). Should wind up with nice $2,500, almost same as last week.

Stanley (WB) (3,800; 50-85)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB). Sharply divided reviews. Opened mild but picked up with nice $14,000 likely. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB) $7,000 in 8 days.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 50-85)—"Tropic Zone" (Par) and "Blazing Forest" (Par). Shoved in on a day's notice when "Limelight" (UA) did foldo. Oke $5,000. Chaplin pic proved a dud and yanked after 6 days with only $2,500, new low for house.

'HANS' HUGE $25,000, ST. LOO; 'WAC' HEP 15G

St. Louis, April 7.

Rain Easter Sunday sent some people to the cinemas but trade is still somewhat spotty at mainstem houses. Only the small capacity of the Shady Oak and Pageant is holding down the gross on "Hans Christian Andersen," upped scale not hurting, unusual for this city. "Small Town Girl" looks best newcomer at regular scale with socko week at Loew's.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (F&M) (3,000; 60-75)—"Destination Gobi" (20th) and "All Ashore" (Col) (m.o.s.). Fair $12,000. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "Face to Face" (RKO) (2d wk), $10,000.

Fox (F&M) (5,000; 60-75)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB). Opened today (Tues.). Last week, "Man Behind Gun" (WB) and "All Ashore" (Col), good $15,000.

Loew's (Loew) (3,172; 50-75)—"Small Town Girl" (M-G) and "Jack McCall, Desperado" (Col). Lusty $17,000. Last week, "Confidentially Connie" (M-G) and "Breaking Sound Barrier" (UA), $13,000.

Missouri (F&M) (3,500; 60-75)—"Never Wave at Wac" (RKO) and "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep). Nice $15,000 or near. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Taxi" (20th), $9,500.

Pageant (St. L. Amus.) (1,000; 90-$1.20)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO). Sock $13,000. Last week, "Magic Box" (Col), $4,500.

Shady Oak (St. L. Amus.) 800; 90-$1.20)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO). Smash $12,000. Last week, "Member of Wedding" (Col) (3d wk), $4,000.

'Bwana' Record $40,000, Toronto; 'Kettles' 15G

Toronto, April 7.

Introduction of 3-D to Toronto sees "Bwana Devil" breaking Loew's all-time house record opening week for a smash $40,000 on turnaway lineups for seven daily performances at $1 top. Smash returns loom also for "Call Me Madam," "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" and "I Confess." "The Stooge," in second frame, is holding up nicely.

Estimates for This Week

Eglinton, University (FP) (1,080; 1,556; 40-75)—"I Confess" (WB). Hefty $20,000. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) (3d wk), $16,000.

Crest, Downtown, Glendale, State (Taylor) (863; 1,059; 955; 698; 35-60)—"Silver Whip" (20th) and "White Lightning" (AA). Okay $13,000. Last week, "Prince of Pirates" (Col) and "Kansas Pacific" (AA), $13,000.

Imperial (FP) (3,373; 40-75)—"The Stooge" (Par) (2d wk). Lusty $16,000. Last week, $23,000.

Loew's (Loew) (2,096; 60-$1)—"Bwana Devil" (UA). Record $40,000. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G) (2d wk), $8,500.

Odeon (Rank) (2,390; 50-90)—"Abbott-Costello Go to Mars" (U). Okay $11,000. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) (2d wk), $7,000.

Shea's (FP) (2,386; 40-75)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Wham $20,000. Last week, "Hitch-Hiker" (RKO), $8,000.

Uptown (Loew) (2,743; 40-75)—"Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U). Terrific $15,000. Last week, "Seminole" (U), $10,000 in 8 days.

PORTLAND, ORE.

(Continued from page 11)

500. Last week, "Naked Spur" (M-G) (3d wk), $5,000 in 4 days.

Mayfair (Evergreen) (1,500; 65-90)—"Among Sheltering Palms" (20th) and "White Lightning" (Indie). Oke $3,500. Last week, legit show.

Oriental (Evergreen) (2,000; 90-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col). Big $5,000. Last week, "High Noon" (UA) and "Song In Heart" (20th), $3,000.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,750; 65-90)—"The Star" (20th) and "Secret People" (Indie). Good $6,000. Last week, "Peter Pan" (RKO) (3d wk), $9,000 at upped scale.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,400; 90-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col). Terrific $14,000. Last week, "Little Sheba" (Par) and "Never Take No Answer" (Indie) (2d week), $8,000.

United Artists (Parker) (890; 90-$1.25)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO). Smash $14,000 or near. Last week, "Tall Texan" (Indie) and "I'll Get You" (Indie), $5,500.

'Pan' Great $16,000, K.C.; 'Madam' 20G, 'Salome' Same

Kansas City, April 7.

Liveliest trade currently is at Missouri where "Peter Pan" looks great. Midland likewise is getting spirited play from "Salome," also with advanced prices. "Bwana Devil" is strong in second week at Paramount. "Call Me Madam" in four Fox Midwest houses shapes solid.

Estimates for This Week

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; 65-85)—"Happy Time" (Col). Great $2,700. Last week, "Under Red Sea" (RKO) (2d wk), $1,300.

Midland (Loew's) (3,500; 75-$1.10)—"Salome" (Col). Sock $20,000. Last week, "Sombrero" (M-G) and "Confidentially Connie" (M-G) $7,500.

Missouri (RKO) (2,650; 50-75-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO). Great $16,000. Holds. Last week, "Invasion U.S.A." (Col) and "Last Train Bombay" (Col), $4,000 at 75c top.

Paramount (1,900; 50-$1.25)—"Bwana Devil" (UA) (2d wk). Nifty $9,500. Last week, $18,000.

Tower, Uptown, Fairway, Granada (Fox Midwest) (2,100; 2,043; 700; 1,217; 50-75)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) with "Star of Texas" (AA) added at Tower and Granada. Solid $20,000. Last week, "Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U) with "Bomba and Jungle Girl" (AA), at Tower and Granada, nifty $16,000.

Vogue (Golden) (550; 65-85)—"Breaking Sound Barrier" (UA) (6th wk). Steady $1,800. Last week same.

SAN FRANCISCO

(Continued from page 10)

Me Madam" (20th) and "Fort Vengeance" (AA). Big $20,000 or close. Last week, "Tall Texan" (Lip) and "I'll Get You" (Lip) $11,000.

Warfield (Loew's) (2,656; 65-95)—"Sombrero" (M-G) (2d wk). Oke $7,500 in 4 days. Last week, $14,500.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; 65-95)—"Off Limits" (Par). Big $18,000. Last week, "Blue Gardenia" (WB) and "San Antone" (AA), $12,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; 65-95)—"Tonight We Sing" (20th). Good $11,000. Last week, "The Star" (20th) (2d wk), $7,500.

Orpheum (No. Coast) (2,448; 65-95)—"Seminole" (U) and "Bandits Corsica" (UA). Mild $11,000. Last week, "Ma, Pa Kettle On Vacation" (Rep) and "Romance And Rhythm" (Rep), $8,500.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,207; 80-$1.50)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (7th wk). Strong $9,500. Last week, $10,000.

Stagedoor (A-R) (370; $1.20-$1.80)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (7th wk). Solid $14,000. Last week, same.

Clay (Rosener) (400; 65-85)—"Importance Being Ernest" (U). Brisk $3,500. Last week, "Run For Money" (U) and "Stranger In Between" (U) (reissues), $2,100.

Vogue (S. F. Theatres) (377; 85-$1)—"Casque d'Or" (Indie) (2d wk). Held at $1,200. Last week, nice $1,800.

Italo Deal

Continued from page 7

keeps imports at the 225 level. It ups remittances from 37½% to 40%, while reducing aid to the Italians from 12½% to 10%, and freezing the remaining 50% as before. Also, each MPAA member agrees to offer two pix to Italo distribs, but not necessarily at the start of the season. If no deal is made, the duo goes back into the company fold.

Use of frozen distrib revenue, so far, has been restricted to the film biz. New deal authorizes compensation deals, with shipbuilding one of the possibilities. Transfers will probably be worked, as in Scandinavia, where distribs work through a third party and approve individual deals following receipt of dollars in N. Y. Arrangement should net the distribs their full $12,000,000 to $14,000,000 from the Italian market.

Fact that the 18 pix sold by MPAA members to the Italian distribs, along with the 40 or 50 films allocated to the American indies, are exempt from paying the 10% assessment, is seen as a definite concession by the Italians who grant this batch the 40% remittance right as all other pix.

Lifting of the government-imposed rental ceiling in June restores the status quo. It leaves a voluntary arrangement to be worked out by the American distribs and Italo exhibs. Ceiling now averages around 42%, with some pix allowed to go higher. Americans have always felt they could do better under a voluntary deal, but have never been able to agree on one with the exhibs.

Quick Playoffs

Continued from page 3

Given "reasonable clearance" privileges, the theatremen have been moving up their runs and availabilities of product to the extent that a number of them now play the same film at the same time. Consequently, an important film may be in exhibition one week whereas before the changes were made that same pic could have been available to the public over a period of five to six weeks.

Situation Typical

In commenting on the "Vadis" experience, Goldenson in a report to stockholders, stated: "We believe that this situation is generally typical of the effect of multiple runs everywhere. Even if the public could be educated to the fact that they must see a particular picture quickly or they cannot see it at all, many people who want to see it will find it inconvenient to do so in the limited period of time of its exhibition. Sooner or later the industry will realize that improved revenues for both exhibitors and producers will result when a better method of release of pictures, based upon lawful runs and clearances, is substituted for the present practice of multiple runs."

It was revealed that the results of the "Vadis" survey were circulated among all distribs by Goldenson but there has yet to be any response.

Attitude of the film companies is they are powerless to act because of the court decrees entered in the antitrust case. Exhibitor demands for moved-up runs must be satisfied or the film outfits would be on shaky legal ground, say the pic execs.

Conversely, theatremen who are now playing first neighborhood run instead of second or third nabe run as in the past, are disinclined to step back to the former market position. They feel that the subsequent market spot means inadequate coin at the b.o.

Incurring the loss from the overall situation are the producer-distribs, as with "Vadis," and the theatres which earlier had the first crack at product and are forced to share the first availability with rivals.

Problem is not entirely new, but the huge losses involved have been accented by the Goldenson report.

Oldies to Get

Continued from page 5

combos "Road House" and "Kiss of Death."

M-G is presently experimenting with some 16 titles, some of which are due for a big push during the year. Distrib has been so impressed with the success of TV bally for "Jeopardy" that it's currently testing video building power for a couple of reissues in the New England territory.

Pix under consideration include "Billy the Kid," "Chained," "China Seas," "David Copperfield," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Easter Parade," "Grand Hotel," "The Last Gangster," "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Possessed," "Sequoia," "Tale of Two Cities," "They Gave Him a Gun," "Trader Horn," "Weekend at the Waldorf" and "A Woman's Face."

Last Year's Jackpot

Big reissue dose at RKO includes two Goldwyn oldies, "Princess and the Pirate" and "The Real Glory." Among the other RKO product being revived are two Fred Astaire pix, "Follow the Fleet" and "Top Hat"; "Blood on the Moon," "Mighty Joe Young," "Isle of the Dead" and "Fort Apache." RKO hit the reissue jackpot last year with its repeat handling of "King Kong," which got a big TV buildup. Distrib has dug up a flock of Disney reissues to build the Disney cartoon festival programs.

Republic is giving nine John Wayne westerns another whirl and also expects to have six "re-editions" for the rest of '53. Wayne starrers include "War of the Wildcats," "Flame of the Barbary Coast," "Angel and the Badman," "Lady for a Night," "Dakota," "Lady from Louisiana," "A Man Betrayed," "In Old California" and "Three Faces West."

Reissue pattern at the rest of the majors varies. Warner Bros. expects to have a couple including "The Damned Don't Cry" and a Bette Davis pic. Columbia keeps some 30 of its oldies circulating steadily and still gets bookings on films like "Lost Horizon," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "It Happened One Night," etc. Paramount currently is reissuing DeMille's "Cleopatra" with Claudette Colbert.

Daff

Continued from page 7

than a new lens and a new aperture plate. Apart from improving the physical aspect of viewing, it also keeps alive the industry's vast inventory of 2-D pix which can be shown on the U screen in magnified fashion.

Daff disclosed that all of U's new productions would include stereophonic sound and would be offered to exhibs in various versions, from the regular single soundtrack imprinted photographically on the film track, to five and six sound channels on tape. U execs are very high on stereo sound, the addition of which doesn't materially affect production budgets. Right now it costs an exhib about $12,000 to install stereo sound in his theatre.

U's Widescreen Process, Stereo Sound, Impresses

Hollywood, April 7.

Universal last week (1) unveiled its method of large-screen projection for both two and three-dimensional pictures, as well as Stereophonic sound, at a test showing for the press. It was impressive.

Both the special test exteriors and interiors filmed with wide-angle lenses giving a two-to-one aspect, and footage from old and new pictures that were projected in a 1.85-to-one aspect, were sharp and clear. There were no dark corners or fuzzy images, and the light quality was as good, if not better, than encountered in regular film theatre projection.

Of particular interest was the manner in which the 3-D footage came over on the curved screen that measured 25 feet high by 50 feet wide. Even viewing the stereo scenes without the polaroid glasses gave no discomfort to the eye and they appeared only slightly out of focus. With the glasses, the depth was very good, being comparable in quality to other 3-D processes. The 3-D footage was taken on the back lot on Eastman daylight color stock. The test interior scenes, in 2-D for wide-angle projection, were filmed on Eastman Mazda stock. Both exteriors and interiors were processed by Technicolor on rush order, but the color quality was excellent.

Scenes from "The World In His Arms," released some time ago, "Desert Legion," now in release, and "Thunder Bay," unreleased, were shown. These are all standard films and the scenes were shown first by regular projection and then switched to the 1.85-to-one aspect for a demonstration of the added impact the pictures gain from the wide-screen treatment.

Studio emphasized process is an all-purpose screen that will take flat, 3-D, CinemaScope or other systems now being used or worked on.

3-D's Power

Continued from page 4

to make major contributions to the techniques and equipment for presentation of pictures."

He hit this point hard. He said experimenters in stage settings, for instance, have made little headway against the inertia of a highly-standardized industry. Progress was made in every other field (equipment, methods, film, sound and color) but "in most of our theatres we are displaying million dollar products in 50-year-old showcases: a rectangular screen framed and surrounded by a black border and background."

The whole 3-D ruckus, Barnett implied, is just what the film industry needs to shake it out of its plushy rut. Updating and modernization of presentations are long overdue, he said. When all the tumult and shouting has died, Barnett noted, the industry will be on a high road, its fortunes vastly improved because it is pleasing the public with something new and fresh.

More than 100 Ohio exhibitors are attending The Convention of ITO, which represents more than 700 theatres in the state.

SHE'S BOX OFFICE DYNAMITE!

Clips From Film Row

NEW YORK

Stuart Dunlap, manager of company's office in Argentina, in N. Y. for confabs at Loew's International homeoffice.

WB and Camera Craft photo shops sponsoring joint contest in connection with WB's 3-D film, "House of Wax."

Ab Weisbord's "Julius Caesar" layout for Metro among exhibits at the Art Directors Club of N. Y. annual layout show.

Judson Moses, Metro rep in Atlanta for a year, upped to division press rep, succeeding Emery Austin, who was recently named exploitation aide to homeoffice publicity manager Dan Terrell. Other Metro changes include Al Golin, who has been covering Des Moines, moved to Pittsburgh, with Art Katzin succeeding Golin in Des Moines; Keven Genther joins southwestern staff.

Some 400 industryites and members of Cinema Lodge, B'nai B'rith, are slated to attend the Lodge's first President's Luncheon at the Hotel Astor today (Wed.). They will pay tribute to retiring prez Martin Levine and help install his successor, Burton E. Robbins.

George Birkner, manager of Stanley Warner's Oritani Theatre in Hackensack, N.J., for the past 10 years, transferred to the Fabian Theatre, Paterson.

ST. LOUIS

High winds damaged ozoners in St. Louis area during last few weeks. Damage was reported to drive-ins near Flora, Mattoon, and Charleston, Ill. Most ozoners in St. Louis trade area teed off Easter Sunday night.

The Frisina Amus. Co., constructed modern front on its Effingham, in Effingham, Ill.

St. Louis Variety Club, Tent No. 4, advanced $40,000 to defray cost of constructing a day nursery in South St. Louis.

Orders for 3-D equipment growing in the St. Louis area; two companies which supply the equipment expect the orders to new peak in the next fortnight.

Members of the MPTOA of eastern Missouri and southern Illinois presented a $1,000 savings bond to Herb Bennis, Metro exchange manager here, as a farewell gift; he was transferred to Washington, D.C.

Lloyd Spurgeon purchased a 540-car ozoner near Centralia, Ill., from Elbert W. Butler and Homer Butler.

The Lyric, Newburg, Mo., and an ozoner near Lebanon, Mo., sold by Clifford H. Hough to W. T. Ash.

Kansas City interests are constructing a 400-car ozoner near Columbia, Mo., which will furnish opposition to one operated by the Commonwealth Amus. Co., which was lighted in 1950.

Central Illinois Theatres, Inc., building 500-car drive-in near Mattoon, Ill.

PITTSBURGH

John D. Walsh, boss of Shea's Fulton, back on the job again after long convalescence following an operation on his back last winter. Walsh's replacement during his illness, Frank King, checked out to vacation before being reassigned by Shea homeoffice.

Jack Kahn, who left pub-ad chief's post at WB last month to join Dubin-Feldman ad agency, back in show biz again. The D-F outfit hired to handle special exploitation on opening of "Moulin Rouge" (UA) at Penn Saturday (11), with Kahn handling it.

Deal rerported on the fire for Cinerama to go into downtown Warner Theatre; but no contracts signed so far.

DETROIT

The Michigan, United Detroit Theatre's flagship and second largest house in Detroit with 4,000 seats, being made ready for the Detroit preem of "House of Wax," WB's 3-D film April 30.

"Bwana Devil" UA's 3-D release which enjoyed a long run downtown at the Madison, opens April 8 in four nabe UDT houses, the Fisher, Woods, Norwest, Mel.

BOSTON

Ernest Warren took over lease of the Strand, Canton, planning an Easter opening.

Florio Simi appointed a booker at RKO exchange, replacing Stan Davis, who was upped to salesman.

Phil Bloomberg, vet exhib, has shuttered his Plaza in Salem and Orpheum, Danvers. Current competitive bidding situation plus 20% government tax forced move, according to Bloomberg.

James Cronin, manager of the Strand, South Boston, for last 20 years, upped to manager of Uptown, Boston. George Sweeney, assistant manager of Broadway, South Boston, replaces him at Strand.

Tom Duane, UA sales manager for the past year, resigned to join Lockwood & Gordon Enterprises in executive capacity.

Joe Longo, for eight years on the Coast, returned here to take over as tubthumper at RKO exchange; replaces Al Margolian, transferred to company's Buffalo office.

Capitol in Quincy sold by B & Q Circuit to department store chain for conversion into retail store.

Following destruction of neighboring church by fire last week, Roland Moon, manager of the Quintree Drive-In placed the ozoner at disposal of worshippers for their Easter services.

New York Theatres

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center
DORIS DAY • GORDON MacRAE
"BY THE LIGHT OF THE SILVERY MOON"
color by TECHNICOLOR • A Warner Bros. Picture
plus THE MUSIC HALL'S GREAT EASTER STAGE SHOW

STARTS FRI.
NATURAL VISION 3 DIMENSION
WARNER PHONIC SOUND
HOUSE OF WAX
VINCENT PRICE
FRANK LOVEJOY • PHYLLIS KIRK
EDDIE FISHER
HUGO WINTERHALTER
THE BEACHCOMBERS
JOEY MARTIN
PARAMOUNT
Midnight Feature

Lay Off

Continued from page 3

phonevision have brought new excitement and hope to a mercurial and unpredictable industry," states MLPF&B in its study. "Speculative interest reached a high pitch recently despite the fact that only a few months ago film securities experienced a pronounced setback when several leading companies were forced to drastically cut their dividends.

"Film companies have made a lot of money at times—but they have lost heavily too. The old RKO, an outstanding example, made $18,000,000 between 1943 and 1946, then lost $15,000,000 from 1947 to 1950."

As for the new lensing and projection methods, the investment company believes it will be a matter of many months before it's determined whether 3-D, etc., can raise the industry's basic earning power.

MLPF&B takes the position that the producing companies are less risky that exhibition outfits because the filmmakers, if they're unable to hold their own in competition with TV, may be able to go into production for TV. Also, there's the possibility of unloading pic libraries to TV.

On the other hand, it's noted, theatre circuits must depend upon the producers for their product supply and entertainment sufficient to compete with TV. There are no alternatives.

Par Widescreen

Continued from page 3

and Van Heflin in the leads, is one of the most expensive on the Par sked, with a reported negative cost of about $3,500,000. If it's to recoup, it's clear that Par has a top-scale selling job ahead, and the wide-screen approach is figured as the hypo which could bring the company out on top economically.

First test of "Shane" on an unusually large screen will be at the Radio City Music Hall, N.Y., following its current "By the Light of the Silvery Moon." Hall will show the pic in Par's so-called 1.66 aspect ratio, as against the conventional 1.33. Hall's regular screen, which is the biggest in the world, will be in full view for the first time with the showing, part of the screen having been masked off heretofore.

Screen will measure 50 feet in width and 30 feet in height. It's normally about 34x25.

Metro Mum

Continued from page 5

the company is shelving the 3-D treatment for the property.

Studio activity, meanwhile, is tapering off, with a complete lull expected shortly unless the company suddenly shifts into 3-D or widescreen. Three flat pix are in the process of being completed—"The Great Diamond Robbery," "The Big Leaguer" and "Easy to Love." Company recently completed "Saadia" abroad. Originally slated to roll at the studio later this month is the film version of the Broadway musical, "Kiss Me, Kate," but there's been no indication as to the filming process planned for the film. "Knights of the Round Table" is slated to roll in England late this month also. Robert Taylor, set for the lead, leaves for Britain on April 21. Also scheduled for shooting in England is "Crest of the Wave," starring Gene Kelly, but in this case, too, company hasn't tipped the method to be used.

Film Reviews

Continued from page 6

Egypt by Three

Constantine sees it as an easy way to make an almost honest buck, while Mendick plans to use the bread to ship out some stolen diamonds. The good deeds the pair must perform to properly fool the priests eventually fool the confidence men and foil the diamond scheme.

The performances are acceptable, more because they are done by new faces than from the quality of the histronics. Brog.

Murder Will Out
(BRITISH)

Mildly suspenseful melodrama with b.o. potential for arty bookings.

Kramer-Hyams Films release of Tampean Film-Eros Films (Robert S. Baker-Monty Berman) production. Stars Valerie Hobson, Edward Underdown, James Robertson Justice; features Henry Kendall, Garry Marsh, Daniel Wherry, Sam Kydd. Screenplay, John Gilling; camera, Berman; music, Frank Cordell. At Normandie, N.Y., April 4, '53. Running time, 83 MINS.

Alycia	Valerie Hobson
Hugh	Edward Underdown
Jonathan	James Robertson Justice
Parker	Henry Kendall
Inspector Thornton	Garry Marsh
Pierce	Daniel Wherry
Sergeant Baker	Sam Kydd
Dr. Forrest	Ian Fleming
Miss Quinn	Daphne Newton
Night Porter	Johnnie Schofield

Very little happens and a great deal of time is consumed in lengthy exchanges of dialog in this placid, somewhat involved British thriller about murder, intrigue, revenge and justice poetically wrought.

"Murder Will Out" is one of those run-of-the-mill imports which will find its art theatre audience because it is British, and because it has to its credit two fine performances by Valerie Hobson and James Robertson Justice.

John Gilling here has contrived to complicate a very simple plot to the point where, at the end, he has more than his share of trouble untangling his web of crime and straightening out his characters. All this is a heavy drag on the proceedings, which rarely leave the audience in anything more than the role of amused bystander.

Miss Hobson is beautiful but not very convincing as the unhappy wife of James Robertson Justice, a literary celebrity of doubtful manners and a decidedly acid personality. She falls in love with Edward Underdown, an unsuccessful writer of mystery stories, and, except for various complications, invented by Gilling to keep things going, fate takes its inevitable course.

Within the framework of this minor British effort, Justice's work is admirably smooth and gives the film much of its body. He is the husband spurned, seeking a civilized revenge, who finally drives his wife to the point where she is willing to commit murder. By contrast, Underdown is wooden and stiff as Miss Hobson's lover. Garry Marsh plays the inspector without much conviction. Monty Berman's photography is a notch above the average. Hift.

Stolen Identity

Okay whodunit supporter filmed in Vienna.

Hollywood, April 2.

Helen Ainsworth Corp. release of Turhan Bey production. Stars Donald Buka, Francis Lederer, Joan Camden; features Ardienne Gessner, Inge Konrads, Gisele Wilke. Directed by Gunther Fritsch. Screenplay, Robert Hill, from novel by Alexander Lernet-Holenia; camera, Helmut Ashley; music, Richard Hageman. Previewed March 31, '53. Running time, 88 MINS.

Claude Manelli	Francis Lederer
Toni Sponer	Donald Buka
Karen Manelli	Joan Camden
Mrs. Fraser	Adrienne Gessner
Maria	Inge Konrads
Old Doll	Gisele Wilke
Inspector	Herman Erhard
Kruger	Egon Von Jordan
Heinth	Manfred Inger

"Stolen Identity," produced in Vienna by Turhan Bey and being distributed in the U. S. by Helen Ainsworth Corp., is okay supporting fare for the duals. Footage is a bit overlong at 88 minutes, especially in view of the market film will hit, but nevertheless it includes enough suspense to keep interest from lagging.

Film's tag pinpoints the theme of the Robert Hill screenplay, based on a novel by Alexander Lernet-Holenia. Central character is Donald Buka, a young taxi driver in Vienna, who is minus papers of identification and therefore is constantly afraid of deportation.

When an American businessman-passenger is shot and killed by Francis Lederer while waiting in the cab, Buka decides to dispose of the man, then impersonate him and go to America. He soon becomes entangled with Joan Camden, however, who called her American friend to come to Vienna and help her escape from her marriage to Lederer. When she realizes Buka was not the killer, she joins him, and together they make plans to use the plane tickets to the U. S. the American had purchased. Lederer is on their heels but Buka subsequently calls his bluff when he realizes his love for the girl. Lederer is captured and Buka begins a short jail sentence, knowing his amour will be waiting.

Buka is exceptionally good in his role, sparking the footage with a neat characterization. Lederer, too, is fine, but Miss Camden only adequate as the girl. Among the supporters, Inge Konrads fares best.

Turhan Bey's production, slanted for American appeal, is okay, while direction by Gunther Fritsch wisely accents the action and suspense. Technical credits are par. Neal.

'Picnic' Figures

Continued from page 1

musicals, "Can-Can," by Cole Porter and Abe Burrows, and "Me and Juliet," by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 2d, will open too late for consideration for either the Pulitzer or Critics awards for this season.

Critics Circle makes its selections at a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Algonquin Hotel, N.Y. Pulitzer committee selections have presumably been decided already, but will be announced May 4 as part of the other annual awards in journalism and the arts.

Anthony Quinn signed to co-star with Kirk Douglas and Silvana Mangano in "Odyssey," to be produced by Lux Films in Italy.

STARS' CARS
X-COUNTRY

Going from B'way to Hollywood, or vice versa? "The Best Way" is to ship your car, not to drive it, advises Judson Freight Forwarding Division of National Carloading Corporation, now celebrating its 75th anniversary. Judson has shipped thousands of cars and trunks for stage, screen, radio and TV celebs.

You save wear and tear on you and car, actual driving costs, storage enroute, and expenses involved in the long trip. Besides, you have much better chance of arriving in one piece yourself if you take rail or air and let Judson ship your car and belongings.

If your trial engagement on either coast extends into a solid spot, just call Judson and have your car shipped to you.

See your telephone directory for nearest National Carloading Office or write to: Judson Forwarding, National Carloading Corporation, 19 Rector Street, New York 6, N. Y.

BROADWAY ANGELS, INC.
Common Stock
Price 50c a Share
Consult your broker or write or phone for a prospectus to
BROADWAY ANGELS, INC.
29 W. 45th St., New York 23
TRafalgar 4-1815

GREAT MOTION PICTURES ARE PROCESSED BY Pathé

ERROL FLYNN,
Independent Producer, says:
"I'm using the great new *Pathé*color film
...I am now shooting my first *Pathé*color film in Rome, and I chose *Pathé*color because it gives me *Life*like Color in every situation and on every set...and Pathé gives me daily overnight processing."

You owe it to your next picture to see the *Pathé*color demonstration reel today. Phone for a date: In New York it's TRafalgar 6-1120 and in Hollywood it's HOllywood 9-3961.

Pathé PROCESSING SOMETHING TO CROW ABOUT

Both New York and Hollywood Have Complete Pathé Laboratory Facilities:
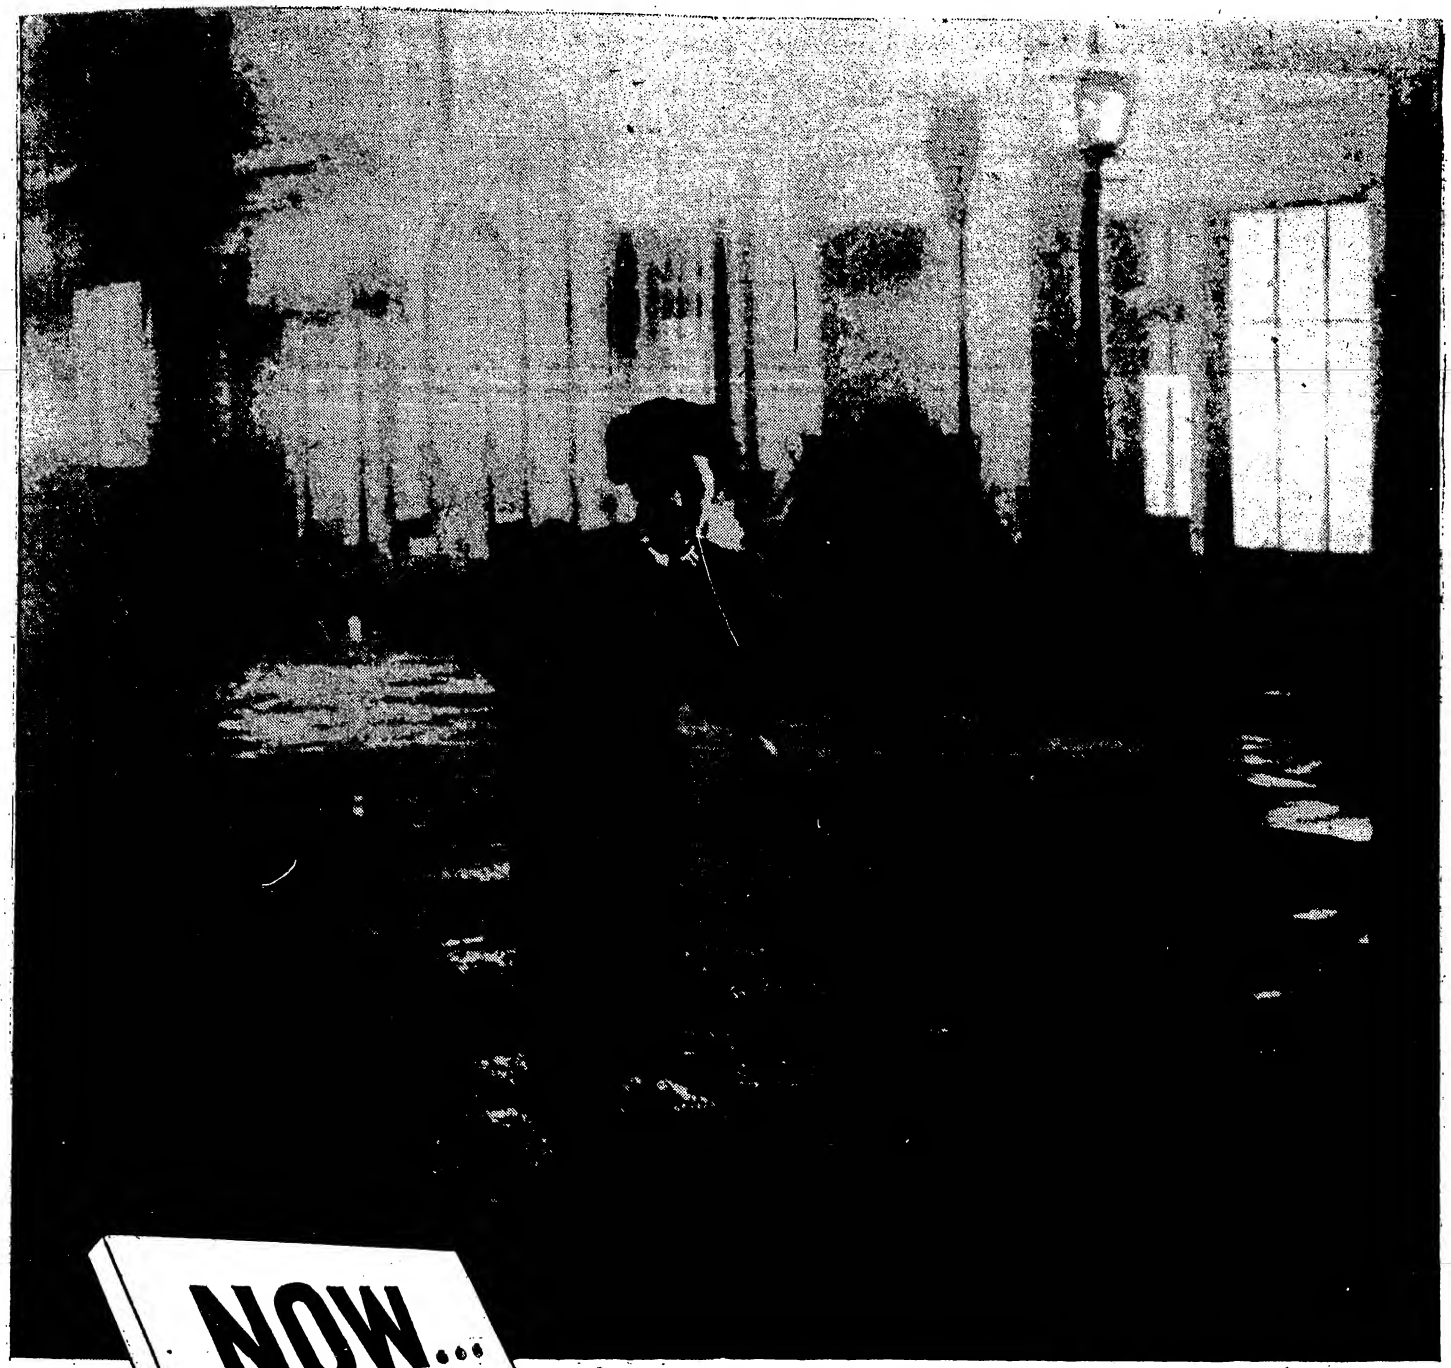
35MM • 16MM • COLOR • BLACK AND WHITE
Pathé Laboratories, Inc. is a subsidiary of Chesapeake Industries, Inc.

Scopes for Viewing 3D Pictures Made to Order on Contract Basis
CAPACITY — MILLIONS WEEKLY
Originator of Automatic and Semi Automatic Processes
FREEDMAN DIE CUTTERS, INC.
285 Lafayette Street, New York 12 WOrth 2-2116



"House of Wax," first all 3-dimensional film to be produced by a major studio, uses 3-dimensional sound system—WarnerPhonic Sound, developed by acoustical experts of RCA and Warner Bros.

NOW... 3-DIMENSIONAL SOUND

in this exciting 3-D motion picture!

Most exciting development since motion pictures began, 3-Dimensional movies now become even more realistic with the addition of 3-dimensional stereophonic sound.

Born in the acoustical laboratories of RCA, brought to perfection through the teamwork of RCA and Warner Bros. experts, the new system will be known as WarnerPhonic Sound and has its world première on April 10th at the Paramount Theatre with "House of Wax."

Now, as actors move across the motion picture screen, even into the theatre where you are sitting, their voices and their footsteps move with them. You're right in the midst of the action . . .

To create this depth, RCA and Warner Bros. developed a quadruple sound track system. In addition to the conventional optical track, WarnerPhonic Sound uses three more sound tracks on magnetically coated film. As action demands, voices come from speakers at left, right, and center of the screen—as well as from speakers placed at strategic points in the theatre. At the Paramount Theatre, twenty-five high-fidelity speakers will be used, matching the sound to the hearing power of the human ear.

* * *

Development of "3-D" sound is another example of RCA research and engineering leadership. It's so real that only hearing is believing. New York gets that opportunity, with the opening of "House of Wax," in WarnerColor, at the Paramount, April 10th.

RCA®

RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA

World leader in radio — first in television

L.A. Stations Hit Vidpix Jackpot, Sharing 70 Sponsored Telefilms

Hollywood, April 7

Vidpix programming on Los Angeles' seven stations has boomed up to phenomenal proportions the past six months, with 70 sponsored telefilms on the megacycles as compared to 47 in the fall of 1952, and 25 the previous year, a survey of 10 local stations discloses. With 10 additional telepix shows on a sustaining basis, overall total of 80 is unquestionably an alltime high and reflects the rapid growth of vidpix.

Future looms even brighter for the telefilm field, with several new network shows already set. Upcoming, for example, are "Lux Video Theatre" on film, "Wanted by Washington," and series topplining Barry Sullivan, Cesar Romero and Rod Cameron.

KNBH leads the parade in L. A.'s vidpix programming, with 23 such shows, while KNXT, KECA-TV and KTTV are runnersup with 13 each. KTLA and KHJ-TV each have seven vidfilm shows, while KLAC-TV is at the bottom of the list with four. Indie stations are particularly hot to get the telepix shows, and KTTV manager Dick Moore has probably expressed the opinion of all indie chiefs when he states his station prefers vidpix because they provide economical programming which many times features names an indie could never nab for a live show.

Telepix shows currently seen locally are as follows, around the TV dial:

KNXT: "I Love Lucy," "Four Star Playhouse," "Our Miss Brooks," "Range Rider," "Schlitz Playhouse of Stars," Gene Autry, "Private Secretary," Burns & Allen, "My Little Margie," "Amos 'n' Andy," "Mr. and Mrs. North," "Racket Squad," "Big Town."

KNBH: "Dragnet," "Ford Theatre," "Your Jewelers' Showcase," "Fireside Theatre," "Gruen Theatre (re-runs), "I Married Joan," "This Is the Life," "My Hero," "Foreign Intrigue," "Boston Blackie," "Cavalcade of America," "Hollywood Offbeat," "Short Short Dramas," Snader Te'escriptions, Red Skelton, Roy Rogers, "The Doctor," "Jump Jump" (part live), "Victory at Sea," "Dangerous Assignment," "Big Story," "Dick Tracy."

KTLA: "Wild Bill Hickok," "Broadway Playhouse" (re-runs), "Smilin' Ed's Gang," "Star Theatre" (re-runs), "Roving Camera."

KECA-TV: "Sky King," "Superman," "The Unexpected," "Mystery Theatre," "China Smith," "Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," "Lone Ranger," "Buelah," Stu Erwin show, "Kit Carson," "Cisco Kid," "Famous Playhouse" (reruns), "Play of the Week" (re-runs).

KHJ-TV: "Craig Kennedy," "Fearless Fosdick," "Little Theatre," Snader Telescriptions, "Double Play," "From Hollywood" (reruns), Buster Crabbe.

KTTV: Chevron Theatre, "Death Valley Days," "Hopalong Cassidy," "Favorite Story," Abbott & Costello, "Heart of the City" (re-runs), "Ramar of the Jungle," "Life of Riley," "Front Page Detective," "Meet Your Congress," "March of Time," "Terry and the Pirates," "Startime Theatre," (re-runs).

KLAC-TV: "I Am the Law," Hank McCune, Charles Laughton, "Invitation Playhouse."

KHJ-TV has five sustainers on its vidpix sked, KTTV two, KNBH and KTLA one each.

Sinatra's Drama Series for Telepix

Hollywood, April 7.

Negotiations are under way for Frank Sinatra to star in an upcoming Desilu telepix series tentatively titled "Blues in the Night," a dramatic human interest story about a musician. Pilot rolls within month with the series aimed at a fall start.

Desilu is offering two shows to Philip Morris as a summer replacement for "Lucy." One is an Eddie Quillan comedy format telefilm. The other is "The Whiting Girls," starring Margaret and Barbara Whiting in a live domestic comedy. Whichever is used will, if it makes good, be prepped for a fall series.

Loretta Young Pilot

Hollywood, April 7.

Loretta Young's TV starring series went before the cameras for its first pilot. NBC has given the test film $30,000 budget on a three-day shooting schedule at RKO-Pathe studio.

Tom Lewis, husband of Miss Young, produces with Robert Florey directing. Series is tagged "Letter to Loretta" and package is being handled by William Morris agency.

TE's Distrib Rights On Vidpic Bundle

Television Exploitation, headed by Oliver Unger as general manager, last week obtained exclusive distribution rights to six big TV film properties, most first run, and immediately planned a sales meeting in New York for next week to discuss expansion of its sales force.

Properties acquired by TE are: "M. D.," first-run series of five minutes daily, offering guidance in prevention of illness, produced in cooperation with the American Medical Assn. and county medical associations in the U. S. and Canada by F. William Hart, in Washington; "Gulliver and the Little People," first-run Leo Seltzer series, for a weekly half-hour series; "Capsule Operas," 13½ minute first-run condensations of famous operas produced by Metropa Film Co. in Rome, with Italian and American opera singers and Jacques Rachmiloyich's 60-piece symphonic orchestra.

Thirty-four feature films, of which 13 are first releases, including such titles as "Four Days Leave," starring Cornel Wilde, "Captain Sirocco," starring Louis Hayward, "Miraculous Journey," starring Rory Calhoun, "The Lovable Cheat," starring Charlie Ruggles, and "Fame Is the Spur," starring Michael Redgrave; "The Roller Derby," half-hour once-a-week, produced by Leo Seltzer; "Washington Spotlight," 15-minute discussions between columnist Marquis Childs and prominent guests, produced in Washington by Milton Hammer.

TE general manager Unger was former exec veepee with Snader Productions, and National Sales Director Harold Goldman is ex-Eastern Sales Manager for Snader Telescription Sales.

SET 'MIKE MALLOY' AS TV FILM SERIES

Hollywood, April 7.

Formation of Mike Malloy Productions, new vidpix outfit, was announced this week by toppers of the firm, who include actor Steve Brodie; Glenn Miller, former production manager for Jerry Fairbanks and Filmcraft Productions; Al Gannaway, producer and thesp; Fred Eggers, former Metro writer; Virgil Miller, motion picture cameraman and Tom Hubbard, former Liberty Network exec.

Firm is contracting for space at RKO-Pathe studios and will begin a series of 39 half-hour productions titled "Mike Malloy," with Brodie starring. Gannaway will produce and direct while Eggers and Hubbard script the detective series. Pilot has been shot and remainder will be filmed following completion of "Burning Arrow" by Warners, in which Brodie is featured.

Second series, also whodunits, is being readied by the firm.

WPIX 'Jungle' Sale

Miracle Adhesives will sponsor a twice-weekly series of 15-minute jungle films in WPIX, N. Y., Daily News station. Series, titled "Jungle Macabre," was produced by Radio & Television Packagers, with Richard I. Gart of the American Museum of Natural History as technical director.

Films are distributed by Cayton, Inc.

Conti Axes Lilli Palmer

Birmingham, Castleman and Pierce Inc., for Conti Products, is dropping the Lilli Palmer show from the Sunday afternoon spot on WCBS-TV, N. Y., after April 5.

Reason is to avoid the baseball competition starting on following Monday. The agency is shopping for another time.

Front & Rear Screen Projection Rule May Cue Drive by IATSE

The National Labor Relations Board last week ruled in favor of the International Alliance of Theatre Stage Employes (AFL) in a jurisdictional dispute, over front and rear screen projection, with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL). Since an IBEW strike last September, CBS in New York had IATSE men doing the work with IBEW men as standbys.

Ruling opened the probability of a IATSE drive to move in on screen-projection operations at NBC and ABC, where NABET men handle that work. In a recent NLRB decision, IATSE was awarded jurisdiction over "special effects projectors" at NBC. NABET, losing that case, contends that front and rear screen projection is another matter and still within its jurisdiction.

BBC'S TELE HEAD SETS U.S. FILM NEWS DEALS

After concluding deals making British Broadcasting Corp. news films available in America, George Barnes, BBC's Director of Television Broadcasting, flew back last week to London, where today (Wed.) he will have a press showing of three half-hour pre-Coronation BBC films to be put on the American television market by William Morris Agency.

BBC deals here included agreements with Telenews and NBC on an exchange purchase of news films.

In his American stay, Barnes spent a week each in Canada, New York, the West Coast and Washington.

Mariner Productions' New Art Film for TV

New motion-picture and tele film outfit, Mariner Productions, formed in Hollywood, has just finished a 26-minute art film for commercial release. Title is "Rime of the Ancient Mariner," with full text of Samuel Coleridge's poem narrated by Richard Whorf and Gordon Nelson. Pictures consist of the Gustave Dore illustrations of the Coleridge poem. Original music was composed by Donn Cambern.

The new company, planning to work with the classics, is partnership of Whorf; Thomas Andre, motion-picture director and producer, and novelist-writer Richard G. Hubler.

Henrick's Sports Telepix

Tommy Henrick, the "Old Reliable" of the New York Yankees, has signed to be the regular emcee and narrator of the Telenews sportsreel, "This Week in Sports."

First edition was out yesterday (7).

'Drive-In' TV Station

Phoenix, April 7.

KTYL-TV will begin operation here April 26, upon completion of the station's new studios. Operated by Harry L. Nace, Sr., and his son, Harry L. Nace, Jr., along with Dwight Harkins, KTYL-TV is expected to provide coverage for 60% of the state's population residing in the central Arizona belt.

New studios feature a plate-glass front facing a parking area, from which transients can watch programming and technical operations of the station. It's a "drive-in" adaptation from the film ozoners. Building contains two studios for live programming, as well as film and special effects rooms. Station has appointed Avery-Knodel as its representatives.

Prices Soaring for Film Names; Seen Curbing Coast Telepix Pacts

Hollywood, April 7.

Only five telepix companies are now bidding for top film names as a result of soaring prices. Save for those still under contract to the majors, virtually all names are now available and interested, and one vidfilm producer predicted the "price will keep going up."

Agents report top prices are being paid by Screen Gems for its "Ford Theatre" series; Meridian Pictures for the "Schlitz Playhouse"; Sovereign Productions for General Electric; in some instances Revue Productions.

"Four Star" Productions, which has Dick Powell, David Niven and Ronald Colman as regulars, is understood to cut thesps in for healthy participation. Top price reported by agents recently is Gross-Krasne's $5,000 for Ann Sheridan for "Lux Theatre." Others include Sovereign's $3,500 for Broderick Crawford; Screen Gems' $3,500 for Louis Hayward, $4,000 for Merle Oberon, $3,000 for Scott Brady, and $3,500 for Mark Stevens.

Meridian has a $2,500 top for names but it is understood that the firm will go higher for topdrawer names. Rod Cameron and Barry Sullivan are reportedly drawing $1,000 each for upcoming vidpix series at Revue but it is understood that each has a participation deal.

Revue has inked Joan Crawford, Ray Milland, Ronald Reagan and Dennis Morgan for "America's Finest," probably on participation. Miss Crawford nixed very attractive flat offers because she prefers sharing.

NBC Buys 2 Series

Hollywood, April 7.

NBC-TV has closed a deal with Richard Johnston, former production exec at Paramount, to put into production at Hal Roach studio two telepix series to be supervised by Robert Welch, net's executive producer. Each of the pilots carries budget of around $23,000.

Test pictures are "I and Claudia" and "Mr. Mosby, Private Citizen," the latter scripted by Robert Riley Crutcher.

Tuttle Exits UTP, Goes It on Own

Willson M. (Bill) Tuttle is resigning as president of United Television Programs to set up his own vidpix production firm. Jerry King, partner in UTP and one of the original founders, steps down from his board chairmanship to assume the presidency, leaving the former post vacant. King will continue to headquarter on the Coast, at UTP's main offices.

Tuttle's move was prompted by a desire to get into the production end of the business, he said. He's currently scouting a couple of properties for possible filming, but hasn't lined up anything definite yet. He's also talking partnership deals with couple of vidpix gentry.

UTP exit was on amicable terms, Tuttle said. He explained he couldn't go into indie production and remain prexy of the firm, since UTP distributes other producers' products. Tuttle said he would turn over his own productions to UTP for distribution. There's also a possibility he'll go into live programming once his vidpix stake is solidified.

WNBT 'Enchanted Gate' Set for TV in France

French television has accepted deal with WNBT, N. Y., to take 13 kinescopes of "Through the Enchanted Gate," the New York station's project with the Museum of Modern Art, for showing in France. WNBT will get a print. NBC key will be sending six copies of "Gate" this month, followed by seven next month.

Par's Coast Teleblurb Splurge for 'Ofl Limits'

Hollywood, April 7.

Paramount spent approximately $2,800 on a 12-hour TV saturation blurb campaign Saturday plugging "Off Limits" on three L. A. stations, in campaign believed to be studio's biggest ever in this area for one day. When "Road to Bali" opened recently, studio spent $2,500 on teleblurbs in single day.

TV spot campaign was on KLAC-TV, KTLA and KECA-TV, with the plugs tossed in chiefly on sports and juve shows. Film clips were seen on two 20-second spots, with a theatre blurb the third plug. "Limits" opened Easter Sunday at seven theatres in this area.

Prockter's 2 New Ones

Summer production is planned for two telepix series by Bernard J. Prockter, president of Prockter Television Enterprises. Series are "International Police" and an untitled situation comedy starring Walter Brennan.

Pilot has been completed on the Brennan pic, and scripts for the remaining 12 are being written. Series goes before the cameras in August in Hollywood. Shooting on first 13 "Police" films starts June 15 in London, Paris, Rome, Berlin, Brussels and Geneva. Additional 13 in series dealing with work of police of various countries will be shot in Hollywood starting July 20.

Pontiac's Houston Vidpix

Houston, April 7.

Pontiac Dealers of Houston will sponsor a 26-week series on KPRC-TV starting on April 26 of "Craig Kennedy Criminologist."

This is a first run TV series and will be telecast for 30 minutes.

Esso Sets Vidpix For 35 Markets

Esso has bought series of 26 15-minute films, as yet unmade, for spotting in 35 markets from Screen Gems, Columbia Pictures tele subsidiary. Series, which will star sportscaster Bill Stern, will be made by Screen Gems and Telenews Productions and will be called "The Big Playback."

SG and Telenews go into production of the series immediately for May 15 kickoff. Telenews will supply clips for the series, which has Stern answering requests for filmed versions of great sporting events, while SG will film the other sequences. Stern, incidentally, has made sports shorts for Columbia.

Esso pact was set by Robert Foreman of BBD&O and John Mitchell for Screen Gems. Two film outfits will share profits evenly.

Judge Halts TV Release Of 8 '48-'49 Indie Pix

Los Angeles, April 7.

Judge John D. Ford, in Superior Court, issued an injunction against TV distribution of eight pictures. Named in the injunction are Chesapeake Industries, United Artists, Eagle-Lion-Classics, Eagle Lion Films, Pictorial Films, Motion Pictures for Television and Motion Pictures Unlimited.

Films, all released in 1948-49, are: "Enchanted Valley," "Alimony," "Headin' For Heaven," "Parole, Inc.," "Ride, Ryder, Ride," "Roll, Thunder, Roll," "The Fighting Redhead" and "The Cowboy and the Prizefighter." Injunction holds until litigation is settled.

McCaffery, Fennelly TV Shows Packaged

Firm of Lordan & Lyons, new packaging outfit, has two new television shows on the market. First is an interview-type program with would-be authors as guests, featuring John K. M. McCaffery and Betsy Barton, author-daughter of Bruce Barton. It's called "I Could Write a Book."

Second show is a humorous detective series for both radio and TV starring Parker Fennelly, who was Fred Allen's Titus Moody and featuring Evelyn Varden. Series, scripted by Gerald Holland, is based on the Asey Mayo character in the whodunits of Phoebe Atwood Taylor.

P&G'S 'GO DAYTIME' IN TV, TOO

Another Empire State for TV?

There are real Buck Rogers overtones to the present dilemma confronting New York TV stations using the transmitter atop the Empire State Building. Renewals on the leases are about to come up. Affected, among others, are NBC and CBS, along with ABC, DuMont and WPIX. NBC and CBS pay about $80,000 a year for space on the transmitter. (Because they were late entries, WOR-TV and WATV, Newark, fees are temporarily frozen.)

Empire State owners have served notice they're going to hike the fee, and it's understood it'll reach some stratospheric figure bordering on the $200,000 figure per station. The stations are balking over the proposed boost and there's already talk of initiating some overtures looking toward a new location and erecting a new transmitter to be owned jointly by the TV stations. This would involve building a steel tower matching in height the Empire State transmitter.

It would be built within the New York City confines, since the Civil Aeronautics Administration ban on low flying over the city makes Manhattan the ideal transmitter site (if the land can be acquired.)

CBS-TV's Thurs. Dilemma Accents Alternate-Week Sponsorship Risk

CBS-TV eased itself out of an awkward and costly Thursday night dilemma last week when Singer Sewing Machine put in an order for an additional $750,000 in network time to sponsor "Four Star Playhouse" on a weekly, instead of alternate-week basis. But the situation has only served to throw into sharp focus the inherent dangers stemming from the sale of half-hour TV time segments on an every-other-week basis.

Blatz Beer's cancellation of the "Amos 'n' Andy" vidpic series threw the 8:30-to-9 period into the open market on alternate weeks, with the Singer firm sharing the time with its "Four Star."

For several weeks CBS-TV was unable to peddle the period on the every-other-week basis. Overtures had been made to the network by Old Gold, which had expressed interest in moving its "Chance Of A Lifetime" over from ABC-TV. However, "Chance" is a weekly presentation and OG was only interested in getting the CBS time on the same basis.

Singer's contract for the alternate-week time extended into September and the firm had no intention of relinquishing the time. Nor was Singer ready to commit itself for a weekly ride without reappraising its budget.

Last week the order finally came through, but it hasn't completely eliminated those "why be half safe?" network jitters.

'Cavalcade' Ends 18 Yr. Radio Run

"Cavalcade of America," the duPont-sponsored dramatic series which has been riding the NBC radio airlanes for the past 18 years, rang down its final curtain last Tuesday (31) night, and it was an occasion for backstage festivities presided over by Walter Hampden and attended by client, agency (BBD&O) and network execs. Hampden played the lead on both the first "Cavalcade" stanza and last Tuesday's closing chapter.

Program this year was converted into a filmed TV series, sponsored on an alternate-week basis on NBC and representing a time-talent outlay of approximately $60,000 weekly. High cost of the video stanza was a major factor in the decision to lop off the long-running radio show. However, there's a slim possibility that the AM program may return in the fall, according to agency execs.

'Bob & Kay' to WNBQ

Chicago, April 7.

WNBQ, Chi's NBC local, has acquired the "Bob and Kay" show. Show, which consists mainly of the chatter-interview type format, will be telecast over WNBQ April 20.

Kay Westfall and Bob Murphy were inked April 1 by web veepee Harry Kopf.

More Chi CBS Exits

Chicago, April 7.

Three more Chi CBS staffers handed in their resignations last week—Dorothy Miller, educational director, Sam Paxton, WBBM publicity chief, and Lee Salberg, WBBM-TV assistant promotion director.

Web has not named replacements.

Murrow's New TV Show a Poser For Sponsors, Network

How many news programs can a newsman do, even when the newsman is Edward R. Murrow? And what firm gets "Person to Person," Murrow's new tele show?

These are the puzzlers confronting CBS and Murrow's two sponsors—the American Oil Co. (on radio) and the Aluminum Co. of America (on the TV "See It Now").

Murrow wants to get his new program, in the planning since last year, on the air in the fall. Show is being kept under wraps until the tele unveiling, and is live in more ways than one. It will use pick-

(Continued on page 36)

BEULAH, SKELTON JOIN CASUALTIES

By GEORGE ROSEN

Procter & Gamble, for many years the top bankroller in broadcasting, with radio-TV billings last season topping the $25,000,000 mark, is in the process of reappraising and reshuffling its multi-faceted stake in the video programming sweepstakes. On the basis of present negotiations, the No. 1 spender appears to be easing itself out of the nighttime picture and repeating in TV its quarter-century doctrine for radio—"play to the housewife and go daytime." That P & G is placing renewed faith in daytime television is regarded as one of the major commercial booms for the industry. It's especially heartening to NBC-TV, which has more gaping daytime availabilities than it cares to talk about, for Benton & Bowles, one of the key P & G agencies, is already blueprinting a new cross-the-board show for its client for NBC-TV showcasing.

This is in addition to the brace of CBS-TV soap operas, "Search for Tomorrow" and "Guiding Light," as well as its participation in the Garry Moore show. NBC is currently reaping the rewards of a fat chunk of P & G daytime billings with its "Welcome Travelers" show, with considerable more P & G coin to be siphoned into

(Continued on page 30)

Skelton's Lopoff

Procter & Gamble's cancellation of Red Skelton doesn't come as any surprise. It represents one of the major casualties in the live-to-film transition of shows. Last season, in the Sunday at 10 NBC-TV slot on a live basis, Skelton enjoyed a Top 5 Nielsen status. This year in his filmed comedics in the Sunday at 7 period, the program was out of the running (with the comic's illness and hospitalization also throwing him for a loss.)

P & G wanted to put Skelton back at Sunday at 10 next season (since Paul Winchell is going into the 7 o'clock time for the sponsor), but Skelton balked at the shift back to live, with the resultant cancellation. P & G's "The Doctor" occupies Sunday at 10. Whether it stays next season is problematic.

CBS-TV's 'Good Thursday' Jackpot; Shriner, 'Favorite Husband' Sales

In one of its big days, CBS-TV last Thursday (2) concluded a brace of major deals designed to solidify the web's Saturday night program structure and hitting the $5,000,000 time-talent billings jackpot.

P. Lorillard for Old Golds, through Lennen & Newell, signed to transfer Herb Shriner's "Two for the Money," a Goodson-Todman package, from NBC-TV to CBS come August.

Simmons and International Silver, through Young & Rubicam, bought "My Favorite Husband," starring Joan Caulfield and Barry Nelson, for alternating sponsorship beginning in October.

These pacts, coupled with Singer's $750,000 decision to back "Four Star Playhouse" each week instead of alternate weeks, approximate the $5,000,000 tally for time and programming on a 40-week basis.

The new CBS-TV shows will be pitched at competition for "Your Show of Shows," with "Two for the Money" at 9 p. m. and "My Favorite Husband," the former Lucille Ball airer, to go at 9:30 p.m., giving the web solid commercial entries versus the Max Liebman production for the first time.

In addition to switching "Two for the Money" to CBS, Lorillard bought the new Fred Allen talent-panel show to start on NBC-TV in the fall. Lorillard had originally wanted Allen for "Two for the Money," but Allen decided to take a tele health holiday and firm then went with Shriner. Allen will go into the Tuesday 10 p.m. spot, now occupied by "Two for the Money."

'Goody' Ace's NBC Pact

Goodman (Goody) Ace, chief of the Milton Berle scribes, has been signed to a longterm contract by NBC.

Ace will work on the Berle show next season and also do some writing on a summer show. He will be free to develop his own ideas for new programs, in the creative royalty-sharing program developed by Charles C. (Bud) Barry, web's program veepee.

Berle, Hope Tues. TV Blockbuster (Plus Sherwood)

It'll be Milton Berle, Bob Hope and Robert E. Sherwood as the NBC-TV Tuesday night 8 to 9 talent blockbusster next season, with plans finalized over the weekend for the alternate spotlighting of the big guns.

Berle, flying the General Motors colors, will do his show on a "play-two-weeks-lay-off-one" basis, as detailed in last week's VARIETY, with Hope moving into the time on an every third-week arrangement under General Foods auspices. Berle, in all, will do 26 shows next season, with Hope committed to 10.

The three open weeks rounding out the season will be devoted to the Robert E. Sherwood hour-long original TV dramas (he's doing nine in all spread over a several year-period), and it's possible that General Motors will pick up the tab for the Sherwood series as well as Berle.

For Hope, it poses a herculean assignment, for in addition to his every-third-week TV show, he'll continue his morning cross-the-board NBC radio show (also for General Foods) and his once-a-week nighttime NBC radio stanza. (GF is bowing out of sponsorship on this one because of budgetary reasons, but the network is now in process of wrapping up a new client). All this, plus Hope's Paramount film commitments and his multiple charity-GI benefits, etc.

Markle Exiting 'Studio 1' Berth

CBS-TV is on the prowl for a new producer for its Monday night "Studio One" hour dramatics. Fletcher Markle was brought in a few months back to take over the production reins, but he wants to return to the Coast with his wife, Mercedes McCambridge. (They've already started construction on a Coast house).

For a while there was talk of shifting "Studio One" to Hollywood for a CBS-TV City origination next season, but it's now been decided to keep the dramatic program berthed in New York.

Markle was the second producer to take over "Studio One" reins since Worthington L. (Tony) Miner shifted over to NBC. Prior to Markle, Donald Davis was in command, but after several months CBS was unhappy with the show's results.

Meanwhile, Westinghouse will replace "Studio One" with its "Summer Theatre," beginning June 15. The firm has sponsored the summer series for the last two year.

"Studio One" returns Sept. 21.

BOB & RAY AM SPOOF OF MORGAN-GRAY GAB

Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding) are starting a cross-the-board, postmidnight talkie disk jockey show, beginning May 4, for NBC-Radio.

Program, heard from midnight to 1 a.m. will be a spoof of the Henry Morgan-Barry Gray local shows, with supposed origination from the "Maintenance Room of the Holland Tunnel." It will be offered on a co-op basis, but probably will not be heard on WNBC, N. Y., which will stay with its longhaired symphonies.

Bob & Ray will continue with their WNBC local strip, 6:30 to 6:45 p.m. but "Inside Bob and Ray," on the radio network Saturdays, will bow out in June.

20th Annual

VARIETY

Survey of Radio and Television

Showmanagement

To Be Published Next Week

Hallmark Backs Faith in Longhair TV With 100G for 2-Hr. 'Hamlet'

Because its $2,500,000 annual outlay for longhair-type AM-TV programs has paid off so handsomely in sales, Hallmark Greeting Card Co. this week decided to go it alone in spending $100,000 to bankroll NBC-TV's entire two-hour telecast of "Hamlet" on Sunday, April 26, over at least 40 stations.

Previously, in order to offset the high cost of this cultural venture, NBC-TV was seeking two advertisers, each to pay $75,712 time and talent for one hour of Maurice Evans' version of the Shakespearean drama. However, when all the bankrollers approached refused to take the risk on such a highbrow production, Hallmark stepped into the breach with its solo offer.

Decision marks what Ed Cashman, Hallmark AM-TV supervisor at Foote, Cone & Belding agency, N. Y., hopes will be a beginning recognition among blue-chip advertisers that "longhair TV can pay off not only in prestige, but also in over-the-counter retail sales."

Cashman points out that Hallmark got excellent results with its three-time sponsorship on NBC-TV of Gian Carlo Menotti's opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors," in 1951 and '52. It also has derived profitable returns from its regular Sunday sponsorship of the "Hallmark Hall of Fame," emceed by Lionel Barrymore over 190 CBS-Radio stations, and the "Hall of Fame," emceed by Sarah Churchill over 33 NBC-TV stations. Latter stanzas have dramatized the need to get out and vote, such worthy institutions as the Travelers Aid and the Audubon societies, biographies of Horace Mann, Florence Nightingale, Robert Louis Stevenson.

As a consequence of these airers, and its $50,000 Hallmark Art Awards competition, Cashman points out that Hallmark reached a peak sales record in 1952, selling 1,500,000 cards a day.

Quick Sales Reaction

"When our commercials have demonstrated our May basket, doll's house and Walt Disney pirate ship puzzles," he said, "dealers have reported an immediate sales reaction on Monday. School kids particularly, after listening to one of our educational programs, have created a terrific demand for quality greeting cards. Our dealers throughout the country say that customers mention certain offers referred to on our programs."

From Kansas City, Hallmark's president and founder, 61-year-old Joyce Clyde Hall, son of a Nebraska preacher, concurs that he feels "the U. S. is changing from the most to the least provincial country in the world." Expressing the belief that an untapped, quality audience is open to TV advertisers, Hall says: "Our radio and TV

(Continued on page 36)

'Break Bank' As Fill-in for Berle

As summer replacement for Milton Berle, "Break the Bank," out of its cross-the-board daytime spot, goes into the Tuesday night NBC-TV hot-weather period, with Five-Day Pad as sponsor. "Juvenile Jury" is being mulled as the second half-hour follower.

In the "Show of Shows" Saturday hour and a half, Hoagy Carmichael will emcee a Hollywood talent showcase, beginning June 7.

Ray Anthony's orchestra, with vocalists Bob Eberle and Helen O'Connell, will be the eight-week replacement for Perry Como's Chesterfield show on CBS-TV.

Andy and Della Russell replace Dinah Shore on NBC-TV, July 7 through Oct. 1.

Danish's Mutual Post

Roy Danish, manager of the Western Division of Mutual's station relations department, was named last week director of the network's newly-created Commercial Operations department.

Danish was western division manager since 1949. He'll be assisted by Alma Graef, manager of sales service.

Lawrence & Lee's Musicals

Robert E. (Lawrence &) Lee returned to the Coast last night (Tues.) after huddles with Broadway legiters regarding production of the team's new musical comedy. He also met with Benton & Bowles' Walter Craig to go over plans for an upcoming series of original musicals on "Railroad Hour" airer this summer. It normally uses stock rights operettas.

He was accompanied by his wife, Janet Waldo, radio's Corliss Archer.

ABC-TV $2,000,000 O&O Power Kick

With a boost in power scheduled for April 12 for WABC-TV, N. Y., ABC television network will embark on a power expansion program for its five owned-and-operated stations which upon completion in 1954 will have cost some $2,000,000. Announcement of the plan follows by a week disclosure of a $1,500,000 construction project for the network's San Francisco outlet, and is another in the series of physical improvements planned for the network since its merger with United Paramount Theatres.

Boost in WABC-TV power, which will coincide with the kick-off of the net's "Album" series, will bring station's power to 80,000 radiated watts, a fivefold increase. Station expects to increase its coverage area some 40%.

In May, KECA-TV, L.A. will install a 25-kilowatt amplifier, with WBKB, Chicago, WXYZ-TV, Detroit and KGO-TV, San Francisco, installing similar amplifiers by summer. Following this, ABC will erect new antennas at the stations, and then, by 1954, will have 50-kilowatt transmitters installed in all five stations.

Montgomery Show Exhib On 10-City Store Swing For Wax, Luckies Bally

A special exploitation project, featuring the "Robert Montgomery Presents" show, started a cross-country tour on Monday (6) at Burdine's department store in Miami.

Stunt, dreamed up by the exploitation group of NBC Press Dept., is actually two exhibition units, to be featured in the windows of leading department stores over the nation, of a behind-the-scenes look at the production of a top TV dramatic show. Each package contains photo blowups of the various stages of the program's production, film clips, a scale model of Montgomery's TV stage, working scripts and costumes.

A tieup push, with cooperation of the stores, NBC-TV affiliates and sales personnel of the S. C. Johnson Co., and the American Tobacco Co., Montgomery's sponsors, is already scheduled in 10 cities.

Idea may be used on other show units to whip up local enthusiasm.

STORER'S $2,400,000 ALABAMA STATION BUY

The Storer Broadcasting Co. last week bought stations WBRC and WBRC-TV in Birmingham, Ala., from Mrs. Eloise Smith Hanna for $2,400,000. Sale is subject to FCC approval.

Storer, which moved headquarters to Miami last week, now has seven radio stations and the full quota of five TV stations. The Birmingham stations are NBC affiliates.

It is expected that Storer will now drop pending applications for Miami (Channel 10) and Wheeling (Channel 9).

Thesaurus' Jingles

RCA's Thesaurus has bought the complete Ullman Jingl-Library, consisting of 1,600 transcribed commercial jingles, and will make it available through Thesaurus to station subscribers.

MUTUAL HAS OWN FORMULA: 15-5 PLAN

Mutual this week set up an alternating sponsor plan for its co-op department that's the first step in the expansion of the now autonomous division headed by Bert Hauser. Plan, named the "15-5 Plan," calls for local sponsors pacted on a cross-the-board basis, to alternate from day to day on five Mutual co-op news shows.

Under the setup, local station would pact 15 advertisers on a cross-the-board basis. These would be grouped in threes. On Mondays first group of three would sponsor Fulton Lewis, while second group bankrolled Cedric Foster, the third Robert Hurleigh, the fourth Cecil Brown and the fifth the "Mutual Newsreel." They'd alternate on all five shows on that basis. Plan is similar to the network's nationally-sponsored "Multi-Message Plan."

Local advertisers would get one announcement each on each of the 15-minute shows, plus opening and closing identifications. Package rates would vary with each station. Entire plan calls for sale of over six hours of local time per week.

Hauser is also surveying the network's entire co-op structure in a move to eliminate the weaker shows and strengthen the better ones. He's also looking at new shows for possibilities as co-ops.

NBC, ABC Meet In New Bid to Avert Strike by NABET

Joint NBC-ABC management discussion of grievances with the National Assn. of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians (CIO) will be resumed today (Wed.) with the arrival in New York from Chicago, NABET national headquarters, of George Maher, the union's exec secretary.

Meetings, which were temporarily halted by Maher's press of other business at Chicago, will be resumed at the Warwick Hotel. Talks, which have gone on fore more than a week, began at the Belmont-Plaza.

The metro New York chapter of NABET has threatened a shutdown at least twice in recent weeks over the prolonged grievance proceedings. To counter this possibility, it's reported that NBC is grooming 50 to 60 people as replacements in an accelerated course at the School of Radio Technique, Inc.

Grievances, union spokesmen said, include among the major items (1) disposition of eight NABET members at KOA, Denver, which NBC sold last year to Metropolitan Television, (2) discussion of institution of an ABC pension plan, like that at NBC, now that the United Paramount Theatre merger has taken ABC out of the poverty class.

ABC Radio Preps Summer Lineup

ABC Radio is beginning to set its summer programming schedule, with three programs already set for hiatus-period airing. Web has scheduled "Front Row Center," a panel show; "Platter Brains," a record quiz and chatter stanza, and "ABC Promenade Symphony," with the ABC Symphony and Jan Peerce as host.

Latter tees off next Monday (13) in the spot occupied by "Rex Maupin." It will feature ABC conductors Bernard Green, Glen Osser and Ralph Norman. "Platter Brains" will feature music critic Leonard Feather, and replaces "Smilin' Ed McConnell and His Buster Brown Gang" in the Saturday all a.m. slot. "Front Row Center" will have Betty Furness, Emily Kimbrough, Mercedes McCambridge, Neil Hamilton and Eloise McElhone as rotating panelists discussing various facets of showbiz.

"Front Row Center" replaces "Sparring Partners," Lester Lewis package with Miss McElhone and Walter Kiernan. "Partners" is being considered as a tele show by the network. Lewis also packages "Front Row Center."

TV Station's Effect on Community

Washington, April 7.

What does a TV station mean to a community? As told to the House Committee on Appropriations by FCC Chairman Paul A. Walker, in testimony released last week, the following happens:

"Within two years after a station goes on the air the great majority of families in the community buy TV sets ranging in price from $200 to $400. This in turn creates business for the local retailer, the local radio serviceman, and the local public utility. The TV station is also helping local merchants by bringing to the community a new and effective medium to stimulate the sale of their goods.

"Moreover, the station which may have invested from $250,000 to well over $1,000,000 in going on the air—and that means creating a market for manufacturers of towers, antennas, tubes, cameras, and all the other variety of equipment which goes to make up a station—is a going enterprise in the community. It is a source of entertainment, news and information—an outlet for local groups—a dramatic means of tieing in that community with the national community.

"And the station is paying out annually anywhere from $200,000 to over $1,000,000 in wages and salaries to local technicians, salesmen, entertainers, and other station personnel as well as paying taxes of one form or another to the local, State and Federal governments."

Sen. Tobey Moving In to Protect Educ'l TV From Commercial Grab

Washington, April 7.

A legislative move, to protect the set-aside of educational TV channels against possible encroachment by commercial interests, is believed to be under way by Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R-N.H.) of the powerful Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, which has jurisdiction over the FCC. It's expected that the subject will be explored when members of the FCC meet with the Committee at an executive session Sen. Tobey has called for April 16.

Indication of the move appeared at a Committee hearing last week on confirmation of John C. Doerfer as a member of the FCC. In questioning Doerfer on his views on educational TV, Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) said he felt "very strongly" that the nation would lose a great opportunity in the educational field "unless we are protected by FCC or by act of Congress."

Sen. Tobey's views on the subject were revealed in his reply to fears expressed by Sen. John M. Butler (R-Md.) that reservations of educational channels in some communities would result in one station having a monopoly in the com-

(Continued on page 36)

TV Throws Out 1st Ball

Baseball season will get a solid video sendoff next Monday (13), with one network and several independent stations picking up the season's opener, the Yankees vs. the Senators, from Washington. Network is ABC-TV, while indies will carry a feed from WTTG, Du-Mont's owned-and operated station in Washington.

Falstaff Beer, through Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, is carrying the tab on ABC-TV coverage in the south and midwest. Remainder of the ABC stations will have local sponsorship.

CBS-TV Expands News, Pub Affairs

The CBS-TV news and public affairs department, headed by Sig Mickelson, is in the process of expansion.

About 11 men have been added to the production staff of the "Adventure" show, the Museum of Natural History project debuting in May, which is under the wing of producer Perry (Skee) Wolf.

Another dozen are joining "The Search" unit, CBS-TV project in cooperation with 26 leading universities scheduled for the fall, headed by producer Roy Lockwood.

About 12 more men, most of them camera crews, are being hired for the CBS-TV news film section, which will be the web's own operation to replace the Telenews service.

Also in the works is the transfer of newsman Walter Cronkite from Washington to New York, where it is said he will start a new CBS-TV news show in the fall. Cronkite, formerly moderator of the "Man of the Week" program, is now on "You Are There" and also has a WTOP-TV news show locally in Washington.

Luckies, Schaefer Into New Haven for Dodgers

Lucky Strike and Schaefer Beer will extend their television coverage of the Brooklyn Dodger games via weekend pickups by WNHC-TV in New Haven. Games are currently aired by WOR-TV and WMGM on radio.

WHNC-TV will pick up the games via wire from WOR-TV. New Haven station will carry games on weekends only, and in case of double-headers, will carry the first game. Pact was set via BBD&O, which agents Luckies and Schaefer on its regular AM-TV sponsorship of the contests.

NBC-TV's 'Say When' Option

NBC-TV has taken an option on "Say When," a Lester Lewis package starring Walter Kiernan.

Audience-participation giveaway contestants will decide the amount to be won—if question is answered correctly—on a slot machine.

RCA's TV Color Show for Solons

A 20-minute demonstration of the RCA color television system will be viewed by members of the House Committee on Interstate Commerce, the Federal Communications Commission and a limited number of the press next Tuesday (14) at Princeton, N. J.

For the occasion, a special NBC program, with Dolores Gray as mistress of ceremonies and featuring Kukla, Fran & Ollie and Burton's Love Birds, will be telecast from the Colonial Theatre in New York City. Clark Jones will direct the show, which will include production numbers.

After the noon color demonstration, designed to prove the feasibility of the RCA color system over a distance of some 50 miles, the Governmental representatives will visit RCA laboratories at Princeton and then motor or entrain to the Colonial for a view of the color equipment setup.

At the theatre all the orchestra seats have been removed to form a giant color-television stage. Audience sits in the second and third balconies. Large viewing monitors have been erected above the stage lighting.

Martha Lou Harp As ABC Disk Jock

ABC radio has set Martha Lou Harp for a Saturday afternoon disk jockey show starting April 18. Move was made following dropping of her live-music "Dream Harbor," which was on the net four nights weekly, to make room for the Virgil Pinkley news show.

Program will be built during the summer with an eye toward making it a regular fall entry. Gal just completed an album for Columbia.

NBC, CBS, ABC'S TV STAR JAG

Godfrey's Time Runneth Over

CBS-TV was confronted with one of those trigger-mind decision dilemmas last Wednesday night (1) when Arthur Godfrey failed to sign off on his hour "Godfrey & Friends" show at the 9' o'clock signal and ran over for an additional 90 seconds into the Colgate "Strike It Rich" show.

Ordinarily CBS would have cut him off on time, but the fact that Godfrey was in the midst of a solemn finale attending the Easter season posed a problem. Weighing the possibility of both Colgate and affiliate squawks against the certainty of viewer protests over interrupting the Godfrey bit with its sacred overtones, the network played along with the Godfrey time extension. As it turned out, Colgate got in its initial commercial, only a couple of stations committed to local sponsor station-break announcements cut him off and CBS accepted Godfrey's plea that he "couldn't see the clock."

Doerfer Rides Into FCC Atop Wave of Congressional Eulogies

Washington, April 7.

The first member of the FCC to be appointed by a Republican president will take office this week, when John C. Doerfer, former chairman of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission, takes over the desk occupied by Eugene Merrill, an interim appointee. Doerfer was confirmed by the Senate last week following a unanimous recommendation by the Senate Committee ol Interstate Commerce.

Doerfer's nomination was highly endorsed before the Committee by Gov. Walter Kohler of Wisconsin and Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.). Gov. Kohler testified that Doerfer is "a man of the utmost integrity, honesty and conscientiousness . . . , a hard worker . . . . fair and just," who "will make decisions on the basis of facts" and "will not yield to pressure."

When Doerfer said he knew little about the FCC, Committee Chairman Charles W. Tobey declared: "It is just as well, because I think it is the weakest Commission in Washington, and I hope you will strengthen it. I believe you will."

Sen. Wiley told the Committee that Democratic as well as Republican newspapers in Wisconsin agree that Doerfer is an "outstanding" man for the FCC. Among editorials he submitted from leading papers was one from the Milwaukee Journal, which said of Doerfer that "nobody, politician or otherwise, has been able to push him around."

Questioned by Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) as to Doerfer's record in Wisconsin for expediting cases, Gov. Kohler said it was "excellent."

There are now two avowed Republicans on the Commission—Rosel Hyde and George Sterling. By appointing Doerfer as an Independent, President Eisenhower could select Republicans for the Commission when terms of two Democratic members expire (Comr. Paul A. Walker and Frieda Hennock). Under the law, not more than four members of the agency may be of the party in power.

Pepperell Buys Coronation on AM

First radio-only sponsor commitment for the Coronation came last week when Pepperell Manufacturing Co., sheet makers, bought 90 minutes of Coronation broadcasts on ABC. Sheet company will sponsor a half-hour before and after the religious ceremony and half of a full-hour evening broadcast giving highlights of the event.

ABC will start radio coverage of the event at 5:30 a.m, on June 2, with Pepperell scheduled to come in about .6 a.m. for a half-hour, then about 8 a.m. at conclusion of the Westminster Abbey ceremonies for another half-hour.

Network will present a taped version of highlights in the evening, of which Pepperell bankrolls the second half. First half is still open. ABC-TV is currently dickering for a bankroller for its early morning (8 a.m.) broadcast featuring shortwave audio from London, with Mary Margaret McBride, and stills on the video side.

'Hornblower' for ABC

ABC radio has bought the "Captain Horatio Hornblower" series, starring Michael Redgrave, for a fall showcasing. CBS aired the series last year.

It's a Towers of London package.

Fore-Aft Baseball TV Billings 600G Windfall in N.Y.

Nearly as important to New York tele stations as carrying of baseball games are the billings derived from the pre- and post-game adjacencies, which have become a $600,000 annual time-and-talent proposition.

With pacting last week of N. Y. Lincoln-Mercury Dealers to bankroll a 10-minute post-Giant game show with Frankie Frisch on WPIX, and signing of Studebaker Dealers as cosponsor of Happy Felton's 15-minute "Talk to the Stars" wrapup of Dodger games, on WOR-TV there's 'only one vacancy left in the six fore and aft periods on the two stations carrying the games of the three clubs.

Only available spot is Laraine Day's pre-Giant game period on WPIX, and station sales toppers say that's a cinch to be sold be-

(Continued on page 36)

Slate Bros. Ask 300G For Ritz Bros.' Use Of Baseball Skit on TV

Los Angeles, April 7.

Charging the Ritz Bros. with pirating one of their skits, the Slate Bros., Henry, Syd and Jack, filed suit for $300,000 in Superior Court and asked an injunction restraining further use of the material. Named as co-defendants were writer Sid Kuller, NBC and Colgate.

Plaintiffs declared they created a baseball pantomime in 1946 and have used it repeatedly since. They charge the Ritz Bros. with using it without permission on "Colgate Comedy Hour" Feb. 23.

REVLON HAS CHANGE OF HEART ON FROMAN

Jane Froman sponsorship situation for next season is still being resolved, with possibility now existing that Revlon will return as a co-bankroller with General Electric. Revlon, which sponsors the Tuesday 15-minute segment (GE has the Thursday time) had previously wanted out in favor of a half-hour program, with GE subsequently expressing interest in moving in for both the Tuesday and Thursday slots.

As of this week, however, Revlon appeared to have a change of heart and may stick.

RACE FOR TALENT MOVES INTO HIGH

The ABC-UPT merger, like a delayed-action bomb, has finally set off the big explosion in television. With CBS-TV, after an ominous silence in the talent bidding, snatching away Herb Shriner and his "Two for the Money" from NBC-TV (for the fall), there has now developed a three-way race for talent and programs that may eclipse the last big fuss, CBS' raid of NBC stars back in 1948-49.

The moves and countermoves are being made fast and furiously. To the loss of Shriner, NBC is answering by setting a Fred Allen panel show for the fall (both Shriner and Allen sponsored by P. Lorillard for Old Golds). NBC also is bidding hotly for Betty Hutton and other top stars, with stiff competition from ABC, which has already made George Jessel, Ray Bolger, Paul Hartman and Cesar Romero deals. All three webs are eager for Danny Kaye.

The reasons are apparent. Springtime is tele's sowing period for a fall reaping. And the webs, with station clearances one of their major problems, worry about getting into the two-station cities when three networks are operating full blast come the harvest moon.

Activity goes far beyond the actual signing of stars. NBC and CBS have gone through a star jag before. Five years ago CBS "stole" a bale of radio stars from NBC, only to have many of them drift back to NBC television. The latter web then learned, through such an operation as the "All-Star Revue," that stars were not enough.

Now both NBC and CBS are busying themselves in the brain-trust department.

Barry's Baker's Dozen

Charles C. (Bud) Barry, NBC programming topper, is aiming at a writer-producer group numbering about 13. Barry's Baker's Dozen already includes such men as Bob Welsh, Ed Beloin, Joe Bigelow, Sam Fuller, Fred Coe and Robert Montgomery. This group will develop properties and probably participate in the packages.

The NBC fall direction may well be on the situation-comedy and dramatic half-hour roads. Already slated for the fall are "Here Comes Calvin," starring Jack Carson as a vaude actor Calvin Potts with Allen Jenkins his manager, and Jack Webb's "Pete Kelly's Blues," a crime adventure in jazz, which had a 1951 summer radio tryout, set in the Kansas City of the 1920s.

CBS, of course, developed the situation comedy to a big payoff

(Continued on page 36)

'Desilu Playhouse' In ABC Radio Bow

Desilu Productions is moving into the radio field with a package called "Desilu Playhouse," series of dramas and comedies that will star Ronald Colman, Charles Boyer, Dick Powell and a number of other top film names. Package is currently being shaped up by Don Sharpe, Hollywood vidfilm producer and personal manager, who's tied in with Desilu.

ABC has set "Desilu Playhouse" as the title of the first in its new 13-week Playhouse series, which bows April 16. Play and star aren't set yet, but program will be one of the new Desilu programs, possibly with Colman as star.

Colman and Boyer have an interest in the "Four Star Playhouse," currently sponsored by Singer on CBS-TV. Sharpe produces that series, besides his tie with Desilu, and presumably has been able to spot the stars in the AM series that way. He's developing his own story material and selling the shows as complete packages. ABC play will be done live.

Radio Scribe Market at New Low; TV, Re-Runs Killing Freelancers

Hollywood, April 7.

General reduction of program budgets as a result of television competition has plummeted employment of radio scribblers to the lowest level in many years with only 125-150 of the Radio Writers Guild's 425 members under contract. RWG exec secretary Mike Davidson said he was not aware of previous ebb but employment figure is definitely the lowest in 10 years.

Davidson said that while the number of AM shows originating in Hollywood on four webs is still around 60, there's been an increasing trend toward musical shows. Too, six programs are using re-runs. He said "I don't believe we have touched the bottom yet. I think next season will see more radio shows, particularly comedy formats, in television solely."

He pointed out that many top comics are beefing that AM-TV is too much of a grind. The single shot market for freelancers is now "about as dead as it ever will be" with only about three shows accepting such scripts. Among top radio shows which exited i past years: "Club 15," "Duffy's Tavern," "Sam Spade," "Hollywood Star Theatre," "My Favorite Husband," "Life With Luigi," "This Is Your FBI," Screen Guild, "Halls of Ivy," plus Burns and Allen, Dennis Day, Jimmy Durante, "Life of Riley" to teevee.

Another blow to writers is the re-use on "Beulah," "Smilin' Ed McConnell," Judy Canova, Red Skelton, Tarzan, and Clyde Beatty. For example, "Beulah" writers drew approximately $4,000 weekly originally now get $360 for re-runs. "First Nighter" has been using old scripts without payment since they were purchased before RWG pact in 1948.

KVTV Bows for Cowles

Omaha, April 7.

Cowles Broadcasting Co. last week opened KVTV, Sioux City, outlet is affiliated with CBS and DuMont nets.

Cowles, also owner of WNAX, Yankton; KRNT, Des Moines, as well as Look and Quick mags, Des Moines Register & Tribune and Minneapolis Star & Tribune, thus is first in Sioux City area. Station reaches 31 Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota counties.

Spadea Decries 'Impotent' Medium In CBS-AM Exit

Joe Spadea, who has been manager of the Detroit office for CBS since 1945, has tendered his resignation to join the Hank Cristal station rep outfit as a partner. He'll continue to be berthed in Detroit.

Perhaps more than any other network official "working the Detroit beat," the Spadea spade-work among the automotives in the radio broadcasting sponsorship picture made him one of the valuable components in the CBS sales operation. No successor has been chosen as yet.

Spadea's resignation to CBS Radio sales veepee John Karol follows:

"When one strongly believes in CBS Network Radio as the greatest advertising value of all mass media, including Television, and then suddenly finds Network Radio declining to an impotent position, the future becomes uncertain.

"My faith and confidence in Radio has never faltered at any time, but under present conditions it seems hopeless for one individual to carry the torch alone for Network Radio under insurmountable odds.

"Therefore, I am tendering my resignation with CBS Radio as of April 15, to join another radio organization as a partner, and with a brighter future."

ABC Radio in 17% Hike for 1st Quarter Biz of O&O Outlets

Billings of ABC's five owned-and-operated radio stations for the first quarter are up 17% over the gross for the same period last year, according to Ted Oberfelder, network's veepee in charge of AM o-and-o's. Five stations' billings are running just about 3% above figure of 1951.

Oberfelder attributes increase to a couple of factors. Key to the increase, he says, is the new rate card, which equalizes daytime and nighttime rates. Secondly, he feels it might be the beginning of a trend toward more effective use of radio.

Breakdown shows that there's a 20% increase in spots business, while local increase is only 14%.

E. J. NALLY, FIRST RCA PREZ, NOW AT 94 MARK

Edward J. Nally, first president of RCA, will celebrate his 94th birthday at his Bronxville, N. Y., home Saturday, April 11.

Nally, named prexy when the firm was founded in 1919, retired in 1923 (but continued as director until 1940). His successors number only three: Gen. James G. Harbord, Gen. David Sarnoff (now board chairman), and the current president, Frank M. Folsom.

Clooney & Fisher In NBC-AM Parlay

NBC is negotiating a deal for a Rosemary Clooney radio series. (Previous attempts by Coca-Cola and other sponsors to tie her to a TV series proved fruitless, with Paramount Pictures, to whom she is committed, nixing a weekly video deal.) Network plans to give her a twice-a-week airing, Tuesday and Fridays, in the 8:15-8:30 p.m. slot, thus permitting a back-to-back Eddie Fisher-Clooney singing showcase.

Fisher goes into the 7:30 to 7:45 p.m. period for Coca-Cola Wednesdays and Fridays on NBC-TV, starting April 29, with the taped versions going into the Tuesday-Friday at 8 p.m. slots.

CBS PACTS FOR NAGS DESPITE GILLETTE NIX

CBS has renewed its radio-tele contracts, for another three years, to cover racing's Triple Crown—the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes.

This despite the fact that Gillette has bowed out of Kentucky Derby sponsorship, after carrying the event for some seven years on CBS Radio and last year on CBS-TV.

Bakers Exiting CBS Show After 13 Wks.

American Bakers Assn. has run out of dough and has pink-slipped "Theatre of Stars" after 13 weeks, effective May 17. Half hour program over CBS on Sundays uses stars from pictures for a 39-week tab of $700,000, time and talent.

Sponsor is also giving up the time.

Television Followup Comment

Donald O'Connor headed up a lively stanza on NBC-TV's "Colgate Comedy Hour" last Sunday (5). He's a thoroughly engaging performer who can make with the song, the dance and the laughs and is a genial conferencier besides. The hoofing dynamo was before the cameras most of the way, taking time out only during the guest singing stint by Vivian Blaine and the GI skit by regulars Tom D'Andrea and Hal March. Miss Blaine had a snappy two-songer in "Give My Regards to Broadway," with some updated lyrics, and "Blues in the Night." The D'Andrea-March cynical slice of Army life as they were preparing for a getaway on a three-day pass was highly amusing and a model of savvy timing.

Session's high spot was the O'Connor-Sid Miller songwriting sketch, a permanent hit potion in the topper's Colgate klatch. They took off on nursery rhymes and latched on to Academy Award pix for theme song inventions that scored in the higher brackets. Other skit had guester Brian Aherne, O'Connor and Scatman Crothers in a bebop custom fitting at Aherne's London haberdashery. It was a real "gone" getup.

O'Connor opened the proceedings in workmanlike fashion singing and tapping "It's a Lovely Day Today" production number. This segued into intro of "Call Me Madam" pic director Walter Lang and O'Connor's briefie on "pre-3D," which in turn led into the star's repeating his Charles Chaplin characterization via silent technique, with Anthony Dexter as Rudolph Valentino. It lacked the punch and chuckles of his first effort along these lines last year.

Closer was an Easter special in the bebop genre, with O'Connor, Crothers and the line. O'Connor knocked himself out in the dance department, reserving just about enough wind to present Colgate's "most beautiful" and "most handsome" centenarians, Mrs. Anne Milne, 104, of Salt Lake City, and Maximilian Von Stephany, 100, of Cincinnati, who were flown to the Coast for the occasion. Ernie Glucksman's staging throughout was up to his usual high standard and the Al Goodman orch was ditto. Trau.

Ed Sullivan whipped up a tasty variety dish for his "Toast of the Town" show on CBS-TV Sunday (5). Hour had all the ingredients of socko vaudeo fare and each turn came through for top results. Show's overall production values, plussed by Ray Bloch's expert orch backing, helped make the stanza a surefire winner.

Off to a brisk start with the precision terping of the Gae Foster Girls in an Easter medley and a roughhouse turn by a flock of clowns from the Ringling Bros., stanza maintained a lively pace with the standard turns that followed.

Gracie Fields was socko in her songalog which included a couple of briefies, "All For One and One For All,' and "Don't Be Angry With Me Sergeant" as well as such longer items as "Christopher Robin Is Saying His Prayers" and "Walter, Walter, Lead Me to the Altar." Her snappy piping on the comedy tunes assured the vocks and her warm rendition of "Christopher Robin" was effective. In between, she related a couple of yarns that tickled. Closed strong with a rousing "Wish Me Luck."

Burton's Birds offered a nice change of pace. The birds' bag of tricks included tight-wire walking, somersaults, laundry washing, etc. Turn has been around for years but it never fails to amaze. The Szony's (Francois and Gisele) ballroomology also was a standout sequence. Team's poise and easy-flowing movement were given excellent camera coverage in their two dance interpretations.

Cab Calloway's energetic song styling made clicko items of "There's a Boat That's Leaving Soon for New York" (which he sings in the current Broadway production of "Porgy and Bess") and "That Old Black Magic." He's a vivid stylist and could have doubled his repertoire in this stint without tiring the viewer. Show wound with the Notre Dame Glee Club, in their third annual trip to "Toast," choraling "Hallelujah, Amen," an excellently arranged version of "Johnny Comes Marching Home" and the fighting U. of Notre Dame theme. Gros.

If "The Brooch" had been submitted to the script editor of "Lux Video Theatre" as a drama by an unknown writer, it would probably have been rejected cold as a trite, wholly unbelievable anecdote spun out to two acts. But since it was a television adaptation by Nobel Prize winner William Faulkner of his own short story, the pointless trifle was given a tremendous ballyhoo in newspaper ads. Lever Bros. acclaimed it as the TV writing premiere of the Mississippi novelist, and considered it significant enough to mark the transfer of "Lux Video Theatre" from Monday to Thursday night (2) on CBS-TV.

Faulkner's adaptation is a saccharine bowdlerization of the literary qualities of his original story, and even does no credit to his reputation as a slick writer who did the film adaptations for "To Have and Have Not," "The Slave Ship" and "Intruder in the Dust." It's a sunny version of the old Oedipus Complex, silver cord, or Momism theme. In this case, Mom (Mildred Natwick) is a proud, bedridden Southern matriarch, who uses her convalescence to tighten her grip on her adoring son (Dan Duryea). When he marries a train conductor's daughter (Sally Forrest), Mom disdainfully continues to lead her boy around by the nose.

To escape the depressing atmosphere of maternal dominance, the wife goes out every Saturday night, presumably to the Country Club, while her son dutifully stays at home to keep an eye on Mama's health. The imitation of a plot hinges on the denouement that the wife hasn't been out on sexual dalliance after all, but has been reading novels in a neighborhood rooming house. The showdown has the son becoming a Man as he tells Mom to shut up, Mom submissively hands over the family brooch to her daughter-in-law, and all three prepare to live happily ever after in their amiable little household finally freed of Freud.

This soap opera finish is a sudsy contrast to Faulkner's original tragic story, which depicts the daughter-in-law as a genuine trollop who leaves the home when she is discovered, and concludes with a powerful scene in which the son commits suicide by sticking a pistol between his teeth.

The three principals, especially Miss Natwick, strive nobly to inject some life into Faulkner's watered-down Faulkner, but the author-adaptor has thrown too much soap in their eyes.

"Arthur Murray Party" on DuMont Sunday night (5) was a cinch to grab a tall curiosity rating via the brief appearance of Christine Jorgensen, the male-turned-female, in her TV debut. She was one of three personalities making an appeal for the best of causes: Jane Pickens for cerebral palsy, Melvyn Douglas for United Jewish Appeal, and Miss Jorgensen for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. Latter was on last, after a sympathetic intro by hostess Kathryn Murray, and she finished the show. Her voice is a bit deep, but perhaps not more so than some born-to-the-sex femmes. Her elaborate gown did not seem to fall too gracefully upon her; perhaps she needs more experience in accoutrements. She conducted herself well and spoke ditto.

Show proper had singer Kitty Kallen, replacing Lisa Kirk who's current at the Plaza Hotel and had to do an Easter night (10:30) stanza; Charles Coburn in a sketch, "Easter Morning at Tony's"; a vintage dance by Peter Birth and Mrs. Murray; comic Orson Bean, and the segment's usual "Mystery Dance," which is no mystery—just a mail puller of the most elementary order. Trau.

George Jessel came up with a fairly satisfactory session for his final turn on NBC-TV's "All Star Revue" last Saturday (4), gathering about him Eddie Cantor, Fred Allen, Gloria De Haven, Portland Hoffa and Senator Claghorn. Show's best moments came in the banquet table session. Allen, who only a few weeks back was boffola in a Jessel guest stint, disappointed this time up, due chiefly to lackluster script material.

The tomfoolery on this occasion was supposed to mark Jessel's 55th birthday. In a jesting turnabout, Cantor pretended to deliver an accolade on the highlights of Jessel's career, but instead snatched off the glory for himself. Cantor would mention a year in Jessel's life, remember it was also the year when "Kid Boots" or "Whoopie" preemed on Broadway, segueing into "I'm Alabamy Bound" and "Singing in the Rain," along with "Bells Are Ringing" and "How You Goin' to Keep 'Em Down on the Farm" in his usual top nostalgic form.

Calibre of the humor took a decided drop in a partly filmed sketch, during which Jessel took Allen on a tour of Hollywood to prove that every joint there doesn't come "with a built-in psychiatrist." The duo rubbernecked a nitery, and a beauty parlor, where Allen, ready for some oo-la-la excitement with the girls, was shocked to discover his wife underneath a hair dryer. Then they wound up at Cantor's home, where Eddie, "King Farouk of Beverly Hills," was found surrounded by a harem of fillies. Here again, it was a case of poor material foiling their joint efforts.

Miss De Haven chirped in a couple of production numbers, one being "The Old Soft-Shoe" before a replica of Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre, the other a bluesie version of "Ain't Got No Man." She displayed an opulent chassis in her low-cut strapless evening gown, but impressed as being too much of an exaggerated hand wiggler, and not putting enough melodic oomph in her pipes. Layout closed on a sentimental note, with Pet Milk wheeling in a mountainous birthday cake, and Jessel, anticipating his future stint with ABC-TV, expressing thanks to NBC-TV for "having put me closer in one season with the American audience than in all my 40 years in show business."

One of season's major highlights for "Philco Television Playhouse" was Sunday nights (5) NBC-TV presentation of "A Young Lady of Property," starring Kim Stanley. The show was as much a personal triumph for Miss Stanley as it called for kudos for the entire cast, director Vincent Donehue, and producer Fred Coe.

Scripted by Horton Foote, play caught a mood from the first minute and never let it go until the fadeout. It was the story about a 15-year-old girl in a Southern town whose mother is dead and whose father is about to marry again. Her unhappiness and loneliness reach tragic heights when her father wants to sell the old house her mother had left her. In the end, all turns out well.

Miss Stanley gave a delightful performance that was alternately amusing and moving. With her voice and her whole being, aided by the topnotch script, she purveyed the characterization of the adolescent girl who dreams of a career in Hollywood but knows that actually she wants nothing more than to stay in the little town that is her world.

The rest of the cast backed her up admirably. Joanne Woodward, Miss Stanley's understudy in the legit hit, "Picnic," hit just the right note as the friend; Margaret Barker registered as Aunt Gert; Fredye Marshall did excellently as Ninna, the colored housekeeper, and Jim Gregory hit just the right note as the selfish father. Will Hansen, Dorothy Sand and Vivien Nathan rounded out the performers.

Miss Stanley's sensitive and intelligent performance was further underscored by Donehue's unhurried direction which avoided any false notes. Coe's production values added to making this one of the most enjoyable plays in the Philco series. Use of the "Billy the Kid" waltz from the Aaron Copeland suite as part of the theme music was a bit of inspiration that paid off. Hiff.

Dave Garroway, with Faye Emerson, participated via "Today" over NBC-TV Thursday (2), in a light though serious, informal though moving, blood donation demonstration on behalf of the Red Cross program. It was not the first time show biz names have given blood before the TV cameras, but it proved to be psychologically effective. Garroway, master of the casual style, did a fine interview with the highly attractive Miss Emerson as she donated blood on a table.

He followed with a revealing verbal exchange with a doctor, and a touching commentary-plea for widespread blood donations by viewers in the 41 cities reached by the early-morning show, as he stretched, for seven minutes, on an adjoining table to surrender a pint of the life-sustaining fluid. Camera work was exceptionally sharp, catching clearly the needle insertion in Garroway's arm, and his face—also Miss Emerson's—while they were prone. He sought, successfully, to allay apprehension at donating blood; ad libbed persuasively that "no excuse" held good for not offering blood to back up the forces in Korea. Episode represented television at its most effective level in dramatizing a patriotic message. Jaco.

DuMont's "Dark of the Night" has proved its noteworthiness in the past through its "on location" originations. Program last Friday (3) night made evident another noteworthy feature of the show, one which should make other webs sit up and take notice.

This is its ability to create story material from the originating places. Friday's telecast, for example, came from the Joseph Bulova School in Woodside, L. I. It's a watchmaking school run for disabled vets free of charge to the Veterans Administration and the vets themselves. Writer George Lowther was quick to take advantage of the story possibilities, and in fact came up with a case history as the basis for Friday's drama.

Point is that it represents a departure from established custom and could open a new field for those tele programmers willing to take the plunge off the beaten path. It could well be tagged "The Stories Around Us." It's a quasi-documentary proposition that's not lacking in drama and is enhanced by realism.

Story in this particular case centered around a paraplegic who felt that life was a bite-or-get-bit proposition. Feeling extended to his wife, whom he accused of not loving him (she really did) and staying with him only because of his future potentialities as a watchmaker and businessman. His attitude in the end was changed by schools' directors getting him to help others, thereby making him realize the error of his ways. While the happy ending wasn't completely convincing, story as a whole made for good tele drama.

Acting was excellent. Robert Keith, Jr. scored as the paraplegic, while Mitchell Agruss delivered a sensitive portrayal of one of the vets he helped. John Stanley and William A. Lee as the director and supervisor of the school handled their assignments with skill and understanding, and Lois Nettleton was convincing as the distraugh wife.

On-location background was highly effective, but producer-director Frank Bunetta's principal problem continues to be lighting. Effects were harsh and lacking in contrast where the portable units lit up a room, while unlit portions of the picture were too dark. What's needed here, and it's by no means an easy task, is the development of a mobile system that lights locations evenly. In all other respects, production was excellent. Chan.

"Fred Waring Show" on CBS-TV Sunday night (5) presented a pleasing session framed around the Easter holiday. While not socko in its impact, stanza displayed taste and dignity in its musical offerings. The show, incidentally, marked the end of Waring's fourth year in video.

Program opened lightly with an "Easter Parade" production number and segued into a medley of oldfashioned-type special material tunes handled excellently by the large company. Particularly standout was the "Springtime Cometh" number, a clever novelty cleverly presented. Second half of the show featured the chorus in a group of Negro spirituals with lighting effects used to dramatize the singing.

General Electric confined its plugs to two very brief commercials fore and aft. Herm.

"George and Margaret," last week's Mon. (30)-Sun. (5) presentation on WOR's "Broadway TV Theatre," was billed as a "whimsical family comedy," and its setting was a London suburb. Unfortunately, and not through the fault of the very competent cast, it turned out to be neither very much of a comedy nor anything resembling a British family.

In fact, as is probably inevitable in all series of this type, "George and Margaret," based on Gerald Savory's 1937 Broadway play which ran for 86 performances, turned out to be something of a low point and quite dull as TV plays go.

Very little of the hour-and-a-half show rang true, and the stanza seemed to drag itself from half-hour to half-hour with more than customary sluggishness and immersed in a torrent of uninspired conversation. The performers' periodic tries to sound British were more of a hindrance than an asset, particularly since the characterizations were shaped to conform with a typical American household.

Ernest Truex did well as the quiet, all-observing if mildly distracted father around whom the family's affairs swirl in romantic confusion. Sylvia Field as the highly-emotional wife and mother in spots was guilty of bad overacting which frequently deprived her lines of depth. Ernest Graves as the ponderous son, Claude; Hugh Thomas as the second son and Mary Johnson as the daughter-of-marriagable age did well within the script's limits. Ray Boyle played Roger, Thomas' boyfriend, who comes a-visiting and ends up marrying the girl. Helen Warnow took the part of the maid, Gladys, who upsets Miss Field by marrying Graves.

Author Savory staged the play on TV and Robert Blum was TV director of the Warren Wade Production. Whereas most of the action was routine, being mostly confined to one room, the camera work showed occasional flashes of imagination in dealing with the essentially static situation. Hift.

"Foolish Notions," Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s presentation on "Rheingold Theatre" over WNBT, N. Y., last Wednesday (1), had all the elements of a superior suspense play without the usual accompanying hysterics or horror. The British-made telefilm, under the production supervision of Tom Connochie, offered an ordinary group of humble English folk, and held attention by expert psychological spinning out of a character study of an old and insecure woman.

Beginning in commonplace vein, Gabrielle Upton's original build up to an engrossing and warmly human glimpse of an aging woman's heart, in which she had locked the reason for her being. The woman, in a superb performance by Barbara Mullens, was a housekeeper for a lonely man and his young nephew living in an English lighthouse. Destined to be replaced and retired, she almost frightens away an ad-answering younger woman, as she had scared away others, by weird and untrue tales of her employer's eccentricities. The sudden flight of her possible replacements is explained by other lies. Caught finally in her web of untruths, she reveals, in a display of common human dignity, how wanting to be needed forced her to unusual deception.

Backing Miss Mullens were able and realistic performances by Avice Landone, as the younger women; Clifford Evans as the lighthouse keeper and Derek Rowe as the nephew. The irregularities of the British faces, minus pancake makeup, were a welcome relief to eyes long accustomed to actors poured out of a glamor mold. Direction by Charles Saunders, a bit dragging at the outset, was toprate for most of the half hour.

Fairbanks still gives the beer commercials a champagne touch, although he has muted his rhapsodies. He revealed, in a commercial sidelight, that it was his friend Ed Sullivan (on the rival CBS-TV) who first introduced him to the brew that is now his sponsor. The film series is distributed by the NBC Film Division on a local basis.

U. OF ILL. HOLDS OFF ON TV STATION PLAN

Chicago, April 7.

Univ. of Illinois has postponed its plans for erecting a TV station in Champaign-Urbana. According to prexy George D. Stoddard, the delay is caused by the new university budget being shy the necessary funds needed for such new ventures as television.

Consequences of the lean budget means that the university may lose the FCC allocation for channel 12 and also the Ford Foundation's $100,000 which had to be accepted by April 1. U. of I. had hopes of spending $289,600 needed for the construction and two years' maintenance of the proposed station.

Stoddard will ask the FCC and the Ford Foundation for an extension of the deadlines.

AMERICA SPEAKS
With Don Passante, John B. Hughes, moderators; Ben Limb, Bela Fabian, Richard Kallsen, guests
Producer: Passante
Director: Victor Cavaness
30 Mins.; Sat., 10:30 p.m.
Participating
WOR-TV, New York

This is said to be the first public service program jointly sponsored by labor and management, in this case a couple of New Jersey unions and some of the corporations for whom the members work. While program is an entirely worthwhile effort, it's misdirected in a couple of its phases.

First and most important is question of time slotting. Saturday night isn't exactly the best time to air a serious discussion of world affairs. And however noble the purpose and effective the outcome, show simply won't attract and hold an audience.

Secondly, there's entirely too much of that sugar-sweet, reverential air toward the guests on the part of moderators Don Passante and John B. Hughes. They can be respectful without sidestepping an issue, something they did noticeably on the initial telecast.

Otherwise, program was highly informative. Hughes and Passante queried Ben Limb, Korea's delegate-at-large to the United Nations, on his country's attitude toward the current Soviet peace feelers. And Limb made no effort to hide his feelings on the matter —Korea won't be satisfied until the Chinese are out of the entire peninsula. Mutual commentator Richard Kallsen made his only contribution of the evening here—and it was a good one—asking whether Korea's self-interest might not be opposed to the interests of the United Nations.

Also on the program was Bela Fabian, Hungarian-born expert on Russia, who offered the opinion that current peace moves might be due to unrest inside Russia, and also that Malenkov is not wielding much power there. He tied his thesis in with Limb's viewpoint by declaring that Communist policy never changes, only Communist methods. Chan.

VACATIONLAND AMERICA
With Mr. and Mrs. John Cameron Swayze, John, Jr., and Suzanne Swayze.
Director: J. M. Maticka
Writer: Robert Walsh
15 Mins., Sun., 5:30 p.m.
FRAM CORP.
NBC-TV, N.Y.
(Van Sant, Dugdale)

This new filmed TV travel series is to take the attractive John Cameron Swayze family on a trip around the country, pointing out places of interest to less fortunate viewers. Series emphasizes travel by auto, to tie up with the oil filter product of its sponsor, Fram Corp.

Opener, which bowed last Sunday (5), was an interesting but not too exciting gander at Washington and colonial America (Annapolis, Mt. Vernon and Williamsburg). With only 15 minutes at its disposal, airer couldn't be anything more than a quick, birdseye view of a town, and two or three exteriors of famed houses or buildings. But opener did give the viewer a feel of the glories of our national capital, while the simple approach of the Swayzes as gawky tourists had a wholesome appeal. Bron.

HOLLYWOOD GLAMOUR SHOW
With Ern Westmore
Producer: Kroger Babb
30 Mins.: Mon.-thru-Fri., 3:30 p.m.
ADMIRAL DEALERS
WKRC-TV, Cincinnati

On WKRC-TV for a minimum of four weeks, Ern Westmore unfolds his makeup kit in a cosmetic center which has time buyers, notably Procter & Gamble and Jergens, who may be interested in his reported bid for network recognition.

Publicized as "the great, amazing, fascinating world-famed authority on beauty," Westmore overlooks no tricks of showmanship in his pitch. Qualifier for a Jackie Gleason stand-in, he gushes women from the studio audience with "dearie," "darling" and "honey" in telling how a little of this or that, if applied here or there, will make them more attractive.

Buyers of his book, "Secrets of Beauty," are in line for picking for a free trip to Hollywood and way points. Then there's the "lucky lady" portion of the program where one of two women who submitted letters on why they want to be beautiful is voted the winner by audience applause and is rewarded with a makeup job for reappearance on the next program.

Westmore did the show for several weeks in both Miami and Birmingham before reaching Cincy and has it smartly routined. He's a smoothie with appeal for lotsa femmes in search of beauty aids. Koll.

METROPOLITAN OPERA JAMBOREE
With Milton Cross, Deems Taylor, Howard Dietz, as commentators; Fausto Cleva and Max Rudolf conducting the ABC Symphony Orch; Blanche Thebom, Richard Tucker, Roberta Peters, Salvatore Baccoloni, others
Producer: Henry Souvaine
Directors: William Marshall, Marshall Diskin
60 Mins.; Mon. (6), 8:30 p.m.
Sustaining
ABC-TV, from N. Y.

In an attempt to raise $1,000,000 for its coffers, the Metropolitan Opera Assn. took the unprecedented step of parading their stars before the mike and the camera last Monday (6) for a national appeal blended of longhair arias and pop ballads. The special program, staged at the Ritz Theatre, N. Y., was simulcast over ABC-TV and ABC-AM for one hour, and then continued on the radio web alone for another half hour. ABC, in contributing the time, won an aura of prestige and value of public service for both its skeins.

Narrators Milton Cross, Deems Taylor and Howard Dietz made their pitch for cash and introduced the performers in an informal manner which pleasantly reduced the starchiness of the otherwise fairly dignified proceedings. Directors Marshall Diskin and William Marshall made no attempt at camera tricks. There would be a preliminary shot of the ABC Symphony Orchestra conducted by Fausto Cleva or Max Rudolf. Then the Met stars, dressed in evening clothes, on a stage barren except for a few vases of flowers, soared into their operatic numbers.

A comic touch was added by Salvatore Baccoloni, who robustly sang Walt Disney's "Bibbidi-bobbidi-boo" in opera-bouffe fashion. Further concession to the pop audience was made when the Toreador tenor, George London, delivered "You'll Never Walk Alone" from Rodgers & Hammerstein's "Carousel" and soprano Leontyne Price, currently in the Broadway revival of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," put in an appearance. Otherwise, the stanza was largely restricted to renditions of opera standards. Performers uniformly delivered with plenty of zest and color, ranging from Blanche Thebom doing "Amour Viens Aider" from Saint Saen's "Samson et Delila" to Richard Tucker's powerful vocalizing of "Addio Alla Madre" from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana."

As compared to Milton Berle, Martin & Lewis et al., air appeals for health causes, donations seemed slow in coming in. At 9 p.m., a total of only $2,069 was reported nationally, but delayed mail donations might well up the take considerably.

THE STONE
With Ad Wienert, Richard Dix, John Owen, Earl Reaves, Dorothy Allison, Allen Herndon
Producer: Bob Jones
Director: John Frankenfield
30 Mins.; Sun., 1:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WBAL-TV, Baltimore

WBAL-TV's Easter Sunday presentation of "The Stone" was one of the first attempts by a local station to essay straight dramatic material. One-time shot was a religious teleplay penned by Bob Jones, staff director and announcer who produced his own opus. Venture proved that talent is available locally for further drama programming.

Jones' play deals with a misanthropic Israelite who is seen carousing on the day of Christ's crucifixion. On the road to Golgotha, he attempts to throw a stone at Christ but finds that the stone miraculously adheres to his hand. On his deathbed, he realizes the validity of the new religion and dies as the stone drops from his hand.

Author has employed blank verse effectively so that playlet has a strong literary flavor. Religious conflict too often intrudes upon dramatic situation, however, and simple shock effect of the miracle is weakened by diffuse philosophizing.

"Stone" benefitted by surprisingly good acting from WBAL staffers as well as okay production values. Ad Wienert in the part of the afflicted man successfully sustained his characterization for an audience more accustomed to seeing him demonstrating electrical appliances. Standout in the cast was Richard Dix as Wienert's confessor.

Jones and troupe deserve credit for breaking the ice here with this one and further experimentation could benefit local programming in a big way. Burm.

INSIDE TIMES SQUARE
With Ray Heatherton, guests
Producer-director: Hank Leeds
30 Mins.; Mon.-Wed., Fri.-Sat., 11 p.m.
TIMES SQUARE STORES
WOR-TV, New York
(Robert Whitehill)

Now that his position is secure as a top-rated kiddie magnet via the "Merry Mailman" show, Ray Heatherton is pitching for the adult trade with a late hour series on the same web tagged "Inside Times Square." It may not be as easy for him to win the stay-up late dialers but he's in there trying.

Series is spotted five times weekly with a different format for each evening and Heatherton is on hand throughout in the assorted roles of crooner, emcee, quizmaster, etc. He tackles each part with sincerity and charm but despite his efforts it remains moderate fare. The daily lineup for the series includes separate half-hour stanzas of oldtime variety, amateur talent showcasing, quiz sessions, show biz roundup and audience participation square dancing. There's something for all tastes if not too discriminating.

On show caught Monday (6) Heatherton was conducting the old-time variety stanza. For the vintage flavor he brought on a dancing team from the Fred Astaire Studios to demonstrate the Bunny Hug and vet music publisher Joe (Banjo) Santly. Latter worked his turn into the standout portion of the show. Seated at the keyboard, Santly told of how he plugged songs as a boy soprano in 1901 and gave the yarn a proper nostalgic lilt by belting out a few bars of the tune he was plugging then, "I Love You As I Never Loved Before." Santly's boy soprano days are long gone but he still knows how to sell a song. This was further evidenced by his sock rendition of his own composition (penned in 1923) "There's Yes, Yes In Your Eyes."

Heatherton's vocalling repertoire included "Lovely Weather For Ducks," a Scottish novelty, "I'm 94 Today" and the tender "September Song." All were effective. Other guest, Louise MacMullen, though definitely not an oldtimer, gave the show a lift with a charming workover of "If They Asked Me I Could Write A Book."

Plugs for the Times Square Store products were spotted too frequently and tended to become repetitious and annoying. Gros.

REAR BUMPER
With Jean Shepherd
Director: Norton Locke
15 Mins.; Tues.-thru-Sat., 12:45 a.m.
Sustaining
WLW-T, Cincinnati

Back in Cincy after a disk jockey stretch for KYW, Philadelphia, Jean Shepherd is bowing in television with a futuristic pattern which he terms "stream of consciousness." It's something entirely unto itself and, apparently strictly on an experimental basis, has the chaser spot to fill from the end of the night's pictures to 1 a.m., usually 15 minutes.

In his previous local stints, Shepherd was on WKRC and WSAI, both AM, with platter sessions which won favor with a certain group for being long on philosophical gab and short on wax.

This TV creation has all canned props. For the art medium there are films and slides projected on a rear screen. Music is recorded.

Seated in a chair and smoking a cigaret, Shepherd appears now and then with talks to unseen Uncle George. The movies are of such things as animated miniature clay blocks, buildings, trees and sea lions. Slides show rainbow-like flashes and meaning of wandering words to Uncle George is difficult to grasp. Koll.

YOUR FIGURE, LADIES
With Paul Fogarty, Terry Georgian, Pierre Andre, Harold Turner
Producer-director: Frank Palmer
30 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 9 a.m.
WGN-TV, Chicago

This half-hour of teevee calisthenics is a pleasant reissue of its former self which had been absent from the telewaves for the past year and a half.

Program seems to have twin audience appeal. Housewives who would forsake the shows on the other webs would be a natural; also, the tardy officegoer of the male set, who would trade a prompt arrival for a glimpse of model Terry Georgian twisting her torso in cadence.

Lovely Miss Georgian intros the program, and veteran muscle man Paul Fogarty takes over with the exercise instructions. After a brief explanation as to the reason for the contortions by Fogarty, Miss Georgian gives the actual demonstrations. To make the sessions more pleasant, Fogarty tosses off a witticism or two, while musician Harold Turner backstops with the organ.

Fogarty is a convincing instructor. His dual role of chief muscle man and host is aided by his soft, smooth mannerisms. Miss Georgian, of course, is a lovely bit of scenery.

Since the program more than accomplishes its purpose as an exercise show, it should not have too tough a row to hoe in canturing the "wealthy" audience of competition in the same time slot. Arne.

TV Easter Parade Shuns Undignified Hoopla, But Coverage Is Unexciting

By JOHN HORN

ADVENTURES OF SUPERMAN
With George Reeves, Phyllis Coates, Jack Larson, John Hamilton, others
Producers: Robert Maxwell, Bernard Luben
Director: Tommy Carr, Lee Sholem
Writer: Richard Fielding
30 Mins.: Wed., 6:15 p.m.
KELLOGG CO.
WABC-TV, New York
(Leo Burnett)

It was only a matter of time before "Superman," long a comic book and radio favorite with the kids (and some adults, no doubt), should be put on film. It's to National Comics' credit that its tele version is restrained on the scripting side and well done technically.

Kellogg has bought the pic from Flamingo Films, its distributor, and has spotted into WABC-TV, in the station's kidfilm block. Move should pay off—station has a hefty cross-the-board slot of adventure pix for the children, and "Superman" fits the bill neatly.

Initial installment told how Superman as a baby was flown to earth in a rocket by his parents on the planet Crypton just as the planet was about to disintegrate. Pic showed how the boy was found by a farmer and his wife and raised by them as Clark Kent, their son. Finally, as Kent grew to manhood, he left for the city, and with the rescue of a man hanging from a dirigible got a job with the Daily Planet as a reporter.

All this is familiar stuff to the kids, but there's an extra kick for them seeing it on the screen. Filming is topnotch, with no expense spared to get those special effects. George Reeves, who acts Superman, doesn't have too much of a role in the initial pic, since most of it deals with boyhood of the hero, but he registered nicely as the meek reporter and as the hero. Phyllis Coates was okay as Lois Lane, the girl reporter, while John Hamilton fits the fictitious concept of an editor. Other roles were well handled.

There should be no worry about lack of material for future episodes, since there's a backlog of about 15 years' worth of stories. This one's a natural for TV. Add kudos for some of those animated Kellogg commercials. Chan.

LUNCHEON WITH BILLY
With Billy Leach, Milly Coury, Jeanne Williams, Shirley Ryan, Hal Kartun's Group
Producer: John Alexander
Director: Jim Harelson
25 Mins.: Mon.-thru-Fri. 12 noon
WBBM-TV, Chicago

WBBM radio staffers, who heretofore have not been used as regular teevee talent, do an excellent job on this mid-day sustainer. The casual manner of program headliner Billy Leach, who trivias the between-tune slots with warblers Jeanne Williams, Milly Coury and Shirley Ryan, blends well with the show's format.

The female vocalizing seems to be split between the three thrushes. Ballading of such numbers as "Our Song" is capably performed by Jeanne Williams, while the upbeat numbers are sung by petite songstress Milly Coury. The Coury gal one of the fairest warblers on Windy City teevee, projects well in the delivery of bounce numbers like "Zing Went the Strings of My Heart." However, she has a sly tendency to edge the camera.

Billy Leach is okay with his easy styling of "How Do You Speak to an Angel." Leach forms a twosome alternately with each of the songstresses and is especially fine when blending with Miss Coury on "No Two People."

Show's technicians are well deserving of plaudits. Smooth and able backstopping by Hal Kartun's six-piece group adds much to the singers' deliveries. Credit must also be given Jim Harelson for turning in some excellent camera direction. Switching of camera between vocalist and instrumentalist, especially on guitar closeups for highlighting a number, tightens viewer's interest. Arne.

The Easter Parade along New York's Fifth Avenue became a distant backdrop, as seen through long shots scanned by careful cameras, last Sunday as television, hypersensitive over last year's carnival aspects, undertook to present the affair with a great deal more dignity.

The nightmare quality of 1952 was thankfully absent this year, due to the extreme caution taken by the broadcasters, who belatedly recognized their responsibility in covering the event and acquitted themselves nobly in excluding the wild camera crashers always attracted by large crowds and wide-scale television coverage.

But if it was dignity, and a sober view of Easter's religious aspects, that the television people were looking for (as announced), they have missed the boat, despite the homburg hats and the elegant ladies in their Easter finery.

Controlled as the event was, a New York viewer checking the four covering channels—WPIX, WNBT, WCBS, and WABC—was carried away by preponderance of hasty introductions to a bewildering number of people, dominated by show-business personalities with society folk playing a poor second; an inordinate number of mentions for hotels, which were television's headquarters; nervous and self-conscious microphone appearances; oodles of fashion displays (it's the slim look this year); an overabundance of idle small talk and well-intended pitches for worthy causes (an event like this is a magnet for spokesmen of organized philanthropy).

Too Much Room Service

What the occasion cried for was an imaginative approach to the joyful spring holiday, and less of the rut-mindedness that found a great portion of all television reportage domiciled in hotels (WPIX in the Waldorf-Astoria, CBS in the Plaza, and ABC in the Sherry Netherland, N. Y., and the Mayflower, Washington, D. C.).

There is no need for television to confine itself to swank hotels, or New York, in reporting an American Easter. A remote broadcast from a small town, for instance, done perhaps in the realistic manner of "See It Now," would have been most welcome, especially now that Fifth Avenue has been pushed into the background through fear of mob high jinks.

Refreshingly, NBC's hour was out of doors, on the Palazzo d'Italia roof garden in Radio City, with Frank Blair doing a standout job as emcee. But even the outdoors presentation had limited scope, with brief words with U. N. children, hurried interviews with selected groups and a fashion show. In keeping with the more dignified approach this year, the city manager of Rochester, N. Y., made a dignified pitch for everyone to come visit the city's Lilac Festival in May. And Patricia O'Brien of The New York Times, the Newspaper Guild's Miss Page One Ball, made an appearance.

In the commercial vein, which was confined to two sponsors (Peerless Camera Stores on WPIX, and Timex on CBS), there was some cause for complaint. The Peerless commercials for at least the first of two hours (11:30 to 12:30) numbered eight and were much too long and tedious.

WPIX, on the air first with Parade aspects, had John Tillman (in homburg) and Nancy Randolph, New York Daily News society columnist, Bartholomew's Church on Park Avenue, and Jack McCarthy and Blanche Ravisse at a Waldorf-Astoria table. After panning shots of the church's architecture, and some Tillman background on the historic place, the interviews began in a heavily weighted (for the Daily News) program. Among the News plugs, besides Miss Randolph, were several winners of the paper's high-school beauty contest, and dramatic critic John Chapman and family. Miss Randolph, interviewing two society women, brought up last year's vulgarity angle, saying she saw one vulgar incident which she wouldn't talk about but would mention in her column.

Most interesting at the Park Avenue outdoor site was the placement of one camera behind some flowers, which framed the picture with a gay border and screened out the people exiting the church

(Continued on page 38)

From the Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY . . .

Pauline Fredericks, ABC news commentator, addressed Republican Business Women on the United Nations last night (Tues.) . . . Colgate has set the Ethos Organization to handle publicity and special promotion for soap department . . . Bill Edmonds, WMGM announcer, named chairman of public relations and fund raising for the proposed $1,000,000 hospital in Westwood, N. J., which just received a $600,000 RFC grant. Edmonds, a v.p. of AFTRA, was reelected for third time as rep for N. Y.'s indie stations on AFTRA . . . John Reed King returns to WOR's "Great Day Show" as emcee . . . Irene Wicker appeared Monday (6) with the Fulton Lewis, Jr. Children's Choir at the Hollywood Maryland Church as soloist . . . Alma Dettinger devoting Mondays to food talk on her cross-the-board "Other People's Business" on WQXR . . . Bill Ryan, BAB prexy, met with publicity toppers from the four radio nets last week to determine means of publicizing the Bureau . . . Maria Caterina left Mutual as photo editor on a maternity leave last week, with post being absorbed until her return by the rest of the press department . . . Ted Oberfelder, ABC veep in charge of o-and-o's, left last week on a three-week tour of the five ABC-owned AMers . . . WOR talent and sales toppers hosted clients and agencies in Philadelphia yesterday (Tues.)

George Wolf recovered from surgery and back at Foote, Cone & Belding desk . . . Actor Ronald Dawson sold script on life of Beethoven to Canadian Broadcasting Corp. . . . Edward J. De Gray moved up as CBS director of station relations. John G. Grant, ex-legal department, takes over De Gray's station relations post April 13 . . . Shirley Booth radio-emotes in "The Glass Menagerie" on NBC "Theatre Guild of the Air" April 12. Karl Malden, Katharine Bard and Douglas Watson have featured roles . . . Arnold Lawsky, production assistant at Sherman & Marquette, joined BAB production department . . . Don Ball, CBS director of editing, back from Bermuda Monday (6) after vacation with family . . . Leo E. Kirby and John Schneider new account supervisors with Biow . . . Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and actor John Wayne subbed for Lowell Thomas last week . . . Anderson F. Hewitt, former chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Hewitt, Oglivy, Benson & Mather, Inc., now with Kenyon & Eckhardt as veepee, account supervisor and director . . . Parke Levy, producer-director of "My Friend Irma" and "December Bride" in town for confabs . . . Basil Rathbone cut audition records on a new femme-slanted cross-the-board radio program created and written by Alan Sands . . . Murry Salberg, of CBS Radio program promotion, to London and Paris for three weeks vacation.

The Joe Dines (he's with Ziv) parents of a boy, at Madison Avenue Hospital, April 5 . . . Jack Sterling of WCBS being tendered testimonial lunch April 13 by the American Legion advertising men post No. 209. Next day he goes up to New Haven with Eliot Lawrence, Mary Osborne, Bob Haymes, and John Henry Faulk to play a benefit for the Connecticut trooper murdered last month.

John Bosman joined Mutual news staff . . . Bill Rohn named sales manager of WINS, replacing Ray Holmes, who ankled the station . . . Bernard H. Pelzer, Jr., moved from the Edward Lamb station reps to ABC radio sales as account exec . . . Donald Buka set in cast of ABC's "True Story" today (Wed.) . . . Mike Jablons, WLIB flack, back from vacation in Mexico.

IN HOLLYWOOD . . .

It took 11 vans to move KFAC's 36,000 classical records weighing 28 tons to the station's new studio. Site plays only longhair music day and night . . . Maurice Hart blew KFWB in a huff when his deejaying time was taken over by Al Jarvis. Chafed at being used only as an announcer . . . Polly Kaufman, former fan mag rep, moved up as publicity head at KFI, where Claude Mills, ex-ASCAP, is top aide to owner Earle C. Anthony . . . Milt Samuel, now that his ticker is back on the beat, desked in at Young & Rubicam, where he is press boss, after four-month siege in sick bay . . . Jimmy Boyd taped an audition at NBC as a deejay, country style . . . Leo Guild, publicity head at KLAC, offers radio eds $1 for every error they find in his daily mailer . . . Radio having picked clean daily press features, the one remaining facet—the society page—has been pounced on by KNX. Christy Fox of L. A. Times spiels sassiety gossip for 15 minutes every Sunday sponsored by Park LaBrea (apartment project).

IN CHICAGO . . .

Don McNeill will celebrate his silver radio anni at Milwaukee's Marquette U. April 10. ABC's "Breakfast Club" will originate from the McNeill alma mater on that date . . . Jane Pinkerton departed her trade paper post to join BAB, New York . . . Ernie Simon deejaying the 7:30 to noon slot Sundays for WGN . . . George Paul, replacing Winslow Uebel, managing WBKB's radio program biz . . . Julius Yacker, U. of Chicago M.A., to assist AFTRA-SAG's exec secretary Ray Jones . . . Thomas M. Doyle appointed as a midwest sales topper for Zenith Radio . . . Don Dowd will celebrate his tenth anni announcing the Swift blurbs on ABC's "Breakfast Club" . . . Frank Schreiber, WGN topper, in N. Y. for confabs . . . After 12 years of deejaying on WCFL, Norm Pierce leaves the Chi indie in order to freelance . . . Henry Weber and Marion Claire of WGN's "Chicago Theatre of the Air" to vacation in Europe.

IN SAN FRANCISCO . . .

Jack Benny trained in to guest at the Press Club and set the scene for his Variety Show, opening at the Curran, April 20 . . . KSFO bouncing its "live" air personalities—Faye Stewart, Ben Sweetland, Marjorie Trumbull, Dick Custer, etc.—and will fill with music . . . Don Sherwood, KROW, moving to KSFO to voice early ayem platter chatter . . . Mitch Miller, replete with beard and bundle of Columbia Records, sky'd in to huddle with local deejays and music librarians . . . Phil Holman readying a KSAN deejay show to be aired from a flag pole . . . Edna Fischer's hubby, Milt Hayes, now managing Mission Ranch, Carmel . . . Joe Kirchen, young thrush, inked into Bimbo's for a spell . . . Radio veteran Lenn Curley experimenting with teevee by "World Report" commercials . . . Al Constant, ex-KRON program director, back voicing commericals for vacationing Lu Hurley . . . Local execs in a dizzy daze converting local "live" shows to new AFTRA budget requirements.

IN PITTSBURGH . . .

Caley E. Augustine, formerly WSYR and WSYR-TV, Syracuse, N. Y., appointed director public relations and promotion for WJAS . . . Captain Don Worley, featured singer on KDKA's "Welcome Aboard" program before being recalled into the army, now commanding officer of First Radio Broadcasting and Leaflet Group in Japan . . . Robert J. Shaw has accepted invitation to attend U. of Pittsburgh's annual Writers Conference April 22-23 . . . Duquesne Briewing Co.'s "Time Out" series on WDTV has signed Ted Luther for "Time Out for Golf" Tuesday nights, replacing "Time Out for Photography." He's pro at South Hills Country Club . . . Jane Ellen Ball celebrated sixth anni at WJAS. She joined the staff shortly after coming back to U. S. from World War II service in Europe with the American Red Cross.

Charles Nessler is newest addition to KQV engineering staff . . . Florence Sando of TV's "Ask the Girls," as well as one of her panelists, Helen Rauh, and her secretary, Josephine Vicari, have been set for spots in Pittsburgh Playhouse's spring musical, "Three to One" . . . Shirley Eckl, local ballerina on "Your Show of Shows," and her husband, Jack Parker, radio sound technician at WOR, have moved into their new home in Ramsey, N. J. . . . Elaine Kerchner joined WDTV traffic department . . . It's 15 years at WCAE for chief announcer Ralph Fallert and 16 for Bill Thieman of traffic . . . John E. Hill is added to KDKA production staff . . . Frances Bikulege, of Rothman-Gibbons ad agency, engaged to William Shurtz, local newspaperman . . . Mayor Lawrence declared Monday (6) "Meet Your Neighbor Day" in honor of daily Charlie Baldour-Betty Carr program on Channel 2, "Meet Your Neighbor." He was their guest on the show, too.

IN MINNEAPOLIS . . .

WPBC, newest local radio station, has applied to FCC for permission to double its broadcasting power . . . WTCN disk jockey Jimmy Delmont vacationing in Florida . . . WCCO now has an all-night record show . . . John Ford, WTCN personality, vacationing in California for a fortnight . . . WCCO radio and TV ace back from a three-week Florida and West Indies vacation . . . WTCN set new sales high week of March 15 for period since new ownership took over last year . . . Twin Cities continue to be a bright spot on radio horizon, especially in early daytime radio. Sets in use from 7:30 to 8 a.m., for example, poll shows, do not fluctuate the year around. Last summer's ratings during that half-hour were as high as in the fall . . . WTCN quickly sold Drew Pearson on a local basis . . . Ike Armstrong, U. of Minnesota athletic director, has advised Rep. D. D. Wozniak of the state legislature that he, Armstrong, is making every effort to induce NCAA to alter its football TV program so that there'll be more football games of teams in this area, particularly Western Conference, and of Notre Dame on video for Northwest viewers. Wozniak staged losing fight to compel university to permit telecasts of Minnesota gridiron contests

IN PHILADELPHIA . . .

WKDN, FM outlet, has named Robert S. Keller, Inc., of New York, as new sales promotional rep . . . William Spier, "Omnibus" producer, will address Television Assn. of Philadelphia at Poor Richard Club today (Wed.) . . . Newspaper correspondent Margaret Higgins will guest on "Junior Press Conference," WFIL-TV, April 12 . . . Benedict Gimbel, Jr., president of WIP, has been named chairman in charge of radio and TV for Philadelphia's 26th Educational Week for the Blind. Under Gimbel's direction local stations will originate live and taped shows from exhibit . . . James Gantz, KYW news editor, has been reelected to board of directors of Philadelphia Sportswriters Assn. . . . Maj. C. D. Morrow, of local U. S. Marine Corps recruiting office presented special citation to Frank Tooke, general manager of KYW, for station's aid in recruiting full company of Marines . . . WIP's second annual showmanship award will be presented to Bandleader Billy May, at the Arena (9) . . . Murray Arnold, WIP program director will make speaking tour participating in BMI program clinics on Pacific Coast, late in June. Clinics are attended by radio programming personnel in area visited . . . Anthony S. Mammarella, of WFIL-TV production department, has been upped to post of writer-packager with station. Mammarella will script and assist in production of daily "Stop, Look and Listen" and "Bandstand" shows

Zeckendorf Bids For UHF Channels

Washington, April 7.

New York realtor William Zeckendorf, head of the firm of Webb & Knapp, has entered the national television picture with applications to the FCC for license to build and operate UHF stations in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and LaCrosse, Wis.

Applications were entered separately for the two stations by the same group, which in addition to Zeckendorf includes former FCC chairman James L. Fly as counsel; McIntosh & Inglis, Washington engineering firm; and Pendray & Co., N. Y. public relations outfit. Two stations would operate as separate corporate entities, named Cedar Rapids Television Corp. and LaCrosse Television Corp.

Applications stress the syndicate is requesting UHF channels in order to get permits quickly and to avoid competition for VHF outlets with present applicants. Applications are for Channel 38 in LaCrosse and 20 in Cedar Rapids. Group also emphasized it would invite local participation in ownership and management of the stations. Neither town at present has any television facilities. Applications stated stations could be operating by Labor Day of this year if FCC granted approval within a month.

P & G

Continued from page 25

the afternoon stanza next season on behalf of Dreft and Oxydol.

To provide the revenue for the latter shift, P & G, it's been learned, is cancelling out next season on its Tuesday night "Beulah" film series on ABC-TV.

One of the soap company's major stakes in nighttime TV will be its acquisition of the Paul Winchell show for the NBC Sunday at 7 slot, currently occupied by Red Skelton. Skelton is being axed. Whether or not the Sunday night at 10 "Doctor" ankles along with Skelton is still to be resolved. Meanwhile, P & G has turned in a cancellation on the three-times-a-week "Those Two" show starring Pinky Lee and Martha Stewart. Only other nighttime entry on the P & G calendar is "Fireside Theatre," with the client more than happy with its Tuesday night post-Berle rating payoff.

In contrast to the P & G easeoff on nighttime TV, the other major soap companies, notably Colgate and Lever Bros., appear bullish on the after-dark TV programming. Former, of course, while recognizing the importance of daytime TV with its high-rated "Big Payoff," "Strike It Rich" parlay on CBS-TV, has another approximate $6,000,000 earmarked for next season for time and talent for the Sunday night "Colgate Comedy Hour" (still top coin for single sponsorship on a show), as well as the nighttime edition of "Strike It Rich." Lever is anxious to expand its CBS-TV "Lux Video Theatre" from 30 minutes to a full hour and is also represented by "Big Town" on the same web.

it's big . . . it's prosperous
$1,533,373,000
yearly buying income

the WDEL-TV market
Wilmington, Delaware

Delaware, with highest per capita income of any state, is the heart of this market which also includes parts of New Jersey, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Buy WDEL-TV for an audience that buys.

A Steinman Station

WDEL AM TV FM Wilmington Delaware
Represented by MEEKER
New York Chicago Los Angeles San Francisco

'Rootie' to Get 5-City Gordon Baking TV Ride

Weekday version of "Rootie Kazootie," currently on WABC-TV only, will be beamed by the network to four additional cities on Wednesdays and Fridays with Gordon Baking Co., which sponsors locally, picking up the tab in the additional markets. Program will be carried in Chicago, Detroit, Toledo and South Bend.

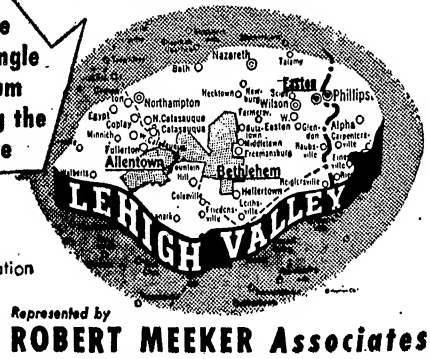
Meanwhile, Johnson Candy, sponsors of the full-network Saturday morning version of "Rootie," has cancelled. Dropping of show is in line with firm's advertising slowdown for the summer, and Johnson will probably return in the fall.

Weekday strip is also sponsored locally by Weston Biscuit on Thursdays and Airline Products on Tuesdays.

New York — Fedder's-Quiggen, air-conditioning outfit, has bought the Friday night spot of Jim McKay's "Sports of the Night," six-a-week strip on WCBS-TV, N.Y., beginning Friday, April 24. Sale leaves two McKay nights open.

Selling Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton
WLEV-TV
Bethlehem, Pa.

the only single medium reaching the entire



A Steinman Station

NBC TV affiliate
Represented by
ROBERT MEEKER Associates
New York Chicago Los Angeles San Francisco

Inside Stuff—Television

Broadcast Music, Inc. has just released its "22 Television Talks," culled from its TV Clinics of last spring. Book was long in coming, but more than worth the wait. It's a factual and informative "how to do it" on every phase of television programming and production, transcribed from off-the-cuff talks by the men who have been in the industry from the ground up.

Leafing through the book, a station manager can find anything from a complete description of how to set up a newsreel operation (from Roger Clipp of WFIL-TV, Philadelphia), to cutting stagehand costs by using sectional sofas and four-foot-high sets (from Charles Holden, ABC-TV exec producer). WDSU-TV's (New Orleans) Bob Swezey gives the local programming problem a thorough going-over, and a score of other top execs discuss everything from music clearance and copyrights to hidden costs in programming. It's a useful reference volume, a station manager's troubleshooter.

Have TV commericals today gone overboard in using the demonstration technique? In a talk last week (1) before the Metropolitan Advertising Men, N. Y., Barry Ryan, prexy of Ruthrauff & Ryan agency, took a swipe at tele pitches that "have to strain to apply demonstration."

"I have seen the art of beer-drinking demonstrated on television more times than I care to remember," he said, "but I am singularly unimpressed with the arguments that accompany most of the demonstrations.

"I have yet to see a demonstration of cigaret smoking that struck me as effective a device for selling cigarets by TV as was the chant of the tobacco auctioneer on radio."

Eddie Nugent, ABC-TV's staff director of "Talent Patrol," "All Star News" and "Saturday Night Boxing Bouts," is doing a fast burn over an inadvertant snafu pulled by the web's press department. Nugent was skedded to direct the skein's new Thursday night quiz, "Personality Puzzle," but at the last minute Sonny Diskin was substituted. Stanza was panned, and the press department's credit listings still billed Nugent as director, who naturally resented being associated with a turkey. Bob Doyle is now skedded to take over the stanza's directorial chores.

Small Southern Station Form Dixie Network

Tuscaloosa, April 7.

Group of indie radio execs last week announced formation of the Dixie Network Co., an independent regional network which will cater to smaller stations in the south.

Network will headquarter in New Orleans, and will start with daytime programming, with plans to expand into full-time broadcasting after a few months. President of the new web is William K. Williamson, instructor of radio and TV at the Univ. of Alabama. Keith Glatzer will be in charge of programming, while James E. Lake will be director of production.

Fla.'s UHF'er Preems

Miami, April 7.

WFTL-TV, new ultra high frequency station in Ft. Lauderdale will begin test patterns this week on channel 23. It is the first UHF station in Florida.

Station's general manager Noran Kersta addressed a meeting of RCA-Victor dealers and revealed plans for a concentrated campaign to acquaint set owners in the area with the solving of converter problems enabling reception on standard sets in use. He also stated that negotiations were under way with NBC and other networks for programming of live shows.

Iowa's KVTV Preems

Sioux City, April 7.

A third Iowa TV station—KVTV on channel 9—went on the air last week to serve a wide area in the northwest section of the state and in neighboring Nebraska and South Dakota. The station, located in downtown Sioux City, is affiliated with the CBS, NBC and DuMont networks and is inter-connected by coaxial cable to bring live television to the area.

Owned and operated by the Cowles Broadcasting Co., the station received its channel allocation last June and construction permit last November. General manager is Robt. R. Rincher, with Art Smith as resident manager.

Emerson 10G Grant To Houston KUHT-TV As Educ'l Incentive

Emerson Radio Corp. has given a $10,000 grant to KUHT-TV, Houston, first non-commercial educational station in the country. Station, operated by University of Houston, is scheduled to go on the air next Thursday (16).

Award is part of the Emerson $100,000 educational television grant for the first 10 educational stations to go on the air. Emerson prexy Charles Abrams flies to Houston to make the award Monday (13). In New York this week, Abrams expressed the hope that bow of KUHT-TV would stimulate action by other educational applicants.

Initially, station will broadcast from 5 to 9 p.m. weekdays. Air time will be expanded to 30 hours weekly during the summer, with 40 hours planned for the fall. First course slated for the station is psychology, with lectures and labs.

Greensboro—Joe C. McDowell and Hanson Dustin joined WFMY-TV as account executives, Gaines Kelly, station's general manager, announced. McDowell was formerly with WCRS, Greenwood, while Dustin was on the advertising staff of the Fredericksburg (Va.) Free Lance-Star.

FCC May Get Funds to Expedite Backlog of 550 TV Station Bids

Washington, April 7.

The House Appropriations Committee may recommend that funds be provided the FCC to hire sufficient examiners to dispose of a backlog of 550 contested TV applications within a year.

This possibility was indicated in testimony released by the Committee last week of hearings held Feb. 26 when the FCC budget for the fiscal year beginning next June 30 was taken up. The Commission asked for an appropriation of $8,000,000, or approximately $1,600,000 more than its allotment for the current fiscal year. Unless the increase is granted, FCC Chairman Paul A. Walker told the Committee, it will take "years" to handle pending applications and the public will suffer for want of a competitive TV system.

Although the increase requested would still leave several hundred applications pending at the end of 1954, members of the Committee expressed strong interest in cleaning up the entire backlog as soon as possible. Rep. Albert Thomas (D-Tex.) said that at least three members of the Committee would be willing to let Walker write his own ticket "if you can clear up the backlog within one year."

Asked by Rep. Thomas how long it would take the Commission to clear its backlog with its present staff, Walker estimated it would take "three, four or five years".

Asked how much additional personnel would be required to hear the applications by the middle of 1954, Commission budget officials said 159.

Comr. Robert T. Bartley, when asked if he thought the Commission could handle 500 hearing cases in a year if the additional staff is provided, said it could be done in theory. "I do not think we can give a positive answer," he added.

"Suppose," said Rep. Thomas, "we set out in specific appropriation language that the funds are provided on the ground that it will not take more than a year."

"You would have to go on the assumption," Bartley replied, "that you start off with about 40 qualified examiners at the beginning of the year."

"Can you get them?" Rep. Thomas asked.

"I do not know," Bartley replied.

Rep. Thomas: "Given the examiners and the engineers and other help, you should be able to wind them up in a year, and if you do not, it would seem to be your fault."

Walker: "We have tried to reform our rules, our hearing procedure, through cooperation with the bar association, and we have made some progress, I think. If we can get all the lawyers to comply and to cooperate fairly in expediting these hearings—"

Rep. Thomas: "With a good trial examiner you can certainly handle the lawyers."

Walker: "Yes."

Another CBS Moving Day

CBS Television is vacating its offices at 51 E. 42nd St., N. Y., later this month. The second-floor office building rental was once, in the postwar early days, the center of the net's tele operation.

It's the old bailiwick of John L. Van Voikenburg, CBS-TV prexy, and later Worthington (Tony) Miner's "Studio One" operations.

Tele press information department, final occupants will move into the old Sheffield Farms property on 57th St., now CBS-TV's production center. It's the third moving day this year for the TV press boys.

Fort Worth—Gene L. Cagle, prez of the Texas State Network and general manager of the web's key outlet here, KFJZ, has been named to the board of directors of the Advertising Federation of America. He replaces Oveta Culp Hobby who resigned.

America's Leading INDEPENDENT Producer

Offers a Unique Service to the Sponsor

THE FOUR P'S

PRODUCTION — PACKAGING — PUBLICITY — PROMOTION

★ High Ratings at Lowest Cost per Thousand

★ Heart Appeal That Makes for Sales

★ Creative Ideas Always Ahead of the Parade

WALT FRAMER Productions

America's Leading INDEPENDENT TV Producers

123 West 44th Street New York (36) N. Y.
PLaza 7-0800

PERSONAL NOTICE

If the advertising party who wants to sell goods in 5,192,000 homes a week for only $7,500 in total cost, will call LO 4-8000 in New York, or WH 4-5060 in Chicago, he can be accommodated immediately. Note: Competitors of General Mills and R. J. Reynolds need not apply.

The telephone numbers in that notice belong to the Mutual Network — and so does the Multi-Message Plan, which makes the whole thing possible. According to latest available Nielsen data (NRI, Jan.-Feb., '53), this five-program, five-night Plan delivers a net, unduplicated audience of 5,192,000 families per week. At $7,500 a week, or $1.44 per thousand homes, this combination of effectiveness and economy is unmatched in mass marketing anywhere.

Only three radio programs reach larger audiences — and they cost nearly four times as much. In TV, $7,500 will get you the same amount of commercial time in the top two markets—but even if everybody there tuned in, you'd reach fewer homes. In newspapers, $7,500 will buy a quarter-page in the top daily in the top 14 cities—but it would need a 69% 'rating' to equal 5,192,000 homes. And in magazines, Life's 5,300,000 circulation costs $19,200 a page.

As noted, General Mills and R. J. Reynolds are already enjoying what the Multi-Message Plan does for the value of the 1953 advertising dollar. If you sell anything fit for 5,192,000 radio homes, other than cereals or cigarettes, the Multi-Message details can be yours today. Do call one of those telephone numbers right away, won't you?

MBS

The radio network with the PLUS and the PLAN

MUSICAL DISCOVERY OF '53?
With Anna Russell, Fred Greenfeld, Phil Stahl, Duncan Pirnie
Producer-director: Fred Greenfeld
25 Mins.; Wed., (1) 9:05 p.m.
Sustaining
WQXR, N.Y.

Radio could do with more satire, and this April Fool's Day musical prank by WQXR revealed that "Bob and Ray" haven't a monopoly on the honorable art of kidding the hand that feeds. While the Messrs. Bob & Ray have been most successful at spoofing the absurdities of broadcasting generally, "Musical Discovery of 1953?" spent 25 minutes pulling the leg, and the longhair, of operatic music that frequently adorns WQXR.

Half of this special April 1 wheeze was devoted to preeming, in straight-faced fashion, an alleged new opera called "Europa und der New Stier." The so-called station announcer Lib Adler (Phil Stahl) interviewed the so-called composer of the opera, Prof. Sigfried Sitzplatz (Duncan Pirnie), whose guttaral accent sounded highly reminiscent of Sid Caesar's Schnitzel-und-Schnapps creation. The prof, a disciple of Prof. Hans Voorsht, from Achilles Und Der Heel near New Jersey Flats, solemnly described his past compositions, including "Lieber Freud" and "Der Ego Und Der Id." He went into such ecstatic raptures over the first aria of his new opera, "Lovai Dovai," that Lib Adler had to cut the windbag off.

The opera itself turned out to be screechy singing, caused by producer Fred Greenfeld playing an LP disk on a 45 needle. The contrapuntal baritone, Regurgus Holstein, turned out to be the sound effect of a cow bellowing balefully at the moon.

Second half of the stanza was given over to Anna Russell, who genially twitted coloratura sopranos. She gave a foggy-voiced demonstration of how they sing German lieder, French art songs, and, "when they have no voice but great artistry," are reduced to sobbing torch ballads, on the order of "Oh, You Made Me So Happy When You Made Me So Miserable."

Entire musical romp was carried off with a nice blend of mock seriousness and sauciness.

Seek Religioso Channel

Minneapolis, April 7.

Northwestern Bible Schools here has applied for a commercial television station on channel 23. Institution now operates radio stations KTIS and KTIS-FM in Minneapolis and KBOK in Waterloo, Ia.

Twin Cities now have two TV stations and a permit for a third on UHF has been granted.

RECORDING TAPE
Plastic Base, New, Non-Spliced
3 reels 7" $5.00
3 reels 5" $3.50
Add 50c postage We. of Mississippi
VOGUE TAPE CO.
(Dept. V.) 118 Bleecker St., N. Y.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR HEALTH
BERT SHERYLL, D.C.
Chiropractor
1639 Broadway Capitol Theatre Building New York City
Circle 7-4438 Call for an Appointment

DON CORNELL SHOW
With Georgia Gibbs, guest
Producer-director: Bob Noble
15 Mins., Sun., 6:15 p.m.
Sustaining
ABC, transcribed from N.Y.

Working within a neat format of song and patter, Don Cornell teed off a slick series on ABC Sunday (5). The net's slotting of crooner Cornell in his own show is in line with the overall show biz media drive to latch on to hot disk artists. In the past year Cornell has skyrocketed to the top brackets via his Coral Records' etchings and has built the kind of following that will rush to the dials when he's being aired. He's a natural winner for the teenage listener and okay bet for the adults who are within range of his vocal offerings.

The opening stanza was an easy-going affair with Cornell handling the tune intros and the guest-hosting in an amiable and ingratiating manner. His song repertoire included his hard hitting theme, "I'm Yours," a lilting rendition of the oldie, "S'Posin'," and a romantic "Many Are The Times." All incidentally, are on wax and indicates that the series will give Cornell a wide outlet to plug his shellac product.

It seems that the guests, too, will get in on the disk-plugging act. On the initialer Cornell played host to Georgia Gibbs, who moved right in with a rendition of her current disclick, "Seven Lonely Days," after a brief patter interlude. Up next week is Columbia Records' canary, Toni Arden, which indicates that the series will be a diskers' field day and right up the teenagers' alley.

Producer-director Bob Noble knits it into a fast-paced quarter-hour. Gros.

MY POP'S THE TOPS
With Charles and Barry Stark
30 Mins.; Sat., 1 p.m.
CO-OP
WINS, N. Y.

This half-hour session is strictly for the juve element. Playing on palship between father and son, airer is a combination quizzer and chatter stint. Quiz aspect of the show is in the sports vein and does not take up too much of broadcast's running time. Brief interviews are conducted with the guests comprised of father and son teams, with the latter, usually under 10 years of age, having to expound on why his pop is tops. This gives way to a number of cornball comments on why the old-man belongs at the head of the class.

Program is put together by Charles Stark Productions with Stark in charge of the interrogation. His son Barry is also on hand to further point up the parent-offspring relationship. Prizes are given each kid who makes an appearance on show and fall mostly into the sports equipment category. Fathers also draw gifts for giving a correct answer to quiz queries.

Plugs for Goodyear tires and Max Finkelstein, Inc., tire dealer, are frequent and don't enhance broadcast's limited drawing power. Jess.

Chicago — United Broadcasting Co. has changed its name to the United Film and Recording Studios. Although the bulk of the firm's grosses had formerly consisted of recording revenues, success with telepix has caused United to appropriate $250,000 for additional filming facilities.

JOHN CONTE SHOW
Producers: Gerry Gross, Norman Baer
Director: Bill Stedman
45 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 5:15 p.m.
Sustaining
WABC, New York

This is a modest effort that won't alienate anyone and that's bound to pick up a friendly following. Format is a standard mixture of songs, "live" and waxed, patter and late sports results, blended together by John Conte's amiable manner.

Conte keeps the 45-minute stanza running at an easygoing pace. He caters to the current disk tastes in his platter spinning and relies mainly on oldies for his vocal assignments. It provides a slick balance and widens his potential listener range. Gab is light and unassuming, making his spieling segments easy to take.

On series' preem show Monday (6), Conte crooned "Side by Side," "How Do You Speak to an Angel?" and "S'Wonderful" among others. All displayed his comfortable baritone styling.

All in all it's a pleasant setup that rates sponsor attention. Gros.

Radio Follow-Up

"Biography of an American," presented on WMCA's (N.Y.) public service division series "New World A-Coming" last Tuesday (31), had a good subject in the life story of Dr. Ralph Bunche, Director of UN Trusteeship, but failed to make the most of it, settling routinely instead for the rags-to-fame angle in a Horatio Alger vein.

Relying heavily on narration (by Mason Adams), Edgar Marvin's script moved episodically through a chronology of the Bunche biog, omitting several telling chapters, with the final effect that of an outline rather than the finished product. More fully sketched than other scenes were those relating Bunche's meeting of his future wife, Ruth Harris; his assistance to Gunnar Myrdal in preparing "An American Dilemma," the bible of the so-called Negro problem in the U.S. (which is really a matter of white attitudes), and his settlement of the Palestine fighting.

There was not much Maurice Tarplin, substituting for an ailing Juano Hernandez as Bunche, could do to bring his part to life. For instance, Bunche's reaction to many situations was never revealed: when, as a boy, he was refused admission to a Los Angeles pool "for white kids," and the stinging rebuke of good intention, by his high-school principal, that "we never thought of you as a Negro."

It's true, that from one view, Bunche's life was a success story. Son of a Detroit barber, he was orphaned before his teens and brought up by his grandmother (Ann Titoniak), who admonished "don't lose yourself in bitterness." Despite hardship, Bunche put himself through UCLA and Harvard (where he got his doctorate), and was a professor at Howard University, noted Negro institution, before his distinguished public career with the OSS, the State Department (as specialist) and the UN.

Yet the crux of Bunche's life, as that of any American Negro, is the inner struggle to believe in democracy while personally meeting daily denials of it in everyday life. This was sorely lacking in director Howard Phillips' production, as was the moment in Bunche's life when America paid a consequence for its intolerance, when the nation was denied the man's services as assistant Secretary of State because Bunche did not want to expose his family to life in segregated Washington.

WNOE's Major Strip Sale

New Orleans, April 7.

WNOE, Mutual affiliate here, signed the largest package in the history of the station last week with pacting of Brown's Velvet Dairy Products to sponssor five mystery shows a week. Mysteries represent local half of Mutual's Multi-Message Plan, the one-hour cross-the-board strip half of which is nationally bankrolled while the other half is sold locally.

Brown's, in addition to the 52-week mystery pact, also signed for a heavy spot schedule. Pact was set through the Brinckerhoff Advertising, local agency.

Cleveland — Spang Baking Co., through Gregory-House, picked up tab for half-hour 11 a.m. WNBK "Fun Wagon" featuring Glenn Rowell, emcee, and Cy Kelly, puppeteer.

RPI BINAURAL TEST PROGRAM
With Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute Glee Club, RPI Band, Four Horsemen, Dixieland Sextet, Studio Trio, Frank Gicca
Producer-director: Frank Gicca
30 Mins.; Mon., 10:30 p.m.
WHAZ, Schenectady, others

An ambitious test of binaural, or three-dimensional, radio broadcasting, capped a three-hour celebration last week (30) of the 30th anni for WHAZ, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute station. Students manning the staff of Radio Rensselaer, campus outlet, arranged the 30-minute program. It drew chiefly on the college for talent; enlisted the facilities of WHAZ; WGY, Schenectady; WTRY, Troy, and WXKW, WPTR and WROW, Albany. A panel of six experts, headed by Donald E. Nordgaard, an electronics researcher for General Electric Co. at Schenectady, monitored the show on home sets, for analytical purposes. Listener reaction was requested.

Like all new things, more experimentation on binaural radio seems to be a necessity. It was imperfect and uneven, although often stimulating and challenging. Individual response probably varied with musical tastes, training, aural selectivity, room setup and physical well-being. Requiring considerable concentration, 3-D radio, at this stage, is probably not the best medium for anyone who is tired or unalert. Competition for each ear appeared rather pronounced; perhaps conditioning would materially lessen this.

The quartet and glee club gave the greatest in-person illusion. Balance and differentation of both were fine, although the foursome's selection of numbers might be open to criticism. The "spread" effect for quartet presumably was designed to highlight binaural radio. Joel Dolven led choralers in a beautiful rendition of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," following which the jazz pullaround by the Sextet was slightly incongruous. Three 15-second switches to monoral were made, to show the contrast, during the origination.

Frank Gicca, an engineering student, program director of Radio Rensselaer and weekend controlroomer at WPTR, rated a bow for his organizational effort, script and direction. He emceed smoothly; voice was high-pitched. Jaco.

FALSTAFF SETS DEAL ON ST. L. BALLCASTS

St. Louis, April 7.

Now that it has been definitely settled that the St. Louis Browns will remain in St. Louis at least for the 1953 season a deal was worked out last week whereby the Falstaff Brewing Corp., will sponsor all games played by the club in addition to the game-of-the-day with Dizzy Dean and Al Heifer in the latter stint.

Alvin Griesedieck, prez of the suds maker, said the St. Louis outlet would again be KXOK with portions of night games skedded for KMOX. Bud Blattner, former major leaguer, will do with play-by-play with assists from Bill Durney the club's traveling secretary and former radio gabber.

Houston—Ralph Mead, former lighting director for KPRC-TV has been upped to program supervisor for the outlet.

TELEPROMPTER CORP. IN 53G NET FOR '52

TelePrompter Corp. earned net profit before taxes of $53,575 for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31, 1952, the company's annual report disclosed this week. Take was garnered on a gross of $285,583. Year, incidentally, represented the firm's first full 12 months in business. For 1951 a net loss of $16,092 was registered on a gross of $96,221.

Irving Kahn, president and board member, revealed that TelePrompter's annual meet for 1953 will be held at its New York office next Tuesday (14). Primary purpose of the conclave will be to elect an eight-man board of directors. Already on the slate besides Kahn are Fred H. Barkau, Roy R. Coffin, Walter Craig, Russell E. Gardner, Jr.; Hubert J. Schlafly, Hubert J. Schlafly, Jr., and Charles W. Stevens.

Radio Hangover

Continued from page 1

CBS-TV situation comedy roster, with such commercially successful entries as "My Friend Irma," "Our Miss Brooks," "Life With Luigi" (which returns to the web soon in the Thursday night at 8 slot), "Mr. and Mrs. North," etc., all representing, along with "Lux Video Theatre," "You Are There," "Suspense" and "Quiz Kids," an embellishment of sight values to the original radio series.

Ditto for NBC-TV's "Life of Riley," which has moved into a top-rated position. Same goes for such other NBC video entries as "Dragnet," "Voice of Firestone," "Hit Parade," "Cavalcade of America," "Big Story," "Aldrich Family," "One Man's Family," "Juvenile Jury," et al.

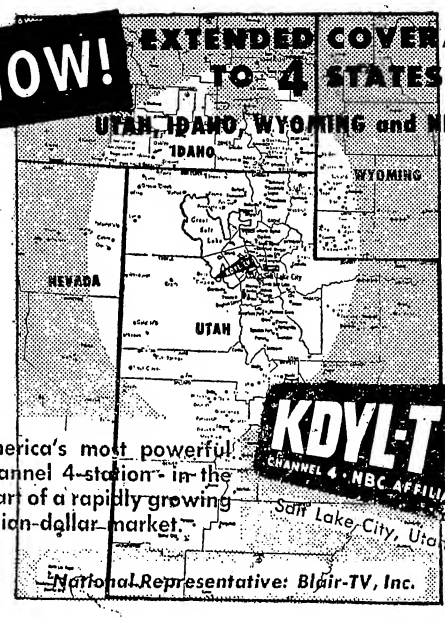
Too heavy reliance of the TV impresarios on radio-incubated personalities and properties is regarded as one of the more deplorable aspects in the video ascendancy and the inability of television thus far to entrench itself as an original, distinct component of show biz.

Boston — Frederic S. Bailey, WTAO-AM manager, has been appointed general manager of WTAO-TV, it was announced by Frank Lyman, prexy of the Middlesex Broadcasting Corp. Bailey will continue his AM duties. WTAO-TV, Boston's newest tele station, Channel 56, begins commercial operations in September.

Sound Film Studio for Rent
Fully equipped. 3-phase voltage regulated. 40 x 20 feet. Control room. $75 per day. $300 per week.
MUrray Hill 2-3218, New York City

Agents! Packagers!
Your program idea produced on film in our own New York sound film studio. Lowest possible cost. Box V-204253, Variety, 154 W. 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.

NOW! EXTENDED COVERAGE TO 4 STATES
UTAH, IDAHO, WYOMING and NEVADA



KDYL-TV
CHANNEL 4 • NBC AFFILIATE
America's most powerful Channel 4-station in the heart of a rapidly growing billion-dollar market.
National Representative: Blair-TV, Inc.

WGAL-TV
LANCASTER, PA.*
8
MR. CHANNEL 8 . . .
symbol of WGAL-TV's increased power, now gives larger coverage, bigger audience, greater sales potential to WGAL-TV advertisers.
*Market includes Harrisburg, York, Lancaster, Reading, Lebanon
WGAL
AM TV FM
A Steinman Station
Clair McCollough President
Represented by
ROBERT MEEKER Associates
New York Chicago Los Angeles San Francisco

Television Chatter

New York

Robert Kochenthal returned to the WPIX sales staff after two years with Katz agency . . . David J. Hopkins, Emerson's director of sales and advertising, named chairman of Radio-Television Manufacturers and Distributors Division of the Cancer Crusade . . . John W. Pacey, ABC director of public affairs, participated in a televised panel discussion on coverage of court proceedings Monday (6) in Cleveland at the national convention of Sigma Delta Chi journalism fraternity . . . Dennis Day to be honored April 11 by Manhattan College, his Alma Mater, with its alumni medal of honor . . . Frank Brill, account exec for United Television Programs, won the television set donated by Benton & Bowles for the blood donation drive staged last week by tenants of 444 Madison Ave. Building collected 560 pints of blood . . . Charles Condike named regional sales manager for the southwestern region of Du-Mont Labs' receiver division . . . "Your Pet Show" celebrates its fourth anni on WPIX this Saturday . . . Ezra Stoller's color photographs of CBS' "Television City" in Hollywood is a four-page picture-story feature in April issue of Fortune.

Jerome Thor, star of TV series "Foreign Intrigue," returns to the U. S. April 21 after an absence of almost a year . . . Don Appell joined George F. Foley Productions as associate producer and director of "Freedom Rings" . . . Silent-screen stars Dorothy Mackaill, Leatrice Joy and Nils Asther in "The Magic Lantern" on "Studio One" April 13 . . . Arlene Dahl, on way to Film Festival in Cannes, France, into "Philip Morris Playhouse" (radio) tonight (Wed.) and "This Is Show Business" (TV) Saturday. She has just finished "Diamond Queen" film. . . . Jeanette La Bianca, coloratura soprano, was guest on Lilli Palmer show last Sunday . . . Dan Klugherz appointed Manager of Film Production for CBS-TV.

Bud Collyer replaces Bobby Sherwood on ABC-TV's "Quick as a Flash" . . . NBC scene designer William C. Molyneux lent models of his stage and TV sets to the High School of Performing Arts for an exhibition there April 13 to 24 . . . Old Gold has renewed "Chance of a Lifetime" on ABC-TV.

Hollywood

Kelley Kar Co. inked 52-week pact to bankroll "Moonlight Movies" on KECA-TV . . . Charles Denny Jr., who has been here conducting video survey for Paramount Television, is no longer with the company . . . KNXT's Palladium Party switches from Sundays to Tuesdays . . . Dick Haynes teed off new show, angeled by Welch's Wines, on KLAC-TV . . . KNXT reshuffling programming, with Johnny Carson beginning new show; Harry Owens switching from Mondays to Thursdays; Johnny Mercer toplining musical panel format, and Bill Ballance panel show. As a result, Paul Coates' "Table From Hollywood" exits, but he remains as member of "Bachelor's Haven" and with his morning show . . . Tex Ritter preemed "Western Cavalcade" on KLAC-TV, with Joe Landis producing . . . KTLA manager Klaus Landsberg reshuffled personnel, with Joe Coffin ankling KLAC-TV to join station as director of sales development, Albert Band joining as staff director, talent director Bob Mohr being upped to sales manager, former sales manager Harry Maynard promoted to new post of director of advertising, sales promotion and client relations, and Bob Forbes, formerly in sales, takes charge of commercial continuity in production department . . . Leonard Stern joined Alan Young's scripting staff . . . "Files of Jeffrey Jones" begins April 13 on KTTV, with General Electric Supply Corp. picking up the tab . . . Al Terrence Carpet Co. bankrolling "Owl Movies" on KLAC-TV . . . Jack Wrather to San Diego to close escrow for his recent purchase of KFMB-TV and AM, beginning operations with escrow payment of $600,000 cash on $3,000,000 purchase from John A. Kennedy Broadcasting Co.

Chicago

Ed Sullivan emceed the TV Guide bowling tourney last week . . . Sunkist will replace Mars Candy as bankroller on ABC's "Super Circus" summer session . . . Kling Studios releasing beer blurbs in six new markets . . . Marilyn Dragowick joining the Ernie Simon WGN-TV staff . . . Mages Sporting Goods to sponsor the Monday 10 p.m. slots at WGN-TV. Feature pix and time billed through Malcom-Howard for the next 26 . . . Lee Salberg designing WBBM-TV car card promotions for the Chicago Transit Authority . . . Dr. Frances Horwich of NBC's moppet show, "Ding Dong School," will be keynoter of an educational confab at Roosevelt College.

WBKB's "Courtesy Hour" will receive plaudits from the National Television Review Board as the first live teevee show to be included in the Board's high school educational program . . . WBKB sportscaster Jack Drees off on a Florida hiatus with John Bryson filling in . . . Roy Lang being added to the W. E. Long ad agency as assistant radio-TV topper via a similar stint with Foote, Cone & Belding . . . Raytheon Television and Radio Corp., subsidiary of Raytheon Manufacturing Company, to be merged into the parent organization May 31 . . . Nelson Brothers Furniture picking up the remaining tabs for newscaster Fahey Flynn's WBBM-TV evening slots.

San Francisco

Local TV Academy's fourth annual "merit" awards went to Standard Oil for the "Standard Hour" teevee experiment . . . Stanford Univ. for the short-run "People, Places and Politics" series, bankrolled by Ford Foundation . . . Dr. Tom Groody for his "Science Laboratory" series . . . Lee Giroux for triple accomplishments—performance on Cerebral Palsy telethon, production of the deceased "San Francisco At Night" series, the opening of his Winroux Productions agency . . . William A. Palmer for his "Palmerscope" kinnie process . . . John Atterbury for set designs . . . KGO-TV for the Cerebral Palsy telethon . . . KRON-TV for increasing its power . . . KPIX for public service-educational pioneering . . . Walter Pidgeon, Screen Actors Guild president, here to confer on the new TV film code . . . Klaus Landsberg addressed local ad club . . . State Department axing two local "Voice of America" transmitters operated by General Electric and Associated Broadcasters . . . Latest Bay area TV set census estimated at 558,200 . . . Blue Wright quitting as KGO-TV program director to join WAKR-TV, Akron . . . New KGO-TV staff members: Wayne Anderson and Ted Carlson, sales; Don Blum, sales promotion; Bill Follett, film director.

26-Station, Four-State Web Bought by Brewery For Senators Ballcasts

Washington, April 7.

A baseball network of 26 radio stations in four states and the District of Columbia, with WWDC in Washington as the key outlet, will carry the entire 154-game schedule this season of the Washington Senators. The games will be sponsored by National Brewing Co. of Baltimore (National Bohemian beer).

In addition, plans are under way to add a fifth state to the "Washington Nats Baseball Network" as negotiations are in progress with four North Carolina stations.

Play-by-play broadcasts of the games will be handled by sportscasters Arch McDonald, Bob Wolff and Bailey Goss.

Stations which have joined the network are WFMD in Frederick, WARK in Hagerstown, WCUM in Cumberland, WKIK in Leonardtown, WASL in Annapolis, WCEM in Cambridge and WASA in Harve De Grace—all in Md., WFVA in Fredericksburg, WTON in Staunton, WNNT in Warsaw, WSTK in Woodstock, WINC and WRFL in Winchester, WANT and WRVB-FM in Richmond, WREL in Lexington, WLVA in Lynchburg, WVEC in Hampton, WRIS in Roanoke, WEVA in Emporia and WCHV in Charolottesville — all in Va.; WKYR in Keyser, WMMN in Fairmont and WEPM in Martinsburg—all in W. Va.; and WHVR in Hanover and WARD in Johnstown, in Pa.

Miller's WWVA Post

Wheeling, April 7.

With the recent promotion of William E. Rine as v.p. in charge of the Northern District of Storer Broadcasting Co., Paul J. Miller succeeds Rine as managing director of WWVA, Storer's 50,000-watt CBS radio affiliate here.

Miller was formerly assistant managing director.

TV Spotlights 24 of 31 Sessions At Ohio U. Educ'l Confab April 16

Columbus, April 7.

Educational broadcasters will find the program for Ohio State U.'s 23rd Institute for Education by Radio-Television heavily weighted in favor of television. This trend has been growing more evident since five years ago, when a pre-convention session on the topic was squeezed in at the last minute. Thursday-through-Sunday sessions are scheduled in the Deshler-Wallick Hotel here April 16 to 19.

Quick survey of the advanced program reveals that 24 of the 31 general session, work-study group and special-interest group topics deal with tele exclusively, or with radio and TV combined. Only five of the work-study groups, and five of the special-interest groups, devote their attention solely to radio.

The Institute kicks off evening of April 16 with a general session discussing "The Telecasting of Legislative Hearings." Dr. I. Keith Tyler, Institute director who rarely takes part in the formal program, will moderate the forum. Three speakers have been invited: Sig Mickelson, TV news director for CBS-TV; Telford Taylor, counsel for the Joint Committee on Educational Television, and Morris Novik, radio-TV consultant.

Graydon Ausmus, prez of the National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters, will moderate the Friday evening general session on "The Role of Educational Communications in Society." Sunday morning general session, on the hard facts of "Supporting Educational Television," will be presided over by John Crabbe, prez of Assn. for Education by Radio-Television. Speakers will include Ted Leitzell, public relations director for Zenith Radio Corp.; George R. Craig, trustee of Pittsburgh's Arbuckle-Jamison Foundation, and Edgar Dale, professor of Ohio State U.'s Buerau of Educational Research.

Broadcasting by schools, universities, national organizations and commercial stations will be considered in several of the work-study and special interest sessions. Other meetings will be concerned with techniques in educational TV, progress in communications research, training personnel for radio and TV in schools and colleges, and radio writing and production. Subject matter of programs will provide the chief topic in discussions on agricultural, religious, health, music and children's programs. Rep of organized listener-groups from all over the U. S. will share ideas in meetings on good programming.

Last year, the Institute was the first meeting held after the announcement that the FCC had allocated some 200 TV channels for educational purposes, and the gathering was in the nature of a sober celebration. FCC Chairman Paul Walker and Commissioner Frieda Hennock warned the educators then that these channels could only be held for them for a year, and pleaded with them to grab off the allocations. The year is nearly gone, and only 14 educational TV grants have been on, and only slightly more than a score of applications are on file.

Institute's advance program reveals an awareness of this situation in its listing of "how to" topics for discussion, and in its scheduling of the general session of the plaguing problem of paying costs of educational TV.

Faye Emerson's Month Of Road Originations

Faye Emerson, on tour in "Evening With Will Shakespeare," began this week a more-than-a-month out-of-town origination of her WNBC, N. Y., program.

Show, heard from 12:05 to 12:45 cross the board, simultaneously drops disk-playing from Miss Emerson's radio repertoire (it's a headache to set up for a traveling N. Y. deejay) to concentrate on straight interviews, many with her Shakespeare cast members, who include Eva LeGallienne, Margaret Webster, Viveca Lindfors, Basil Rathbone and John Lund.

First stop this week for the troupe, and Miss Emerson's N. Y. airer, is Boston, followed by single weeks at New Haven, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore and Washington, winding up the week of May 11.

Eileen BARTON
Opening April 10
Fazio's Supper Club
Milwaukee
CORAL RECORDS
Dir.: MCA

NOW BREAKING ALL RECORDS
WKRC-TV
CINCINNATI
Daily
Mondays thru Fridays
3:30 to 4:00 P.M.
Talk of the Women's World
The ERN WESTMORE TV-Show
PRODUCED BY KROGER BABB
WORLD'S LARGEST ORGANIZATION
HALLMARK OF SHOWMEN
HALLMARK PRODUCTIONS, Inc.
• 9100 Sunset •
HOLLYWOOD [46] CALIF.

the new wrinkle in television is TEEVEE library programming
. . . look for the new Wrinkle!
NARTB CONVENTION,
April 27, 28, 29, 30,
May 1

WTTV BLOOMINGTON
Serving a 2 BILLION $ MARKET
34% of the PEOPLE
34% of the FAMILIES
accounting for 35% of the SALES
in ALL INDIANA
WTTV—affiliated with all nets—maintains its own micro wave relay system between Cincinnati and Bloomington to bring LIVE network shows to viewers. WTTV is owned and operated by Sarkes Tarzian and Represented Nationally by ROBERT MEEKER ASSOCIATES, Inc.
New York · Chicago · Los Angeles · San Francisco

TV's Easter Parade

Continued from page 25

while interviews were being conducted.

At the Waldorf, McCarthy and Miss Ravisse interviewed, among others, James A. Farley, a Hungarian countess, and actress Marlene Cameron. Recorded background music throughout was annoying.

From the vantage point of a custom tailor's shop across the way from St. Patrick's Cathedral, Charles Collingwood, for CBS, gave the history of the Easter Parade, which could be seen fitfully in the distance through the window. Later, after much switching of the dial, he was found with author Cleveland Amory ("The Last Resorts"), who gave some lowdown on New York's high society.

Awkward Stars

At the Plaza, CBS' hotel headquarters, Ann Rutherford, subbing for Celeste Holm, who had bowed out of the event after signing with NBC, was nervous (as was Sally Forrest reading fashion notes) and anxiously awaiting cues in the Terrace Room, which had loud, distracting background noise. Also present was Walter Slezak of "My Three Angels," who interviewed a group of children including his German-speaking three.

Outside the Plaza, Mike and Buff Wallace chatted with such arrivals as Bert Lytell, who told two awkward anecdotes; several women with the Travelers Aid Society and the New York Cancer Committee, and hotel owner Conrad Hilton.

After about 17 minutes in New York, at the Sherry Netherland where Reginald Gardiner and Maggi McNellis chatted with such guests as Gloria Vanderbilt Stokowski and her son Stan, Russell Nype, and Mrs. Orson Munn Sr. and Jr., the ABC network switched to Washington's Mayflower Hotel, where a brunch was being held for the International Rescue Committee (to help enslaved peoples).

The Washington faces—among them Senators Paul Douglas, Theodore F. Green and Pat McCarran, with Mrs. William Randolph Hearst Jr. as hostess—were welcome in their television newness, but the hotel atmosphere suffered from sameness, and the people seen were too many, and too hastily and briefly met. There was also a Washington fashion parade.

Now that television's Easter Parade coverage has been frightened away from Fifth Avenue, it would be wise to explore not only other locations, as ABC has done, but other approaches to avoid overwhelming the viewers with a multiplicity of guests too superficially presented. Television shows lack of imagination by merely offering an almost endless string of people, mainly celebrities (bona fide or otherwise), to stand up before the cameras and take a figurative bow.

TV Star Jag

Continued from page 27

in radio and television, as witness "I Love Lucy" and the fall starter in "My Favorite Husband." CBS has in the works a new creative board of writers, such as those radio boys who established the situation comedies as a bull market years ago.

Hubbell Robinson Jr., CBS-TV programming chief, has signed playwright Ronald Alexander ("Time Out for Ginger") as the start of a large creative staff that will knock heads together in developing new tele properties. While not uninterested in stars—such as Danny Kaye, for instance—CBS is concerned with creating the right property first and then acquiring the star (or grooming one).

Any way you look at it, the fall season shapes up as one of the most active one in years, as opposed to last season't generally moribund condition, when new tele shows were few and far between.

Hallmark

Continued from page 26

shows have been most helpful in building recognition and sales for Hallmark cards. We feel that productions like 'Hamlet' and 'Amahl and the Night Visitors' make important contributions to TV, and fit perfectly into the 'Hallmark Hall of Fame' objectives on radio and TV."

Hallmark will promote its "Hamlet" sponsorship by distributing a four-page "Study Guide to Hamlet" to 12,000 high school and college English teachers throughout the U. S. Students will find in it pictures of the cast, a history of the play, and an explanation of its relationship to modern life.

Besides Evans in the role of Hamlet, the cast will contain Ruth Chatterton as Queen Gertrude, Sarah Churchill as Ophelia, Joseph Schildkraut as King Claudius, and Barry Jones as Polonius. Unlike its sponsorship of "Amahl," Hallmark will offer commercials at the beginning, middle and end of the drama. A five-minute break will be made at midpoint of the telecast to allow Evans a breathing spell.

Fore-Aft Baseball

Continued from page 27

fore the season opens next week. Wife of Giant manager Leo Durocher wasn't expected to repeat her chores of last year, but recenty decided to do the turn once again.

Otherwise, the lineup looks like this:

Dodger games on WOR-TV are preceded by the half-hour "Happy Felton's Knot Hole Gang," picked up a couple of weeks ago by Bank of the Manhattan Co. Post-game sessions of 15-minutes are shared by Studebaker Dealers and Tidewater Associated Oil, latter, repeating its sponsorship of last year.

On WPIX, Yankees signed comic Joe E. Brown to handle pre- and post-game chores, consisting of a 15-minute stanza before and 10 minutes following the games. R. J. Reynolds bankrolls, for Camels and Cavaliers. Since it's a Yankee package, Brown will also assist Mel Allen and Jim Woods in the commentary on the games themselves.

Also on WPIX, Frisch will do post-game chores of 10-minutes for Lincoln-Mercury Dealers while Miss Day, as yet unsponsored, does the pre-game slot.

Sen. Tobey

Continued from page 26

mercial field. Sen. Tobey said he felt he could speak for the people of Sen. Butler's state as well as his own "and say that we have enough commercials now."

It was at this point that Tobey announced that the committee would meet with the FCC to consider "the whole field" of educational video.

It became obvious, from the hearing on Doerfer, that Sen. Bricker is pushing to safeguard reservation of channels for educational TV after next June 2, when commercial broadcasters may petition the Commission to take up educational channels which have not been applied for. The Ohio solon urged that the channels be "kept open" to give the educational institution the opportunity "to outfit its own station in its own time and in its own way."

"I just don't want to see this great (television) facility taken over entirely," Sen. Bricker continued, "to the exclusion of control by educational institutions. We have the money. We have the operating facilities. We have the people, training and trained, who could conduct an around-the-clock program."

Murrow

Continued from page 25

ups, no film at all, and has created a good deal of sponsor thinking.

Amoco, for instance, which has first refusal rights, would like to back Murrow in TV as it has in radio since the days of the blitz in London. But five a week on radio and two a week on tele are a lot of news shows.

So Amoco is reportedly mulling the possibility of cutting the Murrow 7:45 p. m. radio strip to three a week, picking up the tele tab for "Person to Person" at either two 15-minute periods, which would give the oil company full weekly Murrow coverage on both radio and tele, or one half-hour period during the week.

There's also some network thinking about making life easier for the radio-TV reporter by advancing Murrow's radio time one hour earlier into the Lowell Thomas spot (Procter & Gamble is dropping Thomas in June).

With all this, Alcoa is not happy. Aluminum firm, liking Murrow for its institutional advertising, wants if possible, to keep the newsman a television exclusive and is worried about added Murrow tele exposure under different sponsorship if "Person to Person" debuts under the Amoco flag.

Beaumont, Tex.—All four of the local radio stations will be represented in the legit production of "A Message for Kings" to be presented here April 15. Karl von Leuwen, program director for KRIC, is director and a member of the cast. Ed Ogden, engineer for KFDM, is technical director of the play. Virginia Moon, of the KTRM staff, will be narrator. In the cast are Charles St. John of KJIM and Homor Odom and Will Coker from KFDM.

Inside Stuff—Radio

WOR, Mutual's New York flagship, recently snowballed a $100 one-shot advertisement on the station into a $50,000-a-year billings proposition. Client was Plantation Estates, a realty firm which sells plots in Florida to retiring couples. WOR salesman talked the firm some months ago into buying one announcement on the early morning John Gambling show. Firm had been working on an advertising cost basis of $5 per inquiry. Initial announcement brought a response that cued Plantation to buy time to the point where it now has 15 minutes of Gambling on Saturdays, plus other spots to the tune of $1,000 weekly. Claims, too, it's sold out one area of plots and has started another development in Florida.

For writing and producing "Only One to a Customer," NBC radio documentary on heart disease last year, Wade Arnold, NBC executive producer has been chosen as the first winner of the American Heart Assn's annual Howard W. Blakeslee Award ($1,000) for outstanding scientific reporting in the field of heart and blood vessel diseases.

Award will be formally presented Friday (10) at the annual dinner of the American Heart Assn. in Atlantic City. It was established last year in memory of Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press science editor and founder of the National Assn. of Science Writers, who died of heart disease.

CBS employes in the Labor Grade structure (practically all white-collar and service employes) receive a hike in salary, retroactive to March 30, in their paychecks April 10 or 17. Salary minimums have been boosted from $2 to $12, and employes will get these increases or a 5% general increase, whichever is higher. A merit-raise system goes into effect May 3.

Broadcasters covering the latest atom bomb explosion at Yucca Flat, Nevada, have received membership cards to the Ancient and Honorable Society of Atombombwatchers, Las Vegas Local No. 1, from the Flamingo Hotel.

Cards attest holders have "shivered, sweated and stuck."

WLIB, N. Y. indie, is making its Harlem Easter Party an annual affair, following the appearance of 1,000 youngsters Saturday (4) at the station's Hotel Theresa studios. Station had announced the party the day before, and had to turn away a number of youngsters. Merchandising tie-ins were set with sponsors, who provided free refreshments and gifts to the kids.

William S. Hedges, NBC veepee and chairman of the nominating committee of the New York chapter of the Radio Pioneers, has announced a slate of officers for the upcoming meeting and election of the Club to be held May 20.

Committee's slate is: President, Patt Barnes; 1st veepee, Frank Silvernail of B.B.D&O.; 2d veepee, Charles Butterfield, AP radio columnist; 3rd veepee, Henrietta Harrison of the YMCA; Secretary, Bruce Robertson of Broadcasting magazine, and Treasurer, Charles A. Wall of AMP and BMI.

Those personal pitches by pop vocalists for their own disks will be extended into the classical field for the first time on ABC, when Jan Peerce tops off his 90-minute Monday night musical host stint with a 15-minute disk and gab session. Metopera tenor will play his own Victor etchings, intro and interview guests, and generally discuss the longhair fields.

ABC has been experiencing all kinds of difficulty with a title for its new series, name of which was changed for the third time this week. Originally tagged "ABC Caravan," it was changed a couple of weeks ago to the "ABC Playbill." Third change came when "The Playbill," N. Y. legit program magazine, warned the network the name was copyrighted and that the firm had won two previous suits of title infringement.

It's now the "ABC Playhouse."

Lincoln-Mercury In WCBS Weather Tuneup

Lincoln-Mercury, through Kenyon & Eckhardt, has bought a fixed position weather package on WCBS, N. Y., beginning next week.

Two one-minute spots, at 6 and 11 p.m. Monday through Saturday, will be in a singing commercial format, with 20 seconds of music, 10 seconds of straight weather and 30 seconds for the commercial.

Lyrics and music for tunes are written by Ernie Hartman, WCBS assistant program director, and Margo Burke.

Omaha—WOW last Thursday (2) staged its 30th anni show, featuring Jolly Joe Martin, Al Lamm and rebroadcasts of station's past top shows.

Cincinnati—Joe E. Marks, vet comic and a resident of Covington, Ky., opposite Cincy, has exited as a WLW-TV staffer. He has signed for outdoor operettas this summer in St. Louis and Kansas City.

Now starring on NBC's
ALL STAR REVUE
Saturdays, 8-9 p.m., EST
Mgt.: William Morris Agency

AMERICAN-BRITISH T.V. MOVIES, INC.
200 West 57th St., New York City JU 6-7198/9
Directors: Nathan Kramer, Michael Hyams
A.B.T.V.
first in the field
with a package of
13 BRAND NEW FEATURE MYSTERIES
★55★
MINUTES EACH
ALL EDITED BY FILM EXPERTS. THESE FEATURE FILMS ALSO AVAILABLE IN THEIR ORIGINAL LENGTH.

Radio-TV
Announcer-Producer
Metropolitan Stations Experience
Newsreels, Commercial Films, etc.
Also Stage and Recordings. Available as Announcer and/or Producer.
Write Box V. 975, Variety
154 W. 46th St., N. Y. C., or phone
ORegon 9-2720

Our Business is growing by leaps and bounds. We would like to discuss with a good radio and television agent the possibilities of joining us.
BOX V-753, Variety
154 West 46th Street
New York 36, N. Y.

RADIO IN THE Upper Midwest...
...always has been the best cost-per thousand medium. Today, KSTP Radio is a better buy than ever before. A dollar gets a lot more!
Ask Your Petry Man.

KSTP
50,000 WATTS - CLEAR CHANNEL
KEY STATION FOR THE NORTHWEST NETWORK
MINNEAPOLIS • ST. PAUL
REPRESENTED BY EDWARD PETRY AND COMPANY

INSTRUMENTALS AS DISK STAPLES

ASCAP Shies From 'Favorite Son' Electioneering, Though Time Short

Although the ASCAP presidential race is still wide open with less than a month to go before the board must name a successor to Otto A. Harbach, the exec echelons of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers are not engaging in any electioneering to date for "favorite sons." Neither the writers nor publishers on the ASCAP board have met together in any sort of factional grouping to push for one or another candidate.

At this point, however, it's understood that Stanley Adams is forging ahead as one of the more likely nominees. Adams has the support of the writer group on the board and he has reportedly been gaining among some of the leading publishers. Jack Yellen has also been named as a possibility by the writers but has received little publisher support. Some top publishers believe that if a deadlock occurs, either Fred E. Ahlert or Deems Taylor, both former prexies, may be asked to take the top post. Ahlert, however, has indicated that he would decline to serve.

The balloting for writer-members of the ASCAP board, which resulted in the reelection of all incumbents, gave the following results: 138,822 votes for Oscar Hammerstein 2d; 138,289 for Harbach; 132,405 for Ahlert; 124,982 to Adams; 124,327 for Yellen; 121,858 for Gene Buck; 119,229 for Edgar Leslie; 118,889 for Deems Taylor; 115,931 to John Tasker Howard; 115,562 to George Meyer; 112,171 to Paul Cunningham; and 98,596 to A. Walter Kramer.

Aberbachs Prep Alamo Buildup

Music publishers Jean and Julian Aberbach, who have become among the leading hillbilly publishers via their Broadcast Music, Inc., Hill & Range firm, are currently making a bid to build up their Alamo company, an ASCAP affiliate. In the last couple of weeks, the Aberbachs have made exclusive deals with four ASCAP writers.

Lee Morris, a history teacher in Boston, joined the Alamo stable under a one-year pact with two-year options. Morris, who has done special material for such performers as Hildegarde and Carl Brisson, is currently on a hillbilly kick after making a trip to Nashville.

The Aberbachs also inked Kay Twomey, also from Boston, Fred Wise and Al Weisman. Latter three writers work as a team.

ROBBINS, NAT COLE FORM NEW PUBBERY

Jack Robbis, head of J. J. Robbins & Sons, has formed a new publishing company in partnership with Nat (King) Cole. Firm, called King Cole Music, will issue piano method folios written by Cole in the Dixieland and progressive idioms.

Robbins recently made a similar deal with Jack Barry, emcee of "Juvenile Jury," in the Robar company which is publishing a folio of p.d. tunes, in new arrangements under the title of "Life Begins At 80—Old Time Songs."

Jack Robbins may publish the score of the new Fred Finklehoffe-Johnny Mercer legit musical. Another legit venture is the forthcoming Albert Lewis production of (the late) Fulton Oursler's "Greatest Story Ever Told." Domenico Savino, longtime J. J. Robbins & Sons staffer, has arranged a "Mary's Lullaby" thematic for the dramatic play.

Wally Cox's RCA Disks

Wally Cox, nitery comic and the "Mr. Peepers" of the NBC-TV show, will make his bow on wax via RCA Victor release later this month. Cox has etched a comedy monolog, "What A Crazy Guy" and the standard, "There's A Tavern In The Town."

Accent on diskings by the TV comics is also being made by Columbia with their recent slice of a Red Buttons disk. Victor cut some disks with Milton Berle a couple of years ago as did Coral Records with Jerry Lester.

N.Y. Court Rule Blow to Goody's Disk Price Cutting

The case for establishing firm list prices on disks was given the biggest support to date when the Raxor Corp. won its suit against Sam Goody, N. Y. discount retailer, in N. Y. Supreme Court last week. Raxor, in behalf of Cetra-Soria Records, was granted an injunction prohibiting Goody from cutting prices on their merchandise.

In a long decision by Judge Isidor Wasservogel, the court ruled the Feld-Crawford fair-trading act fully applied to Cetra. The judge threw out Goody's claim that Raxor was indulging in the illegal price-fixing or in restraint of trade. The court ruled, however, that the Feld-Crawford Act did not apply to Goody's inter-state or foreign sales, which excludes his mail order operation from the injunction.

Capitol Records took over the distribution of the Cetra catalog April 1 and is continuing the policy of maintaining list prices by entering a number of fair trade agreements. The court ruled that Raxor's deal with Capitol had no bearing on the suit against Goody since there was nothing in this pact which was illegal. The tieup between Raxor in the U. S. and Cetra in Italy, which Goody contended involved illegal price-fixing, also was approved by the court as a legitimate deal to buy foreign masters by a U. S. company.

Decca Drops Stock Incentive Plan For Its Key Personnel

Due to negative reaction from stockholders, Decca's board has agreed to drop its proposed stock incentive plan to key employees. Directors made the decision at its meeting last week because "they have received adverse comments upon the stock option plan as submitted sufficient to warrant reconsideration of the matter."

Plan would have opened the way for the issue of 150,000 shares, with key employees entitled to be awarded options for purchase of a specified number of the stocks at 95% of the prevailing market price. Decca prexy Milton R. Rackmil was given the first option to buy 100,000 shares.

Opposition to the incentive plan by Decca stockholders is surprising in light of its being a common practice in corporations in and out of show business. Loew's and Columbia Pictures, for instance, have such plans currently in operation. The Decca plan was to have come up for approval at the stockholders' meeting in N. Y. April 14.

Al Salinas has been named professional manager of Peer International's Latin-American division.

BUCK TIDE OF CORNBALL HITS

While it's been the hillbilly tunes and the novelties which have seemingly captured the music biz for the past couple of years, instrumental numbers in the class bracket have bucked the tide to become among the most staple items in the bestselling lists. Instrumental clicks, of course, are as old as the disk industry, but their vitality in face of the recent cornball surge is a current phenomenon in the trade.

All of the major platter labels are now pulling for the instrumental vogue with one or more orchs batoned by "house" musical directors. Victor has Hugo Winterhalter and Henri Rene; Columbia has Percy Faith and Mitch Miller; Decca has Leroy Anderson, Tutti Camarata and Gordon Jenkins, and Capitol has Les Baxter, while among "the Little Three" companies, M-G-M has Tony Acquaviva, David Rose and Macklin Harrow; Mercury has Dick Hayman and Ralph Marterie, and London has Edmundo Ros.

The disk companies have been laying on the instrumentals because they have been steady, and occasionally standout sellers such as "The Third Man Theme," with Anton Karas for London several years ago and more recently Anderson's "Syncopated Clock" and "Blue Tango." Such hits, moreover, have proved to be solid sheet music sellers in a period when the usual run of disk hits have generally been disappointing copy movers. The key, perhaps, to the consistent showing of the instrumentals may be found in their steady spinning by the disk jockeys who want a change from the pop lyric diet.

No Critics This Year

No instrumental has broken through for a hit this year as yet, but there are currently a flock of contenders for such ranking. "Ruby", theme from the 20th-Fox pic, "Ruby Gentry," is rapidly moving upwards via the Hayman slice for Mercury, and a Mitchell Par-

(Continued on page 45)

Ellington Exits Col for Capitol

After waxing under the Columbia Records banner for the past five years, Duke Ellington last week switched to the Capitol label. Ellington's Cap deal will run a year with options and calls for a hefty guarantee. Col's negotiations for a renewal of Ellington's pact fell through when the maestro and the diskery couldn't come to terms on the guarantee stipulation.

In the past year a number of major diskeries have squawked about their orch pactees' high guarantees and have been threatening to crack down when renewal time came due. Ellington, who recently celebrated his 25th anni in the music biz, etched for the now-defunct Musicraft label before rejoining Columbia in 1948.

Geo. Frazier to RCA For 'Special Projects'

Writer George Frazier joined RCA Victor last week in a newly created post as coordinator of special projects. In his new spot, Frazier will supervise pop reissues and show albums long with originating special album ideas out of Victor's extensive wax archives.

A jazz critic, Frazier has an intimate working knowledge of Victor's accumulation of jazz classics reaching back to the 1920s. Victor has been releasing numerous jazz albums recently but most of 1930-40 vintage.

Manie Sacks Sets Joe Carlton as A&R Topper of RCA's New Record Label

'Da, Da' Subversive

The anti-Commie mood of the nation is now sweeping through Tin Pan Alley.

In the original version of the tune, "Say Si Si," there's a line which goes, "and in Russia, the girls say 'da da'!" For the tune's current revival, however, the line has been dropped. Al Stillman and Francia Luban wrote the tune on a theme by Ernesto Lecuona. E.B. Marks is publishing.

Disney Follows Santly-Joy Deal With BMI Subsid

Another ASCAP firm moved into the dual publishing operation with a Broadcast Music, Inc., affiliate this week with Walt Disney Music reactivating its Wonderland subsid in a tieup with the broadcasters. Move marks the second time within a month that BMI has added a new firm from the ASCAP stronghold. Previous deal was with Santly-Joy's new Trinity Music subsid.

In line with the Wonderland setup, Disney is regaining the copyrights to the scores from the pix, "Bambi" and "The Reluctant Dragon." Both scores were placed with BMI before Disney had set up his own music firm. Scores from his pix previously had been spotted among several Tin Pan Alley pubs and he handed the "Bambi" (penned by Frank Churchill and Edward Plumb) and "The Reluctant Dragon" (by Churchill and Larry Morey) copyrights to BMI because the pix were released during radio's ban on ASCAP. Both scores, of course, will now be placed in the Wonderland firm.

Wonderland was organized two years ago as selling agent for the "Alice In Wonderland" score which was published by Disney. Firm, however, was never placed in ASCAP or BMI. Disney's move into the BMI fold is attributed to the dissatisfaction with ASCAP's payoff system.

Wonderland's operation will be delayed until Disney Music's general manager, Fred Raphael, returns from a six-week European trek which began yesterday (Tues.). BMI's guarantee deals and point payoff plan for Wonderland will be worked out then.

Court Backs Agent's Fee on Song During 2d Copyright Term

An agent's fee on a song publication, made during the first copyright term, is valid during the second copyright term as well, according to a N. Y. Federal Court decision last week in the case of Jack Val vs. Feist Music. Val was suing for 10% of the royalties on the oldie, "Running Wild," which he sold to Feist in 1922 on behalf of the writers, A. Harrington Gibbs, Joseph Gray and Leo Wood, the first two agreeing to pay Val the agent's cut.

Unique aspect of the case was that the publisher argued against the concept that an original agreement under the initial copyright term is valid for the second term. Abner Greenberg, attorney for Val, based his contrary claim on the Witmark vs. Fred Fisher ruling by the Supreme Court in 1942 in the "Wild Irish Rose" case.

Ernst Von Dohnanyi, composer-pianist, will be guest soloist at the premiere concert of the Atlantic City Symphony Orchestra, tomorrow (Thurs.) in the Atlantic City High School.

RCA Victor is moving into a brand new disk operation with the formation of a subsid label, as yet unnamed, which will be aimed at all markets, except the classical. Joe Carlton, currently Mercury Records' eastern artists & repertoire chief takes over the top a&r spot of the new label which will be handled through an entirely independent distrib system. He starts April 20 but marketing may not occur until late summer.

New label will complement Victor's Bluebird line which was reactivated last fall for low-priced classical and kiddie platters. One of the suggested names for the new diskery is Arc, an anagram of the RCA trademark. Manie Sacks, who conceived the extra label, is also partial to the Arc tag, which he coined. Arc will have the same price as Victor's pops.

Selling of the new label will be unique for Victor insofar as the distrib outlets will have no connection with RCA's regular outlets which handle the company's radio-TV sets, air-conditioning and stove merchandise for consumers. Victor execs are aiming to hypo the new label via this push from distribs who only handle disks.

Victor's move is similar to Decca's in its formation of Coral Records. Latter company is virtually independent of Decca with all facets of Coral's operation, except for top echelon decisions, handled by separate personnel. Columbia Records also launched a subsid label, Okeh Records, on a similar basis. Coral has been clicking steadily in the pop fields while Okeh has established itself in the rhythm & blues market with a pop buildup in the works.

While Camden will handle both the Victor-affiliated brands, including Arc (or whatever the new title) on billings, operations will otherwise be decentralized. Carlton will be at RCA's East 24th St. (N. Y.) studios, and in every respect independent. Pressing, printing, billing, etc., will be from the common depots, for obvious cost reasons.

RCA Disk Biz In 16% Hike for '53

RCA Victor's disk biz continued strong last quarter, according to publisher royalty payments which showed a 16% boost over the previous quarter. It was 14% over the payments made for the same quarter last year.

Upbeat was acounted for by such hits Perry Como's "Don't Let The Stars Get In Your Eyes" and a couple of Eddie Fisher clicks. Percentages cover payments made to publishers collecting through the Harry Fox office of the Music Publishers Protective Assn.

AQUAVIVA SWITCHES FROM M-G-M TO CORAL

Tony Aquaviva, who's billed on his orch waxings by his surname only, ended his year-long affiliation with M-G-M Records last week when he pacted with the Coral label. The Aquaviva acquisition is part of Coral's plan to strengthen its orch pactee stable in line with current vogue for instrumental platters.

Aquaviva joined the M-G-M roster when diskery bought up several of his independently-made masters. It's expected that his first Coral sides will be out on the market during the latter part of May.

Ross to Dorsey Music

Benny Ross has been named professional manager of Dorsey Bros. Music and its subsid, Embassy Music.

Ross was formerly associated with Goday Music.

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By HERM SCHOENFELD

Dolores Gray: "Big Mamou"-"Say You're Mine Again" (Decca). This coupling looks like a cinch to be Dolores Gray's biggest. "Big Mamou," launched by Link Davis on Okeh, gets a rousing workover slated for heavy jock and juke spins. "Mine Again" gets the same click treatment as on the original indie Allied label.

Perry Como: "Say You're Mine Again"-"My One and Only Heart" (Victor). Perry Como's cut of "Mine Again" should walk off with most of the marbles on this number, a fine ballad which gets a catching slow treatment with choral backing from the Ramblers. Flip, on which Como uses the multiple-dubbing technique for the first time, is equally targeted for the hit lists. It's a light rhythm tune with a fine lyric.

Tony Martin: "Now Hear This"-"April in Portugal" (Victor). Tony Martin, who has been looking for a hit disk for some time, could have it on this coupling. "Now Hear This" is a free-swinging marching number with a colorful lyric. "April in Portugal," which has been climbing as an instrumental, gets a romantic, highly commercial lyric treatment by Martin with tasteful orch backing by Lennie Hayton's orch.

Patti Page: "Oo, What You Do to Me"-"Now That I'm in Love" (Mercury). Patti Page can do no wrong on wax and she turns up with another likely bestseller in "What You Do to Me." She gives it a sultry Latin-styled rendition with lotsa impact. Flip is a take-off on the "William Tell Overture," with novelty appeal.

Tony Bennett: "No One Will Ever Know"-"I'm the King of Broken Hearts" (Columbia). Maybe the tearful cycle is coming to a close but Tony Bennett could still score with "Ever Know." It's a simple sad tale ably projected. Flip is another melancholy item with good potential.

Ella Mae Morse: "Big Mamou"-"Is It Any Wonder" (Capitol). Ella Mae Morse is also in the running on "Big Mamou" with a snappy slice while Pete Hanley, for Okeh, has a solid male vocalist version of this Cajun Indian number. On the Cap reverse, Miss Morse changes pace on a slow tempoed ballad with only fair results.

Ralph Flanagan: "A-L-B-U-Q-U-E-R-Q-U-E"-"Moon" (Victor). Currently riding high with "Hot Toddy," Ralph Flanagan's orch dishes up another fine swinging number in "Albuquerque," with a spelling-out lyric cutely handled by maestro Flanagan and the Singing Winds. "Moons"-also gets a commercial slice, Harry Prime soloing.

Jackie Paris: "If Love Is Good to Me"-"Only Yesterday" (Brunswick). Jackie Paris has a definite Nat Cole quality which might handicap his own impact as a stylist. He's competent in this genre, however, and has a fine number in "Love Is Good to Me." The flip is a fair ballad.

Dennis Day: "My Sweetheart Mamie"-"There's Plenty of Fish in the Ocean" (Victor). "Mamie" was kicked off by an Eddie Cantor TV plug and this 1941 tune in an 1890 groove gets an appropriately warm, oldfashioned workover by Dennis Day and choral group. Flip is an okay novelty.

Ferrante & Teicher: "That Old Black Magic"-"Beezwhacks" (Entre). This piano duo whip up strange sounds out of their gimmicked pianos and their slice of the standard, "Old Black Magic," generates a unique excitement which could give this side a big juke play. Flip is a double-quick rendition of a w.k. classical theme, "Flight of the Bumble Bee."

Henri Rene Orch: "Street of Shadows"-"The Song From Moulin Rouge" (Victor). Fine instrumentals on two pic themes. "Shadows" is a bluesy number which gets an atmospheric workover with Alvy West's expressive sax providing a big lift to Rene's rich orchestration. Flip is another excellent job but perhaps a bit late to catch up with the initial Percy Faith version on Columbia.

Peggy Lee: "Who's Gonna Pay The Check"-"Sorry Baby, You Let My Love Get Cold" (Decca). "Check" is an okay dialect tune with a light bounce beat which Peggy Lee sells to the hilt. Fair prospects. Reverse is in a flavorsome blues and rhythm groove with good chances.

Bill Kenny: "Who's To Blame"-"I Keep Thinking of You" (Decca). Bill Kenny high-flown tenor pipes gets good material on this coupling. "Blame" is a good ballad tailored for his trademarked mannerisms. Flip is another fine tune, Sy Oliver's orch furnishing the backgrounds.

Five Bills: "Waiting, Wanting"-"Till Dawn and Tomorrow" (Brunswick). This is a promising vocal combo with the lead tenor having fine pipes which he uses somewhat in the Bill Kenny manner. "Waiting" is a neat ballad with pop potential. Flip is less effective with the tenor getting too flamboyant.

Jerry Gray Orch: "Tompkins Grove"-"And The Bull Walked Around Olay" (Decca). Jerry Gray's orch rides a smooth instrumental on "Grove," a danceable slice with a bright arrangement. It could be a sleeper. The slice of "Bull" is probably too late to mean anything, but it's an okay version of this climbing number.

Best Bets

DOLORES GRAY ..... BIG MAMOU
Decca ..... Say You're Mine Again

PERRY COMO ..... SAY YOU'RE MINE AGAIN
RCA Victor ..... My One And Only Heart

TONY MARTIN ..... NOW HEAR THIS
RCA Victor ..... April In Portugal

PATTI PAGE ..... OO, WHAT YOU DO TO ME
Mercury ..... Now That I'm In Love

TONY BENNETT ..... NO ONE WILL EVER KNOW
Columbia ..... I'm the King of Broken Hearts

Album Reviews

Rosalind Russell: "Wonderful Town" (Decca). Original-cast album of this latest Broadway musical comedy hit is a positive bet as merely a listenable platter and, of course, an absolute must for specialists who collect show records. As usual in such albums, some of the numbers have different values on wax than in visual stage performance. For example, Leonard Berstein's score seems even more versatile and the Betty Comden-Adolph Green lyrics are more intelligible on repeated listening at home than on the show's opening night, amid the laughter and applause of a responsive audience. Also Miss Russell is apparently able to concentrate on tone and enunciation, without worry about audibility, so her distinct brand of vocalizing is in some respects better on the disk, despite the absence of her visual antics and personality. Standout songs on the record include the already established pop, "Ohio," "One Hundred Easy Ways," "A Little Bit In Love" (a likely item for a name femme singer to wax), "Pass the Football," "A Quiet Girl," "My Darlin' Eileen" and "Swing." On the other hand, "Conversation Piece," a funny number in the show, doesn't come across without its visual element. As always, Decca's list of numbers on the jacket is admirably clear, but if the printed blurb capsuled the situation for each number it would be helpful for those who haven't seen the show. Hobe.

Doris Day: "By The Light of the Silvery Moon" (Columbia). This package of tunes from the Warner pic of the same title in which she stars, Doris Day exhibits that lucid, warm style which has made her a standout pop songstress. In this set, she does sock rendition of such tunes as "If You Were The Only Girl," "Ain't We Got Fun," "Baby Bumble Bee." "Just One Girl," "I'll Forget You" and the rousing "King Chanticleer" number. Paul Weston's orch backs up smartly with Norman Luboff's choir assisting on most of the tunes.

Platter Pointers

Leo Fuld bows on Mercury with some fair Yiddish-flavored items, "Zigany Melody" and "Yaass" . . . Lily Ann Carol has a fine side in "Rollin' Rollin' Stone" (Victor) . . . On the same label, Damita Jo again impresses on "The Widow Walk" and "Missing" . . . Elton Britt comes up with fine country slice of "Broken Wings," currently Britain's top hit (Victor) . . . Charlie Spivak orch has a good marching version of "The Army's Always There," the prize-winning U. S. Army number by Sam H. Stept (King) . . . Louis Jordan has a likely side in "It's Better To Wait For Love" (Decca) . . . Bob Craig's dramatic style has two okay sides in "Daniel In the Lion's Den" and "The Masquerade Is Over" (Decca) . . . "Little Red Monkey" gets an effective clavioline treatment by Frank Chacksfield's Tunesmiths, a British combo (Coral).

LAWRENCE WELK
and his
CHAMPAGNE MUSIC

85th Consecutive Week, Aragon Ballroom, Santa Monica, Calif.

Exclusively for Coral Records
"OH HAPPY DAY" backed
by "Your Mother and Mine"

Band Reviews

LOUIS PRIMA ORCH (13)
With Keely Smith
Cafe Rouge, Hotel Statler, N.Y.

Louis Prima has come into this hotel band room for a six-week stand with a virtually new lineup of sidemen and the lack of integration is conspicuous. It's likely that the band will start pulling together before this date ends but that wasn't the case opening night (6).

Prima, as before, is the type of maestro who doesn't need more than a minimum of support. He clowns, muggs and dances on the podium and sells his crew by the sheer force of his showmanship. His freewheeling antics, incidentally, represents a switch from the usual staid behavior of other bandleaders in this room.

Prima's novelty vocalling is the standout musical feature of this organization. He has a bright, infectious style which makes the flimsiest tune into a likable comedy idea. His personal repertoire comprises such tunes as "Luigi," "Robin Hood," and a takeoff on an aria from "Barber of Seville."

His regular gal vocalist, Keely Smith, also is a definite plus. She's a looker with considerable savvy on the ballads and rhythm numbers. Both she and Prima set an informal tone by kidding each other on the bandstand and that helps to relax the customers.

The band itself is relatively small for this room, with only 12 men in addition to Prima. There are five brass, four reeds and three on rhythm and the arrangements will be okay in a simple, dansable groove once the sidemen get to know each other. Herm

RAY HERBECK ORCH (10)
With Dolores Crane
Hotel Muehlebach, Kansas City

Ray Herbeck's crew is a Coast outfit, but occasionally takes a cross-country jaunt of dates in hotels and ballrooms for several months. This is a repeat of its date in the Terrace Grill here about a year and a half ago.

Following his pet phrase, "music with romance," Herbeck goes in strongly for the proven standards, as well as the hit parade favorites, giving them a straightforward musical treatment with reed emphasis. What makes the Herbeck music good is the particular work which he gets from the sidemen, featuring Ralph Harden on trumpet, Charley McCamish on trumpet, Bill Groom on piano, and himself on the tenor sax. Throughout tempo is given priority to make dansability the keynote of the music. This has been the Herbeck format for 17 years.

In the vocal department, Dolores Crane has an unusually low register. She's adept on the novelties, handles a ballad satisfactorily and teams with Bill Steers, of the trumpet sections, on duets. Following this seventh visit to the Muehlebach, Herbeck crew goes to Phoenix and will return to the Coast in May. Quin.

CARL SANDS ORCH. (9)
With Rosemarie Larcon
Hotel Statler, Boston

This is Carl Sands' first Hub date in several seasons and the current aggregation is a well-rehearsed group dispensing a slick brand of rhythmical and listenable music. With this room operating Sands floorshows, customer terpology is of prime importance and the Sands' troupe fills that requirement in topnotch fashion.

Consisting of three brass, one trumpet man doubling on mellophone and the other on alto horn, two tenor saxes and a baritone, drums, bass and the maestro at the '88, group achieves a deep, mellow sound. Tempos are mostly of "society" type with book comprising standards and more popular current ballads played in medley fashion with a neat, danceable beat. Vocals by attractive thrush Rosemarie Larcon register nicely as do those by saxman Joe Davis and trumpetman Al Reeves, who specializes in Latino stuff. Arrangements are built around the suave pianoing of Sands who also adds to the general overall pleasing effect by occasionally tinkling the celeste. Elie.

JACK KERNS ORCH (4)
Hotel President, Kansas City

One of newer small combos to come into town is the Jack Kerns crew at the Drum Room of the Hotel President originally for two weeks but to stay several more. Outfit has been together about six years, most of it in hotels and lounges in the midwest.

Leader Jack Kerns concentrates on the dance beat and largely featuring the standards and old faves. They put in enough Latins, waltzes and novelties to give the proper variety to evening's output. Pattern is to take the up-tempo tunes with a near Dixie beat, and give ballads sweet styling with emphasis on dansability.

Aggregation is led by Kerns on trumpet, with Al Gaffney on tenor sax, Sammy Arnold on drums and Charley Lawyer on piano. Kerns takes his turns at vocalling a mild ballad, and rhythms are embellished at times with vocal from the group. Quin.

Longhair Disk Reviews

Beethoven: Sonata No. 23 in F Minor and No. 2 in A (Columbia, $5.45). Pianist Robert Casadesus in a sterling performance of the "Appassionata" (No. 23), full of power and drive as well as sensitivity. Sonata in A, gay and light, is sharp contrast, charmingly done. Ace disk.

Liszt: Concerto No. 1 and Mendelssohn: Concerto No. 1 (RCA Victor, $5.45). With Jose Iturbi doubling as pianist-conductor with the RCA Victor Symphony, the Liszt is played with skill and poetic feeling as if it weren't an old, hackneyed warhorse but the dashing, romantic piece it otherwise is. Melodic Mendelssohn work is played gracefully, crystal-clearly.

Schumann: Davidsbundlertanze (M-G-M, $4.85). Suite of 18 varied, colorful, descriptive pieces played warmly, zestfully by a gifted young American pianist, in Joseph Battista. Some surface noises detract.

Bartok: Dance Suite and Kodaly: Dances From Galanta (London, $5.95). Kodaly's lush Hungarian music, of gypsy origin and flavor, richly played by the London Philharmonic under Georg Solti. (Some passages are blurred). Orch is as polished with Bartok's engaging, strongly rhythmic suite.

Tchaikovsky: Quartet No. 1 and Borodin: Quartet No. 2 (Capitol, $5.72). Hollywood String Quartet in two appealing performances, an early Tchaikovsky work with its lovely, familiar Andante Cantabile, and the more sweeping, brooding Borodin with its fine third-movement Nocturne.

Beethoven: Overtures (Vox, $5.95). Vienna State Philharmonia under Jascha Horenstein plays the "Prometheus" dashingly the "Leonore No. 3" solidly, "Coriolan" somewhat sluggishly, and "Egmont" in lively fashion.

Rossini-Respighi: Rossiniana and Cimarosa-Malipiero: La Cimarosiana (M-G-M, $4.85). Pleasant old-Italian music from Cimarosa and Rossini attractively played by the Covent Garden Orchestra under Warwick Braithwaite. Charming disk.

Rachmaninoff: Concerto No. 1 and Rhapsody on Theme of Paganini (RCA Victor, $5.45). These repressings of fine performances played by the composer with his favorite symph (Philadelphia Orchestra) make a flavorsome, choice souvenir. There's poetry as well as nostalgia here. Broll.

VARIETY 10 Best Sellers on Coin-Machines

1.	DOGGIE IN THE WINDOW (9)	Patti Page ..... Mercury
2.	TILL I WALTZ AGAIN WITH YOU (14)	Teresa Brewer ..... Coral
3.	PRETEND (6)	Nat (King) Cole ..... Capitol
4.	DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYES (16)	Perry Como ..... Victor
5.	TELL ME YOU'RE MINE (12)	Gaylords ..... Mercury
6.	SIDE BY SIDE (10)	Kay Starr ..... Capitol
7.	HAVE YOU HEARD (12)	Joni James ..... M-G-M
8.	TELL ME A STORY (3)	F. Laine-J. Boyd ..... Columbia
9.	KEEP IT A SECRET (13)	Jo Stafford ..... Columbia
10.	YOUR CHEATIN' HEART (5)	Joni James ..... M-G-M

Second Group

CARAVAN	Ralph Marterie ..... Mercury
WILD HORSES	Perry Como ..... Victor
YOUR CHEATIN' HEART	Frankie Laine ..... Columbia
NO HELP WANTED	Rusty Draper ..... Mercury
MY JEALOUS EYES	Patti Page ..... Mercury
WHY DON'T YOU BELIEVE ME	Joni James ..... M-G-M
ANYWHERE I WANDER	Julius LaRosa ..... Cadence
TELL ME YOU'RE MINE	Mindy Carson ..... Columbia
I'M SITTING ON TOP OF THE WORLD	Paul-Ford ..... Capitol
WHY DON'T YOU BELIEVE ME	Patti Page ..... Mercury
SEVEN LONELY DAYS	Georgia Gibbs ..... Mercury
A FOOL SUCH AS I	Jo Stafford ..... Columbia
SAY IT WITH YOUR HEART	Bob Carroll ..... Derby
HOT TODDY	Ralph Flanagan ..... Victor

[Figures in parentheses indicate number of weeks song has been in the Top 10]

RCA Maps All-Out Effort to Build Europe Disk Market; Big Italy Push

A multipronged sales, talent, repertoire and equipment program is being mapped by RCA Victor to help build the European disk market to its full potential. Disk sales in England and free Europe currently are under 55,000,000 annually with England accounting for about 28,000,000; France, 9,000,000; West Germany, 11,000,000, and Italy, 4,000,000. It's believed that Europe could absorb double this amount.

Victor's artists & repertoire chief, George Marek, and the company's international manager, Meade Brunet, believe that the key to more extensive sales can be found in (1), more turntables; (2), lower prices; (3), use of local repertoire, and (4), the release of more classical and standard pop repertoire.

Victor execs are particularly aiming at widening their impact in Italy. Currently that country is dominated by the Cetra label, which is a subsid of RIA, the Italian radio network. Tieup between the network and native talent has given the Cetra company a pronounced edge. The Italian market, however, is far from developed and Victor plans to work with homegrown talent in that country by way of developing an Italian following. An Arturo Toscanini or Perry Como on the Victor label also is figured to be of considerable help when the promotion starts rolling.

With the initial impetus from Italy, where its plant will be completed next month for fall operation, Victor will embark on similar talent and repertoire maneuvers in the other western European countries. France is one target for the buildup since U. S. pop disks at present have no impact there at all. Germany, on the other hand, is U.S. pop-conscious and at present, the tunes from the legit musical, "South Pacific," are getting wide play.

COLE'S ILLNESS FORCES CARNEGIE HALL REFUND

"The Record Show of 1953" got off to a bad start Sunday (5) at Carnegie Hall, N. Y., when the second of the two evening shows skedded was forced to cancel due to the illness of Nat (King) Cole, who was co-headlining with Sarah Vaughan and the Billy May orch. Both performances had been sellouts. Money for the cancelled performance was refunded.

Cole, who is suffering from an ulcer, currently is under observation at New York Hospital and it's undetermined whether he'll be able to continue with the tour, which has been booked solid through May 3. Package played its regular skedded date in Newark last night (Tues.) with Billy Eckstine, doubling from the Bandbox, N. Y., subbing for Cole.

Gale Agency, which is booking the unit, is waiting for word from Cole before lining up a flock of substitutions.

6,000 Tix for 1,500 Seats Adds Up to Riot

The Brunswick label's cuffo jazz concert at Pythian Temple, N. Y., Saturday (4), backfired into near-riot proportions before the police dispersed the shutout mob. Diskery, which is a Coral Records subsid, had distributed 5,000 cuffo tix via Al (Jazzbo) Collins, WNEW, N. Y., disk jockey. Pythian Temple holds about 1,500 and it's estimated that about 6,000 jazzophiles showed up for the cuffo bash.

Brunswick planned the affair to get a "live" concert atmosphere for a recording session featuring such jazz sidemen as Georgie Auld, Stuff Smith, Tony Scott and Terry Gibbs. The concert went on as planned—but 30 minutes after the scheduled starting time.

Miller, Faith Back to N.Y.

Mitch Miller, Columbia Records artists & repertoire chief, and Col's musical director, Percy Faith, are due back in N. Y. this week from the Coast after wrapping up a disking deal with Judy Garland.

Faith will precede Miller by a couple of days.

Kid Kick Waxes on Disks

The indie Jubilee label got on the juve kick last week with the pacting of 12-year old Andrew Wideman to a longterm waxing deal. Wideman currently is featured on NBC-TV's kid variety show, "Star Time."

His first sides will be released April 15.

GOV. DEWEY AGAIN VETOES PIRACY BILL

Albany, April 7.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey vetoed without comment a bill by Assemblyman Malcolm Wilson of Yonkers, aimed at preventing the bootlegging of phonograph records or radio broadcasts. It was the second consecutive year the Governor had disapproved such a measure.

The bill proposed to make it a misdemeanor to anyone to transfer sounds from a record or similar device, or from a broadcast, without the consent of the performer, record manufacturer or the person owning the performance rights. Recording companies supported the act, sponsored in the Upper House by Senator John D. Bennett, of Nassau County.

Best British Sheet Sellers

(Week ending March 28)

London, March 31.

Doggie in Window...Connelly
Broken Wings.....Fields
Wonderful Copenhagen..Morris
Red Feathers.....Dash
Outside of Heaven.....Wood
Don't Let the Stars....Morris
Now.....Dash
Golden Coach....Box & Cox
Don't Believe Me...F.D.&H.
Because You're Mine..Robbins
Oh Happy Day.....Chappell
Glow Worm.....Lafleur

Second 12

Little Red Monkey...Robbins
Make It Soon.....Connelly
Talk to the Trees....Chappell
'Till I Waltz.....F.D.&H.
You Belong to Me...Chappell
That's A-Why.....Connelly
Comes Along a Love..Kassner
Fall Asleep.....Reine
Love of My Life.....Reine
I Will Never Change.....Yale
Got You on My Mind..Feldman
Keep It a Secret...Cinephonic

'Curtain Call' Series Expanded by Decca

Dipping into its back catalog, Decca Records is enlarging its "Curtain Call" series of reissues with four more single disks.

Releases include George Jessel's two-part "Hello, Momma," platter; Ben Bernie's "Au Revoir, Pleasant Dreams" and "It's a Lonesome Old Town"; Marlene Dietrich's "The Boys In the Backroom" and "Falling In Love Again" and Libby Holman's "Love For Sale" and "Moanin' Low."

Cleffers Beef Over ASCAP Logging System, Claim They're Underrated

With the ASCAP payoff system no longer a factor for rank-and-filer contention, an undercurrent of cleffer criticism is now being directed against the so-called inadequate logging methods used by the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers in figuring performance ratings. These beefs, however, are being brushed off by ASCAP execs as stemming from ignorance of the new techniques used by the Society.

At present, ASCAP is reportedly paying Dr. John Gray Peatman, head of the Audience Research Institute, over $50,000 annually to handle the logging operation. Every day, 10 independent stations are covered in 10 key cities for a total of over 300 monthly. In addition, ASCAP regularly covers all the networks.

ASCAP's current coverage, which is a result of the antitrust consent decree, is held by ASCAP execs to give an accurate picture as possible under a sampling system. It's pointed out, however, that the networks have to get the major accent since they shell out the greatest share of the Society's revenue.

Some ASCAP writers believe they are being underrated because most of their plugs are heard on disk jockey shows over indie stations which rarely, if ever, get logged. That's particularly true of those ASCAP writers who have been turning out country-styled material. ASCAP execs point out that most of the stations which accent hillbilly material pay little performance money and do not rate wide logging.

Some ASCAP toppers, moreover, argue that more extensive logging would not increase the payoff for the average writer. More logging would show that the Irving Berlins, Cole Porters, etc., are getting even more performances than they are presently rated at and hence they would earn more money. That would mean paying more to the U. S. Government, a reference to the steep tax cut on the earnings of the top ASCAP writers who usually have other lucrative sources of income.

Tarr's RCA Sales Post

Irwin Tarr, who handled promotion for RCA Victor's Red Seal line, has been upped to sales manager for coin machines and syndicate stores. He replaces Jim Lennon who took over the direction of Victor's company-owned stores for its employees at the eight plants located around the U. S.

Dick Weddell moves into Tarr's Red Seal spot.

WOODY IN ROSELAND DATE, ANNI HOOPLA

Marking his 15 anni as a bandleader and 40th birthday, Woody Herman has been booked into the Roseland, N. Y., May 15, where he made his first public appearance with his original cooperatively-owned band.

There's a possibility that the original musicians in the cooperative band, which was composed of ex-Isham Jones sidemen, will reassembly for the Roseland date. Leading jazzmen of the late 1930s are also being invited to participate with the band on that date.

NIPPON VICTOR'S NEW SETUP IN COIN CRISIS

Tokyo, March 31.

Former Japanese ambassador to the United States, Kichisaburo Nomura, was elected to the presidency of the Victor Gramaphone Company in a shakeup in Japan's phonograph industry. Nomura replaces Kosaku Tachibana, who resigned early this month along with veepee Rikichi Yamaguchi after they failed to tide over a financial pinch brought about by b..nk loans amounting to about $1,400,000.

Nomura represents the Matsushita Kosan Co., which received 64% of Victor's $70,000 capital from the Industrial Bank in the form of 300,000 shares of Victor stocks held by the bank as security for the unpaid loan.

The loan had been obtained for purposes of rehabilitation of war damage to Victor factories and offices which were about 80% destroyed. At one time Japan Victor tried to forestall the collapse by offering half their share holdings to RCA Victor, a cooperating company in the U.S., but were rebuffed by the U.S. firm because of unpaid royalties accumulated during the war years amounting to about $840,000.

The new controlling company is one of the country's top manufacturers of electrical appliances. President is Konosuke Matsushita.

Lorber to Col As Legal Aide to Adler

Alfred Lorber has been named assistant to Norman Adler, general attorney for Columbia Records.

Lorber was with the law firm of Rosenman, Goldmark, Colin & Kaye and recently was assistant general attorney for the Celanese Corp. of America.

Alex Alstone, bandleader-composer, moved over from General Artists Corp. to Music Corp. of America.

VARIETY Scoreboard OF TOP TALENT AND TUNES

Compiled from Statistical Reports of Distribution Encompassing the Three Major Outlets

Coin Machines Retail Disks Retail Sheet Music

as Published in the Current Issue

NOTE: The current comparative sales strength of the Artists and Tunes listed hereunder is arrived at under a statistical system comprising each of the three major sales outlets enumerated above. These findings are correlated with data from wider sources, which are exclusive with VARIETY. The positions resulting from these findings denote the OVERALL IMPACT developed from the ratio of points scored: two ways in the case of talent (disks, coin machines), and three ways in the case of tunes (disks, coin machines, sheet music).

TALENT

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	ARTIST AND LABEL	TUNE
1	1	PATTI PAGE (Mercury)	Doggie in the Window
2	2	TERESA BREWER (Coral)	Till I Waltz Again
3	5	FRANKIE LAINE (Columbia)	I Believe / Your Cheatin' Heart
4	8	F. LAINE-J. BOYD (Columbia)	Tell Me a Story
5	6	NAT (KING) COLE (Capitol)	Pretend
6	7	PERRY COMO (Victor)	Don't Let the Stars / Wild Horses
7	3	JONI JAMES (MGM)	Have You Heard / Your Cheatin' Heart
8	4	GAYLORDS (Mercury)	Tell Me You're Mine
9	..	PERCY FAITH (Columbia)	Song from Moulin Rouge / Swedish Rhapsody
10	9	KAY STARR (Capitol)	Side by Side

TUNES

(*ASCAP. †BMI)

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	TUNE	PUBLISHER
1	1	*DOGGIE IN THE WINDOW	Santly-Joy
2	2	†TILL I WALTZ AGAIN	Village
3	4	*I BELIEVE	Cromwell
4	3	*PRETEND	Brandom
5	6	†DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYES	Four Star
6	5	†TELL ME YOU'RE MINE	Capri
7	10	†YOUR CHEATIN' HEART	Acuff-R
8	8	*SIDE BY SIDE	Shapiro-B
9	9	†TELL ME A STORY	Montclare
10	7	*KEEP IT A SECRET	Shapiro-B

Top Record Talent and Tunes

VARIETY DISK JOCKEY POLL

This compilation is designed to indicate those records rising in popularity as well as those on top. Ratings are computed on the basis of 10 points for a No. 1 mention. 9 for a No. 2 and so on down to one point. Cities and jockeys will vary week to week to present a comprehensive picture of all sectors of the country regionally.

*ASCAP. †BMI.

Pos. this wk.	Pos. last wk.	No. weeks in log	Artist	Label	Song	EAST: New York — Bob Haymes—WCBS	New York — Jack Lacy—WINS	Rochester — Mort Nusbaum—WHAM	Phil. — Larry Brown—WPEN	Hartford — Jack Downey—WONS	Boston — Alan Dary—WORL	Manch'ter — Don Tibbets—WFEA	D.C. — Eddie Gallaher—WTOP	SOUTH: Baltimore — Mitch Reed—WITH	Tampa — Pat Chambers—WFLA	Richmond — Harvey Hudson—WLEE	Norfolk — Roger Clark—WNOR	Savan'h — John Wrisley—WSAV	Atlanta — Herb Harris—WQXI	Dallas — Jimmy Lowe—WRR	N.O. — Harry Nigodis—WJBW	MIDWEST: Chi. — Ernie Simon—WGN	Det. — Don McLeod—WJBK	St. Cloud — Art Blaske—KFAM	Mpls. — Johnny Morris—WLOL	Des M'nes — Don Bell—KRNT	Cincy — Bill Dawes—WCPO	St. L. — Hal Fredericks—KXOK	Cleve — Bill Randle—WERE	Mil-w'kee — Paul Bartell—WFOX	FAR WEST: Holly-wood — Bill Anson—KFWB	Fres-no — Bob Harris—KFRE	Holly-wood — Irv Cook—KMPC-KECA	Den-ver — Ray Perkins—KFEL	Phoe-nix — Dick Gilbert—KTYL	TOTAL POINTS
1	2	10	Patti Page	Mercury	*Doggie in the Window	1	..	7	1	..	..	10	1	..	..	6	..	..	..	3	1	4	..	2	3	1	2	..	..	1	5	1	6	1	..	142
2	1	9	Nat (King) Cole	Capitol	*Pretend	..	5	10	..	..	9	9	3	2	1	..	..	..	7	9	2	..	..	6	2	4	3	..	..	..	..	3	7	2	..	103
3	6	7	Frankie Laine	Columbia	*I Believe	..	4	..	..	6	2	..	..	6	7	..	..	..	..	..	3	2	9	..	4	5	9	1	6	10	..	5	1	..	..	96
4	5	9	Joni James	M-G-M	†Your Cheatin' Heart	..	1	..	3	..	..	..	..	3	2	5	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	4	1	..	1	..	9	..	3	..	..	..	..	88
5	4	19	Teresa Brewer	Coral	†Till I Waltz Again	..	3	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	2	..	4	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	8	2	3	2	76
6	8	10	Perry Como	Victor	*Wild Horses	..	6	..	..	..	..	5	4	..	..	..	5	..	..	8	1	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	4	6	3	..	5	67
7	3	10	Kay Starr	Capitol	*Side by Side	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	5	..	..	..	1	1	7	9	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	2	..	6	..	61
8	26	3	Paul-Ford	Capitol	*Sitting on Top of World	4	..	9	..	4	..	5	9	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	2	..	6	..	..	..	5	..	51
9	9	4	F. Laine-J. Boyd	Columbia	†Tell Me a Story	..	..	..	2	..	3	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	42
10	22	10	Eddie Fisher	Victor	*How Do You Speak	2	..	4	5	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	2	6	..	10	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	44
11	..	3	Les Baxter	Capitol	*April in Portugal	..	..	1	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	10	..	..	9	41
12	14	13	Ralph Flanagan	Victor	*Hot Toddy	..	7	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	4	4	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	10	38
13A	11	3	Percy Faith	Columbia	†Song From Moulin Rouge	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	7	8	..	..	..	..	8	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	36
13B	19	5	Mills Bros.	Decca	†Twice as Much	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	3	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	36
13C	28	4	Russ Morgan	Decca	†I'll Be Hangin' Around	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	8	..	..	36
16	..	2	Bob Manning	Capitol	*The Nearness of You	..	..	4	7	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	10	..	9	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	4	..	1	36
17	..	1	Richard Hayman	Mercury	*Ruby	..	8	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	32
18A	29	7	Rusty Draper	Mercury	†No Help Wanted	..	..	8	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	3	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	9	..	..	..	..	..	30
18B	50	6	Georgia Gibbs	Mercury	*Seven Lonely Days	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	1	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	26
20	7	17	Gaylords	Mercury	†Tell Me You're Mine	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	26
21	..	1	Hilltoppers	Dot	*If I Were King	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	4	3	..	3	..	4	..	10	..	25
22	12	5	Ralph Marterie	Mercury	*Caravan	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	4	..	9	..	..	..	23
23	..	5	Four Aces	Decca	†You Fooled Me	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	22
24	23	2	Johnnie Ray	Columbia	*Somebody Stole My Gal	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	3	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	21
25A	26	3	Eddy Howard	Mercury	*Gomen-Nasai	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	20
25B	..	5	Jane Froman	Capitol	*I Believe	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	4	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	19
27	19	3	Hugo Winterhalter	Victor	*Magic Touch	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	19
28	..	1	Pete Hanley	Okeh	†Big Mamou	9	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	10	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	18
29	..	2	Jo Stafford	Columbia	*Without My Lover	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	7	..	..	..	..	17
30	..	5	Norman Brooks	Zodiac	*Hello Sunshine	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	15
31A	16	9	Julius LaRosa	Cadence	*Anywhere I Wander	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	14
31B	51	3	Florian Zabach	Decca	*Red Canary	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	13
33A	..	1	Four Lads	Columbia	*He Who Has Love	9	6	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	13
33B	40	10	Mindy Carson	Columbia	†Tell Me You're Mine	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	12
33C	19	3	Nat (King) Cole	Capitol	†Can't I	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	12
36A	10	18	Karen Chandler	Coral	*Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	12
36B	16	9	Patti Page	Mercury	*My Jealous Eyes	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	11
38A	15	11	Eddie Fisher	Victor	*Downhearted	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	11
38B	34	3	Gordon MacRae	Capitol	*Congratulations to Someone	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
38C	..	1	Tommy Prisco	King	*Love for Love	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	10
41A	25	14	Joni James	M-G-M	*Have You Heard	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
41B	..	1	Hamish Menzies	Decca	*Less Than Tomorrow	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	8	..	9	9
41C	40	8	Jo Stafford	Columbia	*A Fool Such As I	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9
44A	34	11	Bob Carroll	Derby	*Say It With Your Heart	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9
44B	..	4	Dolores Gray	Decca	*Kaw-Liga	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8
46	..	2	B. Williams Quartet	Mercury	*Pour Glass of Teardrops	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8
47A	18	2	Freddy Martin	Victor	*April in Portugal	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7
47B	..	1	Rosemary Clooney	Columbia	†I Laughed Until I Cried	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	5
47C	13	18	Perry Como	Victor	†Don't Let the Stars	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	5
47D	..	1	Richard Hayman	Mercury	*April in Portugal	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	8	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5
51	..	1	F. Laine-J. Boyd	Columbia	*Little Boy & Old Man	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5
																										10				8					4

©Copyright Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Arthur Fields, Fla. Fire Victim, Was Click Disker-Cleffer of '20s

By JIM WALSH

Arthur Fields, vet songwriter-singer who was burned to death in the March 29 fire that destroyed the Littlefield Nursing Home at Largo, Fla., was one of the colorful performers of his time. Thirty to 35 years ago his name as a recording artist carried as much weight as any of the socko sellers today. And he was probably the only Broadway cleffer who made the complete circuit from ragtime and other pop stuff to hymn writing, with a hillbilly detour along the way.

Born in Philadelphia, Aug. 6, 1888, Fields was one of many early platter-makers hailing from the Quaker City. Fields became a professional at the age of 11, and after a couple of years in minstrels teamed up with Harry Carroll in vaude. The pair collaborated on pop tunes, and in 1912 had a hit in "On the Mississippi." (Carroll, half a dozen years later, had a bigger one when he lifted part of the melody of Chopin's "Fantasie Impromptu" for "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows.") In 1914, Fields teamed up with Walter Donovan (not Donaldson, with whom Donovan is often confused) to write "Aba Daba Honeymoon," which got a big revival a couple of years ago on both the screen and platters. A year or so later the Fields-Donovan pair switched from monkey courtship to the love life of frogs and did "Gila Gala Galoo."

He got his start as a record maker late in 1914, when he sang an Irving Berlin number, "Along Came Ruth," for both Victor and Columbia. Many Fields fans consider these early waxings among his best. He continued to record steadily for Columbia, but wasn't called on again by Victor until summer of 1918, when he sang a World War I number, "When I Send You a Picture of Berlin."

Fields, Morse & Carroll

Meanwhile, Fields was cementing a career as a songwriter: He and Carroll teamed up with late Teddy Morse, in "Auntie Skinner's Chicken Dinner," a fine example of the now frowned-on type of ditty formerly known as "coon songs." This was followed by "Mammy Blossom's 'Possum Party." Morse was the king of "jungle song" writers, cleffing "Down in Jungle Town," and probably a hundred others, so Fields did the lyric for the Morse music of "Doodle-Oodle-Dee (Means Won't You Marry Me?)" Pair also did "Alice, I'm in Wonderland," said to have sold 1,500,000 copies.

Although he worked regularly, Fields' career as recording artist was more or less under wraps until U. S. entered the war in 1917, and he went into uniform as probably the most effective recruiter on the Main Stem.

Fields had a strong, vigorous voice and an enthusiastic, infectious personality, that made his records of pop war tunes best sellers. Cashing in on his popularity, he sang as a freelance for every American platter purveyor. However, he quit freelancing late in 1919 to join Irving and Jack Kaufman in signing up exclusively with Emerson. Fields and the Kaufman brothers made solos and teamed up in duet combinations. When all sang together they were known as "The Three Kaufields." Emerson had financial troubles, so the boys reverted after two years to their freelance status. They remained freelancers, under many different names, as long as their recording careers lasted—about a decade. Fields was known as Donald Baker, Arthur Baldwin, Andy Britt, Harry Crane, Walter H. Dale, George French, Arthur Mack, Vel Veteran and "Mr. X," and probably had other nom de disks.

Odd Assignments

Although he was best known as a strictly pop man, Fields occasionally drew some odd recording assignments. In 1922 he made a Columbia record of "Hail Chicago," which had been chosen as the official song of Chicago in a contest sponsored by the Chicago Examiner. In 1925 he began to get onto the hillbilly kick, which had been set off by Vernon Dalhart's terrific hit of "The Prisoner's Song" and "The Wreck of the Old 97," and one of the oddities of this period is a Paramount record sung by Fields and issued as a country-style tribute to William Jennings Bryan, who had died suddenly while carrying on his anti-evolution activities in Dayton. Sung with apparent gusto, its title is "Bryan Believed in Heaven (That's Why He's in Heaven Tonight)." For Grey Gull, which issued a cheap record sold largely by mail and, under label changes, such as Radiex, Van Dyke and Madison, in five-and-tens, Fields sang other hillbilly tunes and even did standard Christian hymns. Sometimes he used his own name; at other times he was Vel Veteran or "Mr. X."

In the late 1920's Fields formed a partnership with another comedian-song writer, Fred Hall, and they were popular on radio as well as records. Sometimes they wrote special material, such as a series of minstrel and medicine show records for Okeh. They were among the pioneers to perceive the gold in the hillbilly vogue and came through with some numbers, more or less classics of their kind. One was "11 More Months and 10 More Days (I'll Be in the Calaboose.)" They also wrote a comedy number that deserves a classic rating, "I Got a Code in My Doze," as sung on a long out-of-print Victor platter by Rosetta Duncan of the Duncan Sisters.

After several years together, Fields and Hall dissolved partnership, and Fields began to devote himself chiefly to religious numbers. He and George Graff, Jr., collaborated in "And the Angels Sang" (which perhaps deserves a semi-religious rating because of its title) and also wrote "48 Hymns of Happiness," issued by Arthur Fields Publications. They likewise joined forces in "Who Else But God" and "There Shall Be No More Tears."

One of the more unusual angles of Fields' recording career came during World War II, when he supposedly was out of the recording picture. After James Petrillo declared a recording ban and AFM members were ordered not to play for the wax workers, some platter companies were charged with having "sneak" sessions of union personnel or having recording done in Mexico or abroad, with fictitious names used for artists. Eli Oberstein's Hit label was a center of controversy. One of the Hit records contained "Der Fuehrer's Face" and "Gee, But It's Great to Meet a Friend From Your Home Town," and the name of the artist was given as Arthur Fields. Fields denied making the record and was said to have threatened suit because of his name being used. On playing the record some hearers got the impression the "Fuehrer" opus didn't sound like Fields, but the other side did.

During his last years Fields was seldom seen around the Brill Building, but alternated between Florida and California. For a time in 1949 he gave "The Arthur Fields Program" over WKAT at Miami. He and another vet songsmith, Ray Walker, teamed up at the same station as "The Tavernaires." A year or so later, while the talkies were showing an interest in his old tunes, he lived in North Hollywood, but returned last year to Florida because he found the California climate unkind to the arthritis from which he was beginning to suffer severely. He apparently was under treatment for this condition when the fire occurred which took his life and that of more than 30 other men and women in the convalescent home.

On the Upbeat

New York

Jimmy McPartland's Dixieland band moves into Child's Paramount, N. Y., Friday (10) . . . Doles Dickens & Jimmy Butts, Negro singing team, pacted by McConkey Artists Corp. . . . Jan August into the Clover Club, Lansing, Mich., April 12 . . . M-G-M Records' distributors, Len Smith (Albany) and Sam Clark (Boston) in town for sales huddles . . . personal manager Milt Ebbins planed into New York from the Coast for Billy Eckstine's Bandbox opening . . . Vic Jarmel to manage Artie Shaw's six-week one-niter trek through Texas, which kicks off in a couple of weeks . . . Roy Kohn, Santly-Joy plugger, heading out on a disk jockey trek through New England next week . . . Dorothy Miller handling eastern promotion for Raymor-McCollister, Wichita, Kansas, music firm . . . Stan Cooper, Jefferson Music contactman, on a disk jockey tour through the midwest.

Chicago

Bert Miller is building the Beau Coup Club here which will open May 1 and feature progressive jazz units . . . Eddy Howard cut eight sides here last week before going on six weeks of one-nighters . . . Al Donahue has a nine-day stand at the Wichita Falls Air Base, Texas, May 19 . . . Ted Lewis goes in for a month at the Beverly Hills Club, Covington, Ky., May 15 . . . Lee Gillette flew in to cut eight sides of Ray Anthony for Capitol last week with several etchings featuring Georgia Carr, new discovery of Fred Benson, Anthony's personal manager . . . Muehlebach Hotel's Terrace Grill, Kansas City, shutters May 13 for remodling.

Henry King set for the Claridge, Memphis, May 18 through June 5 . . . Clyde McCoy has a two-weeker at the Lakeside, Denver, May 22 . . . Oscar Petersen at the Blue Note April 24 for two frames and then George Shearing's group comes in May 29 for a like period . . . Dick Jurgens set for a month of one-nighters coming out of the Aragon, Chicago, May 3 . . . Eddy Howard does 14 days at Elitches, Denver, beginning May 27.

London

Billy Daniels arriving in England May 13 for a provincial tour leading to two weeks at Palladium, July 6 . . . BBC variety producer John Hooper was attacked by thugs in Hyde Park, London, on way back from a rehearsal . . . Film star James Mason will do a disk-jock stint over BBC here . . . Mills Music London chief Harry Ralton is seriously ill in hospital.

Pittsburgh

Nat (King) Cole-Sarah Vaughan-Billy May package booked into Johnstown's War Memorial Auditorium for one-nighter Friday (10). Gil Lamb, Stuffy Bryant & Harrison, & Patricia Mueller are also in the line-up . . . Gail Young left the Lee Perry combo to do a singing single . . . Lee Kelton, Bobby Dale and Bob Scott bands set for the remaining Saturday nights in April at Jimmy Sundrey's William Penn Tavern . . . Jack Mahon foursome has had its option picked up at the Four Mile Inn through the end of May . . . Baron Elliott, local bandleader, to assemble the 18-piece outfit which Don McNeil will use on his "Breakfast Club" broadcast from Syria Mosque April 23 . . . Billy Arnold's Manhattanites, with Vicki Leigh, opened at Colonial Manor Saturday (4) for indefinite stay.

Omaha

Mike Riley orch opened stand at Fremont's American Legion club . . . Set for Peony Park this month are Tony Bradley (11-12), Lambert Bartak (18-19) and Mal Dunn (25-26) . . . Buddy Morrow orch to play at Scottsbluff's Terrytown Monday (18) . . . Ernie Owens orch on trek through west Nebraska.

RETAIL DISK BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail disk best sellers based on reports obtained from leading stores in 9 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(Davega Stores)	Philadelphia—(A. Williams Co.)	San Antonio—(Alamo Piano Co.)	Chicago—(Hudson Ross)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	Kansas City—(Jenkins Music)	St. Louis—(Ludwig Music House)	Minneapolis—(Don Leary)	Seattle—(Sherman-Clay)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	PATTI PAGE (Mercury) "Doggie in the Window"	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	90
2	2	FRANKIE LAINE (Columbia) "I Believe"	2	2	7	..	2	2	3	3	..	56
3	3	TERESA BREWER (Coral) "Till I Waltz Again"	3	6	2	8	..	4	7	..	5	42
4	5	F. LAINE-J. BOYD (Columbia) "Tell Me a Story"	4	8	..	3	9	..	2	4	9	38
5	4	GAYLORDS (Mercury) "Tell Me You're Mine"	10	3	3	..	..	3	..	..	2	34
6	6	NAT (KING) COLE (Capitol) "Pretend"	8	..	5	..	6	5	5	..	4	33
7	11	PERCY FAITH (Columbia) "Song From Moulin Rouge"	5	..	..	2	5	..	..	..	3	29
8	7	JONI JAMES (M-G-M) "Your Cheatin' Heart"	6	5	6	..	8	6	8	..	..	27
9	15	EDDIE FISHER (Victor) "Downhearted"	9	..	..	5	..	..	9	6	..	15
10	9	PERRY COMO (Victor) "Don't Let Stars in Your Eyes"	7	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	8	14
11	11	KAY STARR (Capitol) "Side by Side"	..	..	8	6	..	7	..	..	10	13
12A	..	LES BAXTER (Capitol) "April in Portugal"	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	8	..	11
12B	8	RALPH FLANAGAN (Victor) "Hot Toddy"	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	7	11
14	13	PERRY COMO (Victor) "Wild Horses"	..	7	9	..	..	8	10	..	..	10
15	10	PERCY FAITH (Columbia) "Swedish Rhapsody"	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	9
16A	14	RUSTY DRAPER (Mercury) "No Help Wanted"	..	10	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	8
16B	..	GEORGIA GIBBS (Mercury) "Seven Lonely Days"	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	8
16C	19	SYLVANA MANGANO (M-G-M) "Anna"	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	7	..	8
19A	18	EILEEN BARTON (Coral) "Pretend"	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7
19B	..	HAMISH MENZIES (Decca) "Less Than Tomorrow"	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	7

FIVE TOP ALBUMS

1	2	3	4	5
SWEETHEARTS Marlon Marlowe Frank Parker Columbia B 331	HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN DANNY KAYE Decca DL 5433 A 919 9-364	TV CALENDAR SHOW Arthur Godfrey Columbia CL 6241 B 331 C 331	PETER PAN Hugo Winterhalter Victor EP A407	MUSIC FOR LOVERS ONLY Jackie Gleason Capitol H 352

Lee Sullivan, Cleve. D.J., Uncovers Lotsa Amateur Cleffers in Song Contest

Cleveland, April 7.

A plethora of songwriting talent is being uncovered in northern Ohio by WERE's Lee Sullivan through his Monday-Wednesday-Friday 10-minute "Sullivan Song Search." Now in its ninth week, the quest for talent has brought in over 1,000 offerings. Sullivan picks and sings one winner for each day. Listeners then ballot for the best-of-week which is sung again on Friday. Average weekly mail count on vote tabulation borders the 1,000 mark.

Sullivan, one-time "Date in Manhattan" and "Brigadoon" legit star, said at least four record companies have a standing order to take "any song worthy of recording." Several selections have been made, with one writer, Anthony Casale, a bricklayer, having scored with two winners.

Sullivan noted that in this heavy polka community, 90% of submitted entries are in a schmaltz beat, with novelties and waltzes also favored. Polkas and hillbilly tunes are far and few between. Contest has stimulated much interest with WERE being forced to add extra help to keep apace of entries. Sullivan, who offers personal aid to writers, gives winners recording of song and retains no rights to the selections.

Besides his daily disk stint, the sweet-voiced warbler does four weekly TV shows.

Eckstine Ends Wax Layoff With 16 Sides

After a three-month layoff on wax, Billy Eckstine is lining a hefty waxing schedule for M-G-M Records before taking off on a sixmonth European trek.

Eckstine expects to wax 16 sides during his stay in New York, where he's co-headlining with Count Basie at the Bandbox.

RCA VICTOR
FIRST IN RECORDED MUSIC

RCA
"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"

WELCOMES

EDDIE FISHER

and

HUGO WINTERHALTER

to the

PARAMOUNT THEATRE

New York

STARTING FRIDAY

The Song from "MOULIN ROUGE"

henri rene and his orchestra play STREET OF SHADOWS

from the motion picture of the same name

20/47—5264

two top film tunes get outstanding Rene instrumental treatments

THE THIRD HIT in a ROW

perry como sings MY ONE AND ONLY HEART

and SAY YOU'RE MINE AGAIN

20/47—5277

by America's number one male vocalist

This Week's BEST SELLING RCA Victor Records

	78 rpm/45 rpm	Playing Time
POPULAR
DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYES/LIES Perry Como	#20/47—5064	2:37/2:30
WILD HORSES/I CONFESS Perry Como	#20/47—5152	2:45/3:05
HOT TODDY/SERENADE Ralph Flanagan	#20/47—5095	2:22/3:00
HOW DO YOU SPEAK TO AN ANGEL/DOWNHEARTED Eddie Fisher	#20/47—5137	2:22/2:24
SWEET THING/WHY COME CRYING TO ME Dinah Shore	#20/47—5247	1:40/2:29
APRIL IN PORTUGAL/PENNY WHISTLE BLUES Freddy Martin	#20/47—5052	3:15/2:25
A-L-B-U-Q-U-E-R-Q-U-E/MOON Ralph Flanagan	#20/47—5237	2:56/3:02
I HAD THE CRAZIEST DREAM/HOME IN PASADENA The Skylarks	#20/47—5257	1:51/3:09
NOW THAT I'M IN LOVE/YANKEE DOODLETOWN Sauter-Finegan Orchestra	#20/47—5248	2:35/2:28
THE SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE/STREET OF SHADOWS Henri Rene	#20/47—5264	3:02/2:50
LULU HAD A BABY/THE BOYS IN THE BACK ROOM Spike Jones	#20/47—5239	2:12/2:21
I FEEL LIKE I'M GONNA LIVE FOREVER/HOW COULD YOU Sunny Gale	#20/47—5216	2:30/2:45
TRAIN, TRAIN, TRAIN/I CAN'T GET STARTED Buddy Morrow	#20/47—5212	2:58/2:58
LITTLE RED MONKEY/ANNA The Three Suns	#20/47—5246	2:40/2:52
CO-ED/DON'T BUILD YOUR DREAMS TOO HIGH Vaughn Monroe	#20/47—5236	2:55/3:08
COUNTRY–WESTERN
MOONLIGHT & ROSES/THE MISSOURI WALTZ Eddy Arnold	#20/47—5192	2:25/3:05
YOU ALWAYS HURT THE ONE YOU LOVE/I'M GONNA LOCK MY HEART Eddy Arnold	#20/47—5193	2:38/2:25
THE GLORY LAND MARCH/IN DADDY'S FOOTSTEPS Hank Snow-The Jordanaires	#20/47—5249	2:28/2:47
DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYEBALLS/UNHAPPY DAY Homer and Jethro	#20/47—5214	2:20/2:32
A FOOL SUCH AS I/THE GAL WHO INVENTED KISSIN' Hank Snow	#20/47—5034	2:30/2:35
RHYTHM & BLUES
I WANNA KNOW/LAUGHING BLUES The Du Droppers	#20/47—5229	2:15/2:48
SHE'S DYNAMITE/I'M GONNA TELL EVERYBODY Piano Red	#20/47—5224	2:31/2:25
HE'S THE BEST IN THE BUSINESS/EVIL EYED WOMAN Terry Timmons	#20/47—5227	2:40/2:35

RCA VICTOR
FIRST IN RECORDED MUSIC

RCA ®

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"

TIPS TO DEEJAYS:
THESE ARE THE HITS THAT MAKE A GOOD PROGRAM GREAT!

Diamonds As Cleffers Best Friend

Continued from page 1

is one of the songs included in the album, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," put out by Decca about 12 years ago. Other titles, which will be considered in their chronological order, are the name song, "Gee, But It's Great at the Baseball Game," "Home Run Bill," "Take Your Girl to the Ball Game," "Let's Get the Umpire's Goat," "I Can't Miss That Ball Game," "Oh, Didn't It Rain," "That Baseball Glide," "He's a Fan, Fan, Fan," and "I Want to Go to the Ball Game." These are sung by Frank Luther, Zora Layman and the Century Quartet. As an extra, Taylor Holmes recites "Casey at the Bat" and Joe Laurie, Jr., "Casey's Revenge."

Although Ernest L. Thayer's classic "Casey at the Bat" was published in 1883, the first record of it seems to be the one by De Wolf Hopper which Victor issued in September, 1906. Hopper declaimed the saga of Casey so many thousands of times on the stage he at length became able to do it mechanically without realizing what he was saying but always finishing on the split second.

A few years later the comic re-recorded "Casey" in what was described as a "greatly improved" version, and in 1926, after electrical recording was introduced, he did it all over again, coupled with a football recitation, "O'Toole's Touchdown." And only a few weeks ago Hopper's "Casey" was again resurrected as part of a set called "The Old Curiosity Shop."

First Casey Record

Victor's first Casey record was single-faced, but it was afterwards combined with the well-remembered Digby Bell's "reply," "The Man Who Fanned Casey." Bell, who died in 1917, was a torrid New York Giant rooter. He also recorded "The Tough Kid on the Right Field Fence" for a 1909 Edison cylinder. Probably most 1953 listeners would consider that Hopper hams up "Casey at the Bat," but it was one of the biggest sellers of Victor's pioneer period.

Who today remembers a 1906 George M. Cohan song, "Mr. Bingham"? Just who Bingham was isn't clear to this agent, but the context makes it appear he was a reformer of the Dr. Parkhurst variety.

Songs about baseball really got their big pushoff and started nearly all the leading Alley tunesmiths of the period on a "national pastime" binge when Jack Norworth and Al Von Tilzer—both living nowadays in California — came through in 1908 with "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," which is today virtually the national anthem of baseball. (The eminent bandmaster, John Philip Sousa, years later wrote "The National Game March," but it didn't click.)

Hard to say just what has made "Ball Game" stand out above all competition. The words are typical pop stuff, about a girl who was baseball crazy, but the swinging waltz tune is one that sticks in the memory. Anyway, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" is the baseball song. A Tin Pan Alley legend, which may be true, is that neither Norworth nor Von Tilzer had even seen a baseball game before writing the song, and Norworth is quoted as saying he didn't get around to attending one until 1940.

Figuring he had struck on a good thing, Von Tilzer introduced a baseball theme into an unusually clever comic song, "Did He Run?," with words by the late Junie McCree. The third verse refers to the most famous play in baseball history, when Fred Merkle of the Giants neglected to touch second in a game between the Giants and Cubs that would have decided the National League's 1908 pennant race. A playoff resulted and the Cubs took the flag. The song describes the game, and delicately says "Mr. Giant's brain was blurred" as an explanation of the oversight that unjustly won Merkle the designation of "Bonehead Merkle."

Femme Cleffers In Act

From 1908 to 1913 there was a procession of baseball songs. Florence Holbrook became one of the few women to write a baseball number when she did the music to Cecil Lane's words of "He's a Fan, Fan, Fan." Anne Caldwell wrote the music and James O'Dea the words of "Stars of the National Game," which mentioned such heroes of the time as Mike Donlin, Hans Wagner, Larry Lajoie, Ty Cobb, Hal Chase, "foxy Mr. (Frank) Chance," Cy Young and Fielder Jones. The second verse told of "the Giants from Manhattan, the Cubs as smooth as satin, the Pirates, Boston Doves (!) or Cincinnati Reds, Brooklyn bunch of Willies, the Tigers or the Phillies," and summed up: "American or National, both Leagues are all the same; it's not the Leagues we root for—it's the boys who play the game."

Jack Norworth, partnered by Nora Bayes, tried again with "Let's Get the Umpire's Goat," and Billy Jerome, Jean Schwartz and George M. Cohan had a time at bat with "Take Your Girl to the Ball Game." Al Von Tilzer set music to Harry Breen's words of "Back to the Bleachers for Mine" by no means another "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." Ed Madden and Gus Edwards were responsible for "Come On, Play Ball With Me, Dearie," and an American League player (later an umpire), George Moriarity, wrote the lyrics of "I Can't Miss That Ball Game," to a tune by Joe Cooper.

Harry Von Tilzer, the undisputed king of Tin Pan Alley in the pre-Berlin days, was a little slow taking his cut at the plate, but in 1910 he did the music and Edward Clark the words of a flop, "My Old Man Is Baseball Mad"—the complaint of a wife whose husband spent his time watching the ball tossers instead of supporting the family. In 1911 he and the still active Andrew B. Sterling did "The Baseball Glide"—again not a hit.

Meanwhile, Billy Jerome and Jean Schwartz came through in 1911 with a clever comic song, "They're All Good American Names." It followed the idea of "Stars of the National Game" by naming outstanding players in the chorus, such as "Hanlon, Scanlon, Kirk and Donlin, Devlin, Keeler, Walsh and Conlin" — all with a touch of Irish. The third stanza praised the Americanism of Jewish citizens—an idea Jerome and Schwartz worked out still more successfully a little later in "If It Wasn't for the Irish and the Jews."

Also in 1911, Elsie Janis recorded for Victor her own composition, "The Fascinating Baseball Slide," telling of a femme fan's love affair with "Spitball Mike." A Seymour Brown and Nat D. Ayer, who were to score a little later with "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," popped out to the catcher with "Make a Noise Like a Fan." It made no noise whatever.

Now we come to perhaps Irving Berlin's only baseball song—one which he probably would just as soon forget. In 1913 he wrote the tune of "Jake, Jake, the Yiddishe Ball Player" to words by Blanche Merrill. Both Merrill and Berlin struck out on three straight pitches. Neither did Ned Nye and Charles G. Richel get to first base with "I Want to Go to the Ball Game"—another plaint of the doll who preferred baseball to dancing or other diversions.

A rather amusing effort was the 1912 number, "The Marquard Glide," produced by the genius of four collaborators—"Rube" Marquard and his then wife, Blossom Seeley, Thomas Gray and Ray Walker. Marquard was known as "the $11,000 lemon" when he proved ineffective on his first appearances with the Giants, but he later became a peach, and the song modestly describes him as "the King of Pitchers." But it is kind enough to mention other Giants—"Matty, Meyers and McGraw, Murray, Snodgrass and Devore, Herzog, Fitch and Doyle." "The Marquard Glide" also promised the Giants would "hang it on those Red Sox" (presumably in the 1912 World's Series), but it was the Sox who did the hanging.

The inevitable "Baseball Rag" came along in 1913. The Victor record lists the writers as "Wolff and Jones." It is sung by Arthur Collins, with realistic crowd effects, including the high tenor voice of Collins' recording partner, Byron G. Harlan, accusing a man on bases of "running like an ice wagon."

After 1913, baseball songs are relatively rare, although in fairly recent years there have been "Joltin' Joe DiMaggio," "Did You See Jackie Robinson Hit That Ball?" and "Leave Us Go Root for the Dodgers, Rodgers." In 1926, the Happiness Boys (Billy Jones and Ernie Hare) made records of "That's My Hap-Hap-Happiness," in which Jones asserted his idea of happiness was to be at a ball game. The Victor record mentioned "When Babe Ruth walks to the plate," but Edison toned it down to "The Home Run King walks—."

"The Babe himself made a couple of records. In 1920 he clowned amateurishly through a Pathe Actuelle disk of "Babe Ruth's Home Run Story," purporting to tell how he had hit 47 round-trippers that season. In 1928, for the same company he and Lou Gehrig did a two-part skit, "Babe and Lou." The Babe seems self-possessed, but Lou sounds scared to death. Another mention of Ruth occurs in Eddie Leonard's 1924 ditty, "Oh, Didn't It Rain?," in which he achieves a monstrosity of a rhyme, even for Tin Pan Alley, with: "We went to the Yankee Stadium to see Babe Ruth hitt-i-um . . . Oh, didn't it rain!"

Old Comedy Numbers

Platter makers through the years have turned out a number of comic skits and specialties dealing with baseball—nearly all in the remote past because humorous records no longer sell. One of the best was a 1909 Edison cylinder, "The Baseball Girl," by a vaude luminary, Ray Cox. This was the only record the comedienne ever made, but her specialty was one of the funniest things ever cut into wax. She is irresistible as the femme chatterbox who admonishes a hesitating runner to quit "praying on second—you're not going to Heaven this year!" and to "run home, you rummy, run home!" Even in 1909 there were women, it seems, who knew something about the game.

Cal Stewart naturally got into the act with "Uncle Josh Playing Baseball." An Irish dialect comic, Steve Porter, did "Flanagan and the O'Reilleys at a Ball Game" (featuring the dumb woman fan who couldn't understand what was going on), and the Chicago ragtime playing specialist, Axel Christensen, showed change of pace in 1928 by making a Broadway record, "Axel at the Baseball Game." Speaking in a thick Swedish accent, he tells of playing baseball for the first time. When he hit a home run, 20,000 fans yelled, "Run home, Axel, run home!" and he retorted: "Why in hal should I run home? I got money to pay for the ball!"

A Virginia-born comedian, the late Ralph Bingham, who specialized in Negro dialect comedy, recorded "Home Run Bill's Defense" for Victor—the story of a colored catcher who shot a runner going to second to keep a gambler from plugging him for letting a passed ball get by. Ringham also did a "tough kid" impersonation, "The Boy in the Bleachers." "Home Run Bill's Defense" had nothing to do with the song, "Home Run Bill," by Jerome Shay and Alfred Bryan.

Unusual Record

One of the most unusual records with just an incidental reference to baseball is "Fourth of July, 1920," arranged by Robert Hood Bowers and played on a Columbia record by Charles A. Prince's Band. The other side shows how the Fourth was observed in 1880—speechmaking in the groove, shooting fireworks, etc. On the 1920 side an airplane is heard droning overhead, and then the voice of Henry Burr announces: "Batteries for today's game—for New York, Barnes and McCarthy; for Chicago, Alexander and Killefer."

It's well known of course, that show biz and baseball feel closely related—as witness Tallulah Bankhead's crusading zeal for the Giants and Helen Traubel's interest in the St. Louis Browns. Farther back, Billy Murray, who recorded many of the songs mentioned here, was such a devout fan of the New York Highlanders (forerunner of the Yankees), he often slipped away with them on spring training trips and occasionally played right field in exhibition games. Murray also played for years on the Lights, a team composed of members of the Long Island Good Hearted Thespian Society. Georgie Cohan was a baseball nut, and Gus Van & Joe Schenck were so wild about the game they not only had their own ball club but billed themselves in vaude as "the Pennant Winning Battery of Song Land." A billing, however, which Jack Lait in a VARIETY review wished on them.

RETAIL SHEET BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail sheet music sales based on reports obtained from leading stores in 10 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

* ASCAP † BMI

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Title and Publisher	New York, MDS	Rochester, Neisner Bros.	Philadelphia, Charles Dumont	San Antonio, Alamo Piano Co.	Chicago, Carl Fischer	St. Louis, St. Louis Music Supply	Minneapolis, Schmitt Mus. Co.	Kansas City, Jenkins Music Co.	Detroit, Grinnell Bros.	Seattle, Capitol Music Co.	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	†Doggie in the Window (Santly-J)	1	1	1	1	1	1	2	1	2	1	98
2	2	†Till I Waltz Again (Village)	3	2	4	2	2	3	3	2	4	2	83
3	7	I Believe (Cromwell)	2	4	3	3	9	7	1	5	3	..	62
4	4	†Don't Let the Stars (Four Star)	9	7	..	5	3	2	..	3	..	6	42
5	5	Pretend (Brandom)	5	..	9	7	4	8	4	4	8	9	41
6	3	Keep It a Secret (Shapiro-B)	8	8	5	4	5	5	7	..	..	7	39
7	8	Side by Side (Shapiro-B)	7	..	..	6	7	6	..	6	9	4	32
8	12	†Your Cheatin' Heart (Acuff-R)	6	5	8	..	6	4	..	..	6	..	31
9	6	Anywhere I Wander (Frank)	..	..	2	10	..	..	8	9	1	..	25
10	9	†Tell Me You're Mine (Capri)	10	..	..	..	..	9	..	8	..	3	14
11A	11	Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me (Mills)	..	..	..	8	8	..	..	7	..	..	10
11B	..	Easter Parade (Berlin)	..	..	6	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	10
13A	13	†Tell Me a Story (Montclare)	4	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9
13B	..	Wild Horses (Simon)	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	9
15	10	Oh Happy Day (BVC)	..	..	..	9	10	..	..	10	..	8	7

5G for Rights To 'Mine Again'

Latching onto an indie label tune click which is getting wide coverage by the majors, Buddy Morris, E. H. Morris Music topper, has bought the rights to "Say You're Mine Again" from the Coast publisher, Harry Bluestone. Morris reportedly paid $5,000 for the tune in a deal by which Bluestone will also participate in the tune's revenues.

Number, written by Charles Nathan and David Heisler, was kicked off on the Allied label with a version by the Three Dons and Ginny Greer a couple of weeks ago. Since then, RCA Victor climbed aboard with a Perry Como slice, Decca with one by Dolores Gray and Capitol with June Hutton & Axel Stordahl's orch.

Morris came up with the recent Como click on "Don't Let the Stars Get In Your Eyes" in a similar deal. On the latter tune, Morris tried to buy the number from the Four-Star publishing-disk firm but couldn't come to terms. Morris, however, acted as selling agent for "Star." On the Como backing to "Mine Again," the singer, incidentally, debuts with the multiple-voicetrack gimmick on "My One and Only Heart," written by Al Stillman and Robert Allen and published by Como's own publishing firm, Roncom Music. Victor shipped 350,000 copies of this disk to its distribs last week following exec hunches that the company had a big hit on its hands.

Bluestone is a Coast violinist who entered the publishing business about four years ago with his Blue River Songs firm. He still is an active AFMer and plays many studio dates in Hollywood. "Say You're Mine Again" is his first pop hit.

MAX LIEBMAN SETS UP OWN FIRM, SAVOY MUSIC

Max Liebman, producer-director of NBC-TV's "Your Show of Shows," set up his own music publishing firm, Savoy Music, this week. Pubbery will be an ASCAP affiliate. Liebman expects to place special material written for the tele series as well as pop tunes into the Savoy catalog.

The firm is kicking off its activities with the theme song of "Shows," which is tagged "Stars Over Broadway." Tune was written by Mel Tolkin, Liebman and Clay Warnick. Also teeing off the catalog are "Shivaree," by Warnick and Mel Pahl, and "Show Me the Way to Love You," by Liebman and Dick Rogers.

Even Dutch Red Flips For U.S. Jazz Troupe

Amsterdam, March 31.

"Jazz at the Philharmonic," playing at Amsterdam's staid Concertgebouw, was a click for 2,000 wild-eyed enthusiasts and couple of normally misanthropic critics. Concertgebouw is used to rich diet of classics from the world-famed classic orch of same name. If any of Concertgebouw's regulars chanced by they must have rubbed their eyes when they saw the wild scene. During drum duel between Gene Krupa and J. C. Heard, one fellow in audience did a solo unrehearsed dance turn in front of podium. Ella Fitzgerald proved to be favorite of critics, though audience fell harder for the flashier items on program.

Even the music critic from the Communist daily, De Waarheid (The Truth), fell for the Americans. Worst he could say was that applause was almost automatic and that warmth wasn't spontaneous. But he felt compelled to admit that what he called the "noise" of the Krupa-Heard duel was "technically perfect."

RCA Signs Sonny Howard

Vaude-nitery singer Sonny Howard has been inked to a term pact by RCA Victor.

Although his in-person turn is comprised mostly of takeoffs on other singers, Howard will cut tunes for Victor in his own style.

Milt Gabler, Coral Records artists & repertoire chief, heading to Hollywood this week for waxing sessions with the Les Brown orch.

S. KAYE DICKERS FOR MAYPOLE CATALOG

In a move to build up his music firms, World (ASCAP) and Republic (BMI), orch leader Sammy Kaye is dickering for the buyout of the Maypole Music catalog. Latter firm, which has been inactive for the past eight months, was operated by composer Ruth Pole.

Kaye's interest in Maypole follows the pattern set several years ago when he established his firms with purchases of the Isham Jones and Harry Tierney catalogs.

Instrumentals

Continued from page 37

rish lyric version for Lew Douglas' orch and chorus is hitting the market this week via M-G-M. Tune is the Big Three's No. 1 plug. Same publishing firm is also riding with "Little Red Monkey," a BBC TV theme, which was kicked off by the Harry Grove Trio for London and now has eight instrumental covers in the U. S.

"The Song From Moulin Rouge," a Broadcast Music, Inc., publication from the "Moulin Rouge" pic, is also getting solid reaction via the Faith slice for Columbia, with Howie Richmond's tune, "Swedish Rhapsody," on the flip. Rene also has cut "Moulin Rouge," with Leeds' "Street of Shadows" instrumental, another British import, on the backing.

Also from Britain currently are "The Ecstasy Tango" and "The Marching Strings," both cut by Ros for London. As hatching ground for instrumentals, Europe has come up in recent years with such additional numbers as "Meet Mr. Callaghan," "Petite Waltz" and "Blue Violins," while South America produced last year's "Delicado" click.

Anderson, Wayne Prolific

Among U. S. composers, Bernie Wayne has been prolific in the instrumental field, although Anderson is the most successful cleffer in this genre, also batoning his numbers under the Decca banner. Wayne was responsible for the "Vanessa" click with Winterhalter and the latter recently sliced another Wayne instrumental, "The Magic Touch." Camarata is also having a Wayne followup in "Rendezvous," having hit initially with "Veradero."

The instrumental click is a flexible one and has been exploited in the pop field with full-sized symph orch through dance bands down to one-man instrumentals. In the latter category, Les Paul has been tops with his multiple-sounding guitar sides for Capitol Records.

During the war years in the early 1940s, Freddy Martin's orch launched a series of instrumental clicks for RCA Victor which stemmed from longhair themes. Standout were Chopin's "Warsaw Concerto" (also a hit for Carmen Cavallaro on Decca) and piano concertos by Grieg and Tchaikovsky. One of the most ambitious original compositions since the war was "Manhattan Tower," written and recorded by Gordon Jenkins for Decca with over 500,000 albums sold to date.

Disk Companies' Best Sellers

CAPITOL — ARTIST

1. I'M SITTING ON TOP OF THE WORLD / SLEEP — L. Paul-M. Ford
2. PRETEND / DON'T LET EYES SHOP FOR HEART — Nat (King) Cole
3. BLUE GARDENIA / CAN'T I — Nat (King) Cole
4. YES SIR, THAT'S MY BABY / YOKAHAMA MAMA — Hari Kari
5. SIDE BY SIDE / NOAH — Kay Starr

COLUMBIA

1. SOMEBODY STOLE MY GAL / GLAD RAG DOLL — Johnnie Ray
2. SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE / SWEDISH RHAPSODY — Percy Faith
3. TELL ME A STORY / LITTLE BOY AND OLD MAN — F. Laine-J. Boyd
4. I BELIEVE / YOUR CHEATIN' HEART — Frankie Laine
5. WHEN THE RED, RED ROBBIN / BEAUTIFUL MUSIC TO LOVE BY — Doris Day

CORAL

1. DANCIN' WITH SOMEONE / BREAKIN' IN THE BLUES — Teresa Brewer
2. CANDY BAR BOOGIE / AT THE END OF THE RAINBOW — Ames Bros.
3. MANY ARE THE TIMES / THERE'S NO ESCAPE — Don Cornell
4. TILL I WALTZ AGAIN WITH YOU / HELLO BLUE BIRD — Teresa Brewer
5. GOODBYE CHARLIE, GOODBYE / I'D LOVE TO FALL ASLEEP — Karen Chandler

DECCA

1. YOU CAN BE IN LOVE / LESS THAN TOMORROW — Hamish Menzies
2. TWICE AS MUCH / SOMEONE TO CARE FOR — Mills Bros.
3. YOU FOOLED ME / IF YOU TAKE MY HEART AWAY — Four Aces
4. KAW-LIGA / MY HEART IS A KINGDOM — Dolores Gray
5. YOUR CHEATIN' HEART / CONGRATULATIONS TO SOMEONE — Louis Armstrong

MERCURY

1. DOGGIE IN THE WINDOW / MY JEALOUS EYES — Patti Page
2. CARAVAN / WHILE YOU DREAM — Ralph Marterie
3. SEVEN LONELY DAYS / IF YOU TAKE MY HEART — Georgia Gibbs
4. NO HELP WANTED / TEXARKANA BABY — Rusty Draper
5. RUBY / LOVE MOOD — Richard Hayman

M-G-M

1. YOUR CHEATIN' HEART / I'LL BE WAITING FOR YOU — Joni James
2. ANNA / I LOVED YOU — Silvano Mangano
3. MY FLAMING HEART / RUBY — Lew Douglas
4. KAW-LIGA / YOUR CHEATIN' HEART — Hank Williams
5. COQUETTE / A FOOL IN LOVE — Billy Eckstine

RCA VICTOR

1. DON'T LET THE STARS GET IN YOUR EYES / LIES — Perry Como
2. WILD HORSES / I CONFESS — Perry Como
3. HOT TODDY / SERENADE — Ralph Flanagan
4. HOW DO YOU SPEAK TO AN ANGEL / DOWNHEARTED — Eddie Fisher
5. SWEET THING / WHY COME CRYING TO ME — Dinah Shore

PITT INDIE PROJECTS SMALL DISKERS' ASSN.

Pittsburgh, April 7.

Don Hall, who runs Steel City Studios here and records a lot of local talent for his own Pitt Co., is trying to organize the small, indie label waxeries all over the country in a nation-wide organization. Idea would be to have them combine for distribution as well as production.

Hall figures there's plenty of revenue around for the little fellows who sell to the major platter companies because they haven't the distrib facilities. He points out that the majors have had plenty of clicks lately that they picked up from little-known outfits throughout the country.

Questionnaires were sent out by Hall last month to more than a hundred of the independent groups, and he's already had answers from a majority of them who seem interested in the idea and want to know more about its possibilities. So far, Hall says, the organization's still in the embryo, but he hopes to get it in working shape just as soon as the owners of the small labels can get together and work out their problem.

Sam Braverman's Son Victim of Murder Spree

The five-murder spree of Marine Fred E. McManus last week touched the music biz when it was revealed that the first of the victims was William Braverman, 19-year-old son of Sam Braverman, w.k. in Tin Pan Alley circles.

Braverman, pere, is a vet sheet music and record buyer for Neisner Bros., Rochester, N. Y., department store.

Seven Lonely States

Spike Jones was on a bicycle last week to cover seven states in seven consecutive one-niters on his current swing through the midwest.

The inter-state jaunt began Sunday (29) in Cincinnati, Ohio, and was followed with dates in Evansville, Ind., Nashville, Tenn., Vicksburg, Miss., Little Rock, Ark., Shreveport, La., and Houston, Tex.

Plug-Shy British Dim 'Mazda' in 'Glow-Worm'; Other Marks' Tunes Hit

British idiosyncrasy as to what tunes or parts of tunes should be censored once again hit a Marks Music copyright. Most recent rhubarb was over the new Johnny Mercer lyric to "Glow-Worm". Since the British object to the use of trade names in a lyric, they switched the couplets in which "mazda" and "neon" appear. Latter objection was later reversed, but the "mazda" ban still holds which bars the airing of the Mills Bros. click Decca waxing from being aired via BBC.

The Mercer lyric which was changed to meet British standards originally read "You've got a cute vest-pocket mazda—which you can make both slow or fazda." In the British version, it's now "You got a cute vestpocket lighter—which you can make both dim and lighter." Other changeover, which was later reversed, was "Glow little glow-worm in the dark night—You are equipped with such a bright light" from the original, "Glow little glow-worm turn the key on—You are equipped with taillight neon."

Sidebar to the "Glow Worm" fracas is that Leslie Boosey, of Boosey & Hawkes, British publisher of the tune, also is a BBC topper.

Another Marks' run-in with the British was over "Paper Doll," which was said to be an insult to womanhood. Tune also was waxed by the Mills Bros. Jimmy Phillips of Peter Maurice Music, who published the tune in England, was forced to hold back its release for a couple of months until squawks from GIs stationed there at the time got the ban lifted. "God Bless' The Child," a Negro spiritual cut by Billie Holiday for Decca and Frankie Laine for Columbia, also was banned on the grounds that it was sacreligious. It's also a Marks' copyright.

Songstress Doris Day and her husband, Marty Melcher, are due in N. Y. next week from the Coast for huddles with Columbia Records execs.

Cleve. Symph to Pitch Classics to Ball Fans In Night Game Warmups

Cleveland, April 7.

The Cleveland Orchestra, without a summer home because of the air conditioning of the Public Auditorium, will play 12 concerts in the Cleveland Stadium as a preview to night home games of the Indians. Agreement was reached through a deal whereby Indians put up $15,000; the Musical Arts Assn. put up $8,000; the Cleveland Federation of Musicians, $5,000, and the Cleveland News, which proposed the idea, $2,000.

Louis Lane will conduct the concerts that'll be played an hour and a half before game time, with the price of admission to the game covering the "pops." Seventy musicians will be used, most of whom are regular members of the orchestra under George Szell. Orchestra will be seated behind the center field home-run fence.

Rehearsals of the orchestra will be open to the public through a contribution for the concerts from the Music Performance Trust Fund.

Ziggy Talent Makes Like Monroe as Single

Ziggy Talent, featured vocalist and sideman with Vaughn Monroe's orch for more than 10 years, will follow the maestro's steps when the orch folds next month and go out as a single. Willard Alexander, who's handling Monroe's solo bookings, also will book Talent.

Talent's first move sans the Monroe affiliation occurred several months ago when he signed a pact with Decca Records. Although he continued to work with the band, he waxed a couple of Decca sides as a vocalist. Alexander currently is lining up solo dates for Talent.

The Monroe orch's farewell date in the New York area will be at a weekend engagement (April 10-11) at Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook, Cedar Grove, N. J.

Sweeping The Country

HOLD ME, THRILL ME, KISS ME

Karen Chandler CORAL
Roberta Lee - Jerry Gray DECCA

Music From The Great Motion Picture Mills

ORCHESTRA LEADERS RECORDING COMPANIES

A FAVORITE PIANO NOVELTY

FASHIONETTE

Published by SHAPIRO-BERNSTEIN CO.
1270 6th Ave., New York City

DANNY WINCHELL

Sings

OHIO | I CAN'T HELP LOVING YOU

MGM 11455 78 RPM
K 11455 45 RPM

M-G-M RECORDS

Inside Stuff—Music

Jim Walsh, VARIETY musicologist of Vinton, Va., frequently gets requests to supply information about old songs or disks. A recent example was Eddie Cantor's seeking to identify ditty he heard Al Jolson sing in 1917. Cantor asked help from ASCAP's New York office. Failing to identify tune, ASCAP turned to Walsh, who spotted it as "Down Where the Swanee River Flows," written by Charles McCarron and Al Von Tilzer and published by Broadway Music in 1916. Jolson sang number in "Robinson Crusoe, Junior," and waxed it for Columbia.

Walsh has also supplied Disk Jock Jack Garrett of WQBC, Vicksburg, Miss., with 1911 Victor platter of tune by Ballard Macdonald and Ray Walker, "Mississippi Dippy Dip." Garrett figures he may be able to set number off on another popularity kick in State for which it was named and perhaps make it a sort of unofficial Mississippi "national anthem."

Trade speculation as to whether Julius LaRosa "can do it again" has been aroused by the crooner's decision to cut "The Lady Wants To Dance" for his next indie Cadence label release. LaRosa broke into the bigtime several months ago with his preem disk, "Anywhere I Wander." Swift takeoff of the LaRosa version surprised the music biz hepsters since the tune never got off the ground with a previous slicing by such a potent disker as Tony Bennett on the Columbia label. LaRosa's "Wander" platter passed the 500,000 mark, a phenomenal sales score for an indie first.

The "can LaRosa do it again" query is sparked by the fact that "Lady Wants To Dance" was cut by Perry Como for RCA Victor last year and didn't attract much attention.

"An Onion And You," tune written by Greenwich Village, N. Y., grocery clerk Alex James in 1947, is getting a second chance to break through via a Betty Clooney etching on the indie Round label. The disk, incidentally, was etched before Miss Clooney became a Coral Records' pactee. Initial waxing of the tune was made independently by James in 1949 but it never got off the ground. At the time the song received an extensive plugging campaign via the chalking of its title on midtown street corners and subway stairways.

Tune has since been rewritten and is being published by Adventure Music, a BMI affiliate, operated by Bill Buchanan. Buchanan also owns the Round label.

Vet Cleffer Henry I. Marshall has always had a flair for personal promotion. Marshall recently moved into a new home at Scotch Plains, New Jersey, and got permission from the post office to give his address as 515 Bumble Bee Lane, thus capitalizing on the titles of two of his biggest song hits—"On the 5:15" (written in 1915) and "Be My Little Baby Bumble Bee" (1912). Marshall did music to both with words by late Stanley Murphy. "Bumble Bee" ditty appears headed for revival, sung in Warner Brothers' film, "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," by Doris Day, Gordon MacRae and Leon Ames. Piece has also been plattered by Miss Day for Columbia and MacRae for Capitol.

Eddie Fisher, who makes initial appearance since coming out of the Army at the Paramount, N. Y., Friday (10), is getting the benefits of a four-way publicity spread via his video-disk affiliations. Steve Hannagan Associates is handling him for the Coca-Cola show along with NBC-TV's press department. On disks, RCA Victor is doing a big Fisher promotion along with indie publicist Gene Weber.

Fisher is already set for coverage by several national mags, including Newsweek, Red Book and American Weekly.

The recent one-day cuffo appearance in London of Norman Granz's "Jazz at the Philharmonic show" has had friendly repercussions with Ted Heath, Britain's leading bandleader, offering the services of his 16-piece band to play free of charge in New York for any charity the American Federation of Musicians care to name. Problem that will confront the band, if the AFM okays the project, is the cost of transporting it, with three vocalists, back and forth.

VARIETY's recent detailing of the coin received by top writers from the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers in 1952 inadvertently omitted the income of Harry Warren. Warren, a Coast cleffer whose credits include numerous film score hits, is in the same ASCAP bracket with Oscar Hammerstein 2d, Richard Rodgers, and Ira Gershwin and received between $40,000 and $44,000 last year from the Society.

Video's impact on disk sales is now clearly reflected in the sharp pickup of Burl Ives' "The Riddle Song" after a couple of plugs recently on the NBC-TV juve show, "Ding Dong School." Tune was released about four months ago by Decca with little action. The video plugs, however, stirred an immediate reaction on the dealer level via kiddie purchases.

It's Music by
JESSE GREER
Program Today Yesterday's
ON THE BEACH WITH YOU
WORDS & MUSIC, INC.
(1619 Broadway, New York)

Joe Martin Exits Disk Industry Assn.

Joe Martin has exited the public relations post of the Record Industry Assn. of America. Martin joined the RIAA last year and helped promote such RIAA sponsored events as the Hartford Music Festival. According to John W. Griffin, org's exec secretary, promotion men will be hired now only for RIAA's special events.

Martin had a one-year deal with RIAA.

Another BMI "Pin Up" Hit
ANNA
Published by Hollis
RECORDS
Silvana Mangano ..... (MGM)
Paul Weston ..... (Columbia)
The Three Suns ..... (Victor)
Dick Hayman ..... (Mercury)
Ray Bloch ..... (Coral)
Al Caiola ..... (Victor)
BROADCAST MUSIC, INC. 580 Fifth Avenue, New York 36, N.Y.
NEW YORK • CHICAGO • HOLLYWOOD • TORONTO • MONTREAL

Songs With Largest Radio Audience

The top 30 songs of week (more in case of ties), based on copyrighted Audience Coverage Index & Audience Trend Index. Published by Office of Research, Inc., Dr. John Gray Peatman, Director, Alphabetically listed.

Survey Week of March 27-April 2, 1953

A Fool Such As I	Robbins-M
Anywhere I Wander—†"Hans Christian Andersen"	Frank
April In Portugal	Chappell
Caravan	American
Doggie In The Window	Santly-J
Downhearted	Paxton
Even Now	Pickwick
Golden Years—†"Houdini"	Paramount
Have You Heard	Brandom
Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me	Mills
Hot Toddy	Coachella
How Do You Speak To An Angel—*"Hazel Flagg"	Chappell
I Believe	Cromwell
I Confess	Witmark
Kaw-Liga	Milene
Keep It A Secret	Shapiro-B
My Jealous Eyes	Famous
Ohio—*"Wonderful Town"	Chappell
Open Up Your Heart	Longridge
Peter Cottontail	Hill & R
Pretend	Brandom
Say It With Your Heart	Feist
Say Si Si	Marks
Side By Side	Shapiro-B
Tell Me You're Mine	Capri
Till I Waltz Again With You	Village
Why Don't You Believe Me	Brandom
Wild Horses	Simon
Will-O'-The-Wisp Romance	Triangle
Your Cheatin' Heart	Acuff-R

Second Group

Because You're Mine—†"Because You're Mine"	Feist
Don't Let The Stars Get In Your Eyes	Four-Star
Ecstasy Tango	Jefferson
Gomen Nasai	Disney
Hush-A-Bye—†"The Jazz Singer"	Remick
I'll Be Hangin' Around	Broadcast
Lady Of Spain	Fox
Life Was Beautiful	Pops
Mister Tap Toe	Montclare
Nearness Of You	Famous
No Help Wanted	Acuff-R
Oh Happy Day	BVC
Ruby—†"Ruby Gentry"	Miller
Say It Isn't So	Berlin
Second Star To The Right—†"Peter Pan"	Disney
Small World	Harman
Song From Moulin Rouge—†"Moulin Rouge"	Broadcast
Sweet Thing	Hill & R
This Is A Very Special Day—†"The Jazz Singer"	Remick
Thumbelina—†"Hans Christion Andersen"	Frank
Wish You Were Here—*"Wish You Were Here"	Chappell
You Belong To Me	Ridgeway

Top 10 Songs On TV

(More in Case of Ties)

Doggie In The Window	Santly-J
Easter In Waikiki	Duet
How Do You Speak To An Angel	Chappell
I Believe	Cromwell
It's Love	Chappell
Lady Of Spain	Fox
Peter Cottontail	Hill & R
Pretend	Brandom
Side By Side	Shapiro-B
Wish You Were Here	Chappell

Five Top Standards

(More In Case of Ties)

April Showers	Harms
Blue Skies	Berlin
Easter Parade	Berlin
Getting To Know You	Williamson
Life Is A Beautiful Thing	Famous

† Filmusical. * Legit musical.

Bob Weiss Tours Cap Film in O'seas Bally

London, April 7.

Robert B. Weiss, European representative of Capitol Records, flew in from his Paris base last week to launch a sales promotion drive, having as its focus a 16m Kodachrome sound-movie, "Wanna Buy A Record?," produced by Cap execs. First showing of the 40-minute opus was to members of the national and trade press last week, followed by another shop to 1,000 record-dealers.

Similar promotion screenings are scheduled for Birmingham, Manchester, Leeds, Glasgow, Newcastle, etc., with an Irish tour in the summer. Pic has already played round Europe, and is being given French and German subtitles to enable it to be publicly shown in the newsreel-theatres in Germany, Switzerland and elsewhere.

The Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra, consisting of 16 musicians, is due in New York today (Wed.) on the S.S. America, for a concert tour of Puerto Rico and South America.

Mills Inks Sherrell As Disker-Cleffer

Hollywood, April 7.

Pony Sherrell, former member of the team of the Sherrell Sisters & Gene Austin, inked an exclusive writing pact with Irving Mills of the Coast office of Mills Music. Miss Sherrell, who has been writing in collaboration with Phil Moody, arranger-conductor who has done picture work in England, was also signed to a record deal by Mills for its American Records label.

Mills plans to cut eight sides, all original material, by the singer-writer, and first coupling will be released sometime next month.

SULLIVAN, JESSEL FETED BY ASCAP

Ed Sullivan and George Jessel were the honor guests at the annual dinner of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers at the Hotel Astor last night (Tues.). Sullivan, whose CBS-TV "Toast of the Town" show presented a two-part toast to ASCAP last fall, was presented with a clock while Jessel was given a plaque by L. Wolfe Gilbert in behalf of the Coast writers.

Jessel emceed the ASCAP show with Red Buttons, Jarmila Novotna and Cecil & Blake on the after-dinner bill.

ASCAP's Peak

Continued from page 1

gives the latter a quasi-official status.

Hoffman disclosed that ASCAP distributed last November $390,000 in royalties from broadcasting in England and Canada during 1951. Last month the Society mailed checks to members totaling $776,300, representing foreign royalties from Argentina, Australia, Belgium, France, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Uruguay and England.

Prexy Otto A. Harbach's address to the membership underlined the "beautiful calm" in ASCAP operations since the new payoff plans for writers and publishers went into effect last year. The rank-and-file dissidents have virtually disappeared. Harbach also spotlighted ASCAP's support of various legislative efforts to amend the Copyright Act to permit licensing of jukeboxes for performance fees.

(Another story in music might tend to refute this alleged "calm"; certain writers deprecate the present logging technique).

A Dull Fastie

Pinky Herman, perennial dissident ASCAP rank-and-filer, didn't speak at org's annual conclave yesterday (Tues.). Hence the meet was dull but fast.

Big laugh at the sesh was nabbed by a new writer-member who advocated that the members assume a family-like attitude and "get to know everybody." He said in all seriousness, "I'd like to know any publisher better." Composer-conductor Lazare Saminsky got his pitch in with, "A good symphony is worth lots more than 'Yes, We Have No Bananas.'" P. S.—Saminsky is a longhair.

Hal Cook to Coast

Hal B. Cook, Capitol Records' veepee national sales manager, headed for the Coast last week (3) for a series of confabs with the diskery brass there.

En route, Cook will huddle with Cap managers in branch office cities.

FOR MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAMMING!
MY MOTHER'S EYES

LEO FEIST, INC.

New! Unforgettable!
"THAT'S WHAT YOU USED TO SAY"
A tender, haunting ballad
MABEL BUGH MINSON Pub. Co. (BMI)
2294 44th Ave. San Francisco, Calif.

DECCA RECORDS
America's Fastest Selling Records!

NITERIES ON CLIMB IN SUBURBIA

Philly Ops Appeal to Bob Hope To Call Parley of All Principals

Bob Corson, chairman of the negotiations committee of the Cafe Owners Assn. of Greater Philadelphia, has appealed to Bob Hope, prexy of American Guild of Variety Artists, to discuss the serious nitery situation in Quakertown. Corson wired Hope in Hollywood as follows:

"No doubt you have heard that 22 of our nightclubs in Philadelphia were forced to eliminate the use of variety acts because of the uncalled-for tactics and abuses by AGVA's local representatives, with the aid of Dick Jones. Fifteen nightclubs in Baltimore, for the same reasons, discontinued using acts. Detroit, Chicago and other localities are also seriously affected. Our parent organization, Theatre Restaurant Owners of America, has made several sincere efforts and attended many meetings with the AGVA board, but so far has been unable to arrive at any solution.

"Therefore, we are addressing this telegram to you as president of the American Guild of Variety Artists and request that a meeting be called between yourself personally, your national director, and not more than two additional responsible directors of your organization, to meet with our president, our executive director, and two responsible operators, with no attorneys to be present, so as to sincerely discuss our differences and arrive at a solution that will be mutual and honorable, for the protection of our business and the future of your members. Unless such a solution can be arrived at and if this matter is left to hot-headed directors and selfish attorneys, your organization as well as ours will suffer irreparable damage from which we may never recover.

"We urge an immediate reply and stand ready to meet you halfway in hopes of arriving at the proper settlement."

Meantime, Lou Walters, TROA prez, said in a wire to Dave Fox, the org's executive secretary who was standing by in Philly to await developments:

"AGVA striking against our Philadelphia members shows evidence of their intention to enforce their demands by every legal and illegal method. We cannot remain in business under a continual strike threat. We must do all we can to aid to the fullest extent all members who are forced out of business by this horrible method of enforcing AGVA's wishes.

"Recommend TROA stand back of its members and fight to the finish for a fair American way of doing business without violence, threat or coercion, for arbitration and for a right to discuss our problems with labor leaders without this continual strike threat held over our heads."

Moneyapolis

Minneapolis, April 7.

Even after revocation of its liquor license necessitated shuttering, the Fun House nitery here was still trying to live up to its title.

Sign on front door after the spot's demise read, "If closed, shove your money under the door," indicating the owners hadn't lost their sense of humor along with their permits.

Ottawa Recipe: A Dish of Wax Salts Up Vaude

Ottawa, April 7.

Name recording vocalists are a must for every bill in Ottawa, indie Glebe Theatre manager Hy Bessin has learned after several weeks of vaudfilm in his 858-seater nabe.

House's top-billers so far drew this way: Four Aces, smash; Gisele MacKenzie, excellent; Deep River Boys (full-bill opener), good; Jan August, break-even; Billy Gilbert, loss. Bessin attributes the disappointments to failure to costar cheaper but w.k. singers. Disk names bring excellent cooperation from local deejays, whose advice Bessin takes on booking them. They plug the artist frequently, mentioning theatre name. One of the local dailies reviews the shows.

At first Bessin was scared of high-priced headliners and turned down Louis Armstrong, who went to the Gatineau Club, across the river in Hull, Que. Four Aces convinced him he was wrong, and he's booking big within limits of his capacity.

House dropped vaude just before Holy Week, put in Laurence Olivier's "Hamlet" to keep semi-stage touch, and reopens April 16 with Al Martino and Larry Adler co-headlined; then Don Cornell, followed by a Four Aces repeat. Roy Cooper of Montreal books the house, along with Toronto Casino and Montreal Seville.

Since Bob Maynard's pioneering vaude experiment, now defunct, at the Francais, two houses have put in once-a-week stageshows. Rideau, 20th-Fox chain's downtown haunt of thrillers, westerns and nervous A's, has an amateur hour-broadcast there, with professional orch led by Cammieu Howard, CBC network broadcaster (Western Five), who played for Canadian and U. S. troops in Korea last year. National Theatres' Elmdale, large outlying nabe which cleaned up for three days with two of the Bowery Boys before the Glebe went vaude, has an amateur nite in charge of pro musicians Wilf Steubner and Val LeBeau. Both are doing well.

CHI CHEZ'S TORPEDOES AS SUMMER INSURANCE

Chicago, April 7.

Chez Paree here has lined up most of its summer headliners. Tony Martin tops the show May 12 for three weeks, with Jimmy Durante coming in for three or four frames immediately after.

Jane Froman comes back for a month, the starting date depending on the length of the Durante stay. Ritz Bros. have been tentatively inked for August.

Carl LeBow Associates, Inc., chartered to conduct a general entertainment business in New York. Capital stock is 200 shares, no par value. Directors are Mina L. Flax, Jay M. Marcus, Reubin Marcus, N.Y.

Lotsa Live Vaude For Omaha '54 Fair

Omaha, April 7.

Plenty of live acts will take part in Omaha's Centennial next year, managing director Alfred Stern said last week. He promised free entertainment at Turner Park in near-downtown Omaha every night during peak summer period, with huge birthday cake there, historic spectacle at Ak-Sar-Ben field with "cast of 1,000" and many parades.

While Omahans will furnish considerable talent to these productions, Stern promised plenty of pros would be hired. Overall budget is $250,000, with biz firms underwriting.

Ron Fletcher, who'll stage the 1954 "Ice Capades," left N.Y. yesterday (Tues.) to spend six weeks with the current edition of the blader, now in Chicago, before hitting the Coast for confabs with show's producer, John Harris.

NUT IS KERNEL TO NAT'L UPBEAT

By JOE COHEN

The decentralization of cafes is becoming more marked in the ever-growing national trend toward establishment of niteries far from midtown areas. The factor contributing most to this pattern now is the rising cost of operation. However, the vast growth of suburban areas after the war, increasingly snafued traffic on roads leading into major cities, plus the increased willingness of representative acts to play the outland stops are spurring the process.

In the New York area the offbeat criteria are the Boulevard, Elmhurst, L. I.; Ben Maksik's Town & Country Club, Brooklyn, located in a deserted section of that borough and accessible mostly by car (native guides are helpful), and Gene Seville's Casa Seville, Franklin Square, L. I. In addition, there are myriad nabe spots that are becoming bold enough to bid for names on a weekend basis.

Paving the way for the suburban growth has been the vast number of cocktail lounges and spots formerly termed roadhouses. The emergence of the jukebox as an entertainment entity caused the vertical disappearance of the roadhouses because of their reliance on bands.

Another factor that is making offbeat operation more attractive is that niteries in many areas have become a weekend business. To do business Fridays and Saturdays, an operator has come to feel that he doesn't need an expensive location and upped union band scales. In many cases the normal take over

(Continued on page 50)

Hiked Rehearsal Coin for Tooters Draws LQ Fire

Squawk by Lou Walters, Latin Quarter, N. Y., operator, against hiked rehearsal fees set by Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, may lead to a reopening of the whole contract between the musicians and N. Y. niteries. Local 802 execs are calling in Walters for a hearing this week and if the rehearsal fee question is not solved the musicians will ask for a new pact and new tooter scales.

Dispute broke out as a result of Local 802's imposition of a two-hour rehearsal minimum for nitery musicians, in place of the previous one-hour period. Local 802 execs stated the increase in the minimum was made to cover the expenses of the musicians coming to town for rehearsals. Walters said the union's move represented "a dictatorial attitude" which is "un-American, unfair, illegal and unethical." He declared he "must insist that whenever there is any change in an existing contract we have the right to sit down with you and discuss it before the demand is made."

The hassle between Walters and Local 802 was aggravated last week when the musicians' room at the Latin Quarter was rifled by burglars. The union immediately demanded a special room for musicians and threatened to walk out over the weekend if Walters did not meet the union's demands. Walters subsequently ironed out this detail with the musicians.

Slapsie Maxie's 'H'wood' Relites Upstate N.Y. Cafe

Albany, April 7.

Dinty's Terrace Garden, in nearby Latham, reopened Easter Sunday (5) with a show headed by Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom's "Hollywood Revue," Madelyn Russell, Kaye Gorham Dancers, and a band and trio.

The spot had been closed since New Year's.

AGVA Supported by Other Unions In Clampdown On Philly Niteries; 'Sign Contract or Else'- Dick Jones

Philadelphia, April 7.

The American Guild of Variety Artists, with the solid support of the service unions and the musicians, threw picket lines around four midtown cafes Friday and Saturday nights (3-4) and threatened to pull out four more this week. (For details on the picketing ban by a local court, see separate story).

The spots first struck were the Kaliner Bros.' Little Rathskeller, the Celebrity Room, Big Bill's and Ciro's. The cafes were shut down completely, except where the owners and relatives tended bars for such customers as came through the picket lines.

Taking part in the picketing, along with the nitery actors, were the members of Local 301, waiters and waitresses; Local 115, bartenders union; Local 111, kitchen staffs, and representatives of the powerful maritime unions (stevedores, longshoremen, etc.) on hand to lend physical aid, if necessary, to the picketing chorines and comedians.

The complete clampdown on the places struck made good the promise of Dick Jones, AGVA's eastern regional rep, who stated Thursday night, "All club owners will be told point-black to sign the contract or else." Jones' statement followed an all-day series of meetings between AGVA and the seamen's unions, the American Federation of Labor's Central Labor Union, the service locals and a futile attempt at mediation with the cafe owners before the Rev. Dennis Co-

(Continued on page 54)

Geo. White's Musicalette

The George White nitery production for the Versailles, N. Y., is slated to tee off there the last week of this month, with April 22 as the tentative date. Rehearsals began Monday (6). Show's present title is "Nice To See You," and is tagged a musicalette.

Present talent lineup is made up primarily of newcomers.

Philly Court Bars Nitery Pickets In Temporary Relief

Philadelphia, April 7.

Closed niteries got temporary relief when Judge L. Stauffer Oliver in Common Pleas Court issued an order effective today (Tues.) barring union pickets. The order holds until a hearing Friday morning (10), when jurist will decide if injunction is to be continued. Doubtful whether removal of pickets will return either acts or staffs to struck spots.

Dave Fox, executive secretary of Theatre Restaurant Owners of America, called a meeting of Philly cafemen for 3 p.m. today at Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. Telegrams pledging 100% support to the Philly group came from TROA heads in Dallas, Buffalo and Cleveland. TROA president Lou Walters urged "a fight to the finish for a fair American way of doing business."

Bob Corson, Philly cafe associations executive secretary, wired Bob Hope, AGVA president, to intervene personally in the dispute. Nitery men also made a lengthy presentation of their case to the AFL Central Labor Council asking reconsideration of its stand on AGVA.

CLEVE. SKY-WAY GOES BACK TO FLOORSHOWS

Cleveland, April 7.

Eddie Sindelar's Sky-Way Club restores floorshows to its new stage and kicks off its season Thursday (9) with Four Ames Bros. topping first bill for two weeks. Frankie Strasek, who formerly had a band at downtown Alpine Village, organized a new orch for the suburban spot, one of the smartest in decor here. Stage was raised and floor's side rail eliminated to increase visibility.

Ames Bros. will compete against Kay Thompson & Williams Bros., now pulling standee trade at Hotel Hollenden's Vogue Room, and Dorothy Shay, current at Statler's Terrace Room.

For the spring and summer season, Sindelar also inked Jerry Lester on a four-day deal beginning April 23; Harry Belafonte, week of April 30; Connee Boswell, May 7; Guy Mitchell, May 14, and Three Suns for June. Ted Lewis is tentatively set for a third return.

Dorothy Sarnoff's 1st N.Y. Nitery Since 'King' Stint

Singer Dorothy Sarnoff, who opens at the Cotillion Room of the Hotel Pierre, N. Y., next Tuesday (14), will be making her first appearance at a Gotham nitery since she was seen in "The King and I" and doubled into a cafe.

Rounding out the spot's new bill will be Lucille & Eddie Roberts, Stanley Melba's orch and Chico-Relli's rhumba band.

Palace's 8-Act Grind Post-Kaye

The Palace Theatre, N. Y., will revert back to a grind eight-act vaude bill and first-run pic policy following Danny Kaye's exit April 26. Initial show, not set as yet, goes in April 27 for 11 days so as to enable house to work into a Friday opening pattern. Kaye teed off his stand at the house Jan. 18 and has been averaging $52,000 weekly.

Incidentally, Darvas & Julia, who appear on the bill with Kaye, began their long-distance doubling between the Palace and the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, yesterday (Tues.). Shuttling act, being done via an airlift setup, has resulted in the Shoreham's management taking out a $1,000-a-night insurance policy on act's plane travel. Dancers are booked into the hotel until April 20.

Hutton's Chicago Stand To Delegitimatize Shubert

Betty Hutton has been set for a two-week vaude stint at the Shubert Theatre, Chicago, starting May 4. Engagement marks the first time the Shubert has deviated from showcasing a legit attraction. Show will run two hours with Miss Hutton taking over the last 60 minutes. She'll be backed in her song and comedy act by the Skylarks, vocal quartet. Initial half of the bill hasn't been set yet.

Date is being sandwiched between the current "Call Me Madam" and the incoming "Pal Joey."

U.S. VS. PEORIA CAFE, 116G

Peoria, Ill., April 7.

The Government last week filed suit against the Frolics nitery here for $116,019.

Brief charges that bistro violated Office of Price Stabilization regulations with over-ceiling prices for liquors.

Night Club Reviews

Copacabana, N. Y.

Jack Carter, Jimmy McHugh's "Song Stars of Tomorrow," with Dorothy Coulter, Eve Marley, Beverly Richards, Darla Hood; Cabot & Dresden, Helen Dimone, Ted Martin, Ramona Lang & Jack Purcell, Copa Girls, Michael Durso and Frank Marti Orchs; $5 minimum.

It's tough to follow a Danny Thomas, but Copa op Jack Podell has come up with another solid layout which holds the line on this spot's standing as the top talent showcase in the New York nitery picture. Jack Carter, in the topline comedy slot, is a repeat booking, but all the necessary fresh angles for this show are supplied by the Jimmy McHugh troupe, whose N. Y. bow can be rated as an unqualified click.

McHugh originally broke in his act with five songstresses but currently is using only four girls and it's difficult to figure how this turn could be improved over its present setup. McHugh stays in the background for the most part accomping on the piano with Matty Malneck batoning the orch and introing some of McHugh's tunes in this personal song cavalcade. It's an "and then I wrote" script, of course, but McHugh handles it with an ingratiating modesty, always giving the credits to the collaborating lyricist—in most instances, Dorothy Fields.

The four thrushes are standout, singly and together. Each of them has a distinctive vocal style and personality and all are lookers, to lend considerable eye-appeal to the act. The gals bow in with an ensemble medley of McHugh standards and then come on for solo assignments.

Blonde Dorothy Coulter is a well-trained coloratura and her trills score on "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" and "It's A Most Unusual Day." Beverly Richards is a statuesque brunet with fine musicomedy pipes with which she vigorously works over "South American Way" and "I Feel A Song Coming On." Eve Marley, for a sexy change of pace with her clinging, deeply-cleavaged gowns and her low-pitched voice, is standout on her handling of "Porgy" and "I'm In The Mood For Love."

Pert, diminutive Darla Hood comes on as last of the quartet on the first run-through of tunes and delivers a brace of them in a jump novelty style which sells all the way. She bounces through "Sunny Side of the Street," "You're A Sweetheart," "Bermuda," "Hinky-Dinky Parley-Vous," "A Touch of Texas," and "Don't Blame Me." Midway, she duets with McHugh on "When You And I Were Young Maggie Blues" with the tunesmith doing the harmony part in a warm gravel voice.

Each of the gals come on twice with gown changes. For the finale, the quartet joins in a reverential interpretation of "On A Wing and A Prayer," which earns this 40-minute turn a begoff hand.

Carter, who's chiefly a video product but now on a temporary TV layoff, has an uneven routine. On opening night (2) he couldn't seem to find the handle for a long time and his gags were far from exploding. That's not the fault of his delivery, which is okay, but the material. Too many lines are moveovers from other scripts and Carter frequently falls into bad taste even for hep spot like the Copa.

The comic, however, scores with his impressions. He hits hard in this sector of his turn and warms up the audience with his takeoffs on Billy Daniels, Cab Calloway, Louis Armstrong and a full Jolson medley to get him off on a peak.

In the opening spot, Cabot & Dresden flash their fancy hoofing exhibition with ace results. Duo has a tricky adagio stunt in which the male twirls his femme partner above his head with one hand with dangerous-looking speed. Pair also click neatly in a light folk dance breather.

As usual, the Copa production numbers with the line supply a money framework. Opening "For Love Or Money" item is a spicy tune handled in okay fashion by Helen Dimone. Ramona Lang & Jack Purcell handle the featured terping stints brightly, while Ted Martin gives okay assists on the vocals along with Miss Dimone.

Vet maestro Mike Durso cuts the show, aside from the McHugh routine, snappily with Frank Marti's crew alternating for the customer dansapation rhythms.

Herm.

Thunderbird, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 2.

Robert Q. Lewis (with Fred Elton), Irving Fields Trio, Betty Clooney, Johnny Conrad Dancers (5), Christina Carson, Barney Rawlings, Kathryn Duffy Dansations (7), Al Jahns Orch (12); no cover or minimum.

Heading into the spot that launched him on a nitery career in addition to commitments in another media, Robert Q. Lewis again looks like a sure bet to captivate Vegas revelers. Forced to curtail from usual two-frame booking to a 10-day stand because of video contracts, the bespectacled humorist will be a decided boon for Easter family trade.

His light banter, self-kidding of owlish appearance, and special tunes win over roomfuls with no trouble and keep yocks rolling in plentifully.

Irving Fields Trio counts this room as "home," proceeds to wrap up a sparkling sesh filled with musical verve. Fields keeps action moving from his seat at the Steinway from a Latin opener to Latin closer sliced with Americana for boffo reception and begoff.

Betty Clooney makes a good impression in her Vegas debut. Her song expressions are warm and delivered in solid style. Bearing a marked facial resemblance to sister Rosemary (big clicko at the Thunderbird two years ago prior to pic contract), she also has the muted timbre in ballads and good sense of the best in rhythm tunes.

Johnny Conrad Dancers were placed in bad position at show caught, having to follow the Lewisian antics, thus forming a sort of anti-climactic display. Since opening however, the lithe tapster and his four sleek femmes have been slotted in forepart of show for better effect. Conrad adds to his cleating with several good tricks, during single rounds, and in followup Afro-Cuban boundings with gals shows moderne patterns.

Kathryn Duffy Dansations put on their best flash for opening "April Showers," integrating the fine toeterps of Christine Carson, the friendly chanting of Barney Rawlings. Later, gals return to help Lewis in his "Pair of Horn-Rimmed Spectacles" routine and other fillips. Al Jahns takes his batoning course easily, aided by Fred Elton at the 88. Elton not only provides Lewis with smooth pianistic help but lends his pipes in a nostalgic flashback to old vaude tunes.

Will.

Plaza Hotel, N. Y.

Lisa Kirk (with Buddy Pepper), Wally Boag, Dick La Salle Orch, Mark Monte Continentals; $2.50 cover.

Lisa Kirk is in there with chi-chi charm in her regular Persian Room booking. A snazzy black chiffon curled in tiers around her slim frame adds a touch of elegance. Right off the bat she personalizes the deal via "I Want to Know More About You." This one is a special cleffed by her husband, Bob Wells, with topical punctuations. She had the preem crowd with her before her entry, by means of carnations for all males present, "with the compliments of Lisa Kirk." How could such a courtesy miss? Smart showmanship, that.

In "Side by Side," piano accomp Buddy Pepper pitches in with pointed lyrics. Her "Got You Under My Skin" shows off her mood piping, helped by savvy lighting. She brings cheers in her Vincent Youmans medley of "More Than You Know," "Want to Be Happy," "Great Day" and "Tea for Two." Back after a bow, she roves the mike, converted to a telephone, with a flirty "Too Marvelous" as springboard. Harlem-styled and plenty peppy is "If I Could Be With You." Encore would have to be her trademarked "Always True to You in My Fashion," and after that another stanza of same for a snap-happy finale.

Wally Boag is good for chuckles in his triple play of balloon designs, bagpipe shenanigans and hoofing. His patter is sometimes too swift, but the visual inventions stand out. Boag's "movie" characterizations are a nifty tour de farce. His acroterps and jitterbugging give him a solid finish. More of them would give size to his brief (10-minute) turn.

Some of the best show and dansapation music around is fronted by Dick La Salle and Mark Monte. Arthur & Kathryn Murray did a rhumba as mere ringsiders and reflected both their grace and the nifty beat of the tooters.

Trau.

Latin Quarter, N. Y.

Borrah Minevitch's Harmonica Rascals (5) with Johnny Puleo; Dominique; Andre, Andree & Bonnie (4), Mons. Choppy, Betty George, Dagenham Girl Pipers (10), Murphy Sisters (3), Fleetwoods (4), Midge Miner, Carl Conway, Art Waner Orch, Buddy Harlow Orch, Buddy Harlowe Trio; $5 minimum.

Only trouble with the new bill at the Latin Quarter is simply that it's too much of a good thing. Show opening night ran nearly an hour and a half, despite fact that three performances were scheduled, and at that the acts were cut short, with Borrah Minevitch crew on only for about five minutes. A couple of turns could well be dropped; customers still will get their money's worth.

Minevitch group, though on briefly, showed enough to score. Johnny Puleo, as usual, is sparkplug of the act. Little guy's antics vs. the bullies in the group convulse the ringsiders. On the straight musical side, unit scores with "Peg O' My Heart." Turn could run quite a bit longer.

Dominique, the magician-pickpocket imported from France last fall to play at the demised French Casino, shows up strongly in this room. His use of members of the audience as foils goes over with the out-of-towners. He hustles through the crowd picking up watches as he goes, but all without offending. As a closer, he gets some men onstage and proceeds to strip them of jewelry, ties and even undershirt. It's a clicko turn here.

Mannequin act of Andre, Andree & Bonnie is as effective as ever. Addition of a third girl enhances the turn. Foursome uses the mannequin bit as an opener, then goes into a couple of straight terping.

(Continued on page 52)

TEDDY and PHYLLIS
RODRIGUEZ
Appearing
FLAME ROOM RADISSON HOTEL, Minneapolis

"Teddy and Phyllis Rodriguez, making their local bow, faced a difficult task. First, they must satisfy a smart clientele which recently was regaled here by the great DeMarcos. Second, like the DeMarcos they're required to shoulder the entire floorshow assignment. That they emerge clicko, arousing enthusiasm and finishing to begoffs, is considerable of an accomplishment and attests to their ability. Initially booked for a fortnight, they've been held over an additional three weeks. Couple buttress superior terp technique and classy appearance with a high degree of entertainment. They whip up much fun and engender a party atmosphere while demonstrating eye-filling dances. This enables them to do 40 minutes easily and leave the guests clamoring for more. During one number they distribute claves and maracas to ringsiders and the folks shake them with apparent relish while helping to furnish the dancers' accompaniment. Passing up fantasy, they devote themselves to straight-out performances in a wide variety of mostly familiar dances garnished with distinctive twists and novel, original steps. Numbers run the gamut from the poetic "Dream of Love" to a lightning fast "That's My Baby" Charleston. Their South American contributions are standouts." Rees.
VARIETY 3/18/53

CLASS OF SERVICE
This is a full-rate Telegram or Cablegram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable symbol above or preceding the address.

WESTERN UNION 1201
W. P. MARSHALL, PRESIDENT

SYMBOLS
DL=Day Letter
NL=Night Letter
LT=Int'l Letter Telegram
VLT=Int'l Victory Ltr.

The filing time shown in the date line on telegrams and day letters is STANDARD TIME at point of origin. Time of receipt is STANDARD TIME at point of destination

JOHNNY DUGAN, MARCH 25, 1953
MUSIC CORPORATION OF AMERICA,
NEW YORK, N. Y.:

I TAKE GREAT PLEASURE ADVISING YOU THAT TEDDY AND PHYLLIS RODRIGUEZ ARE THE FINEST DANCING ACT TO APPEAR AT THE RADISSON FLAME ROOM. ALSO THE ONLY ACT EVER TO BE HELD-OVER. WE ARE ARRANGING RETURN ENGAGEMENT FOR NEXT SEASON.

GENERAL MANAGER H. CALEVAS
RADISSON HOTEL

LEW BLACK and PAT DUNDEE
(Beauty and the Least)
A new note in Glamor Comedy
GERBER-WEISS AGENCY
1697 Broadway, N.Y.
Club Dates NAT DUNN

JOLLY JOYCE AGENCY
New Philadelphia Address
Suite 717-718-719
Victory Building
1001-1011 Chestnut St.
Philadelphia, Penn.
Phone: WAlnut 2-4677—2-7343
WAlnut 2-3172
Still at: Paramount Bldg., New York
Suite 2005
Phone: LAckawanna 4-9469

FOSTER AGENCY, LONDON, presents
SEÑOR CARLOS
Currently
LE LIDO, PARIS
American Rep.: WM. MORRIS AGENCY
TAVEL MAROUANI AGENCY PARIS

1943-1953
TENTH ANNIVERSARY
April 14th
THE Blue Angel
Herbert Jacoby Max Gordon

LOUIS JORDAN

and his

TYMPANY FIVE

Currently on Tour with

"THE BIGGEST SHOW"

●

This Summer —

Bill Miller's RIVIERA

Fort Lee, N. J.

August 12th—

GOLDEN HOTEL

Reno, Nevada

August 28th—

STATE LINE Country Club

Lake Tahoe, Nevada

●

IT'S STILL A

Natural

AFTER

Latest Record Release

"IT'S BETTER TO WAIT FOR LOVE"

and "JUST LIKE A BUTTERFLY"

Exclusively

• DECCA RECORDS •

years

GAC GENERAL ARTISTS CORPORATION

A.C. Gets a B.O. in Its Bonnet As Easter Sun Joins Parade

Atlantic City, April 7.

This resort had one of its best Easter Sundays in years as 300,000 joined the Easter parade on the long Boardwalk under a beaming sun which kept the thermometer in the high 60s. Lone fly in the ointment was the Saturday night rain, which sent business below expected figures.

All operations gained by this, the first holiday to bring a great influx of visitors. Steel Pier brought in Vaughn Monroe for its huge Marine ballroom, while the Four Aces headed its vaudeville. Most hotels reported capacity weekend bookings, and their cafes offered added attractions, while most nightclubs augmented their shows for the Saturday evening crowds.

Feature of the afternoon was the selection of the best 1953 Easter bonnets with 10 women in the parade chosen by Magda Gabor, here to open out-of-season theatre, and her mother, Jolie.

Another feature, cuffo to the public and well attended, was a concert made possible through the cooperation of the resort's musicians' union and staged in the afternoon in the ballroom of Convention Hal. Roger Kay conducted the concert, directing the 52 men in a program picked for popular consumption. Dennis McMahon was featured soloist.

Sunrise services conducted at the end of Steel Pier Sunday morning drew a crowd of approximately 5,000. This is an annual fixture on the resort's Easter program.

DONALD RICHARDS

Star of
"THERE'S MUSIC IN THE AIR"
FRIDAYS, CBS RADIO NETWORK, 9-10 P.M., EST

Personal Mgt. DAVID L. SHAPIRO
AL 4-1077

COMEDY MATERIAL
For All Branches of Theatricals
FUN-MASTER
THE ORIGINAL SHOW-BIZ GAG FILE
(The Service of the STARS)
First 13 files $7.00—All 35 issues $25
Singly: $1.05 Each IN SEQUENCE ONLY
Beginning with No. 1—No Skipping!
● 3 Bks. PARODIES, per book..$10 ●
● MINSTREL BUDGET.....$25 ●
● 4 BLACKOUT BKS., ea. bk...$25 ●
● BLUE BOOK (Gags for Stags) $50 ●
HOW TO MASTER THE CEREMONIES $3.00
GIANT CLASSIFIED ENCYCLOPEDIA OF GAGS, $300. Worth over a thousand
No C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., New York 19—Dept. V
Circle 7-1130

3 'Exotics,' Miami Op Fined on 'Lewd' Charge; AGVA Seeks New Trial

Miami, April 7.

Three "exotic" dancers and the owner of the Rainbow Inn were found guilty in Court of Crimes here on charges of allowing and performing "lewd" dances. The performers were fined $100 each with the owner, Lou Brooks, taking a $150 rap.

Quartet were brought up on the charge under the recently passed ordinance which reform elements had pushed through in campaign to crack down on stripperies and femme impersonator spots. Though the dancers, Loretta Day, Debbie Reese and Lynn Marlin, insisted that their costumes conformed with regulations posted in dressing room, sheriff's deputies who made the arrest insisted their performances were lewd.

Representatives of American Guild of Variety Artists are asking for a new trial.

London Ciro's 'Mourning'

London, April 7.

Ciro's club shuttered its main room during the period of court mournings. Decision was taken because of the many cancellations received after the death of Queen Mary.

The nitery closed its main room earlier in the year for redecoration and reopened a few weeks ago.

San Antone's Top Orchs

San Antonio, April 7.

Col. B. F. Chadwick, owner and operator of Club Sevenoaks here, has lined up several name bands for the spots.

Artie Shaw will appear April 21-25, Harry James, May 1-2, and Billy May, May 15.

Niteries on Climb

Continued from page 47

weekends is sufficient to get the spot off the nut and operation the rest of the week is just that much to the good.

Extensive Potential

Besides, the suburban operator is able to draw from an extremely wide area. The current building boom in the outlying districts is adding to the bonifaces' potential audiences. Feeling by customers is that it's better to drive a few miles than to brave midcity traffic; get free parking as against charges as high as $2.50 for storing the car for a few hours; and at the same time, get entertainment on the same scale as it available in midtown. What's more, unless advance reservations are made in the top midtowneries, it's virtually impossible to get in on a weekend. Thus, it's safer to take a chance on getting a table at a spot nearer home.

Another item in favor of the outlying areas is the diminishing number of big midcity niteries. Along Broadway, during the past few years, the Havana-Madrid (later the 500), Diamond Horseshoe (later the French Casino); and the Gilded Cage, which had a succession of names, have disappeared. This has created a severe underseating problem, especially on weekends. Yet, it's hazardous to attempt to reopen these places at this time because of the shortage of sufficient names.

Aping Emporiums

Thus the cafes are following in a groove already traveled by the major department stores, which have found decentralization to be successful.

As far as talent is concerned, the acts feel that they can get their price in the hinterlands and use that opportunity to break in new material. It's been found that a date in the suburbs doesn't interfere with a stand in the midcity spot, where they must land in order to maintain their reputations.

Growth of suburbia is generally a healthy sign for the cafe biz. It's a challenge to create new audiences, provide spots where acts can develop and yet offer entertainment on a high metropolitan level.

AGVA Tightens Rules in Midwest To Beat Chi Bookers' Loopholes

Chicago, April 7.

American Guild of Variety Artists here is girding for a last-ditch showdown with Chicago Entertainment Managers' Assn. and the Chicago Cafe Owners Assn. Last week the local board of the union, with several members of the national board in attendance, passed several strong resolutions to try and prevent circumvention of the "unfair" agent and act listings. It's an open secret that many turns are doing club date and location dates for those agents.

Most powerful suggestion approved calls for acts, when entering Chi territory, to report to branch AGVA headquarters with respect to work here, or with a contract that they may have obtained when working out-of-town, and shall notify branch manager in any midwest area of their presence and intentions within 36 hours of their arrival. Failure to do will subject the act to disciplinary board action.

In other words, contracts issued by an "unfair" agent in Chicago to, say, a date in Indianapolis, will be caught by the AGVA rep in that town if the act reports when he arrives. If the affair is policed, as it has been in out-of-town dates, acts might be caught there. However, in most cases these contracts are being issued through an agent on the approved list or the contracts are being made direct with the employer and promoter of the affair.

Direct Negotiations

Other resolution approved asked that principals engage in direct negotiation with operators, lodge or benevolent committeemen, or an AGVA franchised agent. Ernie Fast, midwest regional head, is sending out a list of approved agents to all branch offices this week. Fast also called in all franchised agents last week, asking for cooperation in trying to curb the "outcast" bookers. It's reported that he has also added several reps to police club dates and cafe bookings, but mainly in the out-of-town areas.

In retaliation, the new agents group gained seven new members last week, who promised to work with the club bookers and also help set the acts for the Chicago Cafe Owners Assn. New joiners are: Bert Peck, Jack Black, Pat De Carlo, Jack Montgomery, Mort Schiff, Caeser Aragoni and Hal Cowles. Most of them are either in the casual field or pact acts for strip spots.

Saranac Lake

By Happy Benway

Saranac Lake, N. Y., April 7.

"We the Patients" thank Kroger Babb, prexy of Hallmark Productions, for sending us the feature film, "Prince of Peace."

Birthday greetings to William Joyner, Patricia Pritchard and Morris Dennison, all doing extra well.

Theresa (IATSE) Coppersmith came here a year ago a worried little girl and leaves for Gotham with a definite all-clear.

Norma Lattimore (Warner Bros., Indianapolis) all agog over first good clinic that upped her for meals in main hall. Ditto for Louie (& Pops) Williams, Jesus (Gracia) Dominguez and John (IATSE) Streeper.

Carnations to Joe McCarthy, John J. Garvey and John C. McDowell, executives of IATSE, for making the Easter holiday a merrier and happier one for many of the less fortunates here.

Eddie (& Hurst) Vogt, columnist, back from Manhattan overjoyed with "The Seven Year Itch" and "Guys & Dolls," lauding both as a sure cure for the blues.

Allie Hansen, theatre manager from Chicago, registered for the general observation routine.

An extra boost goes to Alice (M-G) Farley, Franklin (IATSE) Frady, Thurman (RKO) Sims, Ruth Cockrill and Sam (RKO) Kelly for their progress.

Eva Wecker in from Manhattan for the church holiday season to bedside her husband, Morris, whose progress is tops.

Write to those who are ill.

TERRI STEVENS

"I was sorry to see Terri Stevens close her engagement at our Carousel Club because she won so many friends by her fine performance. I hope we can have her back before long."—Bill Heller, Carousel, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Opening April 16 at:
BOULEVARD, NEW YORK CITY
STAR MANAGEMENT
846 7th Ave., New York BAside 4-0910

Byron and Margaret Ann
TALBOT
Currently
ROOSEVELT HOTEL
New Orleans, La.
Thanks TOM MARTIN
G.A.C.

DORAINE and ELLIS
"ROMANCE IN SONG"
ATLANTA BILTMORE HOTEL
Atlanta, Georgia
(April 3rd - April 25th)

FOR SALE OR LEASE MUSIC CIRCUS
New Tent, 1000 capacity, cement ramps. large house, 6 acres of land, parking 1000 machines on state highway. Exceptional bargain. Reason for selling: health. Box 432, Wareham, Mass.

The THREE EDWARDS BROS.
(3 Men and a Piano)
MUSIC — ACROBATIC — NOVELTY
Visiting Mom and Dad While Appearing in Our Hometown at the SEVILLE THEATRE
Montreal, Canada
and Then on to Europe for an Extended Tour Starting at the
PALLADIUM, London
Opening April 20 (for 3 Weeks)
and DOUBLING in the SAVOY HOTEL, London
Thanks to Brian Roxbury of
LEW & LESLIE GRADE, LTD.
European Representative
U.S.A. Representative
MATTY ROSEN
165 W. 46th St., New York City

SONI CORTI
"International Singer"
At the Piano: JOHN COOKE
Currently
CHALFONTE – HADDON HALL
Atlantic City
Just Concluded Second Engagement
BRITISH COLONIAL HOTEL
Nassau, Bahamas
Direction:
JIMMY GRADY, HOWARD LANIN MANAGEMENT, INC. JUdson 6-3045

about MISS BERNICE PARKS

Just Concluded
3 SMASH WEEKS

Gogi's LA RUE
New York

VARIETY

Gogi's LaRue, N. Y.

Bernice Parks, Ted Straeter Orch, Pepito Lopez Band; $5 minimum.

Gogi's LaRue has its best chance to crack into the eastside's class nitery belt with its current attraction, thrush Bernice Parks. Miss Parks is the third headliner here (preceding were Joanne Gilbert and Celia Lipton) since room added acts to its already established plush eatery policy and she's sure to help Gogi's in its new effort.

Miss Parks is a savvy songstress whose pro qualities project throughout the repertoire. She knows how to peddle a tune for top impact and gets ditto results from rhythm numbers as well as ballads. Although the room, which is wide and broad, impresses as a cold spot for a performer, Miss Parks purveys plenty of warmth in her songalog and emerges with hefty palming. Her red tresses and costume, designed for s.a. values, help.

Her show knowhow is evident not only in her song-selling mannerisms but in the effective production values that go into her 25-minute turn. She gets plenty of power into her big songs via an etched vocal choral backing which comes out over the mikes. It's disconcerting at first but grows on the listener for socko effect.

Miss Parks opens with a standout arrangement of "And The Angels Sing," then switches to a Latino-grooved "Just A Lot of Love." Changes pace again for a rousing rendition of the current faith tune click, "I Believe." Such followup songs as "Do It Again," "House of The Rising Sun," "Tenderly," "September Song" and "It Takes a Good Man To Do That" show her off in an assortment of piping moods that range from warm ballad readings to hot rhythm shouting. Encores strong with "Padam-Padam" in French and anglais.

New York Journal-American
★ Thurs., Mar. 26, 1953

The Knight Watch:

Bernice Wows 'Em

By GENE KNIGHT

OH, TO BE in Gogi's—now that Bernice is there! Meaning personable Bernice Parks, the sophisticated singer, who is registering success with a capital S at Gogi's plush Larue. She's something special. At midnight, there wasn't a table vacant.

No wonder the gracious Gogi, at long last, smiled!

Bernice is living it up a lot at Larue. She packs emotion in melody. Sings in a finger-snapping style. She's as refreshing as a Spring breeze.

Miss Parks is an experienced entertainer; a professional who possesses the know-how of show business. Her choice of numbers is pleasing. She knows how to sell them as well as sing them.

Her gowns are chic. She's well-endowed with nature's charms, which she displays discreetly but attractively.

She has a keen sense of audience reaction and a well-developed knack of timing and pacing. That's why Bernice Parks is a star!

Bernice sings joyously—in French as well as English.

Last night she scored with "And the Angels Sing;" "The Most Wonderful Guy in the World;" "I Believe;" "Do It Again;" "The House of the Rising Sun" (an old favorite); "When the Autumn Leaves Begin to Fall;" "Takes a Good Man to Do That;" "Tenderly;" "Bim Bam Baby;" "Padam-Padam." That's a lot of singing!

That 'Padam'!

Best of all, on my card, was "Padam-Padam." The way Bernice does this number is, well—great!

As I left the Larue at an early hour this morning, the patrons were still applauding.

DAILY MIRROR

Chic Chick Stars At Gogi's La Rue

By FRANK QUINN

The classy Gogi's La Rue stars Bernice Parks in its bid to make the famed restaurant a popular East Side entertainment spa. The singer is a real pro who has a following among Manhattan's cafe society and should help make it a leading fun spot.

The singer is a stunning redhead who has a sexy voice and knows how to put a song across. She is a chic chick who has an abundance of natural charm, a sleek torso in smart gowns.

Miss Parks is one of the singers who knows the pulse of the audience. She sings the kind of tunes they like to hear and serves up a tasteful group of selections. "And the Angels Sing," "Bim Bam Baby," "September Song" and "Do It Again" are a few of her delightful renditions. "Padam-Padam" is the encore in both French and English which the patrons and we applauded loudly.

As we conclude this nitery note a message arrives that Miss Parks is held over That's proof of the gal's drawing power

VARIETY

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By MIKE GROSS

Bernice Parks: "Your Game of Let's Pretend"-"Two Kinds of Love" (Mercury). Pair of expertly tailored ballad entries give Bernice Parks a fast start as a Mercury label pactee. Her vibrant wax projection makes each tune a class slice. It's a tossup as to which will nab top spins.

THE BILLBOARD

BERNICE PARKS

Two Kinds of Love. ..... .80
MERCURY 70104 — Bernice Parks starts off her disk career with the label with an outstanding performance on a touching new balllad. The thrush sings up a storm on this powerful effort, pouring her heart into the tune, and with the ork's backing her in the same emotional style. If the side can get enough exposure it could bust thru.

THE CASH BOX
DISK OF THE WEEK

"TWO KINDS OF LOVE"
"YOUR GAME OF LET'S PRETEND"

BERNICE PARKS

● One of the most sultry and striking voices in the business, the voice of Bernice Parks, makes its debut on the Mercury label with two tailor fit sides that could establish her as a top artist. She gives a heart felt and emotional reading to a ballad called "Two Kinds Of Love" and puts her soul into the other lilting love song labeled "Your Game Of Let's Pretend." Both ends are vocal masterpieces and are perfect sets for the thrush to show her talent.

Latest* MERCURY RECORD

"TWO KINDS OF LOVE"
and
"YOUR GAME OF LET'S PRETEND"
#70104

Accompanist, Conductor
JOE SHERMAN

GAC GENERAL ARTISTS CORPORATION

Press Relations—ROBERT HAMNER ASSOC.

Record Promotion—JOE McCARTHY

Night Club Reviews

Continued from page 48

Latin Quarter, N. Y.

chores that are highlighted by Andre's lift and spins of two of the girls simultaneously.

Mons. Choppy's act is also abbreviated to the Brittany Wedding scene, and with two of the participants already painted backstage and the whole affair having a rushed air, much of its effectiveness is diminished. Girls used in his current turn could stand some more practice in wiggling their backs, producing the winks and muggings on faces painted there. That's always been a high spot of this turn, and it's largely neglected here.

Songstress Betty George comes on without an intro—a mistake. Her stint is confined to three songs, one a special material bit, another a Greek love song and the third a barrelhouse type. Gal, who's strong on looks but only so-so on projection, ought to change her material to include one ballad and one number from "Kiss Me Kate," in road company of which she appeared. Latter would lend some audience-identification, currently lacking.

Production numbers are loud and brassy as ever, and girls as goodlooking. Dagenham Girl Pipers score with bagpipe and drums and Scotch terping. Murphy Sisters lend comedy values with their heavyweight can-cans. Carl Conway does nicely by production songs and Midge Miner is on briefly with some ballet spins. Fleetwoods dress up a production dance. Backing by Art Waner orch is good, ditto the dansapation. Buddy Harlowe Trio alternates for the Latino steppers. Chan.

Sans Souci, Montreal

Montreal, April 5.

Mouloudji, Eric Victor, Rollo & Cressy, Claire LeClerc, Jack Styka Orch (5), Peter Barry Quartet; $1 cover.

The ever-changing show formula at the Sans Souci has finally come up with a combo that should recoup recent losses. Besides current layout and to cinch future shows, the management solidifies its position naming Carol Grauer, longtime local showman, to emcee and produce the entertainment side of this operation. Grauer operated the old Samovar Club for more than 20 years and has a solid rep in Montreal for finding and presenting some of the best talent ever to play this town.

Headliner in present offering is a 19-year-old from Paris called simply in typical Gallic fashion, Mouloudji. Apparent nervousness on his first appearance here didn't help youngster to register as strongly as anticipated and his song selection left something to be desired even for those familiar with his work in France. There is a great deal of the Charles Trenet song approach in Mouloudji, but an inherent show savvy and experience should soon boost him out of the carbon class. All material is French and the occasional English intro, though brief and halting, sets him up nicely with locallites. Songs, for the most part, are predominately on the lively, comedy side and the idea of wearing a V-neck sweater and open shirt points up overall youth and freshness.

Hoofer Eric Victor plays Montreal again for the first time in several years and hep tapster still clicks with his offbeat choreography and routines. Best on show caught was his interp of an investigation via TV to the music of "Where or When."

Claire LeClerc, an attractive chantootsie, is effective. She handles both French and English standards with equal facility, maintaining a neat pace and having the good sense to get off when ahead.

Rollo & Cressy round out a solid showcase with their East Indian dancing, exhibiting much improvement over last Montreal showing. The Styka band cuts show music with Peter Barry's combo doing interlude sets. Newt.

Chez Paree, Chi

Chicago, April 3.

Lena Horne, Alan King, Lou Wills, Jr., Johnny Martin, Chez Adorables (8), Brian Farnon Orch (12); $3.50 minimum, $1.10 cover.

This three-week bill stacks up as one of the best in Chez Paree recent history. Not only graced by the presence of Lena Horne, it also features an up and coming young comedian, who is aware of the foibles of bistro customers, and a musical comedy dancing star, who is the best opening act this midwest showcase has had in many moons.

Chorus has taken on several new members and the numbers should be okay after more rehearsal. Orch has been augmented from eighted to 12 pieces for Miss Horne's stay, in addition to which chirper also has a terrific three-man rhythm group.

Miss Horne hasn't played a Chi nitery in three years, and this room in more than five. With a packed room on Good Friday night, it's obvious that she's been away too long. In this silent and emotionally charged room she projects an aura of sex that is carefully and skillfully developed. She wraps her voice around "It's All of It Yours" for a starter and does several others of the same genre. Songstress really moves in with "Beale Street Blues" and the impact grows with surcharged "Papa, Dont Preach to Me." She couldn't get off the floor after her first set of five numbers and had to do three more, topping it off with a torrid "Stormy Weather."

Alan King, young comic, has the recent returnees from the Florida climes in stitches with his topical stuff. However, it's not too localized for the unfortunates that couldn't make the winter vacation grade. While he reaches once in a while for a tinged quickie, on the whole he keeps them pretty clean, relying on the material, which is fairly sharp, and punchy delivery. He covers the field from marital problems, parents, children and the effects of teevee. The subjects are familiar, but the clean-cut quipster-weaves them well. He tears apart "Babalu" for a finish, but this is a little overlong. Had to beg off.

Lou Wills, Jr., a recruit from musicomedy, is also a new entry in this nitery and takes over what is usually the throwaway spot; not in this case, however. After a fast tap opener and a takeoff on Ray Bolger, the terper starts some applause-catching back flips and cartwheels. He cinches a begoff with four full-twist butterflies that awe the crowd.

Johnny Martin vocally paces the production numbers and Brian Farnon's larger group helps to add to the lustre of Miss Horne's stint besides filling the dance requests. Zabe.

Sands, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 2.

Anne Jeffreys, & Robert Sterling, Jimmy Boyd, Senor Wences, Dolores Gay, Dick Beavers, Copa Girls (10), Jay Calkins, Ray Sinatra Orch (12); no cover or minimum.

The latest of Mr. & Mrs. nitery teams—Anne Jeffreys & Robert Sterling—although not exciting in the electric, vibrant sense, nevertheless impart good showmanly values during their 30-minute turn. Pair look good for drawing, okay biz the fortnight.

The Sterlings have a smart act, bordering sometimes on the overly-effusive while stressing mutual affection. Miss Jeffreys holds the main musical load, with her vis-a-vis coming in for good accounting vocalistically during rides along the harmony. Best pairing is "Kiss Me Kate" medley, Sterling's solo, "Girls Will Be Girls," and the amusing hoke bleating of "Back in the Hills of Beverly." Jay Calkins is the helpmate on the 88.

Jimmy Boyd presents something of an incongruity in his placement between class acts of the Sterlings and Senor Wences. Freckle-faced, carrot-topped moppet, clad in western style and strumming a guitar, makes off with big mitts while exercising soprano tonsils on disk faves. Has good stage presence for a youngster, and receives his best plaudits for carbon of "Mommy Kissing Santa Claus."

Senor Wences' cleverness in his ventro chatter grabs high praise. Especially outstanding are his five-way gab and trick plate-spinning, meanwhile chattering various voices to make for closing ovation.

Copa Girls, in holdovers, look fetching. Ray Sinatra orch performs expertly. Will.

Bandbox, N. Y.

Billy Eckstine, Count Basie Orch (with Bixie Crawford), Brubeck Quartet; $3.50-4 cover.

Billy Eckstine hasn't played a Broadway nitery since Bop City in 1949, and on opening night (3) of his two-weeker at the Bandbox, friends of Mr. B. welcomed him home warmly to the tune of an overflow house. It was sensational biz considering Good Friday.

Fresh from a 126-city tour starting last September, Eckstine is in fine form, offering a wide assortment of songs from strong rhythm numbers like "If You Feel Like Singing" and "Mardi Gras" to ballads ("Because You're Mine") and his own special compositions, "I Like the Rhythm of the Riff" and "Jelly, Jelly."

That Eckstine's been missed was evidenced by fervent audience requests for old faves, the singer obliging pleasingly with "Body and Soul," "Tell Me," and "I'm Sorry," as well as his originals. Dressed in cerise corduroy jacket, he pulls the vocal stops, from shaded whisperings to full-bodied tones, in rendition of "Caravan," with strong beat of Count Basie's band providing solid backing, and softly dusts through "One For the Road."

Big spotlight outside the Bandbox gave a Hollywood opening touch to the preem with customers responding by bulging the waiting line.

The Basie orch with the maestro at the ivories, thumps out a deep, bouncing beat, and the Brubeck group gives a change of pace on the mellower side. Basie singer, Bixie Crawford, has a nice turn at "It's Almost Like Being in Love."

Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y.

Mary Meade (with Ted Grouya) Nat Brandwynne and Mischa Borr Orchs; $1-$2.50 cover.

Following the engagement of Patachou, an authentic Gallic importation, the Empire Room continues the French influence, at least by association. It features Mary Meade, an Oklahoma gal who has spent the last three and half years in Europe, mostly in Paris where she was a headliner at the Casino de Paris. This is the chirper's Gotham debut.

A blonde looker sporting a Grecian hairdo and elegantly gowned in white, including a white fur cape, Miss Meade is as American as they come despite her European sojourn. Because of her cafe experience on the Continent, one might have expected a concentration on foreign songs. However, singer's songalong is weighted on the Yankee side, built heavily around the theme of "It's Great To Be Home Again," which incidentally is her opening and closing number. Chanteuse largely sidetracks standard and pop tunes and relies mainly on specialty material dealing with Parisian influence on Americans.

Despite comments on her opening night nervousness, Miss Meade belted out the tunes with authority. It's obvious that Miss Meade has worked on "getting up an act," since she does not rely solely on her voice to sell her songs. On one occasion she dons a 10-galion hat and six-shooters for an item dealing with a Texas gal in Paris where "the Eiffel tower is just an oil tower with no oil." On another she picks up a hand mike, flits around the floor and talks to ringsiders in French and English about swap-

(Continued on page 54)

SENSATIONAL
DANCE ACT
(THE VALENTINO WHIP)
WESTERLY
and
GAIL
Dir.: PHIL BUSH
1650 Broadway, N. Y. C.
JU 6-2313

3rd Return Engagement!
• COPACABANA •
NEW YORK
CABOT
and
DRESDEN

Thanks, JULES PODELL
April 12th, "KATE SMITH SHOW," NBC-TV
(4th Return Engagement)
Personal Management
KENNETH LATER
Hotel Warwick, 54th St. and 6th Ave.
New York, N. Y.

PATRICIA
AND CAPPELLA
"Not seen hereabouts in several years is the GREAT DANCE DUO of Patricia and Cappella. They've been showing off their DAZZLING ADAGIOS in EUROPE for the last four years, THEIR VERSION OF THE 'TIGER RAG' IS A SIZZLING ROUTINE."
By LEE MORTIMER, Daily Mirror, April 3
"Patricia and Cappella are expert Ballroomologistes . . . their routines are IMAGINATIVELY CONCEIVED and his holds of her in upside down and other equilibrium and GRAVITY-DEFYING HOLDS ARE SPONTANEOUS APPLAUSE GETTERS."
Abel, Variety, Mar. 25, 1953
"Patricia and Cappella are a FLASHY DANCE TEAM with many interesting lifts and spins . . . the dance patterns not only show off the gown to its best advantage but ALSO HER SHAPELY LEGS."
R. Dana, N. Y. World Telegram, Mar. 24, 1953
Now Appearing
HOTEL PIERRE
Closing Sunday, April 12
Thanks to STANLEY MELBA

JACK DENTON
WORLD'S GREATEST COMEDIAN
(APRIL FOOL)
C/O IRVING CHARNOFF
1619 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

DANCERS OF DISTINCTION
NELLE FISHER and JERRY ROSS
Management Associates—JACK VAUGHAN—PEGGIE GATES 7 East 55th Street, New York COlumbus 5-0232
Currently
CHASE HOTEL
St. Louis

Palisades Park's Heavy TV Sked

Palisades Amusement Park—that hardy perennial among open-air fun emporiums—reopened in Cliffside Park, N. J., Saturday (4) for its 19th season under the management of Jack & Irving Rosenthal. A warm April sun brought out a large crowd Easter Sunday (5), but heavy showers dampened the press unveiling the previous evening.

Spot is primed in fresh paint and sports thousands of feet of colorful neon tubing. Existing facilities have been augmented by several new rides in what's billed as the "world's largest kiddie park." The widely balked opening attraction for the first two weeks is the 1953 Hot Rod and Sports Car Show.

But the season's real new twist, veteran park publicist Bert Nevins points out, will be a greater emphasis on use of TV and radio names as b.o. lures. Policy calls for air personalities to appear on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. For the Saturday spots the pitch will be aimed at the juvenile trade while the midweek matinee guest will have "femme appeal."

In line with this policy, Capt. Video (Al Hodge) and his Video Ranger (Don Hastings) were on hand opening afternoon. Coming up for the hausfraus on the Wednesday daylight sessions are such radio-video stalwarts as Renzo Cesana (The Continental) and WMGM's Carlton Fredericks.

Park also has good results from a live DuMont TV show which last season originated from the midway Wednesday nights. Program is scheduled to resume in the same time slot again via DuMont shortly after Memorial Day.

In general, admission prices remain the same as last year. There's a 25c. gate tariff but parking is free, as are several entertainment packages. Latter, for the opening fortnight, comprise the Buddy Williams and Johnny Reo bands plus The Gonzales Sisters with their "educated canines."

New rides include the Rodeo, a combination merry-go-round and shooting gallery; the Turtle, the Tank and the Wildcat. Highlights of the Hot Rod and Sports Car Show are exhibits of Hitler's armored chariot along with one which Stalin reportedly used.

Gilb.

Jean Goldkette Charts Nat'l Artists Foundation As Talent-Hunt Setup

Detroit, April 7.

Jean Goldkette has announced plans for a national talent-finding and development project for all creative arts and applied crafts to be called National Artists Foundation. Goldkette, a former orchestra leader, has been credited with giving Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Russ Morgan, Glen Gray, Hoagy Carmichael and the late Bix Beiderbecke a lift up the ladder, will serve as national director of the foundation.

Directors besides Goldkette are Burt E. Wolf, Florence J. DeCoursey and Luke C. Leonard, all of Detroit, and Norman Beasley, of New York. Leonard will be public relations director with offices in Detroit.

ERNIE-MOSTEL-DURANT CLICK AT PALLADIUM

London, April 7.

Tennessee Ernie opened to a warm reception yesterday (Mon.) in his debut at the Palladium here. Hillbilly singer capitalized on his disclicks but half-hour stint was weighted down with excess gab. Zero Mostel, also making his preem at the house, scored a smash with his comedics, as did Jack Durant, who registered successfully here several years ago.

Remainder of the bill, which is in for two weeks, comprises impressionist Florence Desmond and the Beverley Sisters, vocal trio, both returnees; Annell & Brask, trick cyclists; Morecambe & Wise, comedy duo, and Louise with her dogs and ponies.

Henry Tobias to Repeat As Prod. of Totem Lodge

Henry Tobias will repeat as entertainment producer-director of Totem Lodge, Averill Park, N. Y., this summer. The songwriter, in Hollywood for the past three months working on TV, arrived in N. Y. Sunday (5). He's handled the Totem assignment for a number of years.

Music Corp. of America, Tobias' rep, and his personal manager, Abner Greshler, are currently negotiating for him to join the ABC-TV production staff on the Coast following his Totem stint.

Henny Youngman opened yesterday (Tues.) at the Monteleone Hotel, New Orleans, for two weeks.

JOE LOUIS' VAUDEBUT IN HARLEM PACKAGE

Joe Louis, former heavyweight champ, makes his vaude debut at the Apollo Theatre, N. Y., Friday (10), heading a bill which he is packaging under a guarantee and percentage deal. Louis will team with Leonard Reed in a song-dance-comedy act. Reed was associated with Louis in various capacities when the latter was fighting.

The rest of the layout consists of the Nicholas Bros., the Five Keys, Hal Singer's band, Barbara De Costa and Vera Davis. Lew & Leslie Grade Agency is booking the package.

Pearson's 5 Units For Nat'l Tours

Hollywood, April 7.

Ben Pearson has packaged five units for national tours getting underway within the next few months.

Units are Cesar Romero's "International Revue," previously announced; Reginald Gardiner's "Night Club Revue"; "An Evening In London," featuring Constance Moore; a Judy Canova parcel and a George Fisher "Hollywood Revue" package.

Don Tannen

VERSATILE COMEDIAN AND SATIRICAL ARTIST

•

Currently

Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago

•

Just Concluded 3 Week Holdover Headliner Performance

Sheraton-Mt. Royal Hotel, Montreal

•

"A cabaret comic of very high order."
HAROLD WHITEHEAD—Gazette

•

"Headliner Don Tannen returned to this swanky room and brought with him all the mimicry and comedy that established him as a favorite performer here on previous dates."
AL PALMER—The Herald

•

"Doue d'une magnifique voix."
JACQUES TREPANIER—La Patrie

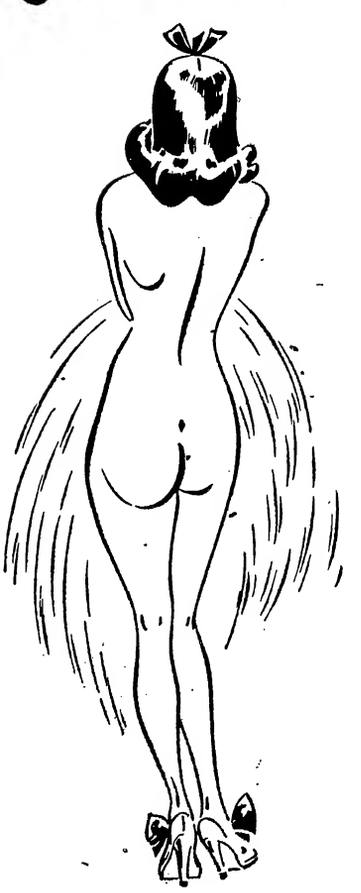
•

"Un comique original . . . tres versatile . . . son imitation de l'officier allemand qui donne un concert est de la veritable caricature."
ROLAND COTE—Le Canada

"MARQUEE LURE"*
"ENCHANTRESS"*
"NEVER BETTER"*

HER SEXELLENCY—

Sally Rand



•

Currently

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NEW YORK

•

Aloha, Nui, Nui!

Opening June 16 in

HAWAII

•

* VARIETY
"Sally Rand has lost nothing of her marquee lure, judging from daily lineups for her. . . . The diminutive blonde over to wide-eyed sock customer response. Climaxed by a thunderous begoff ovation.

Whole show is handsomely mounted and rich on pace and diversity from beginning to that eye-filling flash finale." McStay.

*EARL WILSON
"Sally was never better."

*THE READER'S DIGEST
By PHIL STRONG
"At a rate of 10,000 every evening they bought tickets and went in to see her. The dance is beautiful, and Sally herself, only a lovely clean-cut face above the slowly moving ostrich plumes, is a new enchantress."

For Bookings
FRANK TAYLOR
of LEW & LESLIE GRADE
250 West 57th Street, New York, N. Y.
JUdson 6-4190

Night Club Reviews

Continued from page 52

Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y. ping an apartment in New York for one in Paris.

Latter serves for intro of "I'm Looking for a Flat." At show caught this number went over big, for Miss Meade was fortunate in plucking ringsider Ed Fitzgerald (Ed & Pegeen) from the audience and bringing him up to the mike. The radio vet cooperated fully, swinging and swaying with the music and rendering an effective "a Paris" at the appropriate time. Fitzgerald did so well that Miss Meade had to assure the customers that he was not a plant.

On the ballady side, Miss Meade works over "You Do Something to Me," a trio of Italian tunes, and "Flamingo," penned by her accompanist-husband, Ted Grouya. "Flamingo" follows modest introduction of Grouya with couple of bars from his other song hits such as "In My Arms," "I Heard You Cry Last Night" and "When Are You Going to Kiss Me Good Morning?" Flanking the Italo ballads, chirper shifts style with a bouncy specialty, "The Customer Is Always Right," and a blues beat creation returning to the U.S. after being away for a number of years. Also in the American-French motif is a dual language offering, "If I Were Parisian," about an American girl who dreams she's in Paris.

Nat Brandwynne and Mischa Borr orchs alternate to provide neat dansapation. Holl.

BILLY GILBERT
April 13
TRITON HOTEL
Rochester, N. Y.
— ● —
Opening April 20
ESQUIRE CLUB
Dayton, Ohio
Personal Management
DAVID L. SHAPIRO
AL 4-1077
For Night Clubs — Mercury Artists

Black Orchid, Chi

Chicago, April 3.

Josephine Premice (with Luis Martinez), Stan Fisher, Lola Ameche; $4 minimum.

In Josephine Premice, bistro operator Al Greenfield has come up with a natural follow to his first two attractions, Josh White and Harry Belafonte, who have packed this intime room since it opened last December. Former Katherine Dunham dancer and concert star has been traveling the Continent for the past two years and fits easily in the slot of the European chanteuses. But she's much more than that; she's a combination gamin, terper and dramatic artist who scores equally well in the ballad, folk, and special material department.

Of all of these she does best in the field of calypso, which lends itself to the foibles of sex. Piquant redhead even ventures into the field of hillbilly with a treatise on "Fancy Living" that relates the facts of life, but not for the kiddies.

Her versatility is demonstrated with her ace rendition of the torch, "How Did He Look," which she does mainly seated and in a darkened room. However, her topper shows still another facet of her talent—a chant of "The Earth Trembles" with less gyrating to an exciting climax of the Afro-Cuban song that might have been a ritual of her forefathers. Forced back, she decorates "C'est Si Bon" with a sexy veneer, but done in humorous vein that gets laughs.

Luis Martinez is an extremely important adjunct to Miss Premice's stint. His frantic pounding of the congadrum heightens her selections and his vocal breaks add to the frenzy in certain numbers. His comic rejoinders on the Calypsos garner chuckles.

Unfortunately, the rest of the bill doesn't measure up. Stan Fisher is an able and earnest harmonica player who gets a fine hand for his serious tunes, but detracts from his efforts by attempted comedy when he asks for request numbers. He manages to fill all the demands but it's a weak closer that doesn't hold attention here.

Lola Ameche is a bright young rhythm singer who is not in her metier here. She does a collection of her records, most of them in the pop field, which gets her a nice mitt. Unbilled trio, about the fifth or sixth in more than three months, fills in for the acts. Zabe.

Chateau Madrid, N. Y.

Teresiya de Triana & Cesar el Maleguena, Linda Lombard, Marian Callahan, Freddie Alonso Orch with Sarita Herrera, Al Castellanos Rhumba Band; $3.50-5 minimum.

Hour-long show at this spot is grooved primarily along musical lines with vocalizing getting the biggest play. Presentation is targeted at both the Spanish-speaking clientele and those who don't savvy the lingo. It's a satisfactory entertainment bill but not too much of a lure for those not interested in padding out the viewing stanza with some Latino-type hoofing.

Last half of the bill, spotlighting Teresiya de Triana and Cesar el Malaguena, sells well rhythmically and goes over solidly with tableholders who dig the language, as lyrics and chatter are all delivered in Spanish. Duo are reviewed under New Acts as is chirp Linda Lombard, who precedes the Latino team with a quartet of American tunes and one Spanish-flavored entry.

Opening slot is held down by tapstress Marian Callahan, who makes a nice appearance and registers with some sprightly footwork. Her closer, a reverse strip from briefies into an outer garment, done while terping, is a strong attention-getter.

Freddie Alsonso's orch backs show and alternates with the Al Castellanos rhumba band in dishing out the dance beat. Jess.

BOB (Bobby) ROLLINS
Playing
INDOOR SPORTSHOWS
Thanks to WILLIAM SHILLING
165 West 46th Street
New York City

Grant's Riviera
RESTAURANT AND BAR
158 W. 44 St., New York LU 2-4488
WHERE SHOWBUSINESS MEETS
TALENT CONTEST
MONDAY NIGHTS
Prize: Professional Engagement
Duplicate Prizes Awarded in the Case of Ties

Reading May Ax City Tax On Charity Entertainment; Heidt Benefit Cues Move

Reading, April 7.

The possibility of exempting fund-raising entertainment programs sponsored by charities from the local admissions tax is being considered by city council, Mayor James B. Bamford said.

A request for exemption had been made by representatives of Community General Hospital, who had the Horace Heidt "American Way" show here in March.

More than 2,000 persons attended the hospital benefit, which was scaled to $3.60. At present a 10% city tax is levied on all types of entertainment programs.

"Too frequently entertainers who come to Reading to raise money for charity keep a large part of the revenue collected," Bamford commented. There is a possibility, he said, the tax law would be amended so that only the sums actually received by the charities from benefit performances would be tax exempt.

Chi Theatre's New Sked

Chicago, April 7.

Chicago Theatre has been revising its stageshow schedule with the booking of Kay Starr falling out. Miss Starr had been pacted to headline two-weeker starting Friday (10), John Carroll, Connie Haines and Jack Miles take over the stage fare. Patti Page comes in for one week April 24.

Accent will be on 3-D pic, "House of Wax" (WB), for the next two frames. Van Johnson headlines for one week May 22 and Johnnie Ray comes in for a stanza the following week.

A.C. Nitery Op Williams Gets 3 Years, Fined 5G For Income Tax Evasion

Atlantic City, April 7.

Leroy B. Williams, for several years one of the operators of Club Harlem, top sepia nitery here, was sentenced to a three-year term in Federal prison following an income tax evasion conviction and fined $5,000 as he appeared before U. S. District Court Judge Thomas M. Madden in Camden last Thursday (2).

Williams, acquitted in an income tax evasion case in 1939 but later found guilty of perjury, was convicted by a Federal jury March 13 after a two-week trial of evading about $10,000 in income taxes for 1950 and 1951.

Sentence and fine were imposed on the first count of an indictment, while imposition of sentence on the next count of the two-count indictment was suspended and he was placed on three years' probation, to begin after his sentence is completed.

Judge Madden postponed the start of Williams' sentence until April 20 to give his attorney, H. Albert Hyett, an opportunity to file an appeal.

AGVA Supported

Continued from page 47

mey, S.J., w.k. labor conciliator and arbitrator.

Philadelphia labor lined up solidly behind the performers and Ray Turchi, head of the waiters and waitresses union, said the nitery owners had only themselves to blame. Earlier in the week several of the cafemen announced that they would hire non-AGVA acts and bring them in from out-of-town to maintain the "lockout" the clubs had declared.

Local 77 (musicians union) members didn't picket, but refused to cross lines. The labor solidarity was unexpected here. In recent union disputes at cafes, there was no such unity. When the bartenders union struck Sciolla's cafe last year, both actors and musicians went through lines. Similarly, the other unions ignored picketing waiters and waitresses in Local 301's four-year-old strike against the Anchorage cafe.

The nightclub owners announced (31) that they had agreed to sign no contracts with AGVA and would refuse to permit agents of the union to enter their places. They said they would hire "former AGVA acts," but only on a "non-AGVA basis." In a move to encourage AGVA members to work under these conditions, George A. Hamid, Sr., a member of the executive committee of Theatre Restaurant Owners of America, stated the organization would pay any fines levied on entertainers by AGVA.

Both Sides Confident

Conflicting claims found both sides still confident. The Philadelphia Cafe Owners Assn. said 24 spots were standing pat in their refusal to play AGVA acts. Dick Jones, with the labor backing, was exultant. "Only 11 rooms have been affected by this lockout and it has failed completely. Philadelphia is no Chicago, a home for striptease dancers that can't work elsewhere. This city is still AGVA's 'Rock of Gibraltar.'"

Cuba Arrests

Continued from page 2

the Casino Nacional, is closed at this time of the year).

Havana's nitery gambling is largely dominated by Americans. Sans Souci is run entirely by Americans. Tropicana is Cuban, but the gambling room is run by an American. Montmartre's dice table is American-run.

The Military Intelligence Service identified those deported as Georgina Marsch, James Davis, Morris Weinberg, Thomas Graven, Michael Bliss, Joseph Tamburro, Robert Ayoub, Charles White, Patrick Smith, Charles Glick and Vernon Windham.

Chicago's
NEW LAWRENCE HOTEL

Swimming Pool—Restaurant—Cocktail Lounge—400 Modern Kitchenette Apts. and Sleeping Rooms (all with Tub and Shower)—Modern Appointments—Overlooking Lake and Park.

SPECIAL PROFESSIONAL RATES
Lawrence & Kenmore Avenues at Sheridan Road
Chicago 40, Illinois LOngbeach 1-2100

MUSIC
arranged composed by
METIS
1650 Broadway, N. Y. C.
Suite 1104 Circle 6-3869

THE CHORDS
Instrumentalists without Instruments
Now Capitol Theatre, Washington, D. C.
Club Dates (Week Apr. 9), New York; Hartford, Conn.; Nashua, N. H., and Boston, Mass.
Dir.: GENERAL ARTISTS CORP.
Club Date Bookings by
HARRY GREBEN, 203 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill. | NAT DUNN, 1650 B'way, New York

"What's on Your Mind"
Lucille and Eddie ROBERTS
Opening April 14th
Cotillion Room
HOTEL PIERRE, N.Y.C.
Followed by . . .
BLACK ORCHID . . Chicago
PARK LANE HOTEL . . Denver
EDDY'S . . Kansas City
Direction: Music Corp. of America

WHEN IN BOSTON
It's the
HOTEL AVERY
Avery & Washington Sts.
The Home of Show Folk

BABY (TASSELS) SCRUGGS
Celebrating
12 SHOW-STOPPING MONTHS in the
Folies Bergere Revue
"PARIS to PICCADILLY"
at the Prince of Wales Theatre, London and STILL FLOURISHING!

My Thanks to Val Parnell, Bernard Delfont and the Harry Foster Agency — and to —
My American Agents: WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY, New York City
MISS GERTRUDE QUINTON, 1619 Broadway, New York City

SIBYL BOWAN
Thank You Kindly JIMMY GRADY
BRITISH COLONIAL HOTEL, NASSAU

Ringling Circus 'Merely Colossal'; Big Deal a Little Xylophonist

By LEONARD TRAUBE

In most other years the Ringling circus has been stupendous and gigantic, but this year it is merely colossal. The teeoff last Wednesday (1) was a combination of the orthodox features of "The Greatest" and an audacious stunt by impresario John Ringling North in which he has made a vigorous bid for immortality as a showman.

The jury will probably be deliberating all season on the merit, appropriateness and impact of Mister Mistin, Jr., a Belgian moppet whose age is given as five but who may be a year or two older. This Brussels sprout, who operates in an electrifying way upon a xylophone, is given the kind of staging and buildup that only the big bertha of the circuses could fabricate with any degree of credibility. Under other auspices the act would be considered the acme of corniness, but at N.Y.'s Madison Square Garden, amid a vast expanse with its multifarious trappings, it comes off before a hushed audience—jampacked to its 15,000 capacity—as one of the biggest tricks in modern circusiana.

The wunderkind's billing has all the stops pulled out. "Prodigiously proclaimed phenomenon—John Ringling North's latest and greatest importation, the tiny musical prodigy who has astounded millions in Europe, Asia and Africa—the Child Wonder of the World." That the Fauntleroy-garbed and elaborately blond-curled youngster plays the xylo is nowhere mentioned, and the program cover, devoted wholly to him, merely shows him on a small platform with hands raised as if leading a chorus.

Obviously the ballyhoo is, and will be, in the teaser class, first because that's considered the proper circus approach, but foremost perhaps because a tipoff on the instrument would tend to be anti-climactic. The sight of a small lad playing the warhorse "Poet & Peasant" overture on a slowly-revolving high platform in the centre ring is a spectacle of sorts, and the preem crowd responded with a characteristic ovation at the finish of the piece.

The Junior-tagged hammer worker, yclept Roland d'Haeveloose, then goes into a medley in which he dares to have the crowd work up a community sing. This is deliberately too fast, so he makes with "Shine On, Harvest Moon," which sets a few throats into motion.

The kid is in full command; he has been coached to milk the audience, boxing the compass extensively while so doing and probably going beyond the script in this regard. He speaks English well, for the few words he has to say.

The little Mister, put on before the intermission, is preceded in his stint by two men, presumably his father and grandfather who make with the hammers in a conventional number, and this intro is a bust that's almost embarrassing in a circus setting. The older man also engages in some comedy byplay with the youth, such as covering the instrument to indicate that the moppet has done enough. The kid proceeds to play while the xylo is shrouded.

Junior's performance compels attention in its physical aspect, while the musical values themselves are moot. The showmanship is astute, perhaps too much so, but J. R. North has gone all-out in the newspaper advertising and billing, with faith in the attraction's pull. How this treatment may affect the regular troupes, who have spent years in perfecting their routines, will no doubt be evidenced as the season progresses.

Glam Charity Pitch

The opener stretched over four hours, to 12:30 a.m., due to preem ceremonies resulting from the benefit staged for the United Cerebral Palsy Assn. of N. Y. and the usual rawness attendant upon a first night. It was a star-studded hippodrome track from the start, when Lauritz Melchior, in clown dress, relieved Merle Evans to lead the band, as sports gabber Bill Stern announced the array of guests. These included, in costume, such names as Sam Levenson, Jan Murray, Dennis James, Morey Amsterdam, Herb Sheldon, Garry Moore, Herb Shriner, Sid Caesar & Imogene Coca, Al Schacht, Bob & Ray, Jack Carter, Bob Smith & Clarabell, Perry Como, Gabby Hayes.

In later stanzas, on floats, elephants and otherwise, came Lola Montez, Jane Wyatt, Yvonne Adair, Jinx Falkenberg (McCrary), Mercedes McCambridge, June Havoc, Nancy Guild, Betty Furness, Viveca Lindfors, Jane Pickens, Sally Forrest, Gypsy Rose Lee, Phyllis Kirk, Arlene Francis, Mary Sinclair and, in special spots, Danny Thomas, Dagmar and Marlene Dietrich.

Miss Dietrich took over the second half as ringmistress and occasional announcer, being cued by general director Pat Valdo and equestrian director Angelo Nicholas. She looked sleek in opera hose that showed off her plus perfect gams, and a red hunting coat. Thomas made a slow circuit of the track and Dagmar, in a revealing gold lame gown, did a bit with Gabby Hayes in which the bearded oldster went into a series of fainting spells upon discovering the big blonde's surefires.

North's '53 edition is interlarded with the customary pomp and circumstance and theatrical flavor. An overdose of acts, some of them repetitive, tend to square the $6.50 top. A good many of these will be lopped off when the sawduster gets under canvas, and after the eastern dates most of the menagerie will be sent back to Sarasota winter quarters to lighten the show's burden.

Extravaganzes

On the eye and ear end, the big wallop is contained in the four production extravaganzas. With music by North and lyrics by E. Ray Goetz, most of these elaborations are familiar and inspired by the themes, with musical interpolations from other cleffers. First of these is "Minnehaha," given an Injun motif in the w.k. Antoinette Concello-devised aerial ballet display of 40 girls with graceful and intrepid Pinito del Oro starring above centre. Femmes do a terp as an intro, complete with huge headdress which they doff as they make the climb up the webs for their lofty exercises. In addition to the aerial maneuvers, there's a holdover in their hammering of miniature xylos, which seems out of place against the later hoopla by Junior Mistin. As in the other musical numbers, the vocals are belted out in a big, dramatic voice by Harold Ronk.

"Candy Land" seems an admixture of previous specs, notably a nursery rhyme layout of some seasons ago, but it's an eye-catcher. The spotted original tune is "Gone Are the Days" and finale is a shower of multi-hued bubbles descending from the upper reaches of the Garden, as per last year's proceedings in "The Good Old Times." On opening night, the four horses pulling the Annie Oakley coach acted up fiercely and had to be escorted from the arena. Guest stars gave the display added strength, particularly Jane Pickens in an elongated dress and Gyp Lee, Viveca Lindfors and Sally Forrest on another float.

"Derby Day Honeymoon" (with theme song of same name) carries out an equestrian layout fronting the familiar expert horsemanship of Roberto de Vasconcellos, flanked in outer rings by Marion Seifert and Erika de Vasconcellos in an expansion of the dressage inning. The chorines appear with prop banjos for a colorful stanza of terp and song. As in the other displays, Miles White has designed sparkling costumes, Richard Barstow has staged with snap, and Edith Barstow had done the choreography with precision. Here again, guest show bizzers, all femmes, supplied the fillips.

Fourth musical sequence (down one from '52), "Americana, U.S.A.," is put on as the finale. It's a patriotic rouser complete with huge Stars & Stripes that has been developed from a previous spec around the war years.

'Firsts'

Of the acts with "first time in America" labels, the most circusy and undoubtedly the rarest are seven baby elephants of varying sizes down to a frisky smallie. They are in the centre ring in routines presented by Eugene Stott that attempt to set up harmony with the big bulls working the outer rings under Jeanne Sleeter and Rose Alexander. The pachyderms are rigged in cute sailor hats. For the preemer, guest glamor pusses rode the elephants at entry.

Other debuters are the Maxims, three girls in a good contortion routine, and Harry & Long, another fine twisto act with comedy by a tall, skinny pretzeler. They are grouped in a display with roller-skating Heirolls and the Great Linares, with latter's big punch a corking forward somersault on tight wire. Tassi's Vagabond Canines is really one misfit pooch occupying centre. This is a tame act and the play should go to Hammerschmidt's two monkeys with their clever antics, featured last year. Other act is Angelo Bisbini's Ponies.

Dieter Tasso again has the deserved star spot with his cup-and-saucer tossing to his noggin on slack wire. New turn is the plate-spinning Alcettys, featuring a high spin, and in other ring is Helmuth Gunther in a teasing juggling to-do with candlesticks which are lit for the snapper. In the balancing stanza, centre is given to the Heltanos duo, with muscle stuff and juggling, and one of the boys (Hugo) does a one-hand downward slide (announced by Miss Dietrich) that's more difficult than it looks. In the other positions are the Six Frielanis, Cycling Ricoris and on trampoline, an extremely good Haslev troupe (4). Franklin & Astrid billed but ring unoccupied.

Solo preemer is Tell Teigen, who works on several chairs atop a high pole which the show bills as a "swaying" spar. It doesn't sway. This is a killer-diller act, though hard to see as it's too far up for the best of neck-craners. Another featured debuter is the Morlings, in a high perch held on forehead that is tops for skill. Flanking this act are the Riggettis and the Ricardos, on unsupported ladders; the Rassos, on elevated bikes, and the Fenis-Ferroni Duo, in sizzling rolling cylinder.

Next up is the acro display with stellar position to a troupe from Lapland called Sons of the Midnight Sun (Thorleif Isaaksen). They work on a staircase and are visually unique in their topheavy Caucasian attire. Panto tramp clown Emmett Kelly functions near the ring curb to give the idea of Arctic temperature by making a fire to warm his tootsies. In the other spots are the Fredonia Family, Freddi Troupe, Bokara Troupe, and the Dorvils & Abbott Girls (4), who tumble about the track after finishing their ring stint, giving life to the inning.

Aerials

Trapeze display bills the Pivotos and the Rennelys as firsters, with latter missing. Miss Mara hangs by the hocks of her heels, Greta Frisk does loops with her legs trapped, and the other acts are the Platos, Nine Karpowa and the Montons. Undoubtedly there are some doubling names here and throughout.

Opener is the wild animal salvo, with Oscar Konyot overpowering lions in the middle ring, Trevor Bale handling tigers and Albert Rix mastering the bears. It's a kinetic curtain-raiser. Also familiar and a peppy must are the three dozen Liberty horses precisioned by Czeslan Mroczkowski, Gena Lipowska, and Miss Marion (Seifert). Equally familiar are the three flying-return acts, the Concellos, Comets and Artonys, who took a number of unskedded falls to the net without mishap at opener.

In the bareback riding, missing is the Loyal-Repenski Troupe with Justino Loyal. He's been replaced by a good comedy rider, doing a neat tandem with the Riding Zoppis in the centre circle. In the other rings are the Riding Bostocks and Riding Parents.

In next to finale is the Camillo Mayer Troupe on high wire, a quartet reduced from the six working last year. The boss who made flapjacks up thataway last season is missing, but it's still a strong turn with its complicated pyramids.

The clowns get their innings in walkarounds and spottings. Paul Jung's "Misfit Army" (8) is always good for laughs, as are the veterans Felix Adler and Lou Jacobs in their inventions, plus Emmett Kelly and Otto Griebling in their panto work throughout the show. Griebling is also spotted in a boxing fracas with "Slugger" Freeman. Merle Evans batons the orch via his trumpet and rates the nod as the No. 1 maestro of spangletown.

Ringling Bros., B&B Circus

John Ringling North production of The Greatest Show on Earth, staged by Richard Barstow, designed by Miles White; general director, Pat Valdo; aerial director, Antoinette Concello; music, North; lyrics, E. Ray Goetz; choreography, Edith Barstow; production coordinator, Ralph Allan; musical director, Merle Evans; equestrian director, Angelo Nicholas; orchestration, Sammy Grossman; lighting, Doug Morris; assistant to White, Frank Spencer; assistant to Valdo, Duane Thorpe; announcer, Norman Carroll; vocalist, Harold Ronk. At Madison Square Garden, N. Y., April 1-May 10; $6.50 top.

Academy of Music's Vaude Comeback Try Costing Plenty, Getting Little

Announcement a couple of months back that the Academy of Music on East 14th St. was instituting vaudeville may have raised some hopes of a resurgence of the field in that neighborhood, but so far the innovation hasn't paid off and it's not likely that the practice will be followed by other nabes in N.Y.

Skouras house, playing a six-act bill with some good names, plus double features, all without a price boost, is far from meeting its $8,000 to $10,000 weekly stage nut. So far, biz has suffered because of the Lenten season, but just how much it will perk up remains to be seen. Management isn't too optimistic.

Key reason for the installation of vaude here wasn't to make money directly from the shows—there aren't enough transients on 14th St. to fill a house that size. Vaude was moved in (1) to restore some of the house's tattered prestige, and (2) to bring back some of the oldsters who've stopped going to the film houses. Latter has been successful to a limited extent; some of the old Gramercy Park and Stuyvesant Town patrons are returning to the house after a couple of years' absence. Restoration of prestige is more of a longterm proposition.

House is booked until April 19, with Smith & Dale and Ella Mae Morse following current bill and Jan Murray and Virginia O'Brien heading a layout on April 15. Things are uncertain beyond that date because house faces a film-booking complexity accruing from fact that it day-dates with rest of the Skouras chain and also with the RKO theatres, and also because it wants to see what business can be racked up in the post-Lenten weeks.

Current bill, with Sally Rand and Huntz Hall & Gabe Dell headlining, is in for five days. Usual bill comes in on Wednesday and closes Sunday; so that house doesn't take too much of a beating on Mondays and Tuesdays. In this case, it was felt that post-holiday biz would warrant booking of the bill on a Monday.

Show shapes up as satisfactory vaude. Hall & Dell, in next-to-closing, show lots of potentialities, but lack polish and pacing. Former Bowery Kids of picture fame have been making hay in the provinces and have a ready-made audience here via replaying of their films on TV, but they've got to come up with more than they've been showing to make any sizable dent.

Turn, fashioned after that of Martin & Lewis, has Dell as the straightman and vocalist, with Hall supplying slapstick. It starts off wildly enough, with Hall bounding onstage via a side aisle, but pace slackens considerably as they proceed. Among the better bits is Dell's demonstration of how a singer should move, using athletes' motions. And closer, with Hall in a combination hockey-football uniform, is a clever piece of business which could be built to a standard with insertion of some zanier material.

Miss Rand is disappointing. Her present stint would have received the blessings of the late Mayor LaGuardia. She's all dignity for this one, doing her fan dance to music by Debussy and Chopin, and coming on for a courtly curtain speech. There isn't much to the dance either, since she's bathed in a purple spot that blinds the audience to everything but the white fans. It's simply a stage walk with a brief pause to take off a negligee at the wings.

Richard Hayes has developed considerable warmth, and he closes on a begoff. Singer wisely uses some aud participation, once in a hillbilly number in which the audience claps and again in "The Bull Walked Around," in which the bobbysoxers shout a periodic "Ole!" For a good change of pace, he sings "High Noon," but he's predominantly in the rhythm groove in this turn.

Dolinoff & Ryaa Sisters contribute a top stint. Using a black backdrop and red front lighting, they create their gravitation-less effects and execute them smartly. They're a begoff.

Benny Meroff does a good emceeing job and is fairly entertaining with his musical instruments. In the comedy department, he's best when his foil, Kathleen McLaughlin, is on.

Ralph & Mary Carnivale are an okay opener, but they should do more terping and less chatter. Nick Francis orch does a razorlike showbacking job, one from which many an uptown pitman could take lessons. Chan.

Academy of Music, N. Y.

Benny Meroff (with Kathleen McLaughlin), Ralph & Mary Carnivale, Dolinoff & Raya Sisters (4), Richard Hayes, Huntz Hall & Gabe Dell, Sally Rand, Nick Francis Orch (14); "Honeychile" (Rep), "Cattle Town" (WB).

Olympia, Miami

Miami, April 4.

Sunny Gale, Ciro Rimac & Co., Myles Bell, Doyle & O'Donnell, Del Breece, Les Rhode House Orch; "Code Two" (M-G).

It's a mild bill on tap here this week with only stab at marquee lure being Sunny Gale, another of the recording clicks currently on the vaude route.

Thrush is an attractive lass and handles herself in easy manner to rate plaudits. Arrangements are bright and applied to the newer musicomedy hits and pops. Balances the mood ideas intelligently with the wind into her hit, "Wheel Of Fortune," making for healthy sendoff.

Balance of bill is an in-and-out affair. Ciro Rimac and his group play this area annually and purvey a lively assortment of Latino terps and tunes to win biggest returns among the supporting lineup. It's strictly from Cuba and impresses as authentically native.

Myles Bell emcees in amiable manner and in own spot spins out waggery which hits and misses. Needs new material to strengthen impact on aud risibilities; since too much of his routine is stale.

Del Breece is another localite who plays the cafe one-nighter route and smaller clubs. In this big house his quicker-than-the-eye attempts register in mild manner.

Doyle & O'Donnell tee off matters with their roller skating. It's standard stuff with the rhythmic ideas best of their stint. Les Rhode house orch set up an interesting musical overture with an Easter theme and back the show in top manner. Lary.

Apollo, N. Y.

The Ravens (4), Tip Tap & Toe, Lewis & Chisholm, Mary Louise, Kuda Bux, Willis Jackson Orch (9); "Stronghold" (Lippert).

Although short on marquee power, bill this week shapes up okay with the Ravens serving as the strongest magnet, and fairly balanced vaude fodder filling out the menu.

The Ravens bounce on to a hearty welcome with their harmonizing of "Old Man River," and build the mitt response from the pewholders. Quartet rock 'em with "Rock Me," a throbbing version of "Lookin' for My Baby," and "You Belong to Me." Standout is when the mellow, chanty-calling bass in the group solos the syrupy ballad, "Love Is the Thing."

Tip, Tap & Toe, in the teeoff spot, indulge in the usual glides, slides and breakaway tapdance steps, though at a frantic pace. The customers like them best when they depart from the orthodox floor-pounding routine and throw in a little acro work and minor comedy.

Willie Lewis & Joe Chisholm impresse as versatile low-farce comics, who twirl canes neatly, but who should launder their gags for family audiences. Some of their single-entendre is embarrassing, and they're too prone to stick to swish jokes. Typical specimen of their tomfoolery is when Chisholm poses the Joe Miller chestnut, "Who was that lady I seen you with last night?" Lewis, mincing wrist at waist, replies, "That was no lady—that was my landlord. He just walks that way."

Kuda Bux, ballyhooed as a magician from India, revives the ancient mysterioso trick of tieing a beautiful femme into a box and then piercing the coffin through and through with swords. The customers liked him best when, his head blindfolded and encased in bandages, the swami was able to duplicate on a blackboard whatever language or symbol any member of the audience scribbled. To add an atmosphere of exotic east to his act, the magician would be well advised to wear a rajah's garb rather than the ordinary blue trousers he sported onstage.

Mary Louise (New Acts) adds a fillip to the proceedings, and Willis (Buzz) Jackson's 12-man combo supply good backing, with Jackson himself on the sax stirring the clientele with his torrid riffs for "Wiggles" and "Sorrento." Rask.

VARIETY BILLS

WEEK ENDING APRIL 15

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show whether full or split week

Letter in parentheses indicates circuit: (FM) Fanchon Marco; (I) Independent; (L) Loew; (M) Moss; (P) Paramount; (R) RKO; (S) Stoll; (T) Tivoli; (W) Warner; (WR) Walter Reade

NEW YORK CITY
Music Hall (I) 9
Jacqueline Langee
Dancing Waters
Myrtill & Pacaud
3 Carsonys
George Sawtelle
Patricia Drylie
Audrie Wilson
Rockettes
Corps de Ballet
Sym Orc
Palace (R) 13
Danny Kaye Rev
Peiro Bros
Marquis
Fran Warren
Darvas & Julia
Dunhills
Jo Lombardi Orc
Paramount (P) 10
Eddie Fisher
H Winterhalter Orc
Joey Forman
Beachcombers
Little Buck
Roxy (I) 6
Ice Colorama
ALEXANDRA (La)
Paramount (P) 11 only
Asylum of Horrors
CHICAGO
Chicago (P) 10
John Carroll
Jackie Miles
Goetchis
1 to fill
COLUMBUS
Princess (P) 14 only
Asylum of Horrors
HATTIESBURG
Saenger (P) 13 only
Asylum of Horrors
LOS ANGELES
Paramount (P) 10
Duke Ellington
Orc & Revue
Pearl Bailey
Bill Bailey
MIAMI
Olympia (P) 8
Mike Monroe
Al Robinson
Hank the Mule
Carol King
Goofers
MINNEAPOLIS
Radio City (P) 12 only
Big Show of 1953
Frankie Laine
Woody Herman Orc
Louis Jordon Gp
Ella Fitzgerald
Dusty Fletcher
Bobby Ephram
Frank Marlow
MONDOE
Paramount (P) 10 only
Asylum of Horrors
ROCHESTER
Loew (L) 10-12
Sugar Ray Rob'son
Louis Armstrong
Helen Forest
De Santos 3
SOUTH BEND
Palace (P) 13 only
Big Show of 1953
Frankie Laine
Woody Herman Orc
Louis Jordon Gp
Ella Fitzgerald
Dusty Fletcher
Bobby Ephram
Frank Marlow
WASHINGTON
Capitol (L) 9
Gloria De Haven
Ray Malone
Dave Barry
3 Kanazawas

AUSTRALIA

AUCKLAND (NZ)
St. James (T) 6
Farrar & Carter
Jimae & Junior
Diana Grafton
Pat Gregory
Terry Scanlon
Cissy Trenholm
Armand Perren
Marika Saary
Barbara Howe
Jimmy Elder
Wim De Jong
Chribi
Enid Wilson
Joe Whitehouse
Jacques Cartaux
Nellie Small
Netta Dunsmore
Netta Dunsmore
Betty Sullock
Tom Toby
Skating Boys
Skating Girls
CHRISTCHURCH
Royal (T) 6
Tommy Trinder
Botonds
Halama & Konarski
Professor Olgo
Carl Ames
6 De Paulls
Harry Moreny
Toni Lamond
Peter
Singing Girls
Dancing Boys
Adorables
MELBOURNE
Tivoli (T) 6
Trio Fayes
Trio Daresco
Lowe & Ladd
Bert Duke Trio
Guy Nelson
Frank Cook
Renita Kramer
Bouna
Norman Vaughan
Sonya Corbeau
Show Girls
Nudes (9)
Boy Dancers
Ballet
SYDNEY
Tivoli (T) 6
Edwin Styles
Loveday Hills
Mary Parker
June Jago
Walter Pym
John Lee
Collins Hilton
John Huson
WELLINGTON
Opera House (T) 6
Tommy Trinder
Botonds
Halama & Konarski
Prof Olgo
Carl Ames
6 De Paulls
Harry Moreny
Toni Lamond
Peter
Adorables

BRITAIN

ASTON
Hippodrome (I) 6
Barry Took
Moxham Bros
Swan & Leigh
Nixon & Dixon
Jothie & Joan
K Barnes & Jeanne
BIRMINGHAM
Hippodrome (M) 6
Valerie Moon
Shiela Hamilton
Ron Priestley
Jeanette Raphael
Patrick O'Donnell
Tony Somers
Jack Harnett
Hamilton Brown
L Stewart & B Carr
BLACKPOOL
Palace (I) 6
5 Smith Bros
S & M Harrison
T & J Ventura
Joe Black
Walthon & May
J & K Stuthard
Eva May Wong
BRIGHTON
Hippodrome (M) 6
Allan Jones
Les Valettos
Hackford & Doyle
4 Dernos
Walthon & Dorraine
E Eyo & Barbara
Len Marten
Cookes Pony Rev
BRISTOL
Empire (I) 6
Jimmy Bryant
Meller-Martin-Moe
Conrad Vince
Margo
H & Austin
Derek
Bert Dene
Jean Madden
Saucettes
CHISWICK
Empire (S) 6
David Hughes
Semprini
Max Bacon
Tommy Cooper
Iris Sadler
Rob Murray
Dashs Chimpanzees
Clayton & Ward
EAST HAM
Granada (I) 6
Tex James Animals
Sandow Sis
Kirby & Hayes
3 Buffoons
T Lowry & L Thomas
P & P Page
Metropolitan (I) 6
G H Elliot
Robert Marbin
Helga Barry
Leslie Welch
Hanley & Austin
Jack Tripp
Moreno & Joy
Arthur Scott
5 Fisher Girls
Palace (I) 6
Roy Walker
Louis Hayden
Melville Birley
Stan Ralph
Eric Lloyd
Danny Carroll
Eric Knight
Vicky Raymond
Max Carole
Lloyd Chappelle
George Clarke
Fred Sloan
Les Tonelys
EDINBURGH
Empire (M) 6
Richard Sis
Gladys Morgan
Bobby Collins
Gerry Brereton
Fred Watkins
Gaston Palmer
Eddie Arnold
V & J Crastonian
Leslie Randall
Max Geldray
ENSBURY PARK
Empire (M) 6
Max Miller
R & M Lamar
G Wood & D Harmer
Les Dounos
Richman & Jackson
M Crosbie & T
Tosca De Lac
3 Elliotts
GLASGOW
Empire (M) 6
Johnny Ray
R & I Gray
Desmond & Marks
Levanda & Van
Hylda Baker
Krista & Kristel
3 Harvards
GRIMSBY
Palace (I) 6
Terry Wilson
Seanor Dia
Mavis White
Barbara Quayle
Francois & Zandra
Charlie Parsons
A Rogers & A Dixon
HACKNEY
Empire (S) 6
4 Graham Bros.
Rita Page
Syd Jeffrey
Glen Arthur
Irene Dickerson
Tommy Grays
Joan Hall
Peggy French
Bertie Sellers
LEEDS
Empire (M) 6
Gwen Liddle
Merle & Marie
F Bamberger & Pam
Chris Sands.
D D & D Remy
Agnette & Sylvio
Jack Simpson
M Woodward & M Cooper
Alan Clive
LEICESTER
Palace (S) 6
Albert Burdan
Juan & Juanita
Frank Richards
Bryan Burdon
G Nelson Girls
Mellow Tones
MacKenzie Reid & D
LINCOLN
Royal (I) 6
Harry Neil
George Michel
Melomaniacs
Joy Pearse
Wendy Horner
Kee Sis
Coronation Belles
LIVERPOOL
Winifred Atwell
Jimmy Wheeler
Tommy Fields
Medlia
Harry Worth
Italo
George Menton
Conway & Day
LONDON
Palladium (M) 6
Tennessee Ernie
Annell & Brask
Florence Desmond
Mme Louise & Pets
Vero Mostel
Jerome & Wise
Beverley Sis
Jack Durant
Palladium Girls
Skyrockets Orc
MANCHESTER
Hippodrome (S) 6
Richard Hearne
Tanner Sis
George Martin
Boyer & Ravel
All Boy
Volants
Globe Girls
Warren Mitchell
NEWCASTLE
Empire (M) 6
Mary Small
K & A Alexis
Jack Radcliffe Co
Kazan & Katz
J Bergman & M Lorraine
Elizabeth & Collins
NORWICH
Hippodrome (I) 6
Western Bros
Leslie Sarony
Stannelli
Ken Wilson
Charmonty Taree
Westway Girls
NOTTINGHAM
Empire (M) 6
Al Read
O'Farrells T T
Haven Wilson
P Darban & W
E Gordon & N
Freddie Harris Co
A & B Black
Lizzett & Eddie
Allen & Lee
PORTSMOUTH
Royal (M) 6
J Jewel & B Warriss
G Grosetto & Gastn Nino
P Hatton & Peggy
P & P Page
Cooper Twins
Delmondi
SHEFFIELD
Empire (S) 6
Syd Seymour Orc
Janet Brown
Fe Jover & Jack
C Jones & E Foss
R Lenen & J Jayne
Valez
O'Farrells Starlets
SHEPHERDS BUSH
Empire (S) 6
Syd Seymour Orc
Ansons
W Keppel & B Mongadors
Eleanor 3
Gordon & Colville
Arthur Worsley
Musical Derricks
SOUTHSEA
Kings (M) 6
Max Adrian
Moyra Fraser
Sally Rogers
Betty Marsden
Jack Gray
SUNDERLAND
Empire (M) 6
Harry Secombe
Ansons
W Keppel & Betty Mongadoors
Gordon & Colville
Eleanor 3
Arthur Worsley
Musical Derricks
WOLVERHAMPTON
Hippodrome (I) 6
Phyllis Dixey
Varga Models
Jack Tracy
Findlay Bros
Fred Lovelle
Ed Morelle
Frank Wilson
Carozels
WOOD GREEN
Empire (S) 6
Rose Murphy
Scott Sanders
Linda & Lana
L Sharpe & Iris
2 Bills
Mumfords Puppets
Jackie N
Nat Hope
YORK
Empire (I) 6
Billy Whitaker
Mimi Law
Joe Poynton
Gregg Anders
Lee Brooklyn
Audrey Mann
Earl Darney
Irma Logan
Al Brandon
Eric V Marsh
Leonard & Chenley

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

Bandbox
Billy Eckstine
Count Basie Orc
Birdland
Dizzy Gillespie
Blue Angel
Josh White
Kirkwood & Goodman
Helen Halpin
Felicia Sanders
Bart Howard
Jimmy Lyons 3
Blue Note
Nancy Steele
Vicki Carol
Herb Corey
Joe Benjamin
Ronnie Selby 3
Bon Soir
Jimmie Daniels
Madmoiselles
Three Riffs
Norene Tate
Garland Wilson
Mae Barnes
Copacabana
Jack Carter
Jimmy McHugh
Cabot & Dresden
Dolores Hawkins
Cerneys
Ramona Lang
Jack Purcell
Ted Martin
M Durso Orc
Frank Marti Orc
Chateau Madrid
Linda Lombard
Marian Callahan
Teresiya de Triana
Cesar el Malaguena
F Alonso Orc
Al Castellanos Orc
El Chico
Perla Marini
DeLeon & Graciella
C & G Galvan
Alvardo de la Cruz
Carlos Camacho
Enrique Vizcaina
Embers
Barbara Carroll
Bunty Pendleton
Hotel Ambassador
Jules Lande Orc
Hotel Astor
Three Suns
Hotel Biltmore
Michael Kent Orc
Hotel Edison
Henry Jerome Orc
Hotel New Yorker
Teddy Powell Orc
Joan Walden
Sid Krofft
Bobby Blake
Collin Leemans
Adrian Rollini Trio
Hotel Pierre
Gisele Mackenzie
Cappella & Patricia
Stanley Melba Orc
Chico Reili Orc
Hotel Plaza
Lisa Kirk
Wally Boag
Dick La Salle Orc
Monte Continentals
Hotel Roosevelt
Jack Fina Orch
Hotel St. Regis
Rosalind Courcright
Milt Shaw Orc
Horace Diaz Orc
Hotel Statler
Louis Prima Orc
Hotel Sherry Netherland
Beverly Allyson
Hugo Pecoll Orc
Hotel Taft
Vincent Lopez Orc
Hotel Warwick
Elise Rhodes
Naomi Stevens
Lee Carroll
Larue
Jo Sullivan
Ted Straeter Orc
Cy Walters
Pepito Lopez Orc
Latin Quarter
Minevitch Rascals
Betty George
Dominique
A, Andree & Bonnie
Fleetwoods
Murphy Sisters
Piroska
Carl Conway
Dagenham Pipers
Bix Brent
Midge Minor
Art Waner Orc
La Vie en Rose
Peggy Lee
Beachcombers
Leo De Lyon
Van Smith 3
Leon & Eddie's
Eddie Davis
Arlyn Stuart
Art Waner Orc
Oliver Ders
Le Ruban Bleu
Cell Cabot
Susan Johnson
Jimmy Komack
Norman Paris
Julius Monk
No. 1 Fifth Ave
Bob Downey
Harold Fonville
Hazel Webster
Old Roumanian
Sadie Banks
Sonny Sands
Carolyn Carpenter
Larry Marvin
Joe LaPorte Orc
D'Aquila Orc
Park Sheraton
Milt Herth
Joan Bishop
Town & Country
Joyce Bryant
Ricky Valle
Mickey Manners
Vic Spavvy
Joan Rayne
Emilio Reyes Orc
Johnny Morris Orc
Two Guitars
LuBov Honshay
Sigi Ahern
Eli Spivak
Misha Usdanoff
Kostya Poliansky
Versailles
Carmen Torres
Larry Storch
Salvatore Gioe Orc
Panchito Orc
Village Barn
Ernest Sarracino
Ted Hinstock Orc
Clara Cedrone
Russell Peak
Mattie Sondi
Mavis Mims
Al Normon
Pluto Pete
Village Vanguard
Irwin Corey
Pat Carroll
Anita Ellis
Clarence Williams Trio
Waldorf-Astoria
Mary Meade
Nat Brandwynne
Mischa Borr Orc
Wivel
Sal Noble
Bob Lee

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

Algiers Hotel
Buddy Walker
Joe Delilah
Tony & Renea
Mal Malkin Orc
Bar of Music
Bill Jordan
David Elliot
Guy Rennie
Beth Challis
Harvey Bell
Biltmore-Terrace
Jimmy Grippo
Frank Stanley Orc
Carib Club
Charlie Farrell
Continentals
Mickey Roselle
Deeva
Casablanca Hotel
Gene Bayles
Maya Orc
Sandra Karaly
Celebrity Club
Alan Gale
Larry Foster
The Haydocks (2)
Gloria Columbo
Teddy King Orc
Ciro's
Red Caps
Damita Jo
The Treniers (7)
Clover Club
Lenny Kent
Lillian Roth
Dolores Renay
Ted Lawrie
Tony Lopez Orc
Selma Marlowe Line
Colby's Cove
Cannon & Harmon
Nicholas Grymes
Cork Club
Alice Durr
Eugene Smith
Eddie Snyder
Delano Hotel
Tony Barie
Tommy Numez Orc
Zina Reyes Dancers
Willie Hollander
Delmonico
Jose & Aida
Carlos & Melisa Orc
El Mambo
David & Amorah
Carmen Falgas Hernandez
Cal Davis
Sam Gyson
Bobby Escoto Orc
Freddy Calo Orc
Five O'clock
Martha Raye
Paul Grey
Ted Wells 4
Len Dawson Orc
Frolic Club
Kathie McCoy
Don Charles Orc
Gaiety Club
Zorita
Honey Lee Walker
Flash Lane
Marie Stowe
Gaiety Girls
Harem Club
Bobby Barton
Princess Tara
Camile Stevens
Lee Taylor
Ginger Marsh
Johnnie Hotel
Myles Bell
Nellie Gollette
Tony Matas
Randum
Kenilworth
Jack Cavallaro Orc
Al Lozito
Ruth Palmer
George Chattrton
LaRue
Juan Cortez Orc
L'Aiglon
Chuy Reyes Orc
Emile Petti Orc
Leon & Eddie's
Babe Baker Revue
Sandra Barton
Kitty O'Reilly
Pat Clayton
Juan Luis & Eleanor
Perry Bruce
Aeres O'Reilly
Ralph Gilbert
Don Charles Orc
Lombardy Hotel
Babs Ware
Pedro Orc
Enrica & Novello
Henry Taylor
Lord Tarleton
Michael Selker Orc
Jeanne Moore
Lou Collins Club
Ann De Don
The Goofers
Malayan Lounge
The Calypsoans
Martinique Hotel
Manolo & Ethel
Danny Yates Orc
Monte Carlo
Leonard Young
Gallab Dancers
Rafael Rumberos
Music Box
Belle Barth
Don Ostro 3
Mac Fadden Deauville
Vocalions 3
Nautilus Hotel
Buddy Hackett
Harvey Grant
Gomez & Beatrice
Freddy Calo Orc
Joe Harnell
Paddock Club
Jimmy Day
Miss Memphis
Peggy Saunders
Ernie Bell Orc
Flo Parker
Patty Lee
Riviera
Larry Steele's Smart Affairs '53
Jimmy Tyler Orc
Olivette Miller
Butterbeans & Susie
Choclateers (3)
Chavez
Jack Donnet Orc
Conrad & Estelle
Sans Souci Hotel
Arthur Blake
Frank Lynn
Sosana Orc
Ann Herman Ders
Saxony Hotel
Patachou
Val Olman Orc
Bernie Mayerson Orc
Julie Romero
Tano & Dee
Shore Club
Rosalie & Steve
Fausto Curbelo
Haven & Held
Singapore
3 Peppers
Magnetones
Novotones
San Marino Hotel
Phil Brito
Palmer Dancers
Quintones
Sorrento
Charles & Samara
Marc Kahn
Alan Kole Orc
Tony Pastor's
Ray Bourbon
Sheila Sheen
Jose Enriguez
Jackie Cole
The Mithens
Vagabonds Club
Vagabonds (4)
Maria Neglia
Condos & Brandow
Martha Ann Bentley
Frank Linale Orc
Eleanor Guipo
Versailles Hotel
Jack Kerr
Nino Rinaldi 3

CHICAGO

Blue Angel
Hal White
Bob Wednock
Vilyn & French
Grace Nichols
Raquel
Irving Burgess
Black Orchid
J Premice & L Martinez
Stan Fisher
Lola Ameche
Jim Stutz Trio
Chez Paree
Lena Horne
Alan King
Lou Willis, Jr
Johnny Morton
Chez Adorables (8)
Brian Farnon Orc
Conrad Hilton Hot'l
Jeanne Sook & Teddy Roman
Colstons (2)
Deadeners
Jack Rose
Margaret Naylor
Bill Jordan
Herman Maricich
Dick Peterson
Dick Salter
Dennis & Darlene
Buddy Rust
Ollie Clark
Boulevar-Dears (6)
Frankie Masters Orc
Edgewater Beach
Janis Paige
Don Tannen
D Hild Ders (8)
Bob Kirk Orc
Palmer House
Kyle MacDonnell
Tippy & Cobina
Phil Spitalis
Skeets Minton
B DeVoye & B Lorraine
Claire Leonard
M Abbott Ders (8)
Emil Coleman Orc
Vine Gardens
Al Mack
Gloria Brooks
Madelyn Wallace Ders (4)
Pancho Orc

LOS ANGELES

Ambassador Hotel
Lucienne Boyer
Nita Bieber Dncrs
Benny Strong Orc
Bar of Music
Elsa Lanchester
Freddie Stewart
Gregory Stone & Nino Menendez
Eddie Bradford Orc
B Gray's Bandbox
Harvey Stone
Jacqline Fontaine
Day Dreamers
Al Viola Trio
Biltmore Hotel
Gale Robbins
Willie Shore
Lee Marx
Gene Bart Trio
Hal Derwin Orc
Cafe Gala
Bobby Short
Beverly Alber
Stella Brooks
Dick Hazard Trio
Ciro's
Pearl Bailey
Lou Bellson
Bill Bailey
Bobby Ramos Orc
Dick Stabile Orc
Charley Foy's
Spiders
Donald Novis
Frankie Ilyers
Mary Foy
Marquerite Paduia
Sammy Wolfe
Joe Okey
Abbey Browne Orc
Mocambo
Mary McCarthy
Eddie Oliver Orc
Joe Castro Quartet
Statler Hotel
Ice Ahoy Revue
Frankie Carle Orc

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA

Desert Inn
Jimmy Durante
Eddie Jackson
Cover Girls
Kathy Barr
De Matinzzis
Jack Roth
Jules Buffano
Donn Arden Dncers
Carlton Hayes Orc
Don McKay
El Cortez
Joaquin Garay
Bette Black
Jill Adams
George DeCarl Orc
Flamingo
"Annie Get Gun"
Jacqueline James
Earl Covert
Jack Rutherford
Cynthia Latham
Roy Milton
Teddy Hart
Bradley Mora
Torris Brand Orc
Last Frontier
"Belle N Orleans"
Marilyn Maxwell
Norman & Marshall
Cliff Ferre
K Stone Quintet
Devlyn Dancers
Roy Fitzell
Bob Millar Orc
Sahara
Beatrice Kay
Sylvan Green
Johnny O'Brien
Sa-Harem Dancers
Cec Davidson Orc
Sands
Ezio Pinza
Betty & Jane Kean
Dominique
Copa Girls
Ray Sinatra Orc
Silver Slipper
Kalantan

HAVANA

Montmartre
High Towers
Rita Maria Rivero
Celia Pena
Ballet Montmartre
Serenata Espanola
Sans Souci
Olga Chaviano
Frances & Daniel
Tondelayo
Caccia
Merceditas Sumara
Cora Linda
Tropicana
Chiquita & Johnson
Gloria & Roiando
Zoraida Marrero
Jose LeMatt
Miguel Angel Ortiz
Hank Henry
Beau Jesters
Jimmy Cavanaugh
Sparky Kaye
Bill Willard
Marah Gates Hilyd Palominos
Geo Redman Orc
Gloria Pall
Thunderbird
Robt Q Lewis
Irv Fields Trio
Betty Clooney
Conrad Dors
Barney Rawlings
K Duffy Dansations
Christina Carson
Al Jahns Orc
El Rancho Vegas
Guy Lombardo Orc & Revue

New Acts

DON HOWARD
Songs
12 Mins.
Capitol, Washington

This is strictly a show biz freak, with little to offer in either talent or personality, yet pre-sold by dint of his 1,000,000 copy disk, "Oh, Happy Day." Catapulted into jukebox fame by this one boff hit, Don Howard is good medicine at the b.o. but hard to classify from a professional point of view.

The 17-year-old singer impresses as being sans grace, sans style, sans the youthful charm one might expect from a newcomer; and, let's face it, definitely sans voice. His routine is varied enough, but general effect is monotonous and flat. He makes no effort to sell himself or his tunes, and goes through his paces with a sameness that has a nervous quality about it. Lad has no power of projection.

Despite definite lack of color or talent, there's no question of the boy's appeal for his young fans. They come keyed up for his hit tune, "Oh, Happy Day," and give with the works—shrieks, wild mitt action, etc., when he works up to it. While the elders in the audience wonder what it's all about, the juves tell them with sound effects.

Howard tees off with "Crazy Rhythm," then tries for high style with "Heart and Soul." Goes on to "All of Me" and "Oh, Happy Day," then returns for a stab at "When You're Smiling." He may continue to ride the crest of his current popularity, but it's hard to imagine a permanent niche in show biz for his nebulous talent.

Don Howard Koplow, who comes from University Heights, O., originally heard the tune on a college campus and added his own lyrics before cutting it for the indie Triple A label. After the song broke, Mrs. Nancy Binns Reed, of Washington, D. C., claimed authorship stating that she had composed the song many years ago while a counsellor at a girls' camp. Howard (now sans Koplow) gave her a cash settlement under which he'll receive all future royalties from the publishers, Bregman, Vocco & Conn. Flor.

TERESIYA DE TRIANA & CESAR EL MALAGUENA
Flamenco
25 Mins.
Chateau Madrid, N. Y.

Judging by response given Teresiya de Triana & Cesar el Malaguena at the Chateau Madrid, there's little doubt as to their potency for Spanish-speaking audiences. For those who aren't hep to the native jargon, act still has an eye and ear appeal in girl's flamenco movements and easy manner and the rhythmic background provided by Malaguena's guitar when he's not taking the vocal spotlight himself. However, it's obvious that a lot is lost by the language barrier.

Malaguena comes on alone and shows a strong voice via delivery of two tunes to his own accordion accomp. Distaff element, reportedly only 18, then makes her entry in flamenco fashion. Her youthfulness, however, tends to make her foot-stompin' and head-tossin' less fiery than if done by a more mature type. Nevertheless, girl's freshness and the unsophisticated manner in which she handles herself register effectively. Most of her work is of a vocal nature. She employs castanets knowingly in one number and winds up turn with a flamenco dance. Prior to her terp closer, Malaguena tosses off another tune for sock results.

Duo, either together or alone, rate as strong entries for Latino-slanted situations. Jess.

LYNN CARTER & FOUR CARTIERS
Feminine Impersonation
45 Mins.
Beige Room, San Francisco

This troupe has set itself the goal of out-Thompsoning Kay Thompson & the Williams Bros. To what degree they succeed may be arguable, but there is no question that they've fashioned a fast-moving, amusing and unusual melange for themselves and the boite belt. There's one mighty difference between Kay Thompson and Lynn Carter and that is that Carter is no lady. He is a female impersonator who, through the use of wigs, buttons and bows, makeup, a la Thompson slacks and an almost uncanny talent for miming and timing, has contrived a routine which is more than a show biz curiosity. It has entertainment value on its own.

There are segments of the Carter compote which are sheer impersonation as in the cases of the "Poor Suzette" and "Jubilee" numbers. These are straight Thompson. Other items are compounds of Thompson and Carter, with a touch of satire thrown in for seasoning, such as "Mr. Sadler and Mr. Wells." Still others are straight Carter. But when it's all wrapped up, it's rare fare, using the word rare in its two dictionary meanings.

In respect to appearance, Carter, after use of his makeup box, is an appreciable replica of Miss Thompson. This includes the use of earrings and other furbelows to achieve the final effect.

The Four Cartiers, dressed in conservative blue serge, could double for the Williams Bros. not only in general appearance but in the handling of their chores, at least almost so. A guest having the advantage of a slight case of myopia or one glass too many might reasonably mistake Carter's troupe for Miss Thompson's, or vice versa, with the wind in the right direction. When there's fog, as is often the case in Frisco, that's especially possible. And Carter's handling of Miss Thompson's mannerisms and subtleties add a conviction which takes the act out of the field of brash imitation into that of a reasonable facimile thereof.

Not to be confused with the hemstitched art of female impersonation, this is clean stuff and belongs in a clean setting. Ted.

LINDA LOMBARD
Songs
12 Mins.
Chateau Madrid, N. Y.

Linda Lombard rates as an okay entry in the nitery thrush lineup. Her physical makeup is a plus factor and her vocaling is easy on the ear. Gal mixes blues, bounce and ballad effectively, giving proper emphasis to tunes rendered. There's nothing in her songalog, though, of a particularly outstanding nature. She's gowned nicely with emphasis on the s.a. Current engagement doesn't impress as being best for gal as she'd probably show to better advantage in a more intime situation.

Songstress, who's done some TV, has worked a few outlying Gotham spots and has also appeared at the Celebrity Club, N. Y. She's slated to exit the Madrid later this month when she'll go into the Versailles, N. Y., with the incoming George White presentation.

Miss Lombard has a pleasing stint of five songs. These are a femme version of "The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," "Autumn Leaves," "Basin Street Blues," "Estrelita" for the Spanish clientele, and a tuneful "You Do Something to Me" windup. Jess.

MARY LOUISE
Songs
8 Mins.
Apollo, N.Y.

Mary Louise is a nicely stacked sepia thrush, with a flexible face, expressive eyes and an air of youthful exuberance. She's a graduate of the borscht circuit, was a featured vocalist with Cab Calloway's combo, and put in a stint singing pop stuff at defunct Cafe Society Downtown. This is her N.Y. preem with special material, and she delivers it with professional savvy. Although her phrasing is a little incoherent in her rendition of a bouncy ballad, "Every Heart's in the Middle of July," her mezzo pipes register warmth in "There'll Be Some Changes Made," and deliver with sock feeling and style for the bluesy "Can't I."

Gal has dramatic stage presence and wears her low-cut, chartreuse taffeta gown with savoir faire. She shapes up okay for vaude, TV or the intime niteries.

Equity 'Tories' Mull Independent Ticket Vs. 'Liberal' Council Slate

Although the regular slate has reportedly not yet been definitely selected by the nominating committee, there's already rumor of plans for an independent ticket to be run by the conservative forces in the annual Actors Equity election June 5. Move apparently stems from the assumption that the predominately liberal nominating committee will pick a strongly liberal slate of council candidates.

Makeup of the nominating committee has changed slightly since the last quarterly membership meeting. George Britton, who withdrew as one of the three council representatives on the committee, has been replaced by Tom Ewell. Both are regarded as moderate conservatives. Continuing as the other council representatives are Frederic Tozere, chairman, and Wynne Gibson, both considered ultra rightists.

The six membership representatives, all regarded as liberals and all elected at the recent quarterly meeting, are Ruth McDevitt, Beatrice Straight, Neva Patterson, Melvyn Douglas, John Marriott and George Keane. Thus, the liberals have a three-to-one voting edge over the ultra conservatives, with Ewell figured likely to take a moderate conservative stand.

Regular ticket to be selected by the nominating committee will include 10 council candidates to serve five years, five to fill the unexpired terms of council members who have resigned (including William Prince, whose exit has not been announced), but a second vice-president to fill the unexpired term of Raymond Massey, who has resigned.

It's figured there may be a tussle in the nominating committee over the question of renominating five incumbent council members who were appointed by the council to replace resignees. They include Whitner Bissel, considered a liberal; Vicky Cummings, regarded as conservative; Arnold Moss, said to

(Continued on page 60)

ANTA Preps 'Revitalized' Summer Stock, 6 Shows At Hartford & Springfield

Hartford, April 7.

New Parsons here concludes its second legit season tomorrow night (Wed.) following the last performances of "The Four Poster." House, under management of Charles Bowden, Phil Langner and Nancy Stern, will reopen Sept. 17.

However, an announcement from Springfield, Mass., says the house will be used for six musicals during the summer months, commencing the latter part of this month. Current house operators disclaim any ties with the proposed useage.

Springfield announcement, sent out by Paul G. Anglim, managing director of the Court Square Theatre, says the Hartford and Springfield houses have been booked under a big stage revitalization plan. The series, consisting of "Annie Get Your Gun," "Bloomer Girl," "Carousel," "Naughty Marietta," "High Button Shoes" and "Song of Norway," will be produced with support and active participation of ANTA and the New England Theatre Conference.

Each musical, according to Anglim, starting with "Annie," will open Tuesday nights in Springfield and play three nights through Thursday. The show will then move to Hartford for an additional three days beginning Friday through Sunday.

Series is skedded to get away April 21 in Springfield. Tentative plans call for inclusion of Providence, Portland, Worcester, New Bedford and Pittsfield, Mass., and Bridgeport, Conn.

Glenn Jordan, director of the St. Petersburg, Fla., Operetta, will be series director. William Parsons will be musical director, and Anglim will serve as production supervisor.

Featured in "Annie" will be Sandra Deel. She was in road company role of Annie Oakley. Stephen Douglas will star in "Carousel," while Rosemarie Brancato will appear in "Naughty Marietta."

Equity Delinquents May Be Able to Attend Confabs

Move to permit members to attend meetings and speak, even though they may be in arrears on dues, is underway in Actors Equity. Under the proposed setup, delinquent members would not be allowed to vote, however.

Idea, presented by Frank Maxwell and approved at the union's recent quarterly membership meeting, requires council endorsement and, unless some legal formula were to be worked out to apply it informally, would necessitate a change in the bylaws. However, it's figured an effort will probably be made by the Equity council to adopt the proposal.

Suggestion that Equity should provide an expense account for its president, who is unpaid and has to spend a considerable amount in connection with his official duties, was advanced at the quarterly meeting by Alan Hewitt, a former council member. Idea has been offered various times in recent years, but has never been adopted by the council.

'Angels' Needs 50G To Pay Off Nut

"My 3 Angels," comedy which opened recently at the Morosco, N. Y., needs to earn back about $50,000 to pay off, as of last Saturday night (4). The Saint-Subber, Rita Allen & Archie Thompson production is making around $3,500 operating profit a week at its current b.o. pace.

Play, adapted by Sam and Bella Spewack from Albert Husson's Paris original titled "La Cuisine des Anges," involved a production cost of $55,859 and had a tryout cost of $815. It had an operating net of $7,500 for its first three weeks on Broadway, less $2,686 for display advertising in connection with the opening.

Undistributable assets include $15,520 in bonds and deposits and $2,000 advance royalty to Husson, to be applied against future profits. As of March 28, there was $5,620 balance available for cash reserve. The production was capitalized at $75,000.

Operating costs of the show include about $4,800 company payroll (including an apparent 5% of the gross, presumably to Walter Slezak, male lead), customary minimum author royalties of 5-7½-10%, plus 3% director royalty to Jose Ferrer and $125 weekly to designers Boris Aronson and Lucinda Ballard. In addition, Ferrer got a $5,000 advance fee and will get 15% of the profits. Original author Husson gets 4½% of the profits.

RUSSO-ELLIS MAPPING WINTER STOCK SETUP

Producers James Russo and Michael Ellis are looking for a suitable theatre, preferably in a city within reasonable distance from New York, to establish a permanent stock company. They've looked at houses in Albany, Schenectady, Rochester and Syracuse, and are also considering other towns in New York State, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

Partners figure on the stock venture as a winter operation, alternating with summer seasons at the Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, Pa., which they take over in June, 1954, when Theron Bamberger's long tenure is scheduled to terminate. They plan to use a resident troupe for the winter season, without visiting stars. They estimate that they can open the spot for about $15,000.

Russo and Ellis, who recently presented the Bette Davis revue, "Two's Company," previously produced "Courtin' Time" and a revival of "The Play's the Thing."

Gaston Bell, former Broadway leading man, has donated his collection of theatre programs, some going back to 1868, to the N. Y. Public Library.

'Can-Can' Overflow?

Philadelphia, April 7.

Sudden booking jam here next week has legit circles in a tizzy. With "Can-Can," the new Cole Porter-Abe Burrows musical, doing record-smashing business in its tryout at the Shubert, the town also has a tryout of "Pink Elephant" at the Forrest and the hokum comedy toure. "Maid in the Ozarks" at the Erlanger. Joining the list next week are the tryouts, "Men of Distinction" at the Locust and "Masquerade" at the Walnut.

Explaining the unseasonal influx, one local manager suggested, "The other producers must be trying to cash in on the overflow from 'Can-Can.'"

Early Curtain OK In Chi Comeback

Chicago, April 7.

While New York theatres have abandoned the early-evening curtain, Chicago has been having success with the media. "Dial M For Murder," at the Harris, has had a 7:30 riser Tuesday nights for more than 11 weeks, with the house, the majority of the time, going clean. Also the plaint about the cheaper seats going last doesn't apply here, as there is a special emphasis made to sell the balcony and gallery pews. Tuesday, too, is usually a weak night here except for the smash hits.

Now "Male Animal," in its third week at the Blackstone, is instituting the early show, but instead of Tuesdays is taking over the Wednesday night slot. Rest of the plays, at this time, are retaining the regular starting schedule throughout the week.

GOVT. BRUSHES BEEFS, OK'S D.C. SILO THEATRE

Washington, April 7.

Use of the Carter Barron Amphitheatres this summer for professional theatrical entertainment was okayed last week by Sec. of Interior Douglas McKay, thus overriding the protests of residents in the area of the 4,000-seat openair theatre.

McKay awarded use of the amphitheatre to Washington Festival, Inc., new corporation headed by actress Constance Bennett, who is now a D. C. resident. Among those in the group are Martha Rountree, producer of the "Meet the Press" TV show, and Garvin Tankersley, husband of Bazie Miller, niece of Col. Robert McCormick, publisher of Chicago Tribune and Washington Times Herald.

Syndicate said it planned to offer 12 pop music productions featuring Broadway and Hollywood productions. However, lateness of McKay's decision will make it difficult for the producers to line up attractions. Bids have been in since last December.

Washington Festival, Inc., will pay the Government a rental of $50 per day, plus a percentage of gross ranging from 1% to 15%, and will also foot all expenses for operating the amphitheatre.

Conn. Solons Prep Bill To Bar Theatre Bans

Hartford, April 7.

The Joint Judiciary Committee of the Legislature has drafted a bill to prohibit theatres, music halls or circuses from barring anyone unless that person commits a nuisance or breach of peace. The bill will be given a public hearing April 15.

Proposed legislation follows the barring of T. H. Parker, drama critic of the Hartford Courant, by the Hartford New Parsons Theatre. Scribbler was barred for his alleged "savage" criticisms and columning. In the absence of any specific statutory law, common law practice of refusing a person to one's home or business was utilized. Proposed legislation would revoke common law for usage in such cases and would require specific complaint for the banning of critics or others.

As written, the bill would not apply to motion picture theatres.

Broadway Theatres to Get English Translater for Foreign Patrons

Translating device, for the use of patrons unfamiliar with the English language, will be made available soon in most Broadway houses. The gimmick, similar to that in use at the United Nations sessions in N.Y., will probably be limited to translations into French and Italian at first, most likely limited to only a few seats in each house.

Setup is being readied by producer-publicist Alexander H. Cohen, through a company he has formed, Theatrical Subsidiaries, Ltd. On a recent European trip, Cohen obtained the U. S. rights for the use of the translater in legit and film theatres. He also engaged representatives for the firm in London and Paris, where he hopes to arrange various other subsidiary setups.

The traslater, now available for English-speaking-only patrons at the French play, "Zoe," at the Comedie Wagram, Paris, involves a sound room and wiring system, with headphones which can be installed in certain seats in the theatre. An individual merely reads a colloquial translation as the play's action proceeds, and the non-French-speaking treatregoers can thus follow the play without difficulty.

Cohen figures that such a setup would be a natural for certain hits that presumably draw non-English-speaking patronage, either resident aliens or visiting foreigners. He also thinks the idea might be equally adaptable for U. S. audiences at foreign-language films.

Another prospect, the producer-publicist feels, is that such a setup would increase attendance for foreign troupes playing Broadway, such as the Barrault-Renaud and the Paxinou-Minotis companies last fall, and might thus enable more such outfits to visit the U. S. Cost of installing and operating the translater would be relatively modest, Cohen believes.

Translater device itself is patented, and the world rights to its use in theatres and places of amusement are held by Maxine Fabert, owner-manager of the Comedie Wagram. Cohen has subleased the theatre rights in the western hemisphere.

Janet Blair Bowing Out of Touring 'SP'

Janet Blair, costar with Webb Tilton in the touring company of "South Pacific," leaves the show June 27. Producer-authors Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 2d have not yet selected a sucessor. Rest of the company is expected to continue with the show. No changes are in the cards for the Broadway company.

Miss Blair apparently has no other assignment, but is reportedly tired after more than three years on the road with "South Pacific." She's understood planning to take a vacation on the Coast this summer, meanwhile considering future film and legit prospects.

Cleve. as Romeo To R.&H. 'Juliet'

Cleveland, April 7.

Several carloads of "Me and Juliet" scenery and vanguard of production technicians rolled into town Sunday (5) to begin preparations for the premiere of the new Rodgers-Hammerstein tuneshow at the Hanna April 20.

Over a score of stagehands had to pitch into the work of laying out sets for hanging. Jo Mielziner, scenic designer, is expected here this week to see if certain technical problems worked out satisfactorily.

One of the most complex props in the musical about backstage life in a Broadway troupe is a huge suspended light bridge, on which actors play the roles of electricians and stagehands. Glamorized bridge weighs so much, according to Milton Krantz, the Hanna's manager, that bolts are being set into 18 inches of concrete floor to hold the supporting beams.

With George Abbott cracking the directorial whip, troupe will check into Cleveland April 15 for four days of dress rehearsals under Abbott, choreographer Robert Alton and writers Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 2d.

Krantz opened the Hanna's advance mail-order sale for the two-week run of "Me and Juliet" March 29 and, according to reports, is nearly sold out already. Deluge of mail was comparable to the ticket stampede registered here by "South Pacific."

N. ENGLAND REGIONAL THEATRE PLAN TO BOW

Springfield, Mass., April 7.

An attempt to establish the first regional theatre in New England will get underway at the Court Square Theatre here Tuesday, April 21, with the opening of "Annie Get Your Gun," one of six musicals in the spring music festival which kicks off the project. Eventually it is intended to bring half a dozen or more cities into the plan, with Springfield serving as production headquarters for building and rehearsing the shows.

On the success of the initial spring musical season also depends the fate of the Court Square Theatre. The owners of the building which houses the theatre, only legit outlet in the city, will tear down the building and turn it into a parking lot next year, unless the theatre can pay its own way. It has been losing money steadily for the past few years.

Equity Ups Paul Jones To Asst. Exec-Sec Post

Paul Jones, a member of the Actors Equity staff, has been appointed an assistant executive secretary of the union, on recommendation of executive secretary Angus Duncan. Before going to work with Equity in 1950, he was an actor, and then with USO Camp Shows.

Willard Swire is also an assistant exec-sec of the union, with Alfred Elting as administrative exec-sec.

'Road' May Make Career Of Vancouver Court Runs; Gov't Appeals Court Nix

Vancouver, April 7.

Local production of "Tobacco Road" may make some sort of record here, by playing courtrooms instead of a theatre, and with judges for the audience.

"Road" loomed as a definite long-run courtroom possibility with the announcement last week (1) that the Attorney General of British Columbia is appealing the successful appeal of the Everyman Repertory Co.

Police Court conviction of Repertory's seven-member cast for putting on an indecent show was quashed two weeks ago in County Court by Judge J. A. McGeer, on the grounds that defense witnesses outnumbered Crown witnesses five to one. The Attorney General's appeal charges that the judge made his decision on the wrong basis.

City Prosecutor Gordon Scott, acting for the A-G, says there is no connection between the Crown's appeal and the theatre company's decision to restage the play starting April 11.

He said the appeal is taken merely so that police officers will have some precedent to govern future raids on alleged indecent shows. At present "Tobacco Road" is legal, and can run without fear of prosecution.

Meanwhile, cast members said they are only restaging the drama to make money. Otherwise the theatre will close for lack of funds.

Lawrence & Lee's Musicals

Robert Lee (Lawrence &) is in New York to confer with on the team's newly completed musical for Broadway. Writer is accompanied by his wife, Janet Waldo, radio's Corliss Archer.

He will also confer with Walter Craig of Benton & Bowles regarding the Lawrence & Lee original musical for the summer "Railroad Hour."

Equity Talks Seek Greater Scope For American Actors in Britain

London, April 7.

Negotiations between British and American Equity to secure joint agreement on the alien question in both countries move into the third week, with several outstanding points of difference yet to be reconciled. During the break in the confabs last weekend, owing to the Easter vacation, cabled exchanges were taking place between London and New York for guidance on alternatives suggested by the British union to the American proposals.

Strict secrecy continues on both sides, but it's now understood that one of the basic suggestions submitted by Alfred Harding, who is negotiator for American Equity, is that there should be much greater scope for U. S. performers working in Britain. On this, and on other issues, there is believed to be a division of opinion on the British side, and the varying viewpoints of the Equity executive have also to be reconciled.

One suggestion advocated by the British organization has been nixed on the American side. This was a proposal that the two unions should recognize each other's cards and do away with the present high toll charged British artists who work in American theatres. It is thought in London that the payments of five percent of earned salaries made by British artists to U. S. Equity help to keep that union's accounts in the black.

There is also, apparently, a reluctance on the part of the U. S. union to drop its present proviso, which demands a gap of six months in between engagements for alien performers. There is a strong feeling locally that if this rule is prolonged, it may become necessary to introduce a similar condition in Britain.

In one tangible respect, however, the British union is displaying a cooperative approach in the current negotiations. It is paying one-half of the expenses incurred by the U. S. union in sending Harding to London as its emissary.

Since British Equity's jurisdiction covers films, radio and television as well as legit, prospects of and change in its rules covering the entry of U. S. players there concerns not only Broadway, but also Hollywood and to a minor extent the radio and TV industries.

LURYE TIES UP WITH AGA FOR DULUTH STRAWHAT

Jay Lurye, Duluth concert impresario, who plans his first season as a strawhat producer this summer, has been in N. Y. for a week lining up legit connections for his Washington Playhouse, in Duluth. Before leaving for home yesterday (Tues.), Lurye signed with Irving Strouse's Arena Guild of America to rep him on castings and bookings.

Lurye will offer a nine-week season, opening June 30, with an all-Equity setup, of a resident stock group with guest stars. Sam Wren will direct. While in N. Y. Lurye also signed the Charles Wagner "Il Trovatore" opera troupe and the Boston Pops Orchestra for his next season's concert sked.

Winnipeg Ballet Visit

Duluth, April 7.

The Royal Winnipeg Ballet will make its first visit to Minnesota this month, to appear in three cities under sponsorship of Jay Lurye, Duluth impresario. Troupe will appear in Duluth, April 21; Hibbing, April 22, and Virginia, April 23.

To further hypo interest in ballet hereabouts, Lurye has arranged with the boards of education of the three cities for use of a school auditorium the afternoons of the concerts, for free ballet matinees for school children. Musicians union is going along with the stunt, being paid out of its Recording Fund. Lurye is standing whatever other expenses are involved.

Shows in Rehearsal

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical Comedy), MD (Musical Drama), O (Opera).

Me and Juliet (MC) — Richard Rodgers, Oscar Hammerstein 2d, prods.; George Abbott, dir.

Wilder Given Credit For Saving 'Regina' Sets

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

There is a fact about the "Regina" production, which was revived last week at N. Y.'s City Center, that I'd like very much to be known.

It is true that I always believed that one day "Regina" would be accepted and praised and that I wanted to save the sets, costumes, furniture and props for this time. But it would have been impossible to pay storage on them these past years.

My associate in the production, Clinton Wilder, has a house in Pondridge, Conn., with a horse barn and guest cottage, and it was there that they were affectionately and freely stashed away sans horses or guests against the eventful day.

Cheryl Crawford.

B'way 'Regina' Finds Niche In Opera Fold With Sock Premiere at City Center

Marc Blitzstein's music-drama, "Regina," which had a run of 56 performances on Broadway in 1949, found its proper niche last week, when the N. Y. City Opera Co. put the work into its repertory with an exciting premiere at City Center, N. Y., Thursday night (2).

Based on Lillian Hellman's drama of a rapacious southern middle-class family, "Little Foxes," with Blitzstein doing libretto as well as score, the work stands up strongly after its four-year lapse (it also had a concert version run-through at the Y. M. H. A., N. Y., last June). Opus has bite, drive, drama and ear-appeal. If not wholly a successful opera, it's a thrilling, provocative experience, and a distinguished addition to the Center's repertoire.

Now divided into three acts instead of two, and the gainer thereby, the work doesn't pick up momentum until midway in the first stanza. Thereafter it moves smoothly, swiftly and powerfully to its conclusion. First act is somewhat slow and halting—whether in the writing, or staging, is difficult to judge—although the power is there. Away from invidious Broadway comparisons with the original legiter, opera can be judged on its own, emerging as a fine music-drama, the music in many ways enhancing the story. Three music items cut from the Broadway version—a blues, waltz and character sketch—help the opera.

As before, the music highlights were Regina's "If You Want," Birdie's "Music, Music," Alexandra's "What Will It Be" and the idyllic third-act "Rain" quartet. The chorus' denunciation of the Hubbard family was also standout. Dramatically, the second and third-act curtains, with the gay dancing chorus in the second-act "Galop" a vivid contrast to the quarreling Horace and Regina, and the third-act farewell between mother and daughter, were tops.

Overall good staging by Robert Lewis (who did the Broadway original), exceptionally fine handling of the orch by conductor Julius Rudel, but especially the fine casting, helped make "Regina" the success it was Thursday night. Cast comprised an attractive group of artists who are first-rate actors as well as singers. Brenda Lewis, who sang the Birdie role on Broadway, portrayed Regina here, in a bitterly vivid dramatic characterization and sterling vocal contribution that were simply sensational.

Priscilla Gillette successfully repeated her lyric role of daughter Alexandra, and other high-grade Broadway reprises were William Wilderman's Horace (Regina's husband) and William Dillard's Jazz. Ellen Faull made a properly pathetic Birdie; Leon Lishner, Emile Renan and Michael Pollock were quite good as the two Hubbard brothers and son, respectively, and Lucretia West made an appealing figure as Addie the cook.

Sets and costumes were from the Broadway original, rented from Cheryl Crawford. Bron.

Legit Bits

Shirley Booth, William Inge, Arthur Laurents, Walter Fried, Audrey Wood and film executive Joseph Hazen will be guests next Monday (13) at the monthly luncheon of the Drama Desk, New York legit reporters' group . . . Tom Hughes, who collaborated with Mildred Freed on the adaptation of "Hamlet" to be played April 26 by Maurice Evans on NBC-TV, takes a leave of absence as assistant stage manager of the touring "Male Animal" to play a bit part on the telecast . . . Chris Anderson, who has several projects for Broadway production next season, will operate a strawhat this summer at Newton, N. J.

Arnold and Mrs. Gurtler, who operate Elitch's Gardens, Denver, are in New York to cast the resident company for this summer. George Somnes, their director, is due in tomorrow (Thurs) . . . Charles O. Carey will open his Surry (Me.) Playhouse June 23 with "Male Animal" and his Bar Harbor (Me.) Playhouse a week later with "Affairs of State" . . . William J. Cornell, pressagent for the Shubert, Detroit, will return this summer for a similar stint at the Cape Playhouse, Dennis, Mass.

Maureen Stapleton takes over the femme lead next Monday night (13) in "The Crucible," subbing for Beatrice Straight, who is taking an eight-week leave to have a baby . . . Theatre terms for "Porgy and Bess," at the Ziegfeld, N.Y., call for the show to get 65% of the gross to $20,000 and 70% of the balance. That amounts to $1,000 a week over the orthodox 70-75 sharing terms, but is more than covered by the fact that the show, as a non-profit operation, retains the 20% admissions tax, which came to $8,623 last week.

When "Pal Joey" closes April 18 at the Broadhurst, N.Y., to go on tour, it will have played 431 performances, believed to be the longest run of any revival in Broadway history . . . Jerry O'Connell, recently company manager with Shepard Traube's touring edition of "Bell, Book and Candle," has been engaged to do general exploitation on "Time Out for Ginger" . . . Maude Franchot has decided to operate her Niagara Falls Summer Theatre again this season, this time on a limited parnership basis, and will reopen June 22 . . . Album edition of "John Brown's Body," with original stars Tyrone Power, Judith Anderson and Raymond Massey, was recorded Monday (6) by Columbia.

Harriet Kaplan, who was an associate of the late producer Irving L. Jacobs and was previously with Music Corp. of America legit department, Metro play department and an assistant to producers Paula Stone and Mike Sloane, has joined the new Robert Lantz agency as a writer contact . . Charles Laughton will give his evening of readings May 14-15 at Town Hall, N.Y. . . . Reginald Denenholz is advance man for "Evening with Will Shakespeare" . . . The British production of "Seven Year Itch," with Brian Reece and Rosemary Harris as leads, is now due to open May 13 at the Aldwych, London.

Scenarist-playwright John Rodell has written a comedy-drama, "The Brothers," understood to be semi-autobiographical. The author's brother is a law professor at Yale. Theatre Guild is reportedly interested in the script, which is handled by Phillis Anderson, of Music Corp. of America.

Bert McCord, drama reporter of the N. Y. Herald Tribune, will be married June 14 to legit-TV actress Patricia John Canty . . . Settlement for $35,000 has been made of a damage suit against singer-actress Carol Bruce, arising from an auto crash last summer in Mantzville, Pa., in which a truck driver was killed . . . Adding to his already crowded schedule for next season, Jose Ferrer has acquired the Paris success, "L'Heure Eblouissante" ("The Dazzling Hour"), which he plans to adapt, produce and direct.

Additional money to cover the tryout losses of "Horses in Midstream" was supplied by co-general partners Donald Oenslager, Cedric Hardwicke and Andrew Rosenthal, not by author Rosenthal alone, as reported last week . . . "The World of Sholom Aleichem," dramatized by Arnold Perl from short stories by Aleichem and I. L. Peretz, will be presented by Perl and Howard Da Silva for three weeks in May at the Barbizon Plaza Theatre, N. Y.

Pressagent Philip Bloom broke a rib last Thursday at the Met Opera House, tripping over a step in the darkened auditorium while attending a Met audition of N. Y. City Opera Co. soprano Jean Fenn.

Show Finances

PICNIC
(As of Feb. 28, '53)

Original capital	$75,000
Overcall received	10,600
Additional overcall receivable	4,400
Production cost	66,688
Tryout loss	24,939
Total gross for first week and half on Broadway	38,609
Operating profit for first week and half on Broadway	1,355
Unrecouped cost to date	90,273

(Note: The Theatre Guild-Joshua Logan production, which opened Feb. 19, '53 at the Music Box, N. Y., had a gross of $24,979 and an operating profit of $4,177 for its first full week.)

TOP BANANA
(As of Feb. 14, '53)

Original capital, including 20% overcall	$210,000
Production cost	194,814
Tryout loss	10,189
Total gross for last four weeks	109,790
Operating loss for last four weeks	10,967
Less reduction in royalties and tax adjustment	8,788
Unrecouped production cost to date	52,375
Bonds and deposits	27,630
Returned to backers	148,750
Deficit	18,755
Due from producers	11,988

(Note: The Paula Stone-Mike Sloane production opened Nov. 1, '51, at the Winter Garden, N. Y., and earned back all but $33,042 of its cost during its 356-performance Broadway run. It has been on tour since last fall.)

SEVEN YEAR ITCH
(As of March 28, '53)

Original investment	$60,000
Production cost	42,443
Tryout loss	7,408
Gross for last four weeks	98,693
Profit for last four weeks	34,994
Total profit to date	60,703
Bonds and deposits	12,514
Cash reserve	10,000
Profit distributed March 28, '53	12,000
Total distributed profit to date	36,000
Balance available for distribution	2,189

(Note: The Courtney Burr-Elliott Nugent production opened Nov. 20, '52, at the Fulton, N. Y., where it continues at standee attendance. The film rights have been sold to independent producer Charles K. Feldman for $255,000, but receipts from this deal are not included in the above tabulation.)

Inside Stuff—Legit

Backers of "Hazel Flagg," Jule Styne (in association with Anthony B. Farrell) production currently at the Mark Hellinger, N. Y., include Farrell, $30,000; theatre owner-investor Howard S. Cullman, $8,000; theatre owner-producer Billy Rose, $8,000; actress Helen Menken, $4,000; former producer Alfred Bloomingdale, $4,000; theatrical accountant Jack S. Seidman, $4,000; producer-composer Richard Rodgers, $4,000; producer Mary K. Frank, $1,000; theatrical insurance agent David Davidson, $1,000; "Pal Joey" stage manager John C. Kuehn, $500; music copyist Mathilde Pincus, $500; producer Elaine Perry, $1,000; Carl Fisher, company manager (in partnership with stage manager Robert Griffith), $1,000; theatre party agent Ivy Larric, $2,000; United Paramount Theatres prexy Leonard H. Goldenson, $2,000; ad agency head Milton Blackstone, $2,000; theatrical attorney Martin H. Leonard, $2,000; Actors Fund president Walter Vincent, $2,000; ex-disk jockey-columnist Shirley Eder Slotkin, $500; Mrs. Lawrence Weiner, wife of the ad agency head, $1,000; souvenir program agent Kal Efron, $2,400; RCA Victor veepee Manie Sacks, personal investment, $1,800. The production was capitalized at $200,000 with provision for 20% overcall.

Phony requests for passes to Broadway shows, always a minor headache to pressagents and managers, has developed into epidemic proportions recently. Practically every management of an under-capacity production has spotted and turned down bids recently from imposters. It's figured a certain number of other such crash attempts have probably succeeded.

For the most part, requests of this kind are made by phone, with the caller usually impersonating an out-of-town theatre manager rather than a New York manager, p.a. or newspaper man. Included in such tries in the last week or two have been phonies identifying themselves as Eddie Plohn, of the National, Washington; Saul Kaplan, of the Colonial, Boston, a self-styled manager of the Hollywood Bowl and a man who mumbled the name and identified himself as representing The Playbill. In each of the above instances the manager receiving the call became suspicious, asked questions and then agreed to leave the passes. In every instance the theatre staff was warned to be on the lookout, but the Annie Oakleys in question were not called for.

Amusing pseudo-frank publicity stunt was used last week by press-agent Sam Friedman to get a come-on picture spread in the Washington Daily News for the forthcoming engagement of "Pal Joey" in the Capital. Over a picture of several skimpily-clad chorus gals doing a high-kick routine in the show there was a caption, "Would you like one of these in your home?" Story below opened, "Does anyone have a home for a poor, homeless chorus girl? This may sound like a publicity stunt; and it is, but apparently there's some truth to it." Yarn then explained how the local shortage of hotel rooms in Washington has made it impossible for Friedman to reserve accomodations for the girls. The yarn concluded, "Anyone who wants to be a, ah, good Samaritan could call the Shubert Theatre. The line, however, is likely to be busy."

Backers of "My 3 Angels," Saint-Subber, Rita Allen and Archie Thompson production currently at the Morosco, N. Y., include Miss Allen, $37,500; Jose Ferrer, show's director, $4,500; Edwin M. Reiskind, Ferrer's attorney, $5,200; theatre owner-investor Howard S. Cullman, $3,000; theatre exec Louis A. Lotito, $1,500; Metro play editor Sidney Phillips, $1,500; producer Tad Adoue, $750; former producer Raymond M. Curtis, $750; producer Elaine Perry, $375; Selma Tamber, Subber's production assistant, $375. The production was capitalized at $75,000 without provision for overcall. Unusual angle of the partnership agreement is that Ferrer gets 15% of the profits and Albert Husson, author of the original French version, gets 4¼% before the producers and backers participate.

Amount of drinking purportedly done in "The Fifth Season," currently at the Cort Theatre, N. Y., has resulted in a publicity tiein between the comedy and Schenley Distillers. Approximately a dozen bottles of the whiskey outfit's various products are displayed in the show's three big drinking scenes. Schenley, in return, is publicizing the production via spotting of a placard, showcasing six stills from the presentation, in the windows of about 50 Gotham bars.

Holy Week, Rain Take Chi B.O. Toll; 'Madam' $29,100, 'Murder' $11,530

Chicago, April 7.

The expected Lenten lulls, aided by rain, didn't help business here. However, all the plays are riding out the final Lenten period on the profit side. "Affairs of State" opened Wednesday (1) at the Selwyn and the first-night critics, who paid for their seats, although denying any rancor, gave the comedy a thumbsdown treatment.

"Mrs. McThing" settled down for a run at the Erlanger Monday (7) and Jose Greco came in the next day for a week at the Opera House.

Estimates for Last Week

Affairs of State, Selwyn (1st wk) ($4.40; 1,000). Started Wednesday (1) and first six performances hit a light $5,200.

Call Me Madam, Shubert (11th wk) ($5; 2,100) (Stritch-Smith). Not too bad with $29,100.

Dial M For Murder, Harris (11th wk) ($4.40; 1,000) (Richard Greene). Above the break-even mark with $11,530.

Male Animal, Blackstone (2d wk) ($4.20; 1,535). Seems well-nourished with $13,400.

'BANANA' LIGHT $26,500 IN FIRST MPLS. WEEK

Minneapolis, April 7.

With the town fairly deluged with a wide assortment of attractions during Holy Week, of all times, there apparently weren't sufficient entertainment dollars to go around satisfactorily in a number of instances. One of the sufferers was "Top Banana." Although its star, Phil Silvers, and the show itself excited raves, it finished its first of two weeks at the 1,859-seat Lyceum at $4.80 top with a relatively light $26,500 for six nights and two matinees. Opposition included the Shipstad-Johnson "Ice Follies," Sportsmen's Show, Ballet Theatre and the championship Minneapolis Lakers basketball team's playoff semi-finals and finals. First two named attractions are drawing especially well.

"Top Banana" is continuing for seven more nights and a matinee. It's the first time a musical has been spotted here for a fortnight and while this is an exclusive Twin Cities engagement, St. Paul having been passed up, indications are that the stay is too lengthy for this town.

Cornell $23,400, Frisco; 'Straw Hatters Wind Up

San Francisco, April 7.

Emlyn Williams opened his Charles Dickens for one stanza, at $3.60 top, last night (6) at the 1-775-seat Curran. Henry Fonda opens tonight (7) in "Point of No Return" at the 1,550-seat Geary, with house scaled to $4.80. Alcazar relights April 14 with "Gigi."

The Straw Hat Revuers completed the ninth and final week of "One Moment Please!" at the Marines Memorial Theatre, Saturday (4), heading for a tour of nine Coast and valley one and two-night stands. Group drew a nice $30,000 for nine frames, a better-than-cost figure. With promotion and booking head Carole Levene heading east to set the Straw Hatters on a summer east coast stock circuit, it will be the first time in seven years that the Straw Hatters will not play a summer season at the Town Hall in Lafayette, in the East Bay.

Estimates for Last Week

Constant Wife, Curran (3d wk) (C-$4.20; 1,775) (Katharine Cornell, Robert Flemyng, John Emery). A nice $23,400 (previous week, a strong $28,000).

One Moment Please!, Marines Memorial Theatre (9th wk) (R-$3.00; 640) five performances up to a husky $3,200 (previous week, $3,000).

Skinner 7G, Pitt

Pittsburgh, April 7.

Holy Week was too much for Cornelia Otis Skinner to buck and despite fine notices and excellent word-of-mouth, "Paris '90" had to be content with just under $7,000 at the Nixon. At that, however, the one-woman show topped the two previous attractions here, Constance Bennett's "I Found April" and Samia Gamal's "White Cargo." Nixon has Margaret Sullavan in "Deep Blue Sea" currently, then gets "Stalag 17" Monday (13) for two weeks and may wind up with a return of "Maid in the Ozarks" for a fortnight.

Current Road Shows

(April 6-18)

Affairs of State (Otto Kruger, Haila Stoddard, Irene Hervey, Donold Woods)—Selwyn, Chi (6-18).

Call Me Madam—Shubert, Chi (6-18).

Can-Can—Shubert, Philly (6-18).

Constant Wife (Katharine Cornell, Robert Flemyng, John Emery)—Mayfair, Portland (8-13); Metropolitan, Seattle (15-20).

Deep Blue Sea (Margaret Sullavan)—Nixon, Pitt. (6-11); Cass, Detroit (13-18).

Dial M for Murder (Richard Greene)—Harris, Chi (6-18).

Dickens Readings (Emelyn Williams)—Curran, S.F. (6-11); Great Northern, Chi (13-18).

Evening with Shakespeare (Margaret Webster, Eva LeGallienne, Faye Emerson, Basil Rathbone, John Lund, Viveca Lindfors)—Colonial, Boston (6-11); Court Square, Springfield, Mass. (13); Klein Aud., Bridgeport (14); Pickwick, Greenwich, Conn. (15); Acad. of Music, Brooklyn (16); Shubert, New Haven (17-18).

Fourposter (Jessica Tandy, Hume Cronyn)—Parsons, Hartford (6-8); Shubert, New Haven (9-11); Aud., Rochester (13-15); Erlanger, Buffalo (16-8).

Gigi (Audrey Hepburn)—Metropolitan, Seattle (6-11); Alcazar, S.F. (13-18).

Good Nite, Ladies—Erlanger, Buffalo (6-11); Shea's, Bradford, Pa. (13); Shea's, Jamestown, N.Y. (14-15); Erie, Schenectady (16-18).

Guys and Dolls—Music Hall, K.C. (6-8); Forum, Wichita (9-12); Municipal, Oklahoma City (14-18).

I Am a Camera (Julie Harris)—Wilbur, Boston (6-18).

Maid in the Ozarks—Erlanger, Philly (6-18).

Male Animal (Buddy Ebsen, Martha Scott, Charles Lang)—Blackstone, Chi (6-18).

Masquerade — Court Square, Springfield, Mass. (9-11); Walnut, Philly (13-18).

Men of Distinction — Locust, Philly (9-18).

Mrs. McThing (Helen Hayes)—Erlanger, Chi (6-18).

New Faces—Shubert, Boston (6-18).

Oklahoma—National, Wash. (6-11).

Paris '90 (Cornelia Otis Skinner)—Shubert, Wash. (6-11).

Pink Elephant—Forrest, Philly (6-11).

Point of No Return (Henry Fonda)—Geary, S.F. (6-18).

School for Brides—Shubert, Detroit (6-18).

South Pacific (Janet Blair, Webb Tilton)—Taft Aud., Cincy (6-11); Indiana U., Bloomington (13-15); Purdue U., Lafayette, Ind. (16-18).

Stalag 17—Playhouse, Wilmington (6-11); Nixon, Pitt. (13-18).

Tobacco Road—Davidson, Milwaukee (6-11).

Top Banana (Phil Silvers)—Lyceum, Minneapolis (6-11); Paramount, Omaha (13-15); KRNT Theatre, Des Moines (16-18).

White Cargo—Majestic, Boston (6-18).

'PACIFIC' SETS L'VILLE MARK WITH $54,167

Louisville, April 7.

"South Pacific," with Janet Blair and Webb Tilton costarred, broke house records at the Memorial Aud. last week, pulling a tremendous $54,167, at $4 top. Mark was set for six night shows and two matinees, with a number of chairs added to accommodate late patrons.

Success of the full-week engagement of "South Pacific" was the subject of a Louisville Times editorial, which stated that despite Holy Week, and town's traditional coolness toward touring stage shows, "Pacific" packed them in. According to Maurice Settle, Aud. manager, last show sold out in Louisville for an entire week was "Oklahoma," also a Rodgers-Hammerstein team effort.

Ballet Theatre $37,700 For Five in Split Week

Ballet Theatre pulled in a sock $37,700 for five performances in a split stanza last week. Troupe racked up $25,700 for three performances in Chicago Sunday and Monday (29-30). In two performances in Minneapolis (31-1), the company played against guarantees with an estimated $12,000 take.

Troupe continues split stands this week.

'Dolls' Neat $42,300 In 4th St. Louis Stanza

St. Louis, April 7.

"Guys and Dolls" wound up its fourth and final frame at the American Theatre with an estimated $42,300, to bring the total for the stand to $162,300. House is dark until Sunday (12), when Myron Cohen heads the cast in "Farfel Follies" that tees off a week's frame with a $4.25 top.

Dark during Holy Week, the Empress relights tonight (Tues.) with a one-week frame of "Come Back, Little Sheba," with Joan Blondell as the visiting lead.

'Can-Can' $50,250, 'Girl' 14G, Philly

Philadelphia, April 7.

"Can-Can," with most phenomenal advance ever racked up here, broke the house record at the Shubert for the second straight week. Musical hurt "Country Girl" at the Locust, although the drama got a fair enough draw for Holy Week. "Maid in the Ozarks," back on twofer policy, suffered most from combination Passover and week-before-Easter slough.

Stage season perked up with two new entrants this week. "The Pink Elephant," with Steve Allen in lead, opens tonight (7) at the Forrest, "Men of Distinction," another new comedy with Hollywood's Robert Preston in starring spot, is slated for the Locust Thursday night (9).

Estimates for Last Week

Ah, Wilderness, Academy Foyer (350; $3.25). Circle in Square group to call it a season Saturday night (11). Poor $1,700.

Maid in Ozarks, Erlanger (1st wk) (1,880; $3.90). Heavy advertising budget, and town plastered with twofers, failed to overcome Holy Week. Slow $5,500.

The Country Girl, Locust (2d wk) (1,580; $4.55) (Nancy Kelly, Sidney Blackmer, Dane Clark). Clifford Odets drama just about equalled first week's draw with so-so $14,000.

Can-Can, Shubert (2d wk) (1,870; $6.50) (Lilo, Peter Cookson). Cole Porter-Abe Burrows collaboration scoring phenomenal boxoffice success, despite mixed reception. Smash $50,250 for second stanza.

'OKLA.' SOCK $29,600; 'PINK' POOR $6,400, D.C.

Washington, April 7.

"Oklahoma," still riding high after 10 years, grossed a fat $29,600 for the second week of its four-week booking at the National Theatre, bettering the first stanza take by about $200. Business continues strong for the third week. In order to promote the show, Ed Plohn, theatre manager, advertised that the boxoffice would be opened last Sunday to sell ducats. Surprisingly, the stunt sold $1,000 worth of pasteboards between noon and 9 p.m.

The Shubert Theatre hit another blooper in the single week run of "Pink Elephant," which hopes to make the grade in New York. The play, panned by local critics, drew only $6,400 through the wickets.

'McThing' Breaks Detroit House Record With 27G

Detroit, April 7.

Helen Hayes in "Mrs. McThing" broke the house record at the Cass for Holy Week by grossing $27,000. Current attraction is Victor Borge, in for a week.

The Shubert turned on the lights again with "School for Brides" in for two weeks.

Emlyn Williams $6,400; Schwartz $1,400 in 3, L.A.

Los Angeles, April 7.

Only one house is alight this week, Civic Playhouse, where Maurice Schwartz is presenting his second offering, "Hard To Be a Jew." Holy Week and Passover cut into last week's take.

Estimates for Last Week

Emlyn Williams, Biltmore (1st wk) ($3.60; 1,636). Way below hopes, with only $6,400 for the one-week stand.

Hard To Be a Jew, Civic Playhouse (1st wk) ($3; 376). Off to a good start with near capacity $1,400 for the first three nights. (Opened Thurs.).

Spotty B'way Beats Holy Week Rap; 'Town' Record $55,208, 'Hazel' $40,700, 'Camino' 19G, 'Horses' Fast Flopola

Business was spotty, but generally better on Broadway last week than the preceding stanza. That was an unexpected variation on the traditional Holy Week slump and was especially surprising, as Passover coincided this year and was figured to hold attendance to a minimum the first two days of the week.

Receipts followed the anticipated downbeat trend early in the week, but began perking at the midweek matinees, reached bullish proportions on the traditionally dire Good Friday (3) performances and repeated at both shows Saturday (4). The delayed spurt took most shows comfortably over the previous week, but a few entries took sharp dips.

Last week's only opening, "Horses in Midstream," was also the only closing. Other scheduled shutterings include "John Brown's Body," due to exit Saturday (11); "Pal Joey," leaving for tour April 18; "South Pacific," going on the road May 23 but returning in four weeks, and "Guys and Dolls," departing for the road June 27, but returning in six weeks.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical Comedy), MD (Musical Drama), O (Opera).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to top prices; number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 20% amusement tax, but grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of tax.

Camino Real, National (3d wk) (D-$4.80-$6; 1,172; $30,000). Almost $19,000 on Theatre Guild subscription (previous week, $17,800).

Children's Hour, Coronet (16th wk) (D-$4.80; 1,027; $28,378). Nearly $15,100 on twofers (previous week, $15,000).

Crucible, Beck (11th wk) (D-$6-$4.80; 1,214; $31,000). Over $22,300 (previous week, $21,800).

Dial M for Murder, Plymouth (23d wk) (D-$4.80; 1,062; $30,377) (Maurice Evans). Over $30,400 (previous week, $30,200).

Evening with Beatrice Lillie, Booth (27th wk) (R-$6; 739; $24,184) (Beatrice Lillie). Nearly $19,300 (previous week, $17,600 for seven performances).

Fifth Season, Cort (11th wk) (C-$4.80; 1,056; $25,639) Menasha Skulnik, Richard Whorf). Almost $24,900 (previous week, $25,100).

Fourposter, Golden (76th wk) (C-$4.80; 769; $19,195) (Sylvia Sidney, Romney Brent). About $7,100 on twofers (previous week, $8,000).

Guys and Dolls, 46th St. (124th wk) (MC-$6.60; 1,319; $43,904). Reached $34,400 (previous week, $32,700); closing June 27 for a six-week engagement in Washington, but will resume here Aug. 10.

Hazel Flagg, Hellinger (8th wk) MC-$7.20; 1,527; $53,000) (Helen Gallagher, Thomas Mitchell, Benay Venuta, John Howard). Over $40,700 without theatre parties (previous week, $47,700 with parties).

Horses in Midstream, Royale (1st wk) (CD-$4.80; 1,035; $27,100) (Cedric Hardwicke, Diana Lynn, Lili Darvas). Opened Thursday night (2) to six pans (Chapman, News; Coleman, Mirror; Funke, Times; Kerr, Herald Tribune; McClain, Journal-American; Watts, Post) and one no-opinion (Hawkins, World-Telegram & Sun); first four performances and two matinees drew nearly $8,100; closed Saturday night (4) at a loss of around $80,000.

John Brown's Body, Century (7th wk) (D-$6-$4.80; 1,645; $43,000) (Tyrone Power, Judith Anderson, Raymond Massey). Just topped $27,900 (previous week, $26,300); closing Saturday night (11); will tour again next fall.

King and I, St. James (106th wk) (MD-$7.20; 1,571; $51,717) (Yul Brynner). Over $46,600 (previous week, $43,900); Alfred Drake took over as star Monday night (6) and continues until Brynner returns June 22.

Love of Four Colonels, Shubert (12th wk (C-$6-$4.80; 1,361; $39,000 Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer). Almost $24,600 (previous week, $24,600); moves April 20 to the Broadhurst.

Mid-Summer, Vanderbilt (11th wk) (D-$4.80; 720; $18,500) (Mark Stevens, Geraldine Page). About $9,000 (previous week, $9,000).

Misalliance, Barrymore (7th wk) (C-$3; 1,060; $24,996). Nearly $12,900 (previous week, $11,100).

Moon Is Blue, Miller (109th wk) (C-$4.80; 920; $21,586) (Donald Cook, Biff McGuire, Janet Riley). Over $9,800 (previous week, $9,900).

My 3 Angels, Morosco (4th wk) (C-$6-$4.80; 912; $26,000). Almost $19,100 without parties (previous week, $21,800 with parties).

On Borrowed Time, 48th St. (8th wk) (CD-$4.80; 925; $22,297) (Victor Moore, Leo G. Carroll, Beulah Bondi). Just topped $8,000 (previous week, $9,100).

Pal Joey, Broadhurst (66th wk) (MC-$6.60; 1,160; $39,602) (Vivienne Segal, Harold Lang). Over $25,800 (previous week, $24,300); closing April 18, to tour.

Picnic, Music Box (6th wk) (CD-$6-$4.80; 1,012; $27,000). Over $25,800 (previous week, $25,500).

Porgy and Bess, Ziegfeld (4th wk) (O-$6; 1,628; $48,244). Over $43,100, excluding tax (previous week, $39,900).

Seven Year Itch, Fulton (20th wk) (C-$6-$4.80; 1,063; $24,400) (Tom Ewell). Over $24,700 (previous week, $24,700).

South Pacific, Majestic (207th wk) (MC-$6; 1,659; $50,186) (Martha Wright, George Britton). Nearly $36,200 (previous week, $32,300); closes May 23, to tour, but returns June 22 to the Broadway.

Time of the Cuckoo, Empire (25th wk) (CD-$6-$4.80; 1,082; $25,056) (Shirley Booth). Almost $16,200 (previous week, $14,700).

Time Out for Ginger, Lyceum (18th wk) (C-$4.80; 995; $22,845) (Melvyn Douglas). Over $13,000 (previous week, $12,000).

Wish You Were Here, Imperial (41st wk) (MC-$7.20; 1,400; $52,080). Nearly $42,500 (previous week, $40,500).

Wonderful Town, Winter Garden (6th wk) (MC-$7.20; 1,510; $54,173) (Rosalind Russell). New high for the run and a new house record at $55,208 (previous week, $54,100).

OPENING THIS WEEK

Room Service, Playhouse (C-$4.80; 999; $21,500). Bernard Hart & Don Hershey revival, in association with John Murray, of the Murray-Allen Boretz 1936-37 hit; opened Monday night (6) to four favorable reviews (Chapman, News; Coleman, Mirror; Funke, Times; Hawkins, World-Telegram & Sun) and three pans (Kerr, Herald Tribune; McClain, Journal-American; Watts, Post).

'Camera' $19,200, 'Stalag' $8,800, Hub

Boston, April 7.

"I Am a Camera," in second frame at the Wilbur, held up nicely, despite the traditional Holy Week slump. "Stalag 17," in fifth and final week at the Colonial, picked up slightly over the previous week.

"An Evening With Will Shakespeare" bowed into the Colonial Monday (6) for one week, with a healthy advance, sale reported. "New Faces" teed off a three-week engagement at the Shubert same night.

Estimates for Last Week

I Am a Camera, Wilbur (2d wk) ($4.20; 1,200) (Julie Harris). Held up nicely with slick $19,200.

Stalag 17, Colonial (5th wk) ($4.20; 1,500). Final week built over previous one to $8,800.

FONDA-'POINT' $24,900 IN KAYCEE FULL-WEEK

Kansas City, April 7.

First legit here in several weeks, "Point of No Return" played a full week in Music Hall. Henry Fonda and company drew hearty acclaim from the critics and take for eight shows, including matinees Thursday and Saturday, was $24,900, with prices scaled from $1.83 to $4.88.

"Guys and Dolls," in town for its second time, opened Sunday (5) and plays a four-day stand in Music Hall.

'Gigi' 6½G in 4, Seattle

Seattle, April 7.

"Gigi," with Audrey Hepburn as star, grossed a mild $6,500 in four performances opening last Thursday night (2) at the Metropolitan here.

Anita Loos adaptation of the Colette shortstory is continuing all this week here, and goes to the Alcazar, San Francisco, next week.

Plays on Broadway

Room Service

Bernard Hart and Don Hershey (in association with John Murray) production of comedy in three acts by John Murray and Allen Boretz. Features John Randolph, Everett Sloane, Ralph Dunn, Bartlett Robinson, Jack Lemmon, Alexander Asro, Horace Cooper, Stanley Prager. Directed by Mortimer Offner; setting and lighting by Frederick Fox. At the Playhouse, N.Y., April 6, '53; $4.80 top.

Sasha Smirnoff ..... Alexander Asro
Gordon Miller ..... John Randolph
Joseph Gribble ..... Bartlett Robinson
Harry Binion ..... Everett Sloane
Faker Englund ..... Stanley Prager
Christine Marlowe ..... Georgiann Johnson
Leo Davis ..... Jack Lemmon
Hilda Manney ..... Jeanne Russell
Gregory Wagner ..... Ralph Dunn
Simon Jenkins ..... Eric Brotherson
Timothy Hogarth ..... Woodrow Parfrey
Dr. Glass ..... Horace Cooper
Bank Messenger ..... Irving Mitchell Cravat
Senator Blake ..... Jack Bittner

If "Room Service," the romp about play-launching from a hotel bedroom by John Murray and Allen Boretz, fails to equal at the Playhouse its 1937 tenancy of 500 performances at the Cort, it won't be for lack of energy. Play still registers the laughs, but it lacks the added zing a revival needs.

Bogged down at first by such vintage jokes as "You've been broke temporarily for so long, it's becoming permanent," current offering builds as action progresses, centering about a penniless producer besieged in his hotel room by an adament, payment-demanding management. Maybe the hilarity of the original is missing because this showing stresses farcical plot rather the zany characters involved in the goings-on.

The actors are funny, but none of them are dynamic comedy personalities, except Alexander Asro, of the original cast, who plays the stage-struck Russian waiter. When Asro is on, the comedy is hilarious. When the others are dashing about the stage, it is only amusing. John Randolph is a letdown in the central role of the harassed producer, lacking the personal punch to genuinely interest the audience in his predicament, as was likely with Sam Levene in the original.

Under the direction of Mortimer Offner, who seems to have borrowed George Abbott's tricks but not his ingenuity, the actors dash on and off stage, slamming doors, donning and doffing pants, locking intruders in the bathroom, and exhibiting a visual gag a minute. There are good performances in the roles of the producer's two cronies, the eccentric, trophy-collecting director, played by Everett Sloane, and the dimwitted, eager manager, by Stanley Prager. As the hayseed author, Jack Lemmon creates a likeable personality and gets in some nifty takes, and Horace Cooper is topnotch as the hotel doctor. Ralph Dunn is full of sound and fury as the heavy; the hotel boss, and Bartlett Robinson is effective as his jittery junior.

On the distaff side, Georgiann Johnson, as the producer's girl, and Jeanne Russell, as the playwright's, contribute little except good looks.

In his hotel-room setting, Frederick Fox both creates atmosphere and allows plenty of room for the fast-moving traffic. Vene.

ORIGINAL CAST

George Abbott production, directed by Abbott, with scenery by Cirker & Robbins, at Cort, N. Y., May 19, '37; $3.30 top.

Sasha Smirnoff ..... Alexander Asro
Gordon Miller ..... Sam Levene
Joseph Gribble ..... Cliff Dunstan
Harry Binion ..... Philip Loeb
Faker Englund ..... Teddy Hart
Christine Marlowe ..... Margaret Mullen
Leo Davis ..... Eddie Albert
Hilda Manney ..... Betty Field
Gregory Wagner ..... Donald MacBride
Simon Jenkins ..... Philip Wood
Timothy Hogarth ..... Jack Bryne
Dr. Glass ..... Hans Rober
Bank Messenger ..... William Mendrek
Senator Blake ..... Ralph Morehouse

(The show played 500 performances on Broadway).

Horses in Midstream

Gilbert Miller & Donald Oenslager production of comedy in two acts (four scenes) by Andrew Rosenthal. Stars Cedric Hardwicke, Diana Lynn, Lili Darvas; features Scott Forbes, Carol Goodner. Directed by Hardwicke; scenery and lighting, Oenslager. At Royale, N.Y., April 2, '53; $4.80 top ($7.20 opening).

Marie Louise ..... Lili Darvas
Ganna ..... Ludmilla Toretzka
Charles Pine ..... Cedric Hardwicke
Tom Atwood ..... Scott Forbes
Trina ..... Diana Lynn
Visitor ..... Carol Goodner

There's little place on Broadway these days for plays that are only moderately interesting or amusing. So an innocuous comedy like "Horses in Midstream" can hardly make the grade.

The Andrew Rosenthal opus is rather facile, mildly diverting, somewhat shallow and more than a bit dated in theme. Moreover, its characters seem little more than stereotypes of 20 years or so ago.

The yarn deals with a former New England business man who walked out on his wife and infant daughter and has been living for 31 years with a French novelist on Elba. His independent-minded granddaughter visits them and, falling in love with the island and a self-exiled Englishman there, wants to form a similar liaison. But the septuagenarian lover's inherent prudery rebels at immorality for his granddaughter, and he persuades the girl to go away for awhile to reconsider.

Play's suggestions that personal integrity and happiness are incompatible with marriage, that idyllic life is obtainable merely by going to a remote island, that women (especially Continental women) are naturally franker and therefore more honest (particularly about sex) than men, and in which the young heroine is engaged to but not in love with the handsomest, richest and (natch) most eligible young man in town, have a way of recalling the "modern" thinking of the 1930's. Despite a wealth of bright little quips, the whole effort seems arid and futile.

The direction by Cedric Hardwicke, with an unbilled assist by Bretaigne Windust, appears competent and a trifle inert, and the performance generally appears to reflect the anemia of the material. With the exception of Diana Lynn, who brings not only attractive looks but honesty, variety and infectious warmth to the cliche role of the granddaughter, there are no notable individual portrayals.

Hardwicke, doubling as costar as well as stager, is characteristically urbane as the romantic grandpa, although he has understandable difficulty in the scenes where the old man has to ruffle his feathers at the slightest mention of anything sexual or even physical. Lili Darvas is acceptable as his inamorata, if hardly the epitome of a femme fatale.

In the supporting parts, Scott Forbes is believable in the ill-defined role of the glowering English expatriate, Ludmilla Toretzka registers in the rubberstamp part of an eccentric Gallic servant and Carol Goodner is effective in the one-scene bit of the girl's disapproving mother. The Mediterranean villa setting by co-producer Oenslager is strikingly good looking.

Rosenthal, whose "Burning Deck" in 1940 and "Broken Journey" in 1942 were Broadway failures, drew attention in London last season with a modestly successful play called "Third Person" and a respectable failure titled "Red Letter Day." Hobe.

(Closed last Saturday night (4) after four performances.)

Ballet Theatre Sets Tour

Ballet Theatre, now touring the U. S., has been set for an eight-month junket abroad this summer-fall, most extensive overseas trek in its history. Tour will run from May through December, in Europe, Britain and North Africa.

Tour will open May 4 with a week's run in Naples, followed by a three-week engagement in Paris.

Equity Tories'

Continued from page 57

be variable on different issues; Beverly Roberts, considered an ultra conservative, and Jane White, figured a liberal.

Regular council incumbents whose terms expire this year include Edith Atwater, liberal (her recent resignation hasn't been announced, but she is not available for renomination); Sidney Blackmer, conservative; Clay Clement, variable; Edith Meiser, moderate conservative; Eddie Nugent, ultra conservative; Erin O'Brien-Moore, ultra conservative; Bill Ross, liberal; Loring Smith, conservative, and Ann Thomas, conservative. Council representatives of Chorus Equity whose terms are expiring are Ray Cook, Christine Karner, William Smith and Jeffrey Warren.

Nominating committee must announce its selections for the regular ticket at least 30 days before the June 5 election.

Off-B'way Show

Which Way Is Home?

(THEATRE DE LYS, N. Y.)

Touring Players Co. presentation of drama in three parts, adapted from works of Stephen Vincent Benet, Gertrude Stein and Mark Lodge by Ellen Violett. Directed by David Hooks and Robert Lanning. Settings by Richard Merrell; lighting, Charles Levy.

With Robert Clabhorne, Tony McGrath, Milo O'Shea, Richard Merrell, Dana Elcar, Maureen Toal, David Hooks, Jerry Ansbacher, Douglas Taylor, Peg Murray, Anne Mears. At Theatre de Lys, N.Y., April 4, '53; $3.60 top.

The Touring Players Co., drama group which has been hitting the road regularly since 1947 with a repertory lineup, has moved into Greenwich Village's off-Broadway belt for a limited run, with an abstraction tagged "Which Way Is Home?" Play is in the experimental groove, aimed to kick up some controversy, but it makes little noise and signifies no particular point of view.

It's too bad that the company chose this Ellen Violett effort for its New York stand, because it's a doubtful bet even for the off-Broadway theatre fans. Throughout the script's hodgepodge, however, the troupe's dramaturgy techniques get topflight showcasing. They are a group of youthful and imaginative players who know how to make the most of theatrical illusion.

Among standout players are Jerry Ansbacher, David Hooks, Peg Murray, Robert Clabhorne, Dana Elcar and Maureen Toal.

Play is divided into three parts, with episodes culled from Stephen Vincent Benet's "O'Halloran's Luck," Gertrude Stein's "Brewsie and Willie" and Mark Lodge's "The City Zoo."

David Hooks and Robert Lanning, who share the directorial chores, keep it all going at a neat and interesting clip. Gros.

Current Stock Bills

(April 6-19)

Around We Go — Playhouse, Houston (8-19).

Guardsman (Zachary Scott — Ruth Ford)—Bermudian, Hamilton, Bermuda (7-12).

Milky Way—Dobbs Ferry (N. Y.) Playhouse (10-12).

On Your Toes (Patricia Bowman, Georgie Tapps)—Paper Mill, Millburn, N. J. (6-19).

Play's the Thing (Magda Gabor) —Quarterdeck, Atlantic City (6-12).

Over 21 (Ilka Chase)—Bermudian, Hamilton, Bermuda (14-19).

Three Men on a Horse—Quarterdeck, Atlantic City (13-19).

Scheduled B'way Openings

Date With April, Royale, April 15.

Emlyn Williams Readings, Bijou, April 20.

Pink Elephant, unspecified theatre, week of April 20.

Men of Distinction, unspecified theatre, week of April 27.

Masquerade, Alvin, April 29.

Can-Can, Shubert, April 30.

Me and Juliet, Majestic, May 28.

Plays Abroad

Red Headed Blonde

London, April 2.

Jack de Leon, in association with John Wildberg production of farcical comedy in three acts by Val Guest. Stars Yolande Donlan, Naunton Wayne. Directed by Charles Hickman. At Vaudeville Theatre, London, April 1, '53; $2.20 top.

Surrey Smith ..... Yolande Donlan
Jim Henderson ..... Naunton Wayne
Tom Weldon ..... Jerry Desmonde
Jonathan Maxwell ..... Lionel Murton
Banner Brown ..... John Warwick
Ken Wilson ..... Anthony Oliver
Paul Rivers ..... Tim Gill
Mavis ..... Donna Stewart
Ronnie ..... Lionel Blair
Madame Braithwaite ..... Margot Lister

Whatever the outcome of its London preem, this play will establish one thing—the sure hold that Yolande Donlan has upon West End audiences. The role of a dumb blonde engaged because of her Hollywood musical reputation to star in a London stage production when she can neither sing nor dance is a natural for this gay, scintillating artist. In general, the story is bright and entertaining via this basically funny idea which has sufficient twists and variations to keep interest sustained. It should stand a good chance here as light fare for the coming festive season, but its prospects overseas are not so favorable except as a screen vehicle for a similar type of actress.

With all the trimmings laid on to welcome the incoming glamor girl, she arrives unexpectedly and misses the cameras and usual airport ballyhoo. She then throws a monkeywrench into the works by announcing to the author and producer her lack of all the talents for which she has been engaged for the forthcoming big musical production. All the vital stints in her film career had been done by doubles; this procedure, of course, is impossible in the theatre.

She conquers a desire to rush home to Mom and secretly practices voice production and the requisite dance steps. Humor arises from a leg injury which her publicity agent had arranged to fake to account for her defection, but which results in a genuine sprain. Thinking she has flopped with her grotesque dance routine, she packs for home, but the gibing challenge of a young doctor brings her back to study her job seriously before she is aware that her performance has been acclaimed as an amusing travesty of traditional terping.

Although typecast for a dizzy blonde character, Miss Donlan manages to bring to each new role a fresh and endearing personality. Naunton Wayne has little to do as the author except display his customary British imperturbability. Jerry Desmonde gives a brisk characterization of the harassed producer and Anthony Oliver is easy and natural as the medico who is instrumental in firing the girl's flagging ambition. Supporting cast gives local color as backstage entourage, and play is well directed by Charles Hickman. Clem.

Murder in the Cathedral

London April 1.

The Old Vic Trust's production of drama in two acts by T. S. Eliot. Stars Robert Donat. Directed by Robert Helpmann; setting, Alan Barlow. At Old Vic Theatre, London, March 31, '53; $1.50 top.

Archbishop Thomas Becket ..... Robert Donat
1st Priest ..... Alan Dobie
2d Priest ..... Wolfe Morris
3d Priest ..... Patrick Wymark
Messenger ..... Bruce Sharman
1st Tempter ..... John Warner
2d Tempter ..... Douglas Campbell
3d Tempter ..... Newton Blick
4th Tempter ..... William Squire
1st Knight ..... Paul Rogers
2d Knight ..... Robin Bailey
3d Knight ..... Daniel Thorndike
4th Knight ..... John Phillips

As the guest star of this Old Vic production, Robert Donat returns to legit theatre after an absence of six years, due mainly to illness. He is a longtime asthmatic sufferer. But in his years away from the stage, he has lost none of the technique of playing to an audience, and the warmth and sincerity which he exudes was the keynote of the production.

T. S. Eliot's classic, which has been filmed since its last presentation, is given a fairly orthodox appearance by the direction of Robert Helpmann. Sombre cathedral setting is heightened dramatically by skillful lighting effects, while the mass declamations are staged with authority and movement.

Role of the martyred Thomas A. Becket is a strong vehicle for Donat's return, and although he misses some of the finer nuances, his performance is rich in color and vitality. His martyrdom speech, before his murder by the four knights, brings out the best qualities of the author's poetry. Among the supporting team, it is the four knights who get the best opportunities and, while their big scene of justification after the slaying is played broadly, it comes as welcome relief to the unrelieved drama. Paul Rogers, Douglas Campbell and Daniel Thorndike stand out among the supporting team. Myro.

Ballets de Paris

Paris, March 24.

Jean Bouchel-Ysaye presentation of Roland Petit's Ballets De Paris Co. With Petit, Colette Marchand, Violette Vardy, Claire Sombert, George Reich, Serge Parrault. Choreography, Petit, Victor Gsovsky; music, Claude Pascal, Pierre Petit, Henri Dutilleux, Maurice Thiriet. Decor and castumes, Zao Wou Ki, Rene Gruau, Andre Beaurepaire, Carzou, Antoni Clave. Musical direction, Richard Blareau. At L'Empire Theatre, Paris; $3 top.

Roland Petit's new ballet package, consisting of four pieces, looks like a smash here, and will probably extend its six-week run at the large Empire. Following his adage of "classical music hall," Petit has packed this with pace, movement, humor, colorful eroticism, and eye-catching sets and solid choreography, which should make this as socko for statewide touring as was his previous set of ballets some seasons ago.

"La Perle" is a subdued classical study of Leda and the Swan, in Japanese decor. Graceful work of Violette Verdy and nice ensembles make this a pleasant, but not outstanding opener. Troupe then goes into a fast-paced spoof of a film drama in "Cine-Bijou" ("Movie-Jewel") that is clever in satire and numbers. Story of a great pix queen who is seduced by a gangster and goes looking for him in the dives, gives Colette Marchand a chance to prance, show her gams and give evidence of her highgrade thesp talents. Laced with color and sex, this a a pleaser. Miss Marchand and Petit also break into song in this to round out its music-hall air.

"Le Loup" ("The Wolf") is a haunting ballet of a wolf's love for a mortal and how it leads to tragedy. This has stunning sets and excellent choreography. Dancing, decor and music are fine.

Closer, "Deuil En 24 Heures" ("Mourning for 24 Hours"), is a charming spoof on turn-of-the-century Paris, concerning a widow who is too full of life and coquetry to mourn for her husband. It's a delight, closing a boff show.

Miss Verdy is fine as the ill-fated heroine of "Wolf." Miss Marchand walks off with show personality honors as the pix star and merry widow. Also good are George Reich and Serge Perrault. Petit's dancing and choreography are topnotch. Mosk.

Equity Shows

(April 6-19)

Dr. Faustus—Lenox Hill (N. Y.) Playhouse (15-19).

WALTER "Dare" WAHL
Featured in Comedy Hit
"TOP BANANA"
Currently 80th Week
Now Playing
LYCEUM, MINNEAPOLIS
Mar. 30 - Apr. 11
Direction
JOSH MEYER JACK DAVIES

POCONOS
New Summer Theatre for Sale—Rent. Seating capacity 450. Ample parking space. Over 125,000 vacationists spend their vacation in the Poconos weekly. Write HAROLD AUTEN, Bushkill, Pa. or Phone Bushkill 51

ATTN: SUMMER THEATRE OPERATORS
Take TIME OUT to say to me WISH YOU WERE HERE this MIDSUMMER under my FLAGG and you'll have a PICNIC not a MISALLIANCE. For THE LOVE OF FOUR ANGELS be my PAL JOEY in this my FIFTH SEASON in this WONDERFUL TOWN. DIAL Me now while you've got the ITCH.
P.S.—A "salary not important" young man with experience in production, management and administration. References.
Phone: LOngacre 5-1482
Write: Box V.V. 570, Variety
154 W. 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.

SUMMER THEATRE
expanding with star system seeks investor-partner; well established, excellent location. Box V-4353, Variety, 154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.

CAB CALLOWAY
Sportin' Life
"Porgy and Bess"
Currently ZIEGFELD, NEW YORK
"—electrifying . . . joyous and unflagging energy . . . dramatic."
—Walter F. Kerr, N.Y. Herald Tribune
Mgt.: BILL MITTLER, 1619 Broadway, New York

Literati

Colossal Christening

The Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz family has apparently entered that charmed circle tagged by Eric Sevareid a couple of months ago as "the publicity saints." Only, the stars of "I Love Lucy" did it last week in spades.

Event was the christening in Hollywood of their second child, Desiderio Alberto-Arnaz 4th, whose birth was "witnessed" Jan. 19 by millions of viewers of the TV show. Press coverage of the birth was nearly dwarfed by the picture play given to the christening last Wednesday (1) and Thursday by the afternoon and morning papers.

All three wire services picked up pictures of the event—AP Wirephotos, UP-Acme and International Newsphotos. In New York, every daily carried shots of the event, even the New York Times, whose coverage alone made it seem an event of magnitude. Daily News, Mirror and Journal-American carried the photos frontpage, latter breaking at 3 p.m. Wednesday, day of the christening.

Magazine coverage, although unable to compete with spot news of the dailies, was no less complete. Life, which hit the stands with its April 6 issue on Friday (27), had a front cover devoted to the family group and a story on the inside. Mag printed ads as late as Thursday (2) showing the cover, which billed the group as America's "First TV Family." Look hustled to complete the press run of its April 21 issue, out this week, which features a color cover of the family and a story by Jess Oppenheimer, one of the writers of the CBS-TV show. And first issue of the newly-reorganized national TV Guide, published by Walter Annenberg, had a color cover of the baby plus a lead story in its Thursday (2) issue.

Extraordinary coverage by the newspapers caught the N.Y. office of publicist Ben Sonnenberg off guard. Arnaz and Miss Ball had requested a minimum of publicity on the christening, and had allowed only one photographer in the church. Sonnenberg office had sent out the photos as a matter of routine, with no special effort behind it. Following pickup by the wire services, event bloomed into a photo editors' bonanza, with the Sonnenberg office swamped by requests for the pictures. Late Thursday afternoon, prints were still being made.

Showman-Novelist

Selig Seligman has authored "Honey on the Hill" which William Sloane is bringing out. It is about the Washington 5%ers, with whom the author, now a theatre executive, was familiar during his legal career with the Securities & Exchange Commission and the War Production Board in Washington during World War II.

Seligman is v.p. and g.m. of Northio Theatres, 14-house circuit affiliated with United Paramount Theatres, and at present headquartered in Cincinnati. Since the UPT-American Broadcasting Co. merger Seligman may segue over to the radio-TV end in an administrative capacity. Author's father-in-law is Nate Blenstock, w.k. New York business management counsel for show biz personalities.

Publishing Firm Combine

Pellegrini & Cudahy and Farrar, Straus and Young have amalgamated their publishing firms with the combined lists to be issued under the latter org's imprint. New setup will have John Farrar, board chairman, as editor-in-chief, and Sheila Cudahy, former editor and publisher of Pellegrini & Cudahy, Roger W. Straus, Jr., and Stanley P. Young as co-editors.

Miss Cudahy will also be a member of the publishing outfit's Board of Directors.

Mystery Writers' 'Edgars'

Mystery Writers of America will deliver their "Edgars" for the best work during 1952 in first novel, shortstory, motion picture, radio, television, criticism and fact-crime writing at their annual Edgar Allan Poe Awards dinner April 23 at the Henry Hudson Hotel, N. Y. Helen Reilly, president of MWA, will speak.

CHATTER

Harmonicaist Larry Adler doing a book for Ken McCormick at Doubleday.

Eva Le Gallienne's autobiography, "With a Quiet Heart," coming from Viking April 24.

Lionel Barrymore's novel, "Mr. Cantonwine: A Moral Tale," slated for Little Brown publication May 19.

N.Y. drama critic Ward Morehouse's book of reminiscences, "Just the Other Day," to be published by McGraw-Hill April 22.

Theodore Purdy, editor-in-chief of G. P. Putnam's, in Hollywood to contact authors and studio story chiefs.

Mag writer Martin Abramson in a Baltimore hospital following appendectomy. He was taken off a Florida-bound plane and rushed to the hospital.

Kay Campbell returned to the Coast with assignments from Ladies Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion, Country Gentleman and other mags.

Ed & Pegeen Fitzgerald's Sunday night "Manners" program over ABC-TV has resulted in a bid from Prentice-Hall for a "modern public deportment and etiquette" book.

Woodrow Wirsig, Woman's Home Companion ed, made a quick trip to the Coast and assigned a number of Hollywood stories to Cameron Shipp, Jane Morris and Kay Campbell.

Arnold Shaw (Leeds and Duchess Music), who authored "The Money Song" for Random House—Tin Pan Alley background from the songwriter's viewpoint—now working on a music biz novel focused around a top vocalist. Third in the series will focus around the music publisher.

Time mag will hold its annual reception for editors and publishers attending the convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. at the Waldorf, N.Y., April 22.

Anatole Chujoy, editor of Dance News, is set for dates on programs of Mary Margaret McBride (WABC, N.Y.) April 14, Ballet Today (WNYC, N.Y.) April 18 and Alma Dettinger (WQXR, N.Y.) April 21, to discuss his forthcoming books, "The N.Y. City Ballet" and "Dance News Annual," both to be issued by Knopf April 13.

Obituaries

Continued from page 63

shire Legislature and painted the wildlife murals in the State House.

EDWARD J. BURKE

Edward J. Burke, radio and advertising head of the R.A. McWhirr department store, Fall River, Mass., died April 4 in that city.

One of the pioneer dejays, he earned the title "Dean of Disk Jockeys" conducting the half-hour program, "Musical Parade and Shopping News," over WSAR for the last 22 years.

Survived by wife; a son, Edward S., CBS-TV producer; three brothers and two sisters.

RALPH P. WORDEN

Ralph P. Worden, 58, Cleveland newscasting veteran, died March 31 in that city after a heart attack. A former radio editor for the Cleveland News in the 1920s, he subsequently headed newsrooms at WHK and WJAY before moving into a similar post at WGAR. He later became public affairs director at WGAR.

Survived by his wife, a daughter, a son and four grandchildren.

YERMIE STERN

Yermie Stern, 59, promoter and manufacturer of jukebox title strips, died March 20 in N. Y. His prime show biz venture during Prohibition was with the Casino de Paree, N. Y., Billy Rose's theatre-cabaret operation.

Wife, three sisters and a brother survive.

MRS. FRANCES PEART

Mrs. Frances Peart, 75, who with her husband, John, was a pioneer film exhib in central Illinois, died in Litchefield, Ill., March 13.

The couple owned and operated a house in Gillespie for a number of years but retired several years ago and moved to Lincoln.

JEAN EPSTEIN

Jean Epstein, 54, pioneer film producer and screen writer, died April 1 in Paris. His first production was "Pasteur," made in 1922.

Epstein was responsible for introducing slow motion in the 1928 filmization of "The House of Usher."

OWEN LAWSON

Owen Lawson, 72, composer, pianist and singer, died April 5 in N. Y. Lawson, who wrote the music for several Bert Williams songs, had entertained for several years at the Tally-Ho Restaurant, N. Y.

Wife survives.

LEWIS E. HOLLAND

Lewis E. Holland, 64, musician and composer, died March 30 in Toledo of a heart attack. Only two weeks earlier he had been notified by Wittenberg (O.) College that his song, "March Wittenberg," had been selected as an official tune for the college. He played in other orchs and later organized his own.

His wife, three daughters and two sons survive.

LOUIS D. FROHLICH

Louis D. Frohlich, 68, vet music and film industry lawyer, died March 31 in Lenox Hill Hospital, N.Y.

Further details on Page 2.

HENRY FRITZ

Henry Fritz, 97, who directed 112 orchs in Indiana and Ohio during his lifetime, died April 2 in Tipton, Ind.

He played the cornet.

JOHN McCUTCHEON

John McCutcheon, former film producer, died of a heart attack March 31 in Los Angeles.

His wife and daughter survive.

Frederick Boddington, Toronto's top musical instrument dealer for many years, founder and secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Music Dealers Assn., died in Toronto March 31. Survived by wife and four daughters.

Lester A. Sweeney, 50, supervisor of the Columbia studio hospital, died of a heart attack March 31 in Hollywood while visiting his doctor for a checkup. He had been with Columbia for 17 years. His wife, son and daughter survive.

Father, 75, of Elmer Wiener, concert manager and pressagent, died March 31 in Cleveland. Son, a New Yorker, was in Cleveland at the time hadnling press for forthcoming Metropolitan Opera engagement there.

Wife, 52, of Bill Corum, veteran sportscaster and sports columnist for the N. Y. Journal-American and head of Churchill Downs racetrack, died April 6 in Daytona Beach, Fla.

W. Allen Schofield, 66, organist who had toured with Metropolitan Opera Co. singers years ago, died April 4 in Norwalk, Conn. Wife, three daughters and three sons survive.

Mother, 85, of Robert B. Hanna, Jr., manager of General Electric Co. radio and television stations in Schenectady, died April 3 in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Samuel V. Sudano, 49, member of Paramount's transportation staff, died March 25 in Hollywood. For years he was a member of the studio's baseball team.

Husband of Mae Stephenson, veteran chief operator for Warner theatres in Pittsburgh, died March 26 in Mercy Hospital there.

Newton C. Alden, 88, former actor, died April 1 in Hollywood. His wife, Vera Alden, former actress, survives.

Anthony J. DeMartini, 70, leader of an orch in St. Louis for many years, died of heart disease in St. Louis March 31.

Austin C. Green, 44, pianist with several orchs in the Toledo area in the last 20 years, died March 30 in Toledo after a long illness. His wife and a brother survive.

Frances McHugh, 40, legit actress and wife of Tom Tully, screen player, died March 30 in Santa Monica, Cal.

Mother, 64, of Izler Solomon, conductor of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, died in Buffalo March 1.

Harry Ehrenberg, 57, trumpeter with the Vincent Lopez orch when it was organized in the 1920s, died recently in Buffalo.

David Yacamini, 62, music adviser and judge, collapsed and died at Perth (Scotland) Music Festival March 25.

Benjamin D. Dubinski, 86, who held patents on the development of the jukebox, died in San Antonio March 31.

Father, 59, of Jan Sterling, film actress, died April 1 in Stamford, Conn.

Arthur Cunningham, 85, cinema pioneer, died in Morecambe, England, March 22.

Arthur Leigh, 81, character actor and producer, died in Derby, England, March 11.

Johnny Dotson, former owner of the Blue Moon, Wichita, Kan., died April 4 in Wichita.

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

What would you guess most distinguishes America from other lands? Those who have traveled around the world say it's noise. As a people, we are wired for sound like public address systems and when normal noises run down we can always explode another atomic bomb and relay the gab that accompanies that into 25,000,000 homes.

The why of all this isn't too clear, but then mankind has always been most loud when least lucid. Pope thought that narrow-souled people like narrow-necked bottles made more noise the less they had in them. This couldn't be the answer because as every American knows, there's nothing provincial about Americans. (Laughter.)

That all this noise contributes to the enrichment of psychiatrists, I have no doubt. That it enriches showmen and those of us on the dusty hem of show biz, I do not doubt either. It is these latter Stentors who most concern us, because, with too many crackups among showmen, we will soon be out of readers and hence out of biz.

The first time I ran into this terrifying hazard was in 1928. I was invited to attend the unveiling of the first radio in the area. In France it was then called TSF—"telegraph without wires." "Radio" referred to radiograms. Our patron owned a string of picture houses and what was known as a grand homme d'affaires.

He dialed into the Paris bandwave and the first news to greet our excited ears was that our patron's theatre operations had collapsed and that he was, to put it indelicately, at the very moment a fugitive from justice. Not being a woman who had shot her husband for trying to regulate the calling hours of her lover, the chances were our patron would end his days on Devil's Island. He scrammed, and we did too.

Next time I met a radio face-to-face was in 1933, on returning to America. I was a guest of J. P. McEvoy on his Woodstock estate in the Catskills. It was Sunday afternoon. At least 10 persons were gathered in the library before dinner. Some were talking, others were reading, few were dozing. Through it all the radio blared. Mac went around and polled each guest to see if any were listening to the radio program. Nobody was. So he went over and turned it off.

The Deaf Are Not Crazy?

Some years later, we were at Jim Tully's place on the shores of Toluca Lake and Mac had just returned from a trip to Japan. Al Lewin, the producer, was at Tully's too. Mac was saying that even if blindfolded he could have told when the ship was coming into the port of Los Angeles, because the noise was increasing the nearer the ship came to the harbor.

"In fact," he said, "I think noise is our chief contribution to civilization. Don't you think so, Al?"

"What?" asked Lewin, who was very hard of hearing.

"You lucky dog," said Mac. "You've got the cure for this menace!"

There are, of course protective devices against being driven crazy by stepped-up sound tracks. One, which would particularly appeal to people at this season of the year, is a weekend retreat where everybody is requested to keep silent and listen to himself think. The Franciscans conduct one at Serra above Malibu Beach and certainly need no plug from me, because they are turning them away. Twice as many retreatants pack into these places now as did 10 years ago. They are run like deluxe hotels and make no charge, though many contribute generously in plain envelopes before leaving Sunday night.

There are about six half-hour meditations, lectures really, by the Franciscan padres. They deal with matters of life and death, marriage and so on. They are delivered with a light touch and if they leave any doubts, the doubters can write their questions, put them in a question box and have them answered at a session in the library in the afternoon. Smoking is permitted but not talking. No newspapers, radio or other distractions are permitted. In an emergency, of course, a retreatant could be reached by phone, but not otherwise.

During meals, one of the retreatants was selected to read aloud to the silent diners. But at Serra, this has been supplanted by recordings of the "Hour of St. Francis," which now goes to an excess of 600 radio stations and an estimated audience of 15,000,000 weekly. Thus, over a weekend, a retreatant is able to hear one-fifth of the year's output. Old favorites are sometimes played, some dating back to 1946 when the "Hour" begn with 40 stations. Among these are programs featuring Robert Ryan, Loretta Young, Macdonald Carey, Rosalind Russell, Stephen McNally, Charles Laughton, Wallace Ford, Joan Leslie, Tyrone Power, Jeanne Crain, Gene Lockhart, Ann Blyth, June Haver, Pat O'Brien and Bob Hope.

The recordings are distributed without cost and carry no commercials beyond an explanation of the Third Order of St. Francis, which finances the programs. Actors are paid Equity minimums.

The disks are distributed over most of the civilized world and have built up a tremendous following of people of all beliefs. Programs are adapted from life, from magazine stories or originals. Juanita Vaughan, who is secretary of the organization, writes most of the scripts and does a highly polished professional job of them. Pat McGeehan, Virginia Greg and Dan O'Herlihy are pros who appear on the programs more or less regularly in supporting roles.

Some areas previously not noted for their tolerance and charity are way up there among the leaders. Pennsylvania tops them all, with 33 outlets. Texas and California are tied for second, with 30. Next is Ohio, with 26; New York, with 25; North Carolina and Indiana, with 22; Illinios, with 21, and Iowa, with 20. The rest make up the 600 stations among them.

The program has won many horors, the most recent being Freedom Foundation's George Washington Honor Medal for "an outstanding contribution to a better understanding of the American way of life". The award was for "The Congressman's Temptation," a Satevepost story by Dana Burnett adapted by Mark Kearney and Juanita Vaughan and featuring Bill Lundigan, a 20th-Fox contractee.

How to Tell A Franciscan

In its whole career, "The Hour of St. Francis" has only had two directors. The first was Fr. Hugh Noonan, now head of the Serra Retreat. The second and present director is Fr. Kenneth Henriques. Franciscans are addressed by their first names. People rarely know their last names. There are brothers and priests in the order. It is not easy to tell them apart, except that the padres can say Mass and the friars cannot.

They wear the same brown robes, cowls, sandals. One tourist visiting Serra, which is a California showplace and can be inspected from Monday to Thursday, asked a priest if he could help tell friars from padres. He tried and ended by saying that possibly the padres were better educated and, due to difference in their duties, kept their habits neater. She looked him up and down and said, "Thanks a lot, Brother."

About a year ago, they thought they would break into television. They made a pilot film starring Pat O'Brien. It was a piperoo. Ford snapped it up and wanted 26 weeks of them at $20,000 a week. This had everybody dancing in the cloister. Everybody but the Provincal. He said the Order of Friars Minor was vowed to poverty and couldn't go into the business of making TV pictures, no matter how high the motive nor how uplifting the scripts. So the picture was sold to General Electric as a one-shot proposition and the money distributed among those who labored to produce it.

I was a hero, if you can call it that, of one of these St. Francis programs. Pat McGeehan played me. I thought he was fine. His voice, for one thing, is pitched better for the caprices of radio. Mine tends to hit E above high C, making me think I'm listening to Eleanor Roosevelt. McGeehan's is more in keeping with the manly character of the inner Scully.

Broadway

Bob O'Neill, former publicist for Loew's State, has joined the John O'Malley flackery.

Metro director Gottfried Reinhardt due in from Europe today (Wed.) on the Liberte.

Van Johnson returned to the Coast after a quickie visit to appear on "Suspense" Monday (6).

William German named chairman of the amusements industry's drive on behalf of the 1953 Joint Defense Appeal campaign.

Warner moppet star Sherry Jackson in from the Coast Monday (6) for bally activity on behalf of "Trouble Along the Way."

Big spread in the current Pageant on the Versailles Club, both from the back-of-the-kitchen and front-of-the-floorshow viewpoint.

Claude C. Philippe (of the Waldorf) hosting a reception for (Miss) Claude Nollier, of "Justice Is Done," current French film in N. Y.

Robert Reud back in N. Y. after advance-agenting, with Nathan Schenker, for Ballet Theatre on its 98-city tour which winds up April 18.

Edith & William Goetz (Universal Pictures production chief) chartered Huntington Hartford's yacht for a fortnight's cruising in the Caribbean.

Janine and Harry Novak (he's head of Continental sales for Universal) due in from Paris around May 6 on their biannual visit to the homeoffice.

Metro director Richard Thorpe arrives from the Coast Saturday (11) and leaves the following day for England to work on "Knights of the Round Table."

Cinema Lodge B'nai B'rith holding its first presidents' luncheon today (Wed.) at the Astor honoring retiring prexy Martin Levine and incoming topper Burt Robbins.

CBS prexy Frank Stanton has reservations on the April 16 sailing of the Ile de France for a six weeks' holiday in France, but still a question if he can get away on schedule.

Former RKO prexy Ned Depinet to Boston yesterday (Tues.), where he was guest speaker at Variety Club luncheon honoring RKO Boston sales manager W. H. (Larry) Gardiner.

Lou Breslow, writer-director who recently formed an indie company to turn out his original, "The Big Shock," sails Friday (10) on the Liberte to o.o. European locations for the projected film.

Jim Sauter's collection of African sculptures on sale tonight (Wed.) at Parke-Bernet Galleries, featured along with Mrs. Winifred C. Bowman, a Connecticut private collector of modern paintings.

Maxim's and the Hotel George V of Paris tee off the Festival Gastronomique at the Waldorf-Astoria, part of the hostelry's cuisine salute to France, capped by the "April In Paris" fete in the grand ballroom on the 20th.

Anna Magnani scheduled to arrive Saturday (11) on the Andrea Doria to attend the American preem of her new film, "Bellissima." Others due in on the same ship are producer John Ford and writer Renzo Avanzo.

Richard and Edith Barstow, brother and sister who staged and choreographed Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, to be honored at a special McCarthy's Steak House luncheon on Sunday (12) by the circus troupers.

Arlene Dahl and Fernando Lamas, who just completed Pine-Thomas' "Sangaree" for Paramount release, in from the Coast over the weekend and plane to France next Monday (13) to attend the Cannes Film Festival.

Jimmy, blind newsdealer and familiar Times Sq. figure, who for years has been delivering VARIETY and other periodicals to various show biz enterprises in the Broadway area, is opening his own newsstand on the corner of 48th St. & 7th Ave.

Auto-Lite Co. was to throw a supper benefit for Armed Services Emergency Relief Funds honoring the women of the armed forces, and Irene Dunne, Roz Russell, Van Johnson and Robert Merrill at the Waldorf last night (Tues.), following telecast of "Easter Parade of Stars" Auto Show on CBS-TV, on which they were to appear.

South Africa

By Arnold Hanson

The Rialto in Strand, a suburb of Capetown, completely destroyed by fire.

The first drive-in in South Africa opened in Johannesburg recently.

"Limelight" is proving a great boxoffice hit in the Union of South Africa.

Metro was first to show 3-D pix in this country, using its Metroscopic shorts.

John Davis, managing director of Arthur J. Rank Organization, planed in for visit to Johannesburg.

African Consolidated Theatres is now running "Bwana Devil" (UA), initial feature pic to play South Africa.

"Remember Island," which was written by Patterson McCullagh of Capetown produced locally, did good biz.

Bob Hope and Bing Crosby may make a golfing tour of the country as part of Schlesinger's Jubilee celebration.

Gwen Efrangson-Davies may return to London next month to appear in Old Vic's Coronation production of "Henry the Eighth."

Brian Brooke Co. doing record biz with "The Innocents." Other successful productions were "Lady from Edinburgh" and "Dial M for Murder."

John Isaacs appointed branch manager for African Consolidated Theatres in Capetown. Tom Radly succeeded Isaacs as branch circuit manager.

Joe M. Wolff, producer manager of the Atlas Corp., recently in South Africa, said his company would seek a TV license for down here this year.

Casablanca

By Richard Guard

Casino in Marrakech getting big play from Metro's "Saadia" company.

Galas Karsentry & Co. on tour of Morocco in "Felix," by Henri Bernstein.

Katherine Dunham's group did eight shows at the Grand Theatre in Casa.

The Rialto now running original version prints of American pictures every Wednesday night.

Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Consul" in for six performances; four in French, two in English. Marie Powers and Rosemary Kuhlman head the New York cast.

Bullfighting reopened after absence of over 10 years. First show filled the 10,000 seat arena to overflowing. Newspaper critics and crowd displeased with everything except the bulls and weather.

Riviera

By Ed Quinn

Renee Saint Cyr played "Rue des Anges" at the Casino Theatre, Nice.

Sol Hurok in Monte Carlo to confer with Casino entertainment chiefs.

Orson Welles planed to London after two days as guest of Sir Alexander Korda.

Susan Hayward spent a few days in Cannes before continuing her European holiday tour.

Tino Rossi left for Corsica to supervise the construction of his villa in Ajaccio. He will shortly go on a circus tour accompanied by Jacques Helian and his orch.

The Vieux Colombier, Juan-les-Pins, reopened its new season with floor show featuring "Les Rats de St. Germain des Pres" and the Robby Davis and Georges Gustin bands.

Janine Solange and her "Maitrise de Danse" played a one-night stand at the Opera House, Nice. After a short tour of the south, the company returns to Paris for a stay at the Palais de Chaillot.

San Francisco

By Ted Friend

Jack Benny in for Press Club Gang dinner.

Hildegarde playing the Veteran's Hospital circuit.

William L. Shirer sparking Jewish Welfare Fund kickoff dinner.

Charlie Morrison gandering local talent for possible Mocambo bookings.

Joe E. Lewis set for initial Frisco engagement, April 14 at Fairmont Hotel.

Woody Herman, Frankie Laine, Ella Fitzgerald and Louis Jordan in for Frisco and Oakland concerts.

Barcelona

By Joaquina C. Vidal-Gomis

French warbler Jacqueline Francois at Rio nitery.

American actor Barry Fitzgerald vacationing in Sitges.

The Rambal Co. at the Calderon doing "Fatal Whistle."

Gasco-Granada Co. at Barcelona Theatre with "The Constant Wife."

Rigat nitery has Trio Bragazzi from the London Savoy; Font y Nita and Three Batams on same bill.

Romea Theatre has new detective play, "Parallel 1934," by legit writers J. M. Poblet and R. Tasis.

Legit writer Jose Ma. Peman presented free adaptation of "Edipus Rex" at the Comedia, with Lope de Vega Co.

London

Sam Eckman, Jr., boss of Metro's British org, to Rome last week.

Irene Hilda booked for return date at the Pigalle; scheduled to open Monday (13).

Ciro's Club staging a Coronation ball with a $21 minimum tab, including champagne dinner and breakfast.

Fred Russell, 91-year-old father of Val Parnell and preceptor of the Grand Order of Water Rats, guested at last week's Variety Club lunch.

James Majorel, of National Screen Service, Hollywood, and his wife, Mel, both attorneys, vacationing in London and gandering British law courts.

Val Parnell tossed a Chuck Wagon party for Tennessee Ernie at the Festival Gardens. The singer opened a two-week date at the Palladium last Monday (6).

Big show biz contingent which arrived on the Queen Mary last week included Emile Littler, Reg Connelly, Allan Jones, Max Factor, Jr., J. J. Shubert and Dorothy Carless.

Paul Douglas due in from Hollywood next month to star in "The Puffers," Ealing's new Michael Balcon production. The film will be produced almost entirely on location in Scotland.

Alf Barnett, operator of the Embassy Club with his brother, Bob, has offered Margaret Truman a Coronation cabaret date and has cabled an offer for the "highest salary paid by a British club."

Walt Disney due in town next week for preem of "Peter Pan" at Leicester Square Theatre April 16. Because of court mourning, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, with their son, Prince William, had to cancel out.

Paris

Gregory Peck to London for confab on upcoming pic for J. Arthur Rank.

Lana Turner here for a looksee before heading for the Cannes Film Festival.

Run of Roland Petit's "Ballets de Paris" extended from six to 10 weeks at Empire.

Mouloudji back into Le Carroll's for eight-day stint before leaving for Canada.

Jacques Villedieu, after click in "Frederic General," signed for "Three Musketeers" pic.

"Porgy and Bess" to play Palais de Chaillot when it returns here after stint at Milan's Scala in August.

Academy Award pix running here are "Greatest Show" (Par), "High Noon" (UA), and "Quiet Man" (Rep).

Harry Kurnitz completing play version of his own novel, "Reclining Figure." Set for August rehearsal in N. Y.

Frederich Knott here for opening of his legiter, "Dial M for Murder," under the Gallic monicker, "Crime Parfait."

Andre Gide's "Les Caves Du Vatican" getting a reprise at the Comedie-Francaise where it has not been presented since 1951.

Andre Brunot being feted by the Comedie-Francaise on his leaving the C-F to enter the Jean-Louis Barrault-Madeleine Renaud Co.

Serge Veber's operetta "A Woman a Day" comes into the Theatre De Paris to replace exiting operetta "C'Est Ecrit Dans Les Etoiles."

Viola Jefferson, American Negro singer, into the Metro-Jazz cave nitery here to replace Lil Armstrong who is off on a Continental concert tour.

Charles Boyer arriving for film based on Louise de Villemorin novel, "Madam de . . . ", which Marcel Achard is adapting and Max Ophuls is to direct.

India

India government's film division bringing out 16m versions of newsreels and documentaries for clubs and institutions.

Film interests pressing India government to include films as major item in Trade Pact being negotiated with Pakistan.

Columbia Pictures took distribution rights on English version of "Jungle," produced by William Berke in association with Modern Theatres of Salem last January.

American Director Ellis R. Duncan commissioned by India government to produce color films on wild life of Assam jungles. These would be for exhibition abroad in attempt to attract more tourists.

Motion Picture Producers Assn. decided to renew contract with army authorities for supply of Indian pictures. Supply of pix was stopped as protest against criticism voiced by General Cariappa against Indian films.

Madras regional censor threw cold water on the idea of allowing Motion Picture Producers Assn. to administer all censoring without government of India censor boards having a say in matter. Authorities consider film industry not developed enough for such self-regulation.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan

Ellis Tolin, who formerly headed own local combo, in as drummer for Charley Ventura orch.

Dave Cohen, co-owner of Ciro's, off to Florida for long delayed vacation, called back by AGVA hassle.

Label Spiegel, proprietor of Miami Beach Latin Casino, in town talking plans for all-Latin revue package.

Charles Laughton slated for Academy of Music, April 17, doing a series of readings for church fund benefit.

Joseph Santarlasci, office staffer with Philadelphia Orchestra since 1945, named assistant manager of the symphony.

Brody family sold Wedge Cafe, N. Philly spot, to Buddy Ottenberg, owner of Knotty Bar, and Al Nierenberg.

Mrs. Herb Smiler, wife of Embassy Club owner and former dancer known professionally as Helene Gerardo, to Metropolitan hospital for surgery.

Milan

By R. F. Hawkins

"Pink Danger," new musical starring comedian Macario, wound up fair run at the Lirico.

Jean Cocteau in town for a lecture at Teatro Manzoni, sponsored by the Italo Cultural Assn.

Antonio Abussi and pianist Antonio Beltrami here for a Bach, Debussy and Strauss concert at the Nuovo.

Renato Rascel musical, "Attanasio, Cavallo Vanesio," moves to Genoa after eight weeks here at the Nuovo.

Gilberto Govi returns to the stage after long absence. Opens at the Odeon with Rina Govi in "I Manezzi De Maia Ma Figgia."

La Scala preeming a new opera, "Mas 'Aniello," by Vittorio Viviani with music by Jacopo Napoli. Franca Duval, Anna Maria Rovere and Carlo Bergonzi are starred.

Portland, Ore.

By Ray Feves

First-runs bogged down with advanced-price pix.

Evergreen veepee William Thedford in city for a few days.

Helen Boice and Lois Raye held for a second week at the Clover Club.

The Delta Rhythm Boys and Margaret Brown opened at Amato's Supper Club this week.

Katharine Cornell in "The Constant Wife" opened a week's engagement at the Mayfair April 8.

George Amato, chairman of the Independent Nitery owners, did a neat job at the state legislature in obtaining a good new liquor law.

"The Biggest Show," featuring Louis Jordan, Frankie Laine, Woody Herman, and Ella Fitzgerald did a one-niter at Auditorium April 7.

Vienna

By Emil W. Maass

American singer Dorothy Fisher at Brahms Saal.

Rudolf Henz elected prexy of Austrian Cultural Club.

Robert Stolz to direct Symphonic Orch during local music festivals.

N. Y. pianist Helen Schnabel here disking and to give concert in Brahms Saal.

Herbert Karajan directing music for Maleno Malenotti film of "Life of Richard Wagner."

American pic, "First Legion," will open the Third Catholic Film Festival here April 26.

The play, "I Present Love," by Hans Rainer, ex-PW, who wrote the play while a prisoner of war, preemed at Gratz City Theatre.

Washington

By Florence S. Lowe

Farley Grainger due this week to plug "Hans Christian Andersen."

Loew's producer Alan Zee in charge of next weekend's outdoor Cherry Blossom Festival, at which 4-year-old Pattigene Foxe, daughter of Loew flack Jacke Foxe, will assist in crowning festival queen.

W. Wolf Reade, recently information officer for Armed Forces' German youth activities, named press relations director for the National Symphony, replacing Gregory Carmichael, who resigned to reopen his own publicity firm.

Hollywood

Dorothy Lamour laid up with mumps.

Hedda Hopper home from the hospital.

Vittorio Gassman due in from Italy April 27.

Rosemary Clooney and Jose Ferrer planed to Chicago.

Jackie Gleason took three-year lease on a house in Bel Air.

Norman Moray in from N. Y. for huddles with Jack L. Warner.

Harold Lloyd's daughter, Peggy, joined Kennedy-Hendrix flackery.

Edward Knopf and family leave April 17 for five-month tour of Europe.

Kenny Stevens resigned as general manager of Sonja Henie's ice show.

Julian Lesser in from London where he produced "The Saint's Return."

Vic Damone and his managers, Marvin Cane and Nick Savano, in from N.Y.

David Milton starting his 26th year in film biz, as art director at Allied Artists.

Alfred Werker cracked his left ankle while directing RKO's "Arizona Outpost."

Brian Donlevy switched from Famous Artists to the William B. White Agency.

Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis won the "Snickers Award" of National Laugh Week Foundation.

Robert Young in from the east where he addressed youth groups for the National Safety Council.

Robert L. Jacks and Henry Hathaway leave for England next week to scout locations for "Prince Valiant."

John Farrow to Mexico City to accept a gold plaque from the Mexican Film Board of Trade for directing "Plunder of the Sun."

Chicago

Jose Greco currently doing a week at Opera House.

Betty Hutton comes in for two weeks at the Shubert May 4.

Rosemary Clooney in for a week as headliner at Chicago Theatre.

Joe E. Lewis weekending here before going to Hot Springs for a siesta.

Barry Hyams in for opening of "Mrs. McThing" at Erlanger Monday (6).

Richard Krakeur in for opening of his production, "Affairs of State."

Paul Douglas and Jan Sterling in town visiting relatives before going to England.

Mrs. Buddy Ebsen and family and Martha Scott's husband, Mel Powell, and their children in for the run of "Male Animal."

Miami Beach

By Lary Solloway

Patachou opens at Saxony's Pagoda Room this week.

Spike Jones band set for Dade County Auditorium April 19.

Charlie Barnet's new orch breaks in at Martha Raye's Five O'Clock Club April 22.

Phil Brito out of San Marino Hotel Carnivale Room and headed for Montreal date.

Paul Blaufox in town to set talent for Arthur Godfrey telecasts from here April 15-18.

"12 Mile Reef" unit started shooting this week on location at Key West and Tarpon Springs.

Revue producer Carlyle taking over Diamond Horseshoe and changing name of spot to Club Carlyle.

Allied Artists press reps of John Flynn and Howard Goldstein here setting details of sales convention at Roney Plaza next month.

Earl Wilson stretched 24-hour stay at Lord Tarleton to week's sojourn with host Walter Jacobs tossing shindig for columnist in Jolson Corner of hotel Friday (3). Block and Sully, also at this hotel, emceed.

Anchorage, Alaska

Hal Junso emceeing at Beachcombers, Kodiak.

Pianist George Ferris and drummer Al Riley at Mecca, Kodiak.

Joyce Mitchell, Lounge organist, back on job after giving birth to a boy.

Comic Larry Lambard and stripper Marquita opened at Last Chance.

Montmartre Inn reopened after winter closure in Kodiak with pianist Al Chouinard featured.

Jerry Owen, after three weeks at Aleutian Gardens here, opened as m.c. at Farthest North club, Fairbanks.

Gene Schuyler returned to m.c. show at Silver Dollar, Fairbanks. Western singer Patty Lu Peters also on bill.

Tropics owner John Betro opened Krazy Kats trio last week. Nitery picking up show again after six-month layoff.

OBITUARIES

ARTHUR FIELDS

Arthur Fields, 65, pop songwriter, former vaudevillian and onetime radio and recording vocalist, died March 29 in Largo, Fla. Fields was one of the 33 persons killed when a fire swept the Littlefield nursing home in Largo. He had gone into the home after suffering a stroke.

Details in Music section.

ROBERT HARRISON

Robert Harrison, 68, actor and director, died April 3 in N. Y. A descendant of President William Henry Harrison and Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, he started his thesp career in stock companies in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Denver. He appeared with Nat Goodwin, Otis Skinner, Maude Adams, Helen Hayes, Judith Anderson, Laurette Taylor, Eva Le Gallienne and Jose Ferrer and had played in productions put on by Charles Frohman, Gilbert Miller, Arthur Hopkins, the Theatre Guild, Cheryl Crawford, Moss Hart, the Shuberts, Guthrie McClintic and Kermit Bloomgarten.

We Regret to Announce the Death of

HARRY RALTON

Friday, April 3rd, 1953

Our Associate at

MILLS MUSIC, LTD., London
MILLS MUSIC, INC., New York

Plays he appeared in included "The Merchant of Venice," in 1931, with Miss Adams and Skinner, and "Candle in the Wind," in 1941, and "Harriet," in 1943, both with Miss Hayes; "The Complex," "Nine Pine Street," "The Honor of the Family," "The Squealer," "Move On, Sister," "Caught," "The Ragged Edge," "Tight Britches" and "According to Law."

His wife survives.

IVAN LEBEDEFF

Ivan Lebedeff, 58, Lithuanian-born actor, died March 31 in Hollywood of a heart attack. He was primarily a film actor, having performed in that medium for about 25 years. In 1922 he made his picture bow in the UFA film, "King Frederick," and later played in French pix. He was brought to the U. S. in 1925 by D. W. Griffith to appear in "Sorrows of Satan." Other films he appeared in here were "Bombshell," "China Seas," "The Golden Arrow," "Love on the Run," "Fair Warning," "History Is Made at Night," "Wise Girl," "Passport to Alcartraz," "Foreign Agent," "Atlantic Flight," "Goin' to Town," "Mission to Moscow," "Around the World," "Rhapsody in Blue" and "Are These Our Parents?"

Lebedeff had written several screen plays and recently had a script accepted by producer-director Frank Capra. He had also written a novel, "Legion of Dishonor," published in 1940.

Wife, actress Vera Engels, survives.

CLYDE F. FRANKLIN

Clyde F. Franklin, 72, retired legit actor, died April 3 in Newark, O. He played hundreds of roles in his 40 years on the stage, some in support of such stars as Jane Cowl, Grace George, Pauline Frederick and Nazimova. His Broadway productions included "The War Song," "This Man's Town," "The Up and Up," "Precedent" (based on the Mooney-Billings case), "Lost Boy," "When the Bough Breaks," "Bloodstream," "Merry-Go-Round," "Peace on Earth," "Strangers at Home," "Hipper's Holiday," "Geraniums in My Window," "Black Pit," "Slight Case of Murder," "Lend Me Your Ears," "All Editions," "Too Many Heroes," "On Borrowed Time" and "Autumn Hill." On retirement several years ago he became associated with the Newark (O.) Auditorium Theatre.

Survived by his wife, the former Musa Deall, former actress, and a son.

THOMAS M. CAHILL

Thomas M. Cahill, 64, former actor and newspaperman, died in Mt. Alto Hospital, near Washington, April 3. Starting as a professional actor in his hometown of Chillicothe, O., he was brought to Broadway and given a bit part in "Seven Keys to Baldpate," starring George M. Cohan, by producer George C. Tyler, a friend of his family. Later he was in George S. Kaufman's "The Detangled Wildwood." He also toured in numerous productions. His final stage role was in "What Price Glory?" in 1925. In between shows and also after 1925, he worked as a newspaper reporter in Washington, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Wheeling.

More recently in Washington, he appeared as a TV actor on local shows. He also played in several Government-made short documentary films.

FREDERICK W. BEETSON

Freederick W. Beetson, 76, film industry leader, died March 31 in Santa Monica, Cal., after a long illness. For years he was executive vicepresident of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, serving in that capacity from 1928 to 1943, when he retired from active duty because of failing health but continued in an advisory capacity. His association with AMPP began in 1924 as that institution's first secretary and treasurer.

Beetson was one of the founders of Central Casting and was its president from its beginning in 1925 to 1934. He also served as treasurer for a number of years.

He was one of the founders of the Motion Picture Relief Fund and functioned as its vice-chairman for six years. He was later made a life member.

His wife and a son survive.

MRS. ILONA THURY

Mrs. Ilona Thury, nee Ilona Konyechni, former actress and nitery performer, died March 31 in N.Y. Born near Budapest, she attended dramatic school there and as a girl toured in Serbia and Russia with a stock company.

Around the turn of the century Mrs. Thury starred in a number of musical productions in Budapest. In 1905 she came to the U.S. and appeared on the Hungarian and German-language stages in "The Merry Widow," "The Gypsy Baron," "The Marriage Market," "Sari," "Liliom" and "The Devil." She also performed in niteries, having appeared in N.Y. at the Tokay restaurant and Zimmerman's Hungaria. She retired four years ago.

A daughter, two sons and two grandchildren survive.

MORLEY PLUNKETT

Morley Plunkett, 58, one of the Plunkett brothers who organized and toured revues during World War I abroad and after the war throughout Canada, died at his home in Peterboro, Ont., March 31.

With the Dumbells, all-male musical revue which preemed in a shack near Vimy Ridge in 1917 and continued with fair regularity until 1929, Plunkett began as a female impersonator and later took other parts. He was in charge of entertainment for Military District No. 3 in Canada during the first war.

Surviving are his wife, daughter, two sons; his brothers, Capt. Mert Plunkett, bandleader and organizer of the Dumbells; Al Plunkett, singer and actor with show, and Sydney.

LAWSON J. RISSMILLER

Lawson J. Rissmiller, 39, a cofounder of Hank Lawson & His Bums, novelty orch which made numerous film shorts and appeared in TV in the Philadelphia area, died April 2 in Oley, Pa.

In Loving Memory of

MAURICE ABRAHAMS

BELLE and HERBERT

Rissmiller was known as "Gloomy" in the five-man group. In 1939 they made a film for Warners, "Broadway Buckaroo," with Red Skelton under the name of Colorado Cow Punchers. He was a graduate of the A. B. Marcus Shows and had worked with Stanley Grubb & His California Night Hawks and with Oliver Naylor in Philadelphia.

Survived by his wife, two children and a sister.

WILLIAM F. J. PIEL

William F. J. Piel, 69, father of David Piel, WPIX, N. Y., TV producer, died April 6 in N. Y. He was president and chairman of the board of Piel Bros., Inc., Brooklyn brewery concern, and president of the Brewers Board of Trade.

IN LOVING MEMORY
OF OUR BROTHER

BERNARD MALTIN

Who Passed Away April 10, 1952

JACQUELINA and AARON MALTIN

Wife, two daughters and three other sons survive.

TRUMAN BRIZEE

Truman Brizee, 48, sales manager of WHAM-TV, Rochester, N.Y., died April 1 in that city after a long illness. Before joining WHAM in 1937 as a salesman, he spent nine years in the entertainment field as publicity agent and manager for the Eastman Theatre Corp., Paramount-Publix Corp., Comerford Theatres, Warner Bros. and Skouras-Fox Theatres.

Brizee was appointed promotion and publicity director of WHAM in 1943, sales manager in 1947, and sales manager for WHAM-TV in 1949.

Survived by his wife, seven children and parents.

MARY CHASE

Mary Chase (Mrs. Mary Gruber), 49, talent agent and manager, died April 5 in Chicago of a heart attack. At the time of her death she managed singers Josephine Premice and Josh White, the latter for many years. She was in Chicago with Miss Premice, who is appearing at the Black Orchid nitery there. Miss Chase also brought singer Eartha Kitt over from Europe and for a number of years had appeared on the stage.

Husband, son, daughter, two sisters, a brother and her mother survive. Further details on Page 2.

HARRY RALTON

Harry Ralton, 43, songwriter and managing director of Mills Music, Ltd., in London, died April 3 in London of tubercular meningitis. He had also been connected with Arcadia Music and at one time had been a concert pianist. He wrote a number of tunes for Richard Tauber. His output included "I Remember the Cornfields," "White Wedding" and "Sleepy Eyes."

Ralton was born in Germany and during World War II was interned in the Buchenwald concentration camp. After the war he settled in London.

ALBERT H. DOWLING

Albert H. Dowling, 69, for many years continuity director and music commentator of WKBN, Youngstown, O., died March 31 in South Side Hospital there after a three-week illness. He came to WKBN in 1938 as a staff announcer, having previously served as a drama and music critic in Erie, Pa. He was an organist and also had several piano selections published.

Dowling had been commentator for the children's concerts of the Youngstown Philharmonic Orchestra, but his activities had been restricted by illness in recent years.

A sister survives.

ARTHUR PAGE

Arthur C. Page, 64, formerly in charge of farm programs at WLS, Chicago, died April 4 in Geneva, Ill. He had conducted "The Dinner Bell," a farm program broadcast over WLS and the ABC network, and was also editor of the Prairie Farmer.

Wife and three sons survive.

GEORGE E. ZIMMERMAN

George Edmund Zimmerman, 62, radio industry pioneer, died March 28 in Little Rock, Ark. He helped build WFAA's first Dallas trahsmitter in 1922. As chief engineer, he installed KFDM, Beaumont, and later was general manager of KPRC, Houston. After a stint with NBC's station relations department he became v.p.-general manager of KARK, Little Rock. In 1951 ill health caused his retirement.

Survived by his wife and a brother.

JOSEPH MANN

Joseph Mann, 85, former trumpet player and music copyist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, died April 3 in Boston. Before his retirement in 1952 he had been associated with the orchestra for 50 years as a trumpet player followed by 11 more years as copyist. During his long tenure he had played under the leadership of every BSO maestro with the exception of present batonist, Charles Munch.

Survived by five daughters.

OTTO K. RINDERSPACHER

Otto K. Rinderspacher, 56, musician, died March 19 in Hastings, Neb., after a long illness. In Vienna prior to World War II he organized an ensemble of musicians from symphony groups and opera and directed them in concerts in Austria and Italy.

Later he led and accompanied the Hastings Civic Symphony and assisted in the Hastings College music department, earning that school's first doctorate of music.

OLIVER R. SHATTUCK

Oliver R. Shattuck, 65, musician, died in Wolfeboro, N. H., March 31.

He organized several bands in the area and designed the controversial New Hampshire float in the Eisenhower inauguration parade. He had served in the New Hamp-

(Continued on page 61)

MARRIAGES

Ruth Edith MacMillan to Herbert Owen Bush, Jr., April 3, Prairie Village, Kans. Groom is announcer for WDAF-TV, Kansas City.

Yolande Molinari to Don McGinnis, Hollywood, recently. Bride is with Allied Capital casting office.

May Ellen Levich and Morley Kaye, New York, March 28. He's in the TV department of the William Morris Agency.

Doris Kay to Douglas Evans, Hollywood, April 5. He's a character actor.

Carolyn Jones to Aaron Spelling, Los Angeles, April 5. She's a screen actress; he's a radio and TV producer-director.

Joan Evans to Lynwood King, Chicago April 5. Bride is costumer for WNBQ; groom is a director at the TV station.

Rene Leilani Kuhn to Douglas Wallace Bryant, N. Y., April 6. Bride and her mother, Irene Corbally Kuhn, are both writers.

Sandra Smith to William Raymond Goodheart, 3d, Champaign, Ill., April 4. Groom's father is exprexy of Official Films and former Music Corp. of America veepee.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leeds, daughter, Hollywood, March 24. Father is general manager of Filmeffects.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wayne Caler, son, Hollywood, March 30. Father is a screen actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brooks, daughter, Montreal, March 26. Father is a singer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Novick, son, April 1, New York. Father is traffic manager of Guild Films, telepix firm.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Sattler, son, Hollywood, March 28. Father is a film attorney at UI.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stump, son, Kansas City, Kan. March 25. Father is program director of KCKN there.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Vernon, daughter, Chicago, March 22. Father is sales manager of the ABC-TV Central Division.

Mr. and Mrs. Jan Andree, daughter, Pittsburgh, March 28. Father's a disk jockey on WPIT.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gladstone, daughter, New York, March 26. Mother is the former Carnegie Tech and Pittsburgh Playhouse actress, Ruth Fisher.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walton, daughter, Pittsburgh, March 27. Father is the son of Herb Walton, chief artist for Stanley-Warner Co. in Pitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Maser, daughter, Pittsburgh, March 25. Father is with Tommy Carlyn orch.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kinander, daughter, N. Y., March 31. Mother is Margaret Stern, a concert pianist; father is a voice coach.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Hollander, son, April 2, New York. Father is production facilities manager for the DuMont network; mother is with Goodson-Todman Productions, radio-TV packagers.

IN MEMORIAM

To Our Beloved

MARY

Who Devoted Her Life to Us

JOSH WHITE and JOSEPHINE PREMICE

The "HOLD ME-THRILL ME-KISS ME" Girl

VARIETY
"Newest of recording chirps makes a decided impression in her nitery debut . . . she earns attention on her stint that is effectively balanced between ballad and rhythm stuff."

BILLBOARD
"Karen Chandler, Coral records singer, can handle any mood effectively and combines voice and stage presence for big results."

A
NEW and VIBRANT Personality

Karen CHANDLER

Just concluded eminently successful engagements at—

Seville Theatre, Montreal, Canada
Gay Haven Club, Detroit, Mich.
Copa Club, Pittsburg, Pa.
Chicago Theatre, Chicago, Ill.
Kin-Wa-Lows, Toledo, Ohio
Rendezvous Club, Phila., Pa.
Town & Country, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Triton Hotel, Rochester, N. Y.
Capitol Theatre, Washington, D. C.

and on TV

Perry Como (Chesterfield Show)
• Two Appearances •
Art Linkletter, Hollywood, CBS
Milton Berle (Texaco Star Theatre)

VARIETY-BILLBOARD-CASH BOX pick

Current CORAL RECORDS Releases Arranged and Conducted by JACK PLEIS

GOODBYE CHARLEY GOODBYE
b/w
I'D LOVE TO FALL ASLEEP
(and wake up in your arms)

Forthcoming Committments ••••
ARTHUR MURRAY SHOW (TV)
RED BUTTONS SHOW (TV)
HARTFORD THEATRE, Hartford, Conn.
TOWN CASINO, Buffalo
LATIN QUARTER, Boston

Personal Management—FRED AMSEL

JERRY JOHNSON, Record Exploitation

ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION

JOE GLASER, President

CHICAGO
203 No. Wabash
Central 6-9451

NEW YORK
745 Fifth Avenue
PLaza 9-4600

HOLLYWOOD
8619 Sunset Blvd.
Crestview 1-8131

FILMS | RADIO | VIDEO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc., Annual subscription $10. Single copies, 25 cents.
Entered as second class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1953, BY VARIETY, INC., ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
VOL. 190 No. 6 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1953 PRICE 25 CENTS

INDUSTRY-BACKED 'STAR CIRCUIT'

Agencies Grazing Mountain Pastures In College Try to Develop Talent

Major talent agencies are now shopping around for mountain summer resorts where they can spot some of their fledgling talent for the entire season in the hope that they can develop repertoires and possibly make the break for video in the fall. Feeling is that if the agencies can get talent, writers and choreographers working together for a season, then acts and possibly complete packages will be born.

The Morris office has taken that step in spotting Dick Shawn and Pat Carroll at Camp Tamiment, Tamiment, Pa., for the entire summer. Both are regarded as promising newcomers in the Morris stable. They'll be working there with radio and tele writers Danny & Doc Simon, choreographer Lee Sherman and producer Moe Hack.

Morris office figures that past history may repeat at that spot. Tamiment, it's recalled, was instrumental in developing Max Liebman, producer-director of the NBC-TV "Your Show of Shows." Liebman worked there for many years.

Green Mansions, Warrensburg, N. Y., is also being spotted as a hideout for promising acts, writers, songwriters and others. Ernest D. Glucksman, producer of the Donald O'Connor, Martin & Lewis and Ben Blue layouts on NBC, was signed from that camp.

Feeling among all the talent offices is that any fresh comedy name has a chance on tele.

R&H Taking Over Boston

Now Rodgers & Hammerstein are taking over Boston. Having more or less taken title to Broadway for the last 10 years, they're about to have shows playing in the Hub for 11 consecutive weeks.

Parade starts next Monday (19) when "Oklahoma" opens a scheduled two-week stand at the Colonial there. It will be the umpteenth return for the original Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein 2d collaboration, then titled "Away We Go," which tried out in Boston just 10 years ago. Although the musical is booked for a fortnight, the engagement could be extended if business warrants.

In the latter case, there'd be two R & H shows in the Hub concurrently, as the new musical, "Me and Juliet," is slated for a three-week tryout stand at the Shubert

(Continued on page 20)

Laughton as 'Duveen'

Hollywood, April 14.

Charles Laughton, after a cycle of legit readings, returns in a full-length play next season, to star in the title role of "Duveen."

Sam N. Behrman is dramatizing his "profiles" on the New York and London art collector which he first did for The New Yorker and later published in book form by Random House. Paul Gregory will produce.

Solons Vote RCA Color TV System 'Ready for Public'

By JOHN HORN

Princeton, April 14.

A special color TV broadcast utilizing compatible RCA equipment and signal specifications recently approved by the National Television System Committee, an all-industry group, was viewed today (Tues.) at the David Sarnoff Research Centre of RCA here by members of the House Committee on Interstate & Foreign Commerce. Rep. Charles H. Wolverton (R., N. J.), who heads that body, was accompanied by representatives of the Federal Communications Commission and the press.

In the personal opinion of chairman Wolverton, the demonstration proved the system is "ready for the public." A major portion of the

(Continued on page 51)

'Picnic,' 'Town,' 'Colonels' Cop N.Y. Critics' Plaudits; Theatre Guild's Two Wins

"Picnic," by William Inge, was named best play of the season yesterday (Tues.) by the N. Y. Drama Critics Circle meeting at Hotel Algonquin. "Wonderful Town" was rated the best musical and "Love of Four Colonels," by Peter Ustinov, the best foreign play. All three winnahs were correctly forecast last week by VARIETY.

In the balloting, 11 of the critics cast their votes for "Picnic," four were for Arthur Miller's "The Cru-

(Continued on page 24)

MERCHANDISING TIES TO TALENT

First major step toward creation of commercially sponsored in-person shows was taken last week when the William Morris Agency and Cappel, MacDonald & Co., a premium and sales incentive firm, made an agreement which calls for the talent agency to be represented by the merchandising concern in the industrial field. It's the first direct tieup between show business and industry for bigtime in-person entertainment, and one which puts the major names of the show biz world at the command of industrial giants.

Hitherto, industrial concerns such as General Motors, Westinghouse, General Electric, Servel and a few others which have staged traveling shows, have done so through their advertising agencies. With the WM-CM tie, top producers and top talents will be harnessed to industrial sales.

It's envisioned that this type of show business will eventually be instrumental in reviving vaudeville. It's expected to be only a minor difference from playing what was once the Keith-Albee or Loew circuit to playing the Gen-

(Continued on page 79)

Berle's 35G-Whiz New Vegas High; Town's Lid Off?

Deal is being set for Milton Berle to go into the Sands Hotel, Las Vegas, July 16. Salary under discussion, $35,000 weekly, is expected to set a new high in the gambling resort's payoffs. Previously, Las Vegas inns had an agreement to stay within a $15,000 limit. However, in recent months this has been extended to $20,000. Berle would supply surrounding talent for his two-week show.

While Berle may be just a rumor to Las Vegas which has no TV, the Sands as well as other resorts depend upon visitors for the bulk of their revenue.

Over the Ceiling

Hollywood, April 14.

The price ceiling for acts playing Las Vegas is definitely off as far as Las Vegas hotels are concerned, according to some agents here. The $15,000 ceiling on acts was agreed to be unenforceable some-

(Continued on page 64)

Figure 9-12 Legiters (With 'Can-Can,' 'Juliet') To Last B'way Summer Grind

Broadway is figured likely to have a minimum of nine and maximum of 12 legit shows running through the summer this year. That's a slightly better prospect than for 1952, when nine entries managed to continue through the hot months.

The nine virtual sure things this year include "Dial M for Murder," "Fifth Season," "Picnic" and "Seven Year Itch" as straight plays, and "King and I," "Wish You Were Here" and "Wonderful Town" as musicals, with the incoming "Can-Can" and "Me and Juliet" as added starters with enough advance sale to guarantee all-summer runs.

Strong candidates for spanning the brutal July and early-August doldrums include "Porgy and Bess," probably "Hazel Flagg," both musicals, and "My 3 Angels" as a straight-show prospect. Among the outside bets are figured "Time Out for Ginger," "Children's Hour" and possibly "Moon Is Blue," the latter two having shown new stamina recently with two-for-one assistance. "South Pacific" and "Guys and Dolls" are vacating town for four and six weeks, respectively, for road engagements.

Last year's summer-stayers were "Moon Is Blue," "Fourposter" and "Male Animal" as the only straight shows and "South Pacific," "Guys and Dolls," "King and I," "Pal

(Continued on page 64)

Maggie T. Nixes Cafe Date

London, April 14.

Margaret Truman has turned down an offer to star in a West End cabaret during the Coronation season. Offer was made by cable by Alfred Barnett, joint operator, with his brother, of the Embassy Club.

He received a reply from Mildred Shagal, v.p. of Kenneth Allen Associates, appreciating the offer, but explaining that Miss Truman will not be in Europe during the summer.

Zanuck Briefs Ike On Sockier Pix Program Abroad

Washington, April 14.

Visit of Darryl Zanuck to Washington last weekend ties in with the Eisenhower Administration study of a plan to remove the Voice of America and other foreign information programs from the State Dept. and to create an independent propaganda unit.

The plan is being considered inside the State Dept., by the White House staff, by two Senate committees and by the propaganda agency itself.

Zanuck, invited here by the President, under whom he served in the North African campaign of World War II, sat in last Friday (10) with two top level Government committees and then conferred with Ike Saturday morning.

(Continued on page 70)

Land, Sky, Sea Cops 'Guard' Godfrey Troupe For Fla. Originations

Miami Beach, April 14.

Arthur Godfrey took over the town this week, arriving with a staff of 60 to stage radio-tele series of his shows through Friday, turning the swank Kenilworth Hotel into what amounts to a complete indoor-outdoor video station. With him came the imposing of the tightest "security" regulations since visits of ex-Pres. Truman to this

(Continued on page 79)

Fisher's 'Anytime' 1st 'Golden' Disk

Although the most consistent hit producer for RCA Victor over the past two years, Eddie Fisher has just turned up with his first 1,000,000-copy seller in "Anytime," a click early in 1952 but which has been selling consistently ever since. Award of the gold-plated disk to Fisher will probably be made this week on stage of the Paramount Theatre, N. Y., where the singer is headlining.

Most of Fisher's other topsellers, such as "Wish You Were Here," "Lady of Spain," "Forgive Me," "I'm Yours," "Downhearted," among others, have averaged between 500,000 to 800,000. Fisher's newest coupling of "I'm Walking Behind You" and "Just Another Polka," got going this week with a 250,000 advance order, one of the biggest ever for Victor.

20th Annual
Radio and Television Showmanagement Awards
(Pages 33-39)

'Official' Pix-TV Mating Set for Fall With ABC's MPAA Film as Clincher

The most "official" mating of Hollywood and television yet takes place next fall under auspices of the Motion Picture Assn. of America over the American Broadcasting Co.'s facilities. It's to be the long-projected filmed TV series, probably at first spearheaded and emceed by Eric Johnston, president of MPAA, and utilizing two or three film clips from current production of all the major studios whose membership comprises "the Johnston office."

The deal which ABC prexy Robert E. Kintner finalized recently on the Coast officially ties Hollywood into the TV picture, whereby video will become a regular trailer for the film industry.

ABC is set to lens the pilot film for the MPAA's institutional TV show. Proposed format for the half-hour program has been presented to the companies and now awaited is the okay of the distribs' ad-pub directors, who are to meet this week.

Cost of the pilot stanza is figured at $10,000 and should not go higher, since the bulk of the program will be taken up by the pic excerpts. Stars of the pix will round out the airer's with brief appearances, eventually taking the emcee spot.

ABC will pitch the completed pic to sponsors. It's understood that some bankrollers have shown interest in the idea already, but if no sponsor can be found, or if the completed film isn't what the distribs had in mind, the whole project will revert to MPAA for reappraisal.

If no hitch develops, the trial reels roll within a couple of weeks. Setup as planned would involve no expense whatever to the studios.

Following Johnston and the players, the action will be a cohesive exposition of what Hollywood has to offer, keying the clips with the release dates. Thus, the

(Continued on page 32)

Minevitch's Private Plane To Paris at Auto Rates Via His Gallic Charm

How Borrah Minevitch, owner of the Harmonica Rascals bearing his name (with which he hasn't appeared for many years), charmed the French Line into transporting his private plane to Paris for the same cargo rate as a tourist automobile is a saga in showmanship selling and characteristic Gallic pride. Obviously, the passenger plane consumes as much space in a hold as several automobiles, but when Minevitch turned on the charm—that he wanted "to see my beloved France from on high, and not on wheels like every casual tourist"—he melted the hearts (and

(Continued on page 25)

Vanderbilt's UJA Film

Author-lecturer Neil Vanderbilt this week signed with the United Jewish Appeal to make a full-length lecture film on Israel.

He'll start work on the pic following his filming of the Coronation in London in June.

'Unsubsidized' U.S. Pix Get Congressional Plug

Washington, April 14.

Strong plug for the unsubsidized American film industry and its impact on the world has been placed in the Congressional Record by Rep. John J. Dempsey (D., N. M.). "This American industry," he said, "has the peculiar distinction of being the only one of its kind in the world which is not subsidized by its Government. All other countries subsidize their film industries but the American industry brings dollars back to the United States. I think it merits commendation.

"American films have an extraordinary impact on social and economic attitudes in all parts of the free world. The fact that Soviet Russia and other Iron Curtain countries bar American films from exhibition in their theatres is mute testimony of the effect and influence our pictures have on the people who view them. Actually our motion pictures are the greatest salesmen of America, its democratic processes and its products."

N.Y. Theatre Wrassles A Hassle: Does It Or Its Employee Claim Jewelry?

An unusual hassle centering around the finding of lost property in a theatre has developed in N.Y., where a court ruling will eventually determine whether the finder (a theatre employee) or the theatre is entitled to final possession, if no claim is made for the lost object.

Principals involved are the Raybond Theatre Corp., operators of the Normandie Theatre on 57th St.; Barry Bond, a former assistant manager of the house, and the N.Y. Police Dept. The lost object is a jewel bracelet, said to be valuable, but its exact worth is undetermined.

Bond reportedly found the bracelet last October. He allegedly held on to it for 10 days; did not report its finding to the top echelon of Raybond, and turned it over to the police. Following a waiting period of six months, time allowed before the finder can claim lost property, Bond was reportedly notified by the police that he could pick up the bracelet. It was at this point, last Wednesday (8) to be

(Continued on page 70)

Showfolk Aid Palsy Drive

Nine more show business reps last week agreed to serve another year as co-chairmen of United Cerebral Palsy's national campaign committee, according to national chairman Bob Hope.

Aides in the drive to raise $7,500,000 are Jack Benny, Milton Berle, Bing Crosby, Arlene Francis, Jinx Falkenburg McCrary, Jane Pickens, Kate Smith, John Cameron Swayze and Jack Webb. Fourth annual campaign kicks off May 1.

HORACE HEIDT
FOR LUCKY STRIKE
Under Personal Management
JOHN LEER
111 Fifth Ave., New York

Bids Swamp Lanza Since M-G Break

Hollywood, April 14.

Music Corp. of America, which represents Mario Lanza, says it has been swamped with offers from radio, television, concerts and motion pictures since Metro announced termination of its contract with the singer-actor Friday (10). Agency spokesman said that the restraining order obtained by Metro last fall prohibiting Lanza from working elsewhere doesn't apply, now that he's a free agent, according to MCA legalites. He also declared that Lanza agreed to start working on "Student Prince" May 5, and the next he heard was that the studio was dropping him.

Metro's long hassle with Lanza came to a climax Friday with the studio firing the singer "for various reasons." Among the reasons, according to a Metro spokesman, was "Lanza's notification that he would not report for work in 'The Student Prince' unless new demands not compatible with his contract were met."

There had been trouble between the singer and the company for nearly a year. It came to a boil last September when the studio filed a $5,195,888 damage suit for refusal to report for "Prince," and asked for a court order restraining Lanza from working elsewhere. Later he agreed to start the picture on May 5.

Balaban, Paley Named To Israel O'Seas Corp. Board

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, and William S. Paley, board chairman of Columbia Broadcasting System, are among the directors of Israel Overseas Corp., which has been set up to invest in the development of industrial enterprises in the State of Israel.

Outfit's registration statement covers $1,600,000 of capital stock and $3,400,000 of 20-year debentures.

A Flat Future

FORECAST BY ARTHUR MAYER

I dreamed that it was 1960 and that the motion picture business had hit a new all-time low. Exhibitors, even in Texas, were weeping and wailing. Many of them were in such reduced circumstances that they were still driving their 1959 Cadillacs. Seven long years had passed since they had first looked at the future through rose-colored glasses, courtesy of the Polaroid Co. Film rentals, which, during the halcyon days of 1954 had mounted to 70%, were now denounced as excessive by Wilbur Snaper, permanent president of Allied, and even circuit spokesmen balked at 90% for roadshows with admission prices raised to $5. The newspapers were filled with reports of theatres being converted into aerostations for interplanetary planes, but there was little mention of the increased seating capacity afforded by the mushroom growth of eight screen drive-ins, gyroscopic drop-ins and 10-mile off-shore submarine dive-ins.

The television interests, under the inspired leadership of Leonard Goldenson of ABC-United Paramount-RKO-Loew, had set as their goal a television set in every room of every house. 150 million of their infernal internal machines were already installed and they were multiplying like rabbits. Most of the sets were of the new flexo constructo type patented by Matty Fox so that they could be expanded or contracted to fit the entire side of anything from a ballroom to a bathroom. They all had the new NBCBS color system, sound effects by Brandt, Inc. and the Sino-More Stereoscopic attachment particularly adapted for bedroom use. Most families had the new Phonyvision installation which, when a dime was dropped in the baby's piggy bank, could bring them the daily rushes from Lippert, Goldwyn and other leading producers.

Something had to be done to save the industry as it had been saved in 1953 by 3D and in 1956 by the Smellies (invented 30 years previously and fully described by Arthur Mayer in his perennial best seller, "Merely Colossal," regular price $3.50, autographed copies $2.50—advertisement).

As usual, it was Spyros Skouras who led the rescue drive. Spryos, having beaten off Green in 1953, Gray in 1955, White in 1957, was now having "tzouras" with both Black and Blue. At simultaneous dinners in the Metropolitan Club of every American and Greek city he announced that every 20th Century-Fox picture hereafter would be photographed on the Touchoscope process.

The feelies at last were a reality. No longer would you merely have Marilyn Monroe in your lap and breath her intoxicating perfume (courtesy of Stalkin), you would now be able to intimately caress her. Charlie Einfeld came through with a brilliant new slogan for the occasion—"Movie Movements Are Better Than Ever." And Mr. Nicholas M. Schenck stated that Metro was closely in touch with Touchoscope. In his behalf Howard Dietz announced in VARIETY that the picture had no problems which a new dimension could not cure.

Is This a System?

The dementia of 3-dimension days was dwarfed by the hysteria that followed these pronunciamentos. Within a week, every company in Hollywood was publicizing its own superior new system and intimating that all other systems were stinkers. Universal had the Feelie-Jeebies; Warner, the Touch-and-Run system; Columbia, the Cohn and Moan. United Artists based its campaign on advertising reading "The UA touch will make you Youngstein." Y. Frank Freeman pleaded in vain for the Paramount Pinch process by which the inventoried film in the vaults of producers, valued at one billion dollars, could be salvaged. Overnight the public declined to attend any films that they could not feel as well as see and smell.

At the height of the panic, however, the National Censor Board, which had been established by an amendment to the Constitution after the State Boards were declared illegal, stepped in. It ruled that films establishing a personal contact with performers ranging in sex appeal from Ma Kettle to Francis, were lascivious, lewd and indecent and could only be shown in houses with uniformed chaperones occupying every third seat. The industry seemed doomed. All work came to a standstill in Hollywood and everyone, except relatives, were dropped from the studio payrolls. Theatre business disappeared completely, even in Bob O'Donnell's theatres. Eric Johnston flew back from Pago-Pago.

A Guy With a Tall Memory

At this juncture, some simple soul suggested that it might be constructive to see some of those ancient flat pictures that used to be exhibited back in the early 1950s. A few desperate exhibitors made the rash experiment. The results were sensational. Even good. Millions of people smashed their stereopticon, scented television sets and rushed back to the theatres to see the oldies. Dozens of decrepit old house managers, no longer sufficiently agile to get out of the way of the stampede of incoming patrons, were run over and crippled for life.

Overnight, every studio in Hollywood had to be retooled. Many of the great negatives of the past had already been junked or allowed to disintegrate. Wise oldtimers, however, like Adolph Zukor and Arthur Krim, unearthed some half-forgotten pictures such as "The Greatest Show on Earth" and "High Noon." Sales departments immediately raised film rentals on these specials. All of the former executives were re-employed in Hollywood and paid their back salaries with interest. Exhibitors dusted off the ragged remnants of their lobby hold-out ropes. The Government reinstated a 40% admissions tax to replace the 20% one abolished in 1953. The operators union insisted on four men in every booth, with double overtime because of the difficulties in relearning how to project flats. The only pictures they continued to project deep into the auditorium were Jane Russell's and Silvana Mangano's. The only odor was that of the films themselves and the whole industry settled down to enjoy another boom until the next crisis should raise its prosperous head.

PHOTOS FREE!
8x10
GLOSSIES
5½¢ EA.
Per Thousand
8½¢ EA.
Per Hundred
10¢ EA.
For Fifty
We use Eastman Paper. Free Delivery Anywhere
Our service is to duplicate your photos in quantities as good as your original or better. Our Guarantee: You must be satisfied or your money back. Samples of our work sent on request.
100 FREE WITH ANY ORDER OF 100 OR MORE
LET'S GET ACQUAINTED!
24 HOUR SERVICE
DUPLICATE PHOTO
GL. 1143 6775 SUNSET BLVD. HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.

Berle—History of Then & Now TV

That a TV milestone has been passed will be realized on Sept. 22 when Milton Berle—no more singing Texaco servicemen, no more Texaco Star Theatre—returns on NBC-TV under General Motors sponsorship.

The Berle-Texaco relationship, which began five years ago, is almost a history of television.

When Berle started with the Texas Co. in 1948, there were about 1,000,000 sets in use. Today there are 23,000,000. Berle's pay has gone from $2.500 a show to $17.500.

In the 1948-49 season, no one was sure of television's future. So Berle doubled in radio for one season.

For three seasons, Berle was Mr. Television, some 20 rating points ahead of the rest of the pack, with the alltime tele rating high, an 80, reached in November 1948 (when mobs formed in front of television stores on Tuesday nights). He slipped to almost 20th in the 1951-52 season, with the hypo of Goodman Ace and a large staff of writers bringing him back to this season's top five.

From a weekly show, Berle went to three out of four this season, and is scheduled for two of three next season.

Television time and talent (for eight stations) cost $10,000 a week back in 1948. As Texaco bows out in 1953, time and talent costs were $110,000 a week (for over 60 stations).

What of the Texas Co.? Priced out of television, it will pause to catch its breath. Next season Texaco will not bankroll a national show on either television or radio. It will merely buy time spots on a local basis.

4/15

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $
Please send VARIETY for One Year / Two Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City ..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates
One Year—$10.00 Two Years—$18.00
Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional per Year

VARIETY Inc.
154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

SEE PIX-TO-TV DAM BURSTING

Watch That Film Flood

The inevitability of more and more new product being released for TV is now almost an immediate certainty. The new boxoffice dimension of 3-D has created a windfall, in turn, for television. Inexorably, a flood of 2-D pix—choice flatties—will follow the decision by the nation's exhibitors to tool up for widescreen and 3-D pix as the more certain lures into their theatres.

There are other manifestations of an even more direct mating of Hollywood with video, even though now an arch-enemy of the b.o. An "official" Motion Picture Assn. of America program series, for TV, under commercial sponsorship, is primed to "showcase" the new pix on telescreens as a lure for getting them into the cinemas. The American Broadcasting Co. is packaging that show for the fall. Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" showed the way for utilizing a high-Nielsen vaudeo as a trailer for new Hollywood product.

Thus, even as 3-D is arching its torso for the big boxoffice kill, the flatties still command premium attention on telescreens.

With 20th-Fox forecasting the inevitability of wide- and third-dimension new film product, there comes the coincidental harbinger that the "old-fashioned" 2-D product will become increasingly available for home telescreen consumption.

Video is hungry for this sort of product. It is still a seller's market for Hollywood to loosen some of its more recent film output for video.

As theatres tool up for the new dimensions, the appeal of the flatties will diminish. It is expected that in a year 1,000 deluxers will have converted to CinemaScope, and that 500 a month thereafter will be the ratio until 3,000 or 4,000 key situations are fully equipped. And presumably it will favor playdating only the new dimensionals.

Comes the flood of film from the production line to TV. The seller's market can veer overnight to the buyer's market, and Hollywood's vaunted axiom that "we are sitting on a billion dollars' worth of assets" may find these frozen assets difficult to thaw into convertible cash. Whoever is the first major to open the celluloid dikes, others will not be far behind.

This calls for a firm hand in the rationing of such valuable film resources for the sudden benefit of TV, not so long ago, and still, the arch-enemy of the b.o.—remember? Prudent judgment and firm counsel should keep in mind that the sudden bounty may prove an even greater menace from the new TV medium than the relative current dearth. Abel.

Arbitration Revival Seen Result Of Senate Small Biz Hearings

Revival of arbitration talks, backed by a strong recommendation from the U. S. Senate, is seen as the outcome of the Senate Select Committee on Small Business probe of industry trade practices. Committee hearings open today (Wed.) in Washington, with members and leaders of Allied States Assn. appearing before the Senate body. With the possible exception of Allied, both exhib and distrib quarters feel that the Senate body will strongly suggest that the industry get together and work out its own differences. The Motion Picture Assn. of America and Theatre Owners of America, both staunch advocates of an arbitration system, are of the opinion that the talks will be revived under Senate prodding.

However, Allied, which has been most instrumental in instituting the Senate investigation, has indicated that it will not take a part in further arbitration talks unless the question of film rentals are part of the discussion and subject to inclusion in an arbitration plan. Allied has further charged

(Continued on page 24)

Europe Reaction to 3-D Not So Spectacular, Sez Starr After 5 Wks. There

"I think the people in Europe will be more discriminating in approval of the new devices in 3-D and widescreen, and the first results will be less spectacular."

View was expressed Monday (13) by Theatre Owners of America prexy Alfred Starr, who just returned from a five-week jaunt abroad. Starr's opinion is based on a visit to England, France, Spain, Italy, Greece, Austria and Turkey.

TOA topper acknowledged that foreign exhibs are "enormously intrigued with the developments in 3-D and the new types of projection," but felt that a more cautious

(Continued on page 24)

WBBM-TV Plunks Down $260,000 for Rep Films

Chicago, April 14.

Over $260,000-worth of Republic pix have been purchased by CBS' WBBM-TV. The web's Central Division veepee H. Leslie Atlass, who made the buy, announced that the transaction included such Windy City first-runs as "Storm Over Lisbon" and "Secrets of Scotland Yard."

The purchase carries unlimited screening repeats.

Union Clearance In Pix-to-TV Raised By 20th-Fox Move

Entire question of union clearances required for the sale of pix to television has been spotlighted in the announcement by 20th-Fox president Spyros P. Skouras that unloading of some of the company's "older" films is now being considered.

Specifically involved, and possibly presenting some problems, is the American Federation of Musicians. James C. Petrillo outfit has yet to fully clarify its position on Hollywood product to TV to the satisfaction of all film companies.

Some time ago Paramount hesitated to okay the use of its pix to Zenith's Phonevision tests in Chicago and then finally went ahead with the experiment when specifically approved by Petrillo.

Par's feeling was that all other unions had made it sufficiently clear that films made prior to September, 1948, could be telecast without objection. However, it also was felt that the AFM hadn't entered such a clear-cut agreement.

20TH MOVE CUES TELE REAPPRAISAL

Question of who'll be the first to take the TV ball from 20th-Fox is currently puzzling the other distribs, just as it is worrying exhibitors in the wake of 20th's move to release some of its oldies to video.

Distrib reaction is divided. On the one hand they are pleased that a break has been made and they now have a legitimate excuse to chart policy with the 20th example in mind. Other execs accent that they are still plenty in the 2-D biz, both via expensive backlogs of new product and other pix slated to roll.

Major companies so far have resisted the lure of heavy added coin to be made by letting their product go to the telecasters, but the 20th stand, outlined in prexy Spyros P. Skouras' message to the stockholders, is likely to lead to a lot of serious reappraising, since every one of the distribs could use the TV coin and none wants to be caught napping once the gates open.

Only distrib which has been selling to TV all along, and without making any bones about it, is Republic. Prexy Herbert J. Yates told stockholders in N. Y. last week

(Continued on page 25)

'Wax,' 'Man' Boffo B.O. Despite N.Y. Daily Pans; Added Proof of 3-D Pull

Chalk up for 3-D, among its other attributes, power to override the critics' pans. Arch Oboler's "Bwana Devil" became a smash after an all-around drubbing by the reviewers. Now Columbia's "Man in the Dark" and Warners' "House of Wax" are drawing top money in N.Y. despite notices which, in any other field, would do anything but start a b.o. stampede.

"Wax" especially is going sock, with some of the loot being attributable to Eddie Fisher's appearance onstage at the Paramount. Mostly all press sizeups of the pic included comment on the "old fashioned" type of thriller screen-

(Continued on page 25)

Speed of Switch to CinemaScope Will Key 20th's Pix Flow to Video

Cutting Backlogs

In line with the hesitancy anent future production because of 3-D and widescreen influences, many top Hollywood studios are cutting investments in new pix. Paramount's inventory was cut by $8,174,552 in the past fiscal year, prez Barney Balaban revealed in his annual report. However, advances to outside producers were increased by $3,639,869.

Par's total inventory — pix completed and awaiting release, others in production, etc. —amounted to $36,626,536 as of last Jan. 3. Year ago this was carried at $44,810,088.

Sale of 20th-Fox oldies to TV is no more than a year off and, depending on the speed of the industry's conversion to CinemaScope and other systems, could come even earlier.

News that 20th had changed its mind on supplying TV was contained in president Spyros P. Skouras' message to 20th stockholders yesterday (Tues.), and hit both the industry and Wall Street with bombshell effects. Twentieth stock closed Monday (13) at 17⅜ on the N. Y. stock exchange, registering a 1½ point gain even before the report was officially released. Yesterday it closed at 17¼.

The statement, which makes 20th the first of the major distribs to acknowledge plans of unloading to TV, gave no hint as to when 20th might move, saying merely that, with CinemaScope, the theatre demand for older pix will "greatly decrease." Skouras said he could put no accurate value on 20th's library of some 900 pix since the advent of sound, but commented:

"We hope that these pictures will derive for your corporation very large income, running into millions of dollars."

It's understood that the company figures it can gainfully pull the

(Continued on page 24)

Par '52 Net Jumps To $5,899,871; 3-D 'Solution' In View

With operating revenues of $106,090,044, representing an increase of more than $10,000,000 over 1951, Paramount's net earnings for 1952 climbed to $5,899,871, equal to $2.52 per common share, president Barney Balaban told stockholders yesterday (Tues.) in Par's annual report. Earnings include a net of $559,287 on the sale of real property, this presumably being the Coast laboratory disposed of by the company last year.

Earnings in 1951 amounted to $5,459,273, or $2.33 per share. The per share earnings in the new year, exclusive of capital gains, were $2.28.

Par's 67½c. interest in Famous Players Canadian has a market value of about $24,000,000, said Balaban, relating that the Canadian chain wound up its 1952 fiscal year with a profit of $3,480,126, compared with $3,032,018 in 1951.

Par chief exec further related

(Continued on page 24)

20th's Stand on Video As Another Blow In Green's Stock Battle

Decision of 20th-Fox to peg release of its older pix to TV, on CinemaScope saturation of the theatre market, was seen by industry observers yesterday (Tues.) as another move designed, among other things, to head off the expected attack by Charles Green, minority stockholder, who is challenging the 20th management.

Although Green has never flatly stated whether or not he favors release of 20th product to TV, it's believed that this will be one of his arguments in the upcoming

(Continued on page 25)

National Boxoffice Survey

Vacations Boost Week's B O.; 'Salome' 1st, 'Madam' Close 2d, 'Moulin,' 'Pan' Next

Continued school vacations the latter part of last week and the widened circulation of top product, as traditionally tossed into release by the distribs during a holiday period, make the current session a strong one in key cities covered by VARIETY. Upbeat continued through the weekend despite rain in some locations.

In an unusually close race, "Salome" (Col) barely edged out "Call Me Madam" (20th) in this week's sweepstakes, moving up from second place last week to the No. 1 position. "Madam," which had the lead spot last week, fell to second via slight dropoffs in business as the pic went into holdover status in many situations following giant first week's biz. "Salome," in either first or second weeks of its runs in representative cities, is going at a hefty clip.

"Moulin Rouge" (UA), holding up strong in extended runs, rates as third this session, replacing "Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) which had show position last week. "Pan" is taking fourth money this round. "Hans Christian Andersen" (Goldwyn-RKO), a holdover in all locations checked, continues in the b.o. bigtime with fifth spot.

"Off Limits" (Par) is in sixth place, same as last week, and "Come Back, Little Sheba" (Par), well established as a strong moneymaker over a long haul, is seventh. "Trouble Along the Way" (WB), doing okay business in a number of spots, is eighth. Rounding out the Top Ten are "Desert Legion" (U) and "Kettles on Vacation" (U).

Of the newcomers on the list, "Battle Circus" (M-G) is sock in Omaha and good in Seattle. "Jeopardy" (M-G) is fast in Chicago. "Seminole" (U) is above average in Kansas City, great in Detroit and lusty in Philadelphia.

On the basis of its smash in N. Y., "House of Wax" (WB) appears certain to hit paydirt when widely released. Other 3-D entry starting out is "Man in the Dark" (Col), standout in San Francisco and strong in N. Y.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 8-9)

Haley Pact Breach Suit Vs. RKO in Settlement

A $400,000 breach of contract suit filed several years ago in N. Y. Federal Court by Jack Haley against RKO Pictures was settled and discontinued, according to papers filed yesterday (Tues.). Terms of the settlement were not revealed.

In his original suit, Haley charged that RKO did not live up to a 1945 two-picture deal. Haley said he made one picture, "George White's Scandals," but was not called for a second although the studio used sequences from "Scandals" in "Make Mine Laughs" without employing the actor for the latter. Haley asked for $75,000 for breach of contract, $300,000 for invasion of his civil rights, and $25,000 as coin he could have earned on the second picture.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered
FOUNDED BY SIME SILVERMAN
Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Harold Erichs, President
154 West 46th St. New York 36, N.Y.
Hollywood 28
6311 Yucca Street
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building
Chicago 11
612 No. Michigan Ave.
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq.

SUBSCRIPTION
Annual .... $10 Foreign $11
Single Copies ..... 25 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Vol. 190 (120) No. 6

INDEX

Bills 70
Chatter 78
Film Reviews 6
House Reviews 69
Inside Legit 72
Inside Pictures 24
Inside Radio 44
Inside Television 48
International 14
Legitimate 71
Literati 77
Music 49
New Acts 68
Night Club Reviews 66
Obituaries 79
Pictures 3
Radio-Television 28
Radio Reviews 40
Record Reviews 50
Frank Scully 77
Television Reviews 41
TV-Film 27
Vaudeville 60

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a Year. $20 Foreign

Indies Move Ahead on All Fronts; Give Majors Run for Their Money

Indie element in the pic biz is giving the majors a run for their money.

The little fellows in the industry, free of large overheads, unencumbered by court decrees and less conservative in their policies, are stepping up their activities and banding together to safeguard their interests here and abroad.

VARIETY listing of the 12 top grossers for March saw indie producers walk away with the four top pix and take seven out of the whole dozen. Copping b.o. honors were "Peter Pan" (RKO), "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO), "Moulin Rouge" (UA), and "Come Back, Little Sheba" (Par). Indie slate was rounded out with "The Stooge," "Bwana Devil" and "The Star."

Added to this, Stanley Kramer's "High Noon" (UA) brought its producer the Academy Award for the best pic of the year.

Indies also have latched on to TV, where most of the majors still take a standoffish attitude. Rental lots on the Coast are buzzing with activity to satisfy the insatiable TV appetite for celluloid fodder.

Independent production for theatrical release is on the upbeat, too. Situation is reflected in the continued strengthening of United Artists' position. At least 30 or more of UA's 36 releases in '53 will carry the Hollywood label.

Expansionist spirit is exemplified by Collier Young and Ida Lupino, who have formed Filmakers Releasing Organization, with exchange planned in 29 key cities. Hal Roach, who has been concentrating on TV for some time, is back with a production program of theatrical release pix.

Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers is set for a membership drive, and is currently

(Continued on page 22)

20th Planning to Cut 4 Officers from Board; Skouras Alone Stays

Slate of directors proposed by 20th-Fox for stockholder approval at the annual meeting in N. Y. May 19 is expected to eliminate four of the fine officers of the company now on the board.

Quartet includes Wilfred J. Eadie, comptroller and assistant treasurer; Donald A. Henderson, treasurer and secretary; William C. Michel, exec v.p., and Murray Silverstone, v.p. in charge of foreign operations. Prexy Spyros P. Skouras will, of course, continue as a board member.

Board was cut from 10 to nine men with the death of Seton I. Porter. It's understood that, while the board is likely to again be brought up to full strength, no expansion is planned and the post of board chairman will remain vacant.

Composition of the 20th board has been attacked by Charles Green, minority stockholder engaged in a proxy fight with management. Green has charged that, with a nine-men board, Skouras gets an "automatic" majority on it by dint of the four officer-directors. Other directors include L. Sherman Adams, Robert L. Clarkson, Daniel O. Hastings and Robert Lehman.

Showdown between Green and management is due May 5. That's the date when the company has called a special meeting of stockholders at Wilmington, Del., to vote on the proposed elimination of cumulative voting from the by-laws. Motion carries if 51% or more of the shares represented at the meet approve. Green, who with cumulative voting stands a chance of electing several directors to the 20th board, will fight the management proposal, which is seen as depriving him of his chances to get board representation.

Cohn Asks Yacht Refund

Los Angeles, April 14.

Harry Cohn, Columbia Pictures prexy, filed suit against the Federal Collector of Internal Revenue for a refund of $2,398 on his income taxes for 1945.

Plaintiff claims he failed to deduct that amount for depreciation of his yacht while it was in Government service.

Starr on 20th's TV Side If Theatres Protected

Alfred Starr, prexy of Theatre Owners of America, declared in New York Monday (13) that he has no objection to 20th-Fox releasing films to television — as long as the filmery plans to make them available to video when the conventional pictures are obsolete for theatres. When sufficient product of the new type, whatever form it may take, is on hand and all theatres are equipped to receive it, Starr said he could see no reason to condemn the 20th action.

"I have just seen the statement to stockholders," Starr said, "and I'm delighted to learn that Fox is withholding the pictures for television until theatres are equipped for the new-type produce. I'm glad Fox is taking the precaution to protect its present customers."

War on 'Pan' Terms Is Still Raging

The running battle between exhibs and RKO or Walt Disney on sales terms on "Peter Pan" continued unabated last week. As a result of a series of incidents pertaining to the rental of the picture to subsequent run houses, the rift between theatremen and the distrib became more pronounced, with exhib forces declaring that the most recent action on the part of RKO would be presented to the Senate Small Business committee.

Current hassle revolves around charges that RKO, after setting a verbal deal, pulled a last-minute switch, rejecting terms which it itself had offered. As a result of the RKO offer, exhibs claim they set dates, arranged advertising and alerted their communities for the picture. RKO's 11th-hour policy change, it's charged, disrupted bookings, cost exhibs unnecessary coin, and caused a s cramble for other product to fill in for the original "Pan" dates.

Exhibs declare that RKO offered the picture to sub runs at percentage terms, which although regarded high by exhibs, were accepted. Company then rejected its own terms, it's stated, and switched to a flat rental policy. Theatremen claim that the flat terms were offered "at prohibitive prices." As a result of the RKO switch, Wilbur Snaper, prexy of Allied States Assn., has wired all Allied units with the warning: "Be cautious in dealing with RKO on 'Peter Pan.' Until you have approved contract, don't consider the picture bought. Picture now being offered at flat terms at prohibitive prices. Your local RKO representative including district managers have limited or no authority to confirm deals on this picture."

Bausch & Lomb to Sell Lenses Only to 20th-Fox

Deal for the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. in Rochester, N. Y., to supply 20th-Fox with large quantities of both camera and projection lenses for CinemaScope has been completed on a non-exclusive basis, with 20th free to license other optical manufacturers, but Bausch & Lomb restricted to selling lenses only to 20th.

In the first phase, the optical outfit will produce three types of units, one for taking cameras and two for projectors. Each lens will be stamped with the CinemaScope name. First deliveries are due June 1 and the output of projection lenses will outnumber taking lenses by a large ratio at the start.

News of the contract was announced yesterday (Tues.) jointly by 20th prexy Spyros P. Skouras and Bausch & Lomb. Among the majors, Metro has already signed for CinemaScope lenses. Other studios and indie producers are interested in producing CinemaScope pix, according to 20th, and can expect to be supplied shortly with the necessary units, known technically as anamorphic adapters.

Glasgow 'Bwana' Nix

Glasgow, April 14.

"Bwana Devil," in third week at the first-run Gaumont Theatre here, failed to draw the crowds, following heavy press panning. Pic opened big, but demand fell away within days. Management cut out separate showings and reverted to normal "continuous houses" layout. The 3-D pic was withdrawn Saturday (11). A lengthy season had been planned.

Metro is showing its 20-minute 3-D shots at Regal and Ritz, Edinburgh, from Monday (13).

UA Ready For All Screens: Krim

With the strongest product lineup in history, United Artists is now appraising its inventory with the view of adapting some of its films to largescreen or stereo sound techniques, Arthur B. Krim, president, announced prior to his departure from New York yesterday (Tues.) for a swing of Europe. He stressed, however, that in any event, all pix on the lineup will be available in 2-D, that these figure to number 65 productions over the next 18 months at the rate of four per month.

Krim said he believes it will be at least a year and a half for the industry, domestically, to convert to whatever new system or systems ultimately are adopted. "In the interim," he states, "it would be tragic if a single screen is lost to the industry."

Of the upcoming releases, said the chief exec, the only features in 3-D will be "I the Jury" and "Ring Around Saturn" in addition to the Marciano-Walcott fight pic.

UA, said Krim, has responsibility to exhibs and its indie film producers. On the first count, he said, the company wants to make it known that theatres the world over can rely on a steady flow of product in conventional pattern. As for producers, he drew attention to UA's liquidation system, which calls for a 75% playoff domestically in the first six months and the major part of the balance over the next half year.

3 Days of Open Hearings For D.C. Small Biz Group On Indie Exhibs' Beefs

Washington, April 14.

Sen. Edward J. Thye (R., Minn.), chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee, and Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kans.), chairman of the monopoly sub-committee, announced today (14) that the subcommittee will resume hearings on the problems of independent motion picture exhibitors here tomorrow morning (Wed.).

The monopoly sub-committee sat for a week in Los Angeles recently to receive charges from Coast exhibitors that trade practices of film distributors were bringing an industry depression.

Schoeppel said the monopoly sub-committee will receive additional testimony from exhibitors in three days of open hearings commencing tomorrow.

The following witnesses are scheduled: Wednesday (15)—Philip A. Sliman, Evangeline Theatre, New Iberia, La.; Abram F. Myers, general counsel and chairman of the board, Allied States Assn.; Wilbur Snaper, president, Allied; Sidney E. Samuelson, president and general manager, Allied Independent of Eastern Pennsylvania.

Thursday (16)—L. Frank Stewart, Stewart Enterprises, Inc., Danville, Ill.; Nathan Yamins, Boston; Col. H. A. Cole, Allied of Texas, Dallas; Beverly Miller, vice-president, Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Kansas and Missouri.

Friday (17)—Hiram P. Holmes, chairman, Economic Committee, National Assn. of Real Estate Boards; Benjamin N. Berger, president, North Central Allied; Allen Johnson, Grand Rapids; A. C. Myrick, president, Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Iowa and Nebraska.

The sub-committee will hold three additional days of open hearings April 22, 23 and 24 to hear distributors and representatives of the Federal Trade Commission and the anti-trust division, Dept. of Justice. The names of next week's witnesses will be announced later.

Teener's $1.25 for A.M. 'Wax'-Fisher Supports B.O. Tilts if Show Is 'Right'

Sock b.o. combination of Warners' "House of Wax" and a stageshow headed by Eddie Fisher at N. Y.'s Paramount Theatre is accepted by many in the trade as the clincher in the argument for boosted b.o. prices when the show is "right."

Par flagship house, it's pointed out, played largely to teenagers over the last weekend and there was no indication of rebellion among them because of the tariff. Par held to its regular $1.80 top but advanced the rate of admission boosts during the day.

Last Friday (10), for example, the kids shelled out $1.25 in the forenoon, instead of the usual 95c. Theatre opened at 8:30 Friday morning and the b.o. queue extended from Times Sq. all the way down 43d St. to Eighth Ave. Admission price was up to the $1.80 maximum for the late afternoon shows over the Saturday-Sunday weekend and still there was no apparent balking on the part of the public.

Par combo show, incidentally, has prompted a guessing game among film execs on which part of the program, stage or screen, is the big b.o. lure. Number of vocal youngsters in the audience, giving the Par the aura of the old Frank Sinatra stageshow days, makes it clear that Fisher is not to be sluffed off as marquee bait. On the other hand, Warner Bros. and other champions of 3-D, insist that the pic carries the most b.o. weight. Neutral observers cut through the middle, state that its the combined show that's drawing the crowds.

Show Biz Turnout For Judy Balaban Nuptials

Total of 450 persons, including theatre and film execs and many from the theatrical agency field, are on the list to attend the wedding today (Wed.) of Judy Balaban, daughter of Paramount president Barney Balaban, and Jay Ira Kanter, member of Music Corp. of America, at the Plaza Hotel, N. Y. Groom is the son of Mrs. Sidney Genser of Beverly Hills and the late Harry H. Kanter.

Bride's father will give her in marriage and Lois Campe is to be maid of honor. Mrs. Burt Balaban, the bride's sister-in-law will be matron of honor and bride's maids will include Mrs. Leonard Balaban, Patricia Reuben, Rosemary Clooney and Peggy Ann Garner.

Marlon Brando will be best man. Other attendants will be Leonard Balaban, Burt Balaban, Robert Brenner, Richard Shepherd, Arthur P. Jacobs and Wallace Ross.

40% Fox Income In Foreign Mkt.

Foreign market accounts for about 40% of 20th-Fox's income, 20th-prexy Spyros P. Skouras told stockholders yesterday (Tues.) in his president's message. The company's foreign film rentals in '52 reached a record $35,737,000, compared with $32,171,000 in '51.

Skouras reported that 1952 dollar remittances came to $15,577,000 as against $16,003,000 in 1951. Additional expenditures of foreign balances for film production, theatre acquisition, etc., came to $2,166,000 in '52, a decrease from the $3,176,000 in '51.

Earnings of 20th, representing the corporation's share of undistributed income of Hoyts and Amalgamated circuits in Australia and New Zealand, came to approximately $290,000. Whereas Hoyts showed an increase for the year ended June 30, '52, Amalgamated registered a drop for the 52 weeks ended March 31, '52. Twentieth owns 94.4% of Hoyts in Australia and 75% of Amalgamated in New Zealand. Additionally, the company has houses in Egypt, Holland, South Africa and Israel, and has a 27.4% voting interest in Britain's Gaumont circuit.

Skouras surveyed his trip to the Far East late last year and commented that the area had become "acutely interested in the American way of life, as reflected in the unrivalled popularity of Hollywood productions."

Paramount assigned Gene Barry to co-star with Rosemary Clooney, Joanne Gilbert, Anna Maria Alberghetti and Guy Mitchell in the Pat Duggan production, "Red Garters."

N. Y. to Europe

Lex Barker
Anne Baxter
Earl Blackwell
Richard Brooks
Charles Boyer
Claudette Colbert
Gary Cooper
Olivia DeHavilland
Jerry Devine
Walt Disney
Norman Elson
Zsa Zsa Gabor
Arthur B. Krim
Efrem Kurtz
Doreen Palmer
Jay Palmer
Les L. Persky
Norman Reader
George Sanders
Lana Turner
William Wyler

N. Y. to L. A.

Marian Anderson
Sir Michael Balcon
Mort Blumenstock
Alfred Crown
Milton L. Gunzburg
Hillard Elkins
Joseph Kaufman
Joseph L. Roberts

Europe to N. Y.

Jose Iturbi
Sol Hurok

Wyler Prefers Sticking With Major Co. to Avoid Coin Worries, Biz Snarls

Differing with indie producers, who claim they must have "freedom," producer William Wyler prefers to stick with a major company. "This way I don't have to worry about money and have no headaches over business entanglements as in independent operation," he states.

Wyler is committed to make one more pic for Paramount next year. He may lens one in Europe before this, with the production tieup to be determined by the subject matter he chooses. He'd like to be affiliated with a major in the project, but if none of the companies likes the theme he selects he'll make the pic as an indie.

Wyler returned to Rome over the past weekend to put the finishing touches on "When in Rome," Gregory Peck-Audrey Hepburn costarrer for Par release. He was in the States briefly, he said, to gauge American audience reaction to rough prints of the pic via sneak previews in N. Y. and L. A. After he "trims and polishes" the film, Wyler will spend the summer in Switzerland with his family.

L. A. to N. Y.

Mischa Auer
Ben Blue
Leighton Brill
Sammy Cahn
Rudy Cataldi
John B. Clarke, Jr.
J. V. Copeland
Ray Crossett
Dennis Day
Kurt Frings
Henry Ginsberg
Z. Wayne Griffin
Arthur Hornblow, Jr.
Anthony Joachim
Jimmy Johnston
Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus
Ben Kamsler
Evelyn Keyes
Frank Lovejoy
Arthur S. Lyons
Gordon MacRae
Colin Miller
Norman H. Moray
Jeff Morrow
William Mueller
James A. Mulvey
Robert Newton
Bill Pierce
Hal Roach, Jr.
Sol C. Siegal
Earl I. Sponable
Jan Sterling
George Stevens
Gloria Swanson
Robert Taylor
Richard Thorpe

WIDESCREEN'S EDGE OVER 3-D

3-D's Role in Exhib Economics— May Cue 1st Divvy by Stan Warner

Immediate effect of 3-D, especially as it applies to the new Stanley Warner Corp., is that the depth medium may make the difference between a payment or no payment of an initial dividend to stockholders. Theatre offspring of Warner Bros. Pictures, which began operations on March 1, '53, showed a profit of only $145,112 for 1952 as compared to $6,143,341 for 1950, when a part of the picture company. On the basis of the 1952 statement and the early returns from 1953, it was doubted that a dividend could be declared. However, playing of "Bwana Devil," the initial 3-D entry, plus the soon-to-be-played "House of Wax," may make a substantial difference in the company's earnings.

Outfit chalked up hefty returns on "Bwana" and expects similar results on "Wax." In addition, it did well with "Peter Pan." On the basis of this trio, SW may be able to declare a dividend by figuring the estimated earnings or waiting until the final returns are in.

Since it is advantageous for a new company to declare a dividend to gain stockholder confidence, SW could have dipped into earned surplus or capital assets (latter is permissible under the corporate laws of Delaware). Although it's not known if the company contemplated such action, it's figured that either of these contingencies will not be necessary now.

When Warner Bros. split into separate production and theatre companies, stockholders received one-half share of stock in each of the new companies for each full share of the former combined company. Picture company recently declared a 30c quarterly dividend

(Continued on page 25)

D For Delayed

Hollywood, April 14.

Paramount's "Sangaree" bears a unique distinction. It is the first 3-D picture ever sneak-previewed in 2-D.

The 3-D print was not ready for the screening at the California Theatre, so producers Pine & Thomas ordered it unveiled as a "flattie." They wanted an audience reaction for further editing purposes.

Regent, Buffalo Nabe, Todd-AO's Proving Ground

Buffalo, April 14.

The Regent, Main-Utica nabe, has been leased for four months by Magna Corp. for preliminary trials of its new (Mike) Todd-AO wide-angle projection which has been developed at American Optical Co.'s Buffalo plant. Regent is one of the four community houses owned by the Konczakowski Circuit.

New 3-D trials, which will be under direction of William F. Peck, American Optical's local general manager, require only one camera and one projector and is claimed to "adapt easily to existing theatres."

'Okla.' Still Up In Air

There appears to be sharp disagreement over the choice of "Oklahoma" as the first Magna Theatre Corp. pic to be lensed in the Todd-AO widescreen process.

In Hollywood, Magna board chairman Joseph M. Schenck confirmed previous reports that "Oklahoma" would be Magna's initial release. "Before contracts can be signed we must first buy out a small minority of stockholders. We have a definite agreement with Rodgers & Hammersein to do the picture," he said.

In New York, Richard Rodgers,

(Continued on page 25)

Natural Vision $$ For 'Good' 3-D Pix

Natural Vision Corp. is ready to help finance "good" productions lensed in its own 3-D process and, in addition to its 20% interest in "Bwana Devil," also has a 10% piece of "The Moonlighters," which Joseph Bernhardt is producing for Warner Bros. release.

This was disclosed in N. Y. last week (10) by Milton L. Gunzburg, Natural Vision prexy, as he conferred with reps of the Polaroid Corp. regarding a stepup in the production of polarized viewers, to which Natural Vision has exclusive distribution rights worldwide until July 15. Question of Gunzburg's future relations with Polaroid also figured prominently in the talks but remained unsettled.

Gunzburg indicated he expected the U. S. Patent Office to issue a patent on his 3-D camera within the very near future, and hinted that this might set off a series of infringement suits, "since there has been so much copying of our system." Natural Vision exec also disclosed, without elaboration, that his company might handle a stereoscopic sound installation for theatres much cheaper than that currently being marketed.

Polaroid expects to boost production of viewers from the current

(Continued on page 24)

LOEW'S CONTESTS BANK SALE OF POWELL PIX

In an effort to keep two William Powell pix off television, Loew's, Inc., filed an answer to the Bank of America's foreclosure suit. Films involved are "The Senator Was Indiscreet" and "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid," in which Powell appeared on loanout deals.

Under his contract with Metro, the studio claims, Powell's name cannot be used for commercial tieups or sold for telecasting without Loew's permission.

Stanley Warner Facelift Now Likely From Current Survey by New Toppers

Trio of Stanley Warner toppers —prexy S. H. (Si) Fabian, exec veepee Samuel Rosen and general manager Harry Kalmine — are currently making a survey of the theatre company's houses. For Fabian and Rosen, who took over the circuit from Warner Bros. on March 1, it's a first looksee at the circuit's theatres. Kalmine, longtime head of the chain under the Warner management, is introing the new chiefs around and briefing them on the company's operations.

Survey, it's indicated, may result in face-lifting and other improvements for many of the houses. Most of the outfit's theatres are already equipped for 3-D, and a good many are being equipped with Warner Phonic sound for the unveiling of Warner's 3-D "House of Wax." Although Fabian has been reported bullish on CinemaScope, theatre topper hasn't indicated whether or not he's installing the 20th-Fox or any other widescreen system.

Chain, one of the first to circuitbook "Bwana Devil," is extremely high on the upcoming "Wax." Recognizing, however, some opposition among critics and patrons to the early 3-D entry, company has taken steps to overcome any resistence, real or anticipated. Feeling that the N. Y. Paramount bow of "Wax" would serve as the best showcasing, outfit brought in film crix from Pennsylvania and New Jersey, strongholds of the Warner chain, for a gander at "Wax."

BUT COMBINING THEM IN FUTURE

Widescreen exhibition of films appears to be shaping as the victor over 3-D in the race for technological advancement and hypoed b. o. for Hollywood over the long haul.

Champions of depth with the use of viewing specs so far have had a secret weapon, i.e., tremendous public support, as evidenced first with Arch Oboler's "Bwana Devil" (UA) and this week with the smash returns for Warners' "House of Wax" and Columbia's "Man in the Dark." That 3-D's newness will continue to draw heavy trade for some time is a cinch, too. Those novelty values and optical achievements simply can't be minimized.

But the industry in large part is figuring on the widened-screen as a lasting fixture, this based on the many hundreds of exhibs now in line to install 20th-Fox's CinemaScope or otherwise adjusting for projecting on new screen aspect ratios. The filmmakers also are inclining toward the screen approach.

On the other hand, opinion among many pix execs is that while 3-D has a future, too, the play given that added dimension will fall off eventually. There's wide agreement with Jack Warner that 3-D is here to stay, but the thought also is that the 3-D'ers are to be only a small part of Hollywood's output in the coming years. In contrast, the swing to wide-

(Continued on page 26)

Exhibitors Rap Yates' TV Stance

Statement to stockholders by Republic prexy Herbert J. Yates that television represents a vast, new sales field for Republic pictures, brought forth this week the sharpest blasts yet leveled at Yates by exhibs. There were indications that individual exhibs would make efforts to bypass Republic product.

Harry Brandt, head of the Brandt circuit, declared that "if Yates continues his overt acts, he'll lose more and more of his regular customers. If Yates wants to become a TV producer, it's okay with us. Maybe he'll wind up in TV. It'll be a good thing for the picture industry."

Walter Reade, Jr., head of the Reade circuit, was equally caustic about Yates' TV policy. "I don't think," he stated, "that any exhibitor will have the wool pulled over his eyes the way Yates pulled it over the eyes of the stockholders with his statement. If the money Yates and his company have made from TV is so great, why doesn't he get out of the picture business to which after all, he says he owes no loyalty?"

Yates' downbeating of 3-D brought forth from Reade the comment that "Yates' statement about 3-D being a novelty or a passing fad proves how far the parade has passed him by."

Wilbur Snaper, speaking as an individual exhib and not as prexy of Allied States Assn., stated: "Personally, I haven't played Republic Pictures since Yates tried to ride two horses at once."

Arnall, SIMPP Weigh Expansion, Foreign Posts

Hollywood, April 14.

Prexy Ellis Arnall is here discussing with coast Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers execs expansion program under which group would add to its New York personnel, possibly open offices abroad for first time. Heretofore SIMPP handled foreign affairs via foreign offices of member companies.

A spokesman said that expansion has been decided upon, at least in part, as result of the booming biz of the indies' pix.

Nabe Exhibs Adopt Wait-See Plan On 3-D, Screens as Chains Take Plunge

Old-Fashioned

Indie distribs, sans a 3-D interest, are upbeating the story values of their convential "flats" by chiding the gimmick aspects of the depth pix.

For example, Joseph Burstyn, foreigh film distrib, has a special ad in today's (Wed.) New York Times plugging the French import "Justice Is Done," currently at the N.Y. Trans-Lux 60th St., aimed at offsetting the 3-D furore.

Ad reads: "Do You Want A Good Movie—Or A Lion In Your Lap?"

Kirsch Wants To Know If 2-Ders Will Still Flow

Chicago, April 14.

While many theatre operators are rushing to get into the 3-D and new screen fields, there has also been a hesitancy here about installing equipment, due to the many conflicting systems. Jack Kirsch, president of Illinois Allied, issued an open letter last week to sales toppers of major distributors, asking for some unifications of the many systems pointing out that many houses could not afford to install the various types of equipment yet.

He also asked for some reassurance that the distribs would continue to furnish 2-4D product for the vast majority of houses. Prexy asked that companies report how many pictures they were scheduling for the coming season; how many were in 3-D; how many in 2-D; and of the 3-D, how many of those would also be available in 2-D. There was also a plea for aid from majors to help in case a serious cutback of 2-D product was made.

Essaness circuit here, one of the largest in the city, is bypassing all of the new tri-dimensional efforts until some standards can be ob-

(Continued on page 20)

Stock Suit on Again, Jack, Harry Warner's Control In Question

Hollywood, April 14.

Trial of a five-year-old stockholder suit against Harry M. and Jack L. Warner resumed today (Tues.) before Federal Judge William C. Hathes. Action will be heard on a split-week basis, with testimony being taken every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for the next five or six weeks. Suit contends there were irregularities in the way in which the studio financed indie operations of U. S. Pictures.

In his opening statement Eugene D. Williams, attorney for the defendants, declared that Harry and Jack Warner own 15% of the stock in Warner Bros., but do not control the company.

The suit was originally filed Dec. 5, 1948, by Edward S. Birn, N. Y. financier who has since died and whose estate is pressing the action. It named Milton Sperling, Warner Bros., Inc; United States Pictures, Inc., and Harry M. and Jack Warner.

Birn claimed the defendants control the company, and that Warners had advanced Sperling's independent United States Pictures 50% of the production costs and put up collateral for the other 50%.

He contended that Warners thus was undertaking the entire risk

(Continued on page 22)

While the major, well-heeled theatre chains continue bullish on 3-D and widescreen, the subsequent-run exhibs are maintaining a cautious wait-see policy. Currently the new medium sweepstakes from the theatre standpoint shapes up as follows: The chains will install 3-D and widescreen, using a screen that is sufficiently versatile to exhibit both processes as well as regular flat pictures. The smaller houses will go slow on everything, perhaps installing 3-D first because of its lower cost and moving into widescreen when the cost factors become more palatable.

Although 20th-Fox has announced many orders for CinemaScope, such circuits as Loew's, RKO, and Stanley Warner have yet to make definite commitments. Officials of these outfits, although high on widescreen, say they are studying all the widescreen methods before ordering installations.

On the other hand, Harry Brandt, head of the Brandt circuit, is one of the most ardent advocates of CinemaScope. He declared he's ordering the 20th process for all of his 120 theatres, though admitting there will "be headaches and problems until there is sufficient product in the medium." Meantime, he noted, he'll keep his theatres operating "until the industry is restored to normal," by exhibiting whatever product is available, be it 2-D, 3-D or widescreen. That, in short, appears to be the attitude of most of the major chains.

Brandt is convinced that every company will be making films in the future in the CinemaScope process. He contends that all would be making it now if the necessary lenses were available. Theatre topper is also bullish on new sound developments, declar-

(Continued on page 25)

20th to Handle Bigscreen Units

Decision by 20th-Fox to enter the equipment field to do its own handling of the CinemaScope widescreen package was implied yesterday (Tues.) with announcement of the formation of CinemaScope Products Inc. as a 20th subsidiary.

Company will act as the sole distributor of the Miracle Mirror Screen which is part of the CinemaScope unit, but it's understood that it will serve also as a channel for the CinemaScope lenses and stereophonic sound equipment.

Miracle Mirrors Screen is described as an all-purpose type completely compatible with and suitable for CinemaScope, Eidophor, other theatre TV systems, 3-D and various widescreen processes. It's adaptable to theatres of all sizes, according to 20th.

NAT'L THEATRES EXECS CONTINUE STOCK BUYS

National Theatres' officials are continuing buy-ups of the corporation's common stock, presumably a factor in the issue's substantial price rise on the N. Y. Stock Exchange. It's now being traded at over $7 per share.

Earle G. Hines, National board member, made his first investment in the issue with acquisition of a block of 1,000 shares, according to the Exchange. Elmer C. Rhoden picked up an additional 1,500 shares and now holds 16,800 shares direct and 3,525 shares indirect.

On the RKO Theatres front, Sol A. Schwartz, president and director, has become active with the purchase of 1,500 shares of the chain's common issue. This brings his total ownership to 2,500 shares.

House of Wax
(3-D)

Socko b.o. via that new dimension in sight and sound.

Warner Bros. release of Bryan Foy production. Stars Vincent Price, Frank Lovejoy, Phyllis Kirk, Carolyn Jones, Paul Picerni. Directed by Andre de Toth. Screenplay, Crane Wilbur, from story by Charles Belden (original title as first filmed by WB, "Mystery of the Wax Museum" reviewed Feb. 21, 1933, as "Variety"); cameras (Warner Color), Bert Glennon and Peverell Marley; editor, Rudi Fehr; sound, Charles Lang; NaturalVision supervision, M. L. Gunzburg (Dr. Julian Gunzburg, consultant); music, David Buttolph; orchestrations, Maurice DePackh; assistant director, Jimmy McMahon. Previewed April 9, '53, Paramount, N.Y. Running time, 90 MINS.

This picture will knock 'em for a ghoul.

Warners' "House of Wax" is the post-midcentury "Jazz Singer." What the freres and Al Jolson did to sound, the Warners have repeated in third-dimension. Houses playing "Wax" in 3-D will be beaucoup OK for b.o.

As the first major studio third-dimensional, not counting Columbia's concurrent "Man in the Dark" at the competitive Globe, on Broadway—and also doing OK b.o. despite its comparative shortcomings—"Wax" has the advantage in that it gives the audience a chiller-diller workout as few celluloid merchants of menace have done. Burbank pulled out all the stops on the macabre, the cadaver and the ghoulish props. It's all there, and in spades—the creaking doors; human cadavers in too realistic effigy; the madman entrepreneur of this replica of Mme. Tussaud's Museum; the deaf-mute No. 2 menace (with Lionel Strongfort muscles to match); the sinister murderer stalking his victims; the blazing fire which destroyed the original musee; the death masks and the paraffin works; the hyper-realistic replicas of practically every heinous crime or violent act in history (torture on the rack, Joan of Arc at the stake, Bluebeard, Marie Antoinette, assorted guillotines and kindred props, first criminal to die in the electric chair, the hanging victims, etc.). Nothing has been missed.

Remake of Charles Belden's oldie, "Mystery of the Wax Museum" (VARIETY, Feb. 21, 1933), has been given the full three-dimensional treatment in Crane Wilbur's screenplay. Andre de Toth's direction, while uneven and frequently as unconvincing as the basic scripting, none the less has geared it to the medium—chairs flying into the audience, cancan dancers pirouetting full into the camera, the barker's pingpong ball, as a pitchman's prop, likewise shooting out at the audience, the muscular menace springing as if from the theatre into the action.

The stereophonic sound further assists in the illusion, although, just as often, there are technological missouts such as when the clattering feet precede the visual action. But in the main the utilization of the multi-horned sound effects are more than sufficient unto the purpose thereof. The off-screen directional screams, footbeats and the like, for all their melodramatic theatricalism, are highly effective. After all, this is part of that new public yen for a new dimension.

It is patent how streophonic sound, in time, will more than compensate for the "depth" dimension, as the other new processes (CinemaScope, etc.) come into existence, leaning less to the utilization of the polaroid glasses and more in favor of widescreen and directional sound to further the illusion of a "third" dimension.

Warners here employs the Gunzburg Bros.' NaturalVision technique, first introduced in Arch Oboler's "Bwana Devil" (now UA release). It is said that both Milton and Dr. Julian Gunzburg deprecated so large a house as the Broadway Paramount for NaturalVision, favoring a smaller capacity than the 3,664-seater. However, it all comes off quite well.

Charles Lang did all right in the main with the RCA Stereophonic sound (billed here as WarnerPhonic Sound). WB also utilized its own WarnerColor which, in some instances, achieved minor key lighting, although in the main it all blended quite well into the Frankenstein-Dracula motif.

Fittingly, Bryan Foy, whose "Lights of New York" has some historic significance in the annals as the first 100% all-talker (also Warner Bros.), has the credit of having produced the first major studio feature in 3-D. Production, basically, did not strain the budget and achieved maximum results with the eerie chases, ghoulish shenanigans in the N. Y. City morgue, the "14th St. Music Hall" (sic!) interior for the cancan, the police headquarters' flashbacks, and the like.

Casting is competent. Vincent Price is capital as the No. 1 menace. Frank Lovejoy is authoritative as the lieutenant. Phyllis Kirk is purty as the ingenue who looks fairly convincingly scared but not so in the scream department—she needs a good, shrill, piercing shrieker as voice standin. Paul Picerni is okay as the juvenile and Carolyn Jones makes her moments count as the flighty kid who gets bumped off. Charles Buchinsky is the No. 2 menace, as the deaf-mute, and Reggie Rymal, as the barker; is also standout. Rest of the cast is professionally competent.

(Lionel Atwill, Fay Wray, Glenda Farrell, Frank McHugh, Allen Vincent and Holmes Herbert were in the original Michael Curtiz-directed production, which was also in Technicolor. VARIETY review, at the Broadway Strand, deprecated "the loose and unconvincing story" but conceded its b.o. potentials, being primed for the horror school of film fan).

"Wax" ran sans intermission at the Paramount but in smaller houses, with small booth space, the intermission would come at the halfway point. Abel.

Shane
(COLOR)

Socko drama of the pioneer west with both class and mass appeal. Strong b.o. possibilities.

Hollywood, April 13.

Paramount release of George Stevens production. Stars Alan Ladd, Jean Arthur, Van Heflin; co-stars Brandon De Wilde; features Jack Palance, Ben Johnson, Edgar Buchanan. Directed by Stevens. Screenplay, A. B. Guthrie, Jr.; added dialog, Jack Sher; based on novel by Jack Schaefer; camera (Technicolor), Loyal Griggs; editors, William Hornbeck, Tom McAdoo; music, Victor Young. Previewed April 6, '53. Running time, 118 MINS.

Shane	Alan Ladd
Mrs. Starrett	Jean Arthur
Mr. Starrett	Van Heflin
Joey Starrett	Brandon De Wilde
Wilson	Jack Palance
Chris	Ben Johnson
Lewis	Edgar Buchanan
Ryker	Emile Meyer
Torrey	Elisha Cook, Jr.
Mr. Shipstead	Douglas Spencer
Morgan	John Dierkes
Mrs. Torrey	Ellen Corby
Crafton	Paul McVey
Atkey	John Miller
Mrs. Shipstead	Edith Evanson
Wright	Leonard Strong
Johnson	Ray Spiker
Susan Lewis	Janice Carroll
Howells	Martin Mason
Mrs. Lewis	Helen Brown
Mrs. Howells	Nancy Kulp

Strong boxoffice possibilities accrue to this socko drama of the early west, which draws on sound plot and characters, solid directorial interpretation and fine playing to give it both class and mass appeal. It is by no means a conventional giddyap oater feature in Technicolor, being a western in the truer sense and ranking up with some of the select few that have become classics in the outdoor field.

For the record, "Shane" was previewed in a process stage on Paramount's experimental widescreen, to an audience perched on makeshift seating. Despite these abnormal viewing conditions, the picture's worth was not lessened, and the widescreen projection did contribute, in some measure, to a sense of bigness, although, again for the record, "Shane" would be a "big" picture on any size screen. Theatres equipped for widescreen showings should find the extra ballyhoo angle of this gimmick adding to the dollars taken in at the boxoffice.

George Stevens handles the story and players in a manner that gives his production and direction a tremendous integrity. The casting is exceptionally good and the male stars have never been seen to better advantage. This is particularly true of Alan Ladd in the title role. Under Stevens' guidance, Ladd's performance takes on dimensions not heretofore noticeable in his screen work, possibly because he has seldom had such an honest character to portray. Van Heflin, the other male star, commands attention with a sensitive performance, as real and earnest as the pioneer spirit he plays.

An oddity of this screen venture, brought to life under Stevens' supervision, is the fact that the screenplay is A. B. Guthrie, Jr.'s first, as is the novel from which it was adapted, the maiden effort of Jack Schaefer. In both, the impact comes mainly from the fact there was a story to be told and all concerned went about the business of telling it without unnecessary writing embroidery. What fancying up there is comes from the directorial touches supplied by Stevens, who never rushes the picture or a scene. This measured, deliberate handling in many of the sequences may seem too slow for the tastes of the more regular run of audiences, and does account for the picture taking up nearly two hours of footage, but when the plot demands action he deals it out in such rugged doses that even the most avid fan of violence will be satisfied.

There are several fight sequences in the plot, both fistic and gunplay. In the former, all veneer is shed as the males settle down to hand-to-hand combat, as primitive as the stone ages and as violent as are all survival battles between males. The two gun duels are of like action; loud, quick and deadly, with the footage leading up to them crammed with meaningful menace. Just as ably as he breeds violent tension into those sequences, does Stevens' direction build life and emotion into the scenes of work, love, happiness and sadness that go in between.

Plot is laid in early Wyoming, where a group of farmer-settlers have taken land formerly held by a cattle baron. Latter resents this intrusion on the free land and the fences that come with the setting down of home roots. His fight is against Heflin chiefly, who is the driving force that keeps the frightened farmers together. Just when it seems the cattle man may eventually have his way, a stranger, to be known only as Shane, rides on to Heflin's homestead, is taken in and becomes one of the settlers, as he tries to forget his previous life with a gun. His six-shooter lies unused in a blanket roll, until the rancher brings in a killer to provoke a fight with Heflin. It is then that Ladd, as Shane, sees that he must again use his pistol for justice and to save his new-found friends. In the deadly finale, all enemies of the settlers are wiped out and Shane rides off again to a restless life.

Starring with Ladd and Heflin is Jean Arthur, playing the role of Heflin's wife, who is attracted to the stranger who joins her family. Miss Arthur gives the character her special brand of thesping skill, which shows through the singularly dowdy costuming and makeup. A standout is the young stage actor, Brandon De Wilde, whose work earns him a co-star credit. He brings the inquisitiveness and quick hero worship of youth to the part of Heflin's son and Steven's direction displays a true understanding of boyhood in pointing up the role.

Jack Palance, with short but impressive footage, is the hired killer. Emile Meyer, the bearded cattle king who sees his empire falling, is another who creates a tremendous impression for characterization. Edgar Buchanan, Elisha Cook, Jr., and Douglas Spencer are among the settlers who show up in the story-telling. Ben Johnson registers strongly as Ladd's foe in the first bloody fist fight. John Dierkes, Ellen Corby and the others are good.

Pictorially, the picture has been beautifully photographed in color by Loyal Griggs. Wyoming's scenic splendors against which the story is filmed are breath-taking. Sunlight, the shadow of rain storms and the eerie lights of night, play a realistic part in making the picture a visual treat. The long footage has been well-integrated by the editing of William Hornbeck and Tom McAdoo, and Victor Young's music score is a decided asset. Brog.

Titanic

Screen drama based on the 1912 sinking of the luxury liner. Good b.o. prospects.

Hollywood, April 14.

20th-Fox release of Charles Brackett production. Stars Clifton Webb, Barbara Stanwyck; co-stars Robert Wagner, Audrey Dalton, Thelma Ritter; features Brian Aherne, Richard Basehart, Allyn Joslyn, James Todd, Frances Bergen, William Johnstone. Directed by Jean Negulesco. Screenplay, Brackett, Walter Reisch, Richard Breen; camera, Joe MacDonald; editor, Louis Loeffler; music, Sol Kaplan. Previewed April 10, '53. Running time, 97 MINS.

Richard Sturges	Clifton Webb
Mrs. Sturges	Barbara Stanwyck
Giff Rogers	Robert Wagner
Annette	Audrey Dalton
Mrs. Young	Thelma Ritter
Captain Smith	Brian Aherne
Healey	Richard Basehart
Earl Meeker	Allyn Joslyn
Sandy Comstock	James Todd
Mrs. J. J. Astor	Frances Bergen
John Jacob Astor	William Johnstone
Messenger	Christopher Severn
Devlin	James Lilburn
Officer Wilde	Charles Fitzsimons
1st Officer Murdock	Barry Bernard
Widener	Guy Standing, Jr.
Mrs. Straus	Helen Van Tuyl
Isidor Straus	Roy Gordon
Mrs. Uzeadum	Marta Mitrovich
Emma	Ivis Goulding
Bride	Dennis Fraser
Phillips	Ashley Cowan
Norman	Harper Carter
Officer Lightfoller	Edmund Purdom
Symons	Lee Graham
College Girls	Merry Anders, Gloria Gordon, Melinda Markey
College Students	Ronald F. Hagerthy, Conrad Fela, Richard West

The sinking of H.M.S. Titanic in 1912 provides a factual basis for this screen drama reenacting the tragic voyage. Overall, it is excellent filmfare, particularly in the latter half, and it has good grossing prospects in regular release, market for which it is best suited.

Story line is built around fictional characters aboard the supposedly unsinkable British luxury liner when it started its maiden voyage from Southampton to N.Y. on April 11, 1912, but the historical facts behind the tragedy give substance to fiction. During the first half, the film is inclined to dawdle and talk, but by the time the initial 45 or 50 minutes are out of the way, the impending disaster begins to take a firm grip on the imagination and builds a compeling expectancy. The final 30 minutes, after the ship's bottom is opened by a jagged iceberg spur, is strong screen drama, hitting hard at the emotions as frightened, but brave, people respond to the danger, and characters are molded in the crisis.

It is during these scenes that Jean Negulesco's direction and the script really shine, bringing out the drama that lies in the confusion of shipwreck and passengers' reaction to certain doom. Here the script by Charles Brackett (who also produced), Walter Reisch and Richard Breen makes every word and action count, and Negulesco's direction takes the players over the dramatic hurdles with a sure hand. The scenes will tear at the heart. The records show that of the 2,229 persons aboard, only 712 escaped before the ship plunged to the bottom of the North Atlantic at 2:30 a.m., April 15, 1912.

Barbara Stanwyck and Clifton Webb do well by the principal roles in the fictional story. She is a wife trying to take her two children, Audrey Dalton and Harper Carter, away from the spoiling influence of a husband interested only in a superficial society life. The ship sails and during the ensuing footage an audience is made acquainted briefly with the assorted people aboard as Miss Stanwyck and Webb battle abortively to settle their family differences. This personal conflict is resolved in the heroic finale, as Webb becomes a man in the crisis and says farewell as he remains with his son to go down with the other doomed persons, singing "Nearer My God to Thee."

A shipboard romance between Robert Wagner, a student returning to the states, and Miss Dalton, offer some pleasant, touching moments. Thelma Ritter has little to do as a rich western mine owner. Brian Aherne is excellent as the ship's captain. Richard Basehart, a de-frocked priest addicted to the bottle, makes his few moments stand out. Allyn Joslyn is good as a coward who sneaks aboard a lifeboat disguised as a woman. Young Carter makes his role of the boy believable.

Brackett's production supervision has the advantage of some high technical skills that add physical wallop to the story. Reproduction of the luxury ship, special effects that picture the doomed vessel in the climactic moments, period costuming and other physical aspects are topnotch, and Joe MacDonald lenses them well.

Music score by Sol Kaplan, directed by Lionel Newman, is good. Of note is the fact that the music is not allowed to detract from the dramatic impact of the finale sequences, most of which are heightened because only the sound that would go with these scenes is used. Brog.

Scared Stiff
(SONGS—DANCES)

Hilarious Martin & Lewis comedy with Latin haunted-house setting. Bright b.o. prospects.

Hollywood April 14.

Paramount release of Hal Wallis production. Stars Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Lizabeth Scott, Carmen Miranda; features George Dolenz, Dorothy Malone, William Ching. Directed by George Marshall. Screenplay, Herbert Baker, Walter De Leon; added dialog, Ed Simmons, Norman Lear; based on play by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard; camera, Ernest Laszlo; editorial supervision, Warren Low; music direction, Joseph J. Lilley; music score, Leith Stevens; new songs, Maek David, Jerry Livingston; musical numbers staged by Billy Daniel. Previewed in Hollywood, Running time, 106 MINS.

Larry Todd	Dean Martin
Myron Mertz	Jerry Lewis
Mary Carroll	Lizabeth Scott
Carmelita Castina	Carmen Miranda
Mr. Cortega	George Dolenz
Rosie	Dorothy Malone
Tony Warren	William Ching
Carriso Twins	Paul Marion
Zombi	Jack Lambert
Police Lieutenant	Tom Powers
Trigger	Tony Barr
Shorty	Leonard Strong
Pierre	Henry Brandon
Cop on Pier	Hugh Sanders

Dean Martin & Jerry Lewis are back in a free-wheeling round of slapstick hilarity—the kind they do so well— in "Scared Stiff," new version of the old Paul Dickey-Charles W. Goddard play. The results provide fun for all ages and hold out promise of bright boxoffice in practically all situations.

The typical M&L funning gets underway early and continues throughout the 106 minutes of footage. Any lapse in the pace is so slight, it will hardly be noticed, and only serves to provide a breathing spot for audiences as George Marshall sends the players through the broadly-belted comedy hokum. The Hal Wallis production, scripted by Herbert Baker and Walter De Leon, shapes the values to take advantage of the numerous gags, physical business, songs and dances.

Script, to which Ed Simmons and Norman Lear contributed added dialog, has its chief setting on a lonely, zombie-haunted island off the coast of Cuba. To get the principals on the spot, preliminaries are concerned with Martin, a cabaret singer, and his awkward chum, Lewis, back in New York, where they get mixed up with a gangster's girl, Dorothy Malone, and, in fleeing a gangland ride, meet up with Lizabeth Scott, heiress to the island.

Martin & Lewis decide to go along with her as protection against mysterious men who are attempting to keep her from claiming her inheritance. Once on the island, Lewis' comedic, frightened reaction to the supernatural atmosphere and the tricks pulled by the heavy to scare them off, keep the laughs running into each other before the mystery is solved and William Ching is revealed as the villain who wants the island because of a gold vein under the old castle. Bats, sliding doors, hidden passages, etc., are among the standard equipment aiding the fun.

Five newer tunes, plus Carmen Miranda's "Mama yo Quiero," are belted out in the music line. Martin pipes Mack David's and Jerry Livingston's "I Don't Care If the Sun Don't Shine" as a lead-in to a hilarious routine in which a bumbling Lewis decorates cafe guests with spaghetti. The comics team on "What Have You Done for Me Lately" and Miss Miranda is next out with "San Domingo," on which M&L join. Martin woos Miss Scott with "When Someone Wonderful Thinks You're Wonderful." "The Enchilada Man" serves as a production piece for M&L, Miss Miranda and dance line. Lewis decks himself out in platform shoes and fruit to take off Miss Miranda's "Mama." Joseph J. Lilley's musical direction and Leith Stevens' music score are excellent.

Oddly enough, a comedy highlight in the picture is handled by uncredited Frank Fontaine, playing a drunk who thinks Martin is a ventriloquist when he is caught talking to Lewis, hidden in a trunk at dock-side. The comedy team is in its element in the story's slapstick harum-scarum. Miss Scott handles herself niftily and Miss Miranda shows up well. Miss Malone's chores in the early footage are carried out delightfully as a gal who likes to kiss, even if it does displease her gangster boyfriend, Leonard Strong. George Dolenz, a sort of mysterious character; Ching, the heavy; Paul Marion, Jack Lambert, the zombi, and the others involved, supply capable support.

Ernest Laszlo's photography, the special photographic effects by Gordon Jennings and Paul Lerpae, the Edith Head costumes for the femmes, and the other contributions backing the production are first-rate. Brog.

It Happens Every Thursday

Entertaining comedy drama of country newspapering, with familiar name of Loretta Young heading cast. Acceptable fare for general situations.

Hollywood, April 13.

Universal release of Anton M. Leader (Leonard Goldstein) production. Stars Loretta Young, John Forsythe; features Frank McHugh, Edgar Buchanan, Palmer Lee, Harvey Grant, Jane Darwell, Willard Waterman. Directed by Joseph Pevney. Screenplay, Dane Lussier; adaptation, Leonard Praskins and Barney Slater; based on novel by Jane S. McIlvaine; camera, Russell Metty; editor, Frank Gross. Previewed April 7, '53. Running time, 80 MINS.

Jane MacAvoy	Loretta Young
Bob McAvoy	John Forsythe
Fred Hawley	Frank McHugh
Jake	Edgar Buchanan
Chet Dunne	Palmer Lee
Steve MacAvoy	Harvey Grant
Mrs. Spatch	Jane Darwell
Myron Trout	Willard Waterman
Matthew	Jimmy Conlin
Mayor Hull	Regis Toomey
Mrs. Holmes	Gladys George
Mrs. Dow	Kathryn Card
Homer	Edward Clark
Bartlett	Eddy Waller

Loretta Young heads up the cast in this entertaining comedy drama concerned with country newspapering. It is a friendly, unpretentious, general market feature that should be well-liked in the regular situation, even though not likely to create any great stir at the boxoffice.

The Anton M. Leader production is based on Jane S. McIlvaine's novel of the same title, which details the adventures of a young couple trying to run a small-town weekly. Joseph Pevney's direction is good and the script likable, so things move along entertainingly for the 80 minutes of footage.

Miss Young is excellent as the wife of John Forsythe, a big-city

(Continued on page 22)

STEREO SOUNDS UPBEAT NOTE

Norling Asks 'Interim' Standards; Plugs Single-Projector 3-D System

Industry should set up certain "interim" standards of a fundamental nature to cover it until there has been a natural adjustment in 3-D and widescreen developments, John A. Norling, Loucks & Norling Studios prexy and head of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers' stereo committee, said in N. Y. last week.

Norling, a 3-D pioneer, also feels the industry is overlooking an important cost-saving factor in failing to concentrate on the development of single-projector 3-D systems, which could save millions in added print costs.

He has, for a long time, had his own single-projector process which, if anyone wanted it, could be ready in "less than three months." For the producer it involves the printing of the left and right eye views on a single strip of film in a novel way.

Exhibs would have to lay out "less than $2,000" for a new projector head which is interchangeable with standard projector heads and fits any standard make projector. "Conversion of the industry to this system would cost only a fraction of what the industry spent in converting from silent to sound films," Norling believes. Polaroid Corp. has the Vectograph, another system for permitting single-lens 3-D projection.

Loucks & Norling meanwhile is going ahead with the manufacture of additional of its special 3-D cameras and expects to have eight of them ready in three months' time. It already has a non-exclusive deal with RKO for use of the camera, based on a down-payment and a percentage of the gross. Talks with other studios for use of the Norling camera are going on.

U. S. Sec. of Treasury Would K.O. 18-Month Dodge for Pix Stars

Film work abroad involving Hollywood talent, on the increase over past months, likely will be sharply curtailed if Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey has his way about the tax benefits of making pix on foreign terrain.

Producers, directors and many performers have been showing increasing preference for European lensing, at least partly because if they're abroad 17 out of any 18-month period their earnings are exempt from U. S. income taxes. William Wyler, John Huston, Humphrey Bogart, Clark Gable and Gene Kelly, among others, have been on extended stays in Europe lately.

In a letter this week to Rep. Daniel A. Reed, chairman of the House Ways & Means Committee, Humphrey called for revision by Congress of the tax law setup so that "highly paid individuals" would be denied the 17-month tax exemption. He said the tax relief bill was intended only for technically-skilled persons.

Release Super-'A' Pix Like a Cadillac—Stevens

Film companies, along with handling program pix, should have a "Cadillac" division, that is, a separate operation for the release of upper crust product, according to George Stevens. He wants the "A" pic given individual treatment, such as done with David O. Selznick's "Gone With the Wind" and "Duel in the Sun," instead of being a part of the overall product package over the season.

Stevens, having wound up his commitment with Paramount with delivery of "Shane," Alan Ladd-Jean Arthur-Van Heflin starrer, figures now on entering into indie production. He disclosed he purchased rights to Paul Wellman's novel, "The Commancheros," but has no immediate lensing plans.

Joan Bennett Inked For Rome-Cairo Colorpic 'Nile'

Producer Marion Gering and Miguel Salkind of Rome's Obelisco Film Co. inked Joan Bennett to star in "Storm Over the Nile."

To be lensed in color, venture is scheduled to go before the cameras in Rome July 20. Additional shooting in Egypt is planned in September at the M.I.S.R. Universal studio in Cairo.

Gering, who recently completed an underwater film tagged "Main Street, Under Sea," is readying a second such project. It's tentatively due to roll either in Bermuda or the Bahamas next January, based upon a script by Gering and A. J. Palmerio. Bronson Hartley will handle the lensing and Martica will star. They had similar chores in "Main Street."

Exhibs Attack 3-D 'Confusion'

With alleged distrib trade practice abuses involving rentals, clearances and runs already a main target of exhibs, theatremen are sharply attacking the film companies for the current confusion in the industry brought about by the introduction of new projection methods. Exhibs charge that the 3-D hoopla, coupled with the various alleged trade abuses, has placed the industry in a state of confusion even overshadowing the introduction of sound and the period of the major antitrust suits.

Main barrage is based on the complaint that the studios, with their vast resources and technical brains, have made no effort to introduce 3-D in an intelligent, orderly manner. It's pointed out that other big industries have research laboratories working continuously in developing new products or improvements and, in most instances, exchanging ideas within their trade.

As a result of the indecision and the new 3-D and widescreen processes announced each day, exhib orgs continue to caution their members to go easy in installing new systems. Both Theatre Owners of America and Allied States Assn. admit to their members that it's impossible to give specific advice. All they can do, they note, is to inform theatremen with the info at hand and then it's up to the individual exhib to make his own decision.

ALLIED DROPS AD PLAN IN HIGH RENTALS FIGHT

A plan to takes its case against high film rentals to the public via extensive advertising has been dropped, at least for the time being, by Allied States Assn., it was learned this week. Original idea aimed to point out why exhibs were not booking certain pictures. Campaign, which would have been patterned after the A & P's extensive fight against the Government antitrust action, would have cited that because of distrib rental demands, exhibs would be forced to hike their admission prices, with the public being asked to shell out more coin for film entertainment.

Although individual exhibs reportedly expressed a desire to chip in for such a campaign, it was felt that such a drive would not be appropriate this time, since Allied would be accused of attempting to influence the Senate Small Business Committee. Senate body holds Washington hearings later this month on industry's trade practices.

Meanwhile, individual exhibs have been taking space in their local newspapers to explain why certain theatres are by-passing the so-called "big" pictures.

SEEN FACTOR IN BOXOFFICE HYPO

Emergence of stereophonic sound as a byproduct of the industry's current rash of 3-D and widescreen systems has observers wondering whether the pic biz hasn't unconsciously latched on to another big plus factor for its films.

Excitement over stereo sound is shared by exhibs and studios alike amidst indications that it may be a standard item for all pix, regardless of their dimension. At least two studios, Universal and 20th-Fox, already have announced that all of their future productions will come through with multi-channel sound. And both the Loew's and RKO circuits are studying whether to install it.

While most exhibs agree that directional sound gives added attraction to their shows, current equipment costs and lack of standardization are retarding factors. Stereo sound units now cost anywhere from $11,000 up and can involve extensive wiring jobs. Exhibs are also scared off by the thought that, where multi-channel sound is currently available on separate tracks via magnetic recording, several companies are at work attempting to put stereo sound on one film together with the picture.

Various Solutions

Experiments are under way at 20th which must have stereo sound for its CinemaScope widescreen system. According to Earl I. Sponable, 20th research head, the company is studying various solu-

(Continued on page 25)

Exhibs Drive To Cut Real Estate, Licensing Fees

Although not as highly publicized as the industry campaign for the elimination of the 20% Federal admission tax, exhibs throughout the country have been quietly but forcefully pitching for a reduction in real estate assessments and license fees. Drive is not on a concerted national level, although info and experiences with various local authorities have been exchanged at exhib conventions. Campaign is strictly on a local basis, with each individual exhib or regional circuit rep dealing with the tax or license department in the city or town where the theatres are located.

Argument presented by exhibs is that although downtown or neighborhood property values may have increased, theatres, as single-purpose structures, have suffered as a result of the offish b.o. They're also citing decentralization of population, and parking and transportation problems which tend to take business away from the downtown houses. Point the exhibs are driving home is that the properties are worth less as theatres, although the true market value of the real estate may be higher.

In Philaledphia, the Stanley Warner Corp. has already received assessment reductions for six theatres totalling $96,000. However, the company is protesting an assessment of $4,227,200 for 1953 for a group of other houses.

In Detroit, municipal authorities are cooperating with theatreowners in reducing assessments on theatre properties. In South Carolina a bill has been introduced in the legislature whereby state license fees would be at a flat rate basis, rather than so much per seat. Measure, supported by exhibs, would levy $25 annually on theatres with 250 or fewer seats, and up to $300 a year for larger houses. At present, seat taxes range from $1 to $2 annually depending on population.

Exhibs Demand Widescreen Economy, Swing to Simpler Depth Systems

With the economists once again in the saddle, the industry has begun to reappraise the dollars-and-cents value of the word "widescreen." Conclusion apparently is that, as far as the public is concerned, the payoff is not in the method, but in the size of the picture.

As a result, there's been a gradual swinging away from complicated optical devices to achieve widescreen effects. Instead, studios are adopting the view that, for an interim period at least, any large screen, carrying a magnification of a standard picture, will serve the purpose.

New line of thinking has been emphasized in recent days by announcements of the Universal system, which involves no more than an ordinary panoramic screen with a special light-reflecting coating; installation of a Metro-developed screen in M-G houses abroad; adoption of a large 50 ft. by 30 ft. screen by Radio City Music Hall in N. Y., for the showing of "Shane," and so on. Move for simplification is sparked by two outstanding considerations.

1. Studios are concerned over their $300,000,000 backlog, which any sudden switch into a new form of presentation could sharply depreciate in value.

2. Exhibitors, while not unwilling to gamble, are tackling this new problem with the twin thought of making their installations as inexpensive as possible and to assure themselves of a steady supply of product.

As long as an effective and practical way is found of both utilizing standard feature productions and changing the aspect ratio of the screen to make pix presentation more attractive, why go overboard on expensive systems that essen-

(Continued on page 20)

Clement Quits Par Int'l Due to Health; Hoff In

Roger C. Clement has resigned as secretary and counsel for Paramount International Corp. after a 20-year association with the company, it was disclosed in New York yesterday (Tues.) by George Weltner, president of Par foreign operation. Clement is retiring from business for reasons of health.

Moving into the secretary's spot is J. William Piper, who heretofore served as assistant secretary. Replacing Clement as counsel is George G. Hoff, formerly an attorney on the staff of the U. S. Dept. of State and associated with the law firm of Appleton, Rice & Perrin.

Italo Pix Deal Nix Surprise To Trade

Italo government's nixing of the proposed new film deal with the U. S. pix industry surprised company execs in N. Y. last week, especially since the Motion Picture Assn. of America had appeared confident that the agreement, worked out in Rome by MPAA prexy Eric Johnston, would be approved. It's generally believed, however, that Johnston, who was due back in Rome from his Point 4 trip Monday (13), would be able to straighten out matters at the high government level.

Objection to the pact came against the increase of remittables from 37½% to 40%, the 2½% representing the cut in financial aid to the Italian industry from 12½% to 10% of U.S. earnings. The head of the Italo government's foreign currency department, a career government official, who was absent from Rome when the deal was negotiated, declared he couldn't spare the added dollars.

It's believed in N. Y. that blocking of the deal represents as much of an internal tiff among Italian officials as it reflects concern over Italy's dollar position.

Under the terms of the suggested 14-month agreement, U. S. distribs would continue importing 225 pix a year. As in that past, 50% of their revenue would be frozen, with compensation deals authorized to unthaw that coin where possible. Another 40% would be remittable and 10% would go to the Italian industry as a loan.

Remittances from Italy under the current deal, which expires June 30, came to approximately $4,000,000 annually. Blocked funds at present total about $5,000,000.

SELZNICK TO BALLY REISSUES ON VIDEO

Hollywood, April 14.

David O. Selznick is readying a nationwide television campaign this summer to exploit the reissue of 20 of his old theatrical films. First on the list will be "Duel in the Sun," followed by "Tom Sawyer."

Currently recovering from minor surgery, Selznick said the oldies will be given full-scale ballyhoo as if they were new.

WB Music Director Kudos

Mechanicville, N.Y., April 14.

Ray Heindorf, director of music for Warner Bros. in Hollywood, will be honored here May 9 at a community celebration marking the 50th anniversary of Local 318, AFM, to which he belongs. Former resident of this Saratoga County community will be presented with the key to the city by Mayor Thomas E. Ryan.

Day has been designated as Ray Heindorf Day. Chris Miller, of Local 318, is general chairman.

D.C. to Begin Hearings On 20% Tax Repeal Bills, Statute of Limitations

Washington, April 14.

Film industry has an important stake in a number of bills and legislative actions currently being weighed and upcoming here this week.

On Monday (20) the House Ways & Means Committee will begin a day of hearings on various bills introduced to repeal the 20% Federal admission tax. About 20 such measures, introduced by various Congressmen, are in the hopper.

A bill designed to repeal tax exemptions for persons who work and live abroad for 18 months was introduced in the House today (Tues.) by Rep. Daniel Reed (R., N. Y.). Measure, if passed, would become effective commencing with coin earned Jan. 1, 1953 (see separate story).

Slated for introduction later this week is a bill proposed by Rep. Chauncey Reed (R., Ill.), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, effecting treble damage suits. On the basis of Reed's bill, a court would have the discretion to give a complainant anything from actual damages suffered up to treble damages. Under the present law, treble damages are mandatory.

On Thursday (23) the House Judiciary Committee will study a bill by Rep. Kenneth Keating (R., N. Y.) which would set a Federal statute of limitation of five years on treble damage suits. At present there is no Federal statute of limitations, with the Federal courts accepting those of the different states which vary from one to 12 years. A Federal law would establish a uniform statute of limitations. Distribs have pitched for a three-year limitation while exhibs have advocated a seven-year period. After weighing the Keating bill, the Judiciary sub-committee settled on the five-year stanza, which it is reporting to the full committee.

Holdovers Nip L. A.; 'Madam' Slips To $24,000, 'Limits' Off to $13,000 But Stageshow Ups 'Sombrero' to Hot 37G

Los Angeles, April 14.

Only two new film bills are current this week, both b.o. dawdlers, so the heavy play is going to the second-weeker, "Sombrero," at the Los Angeles Paramount where Pearl Bailey and Duke Ellington are heading the fresh stage fare to a hefty $37,000 week. A just medium $23,000 is seen for "Trouble Along the Way" in three situations. "Tonight We Sing," showcasing at the Fox Wilshire at an upped scale, is reaping only a fair $8,500.

Most holdovers are lagging, particularly the second week bills. "Call Me Madam" is off to $24,000 in four locations while "Off Limits" is down to $13,000 at two sites. However, the Bob Hope-Marilyn Maxwell starrer is snaring near $28,000 in five nabe sites of which four are ozoners. Upped scale showcases, led by "Lili," are still good with this Metro entry copping $5,500 for the fourth frame at the Vogue. Second session of "Man On the Tightrope" at the Ritz is down to $6,000.

Estimates for This Week

Downtown, Wiltern, Beverly Hills (WT) (1,757; 2,344; 1,612; 70-$1.10)—"Trouble Along the Way" (WB). Just medium $23,000. Last week, Downtown, Wiltern; "Glass Wall" (Col) and "Jack McCall, Desperado" (Col), $10,000. Beverly Hills, upped scale, "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (15th wk-8 days), $8,200.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (2,296; 80-$1.50)—"Tonight We Sing" (20th). Fair $8,500. Last week, "Moulin Rouge" (UA) (15th wk-9 days), $5,900.

Los Angeles Paramount (ABC-UPT) (3,200; 95-$1.50) — "Sombrero" (MG) (2d wk), with Pearl Bailey, Duke Ellington band heading stage bill. Hefty $37,000. Last week, with Egyptian, "Sombrero" (MG) and "Port Sinister" (RKO), $24,700. Egyptian holding "Sombrero" 2d wk for mild $6,000.

Los Angeles, Chinese, Uptown, Loyola (FWC) (2,097; 2,048; 1,715; 1,248; 70-$1.10)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) and "Cairo Road" (Indie) (2d wk). Moderate $24,000. Last week, $33,500.

United Artists, Hollywood Paramount (UATC-F&M) (2,100; 1,430; 70-$1.10)—"Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk). Mild $13,000. Last week, $20,000.

Loew's State, Four Star, Hawaii (UATC-G&S) (2,404; 900; 1,106; 60-$1.10)—"Desert Legion" (U) and "Stolen Identity" (Indie) (2d wk). Fair $13,000. Last week, $24,000.

Ritz (FWC) (1,370; 80-$1.50)—"Man On Tightrope" (20th) (2d wk). Moderate $6,000. Last week, $9,100.

Hillstreet, Pantages (RKO) (2,752; 2,812; 74-$1.50)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) and "Bear Country" (RKO) (5th wk). Off to $18,000 for final round. Last week, $40,400.

Vogue (FWC) (885; 80-$1.50)—"Lili" (MG) (4th wk). Good $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

Fine Arts (FWC) (679; 80-$1.50)—"Four Poster" (Col) (5th wk). Dull $2,500. Last week, $2,900.

Globe (FWC) (782; 80-$1.50)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (7th wk) Okay $3,300. Last week, $4,000.

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $761,200
(Based on 21 theatres)
Last Year $727,300
(Based on 23 theatres)

'Seminole' Hot 20G Det.; 'Mars' $17,000

Detroit, April 14.

Biz continues good this week in the downtown houses. "Seminole" looks great at the Palms. "Invaders from Mars" shapes good at the Broadway-Capitol. Holdovers "Moulin Rouge," at the Fox; "Mississippi Gambler" at the Michigan, "Peter Pan," at the Madison; "Call Me Madam" at the United Artists, and "Hans Christian Andersen" at the Adams all are strong.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox-Detroit) (5,000; 80-$1.25)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (2d wk). Strong $35,000. Last week, $44,000.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,000; 70-95)—"Mississippi Gambler" (U) and "Prince of Pirates" (Col) (2d wk). Ok $14,000. Last week, $21,000.

Music Hall (Cinerama Prods.) (1,145; $1-$2.80)—"This Is Cinerama" (Indie) (4th wk). Third session ended Monday (13) pulled mighty $31,000 after same last week.

Palms (UD) (2,961; 70-95) — "Seminole" (U) and "Woman Almost Lynched" (Rep). Great $20,000. Last week, "Girls in Night" (U) and "Gunsmoke" (U) $16,000.

Madison (UD) (1,900; 95-$1.25)—"Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) (8th wk). Strong $10,000. Last week, $17,000.

United Artists (UA) (1,938; 95-$1.25)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk). Good $19,000. Last week, $22,699.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; 95-$1.25) —"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (4th wk). Oke $9,000. Last week, $10,000.

Broadway-Capitol (Korman) (3,500; 70-95)—"Invaders from Mars" (20th) and "White Lightning" (Mono). Good $17,000. Last week, "Fort Vengeance" (Allied) and "Hiawatha" (Allied) $6,500.

'Seminole' Okay $7,500, Port.; 'Salome' 9G, 2d

Portland, Ore., April 14.

Biz at first run houses continues to be perking despite hiked admish prices for strong product and transient name attractions. "H. C. Andersen" and "Salome" look great for a second sesh while "Four Poster" moves into a fourth frame. All at premium tabs. Other newcomers look ordinary.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,890; 65-90) —"Seminole" (UI) and "I'll Reach For A Star" (Rep) (reissue). Okay $7,500. Last week, "Ma and Pa Kettle On Vacation" (UI) and "Gunsmoke" (UI). $11,800.

Guild (Parker) (400; 90-$1.25)—"The Four Poster" (Col) (4th wk), advanced prices. Good $2,000 and holds. Last week, $3,100.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,875; 65-90) —"I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Confidentially Connie" (M-G) (2d wk). Fine $8,000. Last week, $11,300.

Oriental (Evergreen) (2,000; 65-90)—"Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Taxi" (20th), day date with Orpheum. So-so $2,800. Last week, "Salome" (Col), day-date with Paramount at advanced prices, $5,000.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,750; 65-90)—"Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Taxi" (20th), also Oriental. Good $7,000. Last week, "The Star" (20th) and "Secret People" (Indie). $6,000.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,400; 90-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk), advanced prices. Near $9,000. Last week, also Oriental. $14,000.

United Artists (Parker) (890; 90-$1.25)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (2d wk), advanced prices. Sock $13,500. Last week, $14,300.

'Roadshow' Pix Load Seattle; 'Rouge' Wow 11½G, 'Salome' 11G, 2d

Seattle, April 14.

Again the town is "loaded" with three first-run attractions at roadshow prices, namely $1.25 evenings general admish. "Salome" is going into second stanza at Fifth Avenue. Music Box has "Moulin Rouge" and Paramount is holding "Peter Pan" for third stanza, after phenomenal second on top of big opener.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (800; 65-90)—"Ma and Pa Kettle Vacation" (U) and "Fort Sinister" (RKO) (2d wk). M.o from from Liberty. Fair $2,500. Last week, split of "A.&C. to Mars" (U) and Gunsmoke" (UA), with "Seminole" (U), 2d wk., fair $2,400.

Coliseum (Evergreen) (1,829; 65-90)—"Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Silver Whip" (20th) (2d wk). Good $6,000 after swell $10,700 in opening stanza.

Fifth Avenue (Hamrick) (2,366; 90-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Swell $11,000 following sweet $15,000 last week.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,650; 65-90) —"Battle Circus" (M-G) and "Wom-

(Continued on page 22)

'Rouge' Rosy $20,000 Tops Indpls.; 'Limits,' Fine 13G

Indianapolis, April 14.

Biz remains brisk at most first-runners here this stanza despite cold, rainy weekend. "Moulin Rouge," while starting lower than expectations, is stout enough at Loew's to lead town. "Off Limits" is strong at Indiana, "Peter Pan" plenty oke in second week at Circle, "Hans Christian Andersen" in third at Keith's.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Cockrill-Dolle) (2,800; 50-$1.20)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Dandy $15,000 after great $34,000 Easter week opening stanza.

Indiana (Cockrill-Dolle) (3,200; 50-76)—"Off Limits" (Par) and "The Marksman" (AA). Fine $13,000. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Taxi" (20th). Dull $8,500.

Keith's (Cockrill-Dolle) (1,300; 50-$1.20)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (3d wk). Nifty $8,000, added to hefty $12,000 second stanza and $15,500 opener.

Loew's (Loew's) (2,427; 76-$1)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA). Solid $20,000. Last week, "Small Town Girl" (M-G) and "Jack McCall, Desperado" (Col). Nice $12,000 at 50-76 scale.

Lyric (Cockrill-Dolle) (1,600; 50-76)—"Thunderbirds" (Rep) and "Winter Serenade" (Indie). Oke $5,500. Last week, "Fort Vengeance" (AA) and "Savage Mutiny" (Col). Mild $5,000.

Philly Off, But 'Seminole' $11,000

Philadelphia, April 14.

Incessant rains dampened the overall first-run scene here. "Sheba" started strong at the Boyd but more was expected. "Seminole" whooped up the Stanton and "Anna" is exiting the Aldine in a week which saw holdovers offering little help.

Estimates for This Week

Aldine (WB) (1,303; 50-99)—"Anna" (IFE). Poor $6,000. Last week, "Sombrero" (M-G) (2d wk), off to $5,000.

Arcadia (S&S) (625; 85-$1.20)—"Bad and Beautiful" (M-G) (10th wk). Down to $4,500. Last week, fair $6,500.

Boyd (WB) (2,360; 50-99)—"Come Back Little Sheba" (Par). Fine $21,000. Last week, "Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) (7th wk-5 days), oke $8,500.

Fox (20th) (2,250; 85-$1.30)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (3d wk). Fair $15,000. Last week, great $23,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,200; 50-99)—"Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk). Okay $11,000. Last week, torrid $15,000.

Mastbaum (WB) (4,360; 50-99)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB) (2d wk). Weak $8,500. Last week, barely okay at $15,000 or near.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,000; 85-$1.50)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (10th wk). Strong $12,000. Last week, solid $10,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,500; 50-99)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G) (2d wk). Off to $9,000. Last week, tepid $13,000.

Stanley (WB) (2,900; 85-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Hefty $20,000. Last week, mighty $37,000.

Stanton (WB) (1,473; 50-99)—"Seminole" (U). Lusty $11,000. Last week, "System" (WB), slow $6,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 90-$1.25) —"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (6th wk). Torrid $13,000. Last week, great $14,000.

World (G&S) (500; 60-99)—"Little World of Don Camillo" (IFE) (2d wk). Down to $3,200. Last week, tidy $3,800.

'Small Town' Low $8,500, HO's Lead Balto Parade

Baltimore, April 14.

Slate here this week is virtually 100% holdover of big holiday product. "Peter Pan" at the Hipp and "Call Me Madam" at the New are still leading the town in second weeks for both. Sole new entry is "Small Town Girl," getting moderate trade at the Town. "Come Back, Little Sheba" is still packing them in at the bandbox Playhouse in its fifth round.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Loew's-UA) (3,000; 20-70)—"Naked Spur" (M-G) (2d wk). Still okay at $9,800 after $14,500 opener.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,100; 50-$1.25)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Moppet trade helping for a

(Continued on page 22)

'Off Limits' Fair $16,000, 'Girl' Thin 24½G in Dullish Hub; 'Salome' 20G, 2d

Boston, April 14.

Current frame shapes disappointing following a below par Easter week. Newcomers, "Off Limits" at Met and "Small Town Girl" at Orpheum and State, are more than average. "Salome," in second round at Astor at upped prices, seems headed for oke week but "Call Me Madam" in second frame at Memorial below hopes. "Trouble Along Way" in second week at Paramount and Fenway, holding fairly well.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,500; 74-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Strong night biz should push this one to near $20,000. Nifty $25,000 for first stanza.

Boston (RKO) (3,000; 50-90)—"Blood and Sand" (20th) and "American Guerilla in Philippines" (20th) (reissues). Sluggish $9,000. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "Fame and Devil" (Indie). Below hopes at $11,000.

Exeter (Indie) (1,300; 60-80)—"Importance of Being Earnest" (U) (2d wk). Nice $7,200 looms. First week built to slick $8,500.

Fenway (Net) (1,373; 50-90)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB) and "San Antone" (Rep) (2d wk), fair $3,800 following nice $6,500 for first week.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 60-$1)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk). Near $16,000 for second frame. Below expectations at $23,000 for first week.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,367; 50-90)—"Off Limits" (Par) and "Stolen Identity" (Embassy). Fairish $16,000 looms. Last week, "President's Lady" (20th) and "Woman They Almost Hanged" (Rep). Opened strong but skidded to unhappy $13,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (3,000; 50-90)—"Small Town Girl" (M-G) and "Jack McCall" (Col). Mildish $15,000. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Five Angles on Murder" (Col). Poor $14,000.

Paramount (NET) (1,700; 50-90)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB) and "San Antone" (Rep) (2d wk). Near $10,000 shapes. Nice $15,000 for first week.

State (Loew) (3,500; 50-90)—"Small Town Girl" (M-G) and "Jack McCall" (Col). Fair $9,500. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Five Angles on Murder (Col). Sad $8,000.

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $2,746,600
(Based on 24 cities, 211 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)
Total Gross Same Week
Last Year $2,754,100
(Based on 23 cities, and 217 theatres.)

'Salome' Record 19G Paces Wash.

Washington, April 14.

Tourist trade continues to boost main stem b.o., despite scarcity of newcomers. Biggest splash being made by "Salome," which shapes to record breaking proportions at Trans-Lux, on heels of critical brickbats. "Ma, & Pa Kettle on Vacation," plus vaude headlined by Gloria de Haven, at Loew's Capitol, is pleasant. "Trouble Along Way" looks trim at the Warner. Practically all holdovers are sturdy, with "Moulin Rouge," in second stanza at Loew's Palace, leading parade. Record long run title holder, "High Noon," continues brisk in 15th session at Lopert's Dupont. Also in solid class for holdovers are "Peter Pan," 9th week at RKO Keith's; "Hans Christian Andersen," in 8th stanza at Metropolitan; "Little Sheba," in 9th week at Playhouse.

Estimates for This Week

Capitol (Loew's) (3,434; 55-95)—"Ma & Pa Kettle on Vacation" (UA), plus vaude topped by Gloria de Haven. Firm $19,000, with b.o. lure in vaude. Last week, "Small Town Girl" (M-G), plus vaude, big $24,000, above hopes.

Columbia (Loew's) (1,174; 74-$1.20)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk). Sock $17,000, after big $22,000, though not up to hopes in opener. Holds.

Dupont (Lopert) (372; 55-$1)—"High Noon" (UA) (15th wk). Still going strong with s.r.o. week-ends. Fine $4,000, after sock $5,000 last week.

Keith's (RKO) (1,939; 90-$1.25)—"Peter Pan" (RKO-Disney) (9th wk). Very firm $10,000 after smash $12,000 last week, and may hold.

Metropolitan (Warner) (1,200; 90-$1.25)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (8th wk). Bright $10,000, after fine $12,000 last week, and stays.

Palace (Loew's) (2,370; 74-$1.20) —"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (2d wk). Boff $32,000 after sizzling $41,000 last week, and holds.

Playhouse (Lopert) (435; 55-$1)—"Come Back, Little Sheba" (Par) (9th wk). Very steady $5,000 after $6,000 last week. Stays.

Warner (WB) (2,174; 55-85)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB). Trim $12,000. Last week, "Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk), fine $12,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (600; 90-$1.25)—"Salome" (Col). Opened with record first day b.o., and shapes to smash $19,000 at tilted scale. Holds. Last week, "Member of Wedding" (Col) (4th wk), oke $3,000.

'ROUGE' FANCY $25,000, BUFF.; 'PAN' 18G, 2D

Buffalo, April 14.

Lone new entry, "Moulin Rouge," is cleaning up at the Buffalo. Best of the holdovers are "Salome" and "Peter Pan."

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew's) (3,000; 40-$1)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA). Fancy $25,000. Last week, "Bandits of Corsica" (UA), Sugar Ray Robinson, Louis Armstrong, on stage (4 days), $21,000.

Paramount (Par) (3,000; 40-70)—"Off Limits" (Par) and "Wyoming Roundup" (AA) (2d wk). Fair $7,500 on four days. Last week, $16,000.

Center (Par) (2,100; 40-70)—"Trouble Along the Way" (WB) (2d wk). Mild $7,000 on six days. Last week, $12,000.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 50-$1)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Good $15,000. Last week, $21,000.

Century (20th Cent.) (50-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) and "Bear Country" (RKO) (2d wk). Strong $18,000. Last week, $29,000.

'Kettles' Hot $20,000 Despite Denver Snow, 'Trouble' Okay $12,000

Denver, April 14.

Heavy snowstorm clipped business over the weekend. Bad weather, coupled with fact that five houses have holdovers, forced business down generally. Withal, "Kettles on Vacation" is good enough at the Aladdin, Tabor and Webber for a few days' extended run.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (1,400; 50-85)—"Ma and Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U), day-date with Tabor, Webber. Good $8,000. Last week, "Raiders" (U) and "Black Castle" (U), $6,000.

Broadway (Wolfberg) (1,200; 50-85)—"Sombrero" (U) (2d wk). Fair $5,500. Last week, $7,500.

Denham (Cockrill) (1,750; 50-85) —"Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk). Poor $8,500. Last week, $13,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,525; 50-85)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk) day-date with Esquire. Fair $12,000. Last week, big $22,000.

Esquire (Fox) (742; 50-85)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk), as Denver. Fair $2,500. Last week, big $4,000.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,600; 50-85)—"Trouble Along the Way" (WB) and "Rogue's March" (M-G). Okay $12,000. Last week, "Peter Pan" (RKO) (3d wk), $9,000.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,200; 50-85)—"Desert Legion" (U) and "Tarzan's Savage Fury" (RKO) (2d wk). Average $10,000. Last week, fine $16,000.

Tabor (Fox) (1,967; 50-85)—"Ma and Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U), as Aladdin, Webber. Good $8,500. Last week, "Raiders" (U) and "Black Castle" (U), $5,500.

Vogue (Pike) (600; 60-90)—"Importance of Being Earnest" (U) (2d wk). Fair $1,500. Last week, $2,600.

Webber (Fox) (750; 50-85)—"Ma and Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U), as Aladdin, Tabor. Good $3,500. Last week, "Raiders" (U) and "Black Castle" (U), $2,750.

Stout Product Booms Chi; 'Madam' Bright $30,000, 'Legion' Lush 20G, 'Rouge' 38G, 2d, 'Salome' 32G, 2d

Chicago, April 14.

While some strong new films are helping the Loop boxoffice it's the sterling holdover product that's really punching grosses upwards. Among the newcomers, "Call Me Madam" at the Oriental seems brightest with a hefty $30,000. "Desert Legion" and "Ma and Pa Kettle on Vacation" at the Roosevelt is headed for a lush $20,000 while "Jeopardy" and "Confidential Connie" at the United Artists is picking up a fast $20,000. Chicago, with "Trouble Along the Way" and stage show, is heading for a lean $33,000.

In the holdover slot, it's "Moulin Rouge" and "Salome" which are blanketing the rest of the houses. "Rouge" at the State-Lake looks likely to snatch powerful $38,000 for the second week. In the same frame, "Salome" at the Grand should hold to lusty $32,000. Among other duo weekers, "Crash of Silence" at the Surf seems best with fair $4,000 seen. "Girl Who Had Everything" at the Woods appears okay with $16,000 but "Tonight We Sing" at the Palace looks for a lean $9,000.

World, with "Forbidden Games" in sixth frame, is after a punchy $3,500 and "Come Back Little Sheba" at the Ziegfeld in the same week is displaying strong holdover strength with $5,000. "Devil in the Flesh" at the Monroe looms a pallid $4,500.

Estimates for This Week

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 98-$1.25)—"Trouble Along the Way" (WB) plus stage show. Lean $33,000. Last week, "She's Back on Broadway" (WB) aided by Rosemary Clooney p.a., $50,000.

Grand (RKO) (1,200; 98-$1.50)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Should hit a sweet $32,000. Last week, $38,000.

Monroe (Indie). (1,000; 55-98)—"Devil in the Flesh" (Indie) reissue) (2d wk). Ends with lean $4,500. Last week, $6,500.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 98-$1.25)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Heading for a sharp $30,000 with fine reviews aiding. Last week, "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (8th wk), $20,000.

Palace (Eitel) (2,500; 55-98)—"Tonight We Sing" (20th) (2d wk) Weak $10,000 in sight. Last week, $17,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,500; 55-98)—"Desert Legion" (U) and "Kettles on Vacation" (U). Building toward hefty $20,000. Last week, "City Beneath the Sea" (U) and "Gunsmoke" (U) (2d wk), $14,000.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,700; 98-$1.25)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (2d wk). Look like a fine $38,000 shaping. Last week, $50,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; 98)—"Crash of Silence" (Indie) (2d wk). Word-of-mouth keeping this to okay $4,000. Last week, same.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 55-98)—"Jeopardy" (M-G) and Confidential Connie" (M-G). Bright $20,000. Last week, "Naked Spur" (M-G) and "Rogue's March" (M-G) (2d wk), $12,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,073; 98)—"Girl Who Had Everything" (M-G) (2d wk). Passable $14,000. Last week, $25,000.

World (Indie) (587; 98)—"Forbidden Games" (Indie) (6th wk). Sturdy $3,500 in view. Last week, $4,300.

Ziegfeld (Lopert) (485; 98)—"Little Sheba" (Par) (6th wk). Perky $4,600 in view. Last week, $6,000.

'Andersen' Lofty $23,000, Mpls.; 'Sheba' Terrif 7G, 'Palms' Tepid 5G, 'Sea' 6G

Minneapolis, April 14.

Newcomers are few in numbers currently but they more than make up in power for their shortage. "Hans Christian Andersen," of course, is the biggest boxoffice noise, but "Come Back, Little Sheba" will pull up in the big money, too. Other fresh entries are "Down Among the Sheltering Palms" and "City Beneath the Sea."

Estimates for This Week

Century (Par) (1,600; 65-85)—"Anna" (Indie) (2d wk). Has given this house one of its best recent b.o. performances. Good $4,500. Last week, big $6,000.

Gopher (Berger) (1,026; 65-85)—"City Beneath the Sea" (U). Stout $6,000. Last week, "Jeopardy" (M-G) (2d wk), light $3,200.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; 65-85)—"Destination Gobi" (20th) (2d wk).

(Continued on page 22)

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i. e., without the 20% tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include the U. S. amusement tax.

'Limits' Sock 15G, K.C.; 'Pan' 14G (2d)

Kansas City, April 14.

Big grosses continue with healthy holdovers. Leader is "Off Limits" doing sock biz at the Paramount and staying second week. "Peter Pan" at the Missouri on holdover continues its record-breaking pace, but will move out after only two weeks. "Salome" at the Midland, "Happy Time" at the Kimo and "Breaking Sound Barrier" at the Vogue are other strong h.o's.

Estimates for This Week

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; 65-85)—"Happy Time" (Col) (2d wk). Fine $2,000 holds. Last week, pleasant $2,700.

Midland (Loew's) (3,500; 75-$1.10)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Fat $12,000. Last week, sock $20,000.

Missouri (RKO) (2,650; 50-75-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Huge $14,000. Last week, giant $24,000, a record under current management.

Paramount (Tri-States) (1,900; 50-75)—"Off Limits" (Par). Fancy $15,000, and holds. Last week, "Bwana Devil" (UA) (2d wk). Nifty $9,000 at $1.25 top.

Tower, Uptown, Fairway, Granada (Fox Midwest) (2,100; 2,043; 700; 1,217; 50-75)—"Seminole" (U) and "Call of the Wild" (20th) (reissue). Topping average at $14,000. Last week, "Call Me Madam" (20th) all four with "Star of Texas" (AA) added at Tower and Granada. Held 8 days for scrumptuous $19,000.

Vogue (Golden) (550; 65-85)—"Breaking Sound Barrier" (UA) (7th wk). Steady $1,700. Last week, $1,800.

FRISCO SLIPPING BUT 'DARK' SMASH $19,500

San Francisco, April 14.

Local biz is in the doldrums with most holdovers slipping badly. Exception is the Fox which is doing handsomely with "Call Me Madam" and "Fort Vengeance."

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,850; 60-$1.20)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (3d wk). Down to $12,000. Last week, held to a big $32,000.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; 65-95)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) and "Fort Vengeance" (AA) (2d wk). Brisk $12,000. Last week, strong $19,000.

Warfield (Loew's) (2,656; 65-95)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G). Fair $15,500 in 10 days. Last week, "Sombrero" (M-G) (2d wk) 4 days, okay $7,500.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; 65-95)—"Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk). Slipped to $10,000 on six days. Last week, $18,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; 65-95)—"Tonight We Sing" (20th) (2d wk). Fair $7,500. Last week, $7,700.

Orpheum (No. Coast) (2,448; 65-95)—"Man In The Dark" (Col) (3D) and "Magnetic Monster" (UA). Standout $19,500. Last week, "Seminole" (U) and "Bandits Of Corsica" (UA) $11,000.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,207; 80-$1.50)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (8th wk). Nice $9,000. Last week, held sturdy $9,600.

Stagedoor (Ackerman-Rosener) (370; $1.20-$1.80)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (8th wk). Off to $13,000. Last week, static $14,000.

Clay (Rosener) (400; 65-85)—"Importance Of Being Ernest" (U) (2d wk). Good $2,800. Last week, brisk $3,200.

Larkin (Rosener) (400; 65-85)—"Little World Of Don Camillo" (Indie). Big $3,300. Last week, "Last Holiday" and "Laughter In Paradise" (reissues) (3d wk). Poor $1,800.

Vogue (S.F. Theatres) (377; 85-$1)—"Casque d'Or" (Indie) 3d wk). So-so $1,100. Last week, $1,200.

'Trouble' Fair $5,000 2d; L'ville; 'Pan' Trim 10G, 2d

Louisville, April 14.

Everything is h.o. in town this week. After a terrific first-week, Rialto with "Peter Pan," Loew's State with "Salome;" and Mary Anderson with "Trouble Along Way," are perking along at about 50% of the first week's pace. Still plenty good.

Current stanza lacking in competish from sports and other attractions hence film houses have clear sailing. Spring race meet at Churchill Downs, highlighted by the Kentucky Derby, still three weeks away, but meet at Keenland, Lexington, Ky., teed off Saturday (11).

Estimates for This Week

Kentucky (Switow) (1,200; 50-75)—"Mississippi Gambler" (U) (2d wk), still perky at $4,000, neat after last week's solid $6,000.

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,200; 50-75)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB) (2d wk); copping just about 50% or better of last week's biz, likely fair $5,000. Last week wrapped up healthy $8,500.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (3,000; 75-99)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk). Still maintaining healthy pace, likely good $10,000 after last week's tremendous $22,000.

State (Loew's) (3,000; 75-$1.10)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Upped scale and healthy interest in this pic, bolstering h.o. stanza to good $8,500. Initial week's run tallied sturdy $15,000.

'Rouge' Hefty 24G, 'Limits' Fine 11G Lift Pitt 1st Runs

Pittsburgh, April 14.

Heavy trade for "Moulin Rouge," playing Penn at advanced prices, and strength of "Call Me Madam" on h.o. at Harris are helping entire downtown this week. "Off Limits" is giving the Stanley a lift and even twinner of "Desperate Search" and "The Silver Whip" got away fast at the Fulton, sandwiched in between Penn and Harris. "Breaking the Sound Barrier" at Warner is a trifle disappointing in view of raye notices and "Member of the Wedding" looks only so-so at Squirrel Hill, the town's nabe arter.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea) (1,700; 50-85)—"Silver Whip" (20th) and "Desperate Search" (M-G). Satisfactory $4,500. Last week, "Abbott and Costello Go to Mars" (U) wound up with almost $6,500.

Harris (Harris) (2,200; 65-$1)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk). Holding strong in present stanza, and will rate a third at better than $10,000. Last week, came within a whisker of a sizzling $16,000.

Penn (Loew's) (3,300; 85-$1.25)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA). Opening day Saturday (11) was nearly $6,000 and on strength of reviews and word of mouth should be a cinch for at least $24,000. Holds, natch. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G) under expectations at $13,000.

Squirrel Hill (WB) (900; 50-85)—"Member of Wedding" (Col). Under $3,000 on first stanza. Last week, second of "Face to Face" (RKO), below $1,500.

Stanley (WB) (3,800; 50-85)—"Off Limits" (Par). Around $11,000, best here in several weeks. Last week, "Trouble Along the Way," (WB) just $9,000.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 50-85)—"Breaking Sound Barrier" (UA). Warm notices but they aren't coming. Maybe $5,000. Last week, "Tropic Zone" (Par) and "Blazing Forest" (Par), same.

'SALOME' HEFTY $20,000, TORONTO; 'BWANA' 22G

Toronto, April 14.

With plenty of top product holdovers, "Salome" is only important newcomer and in for big returns. But second stanza of "Bwana Devil" is still topping the town though returns are off since that first week's smash take on the curiosity angle. "Call Me Madam" is terrific in second frame, with "I Confess" also big.

Estimates for This Week

Eglington, University (FP) (1,080; 1,556; 40-75)—"I Confess" (WB) (2d wk). Still healthy $14,000. Last week, $18,000.

Crest, Downtown, Glendale, State (Taylor) (863; 1,059; 955; 698; 35-60)—"Pathfinder" (Col) and "Jalopy" (AA). Nice $15,500. Last week, "Silver Whip" (20th) and "White Lightning" (AA), $12,000.

Imperial (FP) (3,373; 40-75)—"The Stooge" (Par) (3d wk). Tapering off to $7,000. Last week, $9,000.

(Continued on page 22)

B'way Takes Its Queues From 3-D; 'Wax'-Fisher Sock 125G, 'Man Dark' Brisk 28G, 'Salome' 50G, 'Madam' 115G

First 3-D films to come from major studios are sparking the Broadway firstrun wickets this week. "House of Wax," plus Eddie Fisher onstage, at the Paramount is shaping for a mighty $125,000 on its first stanza after a solid start Friday (10). House also juggled its matinee prices. "Man in the Dark," other 3-D entry, is snaring a sock $27,800 on its initial session at the Globe.

Despite rain Sunday (12) which extended into Monday business at most key houses held up nicely. "I Love Melvin" will wind up its first stanza at the State with a fancy $21,000. Lone other new contender, "The Tall Texan," is looking toward a fine $11,000 at the Holiday on strength of favorable reviews.

With the town still swarming with Easter vacationers over the weekend, the big presentation houses chased in handsomely. Music Hall, with its annual Easter pageant and "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" is holding to a lofty $150,000 on the third round ending today (Wed.).

"Call Me Madam" is showing stout staying power at the Roxy where it's coupled with the ice show onstage. Third frame ended yesterday (Tues.) was a hefty $115,000. Fine showing also is being turned in by "Salome."

Rita Hayworth starrer looks a firm $50,000 at the Rivoli in the third stanza ended last night (Tues.). "Rouge" is chalking up a fine $41,000 in its ninth round at the Capitol. "Andersen" day-and-date at the Criterion and Paris, climbed to $20,400 in its 20th week at the former house. Biz was its best since the 13th stanza.

Estimates for the Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,300; 80-$1.50)—"Off Limits" (Par) (3d wk). Third stanza ending next Friday (17) shapes a fat $26,300 after $25,000 last week.

Broadway (Cinerama) (1,250; 90-$2.80)—"Cinerama" (Indie) (29th wk). The 28th frame ended yesterday (Tues.) held around $41,000, same as last week and virtual capacity.

Baronet (Reade) (430; 90-$1.50)—"Importance of Being Earnest" (U) (17th wk). The 16th round ended Sunday (12) built to a good $3,500 after $4,000 for the 15th week.

Capitol (Loew's) (4,820; 70-$1.80)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (10th wk). The ninth round ended last night (Tues.) held to a fine $41,000. Eighth was a terrific $48,000.

Criterion (Moss) (1,700; 85-$2.20)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (21st wk). The 20th week ended Monday (13) climbed to $20,400, best biz since the 13th week. Previous frame spared $18,000.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; 90-$1.80)—"The Promoter" (U) (25th wk). The 24th round ended Monday (13) drew a comfortable $3,500 after $4,100 for the 23rd week. Stays until May 5 when "Fanfan la Tulipe" (Indie) preems.

Globe (Brandt) (1,500; 60-$1.50)—"Man in Dark" (Col) (2d wk). Initial session ended yesterday (Tues.) brought a terrific $27,800 for this 3-D film. Holds, natch. "Anna" (IFE) (7th wk), in ahead, exited with a snappy $11,500.

Holiday (Per-Rose) (950; 60-$1.20)—"Tall Texan" (Lip). Heading for fine $11,000 in first week ending Thursday (16). Last week, "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep), gair $8,000.

Mayfair (Brandt) (1,736; 70-$1.80)—"Jeopardy" (M-G) (3d wk). Second frame ended Sunday (12) held to a good $15,800 after a fine $21,000 for the opening stretch.

Normandie (Normandie Theatres) (592; 95-$1.80)—"Murder Will Out" (Indie) (3d wk). Good $9,200 looming for second stanza ending next Friday (17) after smash $13,000 opening week.

Palace (RKO) (1,700; $1.80-$6)—Danny Kaye and all vaude bill (13th wk). The 12th round ended last Saturday (11) was a torrid $54,000 following a huge $52,000 for the 11th frame.

Paramount (Par) (3,664; 80-$1.80)—"House of Wax" (WB) plus Eddie Fisher topping stage bill. Mighty $125,000 shaping for first week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) House played extra shows and opened earlier for this 3-D horror pic. In ahead, "I Confess" (WB) $51,000 on third and final frame of short 5½ day week.

Paris (Indie) (568; $1.25-$1.80)—"Hans C. Andersen" (RKO) (21st wk). The 20th stanza ended Monday (13) climbed to $7,500 after $6,600 for the 19th week.

Rivoli (UAT) (2,092; 95-$2)—"Salome" (Col) (4th wk). Third round ended last night (Tues.) held at powerful $50,000. The second stanza copped a terrific $60,000.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (5,945; 90-$2.40)—"By Light of Silvery Moon" (WB) and Easter stageshow (3d wk). Third week ending today (Wed.) is holding to a lofty $150,000 after a gigantic $173,000 in the second frame. Stays a fourth.

Roxy (20th) (5,886; 50-$2.20)—"Madam" (20th) (4th wk) with ice-show onstage. Third round ended last night (Tues.) was a hefty $115,000 after the second week's smash $120,000.

State (Loew's) (3,450; 85-$1.80)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G). First week ending today (Wed.) was $21,000 "Naked Spur" (M-G), in ahead, drew a fancy $21,500 on eight-day second week.

Sutton (B & B) (561; 90-$1.50)—"Penny Princess" (4th wk). Third stanza ended Monday (13) dipped to poor $3,500. "The Assassin" (UA) moves in Friday (17).

Trans-Lux 60th St. (T-L) (453; 90-$1.50)—"Justice Is Done" (Burstyn) (7th wk). Sixth round ended Sunday (12) held to a comfortable $5,000 after a solid $6,500 for the fifth.

Trans-Lux 52nd St. (T-L) (540; 90-$1.50)—"Lili" (M-G) (6th wk). Fifth frame ended Monday (13) was a neat $12,000. Fourth week saw a great $13,200.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,060; 95-$1.80)—"Little Sheba" (Par) (17th wk). The 16th session ended yesterday (Tues.) spurted to a sock $18,700 after $17,500 for the 15th week.

'Trouble' Fine 14G, Cleve.; 'Limits' 20G

Cleveland, April 14.

"Off Limits" is copping top coin for the State despite rainstorms which chilled weekend trade. "Moulin Rouge" is going so hot that the Stillman keeps it a sixth round. "Trouble Along the Way" is also smart at the Allen.

Estimates for This Week

Allen (Warners) (3,000; 55-85)—"Trouble Along the Way" (WB). Fine $14,000. Last week, "President's Lady" (20th) okay $9,000.

Hipp (Telemanagement) (55-$1.19)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (4th wk). Slipped to $11,500 following $14,500 for last round.

Lower Mall (Community) (585; 55-85)—"Limelight" (UA) (2d wk). Fair $3,500, with $4,500 take for last week.

Ohio (Loew's) (1,300; 55-85)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G) (m.o.). So-so $4,500 for second downtown folio. Last week, "Battle Circus" (M-G) (m.o.), excellent $8,000.

Palace (RKO) (3,300; 60-90)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk). Dipped to $9,000. Last week, big $15,500.

State (Loew's) (3,450; 55-85)—"Off Limits" (Par). Solid $20,000. Last week, "Melvin" (M-G), good $12,500.

Stillman (Loew's) (2,700; 55-85)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA) (m.o.) (5th wk). Big $12,800 following $13,500 last week.

'Rouge' Whammo $30,000, St. L.; 'Niagara' 14G, 'Andersen' Neat 19G, 2d

St. Louis, April 13.

Sock bally preceded the teeoff of "Moulin Rouge" at Loew's and a whammo gross will be grabbed. "Andersen" is strong at the Pageant and Shady Oak after a swell first week. "Niagara" is fine at the Missouri. Biz is on the upbeat after a sluggish frame last week. However, intermittent rain and cold weather slowed attendance over the weekend.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (F&M) (3,000; 60-75)—"Never Wave at a Wac" (RKO) and "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep). Good $11,000 for m.o. Last week, "Destination Gobi" (20th) and "All Ashore" (Col), mild $8,000.

Fox (F&M) (5,000; 60-75)—"Lone Hand" (U) and "Thunder Bird" (Rep). Opened today, (Tues.). Last

(Continued on page 22)

Ohio Hearings Set for Repeal Of Censor Law; Strong Press Support

Columbus, O., April 14.

Hearings on a bill calling for repeal of the state's film censorship law get under way here on April 20. Legislative committee, weighing measure introduced by State Sen. Charles A. Moser, has scheduled evening sessions. Hearings expected to last for two days, will hear a large delegation of important Ohio citizens.

Ohio's press is speedily lining up behind the bill. Sen. Mosher sent his own lengthy, two-column editorial, published in his Oberlin News Tribune on March 26, to every editor in the state with an accompanying appeal to support his censorship repealer. Some of them reprinted the editorial. Others aired their own views, but in every instance the editorials were favorable.

Peculiar thing about this situation is that no opposition, organized or otherwise, has as yet been spotted. Reaction has all been favorable, leading to the supposition that the Mosher bill may slip through the legislature and censorship repealed before its opponents can get organized.

Ohio censor board has been one of the most active in bluepencilling films. It has been the prime target in recent test cases originated by the industry. However, the industry to date hasn't been able to win a clearcut victory because of technical aspects of the law. For example, in Toledo, a municipal court judge declared the censoring of newsreels as unconstitutional, but in a broad application of state law the ruling was effective only in Toledo.

Industry, sparked by the Motion Picture Assn. of America and the Independent Theatre Owners of America, is marshalling witnesses to offer testimony. Strategy is being devised by Manning (Tim) Clagett of the MPAA and Bob Wile, exec secretary of ITOO.

IATSE Rep Basson in To Break N.Y. Union Strike Deadlock Vs. Distribs

An attempt to break the deadlock between distribs and the N. Y. exchange unions will be made by Joseph Basson, international representative of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees. He entered the pact negotiations this week, following a strike threat by Local H-63, repping white collarites, and Local B-51, speaking for shippers and examiners.

Basson will attempt to set up a new meeting between the distribs and the laborites. He will sit in on the talks as a rep of IA prexy Richard Walsh.

IA's intervention in the hassle averted a strike of the exchange workers planned for last Friday (10) morning. Walkout was called off late Thursday night. Unionites are burned at distribs' adamant nixing of demands for a wage hike. Distribs are willing to renew for a similar period the two-year pact, which expired last November, but have refused to grant any new conditions.

Unions had asked for strike permission from Walsh, but had received no reply. Before the parent union's entry into the fight, there were indications that the two locals were considering bypassing the IA and walking out sans an okay.

This year, for the first time since 1946, the local exchange unions throughout the country are negotiating with the film companies on an individual basis. Although talks have been held in each zone, not a single pact has been signed.

Walkout of exchange workers could cause the closing of theatres, since film would not be delivered. In addition, if the IA permits a walkout, it's likely that projectionists would honor the walkout and refuse to run pictures. Outcome of N. Y. talks is being awaited by other exchange locals to determine their future action.

WAPPAUS JOINS UA

Herb Wappaus, formerly head of the contract department at the RKO homeoffice, has joined United Artists, effective this week.

He'll work in UA's contract department under John Hughes.

N.Y. CinemaScope Preem Set for Roxy April 23

First N. Y. demonstration of 20th-Fox's CinemaScope is tentatively slated for the Roxy Theatre on or about April 23. There may be simultaneous showings of the widescreen system at the 20th homeoffice screening room in N. Y., to emphasize the adaptability of the unit for smaller auditoriums.

CinemaScope unveiling originally was slated for N. Y., but later was shifted to the Coast. Roxy, expected to be the showcase for 20th's "The Robe," is currently rewiring for stereophonic sound. R. H. McCullough, Fox West Coast technical head, is in N. Y. to supervise installation of the CinemaScope unit.

Allied Asks High Court For Right to File Brief Supporting Milw. Towne

Washington, April 14.

Allied States Assn. petitioned the Supreme Court yesterday (Mon.) for permission to file an amicus curiae brief in support of Milwaukee Towne Corp. against the majors. Milwaukee Towne is appealing a lower court ruling amending the Towne Theatre decrees to require it to bid for product against large circuit theatres in that area.

In its petition and brief, Allied asserts "not only did the Court of Appeals err in modifying the decrees without the showing of changed conditions required, but it erred further in establishing compulsory competitive bidding in direct contravention of this court's holding in U. S. vs. Paramount Pictures, Inc., rejecting compulsory bidding as of no value as a method of protection for independent theatre owners.

"The decision of the Court of Appeals will affect the entire industry. The court has so limited the Clayton Act provision for injunctive relief that no injured person may obtain effective protection to the injured business if the Dept. of Justice has obtained an injunction in a Government suit. It has modified the decree without any showing of any kind that the conditions existing at the time the decree was entered have changed in any respect.

"The result of the modification gives the conspirators unsupervised power to dispense their monopoly-held product under a compulsory bidding system replete with opportunities for abuse which would be well nigh impossible to prove."

Pix Tax Still Snarls U.S. Film Export to Israel

Attempts are currently under way to break the deadlock with Israeli authorities over the taxation of American pix which, since last December, has kept U.S. distribs from sending their films into Israel. Americans are adamant on the need for elimination of the Israeli ad valorem tax before shipments are resumed.

Tax trouble in Israel dates back to the old mandate government, under which the American companies paid an income tax of 25% on 15% of the New York share. In all, this represented 3.75% of the N.Y. share. When Israel gained its independence, the government doubled the tax to where it was 50% of 15% of the N.Y. share, or 7½% of remittances. In 1949, the tax went up to 75%, but the U.S distribs generally ignored it.

Hassle developed in November, '52 when Israeli authorities slapped on a 20% ad valorem duty in addition to the tax. Calling this combined tax weight "prohibitive," distribs slapped on a ban on imports pending further "study" of the situation.

MULVEY BACK TO N.Y.

James Mulvey, president of Samuel Goldwyn Productions, returned to N. Y. yesterday (Tues.) after a quickie hop to the Coast.

Exec said he had trekked west on routine studio matters.

Three French Pix Slated For U.S. Indie Release

Three French films have been acquired this week for U. S. release by as many distributors. Times Film Corp., headed by Jean Goldwurm, picked up "Trois Femmes" ("Three Women"). English titles for this Silver Films production have been completed by Herman G. Weinberg.

Frank Kassler, indie distrib, snared rights to "Mlle. Desiree." Import has Genevieve Guitry, Gaby Morlay, Jean-Louis Barrault and Sacha Guitry in top roles. Third French pic, "Napoleon," will be released by Regent Pictures, Inc. Film was lensed within the Louvre in Versailles.

Better Major Studio Pix Put Trans-Lux in Black For '52, Sez Prez Furber

Availability of better major studio product for its first-run houses in Washington, Philadelphia and New York is credited by Trans-Lux Corp. board chairman Percival E. Furber as a contributing factor in "substantially increasing" company earnings last year. Net for the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1952, he revealed in his annual report last week, was $311,002, compared with a $30,648 loss in 1951.

Furber pointed out that "in general, business conditions in the motion picture industry for 1952 continued the downward trend for most theatre companies." But, he added, Trans-Lux houses were able to reverse this trend due to "successful performances" of such top films as "Detective Story" (Par), "Breaking the Sound Barrier" (UA) and "Diplomatic Courier" (20th).

Not only did quality pix help Trans-Lux's theatre division turn in a comfortable profit, but a big dip in operating expenses also aided in erasing the division's 1951 net loss of $6,679 in favor of a $65,034 profit last year. For 1951 the company's consolidated balance sheet discloses, operating expenses were $1,242,634 on a gross of $1,268,035. But although the 1952 gross eased off to $1,245,560, expenses were reduced to $1,168,465.

Trans-Lux's current overall profit, Furber noted in the report, includes a $210,000 net capital gain arising from sale of stock of the Trans-Lux Washington Corp. Firm's generally healthy fiscal complexion is further attested to by the earnings jump chalked up by its Ticker and News-Sign division. Profit for this wing last year amounted to $314,588 as against $271,232 in 1951.

"During 1952," Furber's report stated, "some 41,600 shares of the company's stock were purchased on the open market and placed in the treasury; and to date, 8,200 additional shares have been purchased. All shares were acquired by the company at prices less than $3 per share." Of 1,000,000 common shares authorized, 785,160 were issued. Treasury holds 160,157, leaving 625,003 outstanding.

DEVINE PREPS INDIE 'BABES' IN IRELAND

Radio producer-director Jerry Devine sailed on the S.S. America last week to embark on an independent film production venture in Ireland. He'll be accompanied by Harold Shuster, who will direct Devine's initial film, "Babes in the Woods," based on Frank O'Connor's New Yorker shortstory.

Devine and Shuster will scout locations and line up an all-Irish cast for the flim, which will be made later this year. On the current trek, they'll remain in Ireland about six weeks.

Devine is producer-director of the "This Is Your FBI" air series and other radio shows.

SMPTE's 3-D Report

Exhaustive report on various 3-D and wide-screen systems of photography and projection is currently in preparation by the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers. Survey, being written by Allen P. Snody, will be in booklet form. Done from the layman's point-of-view, it will contain illustrations in color.

It should be ready for distribution soon.

Glamor Gals, No Iceberg, Welcome Operation 'Titanic' at Va. Preem

Norfolk, Va., April 14.

This huge Naval base is still busy digesting the events of the past weekend, which saw a large group of show biz personalities, accompanied by a contingent of lay and trade press newsmen, "hit the beach" and accomplish the objectives of "Operation Titanic" to everyone's satisfaction.

Highlights of the busy two days' activities, which emerged as a bit of fine cooperation between the Navy and 20th-Fox, included the world premiere of 20th's "Titanic" at the Shelton Theatre; a mock amphibious assault landing in which the glamor gals happily participated, and the Navy Relief Ball with its impressive show emceed by Ed Sullivan.

Performers from all fields, predominantly from Hollywood, converged on the base, where they got a rousing reception. Talent included Anne Francis, Debra Paget, Byron Palmer, Charles Coburn, Billy deWolfe, Nanette Fabray, Jimmy Nelson, Jeffrey Hunter and Eileen O'Dare. The group participated in no fewer than three shows Saturday alone and got a huge hand everywhere.

Miss Fabray clicked with her vocalizing. Ventriloquist Nelson got the laughs, as did Coburn, who stuck to telling a couple of stories. DeWolfe and Palmer also pleased the crowds. When Sullivan was temporarily laid low by a cold, Captain B. N. Wev volunteered for m.c. duty at the premiere and had the gobs laughing with his relaxed patter.

Mrs. Wev was chairman of the Relief Ball. Leo Pillot, special events director at 20th, won kudos for an expert job of keeping things humming along smoothly.

Brit. Govt. Turns Down Exhibs' Plea on Taxes

London, April 14.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer snubbed the show biz industry in tonight's (Tues.) budget by failing to mention the trade's plea for admission tax relief, although offering tax exemption to amateur dramatics at an annual cost of $600,000. The exhibitor claim would have cost the treasury $10,000,000 annually. It was primarily designed to improve the lot of small operators and was based on previous chancellor's estimates of potential theatre grosses which failed to materialize.

Industry takes small comfort from other concessions, which will increase purchasing power by shaving income and sales taxes.

Ohio Exhibs Too Busy With Censorship, 3-D to Rap Distribs at ITOO Meet

Columbus, April 14.

Distributors, who usually come in for a thorough pasting at exhibitors' meetings, got off fairly lightly at the 18th annual convention of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, held in the Deshler Wallich Hotel here last Tuesday and Wednesday (7-8). Exhibs seemed more interested in finding out everything there was to know on the subject of 3-D, fighting censorship in this state and establishing an era of good feeling.

The printed program had spelled trouble for the distribs. C. F. Pfister, Troy, O., asked, "What hath the distributor wrought?" and scored "pre-releasing," 70-30 terms and forced selling. Martin G. Smith, Toledo, president of ITOO for 27 years, wrote in his program message that "We are gathered here in a last desperate effort to do what we can to stay in business," and called for a united front against the distribs.

But practically none of this belligerence, except in badinage, carried over into the general sessions. It did crop up continually, however, in the clinics (drive-ins, subsequent runs and small towns).

The convention was strong on backing repeal of Ohio's 40-year-old censorship law. In its lone resolution, unanimously adopted, the ITOO pledged its support to the Mosher bill, a repealer of the soissoring act which is now in the

(Continued on page 26)

F&M Bypasses Circuit Court in Baldwin Appeal

Washington, April 14.

Fanchon & Marco, operators of the Baldwin Theatre in L. A., asked the Supreme Court Friday (10) to listen to an appeal in a treble damage suit against Paramount, Loew's, RKO, Universal, UA, 20th, National Theatres and Fox-West Coast.

Fanchon & Marco, charging a conspiracy among the distributors to bar the Baldwin from first-run product, lost their case in the U. S. District Court. The Friday action is unusual because F & M is seeking to hurdle the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals where an appeal has been pending since Jan. 5, 1952.

The F & M petition alleges that the trial judge acted contrary to the law as laid down by the Supreme Court in the Big Five antitrust case. Document explains that prior to the opening of the Baldwin on Aug. 10, 1949, F & M "made requests of each and all of the eight picture distributors, including respondents, to license feature pictures for first-run use to open the theatre. All refused. From time to time thereafter, until shortly before the trial of this case in 1951, petitioner continued its effort to procure pictures from the distributors for first-run use. Every request was denied. The distributors also unanimously refused to license pictures except for second-run exhibition, subject to a clearance of 21 days in favor of the first-run exhibitors.

Allied to Seek Senate Help for Proper D. of J. Policing, Sez Rembusch

Louisville, April 14.

Continuing exhib attack on distrib sales policies, Trueman Rembusch, prexy of Allied Theatre Owners of Indiana, told a Kentucky exhib group today (Tues.) that Allied will ask the Senate Small Biz Committee to prod the Dept. of Justice to properly police distrib "illegal" sales practices.

Pointing out that the total invested capital of distribution amounted to 12% of that invested in the industry as compared to exhibition's 88%, Rembusch noted that it was not generally realized to what extent "the distributor tail is wagging the exhibitor dog."

Speaking before the Kentucky Assn. of Theatre Owners, an unaffiliated exhib org, Rembusch charged that the distribs have developed "sales gimmicks upon sales gimmicks." Terming these practices illegal, the Allied leader said they had the effect of adding to the cost of theatre operation. He particularly attacked the use of the pre-release system of selling pix and the extended clearance policy. In the exhib fight against the terms for "Peter Pan," Rembusch declared that "evidently Disney and RKO do not know the law as pertains to the fixing of admission prices."

Allied exec said another "illegal" practice becoming more prevalent "is the forcing of pictures." He said these violations would be disclosed to the Senate body which opens hearings in Washington tomorrow (Wed.).

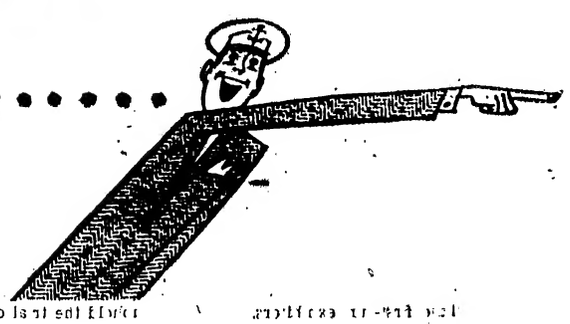
Supreme Court Asked To Reject Balto Nabe Suit

Washington, April 14.

U. S. Supreme Court was urged by the major distributors last Thursday (9) to reject an appeal by Theatre Enterprises, Inc., operating the Crest, a neighborhood theatre in Baltimore.

The Crest last Jan. 5 asked the High Court to take jurisdiction in a suit seeking monetary damages and injunctive relief against the distributors for alleged conspiracy in refusing to sell first-run product to the indie nabe house. Theatre Enterprises has lost twice—in the U. S. District Court, and in the Circuit Court of Appeals which upheld the trial court.

GET SET FOR TITANIC BUSINESS FROM 20th... MAY 13th!



20th LAUNCHES

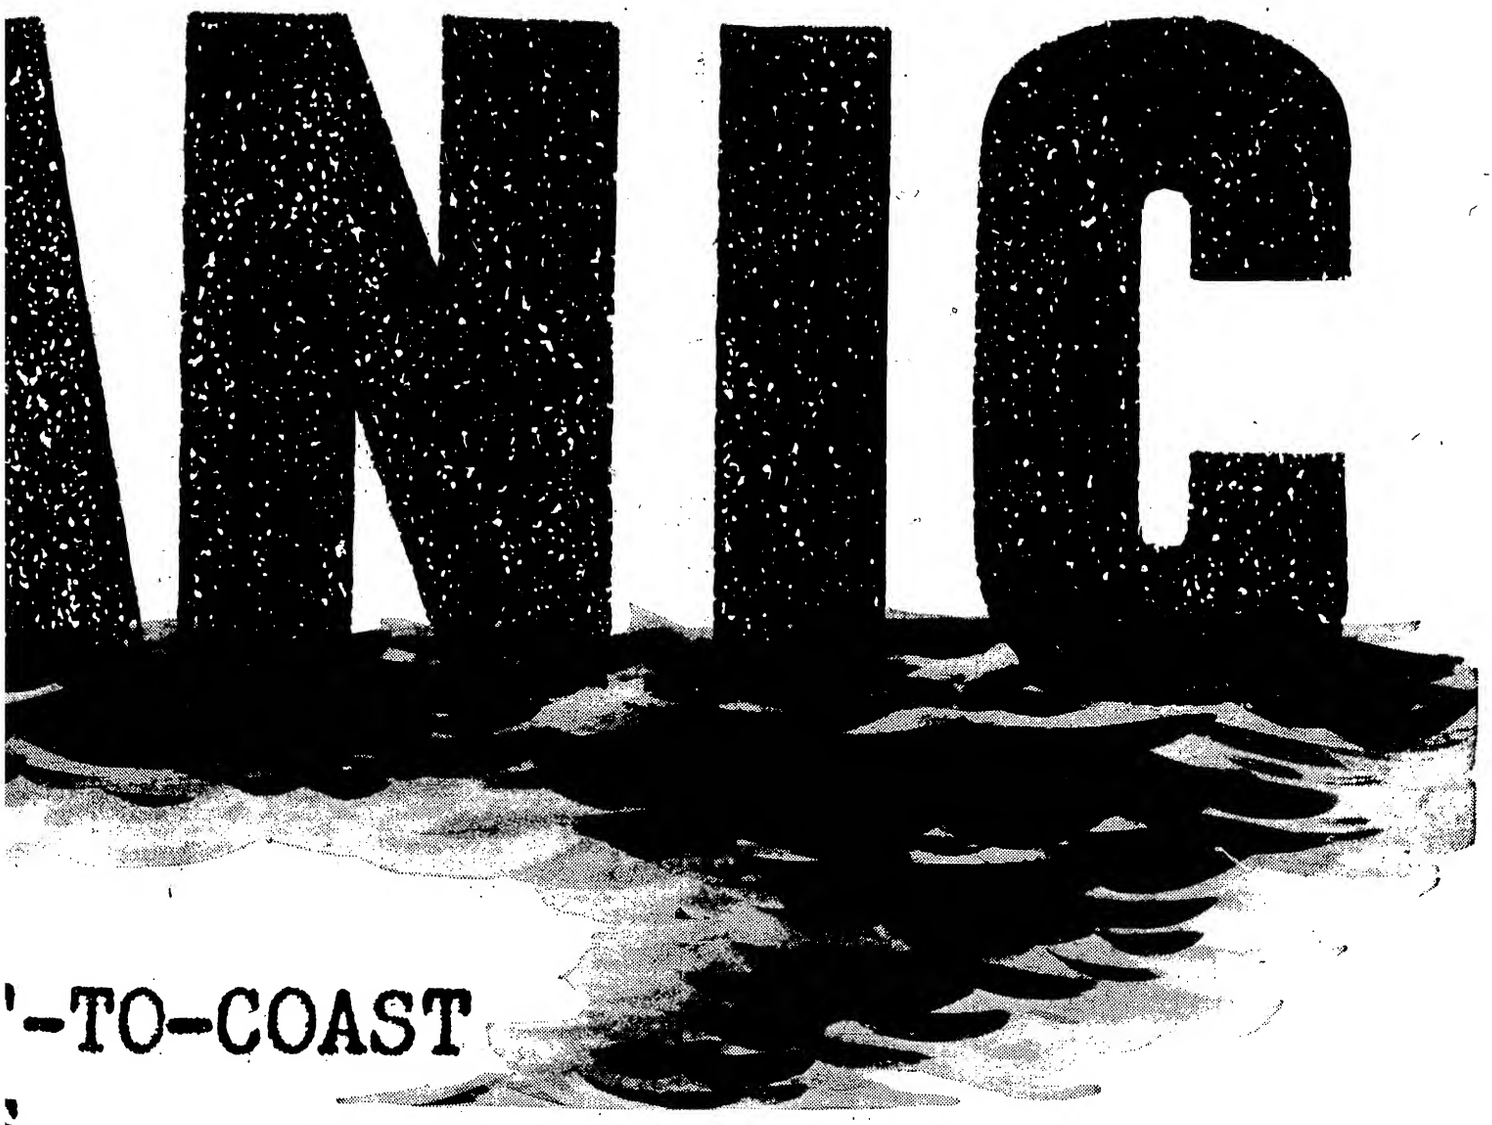
TITA

MAY 13th

DAY-AND-DATE...COAS

IN 300 THEATR

There's No Showmanship Like 20th Century-Fox Showmans



.....Backed By 3-Way "OPERATION TITANIC" Pre-Selling Campaign That Will Make News In Your City!

SPECIAL WORLD PREMIERE at Norfolk Naval Base, Virginia, for base personnel, high-ranking U. S. military officers, federal, state and local officials, and "NATO" representatives.

NAVY RELIEF BALL—First ever held by 5th Naval District, Atlantic Fleet. Contingent of Hollywood stars! Crowning of Debra Paget and Anne Francis as "Co-Queens of Atlantic Fleet."

ON-THE-SPOT COVERAGE by TV, newspapers, national mags., syndicates, columnists, and newsreels! Entire press delegation will participate in "TITANIC BEACH-HEAD," specially staged amphibious assault landing.

First public TV preview of "TITANIC" scenes on "TOAST OF THE TOWN" Sunday, May 3rd. Reserve time now locally for spots before and after to plug your own playdate. Arrange for cross plugs, displays with local Lincoln-Mercury dealers and CBS-TV stations and affiliates.

U.S. Sock List in Cannes Film Fete: 'Madam,' 'Pan,' 'Sheba,' 'Lili,' 'Confess'

Cannes, April 14.

Sixth Cannes Film Festival begins tomorrow night (15) with the projection of the French film, "Le Salaire De La Peur" (The Wages of Fear"), H. G. Clouzot's three-hour study of fear, which is the French white hope of the fest.

Following the screening will be the first formal midnight dinner, which will bring together the more than 300 invited journalists and film personalities. Thirty-four films will be projected, plus 40 shorts from the 25 competing countries. Coverage will be big, with scribes from all participating countries sending in press stories. Stateside participation is fine this year with a big personality turnout plus a fine selection of pix that are of fest calibre.

Six prizes will be offered with a top pic kudo, a specially made figurette, and five other prizes, at the discretion of the jury, which will probably cover best actor and actress, screenplay, direction and photography .

There is also a prize for the country having the best all-around selection, which already looks like it will be in the Stateside pocket, with possible upsets in the offing from either Japan, Italy or France. There will also be a prize for the best short subject. Kudos are coveted in Europe for prestige as well as b.o. pull.

Jury this year has a good nucleus of people, directly involved in filmmaking, who should be able to insure acceptable prizegiving for this fest. Jury consists of directors Jean Cocteau and Abel Gance; film crix Andre Lang and Louis Chauvet; actors Renee Faure and Edward G. Robinson, present

(Continued on page 20)

'Bwana' Fails to Smash Any Marks in Scotland, Worrying Many Exhibs

Edinburgh, April 7.

The 3-D film situation is worrying Scot exhibitors following the lukewarm reception given "Bwana Devil" by the crix and part of the public. "Bwana" was severely panned by some newspaper crix and on the Scot radio, a factor which lowered attendances considerably after the opening weekend.

Exhibs said at a meeting here that they didn't want several 3-D systems. J. K. Stafford Poole, leading Scot exhib, thought a solution was primarily in the hands of American producers. Within a short time one system or the other would emerge as the most successful to be used by most companies, he thought.

Sir Alexander King, Scot cinema magnate, poo-poohed "this 3-D fever which calls for the use of spectacles."

Three-dimensional pix via polaroid glasses "puts the cinema industry back 20 years," he said.

"I went to 'Bwana Devil' to be entertained," he explained, "and I came out with a headache. In the interval they sold ice cream. They should have sold aspirin."

Playing the Gaumont, leading downtown house in Glasgow, "Devil" did not set the heather on fire, although it was conceded by most patrons that 3-D has much novelty value. Exhibs praised novelty appeal of "Devil" while decrying its story value.

MOSCOW BALLET OUT OF CURTAIN FOR PARIS BOW

Paris, April 14.

Soviet Embassy here announced last week (9) that the Moscow Ballet, troupe of 60, is slated to make a Paris appearance at the 3,000-seater Palais de Chaillot house June 28 for four-week run. Company is headed by Galina Ulanova, noted ballerina who won critical raves when she danced at the Florence Festival in 1951.

This will mark first appearance outside of Soviet Russia of what's reported to be one of the great ballet companies of the world. Announcement has already stirred intense interest among balletomanes and ballet biz figures everywhere.

Program will include Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake" and Prokofiev's "Romeo and Juliet."

Theatre Directors Get Into Act as Paris Crix

Paris, April 14.

A unique new legit tryout is being staged here by author Claude Vermorel of his play, "Le Bonheur Des Hommes" ("The Happiness of Man"). Vermorel has directed the play himself and it will be presented today (15) to an audience composed of legit crix and legit house directors. If play goes over with this hypercritical aud, it will move into the house that gives the best offer for a regular run.

Actors Claire Maffei, Hubert Noel, Balpetre, Alexandre Rignault and Robert Moor are working for nothing, and counting on the play's acceptance for the eventual payoff.

Play takes place in 1938, and deals with a group of Jewish refugees who are trying to get over the German border and escape into France. It deals with the complex feelings and guilts of this strangely assorted group and their final facing of reality when war is inevitable. Decor is by Jean Saint Georges.

Athens Legit Scene Shows Many Preems, Comedy Boff Biz, One Near-Bankruptcy

Athens, April 7.

Many legit openings bowed here this month, most of local origin.

Two Xenopoulos dramas, "Popolaros" and "Kontessa Valerna," opened, first at Mossouri theatre, with Hellen Hatjiargyri and Kostas Moussouris in leading roles, the latter at the National Theatre.

Elli Lambetti scored a personal success in a reprise of Ibsen's "Doll's House" at her new Kyveli's theatre with George Pappas and Dimitri Horn. Terence Rattigan is back at the Elli's Labetti theatre for another week, repeating "Deep Blue Sea."

The light Greek Comedy, "Thanassakis The Politician," is still breaking records at Kotopouli theatre, surpassing 200 performances, with Denos Eliopoulos in the starring role.

Another Greek comedy, "Rena Has Turned Wicked," scripted by Sakellarios and Ganniakopoulos, and adapted by Basile Logothetides, is doing fine at the Kentrikon. Ilya Livikou has the feminine starring role.

Sophia's Vempo vaudeville show is doing well also.

One theatre which faces a bankruptcy is the National Lyric Scene, operating under government control. Its staff, unpaid for several months; protested to the government, and the board succeeded in getting better financial support.

'Private Life of Helen' In Scot Preem April 27

Glasgow, April 7.

Diana Wynyard and Cecil Parker will star in "The Private Life of Helen," English adaptation of French play by Andre Roussin. It opens April 27 at the King's. Play is based indirectly on the novel, "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," written by John Erskine in 1925.

Andre Roussin and Madeleine Gray turned the book into the French play, "Helene," performed in Paris. Now Arthur Macrae, British thesper-playwright, has translated it into English and will play the role of Paris. Others in cast are Shelagh Fraser, Josephine Francis and Edward Brooks.

Nip's 1st Export Pic

Tokyo, April 7.

"Christ in Bronze" will be Japan's first film made directly for export. Film, based on novel about persecution of early Christians in Japan, will be made by Shochiku Studios, with vet director M. Shibuya at the helm.

Originally planned in color, it has been changed to black and white in order that it will be completed in time for Venice Film Festival.

Eire AM Topper's U.S. O.O.

Dublin, April 14.

Francis MacManus, general features officer of Radio Eireann—the Irish state-controlled radio service—sails for U. S. on the America next week, arriving in N. Y. April 29. He is skedded to do a three-month study tour of radio and TV setups in the U. S.

Tour is being sponsored by U. S. State Dept. and Radio Eireann. MacManus, former educationalist, is a novelist, and controls all feature material and gabbing for Radio Eireann's three outlets.

Dub One French, Two German Pix For U.S. Distrib

Remagen, Germany, April 14.

Vet Hollywood megger Frank Tuttle has just completed directorial chores on English dubbing of the first three pilot pix, under Spectra Films aegis, for eventual U. S. sale. Tuttle, who has been working on the Continent since 1950, recruited English speaking voices mainly from non-pro ranks in Germany, mostly U. S. employees or their families.

One French and two German features lead off the Spectra program, and will shortly be offered to potential distribs. First is the Gallic "Entree des Artistes," retitled "Don't Play with Love." It stars Louis Jouvet and Claude Dauphin.

Second pic tackled was "Toxi," German-made story about the Negro child of a U. S. soldier in Germany. Tearjerker script ends with the sepian heroine reunited with her father and taken Statewide. Eight-year-old Lily Handler, daughter of N. Y. Times' Bonn correspondent Meyer Handler, handled the English-speaking chore for the juve star.

Last of the three is the German-made "Dangerous Border," a cops-and-robbers epic about the heavy-shooting coffee smugglers of the German - French - Dutch border areas.

Frank Tuttle and Bob Meyerson, associated with Spectra in an editorial capacity, wrote English dialog for all films. Dubbing was done at the International Film Union Studios, said to be best equipped in Germany.

THREE GOVTS. AS ANGELS FOR DUBLIN OPERA

Dublin, April 7.

Governments of West Germany, Italy and Ireland are angels for the opera season which opens here April 20 at the Gaiety Theatre The former have made what A. E. Timlin, secretary of the Dublin Grand Opera Society, described as "heavy financial contributions." The Irish government, through its Arts Council, is providing about $2,500.

Both Germany and Italy ore represented in the season: Germany with leading warblers from Munich State Opera to sing "Tristan and Isolde," "La Boheme," "The Marriage of Figaro" and "La Traviata." The Italian group, from La Scala, Milan, and Rome Opera, will sing in "Madame Butterfly," "The Barber of Seville" and "Rigoletto." Producers and conductors are coming from both countries.

Only Irish conductor will be Col. James M. Doyle, who takes the baton for "The Marriage of Figaro." He's Dublin Opera Society's director of music and holds the same job with the Irish Army.

British Firm Uses TV To Aid Sales Drives

London, April 7.

For the first time in Britain, TV has been used for industrial purposes to help selling techniques. The pioneers were Brown and Polson, manufacturers of tinned and packaged foodstuffs. The presentation was the climax of a two-day sales conference in London. The show was staged by BBC-TV producer Henry Caldwell, using Marconi equipment on a closed circuit.

Apart from two or three straight sales talks, the program consisted of short sketches ad libbed by Frank Muir and Dennis Norden.

France Sees Biggest Tourist Year Since War; Yank Vanguard Arrives

Paris, April 7.

American tourists are beginning to arrive and the Bureau du Tourism here is girding for one of the biggest expected tourist influxes since the last war. Tendency of tourists to stay in Paris for much shorter periods of time due to the HCL and the various other draws on the continent continue to be tourism headaches.

This year, all prices including taxes will be clearly noted at all hotels to prevent any misunderstanding like those that arose last year. In the past, the 15% service and 9% state tax was tagged on the tab just before delivery, and this annoyed many tourists. Restaurants are also being urged to state the prices of meals that are all inclusive.

The season of Paris is being prepared, this being a rash of lush galas for the carriage trade here via a series of benefits. Various films will be used for these galas, as well as many vaude acts.

At the same time, there will be the usual number of festivals and special events going on all over France to attract the tourist. Cuisine, couture and culture will all be on hand waiting for the tourist.

A series of musical, film, theatrical and art manifestations are on the agenda this year. Biggies are the Cannes Film Festival April 15-29, with 30 nations participating along with a score of international film celebs. Bordeaux will be a festive center May 12-24, with the Ballets De Marquis De Cuevas, Opera, the first presentation of Paul Claudel's "Christophe Colomb" by the Jean-Louis Barrault-Madeleine Renaud Co., along with international gymnastic and sport festivals. Strasbourg runs the Mozart Festival, featuring various international orchs June 5-14.

Aix-En-Provence has its yearly music fest July 10-30, and will present "Cosi Fan Tutti" and "The Barber of Seville." Besancon is the other big music center with a fete Sept. 3-13. Various other sections of France will join in with art exhibs and folklore fetes. The Menton fete runs from Aug. 3 to 14. Festival, presided over by Pablo Casals with a host of music greats.

Last year, Aix-En-Provence drew 20,500 people; Strasbourg, 17,600; Besancon, 11,800, and Lyon, 55,000. This year, with higher tourist influx and the Coronation in England, a great many more visitors are expected.

WB's Wolfe Cohen on Far East Trek for 'Wax' Bow

Warner Bros. international prexy Wolfe Cohen left N. Y. Monday (13) on a trip to Australia and the Far East.

Exec is slated to hold a meeting in Sydney for all the sales staff of Australia and New Zealand. He then moves to Singapore, where he'll hold confabs with sales staffers covering India, Burma, Pakistan and Indonesia. After brief stops in Manila and Hong Kong, Cohen will hold another meeting for the Japanese sales staff in Tokyo.

In addition to the sales palavers, purpose of Cohen's six-week trip is to launch "House of Wax," prints of which are already enroute to countries in that area.

Brit. Govt. Okays VAF's 40% Local, 60% Foreign Quota for Nitery Talent

London, April 14.

After pegging away since 1947, the Variety Artists' Federation is now in sight of achieving its goal of a quota for British cabarets. The Ministry of Labor has come out in favor of the vauders' union, with a suggestion that a voluntary agreement be made, ensuring a minimum of 40% playing time for local performers.

As a result of the Ministry edict, a meeting is to be arranged between the VAF and the Hotel & Restaurant Assn. to okay details, using the government formula of 60% foreign and 40% British, as a basis of the negotiations.

This stage of the negotiations has been reached despite utmost resistance on the part of nitery operators, who have solidly objected to having their hands tied by a categorical agreement. They have always urged that they should be given freedom of booking, on an assurance that they would use local attractions whenever possible.

As basis for the forthcoming talks, VAF are proposing to use the existing quota agreements for vaudeville as the model. These are based specifically on the acts employed, and do not take into account musicians employed in the pits. The vaude agreement in the West End of London is on a 50-50 basis, but outside that limited area, theatres have to engage a minimum of 75% British artists.

In early days of the negotiations, Hotel & Restaurants' Assn. were claiming that name bands, employed in West End cafes and hotels, were a positive customer lure and should be offset against any negotiable quota. This point of view is being forcefully resisted by the VAF, who claim it would nullify any arrangements made.

It's also still expected that the nitery chiefs will make a last-ditch stand against agreeing to the quota. But if a common basis of negotiation is not quickly attained, VAF intend to have the issue publicly ventilated, and will promote questions in the House of Commons. They threatened to invoke this machinery if the Ministry of Labor had not intervened by this time, and are now holding that weapon back in reserve.

O'Casey's 'Purple Dust' Preem Set for Glasgow

Glasgow, April 7.

Sean O'Casey's new comedy, "Purple Dust," presented by Sam Wanamaker in association with Thane Parker, is set to open its British tour at the Theatre Royal here April 27.

Cast includes Miles Malleson, Siobhan McKenna, Liam Redmond, Walter Hudd, Eithne Dunne, Shamus Locke, Joseph O'Conor and Harry Hutchinson. Play is directed by Wanamaker.

O'Casey has contributed a number of lyrics to music composed by Malcolm Arnold, based on traditional Irish airs. Play, concerning two Englishmen who take over an old Irish mansion, has been a prospect for Broadway production several times, but never actually reached the stage.

3-D Metroscopix Bows In Vienna; Commies Claim Better 'Depthy' System

Vienna, April 14.

Metro will break Austria's first postwar 3-D show with a 20-minute "Metroscopix" program in three Vienna theatres at the end of April. Wolfgang Wolf, Metro rep here, says the system is one requiring polaroid glasses. It was seen here before the war, but apparently made little impression.

Local press is full of 3-D news, including much plugging in Commie papers of the allegedly superior Russian "screen-in-depth" system, said to be long in operation in the Soviet Union. Metro announcement got big space, and there's little doubt the engagement will draw heavily.

In other Austrian developments, the Metro exchange has been under attack by Red organs for alegedly using "Gone With the Wind" as a club to force block bookings of as high as 20 Metro and 20th pix (they are sold together) in the southern Austrian provinces. GWTW is still doing almost SRO biz in its fourth month in Vienna, and at highest prices ever charged here (90c top).

O'Brien's Chile Boost

John O'Brien, with Metro's foreign division since 1938, has been upped to general manager in Chile. He replaces Jack Tilden, resigned.

O'Brien, who previously was salesman in Chile, was promoted to the new post in line with company policy of advancement within the ranks, according to Loew's International Corp. veepee Morton A. Spring.

Paris Legit Season Nears Climax; 'Medea,' 'Dial M' Look Set for Runs

Paris, April 7.

A healthy season, as far as number of legit openings go, is coming to an end here, with a few more sporadic openings in the offing before the legit season begins its summer shutterings. Sacha Guitry's 124th play, "Palsambleu!" opened at the Varieties Theatre with lukewarm reviews here. Crix were agreed that first act was fresh and delightful with the old spirit of the Guitry quips and moralizing, but that in the next two acts the play fizzles out. Playing of Guitry, Lana Marconi and Jacques Morel was praised. It looks like a moderate run with the backing of the usual Guitry boulevard public, but probably will not get a comeback after the summer.

The adaption of Frederic Knott's "Dial M For Murder" at the Ambassadeurs as "Crime Farfait" looks to be in for a nice end-season run with a probable reprise at another theatre for a longrun next season. Play was found to be intriguing and absorbing with the fine work of Bernard Blier as the conniving husband, the savory acting of Pierre Destailles as the detective, and the engaging femininity of Jacqueline Porel as the wife standout. Nice biz is in store for this.

Jean Anouilh's new play "Medee" ("Medea"), which he almost yanked, got some split and noncommittal reviews. Most of them found it to be interesting in conception with fine theatrical moments, but with a tendency towards wordiness. It will probably have a run on Anouilh name. Doubling with "Medee" is a new Georges Neveux play, "Zamore," which got fine crix appraisal though most felt it was a bit too long. This double billing of two short plays makes for solid name appeal.

Andre Frere opened at the off-the-main-stem Theatre De Quartier Latin for a limited number of reps in his quick-change one-man show. Crix found Frere's gallery of types savory and benefitting. This will probably have a lucrative run with overhead and production costs at a minimum.

'Folies' No. 1 Grosser

Influx of tourists, due to early spring weather, is underway. The show most in demand by visitors remains the Folies Bergere revue, "Une Vraie Folie" (Real Madness) which has entered its second year. Folies, after a recent slight decline, is back to capacity gross of $28,000 weekly. Roland Petit's "Ballets de Paris" at Empire is a new money-maker, holding second place to Folies at $23,000 weekly. "Ballets" has heavy advance sale.

Mogador's new show, "Belle of New York," a new edition of two-year-old Casino de Paris show, "Une Revue du Tonnerre" (Thunder Revue) and Chatelet's "Singer of Mexico" with popular screen singer Luis Mariano in lead role are next, working between $18,000 and $20,000 on an average. This is also true of "3 Waltz," revival at Gaite-Lyrique.

Of the legits, "Blinding Hour" is leader. The Henri Jeanson adaptation of the Italian script by Anna Bonacci is getting top pix and foreign legit offers. Show now does capacity nightly and $17,000 weekly.

Ealing Studios Obtains New Financial Backing

London, April 7.

New financial backing has been negotiated by Ealing Studios to replace the bankroll provided by Stephen Courtauld, who exited the board recently. This news was given by Reginald P. Baker, presiding at the annual stockholders' meeting. Baker claimed the success of Ealing productions over the last few years had been a decisive factor in finding the new coin. The new backing was conditional on operations at the studios continuing in the same hands.

For some little time, Ealing Studios has been raising some of its production finance through the National Film Finance Corp., although it did not take advantage of these borrowing facilities during the early days of the film's bank. Sir Michael Balcon, who is studio production boss, is also technical advisor to the NFFC.

Coronation Day Layoff Asked by NATKE Exec

London, April 7.

As Coronation day (June 2) has been officially listed as a public holiday, Tom O'Brien, general secretary of the National Assn. of Theatrical and Kine Employees, suggested to the industry that all picture theatres should be shuttered that day to enable his members to take full advantage of the day.

Having received a cold reaction from the trade, O'Brien has countered with an alternate proposal requesting that theatre workers should receive extra cash. In the event of objection by exhibs, NATKE employees will be instructed not to work.

French Writers Set Up New Society (ADEG) For Protection on Reprints

Paris, April 7.

The ADEG (Association Des Emprients Graphiques) is a new organization set up by authors and composers here to protect their rights on reprints, both literary and musical. Authors and composers have felt that such an outfit has been needed here a long time because these rights have never been adequately covered by the various other author's organizations. This org is primarily concerned with composers, authors and author's heirs in protecting their rights in all contracts concerning new editions of works, and all the benefits accruing from these printings.

Maurice Yvaln, prexy of ADEG, has stipulated that this new society will in no way interfere with the work of such organizations as SACEM (Societe Des Auteurs, Compositeurs), which only concerns itself with collecting on public performance of works, or the Societe Des Gens De Lettres, which only covers reprints in newspapers. The Society of Authors and Dramatic Composers also has a long wanted special unit to take charge of all graphic reprints of literary works, plays and operetta and operatic musical scores.

The ADEG will police all contracts in the literary and play fields to give an accounting of all income from these sources, and thus give the author his just percentage. There has been no direct control in these fields before. ADEG will handle all international copyright difficulties for authors and will be exceptionally beneficial to author's heirs who have to cope with all sorts of legalities in establishing their rights to estates and royalties.

EDINBURGH PLAQUE IN C.B. COCHRAN'S MEMORY

Edinburgh, April 7.

Dedication of a panel in memory of impresario Sir Charles B. Cochran was held at St. Paul's Church, Covent Garden, last week before a large congregation of whom the majority were theatre people. St. Paul's has long been known as the "actors' church."

Cost of the plaque for Sir Charles was defrayed by subscription among his friends. Placed adjacent to the church's entrance, it reads in part: "In loving memory of Charles Blake Cochran, Kt., 1872-1951," and is followed by a quotation from Shakespeare's "Coriolanus."

Legion 'B' Tag for 3 Pix

National Legion of Decency last week placed two Hollywood films and an Italian import in its Class "B" (morally objectionable in part for all) category. Universal's "suggestive costuming" in "Abbott and Costello Go to Mars" drew an objection from the group.

Legion also rapped the "suggestive dancing, costuming and situations" contained in Columbia's "Serpent of the Nile." Italian-made "Tormento" (IFE) elicited the comment: "suggestive sequence; tends to create sympathy for illicit actions."

UNIEF, New Export Unit, Handles Italian Films

Rome, April 7.

The U.N.I.E.F., a new National Import-Export Union, has been set up here to handle and coordinate distrib and sales of Italian pix in foreign countries, not including the U. S. A.

Intent of organization is to better control foreign distribution of locally-made films, via a central unit, better equipped to control foreign grosses, release costs and publicity. Last-named will be coordinated with UNITALIA, which already handles general bally on Italian pix abroad.

Japs to Defreeze $2,777,000 More

Tokyo, April 14.

Reliable sources report that the Finance Ministry has given consent to Irving Maas' Motion Picture Export Assn. veepee, to defreeze another $2,777,000 of earnings accumulated by major U. S. motion picture producers during their 1952 operations here. Decision is understood to have been made during the seventh talk of current series between Maas and Finance Ministry officials held last Wednesday (8). New defreezing will match last August's bonanza of equal amount.

Although Maas is believed to have pressed for full remittance of the $7,000,000 in blocked coin, Finance Ministry officials remained firm in their contention that Japan's current currency situation will not allow such action.

Throughout the huddles, Maas has been asking for permission for U. S. firms to invest freely in Japanese stocks and bonds and that the number of U. S. films to be imported during the coming fiscal year be upped from last year's 152 total. On both these points the Japanese have been firm. While they are willing to allow somewhat freer investment regulations, they want such transactions to be confined to the film industry. On the matter of increased quotas the Finance Ministry is expected to reduce to 146 the number of U. S. films.

Present indications are that the final signing of the U. S.-Japan agreement will take place on or about April 20.

LONDON 'STALAG' FOLDS IN 7 DAYS; 'BLONDE' OK

London, April 14.

Postponed for a week because of the death of Queen Mary, the London production of "Stalag 17" preemed at the Princes Theatre April 4 under the aegis of Jack Hylton and Sam Byrd. First-nighters warmly commended the cast's acting but reviewers considered the Donald Bevan-Edmund Trozinski comedy melodrama as an unhappy mixture of both. Show closed Saturday (11) after seven days.

Jack de Leon and John Wildberg presented "Red Headed Blonde," a new farcical comedy by Val Guest, at the Vaudeville Theatre Wednesday, April 1, starring Yolande Donlan and Naunton Wayne. It is a bright amusing story of film star brought from Hollywood to star in London musical when she can neither sing nor dance. Role is tailormade for Yolande Donlan, who achieved personal success. Piece looks like winner here on stars' marquee value.

Sole new legit entry in the west end last week was Peter Daubeny's presentation, in association with Gordon Latta and Cy Endfield, of "The Teddy Bear," which preemed at St. Martin's Theatre last Wednesday (8). Authored by James Warren and starring Roger Livesey and Ursula Jeans, play is distinguished by a topnotch juve performance by Margaret McCourt, who collared most of the notices.

Drama is a slow meller, with only a modicum of suspense, and has only a fair chance in current conditions. Fact that it is housed at an intimate theatre with modest overheads may prove a saving factor.

Other Foreign News on Pages 18 and 20

British Mull Legal Test of Quotas Given to U.S.-Subsidized London Pix

London, April 7.

The law decrees that a British film must be produced by a "British filmmaker." Is the Board of Trade justified, then, in granting a quota ticket to a picture produced by the London subsidiary of a Hollywood major—even if all policy decisions are determined in the U. S., and American personnel have the major starring and technical credits? This question, provoked by a recent High Court decision, may have to be resolved by a test case.

The controversy came to the fore when the British distributors of "Monsoon," filmed in India, challenged the BOT rejection of their application for quota registration. The High Court upheld the BOT's decision, and, in amplification of the Films Act, declared that a necessary qualification for a quota label was that the film should be made either by a British subject or a British company. They argued that the setup in connection with "Monsoon" was a device to circumvent the safeguards provided under the Films Act.

In trade and political circles it's considered that the main reason for the more stringent application of the letter of the law is due to the condition that only pix qualifying for quota are entitled to collect their proportion of the Eady levy. There is a strong feeling that this subsidy — which is equal to more than 40% of the domestic gross — should be reserved for strictly native product.

A number of indie filmmakers are waiting to see what the BOT registrations will be for upcoming product financed by British offshoots of the U. S. majors. As many of the Yank-sponsored British films have been among the top local grossers, they would, if registered as quota, be entitled to a substantial slice of the Eady coin. It is the view of some independents that, if the letter of the law is to be strictly applied, the producers of these pictures could not accurately be labeled as British. Therefore, they feel, the BOT has no right to allow them to draw their share of the Eady money to the disadvantage of British filmmakers.

Some producers, who feel strongly on the issue, have intimated that to get the issue straight once and for all, they will be forced into a position of having to issue a writ against the BOT, asking them to show cause why a quota certificate was granted, in view of the "Monsoon" ruling.

$1,150,000 in 1 Yr. Makes 'Born' Mex Pic B. O. Champ

Mexico City, April 14.

Champ boxoffice Mexican pic is "The Right to Be Born," released here last year with immediate boffo results. Pedro Galindo, its producer, says film has garnered $1,150,000 on the world market. No other Mexican pic, claim is made, has done nearly as well in so short a time.

"Born" grossed more in a like period, and at one stand, during the first three weeks of its seven-week bow at the Cine Orfeon here last year, than any other pic screened in this country in that time and at one house.

Pic is film version of the novel of the same name by Felix B. Caignet, Cuban author. "Right's" pic success inspired him to become a film producer. He now has in work here his first production, film version of his latest novel "Those Who Should Not Be Born." Pic is a tinter and is skedded for fall release.

BBC Show Band Blows Up Controversial Storm In Brit., Gets More Time

London, April 7.

Most controversial dance combo in Britain just now is the BBC Show Band, directed by Cyril Stapleton. Formed five months ago by the BBC as a house band, the outfit numbers 18 musicians and 20 singers, including a choir. The combo was launched with a fanfare of publicity in October last year and took some time settling down. With three airings a week, it tried an entertainment policy with a resident comedian but finally realized that its metier was playing popular music, without too many trimmings.

Jonah Barrington, of the Daily Sketch, who happens to be doing a weekly disk-jockey show on the BBC now, lashed out at the Show Band, saying that 90% of his readers, in a poll, decided that the band "does not earn its keep" and criticized its "noise, bombast, brassiness and unoriginality." He added that the cost of the band is £40,000 ($110,000) annually.

The musical papers, saying that Mr. Barrington's attack is "bad not only for the Show Band, but for dance music as a whole," have jumped in to point out that the cost is only £30,000 a year, and that BBC listening figures prove that 10,000,000 people tune in to the Show Band.

In the meantime, the BBC has increased the Show Band's airtime from 45 minutes to an hour, three times a week, as of last Thursday (2), and has exchanged Jean Campbell, who has been with it since the inception of the Band, for Julie Dawn, Columbia recording singer.

Only 2 Arg. Major Prods. After Guthmann Foldo

Buenos Aires, April 7.

All the efforts to stave off bankruptcy for the former powerful Cinematografica - Interamericana (Guthmann) - distribution - production outfit in Buenos Aires having failed, the courts have summoned a creditors meeting for May 26. Declared assets are around $3,000,000 against liabilities of $3,200,000, but it is doubtful whether the assets are realizable at their declared values.

This leaves Argentina-Sono-Film and Artistas Argentinos Asociados in almost undisputed command of the production field here, but does not discourage local producers from continuing their artful practice of stimulating better boxoffice results than the facts warrant. These tricks force postponement of American film releases, such as "A Street Car Named Desire" (Warner), "Detective Story" (Par), "Born to Be Bad" (RKO) and "Groom Wore Spurs" (U), which can only be released in April. Grosses continue weak as a consequence.

SRO U. S. Show Biz Tours, Press Beefs, Needle Tokyo To Map $3,000,000 Hall

Tokyo, April 7.

With virtually every appearance of a foreign artist in Tokyo SRO even before the star arrives in Japan, and with more and more U. S. and European musicians and dancers prepping Japan appearances, Tokyo has finally gotten around to planning a hall large enough to accommodate part of the throngs who want to view the visitors.

Rep. of the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce, Tokyo Metropolitan government, and Japan Broadcasting Corp. met to plan construction of a $3,000,000, 4,000-seat music center in downtown Tokyo. Largest hall at present is the 2,500 capacity Hibiya Hall.

Hall will hardly be ready in time to alleviate this year's seating problem, which has been so serious for the current Geiseking and Szigeti concerts, that the public is finally rising agi'n ticket scalpers and penning indignant squawks to the editors of local shimbuns.

Marian Anderson is due in May, and tickets for all her some 20 concerts are long gone, having sold out completely two hours after they went on sale. At the end of May, German violincellist Ludwig Hoelscher arrives for a tour. Autumn schedule includes tours by Jaques Thibaud, French violinist; Solomon, British single-monicker-ed pianist, and Gerhard Huesch, German baritone returning for a repeat of last year's successful tour. Negotiations are also reportedly underway to bring pianist Artur Rubenstein to Japan this fall.

IS THE TIME YOU NEED BIG PRODUCT! THESE

Academy Award Release "Best Picture of Year"

CECIL B. DeMILLE'S

THE GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH

Color by TECHNICOLOR

starring

BETTY HUTTON · CORNEL WILDE · CHARLTON HESTON
DOROTHY LAMOUR · GLORIA GRAHAME and JAMES STEWART

The BIG 3-D Attraction That's Worth Waiting For!

SANGAREE

IN 3-DIMENSION

starring

FERNANDO LAMAS · ARLENE DAHL · PATRICIA MEDINA

Color by TECHINCOLOR

The epic of America's days of destiny!

PONY EXPRESS

Color by TECHNICOLOR

starring

CHARLTON HESTON · RHONDA FLEMING · JAN STERLING
FORREST TUCKER

The great thrill show about the great daredevil of all time!

HOUDINI

Color by TECHNICOLOR

starring

TONY CURTIS · JANET LEIGH

Plus Current Big Ones Like

OFF LIMITS starring Bob Hope · HAL WALLIS' COME BACK, LITTLE SHEBA Academy Award "Best Actress" Shirley Booth

ARE ALL SET - AND ALL BIG - FROM PARAMOUNT

The boys go spook-hunting for a new kind of scream!

DEAN MARTIN and JERRY LEWIS
LIZABETH SCOTT · CARMEN MIRANDA in HAL WALLIS'
SCARED STIFF

Lusty adventure from the South's most violent era!

THE VANQUISHED
Color by TECHNICOLOR
starring
JOHN PAYNE · JAN STERLING · COLEEN GRAY
LYLE BETTGER

The Saturday Evening Post story of love and murder!

JAMAICA RUN
Color by TECHNICOLOR
starring
RAY MILLAND · ARLENE DAHL · WENDELL COREY

The famous Broadway stage comedy, now a big, big picture!

STALAG 17
starring
WILLIAM HOLDEN · DON TAYLOR
OTTO PREMINGER

Plus Coming Big Ones Like

THE WAR OF THE WORLDS · GEORGE STEVENS' SHANE
Color by Technicolor — Color by Technicolor

Three Bonnie Pix, Set in Heather, Boom Scot Hope for Own Industry

Glasgow, April 7.

Increased production of feature-length pix in Scotland is raising hopes of a native film industry, at present non-existent. U. S. companies, lensing location scenes against spectacular Highland backgrounds of hill and loch, are largely responsible for the trend.

In addition to "Rob Roy," currently in production for Walt Disney, two more pix with a Scot background have just been named.

Ealing Studios (London) have completed plans to star Paul Douglas, Hollywood actor, in a Michael Balcon production of "The Puffers." Pic will be produced almost entirely on location in Glasgow, the Crinan Canal area, and Western Scotland.

Columbia Pictures announced filming of "The Black Knight," based on Sir Walter Scott's "Young Lochinvar." Lensing, in Technicolor, starts in Scotland this summer, probably in July.

At present, Walt Disney is filming "Rob Roy" at Aberfoyle in the Trossachs, w.k. scenic area. Richard Todd and Glynis Johns star, with Finlay Currie, Michael Gough and James Robertson Justice featured.

James Bridie's "The Anatomist" is likely to be filmed in Edinburgh. Metro had planned "Brigadoon" for Scot locations this summer, but this will now be lensed entirely in Hollywood.

Beware of 3-D's Novelty Staling, Specs Paling, Sez Brit. Exhib Topper

Liverpool, April 14.

Film exhibs here agreed that, if polaroid specs have to be worn, 3-D films will not stop the drift from film houses. If they can be seen without visual aids, they add, then they are likely to fill theatres, provided story value and production quality are okay.

W. J. Speakman, past president of the British Cinema Exhibs Assn., said it had been said there "was nothing wrong with this business that a good picture cannot cure." He agreed that the use of glasses would be a disadvantage.

After the novelty appeal, the business would depend on whether a film was good or bad he said. He thought that eventually there would be a wider screen suitable for the small cinemas, to enable them to operate with 3-D, just as talkie apparatus became available. He thought history would merely repeat itself.

A Rank Organization spokesman said that, at Leeds, between 3,000 and 5,000 people saw the 3-D show on the first day, and there were no complaints about the use of glasses.

Govt. Hides B.O. Figures But Arg.'s '52 Biz Off

Buenos Aires, April 7.

Cost of living figures for 1952, issued by Argentina's Ministry of Technical Affairs, show that the index—which stood at 100 in 1943 and 180.4 in 1948—rose to 562.9 in 1952 and soared to 581.2 in January, 1953.

This spiralling cost of living is affecting the entertainment field here considerably. Because show biz has dipped, the Ministry, is reluctant to publish figures for last year's total boxoffice receipts. Contrary to usual custom, these have not been released.

During second week in March, total film grosses for the 25 first-run film theatres in Buenos Aires were $148,626, definitely below average for previous years.

Teeoff of the legit season has brought disappointing results. Producers are pulling in their horns, and casting around for shows which can be produced with smaller casts, and which they know from the experience of other countries have sure-fire b.o. appeal.

In face of acute food shortage, which is root of all the troubles, the public finds legit admission scales of from $1.80 to $2.50 too heavy for the average family budget.

Dublin Legit Tooters Ousted, String Orch In

Dublin, April 14.

Leo McCabe, prexy of Illsley-McCabe Productions, which controls Olympia Theatre here, has announced dismissal of theatre orch's entire brass section. He says present make-up of orch was designed for vaudeville, which was theatre's policy before Illsley-McCabe acquired the property.

He now wants an all-string orch, which he regards as more suitable for his current policy, mostly legit productions.

Union reaction has not yet shown itself, but there will be resistance to project, particularly as a minor brush between Theatre Union and Federation of Irish Musicians recently ended in victory for Union. Tooters are looking to Union to strengthen their position. Failure will undoubtedly strengthen Federation for fresh attack on Union in this and other theatres.

RKO's Paris 'Threefer': Disney's 'Water Birds,' Mt. Climbing & Pic Pioneer

Paris, April 14.

RKO has set up a "threefer," pic show. It's combined three medium-length documentaries into an offbeat film program.

The French version of Walt Disney's "Water Birds" ("Oiseaux Aquatiques") is flanked by a 56-minute reportage on the climbing of Annapurna by the Maurice Herzog expedition, plus a 30-minute evocation of the life and contribution of the great French film pioneer, Georges Melies, in "Le Grand Melies." Well balanced, and the many-faceted lure of this triple feature is insuring it a good run.

"Victoire Sur L'Annapurna" was made in 16m Kodachrome and blown up on 35m Technicolor by Marcel Ichac, who accompanied the mountain climbers. This has been taken for distrib by RKO, and with hypo of the best-selling book on the climb by Herzog in the U. S., this might be a good offbeat entry, if backed by another good documentary. Though this lacks the exciting footage of "Kon Tiki," it is a colorful report on the beginning of the trek through little known Nepal to get to the highest mountain in the world, the Annapurna.

"Le Grand Melies," produced by Armor Films and directed and written by Georges Franju, is a tasteful homage to this ex-magico, who introduced the poetry of fantasy and special effects to the film. It traces the early magico days of Melies, played by his son Andre Melies, and then segues into his first contact with films and his production activities. Film has some good clips from his early pix such as "Trip to the Moon" and "The Phantom Chariot" with an abundance of fine trick effects that have rarely been topped.

Direction by Franju has the delicacy of this simple man who loved to delight children and grownups with his fantasies. Camerawork is tops and period recreation fine. This would be a fine filler for any art house program. Mosk.

New Mex Pix Distrib Co.

Mexico City, April 14.

Mario Calvet, ex-20th-Fox public relations chief here, and Rafael Arzos, prominent local picman, have organized a company here to distribute French and German pix in Mexico. They will import directly from Europe.

Calvet for some time has distributed selected French pix here.

30th Legit House For Arg.

Buenos Aires, April 7.

Group of 17 young men, members of an experimental theatre association, The Independents, are bucking longstanding shortage of legit theatres in Argentina. They're adding a 30th to the city's list of legit houses.

Group has underground premises in 50-year-old building known as Pacific Railway Building.

3-D to Depend on Color, Specs NSG: Adelphi Head

Manchester, April 14.

Arthur Dent, head of Adelphi Films of London, said in a talk to film men here that the future of 3-D pix would depend on (1) the use of color, and (2) films of feature length.

"After more experimentation and research, 3-D will ultimately be accepted in place of the present-day talkies. But it will never make headway while there is so much distortion as there is at present," he said. "From the various systems being tested, one will become standardized and accepted by all sections of the industry."

He said the system which employed polaroid specs was unlikely to have permanence.

'Romeo & Juliet' Lensed In Rome

Rome, April 7.

A new Technicolor version of "Romeo and Juliet," directed by Renato Castellani for Rank-Universalcine in a coproduction venture, finally got rolling here this week after more than two years' preparatory work.

An 18-year-old English girl, Susan Shentall, has just been signed for her first screen role as Juliet, and will appear opposite Lawrence Harvey as Romeo.

Among others, Flora Robson will play the nurse. Milton Krasner is the cameraman, with costumes designed by painter Leonor Fini.

Plans call for a month's interior work in Rome, followed by extensive location shooting in Verona, Siena, and other Northern towns.

AUSTRIAN ACTORS BAN LEGIT-JUMPS TO PIX

Vienna, April 7.

Desperate economic situation of Austrian, and to a lesser extent, German, actors is reflected in a recent collective action by a group of theatre owners' and directors' organizations united in an Association of the German Language Stage. They publicized a decision to blacklist actors who break live theatre contracts for picture work without permission of managements. Decision on what constitutes a contract breach will rest with a specially-constituted Theatre Court.

In Austria, a top stage actor is lucky to make over $100 a month (with a few big name exceptions). In Germany, stage figures are somewhat better, but in general do not constitute a living wage. Result has been that players must pad out stage earnings by radio, and especially picture work. Since studios are scattered from Hamburg to Munich, Gottingen and Vienna, this has often meant players walking from a stage engagement to pick up a few weeks of profitable film work.

Legit Shows Abroad

LONDON

(Week ending April 4)

Affairs of State, Cambridge (8-21).
Call Me Madam, Coliseum (3-15).
Dear Charles, New (12-18).
Deep Blue Sea, Duchess (3-6).
Dial M Murder, West (6-19).
Escapade, Strand (1-20).
For Better Worse, Comedy (12-17-52).
Glorious Days, Palace (2-28).
Happy Marriage, Duke York (8-7).
Little Hut, Lyric (8-23-50).
London Laughs, Adelphi (4-12).
Love of Colonels, W. Garden (5-23-51).
Love From Judy, Saville (9-25).
Mousetrap, Ambas. (11-25).
Paint Wagon, Her Majesty's (2-11).
Paris to Piccadilly, Pr. Wales (4-15).
Quadrille, Phoenix (9-12).
Redheaded Blonde, Vaudeville (4-1).
Reluctant Heroes, White (9-12-50).
Ring Out Bells, Vic. Pal. (11-12).
Seagulls Sorrento, Apollo (6-14-50).
South Pacific, Drury Lane (11-1-51).
Three Cheers, Casino (3-7).
Water of Moon, Haymarket (4-19-51).
Wonderful Time, Hipp. (10-21-52).
Woman Importance, Savoy (2-12-53).
Young Elly, Criterion (4-2).

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Stalag 17, Princes (4-4).
Wild Horses, Aldwych (10-6).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

(Figures denote premiere dates)

Dangerous Curves, Garrick (14).
Sunday Breakfast, New Lindsey (15).
Living Room, Wyndham's (16).
Seagull, Arts (22).

AUSTRALIA

(Week ending Feb. 28)

White Horse Inn, Empire, Sydney.
Larger Than Life, Tivoli, Sydney.
Seagulls Over Sorrento, Royal Sydney.
South Pacific, Majesty's, Mel.
Cassino, Comedy, Melbourne.
Follies Bergere, Tivoli, Melbourne.
Annie Get Gun, Majesty's, Bris.
LaBoheme, Princess, Mel.
Take It Off, Royal, Bris.

Same Old Pix Ads-Crix Squabble Revived in British Press Blast

London, April 7.

Charges against the picture industry of using advertising as a means of bringing pressure to bear on critics were made at the annual conference of the National Union of Journalists, by Henry Bate, the union's prexy. He suggested that exhibitors and distributors were unnecessarily sensitive about the crix criticism.

A number of newspaper employers as individuals were, he said, prepared to resist this pressure. He referred to the "admirably firm line" which the Beaverbrook Press took when the American film companies objected to notices and withdrew their display ads. The attitude of the Beaverbrook group was a showdown of importance, but nothing was done collectively by other national newspapers in their support.

He said one newspaper leader declared that if this were allowed to pass, the freedom of the press was gone. He cited no official negotiation nor retaliatory boycott of film advertising, the newspapers being left to fight alone.

Bate stated that during the past year the NUJ's Ethics Committee had had cause to consider certain cases where other film companies were attempting to exert pressure. The union, he said, had made its attitude clear, and would defend the right of legitimate criticism.

Gassmann, Abba Actors In Bologna Legit Fete

Rome, April 7.

The third National Theatre Festival, organized by the city of Bologna, is winding up a successful run of four weks, with most top Italian Theatre groups guesting in the northern city for a series of plays.

Among companies featured are Vittorio Gassmann's successful Italian Art Theatre, Luchino Visconti's "Stabile di Roma," the Rome Little Theatre directed by Orazio Costa, Grassi and Strehler's Milan Little Theatre, Marta Abba's Pirandello group, as well as the little theatre units from Genoa and Florence.

Program featured many classics and two new plays: Ugo Betti's "Ispezione" and Luigi Squarzina's "Tre Quarti di Luna."

Latino Ballet a Sock 'Sleeper' in Rome; May Tour U.S. Via Sol Hurok

Rome, April 14.

Just in from an Israeli stand and off for a second Swiss tour, the dance group, Latin American Ballets, directed by Joaquin Perez Fernandez, already on the road for two and one-half years, is one of the most successful units in the field. Because of a lack in large-scale bally, this ballet group has acted in "sleeper" fashion in most stands, bringing plaudits from audiences and crix.

Amount of reprises, extended runs, and follow-ups tells the story. Outfit has performed throughout Europe and South America. U.S. tour is still a possibility, though group is booked well through this year, and two previous talks re a stateside swing (with Sol Hurok) failed to jell. Felix Maruani is handling in Europe (from Paris).

Unusual values offered by the formation result from a combination of ballet with the folk dances of various South American countries. Combo of these factors, as well as talent and timing of the troupe, plus splendid, colorful garbing, unusual music and rhythms, are likely to please the balletomane as well as the seeker of the unusual. There's plenty of the latter in the varied numbers based on traditional cults and dances of Peru, Panama, Paraguay, Mexico, as well as Argentina and other countries below the border.

Unit has three complete programs for use in extended runs, and travels with its own scenery and costumes. Joaquin Perez Fernandez guides the entire show with seasoned hand, keeping show fresh despite its long tour.

Group works as a unit, and despite specialties, there are no individual stars. All are functional and very capable. Sofia Knoll and Alfredo Rodriguez Mendoza provide strong piano accompaniment to the various typical instruments used onstage. Hawk.

Dutch Bands in Hassle Over Pay for TV Work

The Hague, April 7.

Long-smouldering TV conflict broke out here over the question of payments to orchs playing for TV as well as radio. The Dutch Television Foundation, which controls all telecasts, refused to offer anything extra to members of Metropole Orch when sought to play a benefit concert for flood relief. Main point was that Metropolers were going to be paid for their work by the radio network. They insisted, however, that TV should kick in with something, too. Row was involved since fees for the concert were being turned over to flood relief. But TV chiefs were afraid to set a precedent.

Metropole Orchestra had full backing of the organization for orchestras, the Dutch Radio Union (which supplies the country's networks). All agreed it was time that TV started paying for entertainment it was getting gratis. TV Foundation, however, stood firm, so the Metropole refused to play for the show.

Mistake to Tailor Brit. Films for U.S. Market, Sez Ealing's Balcon

British producers would make a grave mistake if they tried to tailor their pictures to what they believe to be the requirements of the American market, Sir Michael Balcon, head of J. Arthur Rank's Ealing Studios, said in N. Y. last week (9).

"As far as I am concerned, I am an uncompromising nationalist, but in the nicest sense," Balcon asserted. "I will make no concessions to anyone when it comes to artistic integrity. I make films that I believe in, and I try to make them as good as possible. To me, these are the basic ingredients of success."

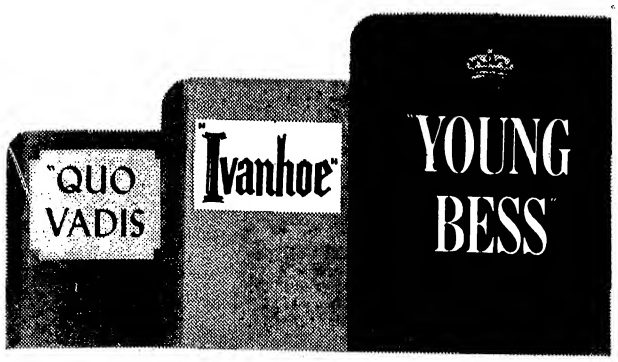
Balcon, who arrived here last week for a three-week stay, admitted he personally was in favor of the British industry setting up an office to promote its pix in the U. S., but added he did not think producer factions in England would or could get together on such a scheme.

Ealing exec said he was very pleased with the "Group 3" setup in Britain, in which young talent gets a chance to experiment. The unit in '53 again plans to turn out eight pix and, according to Balcon, may be made into a testing ground for budding British 3-D production. "Whatever you in the U. S. do, we know that we eventually have to follow suit in Britain," he declared.

Primary purpose of Balcon's trip is to participate in pre-preem promotion for his latest film, "The Cruel Sea." Based upon Nicholas Monsarrat's bestselling novel, it's scheduled for a June unveiling with Universal-International distributing. "I've also come to learn about 3-D," he added. Producer had no comment to make about the new medium, aside from noting that he would scrutinize Hollywood developments with an "open mind."

Balcon, who frequently has referred to Britain's amusement tax as a "crushing burden," said that the industry is anxiously awaiting presentation of the government's new budget to Parliament. It's due for disclosure within the next week or 10 days, and will show whether the film business has been granted any relief. Current admissions tax runs about 40%, compared to the U. S. impost of 20%.

Ealing's production rate, Balcon revealed, will be geared to six pictures in 1953, same as last year. Along with the Pinewood studios, another Rank affiliate, the two units will make about 20 films. Producer, who headed for the Coast Friday (10), has turned out such pix as "The Man in the White Suit" and "The Lavender Hill Mob," since becoming Ealing production chief in 1938.



M-G-M DOES IT AGAIN!

There is no greater appeal to the mass audience than the magic of a powerful novel brought to the screen in its full glory as only M-G-M does it! Once again we present to your patrons excitement, splendor, suspenseful romance, entertainment of the kind they loved in "Quo Vadis" and "Ivanhoe." The new landmark in screen history is "Young Bess."

Timed with the CORONATION!

"YOUNG BESS"

The Famed Novel Now
A Great Screen Romance!
From M-G-M in Royal
Color by TECHNICOLOR

Probably never before in the showmanship history of our industry has the release of an attraction been so perfectly timed with a World Event. The flaming pages of this great novel dramatize the life of the first Queen Elizabeth in all its pageantry and intrigue, when she was the girl called Young Bess. The Coronation of the girl who is the second Queen Elizabeth takes place on June 2nd. See this magnificent production at the Trade Show!

TRADE SHOWS—APRIL 27th

Indies Continuing War With IFE: Weigh Legal Steps Re Subsidies

Continued use of American "subsidy" coin, to finance its distribution activities in this country, will bring Italian Films Export into legal conflict with the indie distribs of foreign pix here, the indies are contending this week. At the same time, the Federal Trade Commission is reportedly taking renewed interest in the IFE operations.

While the Italian government has nixed the proposed Italo-U.S. film deal, negotiated in Rome by Motion Picture Assn. of America prexy Eric Johnston, it's understood that any new agreement will embody a clause specifying that future aid money to the Italian industry from the American majors can not be utilized for IFE distributing operations in the U.S.

Indie distribs, while recognizing Johnston's inability to make a retroactive deal, nevertheless see restrictions on future subsidies as an empty gesture, since the Italians still have at least $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 left. This is coin accrued from major distrib assistance to the Italians under the current deal, amounting to 12½% of their revenues. The lira are covered by dollar exchange, if the government wants to allocate more money to IFE.

American indies believe, that if IFE continues distributing with the aid of any U.S. subsidy coin, the Italo org is vulnerable under both the antitrust laws and the Webb-Pomerene Act. It's still hoped that the Italian government will honor the "spirit" of any new deal, and call off IFE distribution financing, even with the "old" money.

Both indies and major company execs stress that the IFE distribution setup was not envisioned when the original agreement was signed in 1951, even though its language was quite broad. Foreign pix distribs have complained that IFE is pushing them out of the market, and that they can't compete with it.

FOX, DETROIT, GOES 3-D 3 DIFFERENT WAYS

Detroit, April 14.

The 5,000-seat Fox Theatre is in the process of being converted to CinemaScope, 3-D and Cinerama, at a cost of about $75,000, according to managing director David M. Idzal. Conversion is expected to be completed in July.

By August or September, Idzal expects to show "The Robe" (20th) as his first CinemaScope presentation.

13 Coast Industryites Called as L.A. Hearing Ends

Los Angeles, April 14.

House Un-American Activities Committee wound up its two-day investigation here after questioning 46 witnesses, 13 of whom were connected directly or indirectly with the motion picture industry.

Only one of the 13 cooperated with the committee. Gertrude Purcell, writer, admitted she was a member of the Communist Party in 1939 but later decided she had had her fill of "thought control and loss of individual initiative."

The others took advantage of the Fifth Amendment and refused to answer the $64 question. They were: Albert Page, former writer; William E. Oliver, film critic for the L. A. Herald-Express; Sam Albert, musician; John Looschen, studio carpenter foreman; Ned Young, actor-writer; Sol Kaplan, composer; Murray Wagner, radio announcer; Bernard Skadron, accountant; Virginia Mullen, actress; Robert Wachsman, press-agent. Clement Wilenchick, actor; Frank Tarloff, writer, and Shimen Ruskin, actor.

Dudley Widescreen

Hollywood, April 14.

Perfection of a new widescreen process, Vistarama, was announced here by Carl Dudley, prexy of the recently organized Vistarama Corp., as well as head of Dudley Pictures Corp. and Dudley Television Corp.

Process, he said, requires no glasses and is adaptable to both the 35m and 16m systems.

Fagin Slaps 65G Suit For Not Happening Here

Los Angeles, April 14.

Cinema Educational Guild, headed by Myron C. Fagin, filed suit for $65,000 against Astor Pictures Corp., charging breach of contract. Case involves distribution of Fagin's documentary short subject, "It Can Happen Here," showing how the Communists took over Bulgaria.

Cinema declares Astor broke the contract by failing to do a proper distribution job, and also neglected to return the film. Astor says the Veterans of Foreign Wars nixed the picture and claims there was no market for it at that time.

Int'l Drive-In Theatre's Survey Reveals Tinted Windshields Cut Vision

Dallas, April 14.

A survey by Paul Short, National Screen Service executive, for Claude Ezell, founder of the new International Drive-In Theatre Owners Assn., reveals that tinted auto windshields reduce vision 34% and are a detriment to ozoner patrons viewing films. Short plans to present the survey to the automobile, steel, tire and petroleum industries.

In Short's opinion these industries are compatible with the film biz since the public wears out a large number of cars to use the facilities of the ozoners. He hopes the auto industry will be cooperative in the program being devised by the International Drive-In Theatre Owners Assn.

The possibility of the tinted windshield eliminating drive-in theatres would mean a loss of $234,000,000 to the film industry since ozoners are reputedly responsible for 20% of the industry's total yearly gross of $1,170,000,000. Short's entire survey and recommendations have been turned over to the association's executive planning committee for further action.

Grovas Elected Barker Of Mexico City Tent

Mexico City.

Jesus Grovas, Mexican producer, elected Chief Barker of Variety Club Tent 29 here. Benjamin J. Nevulis, local manager of Eastman Kodak, is the new first assistant barker and circuit operator Luis R. Montes is general chairman of the international convention set to be held here May 18-21.

In charge of arrangements for the Humanitarian Award dinner, which will be on the convention's program, is Dick Dickson, National Theatres exec, now headquartering at the N.Y. Roxy Theatre.

T. L. Johnston to Head Canada Pix Board in U.S.

Ottawa, April 14.

Tom L. Johnston, director of publicity for the Ontario government travel and publicity department, has been appointed senior representative of the National Film Board in the United States, with headquarters in New York. His office will distribute 35m NFB films to U. S. theatres and 16m productions to U. S. non-theatrical and television users.

One of Johnston's heaviest jobs will be distribution of more than 2,000 prints of Canadian travel films through 70 state and municipal libraries.

Hope as Casanova

Hollywood, April 14.

Bob Hope will go wolfish in his first 1953 starrer at Paramount, "Mr. Casanova," in which he will portray an 18th-Century Italian playboy.

Picture, a Technicolor production, starts in July, with Paul Jones producing and Norman McLeod directing from a script by Edmund Hartman and Hal Kanter.

U. S. Sock List

Continued from page 14

as a foreign rep and ex-festwinner; screenwriter Charles Spaak; film music composer George Van Parys, and government info officials Philippe Erlanger and Georges Raquis. Short pix jury consists of Roger Leenhardt, Rene Lucot, Jean Queval, Jacques Schultz, Jean Vivier and Bert Haanstra. All are either filmmakers or writers.

Juries started viewing pix April 5, and saw all before the beginning of the fest. This was done to have the jury set showings of the best pix for night runs. This eliminates previous fest difficulties of early pix fading in jury memories, or the impossibility of reseeing pix near the end of the fest. Night showings will give a hint of the favored pix by their projection status.

There will be two projections per day, and the usual press conferences by visiting film people. Colorful stands rep each nation where documentation and photos of pix are given to the visiting scribes who this year, for the first time, get both room and board paid during their sojourn here.

Also meeting here will be the International Producers' Association to discuss a possible European cinema pool; the FRIPRESI, an international pic crix org, to award a prize for the best film this year, and the International Author's Assn., to discuss protection of authors' rights.

France had only two pix entered, with the official selection committee giving the nod to "Le Salaire De La Peur" and Jacques Tati's new comedy, "Les Vacances De Monsieur Hulot," now a hit here in its firstrun. However, Ministry of Foreign Affairs overruled this decision, and two more pix depicting lives of national heroes are on the Gallic list.

"Horizons Sans Fin" (Endless Horizons") is Jean Dreville's evocation of the life of one of France's greatest airwomen, Helene Boucher, played by Giselle Pascal. Other pic is a full-length documentary on the life of Georges Clemenceau, culled from old newsreel footage and photos by Gilbert Prouteau and Jean Le Bailly. Pic, "La Vie de Georges Clemenceau," traces the life of the fiery diplomat as well as a looksee at the times.

U.S.' Tight Lineup

U.S. has a tight lineup in "Call Me Madam" (20th-Fox), Walt Disney's "Peter Pan" (RKO), "Come Back Little Sheba" (Par), "Lili" (M-G), and "I Confess" (W-B). This puts Montgomery Clift in two pix, the Italo "Stazione" and "Confess." There is a good chance for thesp honors, with Shirley Booth and Jennifer Jones repped. "Julius Caeser" was to be the Metro entry but delay in subtitling scratched it. Favre Le Bret, fest prexy, wanted "The Bad and Beautiful," but this was out of the running, due to previous openings on the continent which kept it out of competition.

Among shorts entered are Walt Disney's "Water Birds," 20th-Fox's "The Glory of Renoir," Burma with "Our Burma" made by Jules Bucher under Louis De Rochemont seal, "The Whale" and "Momoyama Art" from Japan, "Mural Art" from Mexico, "Figurehead," "Royal Heritage" and "The Stranger Left No Card" from Great Britain, "Spring From Sweden," "Vincent Van Gogh" from Holland, and "Crin Blanc" by Albert Lamorisse, "Statues Also Die," "Breughels" and "Notre Dames De Chartres" from France.

American delegation will be composed of R. Kissack of the Film Section, U.S. Army; Stephen Campbell of the Film Section, U.S. Embassy, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ravotto of the MSA Film Section. Joseph Krumbold's "And Now Miguel," a government documentary, has been entered in the fest by USIS.

MPAA will be in charge of documentation and info of American pix, plux welcoming visiting U.S. celebs.

U.S. Govt. Delegation

Washington, April 14.

A four-man Government delegation, under leadership of Robert A. Kissack, Jr., visual aids expert for the Army, will represent official U. S. at the 6th annual Film Festival which opens tomorrow (15) at Cannes.

Festival will continue until April 29.

3-D, Widescreen, Tele On CMPTE Confab Agenda; Wolfson Kicks Off Meet

Current industry preoccupation with 3-D and widescreen innovations is reflected in the program mapped out for the 73d semi-annual convention of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, April 27-May 1.

Among the 61 papers to be read at the five-day meet are a good many relating to television developments. This was done to accommodate TV engineers who meet the same week at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles with the National Assn. of Radio & Television Broadcasters.

The SMPTE convention kicks off with an address by Mitchell Wolfson, Miami exhib and prominent member of Theatre Owners of America, who'll put across the exhib viewpoint of stereoscopic and widescreen pix, theatre TV and drive-ins.

Technical session schedule includes a talk by Dr. Harvey Fletcher, authority on sound and hearing; a discussion of Stereo Vision by R. A. Sherman of Bausch & Lomb, and a symposium on stereo pix involving J. A. Norling, R. J. Spottiswoode and A. J. Hill, all pioneers in 3-D lensing.

Among the non-3-D topics is a discussion of the Telemeter subcription TV system by Louis N. Ridenour and George W. Brown. Color pix and drive-ins also are to be covered.

Nine Lawyers Scramble For Nasser 'Both' Payoff

Hollywood, April 14.

Three more lawyers were retained by George and James Nasser, owners of General Service studio, to reduce the claims of six other attorneys for legal fees ranging from $15,000 to $223,000. Mixup is an aftermath of the Nassers' recent bankruptcy case before Benno M. Brink, U. S. referee.

Highest fee, $223,000, was claimed by George T. Goggin, last of the lawyers to represent the brothers in the bankruptcy proceedings. Brink tentatively awarded him $150,000, but the Nassers objected. All the claims will be reviewed by Brink, starting April 16.

Lippert's 3-D Drive-In

Hollywood, April 14.

Robert L. Lippert is constructing a new drive-in theatre, the Starlight, with a 3-D screen. If the experiment is a success, he will install the system in 23 more ozoners.

Meanwhile he plans the installation of 3-D and CinemaScope in the rest of his theatre chain. He is currently discussing the widescreen situation with 20th-Fox.

Exhibs Demand

Continued from page 7

tially serve the same purpose, the argument runs.

Any of these screens can be masked off to show films the regular way or to project 3-D. All that is needed to magnify the standard print are a new lens and aperture plate. While it's admitted that this arrangement may not duplicate the results achieved by a Cinerama or CinemaScope, it's felt nevertheless, that the impact is sufficient to balance economic considerations particularly when it comes to the mass of smaller houses. The latter can install stereophonic sound if and when they please.

Sharp disagreement among the studios on which course to follow, and their failure to fall in line with 20th-Fox and CinemaScope, is causing concern among exhibs. They are hesitant to convert to CinemaScope at considerable cost, only to find themselves confined to 20th product and in competition with a multitude of smaller situations with simpler, but nevertheless large-screen, installations.

Many large houses, like the Music Hall, are ordering CinemaScope units. They can afford to experiment regardless of cost. It's conceded, too, that CinemaScope wide angle lensing expands screen vistas way beyond the ratio to which a conventional pic can be magnified.

R & H Take Over

Continued from page 1

there starting May 5, following its initial two-week opener in Cleveland. "Me and Juliet" is due May 28 at the Majestic, N. Y.

"South Pacific," which tried out at the Shubert, Boston, almost exactly four years ago, goes back there May 25, immediately following the "Me and Juliet" run. It closes May 23 at the Majestic, N. Y., to make way for the new entry, but after a four-week Boston stand will return to New York, to the Broadway Theatre, probably at reduced scale. Meanwhile, the second company of "South Pacific" continues its tour.

For the four-day span May 23-28, there will be only a single Rodgers-Hammerstein show on Broadway. That will be "King and I," now in its third year at the St. James. However, with the opening of "Me and Juliet" there will be two R & H entries again immediately across 44th Street, and when "S. P." returns June 22 there will be three R & H collaborations on Broadway. Fact that in the meantime "Pal Joey" will have closed at the Broadhurst to go on tour will prevent Rodgers, who co-authored the musical with the late Lorenz Hart and novelist John O'Hara, from having four shows in town simultaneously.

An enterprising management interested in setting further records might produce revivals of "Carousel" and "Allegro," the other two R & H collaborations.

Kirsch Wants

Continued from page 5

tained. However, that is not true of the rest of the city's theatres, with more than 70 locations having been equipped for 3-D.

Minn. Exhibs Hold Off

Minneapolis, April 14.

CinemaScope is winning some converts in this territory, but the general tendency among theatre-owners, as far as 2-D widescreen systems are concerned, is to await standardization, according to a survey. While many have readied their theatres for 3-D, the vast majority still are holding off on orders for the other new systems, it's revealed.

Home Theatre Circuit lost no time in making application to 20th-Fox from its headquarters here for installations of the CinemaScope system in its 15 Minnesota, North and South Dakota and western Wisconsin theatres, all located outside of the Twin Cities. Applications also have gone forward to Fox from the Minneapolis and St. Paul downtown World Theatres.

Frank Mantzke, Home circuit head, and Ted Mann, operator of the two World theatres, both attended the CinemaScope preview in Hollywood and were immediately won over.

Minnesota Amusement Co. (Paramount circuit) has not made any commitments yet regarding new 2-D widescreen, according to its president, Harry B. French. Many of the chain's houses and numerous independent theatres in the territory, however, are already equipped to show 3-D pictures requiring Polaroid glasses. So are the three RKO Theatres' Twin Cities houses.

Md. Board to Press For Censor Statute Revise

Baltimore, April 14.

The Maryland State Board of Motion Picture Censors, despite adjournment of the Legislature, has every intention of pressing for the revision of the state's 37-year film censorship statute, according to Sydney R. Traub, chairman of the board. Bill, being fought by the Baltimore Sun as well as other groups in the state, is seen stiffening the censorship activities of the board. Provision, calling for the issuance of permits for the showing of films at schools, churches, libraries, etc., has been the main target of the opposition attack.

According to Traub, the State Senate committee considering the bill has referred it to the legislative council. Latter comprises both members of the General Assembly and functions only between the yearly sessions.

A NEW ERA BEGINS!
BIGGEST NON-HOLIDAY OPENING IN HISTORY
(And in an all-day rain!)
AT PARAMOUNT, N.Y!

NATURAL VISION
3 DIMENSION

THE WAY WARNER BROS. PRESENT IT IN
"HOUSE OF WAX"

COLOR BY WARNERCOLOR

INTRODUCING THE PHENOMENAL
WARNERPHONIC SOUND!

FILM DAILY! "This is the one that will bring the audiences back!"

HOLLYWOOD REPORTER! "Will run up multi-million-dollar gross for producers and exhibitors!"

M. P. DAILY! "Demonstrates unmistakably that 3-D can be a potent force in the industry's future. A big step forward!"

DAILY VARIETY! "What Warners did for sound films they have repeated in 3-D!"

STARRING
VINCENT PRICE · FRANK LOVEJOY · PHYLLIS KIRK
CAROLYN JONES · PAUL PICERNI

SCREEN PLAY BY CRANE WILBUR DIRECTED BY ANDRE DeTOTH PRODUCED BY BRYAN FOY

Film Reviews

Continued from page 6

It Happens Every Thurs.

reporter who invests in a rundown weekly in a small California town. Forsythe, from television, has a good screen personality to go with his acting talents. The two stars, with able assists from the characters played by Edgar Buchanan and Jimmy Conlin, a couple of eccentric old-time typesetters, and Frank McHugh and Willard Waterman, bring the picture off successfully.

First news event for the Eden Archive is the birth of the couple's second child, a daughter; an event that occurs simultaneously with the couple's arrival. Condition of the newspaper nearly makes the pair give up, but they tackle contests to build the sagging circulation, and even try to make it rain to help the drought-ridden farmers in the community. Latter stunt is the main comedy peg. A downpour starts just as Forsythe is ready to seed clouds with dry ice.

Although he had nothing to do with the rain, he gets the credit anyhow, and the couple is living high on the hog in public favor until the rain reaches flood proportions after several days. Miss Young and Forsythe are packed to leave town for the city, after admitting defeat, until a weather expert reveals the storm would have happened anyway. The townspeople forgive, and the couple stays on to put out the paper every Thursday.

Script, which Dane Lussier wrote from an adaptation by Leonard Praskins and Barney Slater, is threaded through with human little incidents that help maintain the smalltown flavor and audience interest. All cast members fit their roles expertly, whether large or small. Background score aids the humorous touches in the footage, and Russell Metty has given the production good photography.

Brog.

Serpent of the Nile
(COLOR)

Fair b.o. for the general market.

Columbia release of Sam Katzman production. Stars Rhonda Fleming, William Lundigan; features Raymond Burr, Jean Byron, Michael Ansara, Michael Fox, Conrad Wolfe, John Crawford, Jane Easton, Robert Griffin. Directed by William Castle. Screenplay and story, Robert E. Kent; camera (Technicolor), Henry Freulich; editor, Gene Havlick; music, Mischa Bakaleinikoff. Tradeshown, N.Y., April 9, '53. Running time, 81 MINS.

Cleopatra	Rhonda Fleming
Lucullus	William Lundigan
Mark Anthony	Raymond Burr
Charmion	Jean Byron
Florus	Michael Ansara
Octavius	Michael Fox
Assassin	Conrad Wolfe
Domitius	John Crawford
Cytheris	Jane Easton
Brutus	Robert Griffin
Marcullus	Fredric Berest
Golden Girl	Julie Newmeyer

Producer Sam Katzman, who occasionally dips into history for story material, dusts off some incidents in the life and loves of Cleopatra for mediocre results in "Serpent of the Nile." Rhonda Fleming and William Lundigan, who top the cast, may give this Columbia release a b.o. lift, but its general market will largely be restricted to twin-bills.

Much of the difficulty is the lack of credibility in the Robert E. Kent script. His treatment of Mark Anthony's rise to power following Caesar's assassination and subsequent fall, when subjected to the wiles of Cleopatra, is seldom convincing. This slice of Roman history is played straight. If a satirical approach had been taken, the overall audience impact would have been stronger.

Yarn has Raymond Burr, as Anthony, proposing an alliance between Rome and wealthy Egypt, which is ruled by Rhonda Fleming as Cleopatra. Thoroughly unscrupulous, she schemes to eliminate Burr and place herself on the throne of Rome. Her plan, however, is nipped by William Lundigan, Burr's lieutenant, who brings the Roman legions to Alexandria to vanquish the Egyptians and cause Miss Fleming's death by suicide.

Also militating against audience interest is the fact that all three of the principals are unsympathetic characters. Burr's Anthony is a wishywashy individual whose love for drink and infatuation for Miss Fleming make him lose his sense of logic. She, on the other hand, fails to impress as the Egyptian beauty, primarily due to the stilted dialog.

Lundigan, too, has his moments of vacillation. But, fortunately, his portrayal shows enough virility and drive to meet the combat requirements the role demands. Fair support is provided by Jean Byron, Michael Ansara and Michael Fox, among others. Julie Newmeyer contributes some okay visual effects as a metallic paint dancer. William Castle's direction fails to put much punch into the picture, despite the frequent battle sequences.

Producer Katzman has provided a good share of physical trappings. These are shown to advantage via the fine Technicolor lensing of Henry Freulich, as are the eye-filling gowns of Jean Louis worn by Miss Fleming. Mischa Bakaleinikoff's score is good, while Gene Havlick edited to a smooth 81 minutes.

Gilb.

That Man From Tangier

Plodding meller. Slim b.o. chances.

United Artists release of Elemsee Overseas production. Features Nils Asther, Nancy Coleman, Roland Young, Margaret Wycherly. Directed by Robert Elwyn. Screenplay, John Meehan, Jr.; camera, Don Malkames; music, Elizabeth Firestone. Tradeshown in New York, April 13, '53. Running time, 80 MINS.

Henri	Nils Asther
George	Roland Young
Mary Ellen	Nancy Coleman
Mrs. Sanders	Margaret Wycherly

This is a minor league entry with slim chances, even on the programmer market. Exploitation possibilities, centered on Nils Asther's return to the screen, are too weak to pull it through. There's plenty of location footage to give the Tangier-Cabash atmosphere, but it's stock stuff, for the most part, and adds little to pic's values.

Yarn is a run-of-the-mill affair about a spoiled, rich American girl (Nancy Coleman) meeting an intriguing Continental (Asther) and eventually mending her ways. Pic is loaded with dull dialog and plods along at a tedious pace.

John Meehan, Jr., has conceived a simple plot line in which Miss Coleman finds herself wed to a pickup after an all-night drinking spree. Her husband disappears after the marriage and in her efforts to track him down she discovers that he was an imposter carrying a stolen passport. Man her husband was carboning, of course, is Asther. She bargains with him to act as her husband for one month, to avoid embarrassment when she returns to her Victorian grandmother (Margaret Wycherly). Her father (Roland Young) is in cahoots with the couple, and the sham is accomplished successfully.

Before the month is up they go through a couple of hassles which leads up to the discovery that they're really meant for each other. Story is developed slowly, with slight comedic relief from Young's featherbrained antics.

Asther fills the bill neatly as the dashing and romantic count and Miss Coleman and Miss Wycherly are competent in their assignments. Supporting players, unlisted in the credits, offer little help. Elizabeth Firestone's musical score is okay.

Technical credits are poor, and the film overall is hampered by slipshod editing.

Gros.

The Final Test
(BRITISH)

London, April 7.

General Film Distributors release of ACT Films production. Stars Jack Warner, Robert Morley, Brenda Bruce. Directed by Anthony Asquith. Screenplay, Terence Rattigan; camera, Bill McLeod; music, Benjamin Frankel. At Odeon, Leicester Square, London, April 7, '53. Running time, 91 MINS.

Sam	Jack Warner
Alexander Whitehead	Robert Morley
Syd Thompson	George Relph
Aunt Ethel	Adrianne Allen
Cora	Brenda Bruce
Reggie	Ray Jackson
Senator	Stanley Maxted
Miss Fanshawe	Joan Swinstead
Frank Weller	Richard Bebb
Tele Announcer	Audrey White
Man in Black	Valentine Dyall

English cricket, which remains an imponderable to all outside the British Commonwealth, provides a diverting background for this pleasant and amiable comedy. Terence Rattigan script was originally written for TV, and has been brought to the screen by the Technicians Co-operative Co., with the Union's big guns brought out to ensure success. They have not let their side down. The picture is a b.o. certainty for the home trade and, with adroit exploitation, could make the grade on the U. S. art house circuit.

Anthony Asquith's light directorial touch is in evidence throughout most of the film. As story begins the England cricket team is having a grim struggle in the last test match of the season against Australia. Opening shot depicts a U. S. senator arriving to conduct a fact-finding mission on Britain's economic crisis. And he is rushed headlong into the prevailing grim mood, by newspaper headlines asking "Can England Survive?" And to make a complex game even more difficult to follow, the senator goes to the match and poses the sort of question that pokes gentle fun at Britain's national sport.

Basic yarn concerns an English cricketer playing his final game, who is heartbroken when his only son fails to show up after having spent the day writing poetry. On last day of the test match, when the youngster intends to make amends, he somehow gets involved in an invitation to meet a distinguished poet, but the balance is restored when the writer proves to be more interested in cricket than his protege, and the pair drive wildly to the ground.

A bunch of frontrank English cricketers play themselves in the film and, while their acting limitations are obvious, it is a shrewd move to hypo b.o. returns. Professional cast is headed by Jack Warner with a solid and appealing performance as the famed cricketer; Robert Morley, as the poet, has some of the best lines in the film and takes full advantage of them; Brenda Bruce does a touching job as a barmaid who is in love with Warner; George Relph adequately plays an umpire, and Adrianne Allen does a satisfying job as Warner's sister. Ray Jackson is made too much of a misfit as the cricketer's son, but Stanley Maxted does a fine job as the senator, and Joan Swinstead contributes to the fun with her portrayal of Morley's secretary.

Technical credits are up to standard. Camera work by Bill McLeod is firstclass. R. Holmes-Paul provides effective decor and Helga Cranston edits the production with skill. Benjamin Frankel's music admirably fits the production.

Myro.

The Seven Ravens
(GERMAN)

Max and Arthur Alexander (Noel Meadow) release of Diehl Bros. production. Based on a Grimm fairy tale; camera, Alfonse Lufteck; music, Walter Popper. At Art Theatre, N.Y., April 2, '53. Running time, 50 MINS.

(English Dialog)

Filmed in the American zone of Germany, "The Seven Ravens" is an interesting all-puppet version of a Grimm fairy tale. Subject isn't strong enough for general release, but will fit in nicely where juvenile trade predominates, as at Saturday matinees. Picture also shapes up as suitable supporting fare on the art house circuit.

Diehl brothers, German puppeteers who produced this venture, employed a "stop-action" process that accomplishes a realistic effect insofar as physical movement of the figures is concerned. The true-to-nature quality is further accented by the fine camerawork of Alfonse Lufteck, whose black-and-white lens ably captures the storybook atmosphere of the Grimm original.

Yarn, of course, is woven around the efforts of a flaxen-haired girl to free her seven brothers of a curse which transformed them into ravens. Her mission spans seven years. Just at the end of the period she's suspected of witchcraft, and is condemned to be burned at the stake. However, her brothers regain their original form and save her in time's nick.

Gilb.

Active Indies

Continued from page 4

looking for an exec to head up its new foreign division.

Although the majors are by now carrying the ball, it's worth remembering that it was an indie producer, Arch Oboler, who turned out the 3-D "Bwana Devil," and an indie team which got Cinerama rolling.

On the Coast recently, indie exhibs spoke up before a sub-committee of the Senate Small Business Committee in Los Angeles. They asserted that distrib malpractices were forcing theatres to close, and they demanded remedial action. Similarly, in N. Y., indie distribs of foreign films formed the International Motion Picture Distributors Assn. as an org to defend the rights of small distributors of French and Italian films in the U. S.

Initial IMPDA goal, to force elimination of subsidized distribution of Italian pix in this market, was achieved when the new film pact between the majors and the Italo industry specifically banned use of American funds for that purpose here. IMPDA had threatened to take its beef to Washington.

In yet another move to insure strength through unity, indie labs throughout the country recently banded together into an association to look after their interests.

Picture Grosses

SEATTLE

(Continued from page 8)

an They Almost Lynched" (Rep). Good $8,000. Last week, "Kettles on Vacation" (U) and "Port Sinister" (RKO). Fair $6,500.

Music Box (Hamrick) (850; 90-$1.25) — "Moulin Rouge" (UA). Great $11,500. Last week, "Andersen" (RKO), in 7th week, five days, swell $4,500.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,263; 65-90)—"Desert Legion" (U) and "Romance & Rhythm" (Rep). Okay $7,500. Last week, "Sombrero" (M-G), eight days, so-so $6,300.

'Hans' Hot 11½G, Prov.; 'Salome' Socko $9,000

Providence, April 14.

"Hans Christian Andersen" is still going strong at RKO Albee. Also on the strong side are Strand's second week of "Salome," and Loew's State's "Call Me Madam."

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 50-$1)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (2d wk). Good $11,500. Last week, socko $18,000.

Majestic (Fay) (2,200; 44-65)—"Trouble Along Way" (WB) and "Seeing Eye" (WB) (2d wk). So-so $3,500 for four days. First sesh, neat $10,000.

Metropolitan (Snider) (3,100; 25-65)—"Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk). Good $7,000. First sesh was happy $11,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 44-65)—"Call Me Madam" (2d wk). Nice $9,000 after healthy $15,000 in first.

Strand (Silverman) (2,200; 65-$1)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Socko $9,000. First sesh very strong $15,000.

BALTIMORE

(Continued from page 8)

fast $25,000 after socko $29,000 first week.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,400; 25-90)—"Off Limits" (Par) (2d wk). Fair $8,000 after $10,200 last week.

Little (Rappaport) (310; 25-90)—"Justice Is Done" (Burstyn) (2d wk). Hypoed by p.a. of film's star, Claude Nollier. Looks like a good $4,000 after $4,400 for first sesh.

Mayfair (Hicks (980; 20-70)—"Fair Wind To Java" (Rep) (2d wk). Moderate $4,300 after $5,200 opening week.

New (Mechanic) (1,800; 35-90)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk). Tilted scale building for still potent $18,600 after $21,500 for first round.

Playhouse (Scwaber) (420; 50-$1.00)—"Little Sheba" (Par) (420; 50-$1)—Still same as record opening week, $7,000.

Town (Rappaport) (1,500; 35-70)—"Small Town Girl" (M-G). Disappointing $8,500. Last week, "Desert Legion" (U), $9,800.

MINNEAPOLIS

(Continued from page 9)

Healthy $5,500. Last week, fine $6,500.

Radio City (Par) (4,000; 65-85)—"Trouble Along the Way" (WB). With Sunday night out because of roadshow booking, hefty $5,800. Last week, fat $10,000.

RKO-Orpheum (RKO) (1,600; 76-$1)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO). No grumbling over the slightly advanced adult admission or 50c, instead of 20c, for kiddies. Majestic $23,000. Last week, "Peter Pan" (RKO) (2d wk), heavy $17,000.

RKO-Pan (RKO) (1,600; 76-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) (m.o.). Third stanza downtown and still plenty healthy. Good $7,000. Last week, "All Ashore" (Col) and "Voodoo Tiger" (Col) (40-76), slim $3,000.

State (Par) (2,200; 65-85)—"Down Among the Sheltering Palms" (20th). Tepid $5,000. Last week, "Sombrero" (M-G), bad $4,800.

World (Mann) (400; 55-$1.20)—"Come Back, Little Sheba" (Par). Terrific $7,000. Last week, "Magic Box" (Indie), mild $2,300.

TORONTO

(Continued from page 9)

ing light $10,000. Last week, $16,000.

Loew's (Loew) (2,096; 60-$1)—"Bwana Devil" (UA) (2d wk). Off, but still hefty $22,000. Last week, $35,000.

Odeon (Rank) (2,390; 50-90)—"Salome" (Col). Hefty $20,000. Last week, Abbott-Costello Go to Mars" (U), $11,000.

Shea's FP (2,386; 40-75)—"Call Me Madam" (20th) (2d wk). Terrific $18,000. Last week, $23,500.

Uptown (Loew) (2,743; 40-75)—"Ma, Pa Kettle on Vacation" (U) (2d wk). Oke $8,500. Last week, $15,000.

'Broadway' Sock $11,000, Omaha; 'Battle' Lusty 7G

Omaha, April 14.

Half of city's downtown houses are playing holdovers but both new pix, "She's Back on Broadway" and "Battle Circus", are scoring sock sessions. Stiff competition coming from quickie strippix at Town Theatre.

Estimates for This Week

Brandies (RKO) (1,100; 50-$1)—"Peter Pan" (RKO) and "Bear Country" (RKO) (3d wk). Ends three-week stay with hefty $9,000. Last week, $13,000.

Omaha (Tristates) ((2,100; 20-70)—"Battle Circus" (M-G) and "Code Two" (M-G). Sock $7,000. Last week, "Bwana Devil" (UA) (2d wk), $7,500 at 50-$1.25.

Orpheum (Tristates) (3,000; 20-70)—"She's Back on Broadway" (WB) and "Jalopy" (Allied). Tall at $11,000. Last week, "Call Me Madam" (20th) and "Operation A-Bomb" (RKO), $10,000.

State (Goldberg) (865; 25-76)—"I Love Melvin" (M-G) and "Golden Hawk" (2d wk). Moderate $3,000 after $5,000 opener.

'Madam' Good 14G, 'Palms' Fair $7,000 in Slow Cincy

Cincinnati, April 14.

Downtown trade is tapering off this week, holdovers of Easter blooms permitting only two new bills. "Call Me Madam," bowing in the Palace at upped scale, is the current topper at good pace. "Down Among Sheltering Palms," newcomer at the Capitol, has fairsh outlook. In the second-week wave, "Salome" holds slight edge on "Hans Christian Andersen," both at advanced prices, and "Desert Legion" looms moderately at Keith's.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; 75-$1)—"Salome" (Col) (2d wk). Moderate $10,000 trailing tall $18,500 preem.

Capitol (RKO) (2,000; 55-85)—"Sheltering Palms" (20th). Fairish $7,000. Same last week for "Destination Gobi" (20th).

Grand (RKO) (1,400; 75-$1) — "Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (2d wk). Pleasing $9,500 after $17,000 fatso first round.

Keith's (Shor) (1,500; 55-85)—"Desert Legion" (U) (2d wk). No complaint, $4,500 following hefty $9,000 takeoff.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; 75-$1)—"Call Me Madam" (20th). Good $14,000. Last week, "I Love Melvin" (M-G), $8,500 at standard scale.

ST. LOUIS

(Continued from page 9)

week, "Trouble Along Way" (WB). Fair $11,500.

Loew's (Loew) (3,172; 75-$1)—"Moulin Rouge" (UA). Socko $30,000. Last week, "Small Town Girl" (M-G) and "Jack McCall, Desperado" (Col). Fine $16,000.

Missouri (F&M) (3,500; 60-75)—"Niagara" (20th) and "My Darling Clementine" (20th). Fine $14,000. Last week, "Never Wave at Wac" (RKO) and "Lady Wants Mink" (Rep). Solid $15,000.

Pageant (St. L. Amuse) (1,000; 90-$1.20)—"Hans Christian Andersen" (RKO) (2d wk). Good $9,000 after fine $12,000 for first frame.

Shady Oak (St. L. Amuse) (800; 90-$1.20)—"Hans Chirstian Andersen" (RKO) 2d wk). Good $9,000 following fine $11,000 for initial stanza.

Warner

Continued from page 5

but receiving only 50% of the profits. This, the plaintiff charged, was a "conspiracy" which became a "springboard for a series of colossal, unfair, unwarranted, one-sided gambles, launched one after the other, powered by Warner backing, capital, credit and resources, and dedicated to the primary purpose of enriching Sperling." Suit demanded an accounting of all profits and losses and a cancellation of the WB-United States Pictures agreement.

Sperling started his film career in a minor capacity at Paramount's Long Island studios and was hired in 1932 by Darryl F. Zanuck, then Warners production chief. Later he joined Zanuck at 20th-Fox, first as a writer and then as a producer. Subsequently, with Jack Warner's encouragement, he organized United States Pictures. He married Harry Warner's daughter in 1939.

THE BIGGEST GROSSER IN THE INDUSTRY TODAY IS COLUMBIA'S "SALOME"!

'Picnic,' 'Town,' 'Colonels' Cop

Continued from page 1

cible," two for Tennessee Williams' "Camino Real," and one for Moss Hart's adaptation, "The Climate of Eden," with four crix abstaining.

In the musical division, 20 aisle-sitters gave the nod to "Town," one to "Hazel Flagg," with one abstaining.

"Love of Four Colonels" was picked by 13, "Dial M For Murder" copped eight votes, with one critic abstaining.

Breakdown of the ballot ran this way:

Best domestic play: "Picnic" was selected by Ward Morehouse, World-Telegram & Sun; Richard Watts, Jr., Post; John Mason Brown, Saturday Review; Robert Coleman, Mirror; John McClain, Journal-American; Brooks Atkinson, Times; Jack Gaver, United Press; Whitney Bolton, Morning Telegraph; Ethel Colby, Journal of Commerce; Mark Barron, Associated Press; Thomas Dash, Women's Wear Daily.

Casting votes for "Crucible" were Lawrence Perry, North American Newspaper Alliance; Richard P. Cooke, Wall Street Journal; Louis Scheaffer, Brooklyn Eagle; Tom Wenning, Newsweek.

William Hawkins of the World-Telegram & Sun and John Keating of Cue put their stamp of approval on "Camino," while John Chapman of the News was the sole upholder of "Eden."

Four abstainers were Walter Kerr, Herald Tribune; Louis Kronenberger, Time; George Jean Nathan, Theatre Arts and Journal-American; Joseph T. Shipley, New Leader.

In the balloting for the best musical, Gaver was the abstainer, and Nathan was the sole abstainer in selections for the best foreign entry.

Two members of the Circle were absent and did not forward proxy ballots. They were Wolcott Gibbs, of the New Yorker, and Joseph Wood Krutch, on leave of absence from the Nation.

Coleman made a motion suggesting amalgamation of the Circle with N. Y. crix in the fields of music and films, this integrated group to hold monthly sessions on the order of the Drama Desk. The motion was vetoed.

It was noted that the Theatre Guild, as producer, won a double-header. It produced the Rex Harrison-Lilli Palmer starrer, "Colonels," in association with Joshua Logan, and is producer of the Rosalind Russell starrer, "Town," whose book is by Joseph Fields & Jerome Chodorov from the Ruth McKenney stories, lyrics by Betty Comden & Adolph Green, score by Leonard Bernstein.

Natural Vision

Continued from page 3

2,600,000 a week to about 6,000,000 a week by April 25, Gunzburg said, adding that about 70,000,000 specs are now on order and more than 19,000,000 glasses had already been used. The 10c. price for the viewers will be retained, regardless of any increase in the production rate.

Natural Vision at present has three cameras in use and expects to have a fourth ready within a few weeks. Seven pix lensed in the Natural Vision process are either completed or going before the cameras, and the company has an additional 15 commitments for use of its cameras. Natural Vision gets a 5% piece in every film lensed with its equipment.

The seven pix include "Bwana Devil," "House of Wax" (WB), "Charge at Feather Creek" (WB) completed in color; "Fort Ti" (Col) Technicolor; "The Maze" (AA) in color; "Arizona Outpost" (RKO) in color, and "The Moonlighters." Natural Vision 3-D pix are slated also for Italy and Britain when camera units become available.

Par '52 Net

Continued from page 3

that Famous Players, in swinging into TV, has acquired a 25-year franchise to manufacture and distribute Telemeter through Canada. He also disclosed that a subsid of Par's Canadian company has applied for TV broadcasting licenses and already has been granted a permit in Quebec.

Balaban told investors that theatre receipts have held at about the same level of a year ago for pictures of the same calibre and foreign revenues continue to be "good."

On the 3-D front, Balaban acknowledged that much confusion exists but adds he's confident that "a practical solution is possible and that it is near." He feels the public interest in the field of 3-D should prove to be a "strong and welcome stimulus."

NORTH AMERICAN SALUTES A GREAT MOTION PICTURE—PARAMOUNT'S NEW OUTDOOR EPIC

PONY EXPRESS

COLOR BY TECHNICOLOR

STARRING

CHARLTON HESTON • RHONDA FLEMING

FORREST TUCKER • JAN STERLING

DIRECTED BY JERRY HOPPER

PRODUCED BY NAT HOLT

A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

North American Airlines is proud to transport the stars of Paramount's great motion picture, "Pony Express," from a world premiere in St. Joseph, Mo., to premieres in eight major cities ... along the famous Pony Express Trail.

In 1860, it took two weeks for gallant and daring horsemen to ride the 1500-mile Pony Express Trail.

Today, giant 4-engine North American Airlines Skymasters fly over the trail in 7 hours.

AIR COACH SERVICE COAST-TO-COAST

Curtiz, WB End Pact Over 50% Salary Cut

Hollywood, April 14.

One of longest directional associations in industry history has come to an end with Michael Curtiz and Warner Bros. parting company after 26 years. It's understood the studio severed relations with the director when the latter declined to go along with the 50% salary cut WB is requesting of its top execs.

During his years at the Burbank studio, Curtiz megged such pix as "Mission to Moscow," "Mildred Pierce," "Life With Father," "I'll See You in My Dreams" and the recently-completed "Trouble Along the Way." He won an Academy Award for his direction of "Casablanca." He has always been a WB director except for a brief period when he formed his own indie company.

Arbitration

Continued from page 3

additional abuses, including violations of the consent decree judgment. In fact, there are indications that Allied may call for stricter enforcement of the consent decree and charge laxity on the part of the Dept. of Justice. In testimony before the committee, Allied prexy Wilbur Snaper will reportedly review the entire arbitration proceedings and reveal heretofore undisclosed aspects of the talks.

Scope Enlarged?

TOA, on the other hand, will argue that the industry can work out its own differences without Government intervention. This was revealed in New York Monday (13) by prexy Alfred Starr, just back from a five-week trip to Europe. Starr and TOA exec veepee Walter Reade, Jr., are slated to appear before the Senate committee next Thursday (23). Testimony of the TOA leaders will be confined mainly to the question of arbitration, although Starr acknowledged that the scope could be enlarged depending on the committee's queries.

Senate body will hold hearings for several days beginning today (Wed.), probably recess for a few days and resume testimony next Wednesday (22) when the distrib reps will present their views. TOA's leaders will appear on Thursday (23) when the whole subject of arbitration is set for airing. Lawyers committee of the MPAA is currently preparing its arguments and lining up distrib members who'll appear before the Senate group. Herman Levy, TOA general counsel, will be on hand for the opening of the hearings and will remain throughout the sessions as the exhib org's observer. He's not scheduled to testify.

Europe Reaction

Continued from page 3

approach would be followed. Early 3-D product currently playing abroad, he indicated, has received a n.s.h. reception.

Exhib topper reported that European exhibs are having difficulty obtaining the polaroid specs necessary for 3-D. He said the cardboard throwaway type is not available, and theatres had to buy the expensive permanent-type glasses. In addition, he pointed out, cost of transportation and duty was quite high.

Starr noted that, in general, theatre biz was surprisingly good abroad. He said he heard few complaints about b.o. receipts. He declared that dubbing technique has reached a perfection in Europe "that is incredible."

In England, Starr said, exhibs were beginning to worry about impact of TV. Up to now, there has been only one video outlet, the BBC station. However, he reported that a commercial-type station, following the policy of U. S. stations, is set to open soon with a variety of popular-type entertainment, causing considerable concern among British theatremen.

Starr, in New York for a day, returned yesterday (Tues.) to Memphis, headquarters of his theatre chain. He's due in Washington next Thursday (23) to testify before the Senate Select Committee on Small Business, which is probing industry trade practices.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

"Go See," New York Subways Advertising Co.'s car-card feature which plugs a "picture of the month," will recommend 20th-Fox's "Call Me Madam" for May although the film has been at the Roxy, N. Y., for the past three weeks. Ad firm claims that "14,000 subway car cards will carry this recommendation to 6,000,000 subway riders, of whom 5,000,000 are city residents and the rest suburbanites." Subway "pic-of-the-month" feature has been maintained by NYSAC continuously since March, 1941, as a "free public service not connected with any film company."

Columbia is pitching for the kid trade with its upcoming release of Stanley Kramer's "5,000 Fingers of Dr. T," via a release in June to coincide with the school vacation and extensive tie-ins with manufacturers of children's tops and wearing apparel. Disclosure of the merchandising promotion, made in N. Y. over the past weekend, was the opening gun in the campaign for the pic. Joyce Selznick, working for ad-pub chief Howard LeSieur, set the tieups, which include displays in department and chain stores and sample giveaways and sales at theatres.

Three-day run of RKO's "Androcles and the Lion" at the Trans-Lux Colony Theatre, N. Y., last week saw each patron carry off a cuffo loaf of bread in keeping with the "atmosphere of the Roman empire in the days of the pre-Christian era." Devised by manager Hans Barnstyn, the stunt was predicated on the ancient Roman custom when the emperor distributed bread to the populace upon entertainment occasions. Tieup in this instance was with the Pick Quick Super Market, across the street from the Colony.

Curtis Mitchell, onetime ad-pub director for Paramount, analyzes 3-D for the layman in a piece scheduled to appear in the April 26 issue of the American Weekly, the Sunday mag section distributed to some top 24 metropolitan newspapers. His yarn heralds the beginning of a new era in film theatre entertainmenet and makes the prediction: "As surely as the silent picture has become a museum piece, so must flat pictures vanish within one or two years."

United Artists now has on its N. Y. payroll a press rep whose job is to seek space in the sports pages. Handling the assignment is Lew Barasch. The sports angle isn't unusual, as he's making the promotion pitch for the 3-D filmization of the upcoming Walcott-Marciano fight in Chicago.

Speed of Switch

Continued from page 3

switch as soon as 75% of the 2,500 to 3,000 theatres from which it gets more than 80% of its revenue have converted to CinemaScope. Current plants are to equip 1,000 houses by the end of '53 and an additional 500 a month thereafter. That means the 3,000 mark could be reached by April of 1954.

The report showed a consolidated 20th net for 1952 of $4,747,587, which includes a special credit of $1,077,755 due to an adjustment of earnings from a change in accounting procedure affecting foreign operations. Net was equivalent to earnings of $1.71 on the common stock. Earnings for 1951 totalled $4,308,000, or $1.47 a share, but included domestic theatre operations for a full 52 weeks, whereas 1952 figures took in only 39 weeks of theatre operations, divorcement having gone into effect Sept. 27.

Film operations in 1952 accounted for $2,178,000 of earnings as against $2,128,000 in 1951. Worldwide film rentals amounted to $93,167,000 in '52, compared with $92,489,000 in 1951. For the first 14 weeks of '53, domestic film rentals increased 24.5% with foreign film rentals up 8.3% during that same period. The increase worldwide was 17.8%.

'Revolutionary Impact'

Skouras' message highlighted the acquisition and development of the CinemaScope widescreen system, and commented on "its revolutionary impact on the motion picture industry and the advantageous position in which ownership of this system" places 20th. He revealed a non-exclusive contract with Bausch & Lomb to manufacture the CinemaScope lense in the U. S. where other optical companies also will turn them out.

The 20th prexy pointed out that, with the potential market of old pix for TV, the company's library of films was becoming increasingly important. "Up to this time, for our own sound business reasons, we have refrained from disposing of these pictures to television stations," he stated. "However, with the advent of CinemaScope and other new techniques, it is anticipated that the theatre demand for motion pictures will be generally for pictures of the new types. The demand for the older pictures will greatly decrease for theatres. Therefore, it is likely these older pictures will then be made available to television."

The message said work on commercializing Eidophor "has been speeded" since the color theatre TV system was first demonstrated last July. "Your corporation's plans to create live shows of outstanding merit and spectator appeal are well progressed," Skouras declared. He emphasized that Eidophor could use the CinemaScope screen to good advantage.

Reviewing the year's operations, the 20th exec pointed out that the new stocks of 20th and National Theatres on April 8, '53, had an aggregate market value of $23¾ whereas a year ago, with National Theatres a wholly-owned subsid, the old 20th stock closed at $17⅝ a share on that date.

The report showed 20th in '52 released 33 pix of it own, four produced by others and six reissues. Of the 33 films, 13 were in Technicolor and 20 in black and white. Distrib in 1951 also released 33 of its own pix; 28 in 1950, 24 in 1949; 21 in 1948, and 18 in 1947. Average per pic cost in '52 was lowest in the six-year period since 1947. It was pegged at $1,298,000, as against $1,370,000 in 1951 and $1,634,000 in 1950. Per pic cost in 1949 was $1,787,000 and in 1948 $1,869,000, compared with $2,328,600 in 1947.

Inventory at the end of 1952 stood at $58,881,236 as against $57,848,074 in 1951 and $58,295,958 in 1949. "It is anticipated there will be a drop in inventory of from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 during 1953" due to CinemaScope, Skouras said.

The message pointed out that, since 1942, 20th had earned over $126,000,000 and had paid out over $68,000,000 in dividends. Book value at the end of 1941 was put at $21,560,894. By December, '52 it had risen to $79,910,514. Book value of National Theatres at the time of divorcement was $19,602,037, making for an aggregate of $99,512,551. Working capital has been increased from $27,959,944 in '51 to $66,540,451, a boost of $38,580,507.

New York Theatres

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center
DORIS DAY • GORDON MacRAE
"BY THE LIGHT OF THE SILVERY MOON"
color by TECHNICOLOR • A Warner Bros. Picture
plus THE MUSIC HALL'S GREAT EASTER STAGE SHOW

NATURAL VISION 3 DIMENSION
WarnerPhonic Sound
HOUSE OF WAX
starring VINCENT PRICE
FRANK LOVEJOY • PHYLLIS KIRK
PARAMOUNT
EDDIE FISHER
HUGO WINTERHALTER AND ORCHESTRA
THE BEACHCOMBERS
JOEY FORMAN
Midnight Preview

Stereo Sounds Note

Continued from page 7

tions and exploring whether it's preferable to record on one film optically or magnetically. CinemaScope will have three channels and possibly an added control track.

When the Roxy Theatre, N. Y., shows CinemaScope later this month, it will have 29 speakers distributed around the house. As a starter, and for testing purposes only, they will be switched manually, with the operator cuing them. Sponable pointed out that carrying the sound on a separate track not only creates synchronization but also exchange problems.

First move towards bringing down the cost of the stereo sound equipment is being made by Natural Vision which, according to prexy Milton R. Gunzburg in N. Y. Monday (13), plans to bring out equipment at half or one-third the present price "within a few weeks." Gunzburg said his company had developed a compact, portable unit that would not require extensive rewiring and would bring stereophonic sound within the reach of the smaller houses.

Gunzburg, whose Natural Vision system was used in lensing Warner Bros.' 3-D "House of Wax," which carries stereophonic sound and opened last week at the Paramount Theatre, N. Y., acknowledged that the multi-channel system in use at the Paramount wasn't all that it might be and that this was partly due to the acoustics of the house.

While several operators were sufficiently impressed with "House of Wax," Cinerama and the CinemaScope sound to order it for their houses, others stated flatly that they didn't consider stereo sound of sufficient added value to justify the expense.

At the production end, stereophonic sound could become a budget burden if properly done. "House of Wax" actually was recorded with a single mike, with the sound effects split up later and put on separate tracks to be channeled through different speakers. Same process is being used in the re-recording of Sam Spiegel's "Melba," a United Artists release, to add stereo sound.

Spokesman for one of the large equipment houses said Monday that there had been many inquiries about stereo sound which, he said, has caught the exhibs' imagination. He added, however, that the reproduction and amplifying equipment as well as the speakers are currently in short supply, since the manufacturers themselves are not certain which way to turn.

Movie Stocks... Should I Buy — or Sell?

Judging by our mail, that's one problem a good many investors would like to solve.

Can Cinerama, 3 D's, and foreign markets keep movies alive—

Or is Television bound to take over—chase Tarzan back to the trees?

Actually, of course, there is no absolute answer to the question—the movies have always been a more or less speculative industry.

But there are a number of facts that should be considered before reaching any conclusion—facts that can help you come up with the right answer for you.

And you can find those facts in our brand new booklet "The Motion Picture Industry."

In just 32 pages, it sets forth the most important pros and cons that should influence the moving-picture industry in general . . . gives you a detailed analysis of 18 leading companies presently involved in making movies—or showing them.

If you'd like a copy of "The Motion Picture Industry," just ask.

There's no charge, of course, simply address—

Department V-26

MERRILL LYNCH, PIERCE, FENNER & BEANE

70 Pine Street, New York 5, N. Y.

Offices in 103 Cities

Green-20th

Continued from page 3

proxy battle. Green's one great talking point has been that 20th has neglected to capitalize on all its assets, so as to increase dividend payments.

While the 20th announcement roused intense interest in the trade, a good many execs leaned to the belief that 20th, in addition to making a bid for stockholder support, may be throwing out a feeler to test general reaction to any TV deals. Opinion is widespread that, if and when it weathers the Green storm, the company may not press the issue.

Both Green and 20th submitted their proxy letters to the Securities and Exchange Commission last week. Charles Maybrook, Green's public relations rep, was in Washington yesterday to discuss the Green document with the SEC and "iron out some details." He refused to comment on whether or not the Commission had demanded any changes.

Meanwhile, a table of statistics covering the period 1942-'52 and giving comparative figures for the five major distribs — Paramount, Warner Bros., Metro, RKO and 20th—indicated 20th's impressive gains during the 11 years under the present management.

Compilation showed a per share increase of 46⅝ points between Dec. 31, '41 and April 9, '53, a boost of 143%. 20th shares rose 16½ points for an increase of 240%. During this time the increase in Dow-Jones Industrial Average was only 149%.

Table gave 20th per share earnings in 1942-52 as $49.92, over seven times the cost of common in '42. In this respect, as in the 191% rise in per share book value, 20th leads the five major companies. It's ahead, too, in the per share dividends paid over the 11 years and amounting to $24.40, as against $67.76 for the five majors combined. 20th rates second, after Warner Bros., in the increase in market value plus dividends.

Stanley Warner

Continued from page 3

based on estimated earnings. If the earnings do not meet the estimate, company will have to dip into the earned surplus to make up the difference. Unlike the theatre company, it's easier for the production company to estimate earnings. Hence the earlier dividend declaration by WB.

It's still too early to tell whether stockholders will come out on top as a result of the split. If the theatre company is as liberal in its payment as the picture company, shareholders can profit. However, if the b.o. assumes an offish aspect and earnings continue at the breakeven point, stockholders stand to lose as a result of the split.

Frank McCarthy Set

Hollywood, April 14.

New director of public relations for 20th-Fox is Frank McCarthy. He succeeds Col. Jason Joy, who retired recently because of failing health.

During the past four years McCarthy has functioned as a 20th-Fox producer, turning out "Decision Before Dawn" and "Sailor of the King." His new duties will include Governmental relations and contact with the Breen office.

Regent

Continued from page 5

for the second time, denied that there had been any agreement on "Oklahoma" and current plans for lensing it. "If Mr. Schenck has been quoted correctly, he must have been mistaken," Rodgers stated.

Rodgers reiterates he opposes filming "Oklahoma" while the legit musical is still enjoying the boffo biz on the road it has been doing despite its 10-year run.

Mike Todd, Todd-AO exec, commented in N. Y. Monday (13) that he though the confusion "unfortunate" and added that he didn't intend making further comment since "there have been too many statements already." Todd said that he was spending time in Buffalo, setting up a Todd-AO demonstration in cooperation with the American Optical Co., manufacturers of the equipment.

There may be a showing of the process "earlier than had been expected," Todd disclosed, adding that the press might not get to see the system until it's ready for commercial showing. Initial demonstrations will be in a Buffalo house.

Many of the Magna backers have never seen the process at work. Rodgers himself has seen some black-and-white footage but nothing in color. Unless the process is demonstrated to their satisfaction by Aug. 1, 1953, R & H have the right to bow out of the Magna setup.

Schenck said on the Coast that R & H have final approval of cast and story and would probably write a few additional songs for "Oklahoma." Present plans call for the pic to open at the Rivoli, N. Y., next January. William Ludwig and Sonya Levien are currently collaborating on the screenplay, Schenck disclosed.

'Wax,' 'Man'

Continued from page 3

play, and appraisals of the added dimension in sight and sound ranged from faulty to strong new values for pix.

Downbeat on the film, in various degrees, were the Times (Bosley Crowther), Herald-Tribune (Otis L. Guernsey, Jr.) and the Post (Archer Winsten). News (Kate Cameron) was yes-and-no. Mirror (Frank Quinn), Journal-American (Rose Pelswick) and the World Telegram-Sun (Alton Cook) were boosters.

It must be noted, of course, that business at the Par was hefty at the opening of the show last Friday (10) before the reviews were widely read.

Nabe Exhibs

Continued from page 3

ing that he had already ordered stereophonic sound systems for 34 theatres.

The introduction of the new processes has resulted in frequent, lengthy meetings among theatre toppers, all attempting to determine what's what, how soon and how much. Latter, of course, is the most serious concern. Because of the relatively low cost of 3-D, most of the circuits have equipped the majority of their theatres with this process, figuring they can cash in at least on the novelty value. If the medium catches on (and there are many exhib toppers who think it will be based on their reaction to Warner's "House of Wax"), the feeling is that houses will be ready to receive all product in this medium.

The one-theatre or nabe operator, however, figures he can't gamble. Theatremen in this category want assurance of some sort of standardization. They want to know exactly what product will be available so that they know in what direction to move in regard to new installations.

Pix-To-TV Dam

Continued from page 3

that Hollywood Television Service, Rep's TV subsidiary, had earned about $4,000,000 during its first 15 months in business, and that the company expected to collect "around $3,000,000" from TV sales in 1953.

Reasons that so far have kept the major distribs from selling to TV range from the belief that TV can't offer enough money at present to concern over exhib reaction and a pronounced feeling that "we are in the business to turn out theatrical product." It's been pointed out that a reissue can reap in many times the money that would be forthcoming from a television sale.

20th Reasoning

The 20th reasoning, that CinemaScope and other techniques will so antiquate "flats" that there will be no harm in letting them go to TV, puts a new slant on the situation. While none of the other majors at this moment will admit that they are entertaining the idea of breaking down their resistance to doing business with TV, they are also not unreceptive to the 20th argument.

Furthermore, each distrib is aware that he who gets there first is apt to reap the benefits, while the rest may suffer the consequences of having to compete in a market swamped with product. Situation has already been aggravated by the rising flow of indie pix to TV. Practically every one of the majors, and particularly 20th, has had what are termed "fabulous" offers for their old pix. They know that none of that bonus money will be available once the rush is on to unload to TV.

Advent of 3-D and widescreen processes has given the distribs a handy reply to exhib pressures that they stay away from TV. There's also been some comment on the fact that Republic doesn't appear to have suffered to any extent from exhib retaliation in the wake of its decision to do business with TV.

As Yates put it last week: "One or two (exhibs) complained but we pay no attention to these complaints at all . . . in fact many exhibitors today own stations to which we're selling." He added that exhibs "will never give you an even break" and emphasized that, if the broadcasters didn't get their pix from Hollywood, they'd go out and make their own.

Fact that Skouras envisioned TV sales, once switch to new types of projection systems is completed, is seen creating a tense period with distribs watching very closely who might make the first move in the direction of TV.

Minevich's Coup

Continued from page 2

exchequer) of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique like no other VIP passenger ever could.

In fact, as Minevitch gathered his belongings from his Hollywood and New York homes, to return to his Paris penthouse (where he has been a permanent resident post-World War II), it became an Intra-French Line subject of discussion as the most unusual "private baggage of any passenger. Besides the plane, Minevitch bought two giant cigar store Indians from Bill Hardy (Bill's Gay '90s, N. Y.) for $1,000, which will adorn the portals to Minevitch's "moulin" (mill-farm) some 90 kilometres outside of Paris; many trunks full of theatrical props and costumes; beacoup electronic and recording equipment (he's a nut on sound reproduction), and unsuspected other items which Minevitch will not be able to declare as to their true identity because he doesn't know what they are himself—trunks full of press books, record collections, and the like.

Minevitch produces films for theatres and for TV in France. He will also focus on European outlets for his new harmonica factory which he just reactivated in Los Angeles, and which kept him some six months in the States.

PS—there was so much luggage that the French Line put the plane on a freighter out of L. A., and Minevitch embarked from New York on the S. S. Liberte last Friday (10), due to dock in LeHavre today (Wed.).

She's Lux Lovely

See PHYLLIS KIRK in "HOUSE OF WAX" NATURAL VISION 3-DIMENSION Color by WarnerColor

A Warner Bros. Production . . . Now showing locally.

Clips From Film Row

NEW YORK

William Mueller, Warner Bros. studio sound department chief, back to the Coast Monday (13) after observing public reaction to Warner Phonic sound at Paramount Theatre preem of "House of Wax"

Cinema 16 showing "That the Deaf May Speak," film portraying educational and emotional needs of deaf children, at Central Needle Trades Auditorium today (Wed.).

The 11 Weiss Bros., two of whom are actively in the picture industry, had their annual get together April 7 at the home of one of the brothers, Dr. Bernard Weiss, in Forest Hills, N. Y. The oldest brother, Samuel, is owner of the Stamford and Avon Theatres, Stamford, Conn. Alexander is manager of Loew's Pitkin, Brooklyn. Meyer, Morris and Leo operate Weiss' Restaurant in Broad Channels. Aaron is in the restaurant business in New Jersey. Howard is in the wholesale paint business, and William in the wholesale liquor business. David and Edward are retired.

In addition to the annual get-togethers, the 11 brothers meet each week at the home of Samuel in Stamford.

OMAHA

Omaha World-Herald sponsoring free monthly film parties at Tri-states' Omaha Theatre for city kids.

License renewal for the Omaha Drive-In granted by county board.

Denison, Ia., Bulletin printed long letter of tribute Donna Reed wrote her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Mullenger, on latter's 89th birthday there last month.

Ernest Kassebaum, manager of Seward, Neb., theatre, planning benefit May 14 to help send the city's basketball team to Seward, Alaska, for exhibition game.

Gilbert and Sandra West took over the Peru, Neb., theatre.

Corby Theatre here to host annual Easter basket party for all Northside kids.

Hastings, Neb., drive-in and Starview ozoner in Lincoln bowed last week.

West Dodge Drive-In here and Kar-Vu ozoner, Torrington, Wyo., opened last week with Terrytown, Scottsbluff due to bow this session.

Dan Flanagan, manager of the Pioneer, Arbor and Drive-ins in Nebraska City, transferred to Hiawatha, Kans., by Mid-Central chain; replaced by Chet, Posey from Beloit, Kans.

LOS ANGELES

United Artists closed a deal with Aubrey Schenck and Howard W. Koch for the release of "Smoke Signal," to be produced in Pathecolor.

Filmakers Releasing Organization has lined up 15 independent exchanges: John Mangham, Atlanta; Albert Swerdlove, Boston-New Haven; J. Francis White, Charlotte; Albert Dezel, Chicago-Detroit; Jay Goldberg, Cincinnati-Indianapolis; Herman Beiersdorf, Dallas; Tom H. Bailey, Denver-Salt Lake; Charles Kranz-Irving Levin, Los Angeles; Donald Swartz, Minneapolis-Milwaukee; Harold F. Cohen, New Orleans; Jack Bellman, New York; Al Grubstick, San Francisco; Bert Stearn-Milt Brauman, Pittsburgh; Bernie Mills-Jack Berkson, Washington, and Ray Lewis, Canada.

Helen Ainsworth Corp. sold "Stolen Identity," made-in-Vienna film, to Fox West Coast for its Southern California houses.

MINNEAPOLIS

RKO discontinued its Sioux Falls, S. D., exchange in economy's interest and assigned its manager, Sherm Fitch, to sales staff here. Sioux Falls territory has been apportioned to Minneapolis, Denver and Omaha exchanges.

Boost in loop firstrun adult admissions from 50-76c to 65-85c brought no adverse reaction from patrons, according to Harry B. French, president of Minnesota Amusement Co. (Paramount circuit).

Twin Cities' seven drive-in theatres got off to a slow start in the face of snow, rain and 30 degree temperatures.

Chick Evans, 20th-Fox exploiteer, in town drumbeating for "Invaders from Mars."

Harold Field, circuit owner, recuperating in Florida from heart attack.

Ben Friedman, circuit owner, under observation in Mt. Sinai hospital here.

Former Paramount city salesman Joe Wolf appointed I.F.E. Film Co. Sales rep for Twin Cities as well as Des Moines and Omaha.

Harry B. French, Minnesota Amus. Co. prexy, back from a Florida vacation.

"Call Me Madam" set for Paramount Radio City April 24.

Paramount circuit's competitive bid for "Moulin Rouge" was the winner, and picture goes into Century here.

W. H. Workman, Metro branch manager, finally around again after long illness; plans to resume duties within fortnight.

On strength of its Academy Award, "Quiet Man" picking up many repeat runs in territory.

Paramount circuit raised its children admissions from 9c to 20c in all local theatres although two independent neighborhood houses here now admit kids free when accompanied by adults.

Three Twin Cities' independent neighborhood houses, two here and one in St. Paul, among the territory's 14 that already have ordered necessary equipment for 3-D pix.

ALBANY

William C. With, a member of the Palace staff since 1931, appointed manager, succeeding the late Alex Sayles. An assistant manager in recent years, With started as usher on a part-time basis while attending school here.

The Strand in Waterville acquired by C. E. McLaughlin from Morris Slotnick, who has retired from exhibition after years of operation in Waterville, Oriskany Falls and Utica. Mc Laughlin's son, Spencer, is managing the Strand.

Phil Rapp has been transfered from the Stage, Schenectady, until next fall, to handle supervision of the Fabian-owned Mohawk and Drive-ins. His brother, Louis Rapp, will handle the State while he is away.

Jake Varnell, former supervisor of construction for J. G. Griffith Co., Texas company specializing in drive-ins, will manage Harry Lamont's Middletown this season. Varnell, who directed the building of the Overlook, Poughkeepsie, and the Riverview in Rotterdam for Lamont, replaces Howard Cammer. Latter goes to the Riverview as manager, succeeding Gerald Schwartz, a partner of Lamont's Schwartz now runs the Overlook.

CHICAGO

Ralph McCoy resigned as WB country salesman.

Jim Fineglio, former manager of Times Theatre, Ogelsby, Ill., takes over from Joe Etheridge as operator of Collins, Joliet, Ill. House has been shuttered for several months.

Monroe Theatre snagged 3-D Wolcott-Marciano fight film.

Byrd, McVickers, Normal and Newberry theatres joined Allied Theatres of Illinois.

City amusement tax collection March report shows theatres contributed $90,575 as against $93,900 last year. Overall figure for three months show $267,678 for this quarter as compared to $268,776 in 1952.

Balaban & Katz bought 3-D sound systems for eight Chi houses and 16 downstate.

Robert Bachman upped from northern supervisor for Alliance Theatres to post of assistant booker for the circuit.

Great States chain ordered 22 3-D installations for its houses.

Chi police censor board last month reviewed 111 pix, rejecting one and classifying two for adults only.

Supplemental damages for $900,000, making the total amount requested $2,400,000, being asked in the Congress Theatre rental suit. Attorney Tom McConnell claims that Balaban & Katz withdrew a $625,000 bid for the house after eliminating other bidders.

PITTSBURGH

Bernie Elinoff upped to post of chief booker and buyer of shorts for Stanley-Warner theatres in this zone, replacing Charles Mason who resigned to go with F. D. (Dinty) Moore's booking-and-buying office. George Gilliam, formerly with WB in Cleveland and more recently of Chakeras circuit in Springfield, O., comes here as booker for Pittsburgh city and Main Line houses for Stanley-Warner.

Dick Cvetic promoted to manager of the Strand in Oakland with Robert Murphy's transfer to the Columbia in Erie.

Roseanna Feinberg, secretary at Associated Drive-In Theatres office here, announced her engagement to Herbert M. Solomon, eastern district manager for Sportservice (Buffalo, N. Y.) Concessionaires.

John Reilly returned to Warner fold again as manager of the Melrose in Carrick.

The Joseph-Raad and Jur theatre circuits moving their general offices from Fairmont to Parkersburg, W. Va., with Joseph S. Joseph in charge. Joseph-Raad chain, operating the Smoot, Strand and Hiehle theatres in Parkersburg, recently bought controlling interests in both the Mur and Starlight Drive-Ins.

PHILADELPHIA

Site of the Earle Theatre, on which a W. T. Grant store will be erected, sold by the Grant Realty Co. to the New York Life Insurance Co., for $1,476,000. Earle's demolition slated to begin next month

Randolph Theatre, flagship of William Goldman chain, installed four RCA projectors in booth for current run of Columbia's 3-D "The Man in the Dark."

Everett Callow, Stanley Warner publicity chief, took Philly crix and newspaper party to New York for last week's preview of "House of Wax" (WB).

Jack Beresin, International Variety Clubs chief barker, will be feted at dinner in Bellevue-Stratford next Monday (20). Proceeds from the affair will go to Tent 13 Camp for Handicapped Children.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Marvin Fox, Hamrick city manager, appointed William Breese manager of Roxy, with William Budrius night manager.

Warren Goodwin named manager of the Liberty.

Jack Matlack, general manager of the J. J. Parker Theatres, has resigned to build and run a drive-in of his own. Matlack had been with the Parker outfit for nearly 10 years. Tom Walsh, of Indiana Amus. Co. and other eastern circuits, will take over.

Town loaded with field men this week... Walter Hoffman, Paramount; Allan Wieder, MGM; Earle Keate, UA; and Sammy Siegel, Col.

Heaton Randall, Coast sales manager for National Theatre Supply here to confer with J. J. Parker reps.

AKRON, O.

Nat Rosen, of Philadelphia, named manager of the State Cuyahoga Falls, O., near here, replacing Louis Lutz, New Castle, Pa., who quit after three weeks.

The Belle, Bellefontaine, O., closed by Radio Corp. of America, which had operated the house since last Dec. 13. Alton F. Carns, house manager, blamed inability to get sufficient first-run films. RCA was principal creditor of the theatre, which had been closed since July 4, 1951, in a creditors' suit.

Charkeres Theatres, operators of the Logan, in Logan, O., started construction of a $100,000 Drive-In south of Logan.

CALGARY, CAN.

Grand at Natal, B.C., purchased by Leon Henriet, of Coleman, Alta., from William Cole, who has operated the house for 19 years. Cole will run a theatre at Yellowknife.

Rex Colmer, operator of a Drive-in at Cranbrook, B.C., is building an ozoner at Marysville, B.C., which will have equipment for showing 3-D films.

BUFFALO

Resignation of Clayton Eastman as Warner Bros. Buffalo branch manager has resulted in several staff realignments in the company's field sales department. Distrib chief Ben Kalmenson named Nat Marcus, Milwaukee branch manager, to the Buffalo post, with Cincinnati topper Ralph H. Dunbar moving over to Milwaukee. James S. Ambrose was appointed to head the Cincy office. All changes are effective immediately.

Herb Gaines named head of the Buffalo Loge of the Colosseum of Motion Picture Salesmen of America. Other new officers are John McMahon, secretary, and Michael Jusko, treasurer.

DALLAS

Village Drive-In at Ennis opened for season. Ozoner was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Miller from Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Richey.

Cedars Drive-In at Baytown bought by the Cedars Drive-In Theatre Corp. John Meyer was former operator. New owners have closed the Texas Theatre but will continue to operate the Bay and Brunson.

Amusement Stock Quotations

(N.Y. Stock Exchange)

For Week Ending Tuesday (14)

1953 High	1953 Low		Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net. Change for week
15⅞	13⅝	Am Br-Par Th	121	14⅞	14⅜	14¾	+ ⅝
43½	38¼	CBS, "A"	50	42	41⅛	42	+1½
43⅜	38½	CBS, "B"	20	41¾	39½	41¾	+1½
14½	11⅝	Col. Pic.	56	14½	13⅜	14¾	+ ¾
11⅛	9¼	Decca	248	11⅛	10⅜	11	+ ½
46⅝	43⅞	Eastman Kdk	138	46½	45¾	46½	+1¼
14⅜	11¼	Loew's	138	13⅜	12¾	13¼	+ ½
7¾	4⅛	Nat. Thea.	447	7⅝	6⅝	7¼	+ ½
30⅜	26⅛	Paramount	75	28¼	27⅛	27⅛	+ ½
36½	31	Philco	77	33⅛	31⅝	32	— ¾
29⅜	25¼	RCA	433	26¾	25¾	26	—
4⅜	3½	RKO Picts.	106	3¾	3½	3½	— ¼
4¾	3⅝	RKO Thea	321	4⅝	4⅜	4⅜	—
4	3½	Republic	149	4	3⅝	3⅞	+ ¼
11½	10½	Rep., pfd.	8	11⅜	11⅛	11¼	+ ⅛
11⅛	9⅞	Stanley War.	129	11	10½	10¾	— ⅛
19¼	13½	20th-Fox	626	17¾	16¼	17¼	+1
16⅜	14	Univ. Pix.	67	16	15¼	15⅞	+ ½
65	61	Univ., pfd.	1	64	63¼	64	+ ½
16⅝	15	Warner Bros.	138	16⅜	15½	15¾	+ ⅜
84	72½	Zenith	50	75¾	72½	72½	—2¼
American Stock Exchange
17¾	14⅝	Du Mont	85	15½	14¾	15¼	+ ⅜
4	2⅞	Monogram	19	3½	3⅜	3½	+ ⅛
30⅜	25⅜	Technicolor	21	29¼	28⅞	28⅞	+ ⅜
3¼	2⅞	Trans-Lux	11	3⅛	3	3⅛	+ ⅛

Over-the-Counter Securities	Bid	Ask
Cinecolor	1⅛	1⅝	— ⅛
Cinerama	3⅜	3⅞	—
Chesapeake Industries (Pathe)	3¾	4⅜	—
U. A. Theatres	10¾	11¾	—
Walt Disney	8¼	9¼	+ ⅜

(Quotations furnished by Dreyfus & Co.)

Widescreen's Edge

Continued from page 5

screen conversion, already extensive, appears gaining further impetus almost daily.

United Artists' president Arthur B. Krim revealed that the company's entire inventory is being reappraised with the view of fashioning some of the completed pix for stereo sound and large screen exhibition in addition to straight 2-D showings. United Artists has a total of 65 features either completed or set to roll in the next six months and only two of these, "I the Jury" and "Ring Around Saturn," are in 3-D, Krim revealed.

William Wyler also joined the ranks of widescreen advocates as against 3-D. Just prior to his return trek to Rome over the past weekend, the producer-director told VARIETY he feels that "the big screen in one form or another is the answer."

Wyler adds: "3-D as we have seen it is not natural — less natural than normal photography. It's not progress toward realism; the ordinary picture when well photographed is more realistic. The dimension is exaggerated in 3-D. People do not want characters jumping out at them from the screen."

Paramount, which has the "Sangaree" 3-D'er on its upcoming sked, also has a couple of conventional "flats" being held back from release, with the plan to groove them first for theatres equipped for widened-screen handling. These are George Stevens' "Shane" and George Pal's "When Worlds Collide."

Par, now readying Cecil B. DeMille's "Greatest Show on Earth" for reissue, also is eyeing large screens for the reruns of the circus epic. As concerns "Shane," this will be the first production shown via the widened screen technique at N. Y.'s Radio City Music Hall. Aspect ratio will go to 1.66 feet of width to every foot of height in the screen's measurements. This is in contrast with the usual Hall 1.33-by-1 screen proportion.

In an aside to the 3-D vis-a-vis-widescreen trends, incidentally, there's now a switch in trade conjecturing anent film companies' sales of dated pix in their vaults to television. Initial reasoning was that any widespread adaptation to 3-D would hasten such unloading, since the oldies, in 2-D, would no longer be competitive to films of the 3-D pattern.

Now, however, development of the widescreen techniques is looked upon as heralding the peddling of pix to TV. 20th-Fox prez Spyros P. Skouras covered this yesterday (Tues.) in his annual report to stockholders, stating that the anticipated wide adoption of CinemaScope will cue the sale of some of 20th's "older films."

Regardless of whether it's 3-D or the widescreen which receives the greater prominence in trade use, film execs studying the two approaches believe that in the distance is a "marriage" of the two. That's the inevitable, they say, although it's difficult to make any predictions about the time of its arrival.

Supporting this, it's related, was an experiment conducted at the Metro studio in Culver City. Some footage from a musical was projected on a widescreen and in 3-D as well. New Yorkers who were on the Coast at the time relayed this week that the results were the greatest of any system yet shown. "When such startling effects can be achieved, it's obvious that the combined widescreen and 3-D must be developed for theatres," said a non-Metro distribution v.p.

There will be great expense and many problems in getting the equipment, he added, but the "marriage" definitely is in the film industry's future.

Ohio Exhibs

Continued from page 10

Ohio Senate's education committee. The resolution called film censorship "unconstitutional, restrictive, capricious, arbitrary and an affront to human freedom.

Sec. Robert A. Wile, in a shrewd move, had the 136 members of the Ohio Senate and House lunch with theatreowners last Wednesday. Hearings on the Mosher bill are scheduled to begin at the State House April 20. Wile is now lining up a list of witnesses in support of the bill. Tim Claggett, of MPAA, is also in town to aid in the anti-censorship battle.

Arthur Mayer, author of "Merely Colossal," and Metro's Mike Simons, speaking at the final banquet session Wednesday, welcomed television as an adjunct, and a valuable one, to show business.

All officers but one (second vice-president) and all board of directors but one were reelected. The new lineup is: C. F. Pfister, Troy, president; F. W. Huss, Jr., first v.p.; Horace Adams, Cleveland, second v.p.; Lee J. Hofheimer, treasurer. Directors: Myers S. Fine, Cleveland; Hoy L. Russell, Millersburg; Louis Wiethe, Cincinnati; Roy E. Wells, Dayton; Horace Shock, Lima; Marvin Frankel, Elyria; J. Real Neth, Columbus; Martin G. Smith, Toledo; Paul Vogel, Wellsville; Peter M. Wellman, Girard; Henry Greenberger, Cleveland; Louis F. Eick, Martins Ferry; and Park Belden, Akron (newly-elected). Secretary Wile continues his term after reappointment by the board last January.

SEE BRIT. MARKET FOR VIDPIX

TV Copywriter Tips: Shun Gimmicks, Hark to Film Ed, Fuse Audio-Video

By LESLIE HARRIS

(Radio-TV Director, Colgate)

Let's look at the copywriter who refuses to accept the fact that he now has a co-author — camera. Because he still hasn't abandoned radio techniques, he doesn't get optimum value from TV commercials.

While the majority of commercial copywriters have become camera-conscious, there are still a few holdouts. While the commercial is in the creative stage, they feel that any collaboration with those concerned with actual film production would be, roughly, comparable to a Yale undergrad being invited to join the daisy chain at Vassar.

This is a completely unrealistic approach—both from the standpoint of keeping costs down, and creating a good commercial. Unless the copywriter has had considerable experience in making screen treatments, it is decidedly to his advantage to enlist the services of a person with a film background immediately after the basic premise of the commercial has been decided.

Not only can a good film editor spot costly and potentially troublesome sequences in the making; but by suggesting different approaches and visual improvisations, he can be exceedingly helpful to a writer, in translating his ideas to film.

Actually, there are very few limitatfons which a camera imposes on a writer. But unless he is familiar with the various devices utilized to overcome the inherent static quality of film, he is quite likely to find his creative thinking following a fairly conventional pattern.

Few writers, even those with wide film experience, rely entirely on their own knowledge in making screen adaptations. When it comes to choosing the proper type of montage, transitional device, clips from existing footage, generally it is much safer to call in the film expert.

Production guidance should not affect a writer's creative urge in the slightest. It will, however, prevent him from working out a costly location premise aboard a trim yacht. It will remind him that, if the action is confined to the replica of a stateroom with port holes, the illusion of a ship will be retained, but the cost won't. He can also benefit from the knowledge that half a dozen boat manufacturers will be glad to supply him with free negatives of their craft plunging through the briny, coming to anchor, or sailing into the sunset. By editing these into his own takes, he will have a complete atmospheric commercial, without having stepped out of the studio.

'Location' Shots Not Necessary

This is, of course, only a very sketchy example of the many cost-saving approaches a good film editor can suggest. Actually, as will be discussed later under studio techniques, there is little reason to ever have a commercial shot on

(Continued on page 32)

GE Buys Milland Vidpix on CBS-TV

General Electric, through Maxon Inc., has bought the Thursday 8 p.m. time (opposite Groucho Marx) on CBS Television for "The Ray Milland Show," beginning in September. Move leaves CBS-TV's evening time completely sponsored, with single exception of Tuesdays at 8 to 9 p.m.

Milland show is a filmed situation comedy, with the film star as a high school teacher.

In the fall, too, GE is reportedly mulling the possibility of cutting the Fred Waring Show (now weekly) to twice a month, with Bing Crosby and "G.E. Theatre," a filmed dramatic series, rounding out the monthly picture.

IATSE's KHJ-TV Win

Hollywood, April 14.

Film Editors Local 776, IATSE, won a one-sided victory over the IBEW in the NLRB bargaining election at Don Lee KHJ-TV. In addition to this station, Local 776 now has bargaining control at ABC, CBS and KTTV.

Local Live TV Vs. Pix Syndicates

Film syndication outfits, currently enjoying the greatest boom of their young lives, will probably encounter considerably tougher sledding in the fall. Reason for the expected lull is twofold: new stations have overstocked, and they'll be going in for lots more local programming.

As the post-freeze stations are going into operation, they are getting more and more demands from viewers for local live shows. This holds especially true in the smaller markets, where the "small town" atmosphere still prevails. Stations on the air a short time report they've found considerable acceptance for locally built home-making, news, weather, sports and even talent packages. Western localities are starting to demand and get hillbilly shows, for example. And once football starts, it's a near certainty that the local stations will be carrying high school and college games.

Most of the sales that have contributed to the vidpix boom this year have come from stations which at the time of sales hadn't actually begun to broadcast. Station managers have since found that their programming requirements don't call for the large number of filmed shows they've bought. In those cases where terms of sale call for a year's use, they'll play them out and won't renew; in other cases with longer use clauses, they'll hold off on playing the films for next year, thus limiting new business.

There's one other factor in the picture. That's top names. Besides their own local boys; the provincials want top stars they've seen in the film houses and heard on network radio. They don't care what the source of the programming is—live or films, network or syndicated.

BOBBY SANFORD IN SWITCH TO OFFICIAL

Bobby Sanford, who recently opened his own talent agency, will transfer his activities to Official Films starting Monday (18). Sanford, a former Music Corp. of America exec, follows Hal Hackett also ex-MCA into OF. Latter was recently named OF prexy and board member.

One of the hitches around Sanford's entry into the organization is his recently made tie-up with the Jaffe Agency on the Coast. Hackett is now in Hollywood conferring with Jaffe officials on transfer of activity as well as other business.

Prockter to Europe On 'Police Story' Vidpix

Bernard J. Prockter, president of Prockter Television Enterprises, Inc., sails today (Wed.) on the Queen Mary for a month of European business, overseeing production of 13 half-hour "Police Story" television shows and investigating other program possibilities.

Accompanied by Everett Rosenthal, production veepee, Prockter will return to New York on the Ile de France May 28.

COMM'L STATUS EXPECTED IN '54

Hollywood, April 14.

There'll be an English market opened up for American-made telepix by the middle of next year when commercial TV is expected to have been approved by the government and immediately activated. This note of optimism for both the present 2,000,000 set-owners abroad and Hollywood producers of video-on-film was sounded by Norman Collins, former controller of British Broadcasting Corp., and now chairman of High Definition Films of London, Ltd.

"The conservative government is pledged to 'competitive' television, which is our equivalent of your commercial TV," said Collins, "and the only trouble is expected from the laborites. However, the conservatives had a solid majority in the house and barring any governmental changes, the granting of licenses for TV competitive to the government-controlled BBC should begin. More than 30 applications have already been filed, but among these are some wild-catters without responsible financial backing."

Collins' mission in this country for the past fortnight has been for the purpose of exploring our production methods, inspecting facilities and conferring with his company's selling agents in this country, the William Morris agency. This trip, he said, is one of selling rather than buying. That will come later. He brought with him from London an audition film of a dramatic subject to serve as a sample of the high quality of High Definition films turned out by what is called "telefilm" as distinguished from our kinescope. As against our standard 525 lines, the British company utilized from 750 to 900 lines on closed-circuit recording.

Like the growing trend toward tele-on-film in this country, Collins sees a parallel in the English thinking, noting that the big advantage lies not only in improved quality but in permanence. He doesn't think too well of our kinnies as compared to the English brand of teleplays, but is won over to our filmed programs, many of which would set well with English viewers.

Collins is looking ahead to the day when there'll be an exchange of television programs, 'the American dollar being such a "weak patient as not to be moved." His company and several others will produce enough filmed entertainment to keep the bartering active, he said.

Canada will also be in the market for U. S. films, he believes, once the Dominion is dotted with stations. Just now there are only two or three and 40% of the programming is commercial. In Australia a commission is now making a study of commercial TV, and it is anticipated it will go as the mother country goes, said Collins.

In setting up his own companies, High Definition Films and Associated Broadcasting Development Co., Collins finds himself in competition with the government services he helped to build.

Gordon's Europe-Made Catalog of 250 Vidpix For U.S. Distribution

Paul Gordon, indie film producer, arrives in the U. S. at the end of the month with a catalog of some 250 vidpix produced in Europe, which he'll start peddling to stations here. Gordon, together with German producer Hans H. Kaden, has been producing the films in Berlin under name of European Television Corp.

Catalog includes 13 one-hour drama series, "Continental Dateline"; 13 half-hour biographies of composers; 13 quarter-hour condensed operas; and 26 quarter-hour puppet and fairy tale plays. Gordon intends to set foreign deals following his American visit.

'Fountain' Sprayed No Coin on Them, So They Sue

Los Angeles, April 14.

Billy Dix and Daniel Cypert, TV producers, filed suit for $12,100 in Superior Court against Al Jarvis and ABC for use of 14 telefilms titled "The Fountain of Poetic Thought."

Plaintiffs, who are partners in Fountain Production, declare Jarvis was given non-exclusive rights to the series last August and promised them "reasonable compensation." They want $10,000 as damages and $2,100 for use of the films.

Dodgers Compete With Selves on TV

The famed daffiness of the Brooklyn Dodgers has extended to television, although this time it isn't exactly their fault. Dodgers, whose games are carried by WOR-TV, N. Y., will be performing on film on the competing WPIX, before each game of the rival Giants and the Yankees.

Curious situation occurs through the fact that Dodgers were filmed for a syndicated show by indie producer Leonard Key. Show, a 10-minute quizzer named "Call the Play," features clips of the Dodgers performing various plays. Idea of quiz is to stop the clip, phone a member of the audience and ask him what decision he would make on the play. Clip is then finished, showing correct decision.

WPIX bought the film for a pregame slot. It's now carrying all three New York teams as a result. Program's sponsored by Sun Vacuum Stores weekdays, Koolvent on Saturdays and Sunset Appliance Stores on Sundays. Hal Tunis emcees.

'WORLD PREMIERE' 30G VIDPIX ROLL

Hollywood, April 14.

Pilot film of a new dramatic telefilm series, "World Premiere," goes before the cameras at Goldwyn studios today (14) on a three-day schedule, carrying a $30,000 budget. Co-producers and partners in the projected series are film biz vets James Geller and Skirball. Latter is acting as exec producer.

Audition film will be adaptation by Richard Maibaum of Pearl Buck's "Lesson in Biology" with Joanne Dru and MacDonald Carey starring. Arthur Lubin directs.

Sheldon Reynolds Sneaks 'Theatre' Vidpix Series Before N. Y. Audience

A pilot film of a new Sheldon Reynolds vidpix series, "Theatre," was sneak-previewed last Friday (10) at the Gramercy Theatre, New York City.

Starring Claude Dauphin, the French actor, the pic was run in the film house to get an audio track of audience reaction. Response was termed good by Reynolds.

Producer, in the U.S.A. for four weeks, leaves the end of this week for Stockholm, Sweden.

Telenews Film Library

Telenews has started a new film library service, registered under the name of "The Build-A-Show Film Library," which it will introduce at the upcoming Los Angeles NARTB convention.

Bill Lewis, Bob Angus Parlay 1G, Into $2,500,000 Vidpix Gross In 1 Year

By DAVID B. KAUFMAN

Hollywood, April 14.

Parlaying $1,100 they borrowed a year ago into a gross biz of $2,500,000, telepix producers Bill Lewis and Bob Angus, youngest such team in the telefilm field, have netted approximately $100,000 in their first year of operations in an illustration of what can be done in the comparatively new TV pix biz in Hollywood. The youngsters hit the jackpot with the Volcano Productions. Angus is 31, and his partner, Lewis, 33.

The two were film editors on "Dragnet" when they decided to form their own production company March 18, 1952. All they needed was cash. So with $1,100 borrowed on Lewis' car plus $75 they had they were in biz. Team immediately had Liggett & Myers' teileblurb account for Chesterfield and actually shot some blurbs before forming their company. While they had enough coin to shoot they didn't have enough of the green stuff for lab costs, optical effects, etc.

So Lewis fast-talked the lab, sound people, optical effects company and General Service owner James Nasser into deferments so that they could complete the blurbs. They delivered a batch to the agency, and were on their way. Grins Lewis today of those early penny-pinching times: "I had to talk everybody out of their money. I was the heavy, but Bob passes out the checks and gives the raises."

Volcano next landed the "Adventures of Harriet" vidpix show, and with 40 pix pacted, was well on its way. At about the same time the team got the Hotpoint and Listerine blurbs to add to their fast-growing business, and at this point they moved out of the tiny ante room which was their quarters, into a suite of offices at General Service.

Since then Lewis and Angus have canned a telefilm starring Ann Blyth gratis for Father Hanna's Boys Center; shot a pilot, "The Chase," for NBC-TV, and do another pilot, "That Wonderful Age," at Motion Picture Center April 15. They're so pressed for space they shot "Chase" at Republic, and "Age" goes at Motion Picture Center.

In addition, they've signed vet western writer Luke Short to pen a series, "Ricochet," for them, and will roll this new one next June, with Angus directing.

SWG Opens Talks On Vidpix Pacts

Hollywood, April 14.

Television negotiating committee of Screen Writers Guild met today (Tues.) with Revue Productions and Jack Chertok Productions for discussion preliminary to vidpix companies inking Guild's minimum basic agreement covering telefilm scribblers. Contract sought would be identical to that signatured with Alliance of Television Film Producers.

In addition to freelancers' pact, Chertok asked SWG to begin talks aimed at finalizing a pact for his staff writers.

SWG has similar negotiations skedded with Alliance producers, regarding their staff scribblers, and negotiations are also under way with a number of indie telepix companies.

SWG has set up a TV advisory committee to police and implement its Alliance pact. Committee will handle all TV matters and make video recommendations to the exec board.

Morgan Cox is chairman, with Erna Lazarus and Curtis Kenyon co-vice chairmen.

Senate Group Asked to Break FCC 'Kitchen Sink' Dam on New TV Grants

Washington, April 14.

Prospects of Congressional action to speed up FCC hearing procedures on contested TV applications, with the view to getting additional video outlets pronto in the larger cities, developed last week. Sen. George Smathers (D., Fla.) introduced a resolution in the Senate asking the Interstate Commerce Committee to look into the situation.

Resolution urges the Committee to report to the Senate at the "earliest practicable date" what action is needed, either through legislation or otherwise, to expedite hearings on contested TV applications.

Smathers told the Senate that the majority of people in the U. S live in cities with only one TV station, because the Commission procedures for sifting the most qualified applicants for the unassigned channels are slow and cumbersome.

"In many parts of the nation today," he said, "there are large population centers which have had only one channel available to them. While those stations now in operation in these one-channel areas have done creditable jobs, nevertheless the public in these areas have been forced to view that channel alone, its programs and its advertisers.

"This situation exists in most areas of the U. S. at the present time, and it has so existed for several years, and, unfortunately, from what I have been able to learn recently, it will continue to go on for some time to come."

Although the FCC lifted the freeze on new TV authorizations a year ago, and has issued over 300 permits for new stations since, Smathers said, the agency's policies for handling contested applications from the larger cities with only one station has amounted to "an almost permanent freeze in the industry." This applies, he said, to cities like St. Louis, Kansas City, Jacksonville and Miami.

One of the principal reasons for the delay, Smathers said, is the "inexcusable length" of the FCC hearings held to determine the most qualified applicants in contests for channels. The contest for channel 8 in the Tampa-St. Petersburg area, he noted, has been going on for four months. He said the hearings are still unfinished, with over 4,000 pages of testimony already taken.

'Everything But Kitchen Sink'

In examining some of the transcripts, Smathers said, he found

(Continued on page 46)

TV Wrestling Fan Bequeaths Grappler Gabber 12G in Will

Cincinnati, April 14.

Neal Van Ells, announcer of WLW - TV originated wrestling matches, was left $12,000 by a 68-year-old widow who followed his Saturday night stints for four years and named him beneficiary in a double indemnity life insurance policy. The avid wrestling fan, Mrs. Susi Robinson, Dayton, O., was killed in an auto accident April 6.

Van Ells also is program director of WLW-D, Dayton, in the studio of which the Saturday night matches originate and are piped to Crosley's WLW-C, Columbus, and WLW-T, Cincy.

The sum is the largest known to come the way of a radio or personality in this area from a fan.

'Best Plays' Back To NBC Radio April 24

"Best Plays," NBC radio sustainer which went off the air during presentation of the documentary series "The Challenge of the Prisons," returns half an hour earlier, 8:30 to 9:30 p.m., Friday, April 24. First play is "Mr. Roberts." John Chapman, drama critic of The New York Daily News, is narrator, with Ed King the director and Bill Welsh the supervisor.

"Name That Tune," now at 8:30, shifts to 9:30 p.m. April 24, idea being, according to Jack Cleary, radio net program topper, to have a musical show lead into the Dinah Shore Show.

Fulton Lewis, Jr., Buys Into Coast AM Station

Hollywood, April 14.

Group headed by William Dolph, Ed Franklin and Fulton Lewis, Jr., paid $54,000 for controlling interest in radio station KGIL, San Fernando. Deal is subject to approval by FCC.

Transaction involved the purchase of stock held by F. J. Smalley., and part of the stock owned by Howard Gray.

Theatre Guild TV Pitch to U.S. Steel

With likelihood of U. S. Steel cancelling out on "Theatre Guild of the Air" next season, thus depriving NBC of one of its most juicy Sunday night radio sponsorship plums, the Theatre Guild outfit is making a TV presentation to the U. S. Steel echelon this week in the hopes of adapting the hourlong dramatics to the newer medium.

Whether or not U. S. Steel will embrace video next season (thus far it's been holding off and waiting for the "propitious time") is still a moot point. The Guild TV presentation is but one of several formats and program ideas currently being "auditioned" by the steel company, for years one of the major institutional advertisers in broadcasting. But there won't be any decision one way or the other until the U. S. Steel board of directors meets at the end of the month. If it sits out TV for another season, it may retain the radio property.

DuMONT LABS' 945G NET IN 1ST 12 WEEKS

DuMont Labs netting $945,000 or 39c per common share as opposed to $114,000 or 3c per share in the first 12 weeks of 1952. Principal cause for the rise was new business created by the lifting of the freeze last April, which has resulted in a steady upward sales spiral for the company.

Gross, however, only rose 50% for the period, from $15,960,000 in first quarter of 1952 to $24,187,000 the first quarter of this year. Reduced operating expenses made possible the sharp increase in profits.

Network's operation for the first two months of the year showed gross billings of $1,856,333 as opposed to previous year's $1,465,692, an increase of 22%. Comparative figures for March weren't available.

JIMMY NELSON
DANNY O'DAY AND HUMPHREY HIGSBYE
FEATURED—TEXACO STAR THEATRE
NBC-TV WITH MILTON BERLE
PERSONAL MANAGEMENT
LOUIS W. COHAN

$350,000 Donations Assure Pitt of An Educ'l TV Station

Pittsburgh, April 14.

An educational TV station for Pittsburgh was virtually assured last week with announcement of grants totaling $350,000. Sum was revealed by Metropolitan Pittsburgh Educational Television Station, non-profit organization chartered to operate Channel 13, which has already been allotted here for educational use by the FCC. Application for a construction permit will be filed shortly.

Grants of $100,000 each were made by the Ford Foundation, Arbuckle-Jamison Foundation and A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust. Money will be used for purchase of initial equipment and building. The Mellon Trust, in addition, pledged $50,000 towards expense of organizing the station.

Operation of Channel 13 is expected to cost $200,000 a year, with contributions from the Western Pennsylvania school system and public and private trusts serving as sources of income. The Mudge Foundation of Pittsburgh has already advanced $2,500.

WEEU-TV Preems

Reading, April 14.

Beaming its signal a week ahead of schedule, WEEU-TV, Reading's second UHF channel put its test pattern on the screen Thursday (9). Commercial programs will start tomorrow (Wed.), with Thomas E. Martin as general manager. The other station, WHUM-TV, hit the air Feb. 22.

Like Old Times—But Different

Strange are the ways of agencies these days. On the one hand Young & Rubicam is in the enviable position of having grabbed off a hefty chunk of the top talent availabilities (Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Joan Davis, Charles Laughton, "Four Star Playhouse" rotating stars, etc.) And all done through the simple expedient of buying outside packages—thus saving some fabulous in-the-house production costs.

Yet paradoxically the new Y & R appointments are all geared toward putting on a "business as usual" front in its radio-TV executive production layout—just as though Y & R were still grinding out house shows.

A few weeks back the agency brought in Don Quinn, who created "Fibber and Molly," for comedy and writing development. Last week the agency named Dan Seymour, another hep "showman," as veepee in charge of the radio-TV programming dept. That's the job formerly held by Nat Wolff, who succeeded to Everard Meade's post as No. 1 radio-TV man when the latter resigned recently.

Chi TV's 'Month of Prosperity' In WBBM, WBKB $1,000,000 Biz Spurt

Chicago, April 14.

Over $1,000,000 in contracts have been signed by two of the Windy City's major webs in the last month. WBBM-TV, CBS o & o, reported a sales volume of new and renewed biz exceeding $750,000. ABC-WBKB's $300,000 gross is the largest ever racked up by the network's channel 7 during a comparable period of time.

The WBKB sales curve hypo is due largely to the efforts of web veep John Mitchell. The dollar volume was corralled even though Mitchell and crew have been piloting the channel 7 ship for less than two months.

Due to the increased program and spot biz, the station has increased to a 17-hour day. Consequently, with most of its time slots bankrolled, WBKB has "revamped its attitude" toward the one-shot tab taker and fast pitch sponsors are gradually being eased off the programming since the upbeat of spot and program sales.

The ABC outlet need not worry about a dearth of spot bankrollers, since such financing is now at capacity. A total of 2,249 spots have been sold during the past 30 days with 32 accounts solicited. Bankrolling of such nature is currently SRO at WBKB.

Daytime scheduling is based along the lines of program flexibility and WBKB is attempting to offer as great a variety of package shows as possible. The 10 o'clock exercise show is now financed.

(Continued on page 48)

Coulter Exits Mutual

Hal Coulter this week exited Mutual as director of promotion to set up his own public relations-promotion office. Web is planning no replacement for the time being.

Joseph F. St. Georges has been brought in to head WOR-TV's promotion department, succeeding Gene Moss, who joined ABC sales presentation department. St Georges was formerly with ad agency of St. Georges & Keyes in N. Y.

McLendon's New Baseball Network

Dallas, April 14.

Gordon McLendon, former head of the now defunct Liberty Broadcasting System, has announced that he is going back on the air this season with "Game-Of-The-Night" major league baseball broadcasts. They're to be carried over a new radio web to be called the Knickerbocker Network. Formation of the network was announced here on Saturday (11) by Ray Lewis, who will be its general manager.

McClendon built the LBS web from his recreated broadcasts of major league games. It went into bankruptcy when he was barred from airing big league games.

He has filed a $12,000,000 suit against 13 major league baseball clubs.

Paul Keller to ABC

Paul Keller has joined the ABC research department as supervisor of ratings. For the past three years he has been assistant research director of the N. Y. office of N. W. Ayer agency, prior to which he was a research analyst with the Blow agency.

WNYC Bard's Festival Sets French 'Hamlet'; WQXR Dittoes on Music

WNYC, New York's municipal station, will air its second annual Shakespeare Festival April 23 to 29, with a French-language production of "Hamlet," nine full-length plays and readings from the Bard's works. Station will also remote the annual dinner of the Shakespeare Club of N. Y. from the National Arts Club on April 26.

French "Hamlet" will star Jean Louis Barrault on a tape of a French Broadcasting System production. Nine plays are also tapes, from BBC files. Readings will be by members of the "Old Vic" repertory group, including Sir Laurence Olivier, John Gielgud, Sybil Thorndyke, Edith Evans and Claire Bloom. An Alec Guinness talk on Shakespeare is also set, as well as a recording of Shakespearean-era English made by Prof. Helge Kokeritz of Yale.

Meanwhile, WQXR, N. Y. Times station, started its Shakespearean music festival this week via its daily "Panorama" program, with music of the Bard's era and works based on his plays. WQXR festival, which was opened by legit producer and Theatre Guild president Lawrence Langner, will run through April 24.

GF Buys 'Mailman'

General Foods has bought sponsorship of the Monday, Wednesday and Friday segments of WOR-TV's (N.Y.) half-hour "Merry Mailman." Ray Heatherton starrer will be used to introduce new product, Sugar Krinkles. Foote, Cone & Belding handled the account.

Remaining three days of "Mailman" are sponsored on a participating basis.

How Guys, Dolls & Moppets Go For Top 25

The femmes have the men and moppets all beat in the plain and fancy televiewing department, according to the March American Research Bureau rating figures. More women, breakdown reveals, watch the drama, variety and comedy programs of the top 25 than men or children.

Only in the sports department—Blue Ribbon Bouts and Cavalcade of Sports—do the guys outweigh the dolls in the viewing audience. As for the kiddies, they outnumber men watching "Life of Riley" and almost equal their male elders before the sets when Milton Berle and "Mama" are on.

Comedy attracts more viewers per set (3 or more) than all other types of programs, with "Toast of the Town," an exception, holding its own with the rib ticklers.

The lineup:

	RATING	CITIES	% MEN	% WOMEN	% KIDS	VIEWERS PER SET
I LOVE LUCY	72.7	73	32	42	26	3.0
GODFREY'S TALENT SCOUTS	58.0	35	32	44	24	2.8
YOU BET YOUR LIFE	54.7	76	35	42	23	2.8
GODFREY AND FRIENDS	52.1	71	32	44	24	2.9
DRAGNET	49.9	65	37	45	18	2.6
MILTON BERLE	48.2	58	31	40	29	2.9
COMEDY HOUR—BOB HOPE	45.7	71	36	38	26	3.4
WHAT'S MY LINE	43.5	44	40	52	8	2.5
OUR MISS BROOKS	41.9	34	32	45	23	2.6
TOAST OF THE TOWN	41.1	54	38	42	20	3.0
MAMA	40.8	36	29	43	28	2.7
BLUE RIBBON BOUTS	40.1	64	55	35	10	2.3
YOUR SHOW OF SHOWS	39.9	59	37	44	19	2.9
CAVALCADE OF SPORTS	38.7	57	52	37	11	2.3
LIFE OF RILEY	38.7	52	30	37	33	3.1
TELEVISION PLAYHOUSE	38.6	64	38	45	17	2.7
YOUR HIT PARADE	38.4	70	37	46	17	2.8
RED BUTTONS	38.3	49	32	41	27	2.9
JACKIE GLEASON	37.1	44	34	39	27	3.3
ALL STAR REVUE—DURANTE	37.0	63	35	40	25	3.1
KRAFT TV THEATRE	36.2	49	38	46	16	2.4
BIG TOWN	35.9	35	34	42	24	2.8
BIG STORY	35.4	50	33	42	25	2.8
FORD THEATRE	35.1	53	38	47	15	2.3

THAT GLEAM IN CBS-TV'S EYE

Hunting Season Is On

Strictly aside from the hot and heavy talent wooing going on in the stepped up intra-mural network competition, recent weeks have witnessed a similar jockeying for topdog position on an administrative level for key behind-the-scenes men.

With ABC (now waving the AB-PT flagship) setting its sights on a "nothing-but-the-best; pay-no-object" administrative revamp, with NBC still going through its crucial revolving door policy on executive manpower, with Tom O'Neil's WOR-Mutual operation gearing for a more prominent identification in the broadcasting sun, and even individual station operations, as with WPIX, N. Y., which is on the prowl for a new manager now that Ben Larson has staked a claim in the Time, Inc., TV empire, the competition for hep operators is reaching a feverish pitch.

All that is needed today is an unconfirmed report that a network exec is desirous of advancing his lot in the business and would welcome some feelers, than the "get that man" overtures are initiated in earnest. Once the availability is confirmed, the guy in question can frequently choose between four of five key spots.

'Jaudi Dudi' ('Howdy Doody') Big Mex Cross-The-Board TV Click

Mexico City, April 14.

Moppets took over the Good Neighbor policy last week when "Howdy Doody" quick-changed into "Jaudi Dudi" and launched the Spanish version of the series via XEW-TV, Emilio Azcarraga's key outlet in Mexico.

"La Hora de Jaudi Dudi," slanted cross-the-board six half-hours weekly, Mon-Sat, 6:30-7 p. m. (versus the five half-hour operation in the States), is sold here in same quarter-hour segments. Series hit the air when more than half of total time pre-sponsored. Larin, biggest Mexican candy maker, inked for first 15 minutes across the board. Kellogg, a U. S. sponsor, is taking the same ride south of the border.

Series is produced in Mexico on 16m film and may represent the most ambitious TV film operation now grinding anywhere in the world, filming and editing a total of three hours of programming per week. Production setup, which pioneered the jelling of 16m facilities in Mexico is handled by Producciones Mundiales, S. A., the Mex subsid of Kagran Corp., American owners of "Howdy Doody." When the show was launched last week, 13 weeks of programs were already in the can, and shooting now continues without interruption. All footage, including commercials, is shot at San Angel Inn Studios, where company has established an independent unit with its own stage, equipment, cutting rooms and labs.

Production nut of series is a trade secret here, but producers have clarified a long-range financial plan based on expansion of TV throughout Latin America. Film expenses cannot be regained in Mexico City alone, but within two weeks "La Hora de Jaudi Dudi" opens in Havana on Goar Mestro's CMQ-TV, and a few months later in Mexican border cities of Mata-

(Continued on page 46)

Viceroy Filters Into Web Shows

Viceroy cigarets is looking to extend its network spots into sponsorship of a web show. Williamson Tobacco subsid is currently dickering for the Sunday 6:45 p.m. slot being vacated by Walter Winchell April 26 when the columnist moves down to 6:30 on ABC-TV. Viceroy would be the first of the filtered brands to go beyond the spot bankrolling phase.

Meanwhile, ABC-TV hasn't set a replacement for Winchell in the 6:45 slot, largely because Viceroy deal is still being dickered. Earlier slotting for the columnist was made to build up number of stations carrying the show. A further move toward greater clearance will be made in the fall when Winchell simulcasts his radio and TV shows Sundays at 9 p.m.

Spot Winchell's moving into has been local time, latest occupant in N. Y. being Ed & Pegeen Fitzgerald.

'Irma' Status in Doubt

William Esty agency, on the R. J. Reynolds account, is currently studying the status of "My Friend Irma" on both CBS radio and tele. Agency officials say they've been dissatisfied with the calibre of the program for sometime.

Should subsequent shows fall below agency expectations, layout is likely to be axed, an agency exec admitted.

NBC's Kate as TV Bait to Win Back 'Payoff' Stations

Kate Smith has finally come to terms with NBC-TV for next season's full hour daytime spread, but for a while a serious impasse was shaping up between the network and Ted Collins, Miss Smith's manager. Even now, with matters resolved, the singer and her manager are far from elated over the reshuffled schedule that looms as a major obstacle in hitting those high rating figures that have made her programs one of the major staples on the daytime TV agenda.

Miss Smith thus far has had the field to herself in her present 4 to 5 p.m. tenancy. However, she's being moved up to 3 p.m. next season, with "Welcome Travelers" getting her 4 o'clock spot. It all came about through NBC-TV losing "Big Payoff" to CBS-TV. With the program also went a flock of NBC stations, which coveted the Colgate billings. Since "Payoff" occupies the CBS 3 o'clock strip, the question now is whether Miss Smith can recapture the stations.

In the event of a sponsor sellout, everything's in her favor, since the Kate Smith show is a 60-minute attraction. With the additional revenue (plus the fact that "Payoff" is only sponsored Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays), the stations would probably re-pledge allegiance to NBC.

Although Miss Smith's hour cross-the-board stanza has failed to hit an SRO stride in recent months, nonetheless her 12 quarter-hour commercial segments per week fetch a tidy $5,000,000 in gross annual billings.

'Doorway to Danger' To Sub 'Big Story'

"Doorway to Danger," mystery-adventure series, will be the summer replacement for "The Big Story," as it was last year, on NBC-TV Fridays (9 to 9:30 p.m.), beginning July 3.

American Cigaret and Cigar Co. and Simoniz Co. continue as alternate sponsors.

COLGATE, 'TOAST' AS SUN. PARLAY?

By GEORGE ROSEN

Is there a Colgate "Comedy Hour" in CBS-TV's future?

Around the network they're saying that it's strictly within the realm of possibility for next season, though nobody's admitting that actual overtures have been made, either by Colgate or by CBS. But in the same breath they intimate that it's something more than wishful thinking or a TV pipe dream.

It's even been linked to the network's Sunday night lineup as a back-to-back attraction with Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," which obviously would project Columbia's Sabbath roster into a new sphere of importance and dominance.

The precise manner in which CBS would be able to capture the prize Sunday package from its arch NBC rival is something nobody's bothered to explain off—not yet. Last week NBC prexy Frank White spent a day with the Colgate high priests in Jersey City to find out what gives about next season. What transpired is a combined NBC-Colgate secret.

In the forefront, of course, is the former NBC president Joseph H. McConnell, who now prexies the Colgate operation. A lot would depend on him. If, as is reported, a loss of affection stemming from the McConnell defection from the NBC-RCA dynasty into the soap camp has widened into a two-way rift, with CBS in the background to capitalize, then the Columbia "Comedy Hour" aspirations could be translated into a reality.

But how CBS and Colgate would resolve multiple other problems attending such a switchover presents a flock of unanswered Ripleys. If Colgate moves, for example, it would obviously insist on a continued 8 to 9 showcase, which would mean moving "Toast of the Town" back from 9 to 10. That would take "Comedy Hour" off the hook insofar as competing with "Philco Television Playhouse," which enjoys a 64-station live hookup. But will Lincoln-Mercury be satisfied to go against Philco? And how will General Electric react to being ousted from the 9 to 9:30 period with its Fred Waring Show, particularly now that it's eying Bing Crosby to fill some of the GE slots next season?

In NBC's favor of continuing the Colgate $6,000,000 sponsorship ride is the network's talent availabilities for "Comedy Hour," topped by Martin & Lewis and Jimmy Durante (along with Martha Raye, Donald O'Connor, Eddie Cantor, etc.). Thus it's a question of whether CBS can match it. And if Columbia is prepared to throw in its own talent "exclusives," such as Arthur Godfrey, Bing Crosby, Jack Benny, et al. (which CBS considers a match for anybody else's best bets), what about the Godfrey product conflict with his own Toni client; or Crosby's GE commitment?

Yet there's no mistaking the CBS gleam. It'll all be resolved in the next four weeks.

Only one thing is certain—that if Colgate goes CBS' way, NBC will be right in there, same cast, same time, but new sponsor or sponsors, with the Nielsen Sunday at 8 scorecard reading: "Comedy Hour" vs. "Comedy Hour."

NIP TV WEB SEES $1,500,000 GROSS

Tokyo, April 11.

The Japan Television Network (JTN), Nippon's first commercial video net, expects to gross about $1,500,000 in its first year of operation, which begins in June.

Net, which will charge $500 for 30 minutes in best hours, says it will earn $1,000,000 from time sales, $350,000 from spot announcements and $140,000 from studio rentals.

NBC's o & o Setup, a $50,000,000 Annual Billings 'Baby,' in Drastic Revamp; Cott Moves Into New Role

Cuffo Talent

The NBC-TV early-morning "Today" cameras are now "pulling 'em off the street."

Last Thursday (9) the cameras, as per custom, panned on to the gaping onlookers outside the "Today" studios on west 49th street, New York. The camera passed a distinctive looking, bearded gent, and, something in the nature of a double take, returned to the "sightseer," as emcee Dave Garroway exclaimed "I know that man, bring him in."

He turned out to be Dr. Norbert Weiner, author of "Ex-Prodigy," Dean of Science at MIT and regarded as one of the world's foremost communications masterminders.

He socked over one of the week's top fillips on the show.

Notice goes out today (Wed.) within the NBC organization of a sweeping reorganization pattern for the network's owned-and-operated division, coincident with the revelation that the 10-station (five TV and five AM) setup has now attained the status of a "$50,000,000 annual billings baby." The blueprint has been in the works for some weeks, awaiting only the okay of RCA-NBC board chairman David Sarnoff, who gave it his blessing this week.

In the new o & o realignment and "pattern for the future," Ted Cott, veepee-general manager of the lucrative brace of New York flagship operations, WNBC and WNBT, is promoted to the overall o & o division management to work with Charles R. Denny, vice-president in charge of the owned-and-operated stations. Cott will continue as veepee in charge of the New York AM and TV stations, but under the new realignment will dovetail his New York activity to encompass the various creative facets of the entire o & o operation, including programming, merchandising, promotion selling. In addition he will handle special projects for the division and serve as liaison for the owned-and-operated stations with the network programming department.

It's no longer a trade secret that the bulk of NBC profits emanate from the o & o operation, with the N. Y. flagships, particularly WNBT, accounting for a sizeable hunk of the net. The fact the 10-station operation now represents an annual gross biz of approximately $50,000,000, plus the reactivating

(Continued on page 42)

Lotsa Problems Beset Liebman, NBC on 'Shows'

The whole future status of the NBC-TV Saturday night "Show of Shows" was in a crucial state of uncertainty over the past weekend, with producer-director (and packager) Max Liebman and the network unable to arrive at a satisfactory solution to the many problems besetting the 90-minute showcase. Apparently the areas of conflict cover a wide range, not only including new salary contracts for the stars, Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca, but also existing differences as to the show's pattern for the new season.

Primarily, the major issue involves exposure for the stars in determining how frequently they'll be on. Whether this will include a rotating pattern, or more frequent layoffs as a team, is yet to be resolved; along with decisions as to half-hour and/or participation formula, change in format, etc.

More meetings are scheduled for this week in an effort to iron out the situation.

'Life in Detroit' TVer Gets Too Complicated, So City Cracks Down

Detroit, April 14.

Detroit's City Fathers decided that the trouble with "Life in Detroit" was that everybody tried to get in on the act. So, they've banished "Life in Detroit" back to the TV screen.

The fuss all started when WWJ-TV, Life Magazine and Blue Cross, private health insurance organization which sponsors the "Life in Detroit" series over WWJ-TV, were granted permission to erect a large sign on City Hall's front lawn advertising the show.

All three of them were mentioned prominently, of course, in the ad. Then the lists of credits began to grow. The name of the lumber firm donating the wood got on the sign, then the name of the man who designed the sign; then the name of the photographer who took the aerial view of Detroit's skyline.

Citizens complained about the "commercials." The City Father ordered removal of the credit lines.

Time to Smile? Nuts, Sez B-M

Status of the "Time to Smile" Sunday night CBS-TV show for next season is up in the air, with likelihood that the sponsor, Bristol-Myers, will call it quits on both the alternating Ken Murray and Alan Young Coast-originating programs. Client reportedly has been unhappy with the stanzas for some weeks and the fact that the Young show last time up registered a 7 rating (for probably one of the all-time lows for major TV entries in the $30,000 bracket) hasn't contributed toward its happiness.

Meanwhile, Bristol-Myers has negotiated a deal whereby it'll pick up the "Arthur Murray Party" TV stanza as a summer replacement for the Sunday CBS period. "Party" is currently slotted on Du-Mont, but checks off April 26. On June 28 it moves into the B-M slot under an arrangement whereby the dance school impresario picks up a sizable chunk of the talent-production costs.

But whether or not Ken Murray or Young return in the fall is problematical.

GILLETTE MAY RIDE WITH DERBY ON TV

Gillette is currently in the process of reappraising its thinking as to sponsorship of the Kentucky Derby on CBS-TV, now that the Bill Corum-packaged nag pickup has been whittled down in price.

Gillette nixed the deal a few weeks back when CBS dangled an approximate $400,000 price tag (for radio and TV time and program cost). It was considered way overboard. Now that the tag has been reduced to something approximating the $250,000 that Gillette paid last year, the razor company has resumed talks with the web.

TV In Lubbock Keeps Pace With Growth of Texas 'Wonder Town'

By BOB CHANDLER

Lubbock, April 14.

Patchwork pattern of the FCC grants for television stations have sent the agency time buyers and media men scurrying to their geography books. That they haven't come up with the answers on what markets to buy at what times for what products is obvious. But they have learned some new names and found markets where none apparently existed before.

One of them is the West Texas city of Lubbock, whose station, KDUB-TV, was the third to be licensed following the lifting of the freeze and the first licensed in a secondary market. The local situation and reaction to this new thing called television is certainly not typical of the other new secondary markets, but operation of the station and local reaction to it, along with its particular advantages and shortcomings, may provide some indication to the time-buyer and network of what and whom they're dealing with.

Lubbock is not typical of other secondary markets because 12 years ago it was one of those small towns which required a magnifying glass to be read on a map. Population then was less than 32,000. Since 1940, it's trebled in size—it now has 101,000 in the metropolitan area, with a total of 398,000 in the 26-county South Plains area surrounding it. It's grown to the point where, through its cotton, cattle and oil industries, it has the third highest per capita income and per capita retail sales in the country.

Along with its growth has come a fierce regional pride, a "let's put

(Continued on page 42)

Griesedieck Yields To Rival Busch Brewery On St. L. Cardinals Telecasts

St. Louis, April 14.

After August A. Busch, new prez of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced that "our television policy has not been defined," the Griesedieck Bros. Brewery Co. issued a statement in which it has relinquished its option of first refusal to TV Cardinal games this season. The Griesedieck statement said it has been notified by the new Cardinal owner that it had received an acceptable offer "through the advertising agency representing Anheuser-Busch, Inc., to purchase the right to TV National League games played by the Cardinals."

Griesedieck had planned to TV the first Cardinal game with the new Milwaukee Braves but it fell through. Griesedieck will broadcast all Cardinal games this season through a 90 station 10-state midwest radio web.

Busch has changed his mind about renaming the ball park to Budweiser Stadium which would have given headaches to Griesedieck and Falstaff Brewery Corp. had they been placed in a position of announcing ball games were being played at Budweiser Stadium. Falstaff Co. sponsors all games played by the Browns from whom Busch purchased the ball park last week for a reported $800,000. The Browns obtained a lease to continue using the park at annual rental of $175,000 for five years.

TWO-PART 'OTHELLO' FOR RADIO 'SUSPENSE'

Elliott Lewis, back in Hollywood this week after a week in New York, revealed he's planning two off-beat dramas on his CBS Radio "Suspense" show (Mondays at 8).

The first, in early May, will be a two-part presentation of "Othello," with Lewis in the title role, his wife Cathy Lewis as Desdemona and Richard Widmark as Iago. The second, still unscheduled, is a radio version of "Sinbad the Sailor," for which Lewis is seeking Ronald Colman as star.

"Suspense" will take a summer hiatus beginning the end of June, and the Electric Auto-Lite Co. will replace it with "Crime Classics," true-crime tales, the first week of July. Lewis will produce the summer show.

Mo. Bill Taxing AM-TV Sale of Athletic Bouts To Reap Promoters' Ire

St. Louis, April 14.

Promoters of wrestling and boxing are expected to make a vigorous beef against a bill introduced in the Missouri Legislature last week. Bill would levy a state tax on the sale of rights to broadcast or televise boxing and wrestling events. The tax—5% of the gross receipts from the sales—would be paid by the promoter or sponsoring organization.

Bill was introduced by Rep. James S. Lincoln, (R) Harrison County, who said all revenue from the tax would be earmarked for the State Athletic Commission. Currently, the state commission is collecting a 5% tax on gross receipts from admissions to boxing and wrestling matches.

DuMont Summer Programs Set

DuMont has virtually completed its summer replacement lineup with setting of five new network shows. Programs will be aired this spring and summer with an eye toward fall commercial airings, according to James L. Caddigan, net's program director.

Set to replace Bishop Fulton J. Sheen's "Life Is Worth Living" on May 19 is "The Music Show," a WGN-TV, Chicago origination featuring Robert Trendler conducting a 16-piece orch and a choir. Admiral Corp., which sponsors Bishop Sheen, takes a hiatus, and the web will peddle the musical.

"Jimmy Hughes, Rookie Cop," packaged by Stark-Layton Productions, is set to bow April 27. "Johns Hopkins Science Review," which currently occupies the Monday slot, moves over to Wednesday at 8 p.m., replacing "Adventure Playhouse." "Jimmy Hughes" will be carried into the fall as one of the web's "low-budget" dramas. Package has a production pricetag of $6,700.

Also set to go, but with no starting dates assigned, are "Climax," a half-hour dramatic show comprising three vignettes varying in length from five to 15 minutes; network's filmed series from the St. Louis Zoo, which has been in the works for months; and "The Straw Hatters," a variety segment originated at Palisades Amusement Park in New Jersey. "Climax" will continue into the fall; plan is to pact three sponsors for the show, each taking the amount of time he can afford. Zoo show also is certain for a fall run. Palisades origination is strictly summer, since park closes in the fall.

Locally, WABD, web's flagship, has pacted trio of WMGM sportscasters, Marty Glickman, Bert Lee and Ward Wilson, for a half-hour cross-the-boarder at 6 p. m., and has shifted its "One Man's Experience" from 2:45 p. m. to 6:30, cross-the-board. Being planned is "The Long Island Story" for Mondays at 2:30, starting April 27, and "Office Orchid," for which no date has been set. Station has also set "House Detective," which ran on WOR-TV, for Sunday evenings. Program is sponsored by TV Home Guild.

ABC's AM Sat. Revamp

ABC radio's Saturday afternoon lineup, subject of a sharp revamping over the past couple of weeks, gets a couple of new additions. Emphasis on music and news will bring to the net two five-minute news shows plus a 15-minute musical program.

News programs will be aired at 2 and 3 p.m., starting this Saturday (18). Musical segment, slated for 5:30, will feature pianist Paulena Carter, who's made several guest appearances on the net. Program kicks off Saturday (18), but won't be heard in New York until the following week.

Suitcase-Size TV

Washington, April 14.

Better and quicker news programs on television were promised here last week by the Raytheon Mfg. Co. which demonstrated its new suitcase-size video transmission equipment for on-the-spot coverage of events up to 25 miles from a station. By means of a "Microlink," camera crews may relay back to the station their coverage of news events without the use of cable. The equipment simultaneously carries the sound, a facility which has not been feasible in immediate coverage of news events by TV.

Raytheon also expects the equipment to have military applications. Various government brass viewed the equipment here.

Documentaries Loom Large On CBS Radio Sked

Auxiliary facet of the ambitious CBS Radio programming schedule for the spring-summer semester is the ambitious documentary planning of the burgeoning Public Affairs department, topped by Stuart Novins.

Since the beginning of March, a documentary unit in the department has reemerged from limbo to a staff of nine men, with stringers throughout the world alerted and CBS Radio newsmen cooperating fully. Producers working with Novins are Irv Gitlin, who produced "The Nation's Nightmare"; Al Morgan, experienced tape reporter formerly with WCBS' Bill Leonard, and Ralph Backlund, recently returned to CBS after a recall period in the Army.

One show, "Bomb Target—U. S. A.," hit the air March 20. The Gitlin-produced program, a civil-defense warning narrated by Arthur Godfrey, was repeated last Sunday (12), at 10 to 11 p.m., at the request of the Air Force and Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson.

Three more shows are in the works, and more are being planned, the idea being to air the hour-long specials about once a month.

First of the upcoming productions, due in early May, is a detailed account of the iron-curtain refugee problem. Called "The Green Border," a phrase used by the escapees, the program is being produced by reporter David Moore, who returned this week from Europe with the unedited tapes. Moore had worked abroad with CBS Radio news correspondents Dick Hottelot (Bonn), Alexander Kendrick (Vienna), Ned Calmer (Rome) and David Schoenbrun (Paris).

"Green Border," an actuality report in the words of the escapees themselves, will have narration by Edward R. Murrow. Bigtime treatment of the new documentary series is evidenced by the name narrators.

There hasn't been such fullscale activity since the slow expiration of the old CBS documentary unit four years ago.

"In the realm of ideas," says Novins, "television still has a long way to go. Radio's experience has shown that radio can deal effectively with ideas."

Main difference between the current series and the old much-kudosed CBS documentaries comes from the emergence of tape reporting, helped considerably by ideas evolved from "Hear It Now," in the 1950-51 season (which went TV as "See It Now," plus "Nation's Nightmare," the following summer).

Whereas "Hear It Now" was newsy and "Nightmare" a six-program investigation of organized crime, the new series of documentaries will explore separate areas of national and world problems. The one-time dramatic approach of CBS documentaries has not been excluded in present thinking, says Novins. Primarily, however, the current documentary series will be mainly actuality tape recordings.

Radio Networks Must Reappraise 'Nighttime Thinking,' Sez Cecil

Time has now come when it's the "height of folly" for the radio networks to pit expensive star-filled programs against TV nighttime stanzas. That's the cry of James Cecil, prexy of Cecil & Presbrey agency, N. Y., 40% of whose $21,00,000 total billings are now invested in radio and TV.

In an interview this week, in which he called for an even more drastic slash in nighttime radio rates, Cecil said the AM webs should realistically consider nighttime their "lean meat period" and daytime their "fat meat period."

"Instead of trying to buck the big nighttime TV programs," Cecil said, "the radio networks should now fill their evening spots with inexpensive programs, like music, audience participation and panel shows. I doubt whether even using the identical star-filled cast of a nighttime TV show on nighttime radio would equal TV's audience draw. If the radio networks don't reappraise their nighttime programming, they may yet reach the point when they'll even have to consider closing the networks from 8 to 10 p.m."

Cecil said ad agencies are by no means brushing off radio's value, considering that it has 96% penetration of the population, with over 40,00,000 families owning 60,000,000 radio sets. He conceded that "people are still buying radio sets, suggesting that they're listening, particularly in rural areas not yet covered by TV."

However, he said that the web's nighttime raido salesmen continue to ignore the overriding growth of TV viewing and impact in radio homes. He pointed out they should "wake up" to the current 21,234,000 TV sets in use, meaning 72.6% penetration of U. S. families. He said nighttime radio was losing impact particularly in urban centres, like Baltimore, with 95.4% TV penetration, Buffalo, with 91% penetration, Boston with 90%, and N. Y. with 77.6% TV penetration.

"Buying nighttime radio nowa-

(Continued on page 47)

WAFM-TV, Birmingham, Sold for $1,500,000; Buyer Must Unload AM

Birmingham, April 14.

Birmingham News Co. has contracted with a brokerage firm to survey its properties and find a buyer for its radio and FM station WSGN, which it must sell before getting FCC approval on its purchase this week of The Television Corp. and its properties, including WAFM-TV, WAFM-FM and WAPI. The sale price was reported to be in excess of $1,500,000.

Henry Johnston, who is in charge of all radio operations for the Birmingham News Co., announced the sale this week. News Co. purchased common stock from Ed Norton, majority holder, and Thad Holt, minority holder.

This is the second TV station in Birmingham to change ownership in a week. The Storer Co. is now seeking FCC approval on its purchase of WBRC AM and TV from Mrs. Eloise Smith Hanna for a reported $2,400,000. This station is an NBC outlet.

WAFM-TV and the other Television Corp. stations are CBS affiliates. WSGN is an ABC affiliate. No sale price has been given for WSGN.

Willys' CBS Coin For Music Festival

Willys-Overland, through the Ewell and Thurber agency, will sponsor an International Music Festival Series as a summer CBS Radio replacement for the New York Philharmonic Symphony, which it also bankrolls, beginning May 3.

Program, on Sundays from 2:30 to 4 p. m., will run for 23 weeks. James Fassett, the web's director of music and commentator for the Philharmonic series, will be in charge of the warm-weather musicfest, which will be taped, personally visiting seven European and one American festivals.

The international music to be represented on the new program will come from the Salzburg Festival in Austria, the Bayreuth Wagnerian Opera Festival in Germany, the Maggio Musicale in Florence, Italy; the International Bergen Festival in Norway, the Sibelius Festival in Helsinki, Finland; the Festival of Music and Drama in Holland, the Edinburgh Festival in Scotland, and the Tanglewood Music Festival at Stockbridge, Mass.

FRAMER SETS BRACE OF NEW TV SHOWS

Spotlight Promotions has sold two Walt Framer television programs, "Magic Horseshoe" to WNBT, N. Y. and "Make a Million" to CBS-TV.

"Horseshoe" is set to preem on the NBC-TV key Tuesday, April 20, from 6 to 6:30 p,m., and also will be seen on Thursdays at the same time. Show is a junior version of Framer's "Strike It Rich," with kids making their wishes come true by rubbing a horseshoe. No emcee set yet.

"Million," humorous interviews quiz show has been sold to CBS-TV as a half-hour, once-a-week night time spot. Jerry Lester is tentatively slanted as emcee.

Grossman Named To CBS-TV Operations Post

Henry Grossman, assistant to Frank Falknor, CBS-TV veepee in charge of operations, has been named director of operations for the TV web. New role is in addition to remaining as Falknor's aide.

Departments reporting to Grossman, in his new capacity, are network operations, film-service operations, production operations, technical operations and new effects development.

'Monopoly' Squawk Forces FCC to Void VHF Grant Shared by 2 Coast TVers

Washington, April 14.

Those share-time TV authorizations are giving the FCC some headaches.

Last week, under requirements of the McFarland amendments to the Communications Act, the Commission had to pull back permits it granted to two applicants who agreed, in order to avoid hearings, to share the only VHF channel (8) in the Salinas-Monterey, Calif., area.

Action was taken because of a protest by a rival UHF permittee that the Salinas-Monterey combine will have a monopoly on network programs. The permittee, KICU, charged that the channel 8 combine (KSBW in Salinas and KYMB in Monterey) have grabbed up all the network affiliations. Situation, it's claimed, will "effectively monopolize" TV in the area, leaving it without a source of programs and resulting in "an impossible situation."

Because of rights granted under the McFarland amendments, to protest authorizations made without hearings, the Commission postponed effective dates of the channel 8 permits, pending a hearing to be scheduled later.

Previously, the Commission rescinded permits granted to WHEC and WVET in Rochester, N. Y., to share channel 10, after Gordon Brown, owner of radio station WSAY, protested. He said the Commission acted so fast on the share-time arrangement, that he hadn't had a chance to get in his own application for the channel.

Brown had been in process of preparing his channel 10 application when authorization to his rivals to share the channel caught him by surprise.

In the Rochester case also, the Commission postponed the effectiveness of the permits, pending a hearing to be scheduled later.

AN AGENCY BY ANY OTHER NAME

Entries Reach New High

In connection with VARIETY's 20th Annual Survey of Showmanagement, published on Pages 33 to 39, it's heartening to note that the competition among United States and Canada stations for VARIETY recognition hit a new high this year in the number of entries submitted.

In contrast to the approximate 175 entries from radio-television stations last year, the number submitting presentations for VARIETY appraisal this season neared the 300 mark. That's by far tops to date—a reflection of the accelerated activity, particularly in the radio field, and the competitive jockeying, mostly on a management level, to maintain broadcasting's stature.

Houston U. Sees TV Educ'l Station Saving $10,000,000 in Buildings

Washington, April 14.

Television without commercials will come to Texas May 4, when U. of Houston, in cooperation with the public school system of Houston, launches a non-commercial educational station.

The university station (KUHT-TV) will operate on channel 8, and start with a schedule of 20 hours a week, programming Mondays through Fridays from 5 p. m. to 9 p. m. Schedule will be stepped up in the fall.

Although educational stations are generally regarded as a costly operation, W. W. Kemmerer, U. of Houston prexy, believes that KUHT-TV will not only pay for itself, but will also make money for the school. He estimates it will save, over the years, approximately $10,000,000 in construction of classroom buildings. With TV, large numbers of students can be assembled in one place, and fewer classrooms, and teachers, required.

The university has a three-fold program by which it plans to make KUHT-TV self-supporting:

1. It will use the station to reach more students per course for in-school teaching.

2. It will give "telecourses" (at fees) to people at home, who will receive credits toward degrees. Similar courses have been put on the air by Western Reserve U. in Cleveland and by WOI-TV in Ames, Iowa.

3. It will use the station as a laboratory to train students for TV broadcasting and engineering, thus attracting greater enrollment.

Kemmerer is also planning to begin work soon on a $1,000,000 TV center on the campus, to which he hopes to attract all video stations in Houston. He has already arranged with KNUZ-TV to locate its transmitter at the site.

The university station may prove to be the most important development in the history of education, if educators' claims for TV as an educational tool are borne out. The KUHT-TV operation should demonstrate whether education can be made entertaining, whether TV can reduce illiteracy, whether TV can be effective for in-school teaching, and whether educational stations, supported by taxpayers or by private endowment, can justify their

(Continued on page 47)

CBS' 'Love That TV Sat. Night'

Now that CBS-TV has established its enviable two-hour Saturday night 8 to 10 commercial lineup, with the Jackie Gleason, Herb Shriner, "Favorite Husband" sponsorship parlay, thus giving its first solid competitive standing opposite NBC-TV's "Show of Shows," the Columbia program boys apparently are now out to further solidify its Saturday blockbuster. With the 10 to 10:30 segment of "Show of Shows" still formidable opposition, CBS apparently is out to strengthen the rivalry and wouldn't be averse to installing one of its own major properties in the period.

Present 10 to 10:30 occupants on CBS-TV are the alternating "Balance Your Budget" (sponsored by Seely Mattress) and "Quiz Kids" (bankrolled by Cat's Paw.)

NBC Radio's Circus Show

NBC radio is cutting an audition record of a projected dramatic series, in cooperation with the Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey circus, of a behind-the-scenes program on the big show.

Program is planned for late-summer or fall debut.

Campbell Warns Profit-Hungry AM Digging Own Grave

Dallas, April 14.

"There's nothing wrong with radio except the people in it." That's the opinion of Martin Campbell, vet showman and supervisor of radio and television for WFAA.

Panic on the part of radio people at the prospect of lower profits has brought the industry to the point where it's "digging its own grave," he said. "In any other business, nobody expects a 20% profit. But radio has had that all along, and now that the prospect arises that that profit is going to be reduced, they all go into a panic and make all kinds of deals."

With the growing practice of foregoing the rate card and making special deals, Campbell said, the industry is moving in a direction which can only bring it further downward. Another factor in the situation, he added, was the attitude on the part of the networks in making radio a stepchild, in "debasing" it.

Campbell conceded the effect of TV in radio outlets in video areas. In his own case, he pointed out that in metropolitan Dallas AM was taking a beating from television. But since WFAA is a 50,000-watt clear channel station, only about 12% of its audience is in the TV area. WFAA last year hit an alltime high in billings.

In those 5,000-watters and smaller stations in television coverage areas, there's a serious problem to be faced, he said. The stations must reevaluate their functions and rates. But there's no reason why the networks shouldn't be able to supply high quality programming for the many stations that reach beyond TV coverage areas and for those on non-TV spots, Campbell said.

PLYMOUTH'S 9-WEEK RIDE ON 'ABC ALBUM'

The Plymouth division of Chrysler Motor Corp., through N. W. Ayer, has bought nine weeks of the "ABC Album," new ABC-TV showcase which preemed last Sunday (12).

Auto sponsorship, estimated at $250,000, will run from April 26 through June 21. During that time, the show (Sundays at 7:30 to 8 p.m.) will be retitled "Plymouth Playhouse." Thirty-two major stations have been cleared.

Sale leaves only four programs (the first and last two) of the series sustaining, a major coup for the net since "Album" was designed to be a spring look-see

'53 ALMANAC ON % HOUSES

An AM-TV bankroller or a time salesman nowadays is apt to be befuddled, bothered and bewildered when he asks to speak to the top brass named in the title of an ad agency.

An inquirer asking to see one of the high echelons in a scrambled alphabet agency, entitled "Smith, Hooligan & Doohickey," say, might well be told, "Smith is dead, Hooligan left us 20 years ago to join the agency across the street. And Doohickey has long retired to grow dahlias in Westchester County."

Why, then, are the original names retained? Usually because a corporation by any other name would not smell so sweet as an established tradition. Custom lends dignity to age.

To aid the bewildered, VARIETY has delved into the genealogy of the top radio-TV agencies, and herewith offers a summary of those whose titles are wholly or partially figureheads:

N. W. Ayer & Son: Francis Wayland Ayer, 1st prez, named the agency in 1869 after his non-participating father, Nathan Wheeler Ayer, both long since dead; Warner S. Shelley now prexy.

Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn: Bruce Barton is board chairman and Hearst syndicated columnist; George Batten is dead; Roy S. Durstine moved out about 1938 to form own agency, Roy S. Durstine, Inc.; Alex Osborn is board vice-chairman; Ben Duffy prexy.

